The Amazing son in law Chapter 8070

Seeing Steve's indignation, charlie Wade couldn't help but ask him curiously, "You're an heir to the Rothschild family, how can you get so worked up over something like this?"

Steve replied dejectedly, "Mr. Wade, to be honest, even if we subscribe internally after the IPO, we won't make much money. The US capital market is strictly regulated; we can't cash out or reduce our holdings in the short term. That means if we invest 10 billion US dollars, the market value might rise to 30 or 40 billion US dollars, just a paper profit. Not cashing out doesn't really count. What really bothers me is this guy. I've been in the business world for decades, and I've never seen such an unethical piece of trash."

charlie Wade laughed, "That's not right. If you ask me, none of you Wall Street people, or the financial giants and hedge funds in the US, are civilized people. All you do is use capital..." "To put it bluntly, this plundering—before, you used to take guns to other countries to rob money and resources; now you've just replaced the guns with financial instruments."

Steve said seriously, "Mr. Wade, while that's true to some extent, you have to consider the composition and positions of both sides. Yes, we're quite shameless in overseas capital markets. Whoever does well or creates a small loophole, we immediately rush in to fleece them and destroy their livelihoods. But that's American capital dealing with foreign capital. Domestic capitalists can't do that to each other. To put it bluntly, it's like the Age of Exploration: you can sail out and plunder, but you can't return home and plunder your own people. Or, like when white Americans first landed in North America, yes, you could kill Native Americans and even get rewards for killing the government, but you couldn't kill your own people." "People, if you kill your own people, they'll definitely come after you, right?"

charlie Wade smiled and nodded, sighing, "Now that you mention it, I understand. We Easterners are different from you. You go out and commit arson, murder, and looting, then come home and start acting like gentlemen. We, on the other hand, are polite and courteous to everyone we meet, and we strive to make money peacefully. We are also very self-disciplined when we're out in the world." Steve chuckled and said, "That's why I've always said that Western high society is extremely hypocritical. I'm at the very top of this circle, and I know better than anyone how cunning and shameless those guys below are. The things that happened on the island still haven't been resolved because these people are covering for each other!"

Then, Steve added seriously, "However, we can accept someone with a terrible personal life, but we can't accept someone with a terrible business reputation." "You're being ridiculous. That jerk Dalio, honestly, his net worth has skyrocketed in the last two years, and he's gotten a bit too arrogant, you know? He's lost his sense of propriety, thinking he's the only true god in the business and AI world. He has absolutely no respect for old money or the rules. Don't be fooled by his current antics; he's already alienated everyone in the inner circle. He's just currently at the peak of his career, and people are hoping to make money with him. Once he's no longer of any use, there are plenty of ways to deal with him."

charlie Wade nodded and said, "I agree with your assessment of AI. It's an unprecedented technology, but also an unprecedented bubble. Most people's demand for AI is just temporary, a temporary experiment. It brings great convenience, but it's ultimately just scratching the surface. People will eventually have to return from the virtual world's frenzy to reality."

"In reality, the vast majority of people cannot make a living with AI. Most people still have to find ways to earn money to support their families. Most people's cars still need to be charged or refueled. Most people's refrigerators still need to be filled with food. These are all things that AI cannot solve. It is not wrong to pursue the height of the virtual and digital level, but to regard it as a god beyond reality is a bit of putting the cart before the horse. Such people have just created a smarter AI model and fantasized that AI has humanity and personality. They even want to go to religious leaders to discuss it. In my opinion, it is just extreme narcissism."

"Over the years, so many classic virtual games and films have created so many lifelike, memorable, and even hundreds of millions of idolized human characters. Take Harry Potter, created by J.K. Rowling, for example. I think Harry Potter's audience is definitely larger than this AI's. The reason why J.K. Rowling didn't go to the Pope to discuss Harry Potter's humanity and personality might simply be that J.K. Rowling is a normal person, while that guy you mentioned has some mental issues. Perhaps he has a split personality, or a second personality has emerged. He's excessively narcissistic and takes himself too seriously."

Steve laughed, "Exactly. Some people think their poop is the most beautiful in the world, even when they take a dump. That's just how it is. If it weren't for these Wall Street matters, I wouldn't even bother to look at him."

charlie Wade smiled and said, "In that case, I think we should really get on with the short selling you mentioned. These people are indeed too arrogant. They've made some money in a few years and don't even respect families with centuries of history. It's time to let them know what's what."

Steve Steve chuckled and said, "Mr. Wade, so you mean you're planning to get involved?"