The Amazing son in law Chapter 8072

Once charlie Wade made up his mind to short the AI market with Steve, he immediately told Steve, "Since we're going to do it, let's do it big! I've had hundreds of billions of dollars in cash that I haven't touched. This time, I'll take out two hundred billion dollars and short the market hard!"

"Two hundred billion?!" Steve was somewhat horrified.

For the Rothschild family, two hundred billion dollars represented at least 10% of their total assets, and the key was that it was cash.

In this day and age, who could come up with two hundred billion dollars in cash? Even Apple couldn't produce that much money.

The Rothschild family couldn't either.

They couldn't, but charlie Wade could.

Over the years, he had indeed swindled a lot of money from those wealthy people using the Rejuvenation Pill, and that was under the condition that he had principles. Otherwise, at the Rejuvenation Pill auction, one pill could have brought him more than three hundred billion dollars from his uncle.

For charlie Wade, money had long since become just a number, a number lying in various bank accounts, almost meaningless.

However, once it came to financial warfare, this thing was ammunition, even nuclear bombs.

Steve had no doubt that charlie Wade could come up with so much money. He was just a little panicked because if such a large-scale short selling succeeded, the resulting panic would cripple the US stock market. If it failed, the losses from missing out on the opportunity would be too severe.

So he tentatively asked charlie Wade, "Mr. wade, isn't this a bit too much for you...?"

charlie Wade frowned and asked, "Is two hundred billion US dollars a lot? Nvidia's market value is three or four trillion US dollars, and Apple's is five trillion US dollars. Two hundred billion is just a drop in the ocean, isn't it?"

Steve wiped his cold sweat and said, "Mr. wade, your two hundred billion is cash! Those trillions are market value. Only a few hundred billion US dollars are actually circulating every day. Two hundred billion US dollars in cash is definitely a lot of money for the stock market. It has a huge impact. If this money is used to boost the market, the index will soar. If it is used to dump the market, the index will plummet. And that doesn't even take into account the herd effect of the market. Once it triggers panic, there will often be a frenzy of selling. Two hundred billion US dollars could trigger a two trillion US dollar capital flight. At that time, the entire stock market will be in chaos..."

The more Steve talked, the more cold sweat he broke out, while charlie Wade became more and more excited as he listened.

He immediately waved his hand, slightly excited, and said to Steve, "Steve, from two hundred billion to five hundred billion, I'm going to give AI stocks an unprecedented super earthquake!"

Steve trembled in fright, "Five hundred billion? Mr. wade... that's too risky. Even if we short sell, we might not be able to borrow that many shares..."

charlie Wade smiled and said, "If it's just that we don't have enough shares in the AI field, you can go and get shares from listed companies in the upstream and downstream industries. I'm going to start shorting from chip manufacturing and packaging, all the way to hardware and big models. Isn't Dalio's company about to go public?"

Steve stammered, "Yes... tomorrow..."