The Breaking Point of Love

Chapter 875

Celeste nodded. "I'll be leaving now. Remember to let Jordyn know when she wakes up."

Trevor looked at her. "Okay. Aren't you going to have breakfast before you leave?"

"No."

Trevor didn't insist. He got up and said, "I'll see you out."

"There's no need to trouble yourself."

Trevor said nothing, but followed her anyway, personally seeing her to the door. It was only after her car had completely left the driveway that he turned around and headed back inside.

A little over ten minutes later, Jordyn woke up too. When she went downstairs, she looked around for Celeste.

"Your mom had something to take care of, so she left first," Trevor told her.

"Oh, okay..."

The moment Jordyn had woken up and found Celeste no longer beside her, she had already guessed that this might happen. She just pursed her little lips and went to the dining room without saying another word.

Trevor sat down beside her and felt her forehead.

"Your fever's completely gone. Is anything else bothering you? If you're tired, you can stay home and rest today. You can go back to school tomorrow."

Jordyn kept her head down. She didn't pull away from his hand, but simply said, "No need. I want to go to school."

"Alright."

After a pause, he added, "I'll be going on another business trip soon and will be away for quite a while. If you get bored, make sure to keep in touch with your mom."

"I know."

...

In the two days following the formal start of the trial, Wynn had been swamped with work. She hadn't contacted Trevor during that time, but now that things had finally settled down a little, she had time to get in touch with him again.

However, his phone was still unreachable.

She stopped trying to call him and instead called Jacob. "Has Trevor returned?"

Jacob hesitated before replying, "Mr. Fleming returned a couple of days ago, but he and Zeke were already on a flight to Andostan this morning."

Wynn froze. "What?"

Thinking she didn't believe him, Jacob added, "I'm telling you the truth."

Wynn didn't doubt him. She believed Jacob wouldn't lie to her. But—

"Wasn't he supposed to return today or tomorrow? Why did he come back early all of a sudden?"

That was what Miles had told her. It was also why she hadn't contacted Trevor over the past two days. She hadn't expected him to return ahead of schedule

"I heard Jordyn's fever wouldn't come down, so Mr. Fleming was worried and came back early to check on her."

Wynn took a deep breath. After a long pause, she asked, "When do you think Trevor will be back?"

Jacob hesitated before answering honestly. "The earliest would probably be the end of the month."

Wynn knew how busy Trevor usually was when he was in Andostan. She wasn't surprised that he would be away for such a long time this time It was just that...

She didn't dwell on it and simply said, "Thank you."

Jacob said nothing more and ended the call first.

Over the next ten days or so, Wynn still tried calling Trevor from time to time. But he continued to ignore both her calls and her messages.

The verdict should be delivered by the end of the month at the earliest. Hopefully...

Things had been difficult lately for Wynn and the rest of the Locket family. Ever since Philip's banquet, they had rarely gone out for meals.

Still, they made an exception for Wynn's birthday, booking a private room at a restaurant to celebrate as a family.

They had only just arrived at the restaurant when Wynn spotted someone approaching from the opposite direction.

She froze for a moment, but quickly regained her composure and entered the private room with the rest of her family.

The other members of the Lockets and Shaws had naturally noticed her reaction. Once they were inside, they asked. "Wynn do you know that person we just saw?"