The Breaking Point of Love

Chapter 881

Trevor walked over and bent down to pick Jordyn up in his arms. He then turned to Celeste. "Have you decided where you're going for a meal?"

Celeste came back to her senses. "Not yet."

"How about coming in my car? We can decide what to eat on the way."

Celeste hadn't expected Trevor to have returned from his business trip, let alone to show up at Jordyn's school to pick her up at exactly the same time.

Her instinct was to turn down his suggestion and find an excuse to leave. But she had just told Jordyn that she wasn't busy today and would take her out for a meal.

With that in mind, she couldn't bring herself to refuse. "...Okay."

Celeste handed her car keys to Trevor's driver before getting into his car.

It was only after they got in that Jordyn finally came to her senses.

Sitting in the back seat beside Celeste, she watched Trevor drive in front. Pressing her lips together, Jordyn asked, "When did you get back?"

"I just got off the plane."

After answering, Trevor glanced at Jordyn through the rear-view mirror. "You haven't greeted me since I got here."

Jordyn pressed her lips together and glared at him through the mirror. She wanted to argue with him, but remembering that Celeste was there, she swallowed her words.

In a sulky voice, she finally said, "Dad."

Trevor smiled. "Mm. What would you like to eat?"

Jordyn turned her face away. "Anything!"

Trevor looked at Celeste through the mirror. "What would you like to eat?"

Celeste turned her face away too. "I'll let Jo decide."

As he drove, Trevor said, "Your mom says she'll go along with whatever you choose. If you don't decide, I will just find somewhere for us to grab a bite."

With both her parents there today, Jordyn was actually quite happy. Hearing that, she ignored Trevor and shifted closer to Celeste. Leaning against her and wrapping both arms around her, she asked, "Mom, what would you like to eat? I'll go with your choice."

"I'm fine with anything. I'd like to hear what you want too." Celeste smiled and gently stroked her head.

"Your dad and I both want to take you somewhere you'll enjoy. Just tell your dad what you'd like to eat."

After hearing that, Jordyn quickly told Trevor where she wanted to go.

Trevor set the destination on the navigation system and asked, "I heard you've finished your midterm exams?"

Jordyn gave a half-hearted hum.

Although Celeste had spent a fair amount of time with Jordyn recently, she genuinely hadn't known about the exams.

Jordyn hadn't mentioned them to her either.

Whenever anything concerning Jordyn came up, the school always informed Trevor.

Neither Trevor nor Celeste asked much about Jordyn's studies, since she was doing well enough that they didn't need to worry about her.

When they arrived at the restaurant and had placed their orders, Trevor took a sip of tea before turning to Celeste. "Have you been busy lately?"

"A little."

"Have you taken on another new project?"

Celeste didn't really want to discuss YodaVision's business with Trevor. However, with Jordyn there, it would have been rather awkward if she and Trevor didn't exchange a single word.

Since he had brought up a topic, she simply answered, "Yes."

"Can you tell me what it's about?"

"Sorry. It's still confidential, so I can't disclose anything."

Trevor nodded and moved on to another subject.

"I've also looked into the progress of the collaboration between the Fleming Group and YodaVision. Thank you for your hard work."

"It's nothing. It's part of my job."

They chatted for a little while longer, and soon the dishes began arriving.

As soon as the food was served, both Celeste and Trevor picked up a piece of honey garlic spare ribs and placed it on Jordyn's plate at the same time.
