+5 Points

CH 68

Raygan POV

It was a long-involved conversation, and her father brought his whole unit into the room, which allowed for Karsyn to do the same. His whole unit already knew what was going on, so they didn't need to be brought up to speed. There were many unhappy people in the Alpha's office by the end of the conversation.

Mika had gone back to the Cold Moon Pack, with Karsyn's unit. He'd even sent his truck back, got in it himself to leave, drove it to the front gate. Her father's idea just in case Zac and Demi had seen him arrive. Or seen it parked outside the front of the packhouse while they were there for dinner.

He was going to make the announcement in the morning about there being a mating alliance between the two packs. Due to that, his unruly daughter had gotten herself pregnant to the Heir of Cold Moon, and had already mind-linked to those that had seen them all, and Karsyn, being loving to Raygan to say nothing about what they saw, plead ignorance. There was a game a foot.

Her father was going to play it off as Karsyn had Marked and Mated her regardless of what she wanted, because he had scented out his own pup. Try and make it out like she was unhappy with it, even thought that it could easily be done. That Zac and Demi had not seen them earlier, or heard him announce her being Karsyn's Mate. That he'd left that off the announcement them being Goddess Gifted, because he knew that boy would have come down here so fast it wasn't funny. Fuming about the possibility of losing his seat as the Alpha, over it, and he hadn't wanted to ruin the night. He had been going to tell Zac in the morning.

She and Karsyn were not going to be seen together here inside the pack, or at least hopefully not. She had a fully stocked kitchen in her suite and Karsyn had simply smiled and stated he was more than happy to be holed up with her. It had made nearly everyone in the room chuckle. It was clear what he'd been thinking. She'd just shaken her head.

Her father wanted to see just what those two up there would do about the announcement. He was willing to bet that Zac was going to come out of his room or mind-link to him right away, asking when she was to move there to the Cold Moon. To which the answer was simply going to be, at some point. When the war actually stops. That he didn't trust Alpha Steffen not to try and kill Raygan and therefore, until an actual alliance was worked out on paper and he knew his daughter was safe within the Cold Moon, the two of them were not being made to live together.

He was also going to make it out that Raygan was very unhappy about it. But that he, as not only her father but the Alpha, to this pack, her Alpha, was making her stick to the deal, that he was disappointed in her because, just like Zac had guessed, it was Alpha Karsyn's pup. She had slept with their enemy.

Though he was also going to be putting emphasis on his disappointment that his own flesh and blood would sleep with the enemy, especially considering the circumstances, and so he didn't think any child of his that could do that to this pack wasn't fit to rule, that he would just stay the Alpha if his children disappointed him.

This would effectively allow Zac to think that the Alpha seat was his, seeing as he was hiding the fact that Dee was actually Demi from the Cold Moon Pack, but it should also make him be more careful about things. Let him know that if anyone found out just who Dee was, then he too wouldn't get the seat as Alpha.

Her father was hoping that his word choice would stop any further attempts at war between the packs, and contain those two up there deceiving everyone in both packs.

Karsyn was happy to scent mask himself if he was wandering about. Though that would only be allowed if they knew where Zac and Demi were, which now the entire Alpha Unit, herself and her father were all going to be keeping track of those tethers. He was also going to be announced to the pack every day for a two-hour visit to be with his new mate, so that a proper bond could be formed between them, and for him to check the status of their unborn pup.

So those two up there knew that Karsyn was in the pack for a short time each day. They wanted to see if those two would suddenly find an excuse to go off and hide from the man, after being invited to meet him for dinner or lunch. When they thought he was entering the pack. Catch it all on footage. They were going to let this go on for two or three days before Karsyn outed them for the liars they were.

Her and her father were going to be stomping around yelling at each other and putting on a hell of a show of how unhappy they were with each other. Though the pack already knew she was Marked by Karsyn, only a few of them had actually seen them seated by the fountain all cosy like, but her father actually knew who they all were and sorted that out very quickly. Anyone that he missed, he'd stated could put it down to a new Mate Bond, regardless of how it was done.

Regardless of how she felt about it, his touch and her being pregnant with his child would affect her, now she was marked by him. That Karsyn was trying to create a proper bond between them, even though she was unhappy about the circumstances. He was actively trying to make it work and she was the resistant one. That she was going to be expected to go and live in the Cold Moon, that was another of the reasons that she and her father would be yelling at each other. She wanted to put on a show just for the two of them when they came out of that room.

They also wanted to see just what they were going to be doing, still actively trying to incite war with the Cold Moon by sending more texts or video of Demi all beaten and bruised. If that continued, something else was really going on was everyone's opinion.

Raygan could actually feel Karsyn strolling through their pack at a leisurely pace along the forest line, making his way back to the packhouse. She'd told him she'd meet him by the mudroom and had to go and show him where it was before he'd driven his truck to the pack gate.

The guard had been more than curious about him getting out, and staying behind, Karsyn had smiled right at the man apparently and told him, "I'm Mated to Raygan, going to sneak back and have my way with her."

Which had made her guard mind-link to her about it. After his unit had driven off laughing, she'd just sighed and stated, "Yes there is a mating alliance to be worked out and I am Marked by him. Let him think he can sneak up on me."

Had made her gate guard laugh, he'd chuckled, "Good hunting Alpha." Before disconnecting the link.

She watched him stroll all casual like out of the forest near the back of the packhouse and smile right at her, then his deep sexy voice had been inside her mind as he'd strolled over towards her, 'You ready to go up to bed?'

She'd not been able to stop the shake of her head and slight smile, 'You are, I see.' she'd replied.

He'd chuckled softly, 'Yes, Gorgeous I am.' His mouth had been on hers the moment the mudroom door had been closed behind him and he was pressing her up against the wall, "Here will do." he'd murmured softly.

She'd let him kiss her, even kissed him back, but then pushed at him, "I have a room for this kind of thing."

"Hmm, how far away is it?" he'd smirked down at her.

"The other end of the building. You can make it I'm sure." Had shoved him a little further away and walked him through the downstairs to the other end of the packhouse, and then up the omega stairs. When he'd asked why, she'd simply stated so they didn't walk passed Zac and Demi's room. No chance of getting caught. He'd just nodded.

His suitcase had already been brought up here and she got to watch him walk around and look at her suite. It was not small by any means, and she did have the entire wing to herself.

"Where is our pups' room?" he'd commented, not seeing any other rooms down here bar her single room suite.

She'd just smiled at him and walked over to the far wall of her living area; it was a wooden panelled feature wall and she touched the door, pressed on it and it popped open and she walked him in through it, to show him the other part of the suite; down here were 4 other bedrooms all with their own ensuites, and a separate living area told him that she didn't come in here often.

Had that wall designed specifically to hide the door, because she didn't want to have to look at it every day. But her father had insisted on her having a full Alpha Suite. Something about that he knew one day she would find her Mate and would need those rooms.

Though he'd not realised how annoying it was for her to have to see that door or know that he'd built this wing just for her, gotten it ready for the family she would have one day. Told him that she hadn't actually been in these rooms in nearly a hundred years, but she knew the omega's came and went, kept them tidy and well maintained all the time. The walls got a fresh coat of paint every 4 or 5 years.

She was informed when the work was to be done, had been informed by her father just two years ago that the bathrooms in their needed updating. She'd told him to knock himself out. Hadn't even gone in and looked at them when they were finished, she didn't care to. But knew they were simply white and black, all of them. Her father had told her.

Raygan found Karsyn's arms around her as she spoke, "Well, now you have a reason to come in here," he spoke softly, and seemed to understand her reasons as to why, "though I think for the first few weeks our little pup should stay in our room with us."

"Is that so? Are you going to get up and do diapers at 3 in the morning?"

Heard him chuckle, "I'll take the 4am shift, it's when I get up anyway for training. Now, it's late and my Mate needs her sleep."

She laughed softly, "Mm, somehow I don't think you have sleep in mind at all."

Heard his deep chuckle now, "You know me too well."

"Got myself a toy boy who's young and raring to go, it seems."

Got a hearty laugh out of him now, then she was just picked up bridal style, "Yes you do, let's go christen your bed."

"Who's to say it will be christened?" Raygan teased him.

"I just mean by us." he grinned at her, didn't seem to care whether or not she'd had any others in her bed before him.

She was put down on the bed and he looked right down at her, smiled at her that devastatingly handsome smile of his, "You won't recall anyone else in this bed once I'm done with you.

Raygan smiled up at him, "I might?" she teased him, "but there is a way to make sure I don't."

He was grinning at her now. "That would be?"

"Strip for me, put on a show."

Karsyn laughed, "Oh, is that what you want?"

7 Comments

6 Vote

LUCK DRAW >