CH 82

Karsyn POV

He demanded Demi's phone, so he could go through it. Only to have her decline to give it over. Karsyn snarled right at her and saw her glare right up at him. There she was the real Demi. If she wasn't acting, she wouldn't even have it, Zac would have it stashed somewhere out of sight, and he knew it.

"Grant, you have more handcuffs, yes?" he asked.

"Yes, son." he nodded and Raygan pulled a pair from the desk draw, tossed them to him. Watched as Demi tried to get away from him, only to have Mika latch onto her and shove her at him.

"Grandmother please." she implored.

"I'm not your grandmother, Demi. Not right this minute, maybe never be again. If I find out you did poison my son, you might not survive me." Mika stated in a flat, hard, unforgiving tone. "You'll want to pray there is no proof you poisoned Steffen, or death awaits you."

Karsyn cuffed her and shoved her down next to her Mate. They could go down together. He found her phone in the bag she was carrying just a simple large backpack, with the bare essentials in it. He had hunted her within the pack, while Grant had actively hunted his own son.

The two of them had not been leaving together, had both gone in different directions, though Grants own Beta had gone with Karsyn to track the girl via the pack tether, which at this time Karsyn didn't have. It had been helpful indeed to have that man next to him, she'd once again scent masked herself as well.

But once he'd laid eyes on her, he'd left that man in the dust, shot after her at full speed, Crush had given him everything he'd had, and they'd run her down in the matter of a minute once seeing her.

She'd been nothing to him and his speed, or his strength either, though she had burst into tears at being dragged down by him. Tried to latch onto him and hug him, sobbed up at him that she had finally found a moment to escape from her captors. He didn't believe it, not for a second.

Even if he'd not known she was here and plotting against her own pack, trying to incite a war. The timing would seem too obvious to him. He'd just found out what Zac's Mate's name was, smelled her on Zac, then those two were running away. Too convenient for anyone to miss.

He'd taken the moment while she'd tried to plead that she'd been kidn*pped to show her the photo of her and Zac all happy and loved up with the words the future Alpha and Luna of the Wintering Moon. Told her he had many others as well, that Raygan had more proof she wasn't a hostage at all.

She said nothing and only started crying and acting again once she'd seen their grandmother in Grants' office. Gone right back to playing, I'm helpless, just an omega card. She was anything but helpless, and he wanted to beat her senseless, but he wouldn't.

"So, you state this was all Zac's doing." he commented, letting Zac know it was all going to fall on his shoulders, that Demi was going to dump it all on him. "But all those photos and videos which were sent to father came from your personal phone. Which you still carry, explain that to me. Why do you still have your phone if Zac is forcing you to do all this? Or does he order you to carry it at all times as well?"

"It was her plan, all along." Zac stated, "I didn't force her to do anything at all." It seemed neither of them were going to take the blame now that they were caught.

Karsyn looked at him for only a moment. "The code to unlock the phone?" he stated. He didn't really care which one of them answered him, it was likely that both of them had the code.

Neither one of them said anything, he could hear Raygan on the phone, saw it was the phone that went direct to the kingdom. Stopped questioning Demi, so they could all hear just what Raygan was organizing. He heard her address some woman named Alwina and request the use of her ability as a seer.

Stated who she was and offered up their prisoner's blood some from each of the traitors to the two packs involved. That both packs being internally attacked were under the king's rule to protect the wolfen portal to the kingdom. So, this threat could also be considered a threat to the kingdom itself, as they did not know the full extent of the treacherous plans.

Saw her smile and nod, she told Alwina which portals to take from where she was to get here, that they would await her arrival. That her western patroller would be on the lookout for her. Thanked her and hung up.

Then Raygan looked at him and then Grant and Gina, Luna Mika, "A day and a half to get here from where she is. She'll want to see the prisoner's blood be taken herself. I suggest we put them in the cells until then."

"There is no threat to the kingdom, she lied to the king's seer." Zac yelled, "Raygan is lying to get them here."

"No, she's not. Any internal threat to this pack or the Cold Moon is seen as there might also be a threat to the portal's security. Therefore, a possible attack could come from either pack to the kingdom itself, Zac. If you had studied the laws of what we do for the kingdom, the portals' protection, you'd know that." He watched Grant shake his head. "Seems you are more than lax in your duties as the second Heir. Derelict is what I would say." Even Karsyn could hear the clear disappointment in the man's voice, towards his own son.

"Father, you're not going to let Raygan use a seer on me. Take my blood as well. An Alpha's blood, who the hell knows what that witch will do with it."

"Then I suggest you speak up, Zac. But regardless, I'll be letting that seer inside your cell, into your mind. Your claim to the seat as Alpha over your sister, was that you found your Goddess Gifted. I'll want that clarified."

"That's been clarified by Zac's own unit. They are not Goddess Gifted." It was Ollie, "He knew her at uni. They were boyfriend and girlfriend, so did all of them." he waved a hand in the direction of Zac's unit.

Grant stared at them all, "I'll deal with you lot later." He grated out and looked at Karsyn now, "If you'd like to escort your stepsister to the cells, to make sure no harm comes to her. I'll allow it, son." he stated.

Karsyn nodded, and he grabbed Demi and hauled her up, as Grant hauled up his own son. The two of them were marched down to the cells. It didn't take much with both their wolves gone.

Zac ranted and yelled at the guards to help him. Only to have Grant state, "He is not to be spoken to until evidence has been proven he is or is not a traitor to the pack and incited a war with the Cold Moon along with Demi, his mate, for whatever reason unknown to them at this time."

Karsyn heard the growls coming from the guards. It didn't really surprise him at all, seeing no one liked traitors to their packs, and to incite a war, no one should actively do that without due cause, and there was none as far as he could see.

He shoved Demi into the cell next to Zac and saw her stumble and then fall down, cry out in pain and turn those eyes on him full of tears, "Father is going to banish you from Cold Moon for treating me this way," she yelled at him, "You just wait and see."

"He can't, I have already moved here. Left Cold Moon and given the title of Heir to Danny." Saw her stare at him completely shocked now. "We've been on to you for a while now." He looked to Zac in the other cell. " Raygan and I will be taking over; Alpha Grant seems happy with this."

"Yes. I always wanted my little girl to take over." He smiled at Karsyn, "I'm so very happy you offered to move here to be with her."

"I'm bonded to her Grant. Will go wherever she is, to make her happy," he smiled, "Will never deny her anything...that's not fun for me." He smirked.

Grant shook his head. "You son, are going to bring out the old Raygan, I like knowing that. She was fun when your age, full of life and happy."

"She will be again Grant." Karsyn smiled at him.

"Now, son. Stop this calling me Grant. Zac here now understands that you're mated to Raygan, so you are considered family now. Call me father, like a good son would."

Karsyn chuckled, "Of course, father," he smiled at Demi, then at Zac, "Have a nice stay in the cells." Then he turned and walked out with Grant.

He stopped and looked at Grant once outside the cells and saw the man sigh, "I'm sorry it came to this. It can't be a good feeling to know your own kin would do something like this."

"It is not. I understand Zac and Raygan haven't gotten along since the boy was a teen, but I never thought he'd stoop to this to get the seat. And as for the war? Why would he even need one? What was the point?"

"The seer will find out," Karsyn sighed, "if not for that war, I'd not and likely Raygan wouldn't have known we were Goddess Gifted to each other."

"A blessing I guess."

"I had every intention of hunting that girl down," he smiled at Grant, "to be honest with you, I wondered if she was my Goddess Gifted, couldn't bloody get enough of her, and my wolf was curious about her as well. "

"Tell tale signs." Grant nodded, "I like knowing that you were going to look for her. Though...what would you have done finding out who she was?"

Karsyn laughed softly, "Seduced your daughter back into my bed, put myself in front of her on the next full moon to find out. She would still have been pregnant, and I would have simply claimed her for myself the moment I found out, anyway, even if before seeing her on a full moon, then on the next full moon we'd have known anyway."

"So, what you're saying is, you wanted her and were going to have her regardless."

Karsyn smiled. "Yes. It took me all of 4 or 5 minutes to get over the shock and know I was not giving her up, regardless our packs were enemies to each other."

"It's likely you two were gifted to each other for a reason. Perhaps Selena saw fit to try and bring the packs back into a harmonious existence with each other."

"It's possible, I can only thank her for gifting me, Raygan. Thank you, Grant, for being open-minded." He sighed a little heavily now, "Unlike my own father."

"That may be sorted out with time, yet son, we live long lives. Perhaps once young Danny takes over, things will work themselves out."

"I dare say it will. He likes Raygan, from my understanding." Karsyn smiled at Grant as his phone rang.

Frowned down at it when it showed Father on the screen, answered it, "Father?"

"What the hell is going on, Karsyn? Demi just called me a little while ago screaming and crying, she's gotten away, is in the Wintering Moon Pack."

Karsyn sighed, "Don't do anything stupid father, Renee will pay the price. Where is Rickford?"

"Oh, I know what you think is going on, they told me to contain me. But I heard her fear and terror, Karsyn."

"Fear of getting her ass caught. Your own mother will attest to that."

3 Comments

11 Vote

LUCK DRAW >