Chapter 1371: The Ghost Twins

200 meters away, Zhang Heng shot one of the Twins in the head accurately. Just as he was about to turn his gun on the other twin, the 'corpse' of the fallen twin suddenly twitched, after that, he staggered up from the ground. After he stood up, he patted the dust off his body and revealed a smile.

His face, which had been damaged by the bullet, was recovering at a visible rate. His bones were repaired, his facial muscles were regenerated, and even his skin was completely repaired. There was no trace of the bullet left behind.

Zhang Heng frowned when he saw this, but he did not waste any time. He sent another bullet into the chest of another twin, and the same unbelievable scene happened again.

The body of the dead twin lay on the ground for less than two seconds before it miraculously began to move again, and the wound on its chest quickly healed.

Immortal Body? !

Zhang Heng had previously encountered a player with an immortal body in the leakers' dungeon. The other party was the agent of the OATHSOME and Abominable Goddess, Styx. His body had been soaked in the Styx River before, and other than a weakness that only he knew of, his body was invulnerable.

However, the twins that Zhang Heng had encountered this time were obviously different from the players that he had encountered before. Zhang Heng had seen with his own eyes that after the bullets hit their bodies..., it did cause corresponding damage to the parts that were hit, but in the next moment, they were able to crawl back up from the ground as if nothing had happened.

Therefore, this was more like a rapid healing skill.

However, Zhang Heng was still unsure whether this healing skill came from a certain item or their own ability, whether there was a time limit and the number of times they could use it.

However, Zhang Heng did not want to waste his precious sniper bullets on probing. He decisively bypassed the two of them and aimed at another player wearing a bulletproof vest. He pulled the trigger.

Blood splattered everywhere. The target's body leaned back and fell weakly to the ground.

At that moment, Zhang Heng also noticed that the encirclement around him had started to tighten. He did not covet the credit. He decisively put away the SR-25 and continued to move to the next location.

However, this time, Zhang Heng ran into trouble on the way to the next location. The two twins had relied on their immortal ability to move extremely quickly. At first, they were just casually walking around like they were taking a stroll, but then, their footsteps became faster and faster until they were fully sprinting. They were like two deer, leaping and weaving through the forest.

At the same time, in order to cooperate with their movements, the man in sunglasses also specially took out a small team to suppress Zhang Heng, therefore, this time, Zhang Heng only moved less than 50 meters before the twins caught up to him.

However, the two did not rush to attack. One of them even bowed to Zhang Heng and said, “Mr. Simon, I’ve heard a lot about you.”

Zhang Heng also looked at the Twins in front of him. “What’s Your Name?”

“Light arc, the Ghost Twins,” the other person smiled, “We don’t mean any harm. Light arc has always insisted on sitting down with Mr. Simon, so we have no intention of fighting Mr. Simon. We just want to ask Mr. Simon to stay here for a while.”

“Wait until your people have finished surrounding me?” Zhang Heng raised his eyebrows.

“If that’s enough to make you sit down, after all, the survival of the entire human race depends on you now. This is no longer a matter for you alone. We believe that Mr. Simon is not a person who waits for death. You may already have some plans and ideas. We just think that we should have the right to know about this matter, and we might even be able to help you, don’t you think so?”

“For the time being, the two of you stepping aside will be of the greatest help to me,” Zhang Heng said calmly.

The twin brothers looked at each other and one of them said regretfully, “Looks like we can only come here today to experience Mr. Simon’s power.”

Zhang Heng did not waste any more time. Previously, when he was talking to the twin brothers, he had also been observing the surrounding movements. According to his estimation, in about three minutes, the other side’s encirclement would be complete.

In other words, he had to solve the problem in front of him within the next three minutes.

Therefore, without any probing, Zhang Heng pulled out the [hidden scabbard] from his waist and slashed at one of the twins!

Even though the twins were ready for battle, the speed of Zhang Heng’s slash was still beyond their imagination. They could barely see a ray of light before one of their arms flew into the sky, blood spurted out of the wound and dyed the ground red.

However, the next moment, the shocking scene happened again.

A new section of white bone was extracted from the wound, and soon, the bone was covered by muscles and blood vessels, becoming thicker and thicker..

Zhang Heng had seen the Twins reborn twice before, but this was the first time he was so close to them. In just a few seconds, the broken arm was completely reconstructed, no known species in the natural world could achieve such a powerful regenerative ability.

“Sorry to have embarrassed you,” said the severed arm. However, it was clear that even though it possessed an almost invincible regenerative ability, the pain of losing an arm was real. His forehead was covered in sweat, obviously, the pain from earlier was not light, but no matter what, he did survive the [hidden scabbard]’s blade.

And this was the first person Zhang Heng had met who had survived [hidden scabbard]’s attack. One had to know that with the blade’s tyrannical non-healing properties, being hit by it meant death.

But not only did the twins survive, they even grew a new arm. Zhang Heng looked at the spot where he had struck earlier, but there wasn't a single wound left.

Zhang Heng's heart skipped a beat. Could it be that the twins' ability wasn't healing?

Seeing that his brother was safe and sound, the other man shook his head, "It's useless. Your attack won't have any effect on us. At most, it'll only cause us pain. Even though I've been afraid of pain since I was young, I can hold on for a few minutes until the encirclement is complete."

Before he could finish his sentence, an arrow had pierced through his throat. He looked at Zhang Heng, who had suddenly bent his bow, and his face was filled with excitement. It was as if he did not understand why Zhang Heng would switch to using a bow and arrow when he had a gun in his hand, however, he still grabbed the arrow that had pierced through his throat with one hand and pulled it out with great difficulty.

After he had done all this, his throat quickly returned to its original state like the previous few times.

Chapter 1372: Secrets

The arrow that Zhang Heng had just shot was no ordinary arrow. It was the [arrow of Paris] that was used to look for weaknesses.

However, this time, the trajectory of the [arrow of Paris] in the air did not change at all. It pierced straight into the throat of one of the twins.

The scene looked a little bloody, but in terms of effect, it was no different from his previous attack. Both were neutralized by the miraculous regeneration ability of the twins, the twins who had been shot by the arrow were now able to open their mouths to speak again, and their spirits were not much different from before. This meant that the plague effect on the [plague bone bow] had not taken effect either.

He weighed the arrow in his hand and asked curiously, "As the rumors say, you are indeed proficient in all kinds of combat techniques. Other than archery, marksmanship, and Sabersmanship, do you have any other trump cards?"

"I do have hidden cards, but unfortunately, I'm afraid you won't be able to see them," Zhang Heng replied. Although the arrow didn't succeed, there was no disappointment on Zhang Heng's face, he lowered his head to look at the starfish in his hand again.

From the start of the battle until now, about two minutes had passed. In other words, there was only one minute left for him to break out of the encirclement. From the expressions on the twins' faces, it could be seen that.., they were gradually relaxing.

Zhang Heng had already tried three different methods of attack, but none of them had yielded any results. From the looks of it, there was really nothing he could do to them. As long as they could hold out for another minute, their mission to pin them down would be complete.

Therefore, when the twins saw Zhang Heng put away his [hidden scabbard] and took out two knives from his waist, their eyes did not show much wariness.

One of them even advised, "As long as Mr. Simon doesn't make a move, we will do our best to ensure your safety."

“You should worry about yourself first,”Zhang Heng interrupted the twins and said lightly.

After saying that, he stabbed the knife in his hand. This time, his target was the twin on his left hand. This time, the twin also moved his body and hurriedly dodged to the back. However, compared to Zhang Heng’s knife., his movement was a little slow. In the end, he could not completely dodge the knife and was stabbed in the lower abdomen.

Before he could cry out in pain, Zhang Heng had already pulled out the knife and used his fastest speed to stab the chest of the other twin. The twin subconsciously raised his hand to protect his chest, however, his expression suddenly changed.

It was not until Zhang Heng took half a step back that he realized that a small knife had appeared in his lower abdomen. The position of the knife was actually the same as his twin brother’s.

However, this time, the wounds of the two did not heal as quickly as before. Therefore, Zhang Heng knew that he had guessed correctly.

“How is this possible? !”One of the twins knelt on one knee and clutched his lower abdomen. With a shocked expression, he said, “How did you discover our secret in such a short time?”

At that moment, his face was no longer as relaxed as it had been when the mission was almost completed. There was only pain and confusion.

“Your quick-healing wounds are indeed quite deceiving. At first, I was almost fooled by you,”Zhang Heng said, “But after I tried it, I realized that your wounds weren’t healing at all. It was more like a mechanism to replicate each other.”

Zhang Heng didn’t explain to them the functions of [hidden scabbard] , [pestilence bone bow] , and [Parris’s arrow] , but he pointed at their arms, “Actually, when I first met you, I felt that something was wrong. There are many identical twins in this world, but it’s rare to see twins like you. “Fortunately, there is something different about the two of you. It’s your right arm. There is a mole on the inner side of your right arm, but your brother or brother doesn’t have it. In the end, when I cut off your arm, the mole on the inner side of your newly grown arm disappeared. It was then that I gradually came to the same conclusion.

“Your rapid healing is actually a kind of skill that duplicates each other. Your twin brothers are copies of each other. I don’t know how you do it, but once someone is injured, the injured part can be replicated according to the other person’s intact body. This explains why the two of you are becoming more and more alike.”

Zhang Heng still hadn’t said a word. This was also the reason why [hidden scabbard] , [plague bone bow] , and [Parris Arrow] didn’t take effect.

“Can you even notice such... small details?”The other twin was also stunned.

However, Zhang Heng didn’t answer his question because the minute was almost up. He told the two of them, “Don’t move.” “Cover your stomachs and stay here quietly. When your people arrive, ask them to send you to the hospital immediately.”

After saying that, Zhang Heng picked up the [Arrow of Paris] that he had just shot out and disappeared from their sight with the Sr-25 in his arms.

When the man wearing sunglasses and his men arrived, they saw the twin brothers leaning against a tree trunk with an awkward expression on their faces.

However, this time, no one opened their mouths to mock them. Other than the fact that they were still alive, everyone had to give them some face. Most importantly, unlike the Gnomes, the ghost twins were quite famous among the players, their strength had also been tested.

Even they were unable to hold Zhang Heng back for even a few minutes. This cast a shadow over the hearts of the players once again.

However, the man in sunglasses did not say anything. He only ordered his men to help the twin brothers into the car. After a simple treatment, he was taken to the county hospital.

After sending the two away, the players initially thought that the man in sunglasses would continue to recruit people who could hold Zhang Heng back. However, they did not expect the man in sunglasses to take the blame this time, "It's my fault. Knowing that Simon is the number one player, we still sent people to his side. This allowed him to succeed time and time again. From now on, no one should act alone."

"Then how are we going to surround him?" Someone frowned. "If there really is guerrilla warfare in the forest, even if we manage to kill him in the end, the casualties will not be small."

"Don't worry about that. The engineering team has already made preparations. It should be about time now," the man in sunglasses said. "Soon, he will have nowhere to run."

As if to answer his words, the sound of a propeller turning rang in everyone's ears. Someone lifted his head when he heard the sound and saw a black shadow coming from the direction of the convoy.

— drones. There were many of them. It was estimated that there were more than a hundred of them.

Chapter 1373: Waterfalls And Tattoos

Zhang Heng Bent His bow, and an arrow shot out from his fingertip. It accurately hit one of the drones and blew up the camera on the drone.

However, the drones nearby, like sharks smelling blood, began to rush toward Zhang Heng's location. For a moment, Zhang Heng's ears were filled with the sound of propellers turning.

However, Zhang Heng's expression did not change. He pulled out another arrow from his quiver and accurately hit the second drone. This time, the out-of-control drone collided with another drone that was flying toward him, both of them fell from the sky.

At this time, Zhang Heng was already on the third arrow... in just half a minute, he had destroyed a total of 12 drones, but the number of drones in the sky did not decrease. They continued to rush toward him, some of the drones immediately raised their altitude after discovering Zhang Heng's location. After reaching a safe distance, they locked onto Zhang Heng from the sky.

The purpose of these drones was to track Zhang Heng, and now that they had completed their mission perfectly, from this moment on, Zhang Heng's every move could not escape the eyes of the pursuit team.

After Zhang Heng finished shooting eleven arrows, he also stopped what he was doing. It was not because he had shown mercy, but because his quiver was almost empty.

In order to save as much bullets as possible, Zhang Heng chose to use the bow and arrows to deal with the drones. Unfortunately, he did not have many arrows on him. Previously, he had tried to make a batch of arrows, but it was not finished yet, the search party had already arrived. If he was given half a day, he might not be short of arrows anymore.

However, now, Zhang Heng could only move first. However, this time, the search party had grasped his movement path. Not only did they surround him faster, but there were also gunmen who directly attacked his position.

Of course, with the distance between Zhang Heng and them, it was difficult for the bullets to hit the target directly. However, the stray bullets did add to Zhang Heng's movement problems.

However, this time, the group of people should have learned their lesson from the previous two times and did not send anyone to stop him. Therefore, Zhang Heng finally managed to break out of the encirclement without any danger, however, the danger did not end there. As long as the drone above his head was still there, it was only a matter of time before he was completely surrounded.

The man in sunglasses looked at the tablet in his hand. The 10.3-inch screen was divided into six windows. The six windows locked onto a figure that was rapidly shuttling through the forest from six different angles.

"Where... are you going?"The Man in sunglasses muttered.

Unlike his excited teammate who was holding the fire qilin beside him, the man in sunglasses did not feel that he was already certain of victory after using the drone. From his point of view, the battle had just begun, he didn't think that Zhang Heng would be completely helpless against the drone above his head. However, he couldn't see what Zhang Heng was planning to do at the moment, so he continued to command the search party to press forward.

Zhang Heng circled around and eventually reached the waterfall.

Then, he finally stopped. He picked up a large rock beside the waterfall and hid behind it. Ignoring the drone above his head, he set up the SR-25 again. This time, Zhang Heng didn't deliberately save his ammunition, he used up all the remaining bullets in the gun clip and killed the seven fastest players.

However, at the same time, the man wearing sunglasses also commanded the search party to completely surround Zhang Heng.

Then, the man wearing sunglasses saw Zhang Heng open his backpack and take out a waterproof cloth. He put the things in his backpack on.

Was he planning to escape from the water?

The man in sunglasses frowned. He split up two teams to aim downstream, but he was more worried about the secret waterway that led to other places under the waterfall.

After all, Zhang Heng had arrived at this place more than ten days before them, so he must have already figured out the surrounding environment. This was also the advantage of Zhang Heng's battle, however, in the face of absolute power, the man wearing sunglasses did not think that a mere geographical advantage would be enough to turn the tide of the battle.

Right now, the most important thing for him to do was to continue fighting steadily. Therefore, the man wearing sunglasses still followed the plan and ordered four squads to approach the rock together.

However, as soon as they moved, the drone overhead transmitted a new image. Zhang Heng, carrying his backpack, jumped directly into the pool under the waterfall.

The man in sunglasses immediately ordered the ten drones to descend above the pool. Through the drone's camera, he could vaguely see a black shadow swimming below the pool.

The man in sunglasses heaved a sigh of relief. The pool was deeper than he had imagined, and the deepest part of the pool should be less than five meters. In other words, as long as the drone was above the water., he could continue to track Zhang Heng's figure.

However, the next moment, he saw the originally calm pool suddenly stir up waves and shoot the ten low-flying drones into the water. The non-waterproof cameras only lasted for less than five seconds before they were all destroyed.

Water-type equipment?

The man in sunglasses felt that he had already guessed Zhang Heng's trump card, so he looked at the players around him and asked, "Do any of you have water-type equipment?"

The players looked at each other, and after a while, a few of them began to speak.

"I have a water-type item."

"I have a tool that can summon a water snake."

"I have a tool that can control water plants!"

"I can turn into a fish."

"Very good. I've already sent someone to deliver the diving suit over," the man in sunglasses said, "However, there aren't many diving suits. There are only ten of them, so I'll need your help later. You Don't have to defeat him underwater. As long as you can force him out of the water and back onto land, we'll be able to reach a battle plan."

Before he could finish his sentence, a player who had not spoken before silently walked to the side of the pool. He took off his clothes and revealed the tattoo on his back.

The tattoo depicted a man with a muscular body and a long beard. He wore a crown on his head and held a trident in his hand. Many people had already recognized the person on the tattoo as Poseidon, the sea god of Greek mythology.

The man wearing sunglasses had a change of expression when he saw this. He said that he was the commander of the search party, but in reality, he did not know much about his subordinates because the composition of the members of the search party was very complicated, the search party was made up of three large guilds and a portion of powerful players. Other than knowing the information of his own guild members, the commander did not know much about the others.

However, when he saw the Poseidon Tattoo, a name quickly appeared in the man's mind.

Chapter 1374: Trident

— Seahorse.

Those who knew seahorse well knew that he wasn't the strongest of the bunch. He was only ranked 73rd in the first round of the proxy war, and in terms of fame, he wasn't even as famous as the ghost twins, who had just been defeated by Zhang Heng.

However, everyone who heard this name knew that seahorse wasn't to be trifled with.

Especially in certain situations.

Unlike the all-rounder Zhang Heng, seahorses were a very serious player. He was born into a family of fishermen, and from a very young age, he had followed his father and uncle out to sea to fish, unlike some young people who were forced to board ships to make a living, he really liked this piece of azure blue. If he didn't soak in the sea every day, he would feel like he was lacking something. Compared to land, he felt more at ease in the sea, the smell of the sea breeze mixed with fish was his favorite smell.

Seahorses were not only good at fishing, but they were also the best at swimming and diving among their peers since they were very young. When he was nine years old, he could hold his breath underwater for more than a minute, when he was fourteen years old, he was accidentally attacked by a shark while swimming. The Seahorse, who had nowhere to escape, relied on a dagger to swim with the shark for a full fifteen minutes. In the end, he successfully killed the shark and survived, it also made him a local legend.

After graduating from university, the Seahorse returned to his hometown and opened a seafood farm. No one knew how he did it. The seafood he raised was always better than that of his competitors. The Seahorse also made a lot of money from the farm, however, the rich seahorse still went out to sea with his father and uncle to fish. Moreover, he had to soak in the water for at least four hours every day.

However, things changed one afternoon two years ago. A big foreign customer who had been ordering seafood from him suddenly flew over from far away to visit him. The two of them talked for an entire afternoon. The next day, the Seahorse suddenly sold his well-run breeding farm.

At the same time, he bought a villa in a relatively remote place and transformed the top floor into a training room. Then, he hired two trainers at a high salary to help him with his physical training, in addition, he also signed up to participate in shooting and freestyle fighting. However, no matter how tight his daily schedule was, the seahorse would take four hours to go into the water.

However, during this period of time, he was alone in the water. If anyone saw what he was doing, they would probably be shocked. The Seahorse did not come out of the water for even one breath in these four hours, moreover, his underwater figure was even more ghostly than a fish. It was as if he had lived in the water for his entire life.

The president of the arc of light, February siege, had once commented on seahorse, "If you are forced to be his enemy, remember not to fight him in the water!" Although this sentence was simple, the meaning behind it was not simple, those who understood February siege knew that this was basically his highest evaluation of an opponent.

In other words, Seahorse was invincible in the water!

As the representative of Poseidon, Seahorse also had some of Poseidon's abilities. This also made him, who was good at water, even stronger in the water.

It was rumored that in the early days, February siege had once entered a dungeon together with seahorse. After that, February siege also had the idea of recruiting seahorse. Although many people felt that seahorse was too biased, after all, players could not choose a dungeon, a versatile player was always more popular in a team. However, a large guild like arc of light understood the importance of this kind of strategic talent. Besieged city in February even personally called seahorse, unfortunately, Seahorse ultimately chose to join another large guild, the second front.

However, he had been very low-key ever since. This proxy war was also not very hot, just like his personality. However, no one had expected that he would take the initiative to apply to join the search party this time, even the president of the second front wondered why seahorse suddenly became concerned about the matters on land. The real reason was only clear to seahorse himself.

Ever since the appearance of those half-man, half-fish frogs, the sea was no longer the pure sea it used to be. Those dirty and ugly creatures had tarnished the azure blue!

Seahorse had been busy hunting these monsters all over the world. Unfortunately, he was only one person. Even if he spent 365 days a year out there, the number of monsters he could kill was limited, furthermore, he had to train himself to prepare for the monthly dungeon. Therefore, it would be great if he could kill the leader of those monsters. At the very least, he would have to keep that guy imprisoned in the dead city under the ice.

However, Seahorse also knew what he was good at. He kept his distance from the previous battle and did not rush forward. It was not until Zhang Heng jumped into the pool that he started to take off his clothes. Then, without waiting for the diving suit to arrive, he jumped into the pool as well.

This was not because seahorse was overconfident. In his opinion, the power of the so-called diving suit and harpoon gun under the water was also limited. If he could not deal with Zhang Heng, then adding ten more divers would be useless, or perhaps the other strange props wouldn't be of much use.

Seahorse himself didn't bring any props. He just walked naked until he reached the edge of the pool. However, the moment he jumped into the water, the water above the waterfall suddenly stopped and began to boil, a Ray of golden light flew out from the bottom of the water and quickly fell down the waterfall into the pool!

It was a golden trident. If one looked carefully, they would find that this trident was exactly the same as the one on his back tattoo!

Moreover, this was not a replica. In fact, it was the artifact in Poseidon's hand that could shake the seven seas!

It was rumored that this artifact could set off huge waves, cause tsunamis, and break everything. Although Seahorse was Poseidon's representative, it was obviously not good enough for Poseidon to give him all of his personal weapons. He had borrowed this weapon from Poseidon before he left.

Logically speaking, the new and Old Gods were currently at war, and Poseidon also needed his weapon by his side. However, when Seahorse explained his purpose of coming.., Poseidon still lent this divine weapon to his representative after dealing with the person he wanted to deal with.

There was nothing he could do. Although the other gods also wanted to kill the guy who was sleeping in the ancient city of Lalaiye, no one could compare to Poseidon in terms of urgency. It was not that he abhorred evil, it was because Cthulhu was a monster of the water attribute, which was a natural conflict with him in terms of his priesthood.

Even the seahorse could feel that the sea was no longer pure. As the sea god, how could Poseidon not feel it? Therefore, he lent his divine weapon, the trident, without hesitation.

As soon as the seahorse arrived, he threw the trident into the stream. He was not worried that the weapon would be stolen because no one could steal the weapon in the water, now was the time for him to show off with the Trident.

Chapter 1375: Underwater Battle

The Golden Trident flew rapidly through the stream towards Seahorse's open palm. Just as it was about to reach his hand, it was unexpectedly grabbed by another hand in the next moment!

Seahorse looked at the figure under the waterfall and his expression became serious.

He knew that it was his opponent this time, Simon, the number one player on the leaderboard. Other than that, it was also the container of the Lord of Lalaiya, a dangerous factor that could very well destroy the world.

The weapon was held in the hand of his opponent before he even started fighting, but seahorse did not show any signs of panic.

This was because he believed that the Golden Trident was similar to Thor's myrtle. This trident was also Poseidon's exclusive weapon. Even if other people had it in their hands, they would not be able to use it. Although seahorse was Poseidon's agent.., he had inherited a part of Poseidon's power, but strictly speaking, he was not able to fully unleash the full power of this divine weapon.

Fortunately, Poseidon had forcibly removed the seal on the weapon before he left, but only he and Poseidon could use the weapon now. Otherwise, Seahorse would not have tossed the weapon into the stream as soon as he arrived.

In fact, the fact that Zhang Heng could catch the Trident flying through the stream had already surprised seahorse. However, he could also tell that Zhang Heng was not at ease at the moment. The trident had been trying to escape from Zhang Heng's palm, as a result, Zhang Heng had no choice but to control the surrounding water to fight against the pulling force.

However, the pulling force was getting stronger and stronger. The golden glow on the Trident was also becoming more and more dazzling. At the same time, Zhang Heng could feel that his control over the surrounding water was also decreasing. There was no doubt that this was also the Trident's trick.

Seahorse also noticed that the Trident was about to escape from Zhang Heng's control. He knew very well that when the Trident came into his hands, the battle would truly begin.

He, Poseidon's agent, the son of the sea, would be facing off against Cthulhu's vessel, the number one player, Simon!

If this battle happened on land, Seahorse knew that he had no chance of winning. However, in the water, Seahorse was also confident that no one would be able to defeat him!

He did not stop there, waiting for the Trident to fly into his hands. Instead, he took the initiative to swim toward Zhang Heng.

Zhang Heng was already fast enough in the water, but he realized that the man in front of him seemed to be even more agile than he was.

Compared to Cthulhu, who had his water element added, Poseidon was a true sea god. His control and understanding of water flow was better than Cthulhu's, and so was his agent.

On the other hand, even though Zhang Heng managed to grab his opponent's weapon one step ahead of time, it did not give him any advantage in this battle. In fact, he only wanted to stop the Trident from flying out of his hand, Zhang Heng had no choice but to use all his strength, but the pulling force continued to increase.

At this moment, Zhang Heng realized that this weapon might be the same as Thor's hammer. It could not be used by anyone other than its owner, and even if he forcefully held it in his hand, it would only bring about side effects.

However, Zhang Heng did not stop there. Instead, he suddenly pulled out the [hidden scabbard] from his waist with his other hand. Then, under Seahorse's shocked gaze, he directly slashed at the trident in his hand.

In fact, when he held the glittering weapon in his hand, he had already felt the excitement of the [hidden scabbard]. It was the same as the last time he fought against Ann, but this time, the excitement was even stronger, he couldn't wait for Zhang Heng to pull it out immediately.

The moment the blade hit the trident, the golden glow on the Trident suddenly intensified. In the next moment, Zhang Heng felt an unparalleled pulling force coming from the center of his palm, so he let go without hesitation, he watched as the weapon flew into Seahorse's hand.

After receiving the trident, seahorse heaved a sigh of relief. However, when he saw the 2mm deep cut on the Trident's body, a look of shock appeared on his face.

This trident was the exclusive weapon of Poseidon! Measured by the game's level, it was a B-grade item, and it was the best B-grade item.

Forged from an unknown rare material, it was extremely hard. It had accompanied Poseidon through many battles, but it had not suffered any damage. In the end, it had been lent to him for less than two days, and it had already been cut into a gash, furthermore, it had already been damaged before the battle had even begun.

Seahorse seemed to be able to feel the Trident's grievance and sadness. His gaze shifted to the knife in Zhang Heng's hand, but he could not tell its origin at all, this weapon, which looked a little like a Tang knife but also a little like a tachi, seemed to have never appeared in any myth before. This was also what seahorse found the most incredible.

Could a weapon that wasn't first-rate hurt Poseidon's trident?

However, he didn't have the time to think about it now because the battle had already begun. Fortunately, even though the Trident had been cut open, it still managed to escape from Zhang Heng's hand and return to his side, furthermore, even though the wound had surprised seahorse, it was only a small wound in terms of depth. It wouldn't affect the Trident's usage. However, Seahorse looked at Zhang Heng with a more serious gaze, he changed his mind and didn't swim to Zhang Heng's side to attack. Instead, he controlled the current to test the waters. In the end, the underwater whirlpool disappeared before it could reach Zhang Heng.

Seeing this, Seahorse didn't look disappointed. He knew that Zhang Heng could control the current as well as he could. Previously, even the Trident had to use a lot of effort to break free from Zhang Heng's hand. Furthermore, it had been hit by a knife, it was not surprising that the whirlpool he had just created had been dissolved.

The battle had only just begun!

Seeing that his probing was ineffective, seahorse gripped the golden trident in his hand. The whirlpool just now had been created by him using his water control ability, and the following attack., seahorse also decided to use the power of the Trident.

When both of his hands gripped the golden weapon, the surrounding water began to boil again! As if it was boiling, Seahorse had a feeling in his heart that every stream and every drop of water in the pool would listen to his commands. He was the king of the waters.

Without hesitation, Seahorse swung the trident in his hand. Although there was still about 10 meters between him and Zhang Heng, as he swung it, a terrifying force came from the Trident, it actually split the water flow. Although it was only for a short moment, the huge force was already flying toward Zhang Heng. If he was hit by the force, there was no doubt that he would be beheaded!

Chapter 1376: Cross Slash

As Poseidon's personal weapon, the Trident could be considered one of the best among all the god-tier weapons in the world. Furthermore, its power was far beyond its destructive power.

In fact, with the wave of the Sea Horse, not only was the water wave split open, but more importantly, Zhang Heng realized that his control over the surrounding water flow was also decreasing. This was the true strength of the Trident.

This weapon from the sea god could turn the entire area of water into the owner's home ground. Zhang Heng tried to create two water shields to block the sea horse's slash, but the water shield that he created had already shrunk by half before it could even be hit, furthermore, the water on it was still frantically escaping. In the end, the water shield was easily broken. Zhang Heng had no choice but to raise the [hidden sheath] in his hand to take the blow head-on.

The result was that his body was sent flying backward like a torpedo!

Zhang Heng flew for a full 10 meters. He only stopped when his back was about to hit the stone wall on the side of the pool. However, the next moment, Seahorse's figure appeared in front of him again.

Previously, it was only Zhang Heng who used his speed to bully others. However, this time, he finally met an opponent who was faster than him underwater. After brandishing his trident, Seahorse did not appreciate his victory but immediately followed up, his activation was later than Zhang Heng's, and he was still ten meters away from Zhang Heng. However, when Zhang Heng stopped, he realized that the distance between him and seahorse was less than five meters.

At the same time, Seahorse waved the trident in his hand again. He waved it twice in a row, forming a cross slash that sealed off Zhang Heng's movement space, the worst part was that this time, there was no room for Zhang Heng to retreat.

However, even though he was forced into a corner, there was no panic in Zhang Heng's eyes.

Due to the existence of the trident, his control over the flow of water had weakened a lot. Zhang Heng knew that he would not be able to dodge this attack by simply controlling the flow of water. However, he was now forced to the side of the stone wall of the pool, Zhang Heng stepped on a protruding point on the stone wall and bent his knees. Then, he stomped hard on the stone wall. Under the effect of [worldly scale], Zhang Heng's stomp exploded with three times the force, and his whole body shot up.

In addition to the effect of the surrounding water, he escaped the attack range of the cross slash without any danger.

Seeing this, Seahorse could not help but praise Zhang Heng in his heart. Zhang Heng's combat literacy was the strongest among all the players he had met. Even if he was at a disadvantage, he could remain calm forever. This did not only require a strong mental fortitude, it was also the result of countless combat experiences honing his keen sense of smell.

Of course, Seahorse himself wasn't bad either. Even though he was only the boss of a seafood farm before he joined the game, in the following two years, he had also experienced dozens of large and small battles in the dungeon. Other than that., unlike other players who had returned to their daily lives, he had been wandering around the world for the past few years, hunting monsters. He was truly a deep-sea hunter.

The Seahorse's sense of combat was also outstanding. Zhang Heng moved, and so did he. He swung his trident again and again, and the small pond was instantly turned upside down.

The people on the shore had no idea what was happening below. They only saw the calm surface of the water suddenly become turbulent. An unlucky person who was closer to the shore was accidentally swept into the pond by the huge wave. One second ago, they saw him struggling and trying to swim back to the shore. However, the next second, he was slammed into the water by another huge wave. It was unknown whether he was alive or dead.

And this was not the end. As the huge waves surged, the players on the shore even felt the ground under their feet tremble slightly. It was as if someone was hitting the ground with a huge hammer.

The sunglasses man, who was originally waiting for the diving suit to be delivered, had an ugly expression on his face when he saw this scene. He already understood why seahorse wanted to go into the water alone. Indeed, there was no point in having such a large number of people fighting, it might even affect his battle, giving him extra scruples when he made his move.

Of course, Zhang Heng, on the other hand, also made his scalp tingle. Even though he couldn't see what was happening underwater, it was clear that the two were still fighting. At that moment, he thought of the comments that besieged city had made about seahorse, if he hadn't seen it with his own eyes, he wouldn't have believed that there was someone who could fight back and forth underwater with Poseidon's representative.

At this point, the sunglasses man could only pray that seahorse could finish off Zhang Heng underwater.

Seahorse didn't know if he had heard the sunglasses man's prayer, but he was getting more and more into combat mode. In order to force Zhang Heng to take his attack head-on, he moved closer, at the same time, he waved the trident in his hand tirelessly.

With this godly weapon, he had already gained the upper hand in combat. It was not like Zhang Heng did not have a B-grade item on him, however, whether it was the [hidden scabbard] or the [plague bone bow] , they were no match for the Trident in Seahorse's hand underwater. The only thing that came in handy was the -LSB- infinite building blocks] , and it was not time for it to take effect yet.

Furthermore, it was difficult for Zhang Heng to free his hands to assemble the Lego in his backpack into the thing he wanted. Therefore, his focus was now on Dodging Seahorse's attack. Of course, it was not like Zhang Heng had not tried to fight back before, the Seahorse wasn't too far away from him, but whenever Zhang Heng tried to get close, the seahorse would pull the Trident back to its chest.

The water around him would immediately gather into a bubble and wrap around him. Zhang Heng tried to use [hidden sheath] to cut open the bubble, but the part that was cut open was quickly replaced by the surrounding water, at the same time, once Zhang Heng was about a meter away from the seahorse, he would feel a huge pressure on him.

Under this pressure, Zhang Heng's movements would be slowed down or even deformed. At this time, Zhang Heng did not have much of a solution against the seahorse. After several unsuccessful attempts, he could only retreat quickly and widen the distance between them, seeing this, the seahorse immediately turned from defense to offense, not giving Zhang Heng any chance to catch his breath.

He had already regarded Zhang Heng as the most vicious and cunning sea monster.

He could not make a sound underwater, but this silent battle was far more dangerous than the previous battle where gunshots were heard on land. Both sides appeared to be very patient, waiting for the other party to make a mistake while doing their own thing.

Zhang Heng had to admit that Seahorse was one of the most difficult opponents he had encountered so far. Of course, it was only limited to underwater. In fact, the easiest way to deal with seahorse was to put the battle on land, although Seahorse had the initiative now, Zhang Heng could still leave the pool. However, the danger on land would only be greater than in the water. This was the trouble of being surrounded.

Chapter 1377: Frozen

In the pool below the waterfall, two figures more agile than a fish were entangled together.

Zhang Heng and seahorse had been fighting underwater for almost ten minutes, but there was still no winner.

However, compared to ten minutes ago, Zhang Heng's body had a few more wounds. Most of them were bruises. The only two bleeding spots were from his back hitting the sharp part of the stone wall.

Of course, Zhang Heng did not pay the price for nothing. Although seahorse was not injured, the trident in his hand had seven more knife marks. About three minutes ago, Zhang Heng suddenly changed his usual behavior and no longer targeted him, instead, he began to attack the Golden Trident.

Seahorse's pressure field was effective in a radius of one meter around him, but the majestic trident in his hand was already more than two meters long. In other words, unless he kept it in front of him, as long as he waved it., the trident would leave his pressure field, which gave Zhang Heng a chance.

Seahorse did not know what material Zhang Heng's knife was made of, but it was incredibly hard. Logically speaking, a divine weapon like the Trident should not be so fragile, but the truth was that he was shocked.

If the first time was an accident, then every time the knife came into contact with the trident, it would leave a cut on the trident. After being slashed by Zhang Heng a few times, Seahorse was afraid, so he took the initiative to put some distance between them, he forcefully used the cold weapon as a staff. However, this way, he would be a little tied up in the upcoming battle.

Seahorse also thought about whether he should be ruthless and sacrifice the trident to finish off the powerful enemy in front of him. After all, it was not easy for Zhang Heng to destroy this B grade artifact, and he himself was injured in order to hit the Trident, in such a head-on clash, the chance of Zhang Heng falling first was much higher.

However, Seahorse eventually dismissed this tempting idea. After all, this Trident wasn't his weapon, but Poseidon's. It was only lent to him for the time being, seahorse could already imagine Poseidon's fury when he saw the wounds on the trident, not to mention the fact that the Trident would be destroyed.

Even though the master of laraya was Poseidon's archenemy, after this matter was settled, Poseidon still had another life-and-death battle to fight.

He definitely did not want to lose his weapon at this critical moment, so seahorse had no choice but to pull away from Zhang Heng. However, this way, more than half of the advantage that he had worked so hard to accumulate would be wasted, fortunately, Seahorse's patience did not diminish because of this. In this battle, he only had one thought, and that was to get rid of the opponent in front of him!

Seahorse's tenacity also won Zhang Heng's admiration. Although a part of it was due to the trident, to be able to fight until now without a victor, Seahorse himself was the most crucial factor. In terms of combat experience, Seahorse was only slightly inferior to him. Zhang Heng could tell that this tough man with a hunter's temperament was also experienced in hundreds of battles like him.

Unfortunately, only one of the two would make it back to the surface alive.

However, just as Zhang Heng was about to launch his next attack, he suddenly stopped what he was doing and frowned. Seahorse also stopped what he was doing. As Poseidon's agent, the son of the sea.., he was naturally very sensitive to the surrounding hydrologic environment.

He could feel a cold current suddenly appear behind him. At first, Seahorse thought that Zhang Heng was holding back, but when he raised his head, he was suddenly stunned.

That was because he realized that the water above his head was starting to freeze.

It was still summer. Even though the temperature in the deep mountains was slightly lower than outside, it was only a few degrees. It was impossible for it to reach the freezing point, however, the scene before his eyes told him that the water surface was indeed freezing.

In fact, it was not just the water surface. The cold air from behind was spreading to the pool at an alarming speed. It seemed like it was going to freeze the entire pool!

The man wearing sunglasses by the shore also showed a dumbfounded expression. He stared blankly at the youth squatting by the pool.

The other party was originally from the second echelon. After hearing the news, he came with the group of diving suits. After coming, he put his right hand into the pool without saying a word.

Then, all the people standing by the lake suddenly shivered. Immediately after, a thin layer of ice condensed on the surface of the lake. The thin ice quickly spread in all directions. In less than half a minute, the entire pool was frozen.

It was only then that someone realized something. The first to rush out was the people from the second front. They shouted at the young man by the pool, "What the hell are you doing?"

"Helping you guys who have no efficiency to end this battle as soon as possible," the young man said calmly as he took off the beats headphones on his head.

"But our people are still down there!"

"I know, and I'm very grateful to him. If it wasn't for him helping to stall Simon, I wouldn't have been able to freeze this pool."

"Do you know that the one you froze isn't just Simon, but Seahorse as well? ! I advise you to leave this pool before we make a move on you."

The players on the second front had unfriendly expressions on their faces. Although seahorse usually liked to travel alone, wandering around the world, and didn't really participate in guild events, he was still a member of the same guild as them.., they could not just watch as their comrades were frozen under the water by this young man who appeared out of nowhere.

However, the young man remained unmoved. He said unhurriedly, "How many people died in your previous operation?"

The people on the second front were stunned.

The young man continued, "If we let Simon escape, how many people in the world will die? Sacrificing one person to save the entire world, isn't that why we are here?"

The people on the second front were a little speechless, but after a moment of silence, they still forced themselves to say, "You don't know about seahorse. He's invincible underwater. Even if you don't have to freeze this pool, he can still kill Simon."

"Maybe. I hope he's really as strong as you say, but ten minutes have passed and he still hasn't come up. This means that he has indeed encountered some trouble in his battle, which means that there's a possibility of failure. If he dies, what do you plan to do? Send ten unlucky people in your ridiculous diving suits down to die?" The youth with the beats headphones around his neck looked around.

This time, there were even more people who didn't speak. Even the man in sunglasses stopped in his tracks.

"You guys have to think carefully. Opportunities don't always exist. When that seahorse loses, it'll be too late even if I want to fight," the young man said leisurely.

Chapter 1378: Hallucination

The moment the youth with the beats earpiece made his move, the man in sunglasses already knew who he was.

— the 16th ranked player on the player rankings, Extreme Cold Phantom!

Just like seahorse, Extreme Cold Phantom was a very special player. He did not belong to the three major guilds. He had joined a small guild called take-out enthusiasts. This guild only had less than 50 members in total, however, his fame among the players was not small. This was because these 50 members were all agents. Moreover, more than half of them had entered the top 200 in the previous proxy war.

In other words, this was a small elite player guild that lived up to its name. The average quality of its members could be said to be the strongest among all the guilds. Take Polar Soul as an example. He only stretched out one hand.., in less than half a minute, the entire opposite side of the pool had been frozen. And that was not all. The ice layer on the surface of the water continued to thicken. Even the waterfall showed signs of being frozen, a portion of the bottom had already become a curtain of water. At the same time, the ice layer was also extending underwater.

Seahorse and Zhang Heng, who were at the bottom of the pool, noticed the changes above their heads.

A hint of anger appeared in Seahorse's eyes. Of course, he knew that the person who sealed the lake was up to no good. He had taken advantage of the fact that he was still fighting with Zhang Heng to attack. It was clear that they were planning to seal him under the lake as well.

However, the anger in Seahorse's eyes only flashed for a moment before it was forcefully suppressed by him.

Zhang Heng noticed that the gaze of the man opposite him had become resolute again.

Surprisingly, Seahorse did not choose to escape. Yes, even after realizing that the surface of the water had been frozen, and the ice layer was still thickening, he still did not stop his attack on Zhang Heng.

It was not that seahorse did not care about his own life or death, but as a hunter, his sense of battle told him that the more time passed, the more likely he would be

He could not act rashly. After such a long battle, he and Zhang Heng had already reached a delicate balance. At such a time, if one side could not hold it in anymore, then the balance of the battle would quickly tilt to the other side.

At that time, not only would his previous efforts be in vain, he might even be killed before he could escape to the water. This was the real reason why seahorse chose to continue the battle.

However, Zhang Heng had to admit that the opponent before him was a real tough guy. Knowing the right choice was one thing, but doing it was another, after all, not everyone had the courage to continue fighting when their lives were in danger. From a certain perspective, Seahorse's actions were completely counter-intuitive.

Because, to show his respect, Zhang Heng once again gripped his [hidden scabbard] tightly and charged at Seahorse. At this point in the battle, it was no longer just a battle of combat skills and weapons, it was also a battle of Spirit and willpower!

Both of them knew very well that only by ending the battle in front of them, or at least forcing one of them to make a move to escape, would they be able to leave this pool safely.

Therefore, this time, both of them did not hold back. Zhang Heng gave up on using the Xiao Shan Ming heart stream blade technique that he had been using previously and switched to the more aggressive Zuo Muyan's main attack. Meanwhile, Seahorse no longer felt sorry for the Trident in his hand, in order to maximize the damage, he even took the initiative to fight Zhang Heng's [hidden scabbard] .

The intensity of the battle increased again!

Seahorse could feel that as time passed, the surrounding temperature became lower and lower. The layer of ice was originally just a thin layer, but after three minutes, it was already close to the top of his head, just by looking up, he could feel a strong sense of oppression.

The tip of the Trident was already showing signs of freezing, and more importantly, his body was losing heat at an alarming rate. His hands and feet were cold, and even his movements were slowing down.

Seahorse also realized that something was wrong. Compared to him, Zhang Heng seemed to be unaffected by the drop in water temperature.

His figure was still as agile as before. Originally, Seahorse could still suppress Zhang Heng in terms of speed, but now, he could no longer keep up with Zhang Heng's pace in the game. Furthermore, it was different from his ashen face, Zhang Heng's expression did not change much. In other words, the other party was indeed not affected by the cold.

But, how was this possible? !

Seahorse found it hard to understand. He did not expect to lose in the Battle of wills, but in the end, he lost in adapting to the changes in the environment.

However, he had already thought about one thing. If this continued, he did not know what would happen to Zhang Heng, but he would definitely die. Therefore, Seahorse did not hesitate anymore and waved the Trident in his hand, he tried his best to push Zhang Heng away. Then, he started to control the flow of the water to allow himself to rise to the bottom of the huge layer of ice.

Seahorse waved the trident in a frenzy to destroy the layer of ice. At the same time, he had to turn back to deal with Zhang Heng's entanglement.

The trident smashed into the layer of ice, creating many cracks. However, what made Seahorse despair was that compared to the thickness of the ice itself, the cracks that were more than two meters deep were far from enough to break the ice.

At the same time, Zhang Heng's attacks became more and more fierce. Every time the trident and [hidden scabbard] collided, the Golden Light on the Trident would dim slightly. However, at this moment, Seahorse had no time to protect the divine weapon, he could only pray in his heart that the divine weapon was strong enough to withstand Zhang Heng's attacks.

Unfortunately, when he shifted his gaze to the trident, he realized that the divine weapon had unknowingly become riddled with wounds. There were knife marks all over its body, and each one was deeper than the last, especially the part that had just been cut, one of the spikes had almost been cut off.

Seahorse was stunned, and then his eyes finally turned to fear. He understood that this B grade item that he had borrowed from Poseidon would probably die with him in this pool today.

As if to confirm his guess, when Zhang Heng's next slash came, Seahorse subconsciously waved the weapon in his hand to block it. However, he felt the hand holding the trident shake violently, then, he saw a crack in the middle of the trident spread crazily around him.

In the end, the majestic golden weapon was reduced to pieces in his hand. However, Seahorse did not have time to mourn for this destroyed God, because he felt that his blood was about to turn into ice chips, and breathing became more and more difficult. Because he had lost too much heat, he even had hallucinations. He felt as if he was sitting in the mouth of a volcano.

Therefore, he subconsciously pressed his body against the ice layer, trying to cool himself down. The result was that after only ten seconds, his body was frozen into the ice layer.

Chapter 1379: Killing Simon

Zhang Heng had witnessed the death of seahorse with his own eyes. This tough guy who had been fighting with him for more than 15 minutes had died before his eyes in a confused manner.

Of course, considering Seahorse's physical condition, his death was not surprising. After seahorse died, Zhang Heng immediately took out a kerosene lamp from his backpack.

[name: Explorer's lamp]

[rarity: C]

[effect: a kerosene lamp that will never go out. It is a top-tier equipment that explorers dream of. Not only can it provide you with a source of light, whether you are on land or underwater, it can also help you control the surrounding temperature. By borrowing the brightness of the explorer's lamp, you can adjust the ambient temperature within the range of the light.]

This c-rank item was one of the rewards that Zhang Heng had obtained from the Chernobyl dungeon. He did not expect it to come in handy at this time.

This seemingly ordinary kerosene lamp had a rather miraculous effect. Within the range of the light source, it could ensure a constant temperature, previously, Zhang Heng had relied on the heat emitted from the lamp in his backpack to withstand the cold current above his head. When he took the lamp out, the surrounding temperature instantly became warmer, the cold from before had completely disappeared.

Following that, Zhang Heng adjusted the kerosene lamp and adjusted the temperature of the surrounding water to 40 degrees, which was also the internal temperature of the human body.

Zhang Heng felt as if he was soaking in a hot bath. The scene before his eyes was also very magical. The terrifying cold was still freezing the pool water, and the ice layer was growing at a speed visible to the naked eye, however, where the [explorer's lamp] shone, the temperature remained at 40 degrees Celsius, unable to freeze. At the same time, the ice at the edge of the pool was rapidly melting

By the pool, even though the players on the second front still found the youth wearing beats headphones to be an eyesore, they surprisingly did not attack him as they had previously threatened.

In fact, after extreme cold spirit opened his mouth, most of the players present fell silent. Even those on the second line couldn't help but have some strange thoughts.

It had to be admitted that even though everyone had expected that this battle would be very difficult, losing so many people in such a short period of time was still somewhat beyond their expectations.

In particular, even an expert like the Ghost Gemini was unable to stop Zhang Heng for even a few minutes. This allowed everyone to feel the terrifying combat power of the number one player.

Although the ranking of the seahorse that entered the water this time was not as high as the Ghost Gemini's, he was publicly acknowledged as an invincible existence in the water. If even he was unable to deal with Zhang Heng, then what should everyone do next?

The question that polar soul threw out hit everyone's heart. Therefore, everyone, including the players from the second front, began to think that if they could sacrifice seahorse alone, they could completely eliminate Zhang Heng, was this deal worth it.

Actually, many players had already agreed with polar soul after hearing what he said. However, Seahorse was still a member of the second front, one of the three big guilds. However, as the players from the second front fell into silence, however, no one stepped forward to stop polar soul from freezing the entire pool.

When Polar Soul saw this, he smiled and did not say anything else. He simply put on his headphones again. As a result, the players by the shore saw the cold air spreading at an astonishing speed. Although they could not see the scene below the pool at this moment., however, just by looking at the gradually solidifying waterfall, one could tell just how terrifying this cold air was.

Previously, some people thought that the freezing of the pool meant freezing the surface of the water. But now, they understood that the freezing of the pool meant freezing the water below into a lump of ice.

In just a short while, the thickness of the ice layer was enough for an overloaded truck to move normally on top. However, the extremely cold ghost still did not stop. After a while., suddenly, everyone felt a tremor under their feet.

Someone was knocking on the ice layer, trying to escape from below!

Thinking of Zhang Heng's terrifying combat strength, everyone's nerves immediately tensed up. They raised their weapons one after another. Only Polar Spirit, who was squatting by the pool, remained calm. When he saw someone pointing a gun at him., he waved his hand. "Don't be nervous. The people below won't be able to get out."

Hearing this, everyone heaved a sigh of relief. However, there were a few people on the second front who wanted to say something, but they hesitated. Some of them thought that if they were breaking through the ice, the person who wanted to get out would be seahorse, however, before they could ask the question, they swallowed it back.

Since they had tacitly allowed polar spirit to make a move, they naturally knew what they should do in the face of this uncertain possibility.

Fortunately, the shaking that made them nervous did not last for long. The water below the pond regained its calm. This time, it seemed to be permanent.

Extreme Cold Phantom squatted by the pond for another two minutes before he stood up and clapped his hands. "Alright! The matter has been resolved. Everyone can disperse and go home."

The man wearing sunglasses frowned slightly when he heard that. "Are you sure he's dead?"

"Of course," polar spirit said with certainty, "I've frozen the entire pool. There's no way for the people below to escape. If you don't believe me, you can try to cut open the ice and see if you can dig out his body. But don't say that I didn't warn you. This is not a small amount of work."

The man wearing sunglasses breathed a sigh of relief when he heard this, but he still immediately called. "I need explosives. A large amount of explosives. It's enough to blow up a pool. Hurry up."

After the man wearing sunglasses put down the phone, he didn't immediately disband the pursuit team like polar spirit had said. Instead, he divided the players into three teams, each team taking eight hours to take turns to stare at the frozen pool.

His excessive caution also caused some people to complain. After all, there was nothing in this deep mountain. There was no electricity, no signal. Staying here was not a pleasant thing to do, however, most people still agreed with the man in sunglasses' decision.

After all, the person they were going to deal with this time was Simon. Perhaps only when they saw Simon's corpse would many people believe that Simon had really been killed.

To the man's surprise, the Specter didn't leave either. Instead, it chose to camp with them in the mountains, at first, the man thought that the Specter was worried that something might happen during the ice blasting, but he didn't expect the Specter to be interested in Zhang Heng's equipment.

After all, it was no secret that Simon had at least one B-grade item.

Chapter 1380: Water Flow Behind An Ice Waterfall

The explosives were sent to the campsite before eight o'clock at night. Then, the engineering team dug 29 three-meter-deep ice holes on the ice and filled them with explosives. By the time they were almost done, it was already eleven o'clock.

The second team had already replaced the first team on duty, keeping an eye on the situation at the pond. Meanwhile, the man wearing sunglasses was checking the situation of the explosives. In the end, at this moment., a player with the code name Parrot found him.

The man wearing sunglasses looked at the little girl behind Parrot and raised his eyebrows. "Where did you find her?"

"Behind a hillside. When I went there, I saw her sleeping there alone," parrot said, "But she didn't want to tell me why she was there. Uh... in fact, she didn't want to answer any questions at all. However, there were some children's items in the old man's Cave. I guess they should be hers."

"The Aborigines of this mountain?" The man in sunglasses nodded. He was too lazy to trouble a little girl, so he waved his hand and said, "Give her some food and water. When she's full, send her back. Simon has been frozen in the lake by us. The others are irrelevant."

"Okay," said parrot.

However, just as he turned around and was about to leave with the little girl, he heard a cry from the engineering team. Then, he saw a person throw down the drill in his hand and stagger toward him.

Because the ice beneath his feet was too slippery, he ran too fast and even fell midway. However, he did not even bother to wipe the blood stains on his face. He stood up immediately and continued to run.

The man wearing sunglasses also realized that something might have happened at the pool. His heart sank. Before the engineering team player could reach him, he took the initiative to ask, "What's going on?"

"We... We found something. We might need you to take a look."

The man in sunglasses did not waste any time. He immediately went to the place where the engineering team had previously worked. The people on the other side had already stopped what they were doing and gathered together.

Seeing the man in sunglasses come over, the crowd took the initiative to open a path.

The man in sunglasses also saw the place they were surrounding. That was the last ice cave, and it was just in front of the frozen waterfall.

"What's Wrong?"

A man pointed at the frozen waterfall and swallowed his saliva. "Here, there seems to be water behind."

"So what if there's water?" The man in sunglasses frowned. However, the next second, he thought of something and his expression changed. He quickly walked to the ice waterfall.

He found that there was a piece of ice on the frozen waterfall that was much thinner than the other parts of the waterfall. The other parts of the ice layer could not see the scene behind it, but this piece of ice layer could vaguely see the water flow behind it.

The man wearing sunglasses had sweat on his forehead. He looked around and then grabbed a hammer from a man's hand and smashed it on the ice layer.

In the end, he only used one hammer to break the ice, and the water flowed out. The two people standing closest to him were washed down to the ground. The others barely managed to dodge, but they still looked a little embarrassed, their shoes and pants were wet.

Seeing this scene, everyone knew what had happened. Before this, the extremely cold ghost had frozen the entire pool, but for some unknown reason, it had not been able to freeze Simon, furthermore, Simon had secretly dug a tunnel under their noses. Using the cover of the ice waterfall, he had directly swam upstream from here.

But how did he do it? Especially this tunnel. During the excavation, not a single movement was heard. This was simply unbelievable!

Today, everyone had seen too many unbelievable things from Simon. They had even become somewhat numb. However, the man wearing sunglasses could not help but let out a curse and said, "Wake everyone up and get into battle mode immediately!"

Soon, even the first batch of people who had already crawled into their sleeping bags were woken up by their companions. They could not help but complain at first, but when they heard that Simon had escaped from the pool, they immediately woke up, they immediately put on their equipment and picked up their weapons again.

At this time, Extreme Cold Phantom also put down the tablet in his hand and came to the front of the ice waterfall. His expression was particularly ugly. After all, he was the one who had confidently said that the entire pool was frozen and Simon was dead for sure, however, the latter had already left the pool.

The people from the second front looked at polar spirit with a hostile gaze. It was because of this guy's bewitchment that they had given up on the seahorse. In the end, not only did they not manage to get rid of Zhang Heng, they even lost the seahorse, furthermore, the seahorse was probably not far away from getting rid of Zhang Heng.

However, they knew that this was not the time to talk about this. The man in sunglasses had already ordered his men to release the remaining drones, but they did not find any suspicious figures around them.

Did Simon escape?

The man in sunglasses did not think so, because from the layout of the place, it was clear that the other party had already realized that they were coming. Since Simon did not choose to escape at that time, he had decided to prepare for the battle ahead of time, there was no reason for him to suddenly run away halfway. Furthermore, the battle between the two parties was a complete defeat for the pursuit team. They had suffered heavy losses, but they didn't even manage to catch a glimpse of Zhang Heng.

But since the other party wasn't here, where would he go?

The man in sunglasses thought for a moment, and then he finally thought of something. "Send a message to the two teams at the cave. Tell them to gather here as soon as possible."

"Okay."

"No." The Man in sunglasses reversed the order he had just given. "Don't let them join us. Tell them to leave immediately. Be careful, don't bump into Simon."

The Man in sunglasses then received the news that the two teams at the cave had lost contact with them.

The other party moved faster than they had imagined. The man in sunglasses only thought of the other side, but the battle there had already ended. Where was Simon Now?

The man in sunglasses replaced himself in Simon's position. He should have returned immediately after finishing off the people in the cave. He should have taken advantage of the fact that the majority of the troops here had not discovered that he had escaped and launched a sneak attack in the night, he tried his best to cause as much damage as possible, but Simon did not seem to have done so.

Of course, it could not be because he was afraid of having too many people. After all, during the day, Simon was not afraid even when he was surrounded. He was still calmly killing his way in and out of the encirclement. The man in sunglasses had no idea what Simon was thinking right now, however, he knew that the situation had completely changed. They were now the ones in danger. He couldn't continue to follow Simon's rhythm.
