Chapter 911: Resource Allocation (Part One)

This very direct and overbearing expulsion order stunned Meister on the spot.

He was born in the United States, but when he was still a member of parliament, he relied on spreading all kinds of threats to win votes. This made his reputation in China extremely bad.

But even so, when he came to visit Central China, the officials in central China were still polite to him. At least, they would not openly shed all pretenses of cordiality. This was the first time he was directly rebuked.

Also, the man's words were very explicit. He meant, "You can listen to me or go back..."

In front of the other castellans. This made Mister's face turn red with anger. He could not help but think to himself, "What a despicable race! Just a little bit of power and you're already so arrogant!"!

Angor and the others did not look too happy either. From a personal point of view, none of them had a good impression of mister, the political hooligan. However, they all came here with the same purpose, elder Long's action was no different from killing a chicken to warn the monkeys.

The other party was determined to buy time!

However, no matter if it was the political hero Song Yi, Angor or the political hooligan, they could not do anything about elder Long's tough attitude.

Because the two sides were facing each other, if you wanted the other side to compromise, you had to have the ability to make the other side compromise. Now, the five major cities did not have any advantage over Huaxia city... ..

First was military power. Huaxia city had the absolute advantage. Huaxia City had the most high-end players, and the other five major cities added together weren't even enough.

Next was trade restrictions. But now, only Huaxia City could export trade. The first city needed to buy basic food and medicine from Huaxia City, and they needed to hire high-level developers to increase the efficiency of the mineral refining equipment, the second city needed to purchase Huaxia City's mature agricultural products, seeds, and saplings to provide basic security, the fourth city needed Huaxia City's large amount of high-level meat imports and the assistance of Surgeons. The third city and the fifth city basically needed to purchase some basic materials from Huaxia City, otherwise, it would be difficult for them to maintain the basic needs of the citizens.

Of course, they could also choose to cut ties with Huaxia City. However, this method had to be done step by step like Huaxia City had done in the past. They had to slowly recruit people and develop slowly. Only a crazy person would do this!

That was why all the cities were now being strangled by Huaxia City.

Angor and the other Westerners began to miss the time when they used the skill card to strangle Huazhong's neck.

Elder long saw that the other city lords were silent. Their faces were still gentle, but he felt very happy inside. It was a great feeling to be on the side of absolute power. No wonder misst always wanted to punish this and that.., so it was such a straightforward thing to strangle someone's neck?

"Since everyone has no objections, then follow this old man. The dishes at the dog egg restaurant are superb. I'm sure you won't be disappointed..."

All the City Lords'expressions became more and more unsightly as they thought to themselves, 'Did I really come here for nothing today?'

At this time, even fierce men like song Caiyi felt a wave of powerlessness in their hearts. The situation was really not something that an individual's ability could make up for.

Just as the atmosphere was heavy, a flash of light suddenly appeared at the teleportation point. All the city lords were still in the main hall of the main base. They were immediately attracted by the teleportation light.

They could not help but feel puzzled. At this time, who else could use the passage?

As a flash of light flashed, a black mass of people suddenly appeared in the main base. From the looks of it, there were at least two to three hundred people. They had different shapes and all kinds of templates that the city lords had never seen before, however, those people were all strong and muscular, giving people a strong visual impact.

The leader was dressed in Black Knight armor and a steel helmet. His entire body was covered tightly. Elder long immediately went up to greet him when he saw that person.

He had seen this person twice. He was the current spokesperson of Luo Fu, who was also the sect master Luo Fu whom Sect Master Qin had mentioned.

"The sect master is back?"Elder long smiled and went up to ask.

"Oh?"Xi Ye was slightly stunned when she saw elder long and the others, then, she smiled and said, "They're all here? Just in time, I was just looking for you..."as she said that, she turned around and looked at Vivian who had rushed over from afar. She said, "First, arrange for these new instructors to settle down in the dormitory building."

Wellin: "Yes, my Lord."

"Come with me, and I'll tell you something new if you're all here."

Hearing this, the five city lords nodded their heads repeatedly. Only elder long and elder Li frowned and thought to themselves, 'this really isn't the right time...'. . .

The six people followed Xi Ye to the conference hall of Huaxia City. After they were done, song Zaiyi took the lead and asked, "Excuse me, sect leader, who were those people just now?"

Xi ye replied, "Ah, they are the newly recruited teachers of the Combat Department. The recruitment this time is very full. Apart from the instructors of combat techniques, there are also instructors who specialize in physical fitness and support teachers for body development. They all have a wealth of experience, including the training direction of young players, nutritional adjustment, body plasticity, and attribute plasticity. They all have a very systematic model."

"Then how are we going to distribute them?" Song Zaiyi quickly asked.

All the city lords straightened their backs when they heard this. They could not be polite when it came to snatching people, including Mister, who did not care much about long-term benefits. After all, he needed an excellent mentor to nurture a super private force, moreover, the demand was even greater. After all, he wanted to create a top-notch force, so he naturally needed high-quality educational resources.

Xi Ye pondered for a moment and did not stand on ceremony, he directly said, "Huaxia City has the most high-quality young warriors, and the demand rate is also the highest. Therefore, priority will be given to allocating 150 instructors, of which 50 are support faculty instructors and 100 are combat faculty instructors. When the specific combat faculty is broken down, Huaxia City Lord, you can count which combat course in Huaxia City has the most tight schedule, and priority will be given to recruiting combat faculty instructors to reside in Huaxia City."

"Good, good, good!" Elder long immediately nodded cheerfully. "I'll count it up when I get back..."

The other city lords' faces froze when they heard that. There were only about 300 people in that wave of people just now. Now that half of them had been divided, how many more could there be in their city?

Xi Ye looked at those city lords whose faces were stiff and explained patiently, "Huaxia city has the largest population right now. Naturally, the demand is also the largest. I hope that you can understand."

Song Zaiyi and the others' faces twitched when they heard that. Huaxia City had already been built at the beginning, so of course, it had a large population! They could just directly select high-quality people to enter without considering the basic capacity of the city. However, they were different. The infrastructure was not enough, so every time they sent people in, they had to act according to the actual situation... The fifth city that had the highest number of people approved had only approved 50,000 people, and Huaxia City had already recruited one million people... ? ... how could that be the same?

Out of all the city lords, only Meester's expression was slightly better. Other than Huaxia City, his city had the largest population, so logically speaking, he should have a huge advantage in the next allocation.., even though he was unhappy that Huaxia city had taken the lion's share, it would still be good if he could get the second-best resource.

Xi Ye: "According to statistics, the fourth city's warrior population evolves the fastest, and their demand rate is second only to Huaxia City. In particular, they have a huge demand for body support. After some calculations, I have decided to allocate 80 instructors to the fourth city, of which 50 are support instructors to help the fourth city's citizens shape!"

Elizabeth was elated when she heard that!

She was right. Regardless of whether it was the LUOFU organization or the extraterrestrial forces behind galaxy, all the resources must be based on the overall situation.

For an extreme civilization like the fourth city that she chose, she would definitely receive special treatment in certain areas.

Myrtle was stunned. Didn't they say that they would be distributed according to the population? Why did it suddenly change to according to the speed of Progress?

However, it was still alright. Even if it was according to the speed of progress, the fifth city, which allowed its citizens to choose freely, was still improving at a decent speed. He had secretly investigated it, but it was only slightly inferior to the fourth city.

In order to develop the mining industry faster, the first city established an industrial system, so it required a lot of time for the citizens to work. The second city was filled with elves who had yet to transform, while the third city spent a lot of time on learning life skills, only the fifth city was completely laissez-faire. It did not have high requirements for working hours, nor did it impose restrictions on the citizens' choices. Many citizens wanted to enter the new territories as soon as possible. Therefore, as soon as they had money, other than having fun in the small towns., most of them would go to the training center to strengthen themselves. In the long term, although most of the citizens would fail, in the short term, the evolution rate of their own city was indeed higher!

On the side, song Zaiyi was anxious. If they were allocated according to the growth rate of warriors, his third city would be the weakest city apart from the second city. His policy was that all players must learn a life skill, as a result, many warrior players could not spend all their spare time on warrior training like other cities. Naturally, their progress would be much slower than other cities.

"Sect leader, this allocation is a little unreasonable..." song Zaiyi hurriedly tried to fight for it, but he was interrupted by seer the moment he spoke.

"HMM... .. makes sense also, you can't just look at the growth rate of the players. The policies implemented by City Lord Song's City did not allow many citizens to have enough time to train their bodies, which required more instructors to effectively plan the training time for young disciples. How about this, I'll assign 40 instructors to you, 20 combat instructors, 10 physical instructors, and 10 shape-building instructors. What do you think?"

"Eh? Oh Oh, good, the sect leader's distribution is very reasonable, I have no objection at all..." song Zaiyi immediately changed his words.

Meister:"? ? ??"

Chapter 912: Resource Allocation (Part Two)

Are You F * cking... doing this on purpose?

How could you change the way you talk to someone?

Meister's face turned as black as coal. He felt that this sect master was targeting him!

He heard that this sect master was from the ancient times in central China. Could it be that he was deliberately targeting labor and capital because of his previous anti-china operations?

“There are still 43 people left...” seer knocked on the table. “How about this? The first city will be divided into 33 cities, and the remaining 10 will be assigned to the fifth city. What do you think?”

Angor let out a sigh of relief. A gentle smile appeared on his face. “I don’t have a problem with that...”

Meister:”...”

Of course you don’t have a problem with that!

Also, what was going on this time? They did not even give him a reason. Did they just force him?

“UM... master? Isn’t that a little inappropriate?” Meister could not help but ask. “Our fifth city’s population is second only to Huaxia City, and our citizen warriors are also improving at the fastest rate. Only ten instructors?”

Seer: “Three-quarters of the citizens you recruited are of Indian descent. I don’t know why you recruited so many disadvantaged races in the early stages. Perhaps you want to show ethnic equality? “But the truth is that the rate of improvement of these Indians will be far slower than other first-rate sequence dominant races. The reason why it seems like your improvement rate is good now is because everyone is still in the early stages. As time goes by, the gap will become more and more obvious. Under such circumstances, the citizens with stronger learning abilities will definitely have a higher rate of demand for mentors!”

Meester:”...”

Recruiting so many Indians was to reduce the competition, and also to fulfill the political promise he had made to the three countries.

After his Super Private Force Plan worked, he would prioritize recruiting Americans. By then, the upper class would have solidified, and the first batch of Indians would be heavily indebted by design, becoming the cornerstone of the construction of the city, he would help the later Americans provide more benefits and stabilize the middle and lower classes, which would lead to a rise in his reputation.

This was his overall plan, but he did not expect that this would cause him to fall into a disadvantage in terms of fighting for resources!

Mister gritted his teeth, and just as he was about to argue again..., seer was the first to wave his hand and say, “Alright, I still have a lot of things to do, so I don’t have much time to waste. If you have any objections, vote on it. Raise your hands in support of the castellan who was allocated just now...”

What the F * ck...

Mister looked at the small hands raised by the people at the table with a depressed expression. They were the ones who benefited, so of course they supported it...

“Very good!” Xi Ye nodded with satisfaction. “Let’s move on to the next topic... I believe that you already know about the establishment of the Advanced Academy, Right?”

“Advanced Academy?” The Five City lords were stunned when they heard that, but they immediately reacted. So those people who suddenly appeared yesterday were here to establish the Advanced Academy?

Xiye looked at the confused castellans and then curiously looked at elder long. “Didn’t you tell them?”

Elder long said seriously, “Ah, I was looking for an opportunity to tell them, but you just arrived, right?”

The castellans said, “Haha...”

“I see...”. Xiye nodded. “Well, it’s like this. Nowadays, most players who follow the path of Technology and Arcana learn by themselves, especially in the field of civilization research. Many times, they need to slowly figure it out on their own, and the efficiency is very slow. The establishment of advanced academies is to improve the depth of knowledge of these people, so that they can study the various civilizations more efficiently “... “...”

“The academy is very formal this time. There are orthodox teaching templates, and there are reliable system templates and experienced senior tutors for upgrading from basic subjects to professional subjects. The threshold is level four, which mainly trains advanced students in basic subjects such as machinery, biology, energy, and materials, as well as advanced students in Arcana class nine. Currently, the Academy is located in Huaxia City, and the enrollment scope will face the entire galaxy...”. “...”

“No!” Angor and the others objected right away.

They then looked at elder dragon with lingering fear. No wonder the old man would not let them participate even if they were at odds with each other. So that was the reason!

Everyone here knew what it meant for a high-end school like galaxy to enter Huaxia City.

What was galaxy most competitive? Was it a high-level player? No, it was technology. It was a high-end technology that was several dimensions higher than D sphere!

No civilization would be wrong about this. Galaxy’s education system was a fragmented tutorial system. How could the only system chemistry school be monopolized by Huaxia City?

“Master!” Angor stood up and said seriously, “This isn’t fair, is it?”

“But Huaxia City has the best infrastructure and is the best place to set up an academy. Your five cities don’t even have any infrastructure, so it’s not convenient to open your city...”

“There’s no future!” Angor quickly said, “That’s not a reason to set up an academy in Huaxia City. I think an academy of this level should have one in every city.”

Seer shook his head. “I’m sorry. It’s impossible for now...”

“Why?” Song was confused. “We can spend some of the initial funds to build the school’s infrastructure. It’s not a big deal. We just need to allocate some of the advanced professors...”

Seer continued, “But the school can’t be split. The higher education institutions in galaxy are different from the D Ball University you know. Many departments have very expensive teaching facilities. The school’s current facilities only support the establishment of one school!”

"This..."the city lords'faces immediately turned ugly, while elder Long's face was flushed. It seemed that the matter was going to be settled.

"I know what you are worried about..." Xi Ye said faintly, "The instructors of the newly-built university will not only be active in Huaxia City. In the case of the scarcity of the early-stage colleges, the instructors of the various colleges will be distributed to various cities to conduct inspections and select high-quality students for basic education. What you think will happen is that only huaxia city can enjoy the benefits of a high-level instructor!"

Everyone's expression softened when they heard that, but elder Long's face darkened slightly.

"But even so, there are still too many dividends for the university to move into Huaxia City. For example, the taxes..."song Zaiyi said with a frown.

"The taxes are separate. The university is directly under the top management of luofu, and it doesn't belong to any city..."Seer said calmly.

Meister said, "But Huaxia City still has an advantage. The university will move in there, and the expenses will all be with him. The dividends will still be a lot!"

"Then there's nothing we can do about it!"Seer shrugged. "There are a lot of things that can't be taken care of, right? "Moreover, isn't it natural for Huaxia City to have some dividends? "Right now, the refined mineral output of Huaxia City is more than 10,000 times that of your five big cities combined. The tax revenue is also something that you can not surpass for a long time. With such a big contribution, shouldn't you get some dividends? "When you ruled the country in the past, didn't you also favor the cities with large contributions?"

"How can it be the same?"Mister immediately retorted, "Huaxia City started so early, so naturally, it is ahead of us. We have no chance of a fair competition at all!"

"How can there be so much fairness in this world?"Seer said calmly, "It is true that Huaxia City started early, but they have paid a price. Back then, the position of Mars from a barren land to a prosperous city was built by the Huaxia players over a whole five years, bit by bit. Now, with the help of Huaxia City, your development speed is more than 10 times that of their former speed. Is it fair to the first batch of players who started from scratch?"

The City Lords:"..."

"That's all for now. Tomorrow, each of you will choose a group of citizens with outstanding qualifications to come over. Remember that they are citizens who walk the path of Science and technology. Go to the school for a test. Please choose carefully. This involves the degree of favor that those high-ranking instructors will have for your city. These instructors have a very high degree of freedom. They will be more inclined to go to the city with the best students to do basic education, so please pay attention to this selection..." All right. That's it. The meeting is over. All right

The City Lords'eyes lit up as they began to calculate.

Chapter 913: the Uncompromising Song Cares

Third City:

“Song, this matter doesn’t seem to be good for us...”William frowned after listening to Song Cares’report.

The sudden suspension of most of the transmission channels would seriously affect the city’s foreign trade. Currently, the third city was the city with the greatest import demand. Not only did they need to purchase short-term food and basic materials from Huaxia City, but they also needed to purchase materials from Huaxia City, many of the teaching materials needed for life professions could only be purchased from Huaxia City. The restrictions on the transmission this time would affect the flow of goods, which would likely cause the prices of materials in Huaxia City to rise. This would make things even worse for the third city, which was already heavily in debt.

Then, there was the sudden appearance of the teacher resources dividend. The things allocated to the third city were just so-so. The number of 40 instructors was only slightly ahead of the first city. After that, it would be time for higher education.

According to Song Zaiyi’s intelligence report, the academy mainly trained scientific and technological talents. The academy instructors would randomly visit the six major cities for assessment, and then set up study points to train the preparatory classes according to the situation, obviously, to gain the favor of the higher education instructors, it depended on the number and quality of spirit players in the city.

On this point... the third city didn’t have an advantage.

“Song, should we temporarily recruit some developers?”William’s tone was a little anxious.

Song Yi was not as high as the other cities in terms of the initial recruitment of developers because of his understanding of the Naga civilization. The Naga civilization relied more on ocean resources. The advantage of the early market was in shipbuilding technology and marine biological technology, which could not be provided on Mars.

At this time, it was not meaningful to recruit too many developers. It was a waste of the early population resources. The priority of the third city was to train a new generation of people who could venture into the ocean as soon as possible. With the power of the Sea Lords., only then would the demand for developers gradually rise. It would also stimulate the demand for developers in the market and increase the status of researchers in the third city, creating a virtuous cycle.

Therefore, Song Yi had only recruited a small number of developers for the application of mining equipment in the early stages and for future backup.

This was a consideration of the overall integration of resources. Originally, it seemed reasonable to William, but now that this sudden incident had happened, it might cause those instructors to form the impression that the number of developers in the third city was on the low side, in addition, everyone in the third city had to learn life skills, causing half of the energy of the developers to be taken up. The leveling speed was obviously not as fast as other free cities.

If their leveling speed was not as fast or their numbers were not as good, it was likely that they would not be valued by those so-called advanced instructors...

“Song?”Seeing that song was still silent, William hurriedly urged him.

“How are we going to accept them? The teleportation has been turned off!” Song was amused.

“We can apply. Since we can open up a small number of teleportation channels between cities due to trade, it shouldn’t be a big problem to temporarily open up a teleportation channel with Ball D, right?” William said anxiously.

“There’s no need...”. “...”. Song shook his head in concern. “My policy is to set out for the entire city. I won’t easily make temporary changes because of some external incidents. Moreover, the resources of the city are currently tight. If you rashly recruit a group of developers, it will divide the space of others, which will be detrimental to development. As for higher education resources, I think there’s no need to worry. As time goes by, as long as we produce excellent products, we will naturally slowly attract the attention of those high-level instructors.”

“But... song, we’ll be on the defensive for the first five years!” William said worriedly.

Song zaiyi lowered his gaze and fell silent.

The term of the castellan was 100 years, but that did not mean that it would be as stable as Mount Tai. In the Basic Law, there was a policy that restricted castellans, called the five-year inspection system...

The upper echelons of luofu would conduct a castellan inspection once every five years. According to the public support in the city, the overall development of the city, and the external attraction rate, these three basic factors would be comprehensively examined. If there were two things that failed.., the upper echelons could re-run the castellan election!

The overall development of the city song zai was very confident that his evaluation would not be lower than that of other cities, but the other two were uncertain.

Most of the ordinary people were ignorant. Many people would only see the superficial data. For example, if they did not get more resources, they would be regarded as incompetent by their own people.

Using the fifth city’s city lord, Mistral, as an example, the fundamental reason why they did not get more combat instructors was that the city had too many people in India and the quality could not keep up!

Of course, the third city would definitely not admit this. If mister wanted to use this as an excuse, he would be scolded and discriminated against.

And once this news was spread, it would definitely cause the citizens lining up outside to be even more dissatisfied. They would think that Mister was mentally ill. The natives didn’t give priority to recruiting so many Indians first, and now they couldn’t even get the resources, not only would they be dissatisfied with Meester, but they would also be even more dissatisfied with AH San, who had stolen their resources, forming a new wave of racial conflict.

In fact, all the smart people could see that Meester had brought in a large number of Ah San because he wanted to squeeze them and pave the way for the later Native Americans to come in. Although his methods were a little harsh, in fact, it was actually beneficial to the Native Americans, it was just that many of the Native Americans simply could not see this.

It was the same for him. If he did not manage to snatch more higher education resources this time, he would definitely be blamed by the people. Most people would not consider his policies in the long run. Everyone saw that it was a timely effect, this was why politicians who put on a show were often more popular than those who did actual things.

In the past, Meester had destroyed long-term foundations and competed for short-term data growth, but he was unanimously praised by the people in China. This was also the reason.

Seeing that song Zaiyi was silent, William continued, "It's not just the popularity of the people. If we don't get the resources this time, it will also have a great impact on the import rate of the younger generation in the future. You may be at risk of failing both indicators!"

Hearing that, song Zaiyi narrowed his eyes slightly. The so-called introduction rate referred to the rate of the city population that had yet to enter the Sea of stars. Currently, the forty-six countries of the Federation had signed contracts to introduce only adults. Those under the age of eighteen were temporarily not eligible to be introduced.

However, in terms of the potential value of the genetic body, the potential of the younger generation was the greatest. Moreover, most of the people under the age of eighteen were still at the school stage. Their plasticity was also much stronger than that of the people in society. They were considered high-quality population, they were also the resources that the six major cities would be competing for in the future!

In the past, the population was determined by the city Lord's policies and the city Lord's personal charm. However, the latter would definitely be determined by the actual situation.

When he thought of this, song Xin hesitated slightly. However, he quickly dispelled his hesitation and shook his head. "No!"

William: "Song..."

"My philosophy will not change!" Song zaiyi said seriously, "I used to not compromise the short-term interests of capital, and now I naturally won't compromise for the support rate. You should know what my political aspirations are, William. In such a land that is not affected by the influence of capital, if I have to rely on compromise to govern, then what's the point of coming out again?"

William: "..."

What a stubborn fellow... ? William could not help but sigh in his heart, but he did not hate it in his heart. wasn't it because of the other party's persistent charm that he decided to follow such an Asian?

Chapter 914: What a huge gamble!

"Do you guys understand the situation?" In the newly built academy, the principal looked at the teachers and asked.

The teachers all nodded. To be honest, this power nurturing method was really interesting. The natives built their own cities, the natives established their own forces, the natives gave out their civilization lines... ..

Currently, there were only two factions in the universe federation that dared to do such a thing. One was the fourth overlord, Sylvanas, and the other was the sky god Federation itself... ..

Sylvanas had a large number of undead lords under her command. Those lords had their own civilizations, and they did it so as not to waste their potential. What right did this fellow have?

This time, the method of recruiting students for them was also so free. The instructors could go to all the major cities to scout and observe, and then choose which city to advertise themselves in to get more students' intentions. There were no restrictions on the methods of recruiting students., they could give public speeches, they could rely on official recommendations in cooperation with the city lord, they could cooperate with private forces in scientific research projects to increase their popularity. All methods of promoting themselves were fine. Because for the time being, this force only had one college in the future, and all the people of the Spirit Department here had freedom in choosing. If they wanted to get more students, they had to do it themselves... ..

"What do you guys think?"The principal asked.

"Sir Principal, I think there's a big problem. We came here to open a school, and we actually have to rely on our own publicity to recruit students? Are you kidding me?"The dean of the summoning faculty said angrily.

The principal was silent for a few seconds before saying, "That makes sense... then why don't you guys wait for a few days first, and I'll go and discuss it with that overlord?"

Everyone's faces twitched. There were so many young talents outside, who the hell would want to wait?

The Summoner Master was silent for only two seconds before snorting coldly, "HMPH, so be it!"

The teachers:"..."

"Then let's disperse like this, and don't waste time. If you want to know what exactly is going on with this faction, go and take a look yourself..."the principal said calmly.

It seemed that the principal really knew the inside story, the teachers thought to themselves.

After the principal left, the teachers who were on good terms with each other began to discuss among themselves.

-LSB- what do you think is going on heWhy why did Lordlord give so much power to the loAborigines?]

[maybe he doesn't want to waste his potential. If every aborigine here has the kind of aptitude that we saw yesterday...]

-LSB- damn, it's just that their aptitude is a little fale. i went to the outer ring of the city yesterday and saw many more ordinary natives.]

[I went as well, but even so, the numbers are still quite exaggerated. You Don't know, I saw quite a few flower spirits yesterday. That Aptitude... Oh My God, I feel that even the royal family of the star Elves might not have that kind of elemental affinity!]

-LSB- damn, are you serioWherehere did you see them?]

[none of your business, why don't You Go Find Them Yourself?]

[let me tell you, I marked those flower spirits. Whoever tries to snatch them from me will have to fight with their lives!] One of the biology department's teachers said.

-LSB- damn, even those who marked them caThe the principal said that it's self-promotion and free choice, aren't you going too far?]

[hehe... Bullsh * t self-promotion and free choice. Take a look at where the principal is.]

Everyone was stunned. They instantly sensed for a moment and were surprised to find that the principal was no longer in the academy. A few senior professors hurriedly activated their spiritual perception, however, they realized that their powerful spiritual perception could only explore less than ten meters as if they were trapped!

What the Hell Is This?

All the teachers were taken aback.

"Just reacted?" One of the transformation department teachers sneered: "Just when we entered the door to cast a seal on us, this old guy..."

"Cast a seal? Why?" Asked a few dazed instructors.

"Why else? Robbing people... . "the instructor of the Department of Change continued to sneer. "Don't you see the hole in the principal's story? Free propaganda, free choice, let us go to the site, if this force is to encourage us to promote their own words, should not give us the city coordinates and details?"

"UH..."

"Can you guess whether the details were given to the headmaster or not?"

"F * ck! !" A few of the hot-tempered instructors immediately reacted, they got up angrily and were about to find that old guy to reason with when they suddenly thought of something, they turned around and looked at the dean of the transformation department who was still leisurely sitting on the spot drinking tea and asked curiously, "Why don't you look anxious at all, instructor Jimmy?"

"What's the use of being anxious?" Jimmy smiled and said.

"Wait a minute..." one of the professors' eyes flashed. He leaned forward slightly and suddenly reached out to grab Jimmy. Then, everyone saw Jimmy burst like a bubble and disappear on the spot... ..

Mirror image spell...

"Cha!" The professors immediately reacted and hurriedly ran outside.

“Jimmy, Why are you following me?” The principal looked helplessly at the guy behind him. The only person in the school who could keep up with him in terms of spatial spells was him.

Jimmy smiled and said, “The principal forgot to give us something. I’m here to remind you, right?”

“What is it?”

“Detailed information about the city...”

“Who told you that there was such a thing?”

“There must be a city coordinate, right?” Jimmy asked with a smile.

The principal was silent for a while, and finally smiled and said, “There is information, but as the principal, I have to personally check the authenticity of this information, right?”

Jimmy chuckled. “The principal is really conscientious... Such hard work, let me share it with the principal...”

The Principal: “...”

It seemed like he couldn’t get rid of him. This guy had noticed his little tricks early and hadn’t been sealed by his spiritual power. Even if he didn’t lead the way, it wouldn’t be a big problem for him to find those few cities on a planet with the other party’s standard. At most, they would only be delayed for two days...

Thinking of this, the principal didn’t say anything else. He directly started to move toward his destination. Jimmy followed behind him with a smile. In a few flashes, the two of them arrived at the first city tens of thousands of kilometers away... ..

“This is...” when the principal and Jimmy saw the size of the first city, they were slightly stunned.

The first city looked much shabbier than they had imagined. At least compared to the previous city, it was like an industrial base in the wilderness.

“This is a devil spirit?” Jimmy looked curiously at the blue giant who was working hard in the mine and asked in surprise.

Devil spirits were the same as the Green Titan. They were also part of the ancient gene series, but their fusion rate was better than the Green Titan’s. The cost of cultivating them was also much lower. Most of the genes on the market could be sold for thousands of federation coins each.

Even so, it was still very difficult to cultivate such high-quality demon spirits. It was the first time they had seen thousands of high-quality demon spirits mining here in their lifetime.

“They are really willing to use anything to move bricks!” The principal said with a strange expression.

“Principal... from the looks of it, the previous guess is probably true...” Jimmy narrowed his eyes and said.

The principal nodded. If the Green Titan and the wood elves were said to be accidents, then the demon spirit in front of him could already verify his guess. It was impossible for him to say that this was a place where ancient races survived, right?

“You really bet on a big treasure, Principal!” Jimmy took a deep breath and said.

Chapter 915 Rebuttal from the first city’s players.

The city had been operating for almost three months. Many city residents had returned one after another. After seeing the American reporters’ interviews, they were instantly filled with righteous indignation, they had all expressed their objections online, and Nie xiaoying was one of them.

At this moment, she was sitting in front of her computer and writing a post about living in her own city. She was prepared to refute the so-called symposium before she returned.

About half an hour later, a post titled: [The Life Diary of the first city] appeared in the morning light studio’s “Sea of stars” discussion forum, and it quickly heated up!

Hello, everyone. My name is Nie xiaoying, a resident of the first city. I’m one of the lucky ones who was first admitted. I’ve lived in the first city for three months, and I’m currently a Lake Elf Beast Tamer, i just applied for a three-day vacation to go home, but I didn’t expect to hear that our first city was described by a famous reporter as a gathering place for migrant workers the moment I returned, i think I should write a post to clarify these big shots.

First of all, I’m from Huazhong Cloud City. I chose the first city for two reasons. One was because Huaxia city was too competitive and there were too many applicants, there were already a lot of high-level big shot players there. They were not very friendly to newcomers. After all, from an online player’s point of view, it was common sense to choose the old district over the old one.

The second one was Angor’s racial separation policy. I thought she was smart enough to keep the competition environment for West Germans without interfering with the competitiveness of outsiders. It would be a relatively fair starting platform, that was why I chose the first city.

I did not expect to be chosen so quickly. Now that I thought about it, I was pretty lucky. If I had chosen Huaxia City like my brother, I would still be waiting in line.

Let’s talk about the environment first. The famous reporter was right about the environment. Our first city did look like a large construction site, not like a city, but think about it carefully, when Huaxia City was first established, didn’t it look the same? Didn’t it start from one or two mines?

Some people might say that other cities were clearly not like this and were obviously much better. Please, our first city’s civilization was a civilization that focused on industry. Naturally, in the early stages, mining was the main focus, while the second city focused on agriculture, in the early stages, it was naturally to build farms, and in the fourth city, they engaged in biology. They directly built a primitive forest, a construction site, a farm, and a forest. who could be better than who?

If you said that farms were good, the environment was good, and the work was leisurely, you had to see how much money they could earn from their work? The air in the countryside was so good and leisurely. Why were there still so many young people moving bricks into the city? Wasn't it because of the high wages?

Go and ask the farmers in the second city how much a month was? Then go and ask the brick-moving Big Brothers in the first city how much a month was? They were not on the same level at all, okay? One had to know that the points in the six big cities were universal. At that time, wouldn't the establishment of Tongshang first city depend on who had the most money?

As for that well-known reporter saying that our first city did not treat the absenteeism as a person was simply nonsense. She knew her father. Among the six big cities, the best absenteeism working environment was in our first city. Not only was the salary the highest, but the living conditions were also the best, the food and accommodation conditions were also absolutely the best. Now, the city Lord had spent a large sum of money to purchase star Rhino meat from Huaxia City in order to replenish the nutrition for those demon spirits. Could you ask other cities if they had such treatment? Didn't Huaxia City, which had the best economy, have such treatment?

Moreover, there was accommodation. Every player who went to work at the mining site had fixed accommodation. It was right next to the main base, and everyone had it. The conditions were all based on Huaxia City's standard dormitories, the renovation conditions were definitely better than his American University dormitories. Not only did they have dormitories and mining areas, but they also had a large number of rest areas. Each bed had a complete set of massage equipment, within ten minutes, the employees would be able to relax their tired muscles the most. Every two hours of work, the employees would be forced to rest at the rest areas for half an hour of massage rest.

Are these conditions bad? Those mechanical massage tables were bought by a great lord in Huaxia City. For 10,000 points a piece, the Lord had installed more than 5,000 of them. did other cities have such conditions?

I know many people would say that if it was so good, why were there so many people sleeping on the sand?

Indeed, the photos that the reporter took of the sand sleeping at the construction site were real. However, it was not that there was no place to sleep, but that they made it themselves. Due to the high wages at the absentee work area, many people would occasionally splurge and ask the foreign trade officer to bring them some private goods, such as wine brewed from high-grade grain and some barbecued meat that tasted better.

There would be a bonfire party outside the construction site almost every few days. Many absentee workers would drink themselves to death there. When they were drunk, they would directly sleep on the sand. Mars was full of wind and sand. wasn't it normal to lie down and be buried for a night?

I had attended such a bonfire party a few times, but I didn't go after that. The expenses were too high. Although the salaries of Beast Tamers were not worse than absenteeism, our expenses were high. Naturally, we couldn't be as extravagant as them... ..

But I really didn't expect that this would be used by a famous reporter to make a big deal out of it. Did they not interview him?

Take a closer look. In the video that the reporter played, was there a video of him interviewing citizens? There wasn't one, right? After walking around four cities, there wasn't a single interview. He was just relying on some video that he shot and talking to himself. How could you believe this?

Finally, the fifth city that the reporter boasted about, was it really like the other party's description of a paradise. Hehe... ..

Indeed, their infrastructure was the best of the five big cities, and they had a small town of their own, but this was paradise?

First of all, as far as I know, the initial funds of each city were about the same, so most city lords would spend their limited funds on the advantages of their own urban civilization, for example, our first city bought the most mining equipment and some basic industrial equipment, and the third city bought the most teaching equipment.

Only the fifth city built an entertainment town. Do you think this is normal?

And the quality of life is not different from other cities, okay? In terms of diet, the second city is now recognized as the best, they encourage planting there, many new varieties taste great, each elf can taste a variety of new crops, healthy and nutritious, the fourth city had a large number of wild species. The meat was delicious, and they could also enjoy hunting. What did the fifth city have? Coke? Fried Chicken?

My God, these are the things on the D Ball, okay? People outside the city might not know that the consumption of our genetic bodies is completely different from the original body. If we use the D ball to eat food, a demon spirit will eat at least three Australian cows a day. The energy intake is low, but the volume is not small, the body would also need to spend a lot of time to remove the waste. It was simply not worth it.

I also had a friend in the fifth city. I heard from him that people who went to the fifth city's town to consume energy-replenishing nutrient fluids before going to the town to satisfy their appetite with fried chicken and coke.

Was this the quality of life that the fifth city was bragging about. Hehe, nutrient fluids. Ever since we started trading with Huaxia City, we hadn't eaten that thing in the second month. As a result, the fifth city was still using it... ..

The key is that these things are still charged. Many people might say that the charge isn't high. With just one point, you can eat and drink all day and drink beer... ..

Does the person who said this know the current market price of points? One point in the black market can be sold for two million, and there's a price but no market. You spend two million to eat cheap food and beer for a day and still think you're making a profit? Are You Out of your mind?

A lot of things don't look at the surface, okay? I say anyway here, choose the fifth city, you will absolutely regret, as for that well-known reporter, Ha Ha, what kind of old witch you do not know? You still believe her?

-LSB- damn, finally an insider to write the contents of the ciAfterGrandpanLua lu disappeared, we have no access to the informatiWe.Cae can't blame the old witch for leading us...]

Nie xiaoying: Don't worry, I will update the content of my life in the city from now on. I believe that there will be more and more people updating the city diary and writing strategies for you.

[that's good, that's good. Thank you very much, landlord. I have also chosen the first city, but I haven't submitted the race selection yet. Do you have any recommendations?]

Nie xiaoying: mm... ... the first city is more supportive of local races, therefore, I don't recommend choosing a common race like the Green Titan or the wood elves. If you like strength, you can consider demon spirits. This race is as muscular as the Green Titan, if you like agility, you can choose Leica Elves like me. However, there are many types of Leica elves, so you have to choose carefully. This race isn't like the wood elves, who can transform according to your situation, after choosing, you can't regret it. Many of my friends will realize that they made the wrong choice.

[poster, can you introduce Leica Elves in detail? I have no feelings for muscular men...]

Nie xiaoying: Leica Elves have four forms and more than 20 branches. It's more troublesome to introduce them. I'll open a separate post to explain it in detail next time.

[poster, sir, can developers not be chosen in the first city?]

Nie xiaoying: Yes, the technological race can only be chosen by the Mayin race, and it is exclusive to the West Germans. We can only be martial artists... ∴ [funny laugh!]

[sir, you said you are a beast tamer. Is this a Class?]

Nie xiaoying: Yes, it is a branch of the Leica Elves'third form. The Leica Elves'third form is a spiritual form, which is also known as the sacrificial form in our place. The classes under the branch are mainly related to totems, for example, my totem is a wolf. Usually, I'm in charge of training the species in the Wolf family. Later on, I can even train magical beasts.

[wow, Magical Beasts all come. This job sounds pretty good. How does the poster feel?]

Nie xiaoying: It's alright, it's just that it's more expensive. That F * cking beast eats more than me. I have to pay for three portions of food. This is also one of the important reasons why I can't attend the bonfire banquet later on. Anyway, I don't recommend you to choose...

[haha...]

After replying to the questions of the netizens, nie xiaoying deeply stretched her body, and then she heard a recall notification from the first city... ...

Chapter 916: Investigation of the first city

"Wow, the vacation time is really fast..."Nie xiaoying sighed and stretched her body. Then, she looked at her perfect curves and revealed a silly smile.

The shape of the Leica Elf's body was really in line with her aesthetic standards. First of all, it was a perfect figure. With the belly button as the boundary, the ratio of the upper and lower body should be 5:8, which was in line with the "Golden Section" law, although the height was exaggerated to be two meters, the thickness of the skeleton was so perfect that it didn't look out of place at all. With the symmetrical muscles and wheat bran-colored skin, there was a sense of beauty that was full of vitality.

"It would be great if there were suitable clothes to set off the perfect figure of this beautiful girl..." Nie xiaoying thought regretfully.

The basic benefits of the first city were not bad. As long as one went to work on time, there would be custom-made clothes and food supplies. Obviously, they didn't want the players to spend money recklessly. However, the custom-made clothes style made her not dare to compliment them.

However, she could not even afford good clothes. Galaxy's largest dog-egg restaurant and dog-egg tailor shop had moved into the city at the first opportunity. However, so far, no player could afford the items inside.

Speaking of which, why was the price so high when the name was so simple?

She had once seen a leather armor with a strong design sense inside. It was obviously designed specifically for their Leica Elven figure. When she tried it on, it was simply stunning, if it wasn't for the price that she couldn't afford even if she worked for another six months, she might have gone bankrupt to buy it!

The Leica Elves' figures really ate clothes. They had good figures, but they didn't belong to the all-purpose clothes rack. The official clothes were really too LOW. She was too embarrassed to send selfies to show them...

She didn't know when she would have the capital to afford those things... ..

Nie xiaoying got up gloomily and walked towards her dormitory. The townfolk dormitory was built next to the main base. It was a super high-rise building with 400 floors. There were 30 households on the first floor. It was a stair room.

She lived on the first floor with 300 floors. The floor was higher and she had to walk on the long stairs every time. In fact, for her current physical strength, this kind of long stairs was not a big problem, however, walking on the 300 rotating steps gave people a feeling of dizziness.

At this time, it was already very late, but not a single light was lit in the entire building. It seemed very cold, but Nie xiaoying was not surprised by this scene.

This was related to the atmosphere of the city. The enthusiasm for work here was very high, and it was normal to leave early and return late, especially those who skipped work. Every day, they moved bricks until dawn, if not for the city Lord's rule that they had to ensure that they had four hours of adequate sleep, those guys might have stayed in the mine 24 hours a day.

One had to know that these guys used to complain incessantly in the past, cursing that capital was not human, but now they were even more hardworking than laborers. Reality proved that it was not that people could not endure hardship, but that they had to give hope, as long as there was light ahead., what was wrong with everyone?

“Child, may I ask if this is the city center?”

An old voice stopped nie xiaoying’s footsteps. Nie xiaoying turned around and looked at the other party curiously. This voice sounded even older than her grandfather, but logically speaking, there should not be an old man here.

In the six major cities, other than Huaxia City, where 1% of the elderly would be recorded, the other five major cities basically prioritized the young and strong population. After all, in the initial stage, how would they allocate resources to the elderly?

When she turned around, Nie xiaoying was instantly stunned. This old man’s appearance was very strange. There were two antennas on his head, which didn’t seem like the city template that was announced.

The person who came was the headmaster and the Dean of the Transformation Department: Jimmy.

“This is...” Jimmy’s eyes lit up, and he looked at Nie xiaoying as if he was looking at a rare object. “The Leica Elves, right? DAMN... This form, TSK TSK... looks even more perfect than the biological model...”

For genes, the best way to determine its purity was the similarity between its appearance and its ancient ancestors. The Leica Elves belonged to an ancient bloodline, and their civilization had been extinct for countless years. However, due to their relatively normal acceptance rate., there were families on the market that were nurturing bloodlines in this area, and they had seen outstanding Leica Elven descendants under their feet.

However, they had never seen such a pure one. Even those families that had raised for dozens of generations would more or less have some of the characteristics of the original race, such as the characteristics of goblins or other bloodlines, this was the first time Jimmy had seen such a lycra elven that looked almost identical to the ideal model.

“Hey, Old Man, where are you looking?” Nie xiaoying looked at the two old men with shining eyes and frowned. “How Old Are You? Can you be a little more shameless? Even if I gave you the hardware, would you be able to keep up?”

“Ahem...” Jimmy and the principal were immediately choked by these fierce words.

“Uh... little girl, you misunderstood. We are not bad people. We are here to investigate the teachers here...” Jimmy smiled and said.

“Teachers?” Nie xiaoying was stunned, and then she hesitated and said, “Just the two of you?”

She expressed her doubts. She had seen all the teachers in the city. Each of them was tall and strong. Ordinary Green Titans and demon spirits looked like little chicks in front of those teachers. They could be said to be first-class fierce men., these two old men looked like they had one foot in the coffin. How could they be instructors?

“Don’t be rude, Xiaoying...” a familiar and stern voice interrupted nie xiaoying’s doubt. She immediately recognized the owner of the voice and turned around. “City Lord?”

The voice belonged to Angor, the city lord who rushed over.

“This is an advanced academy teacher personally invited by the higher-ups to inspect the quality of the students in the city...” Angor glared at Xiaoying and explained patiently.

Nie Xiaoying stuck out her tongue and smiled apologetically at the principal and the others. She then hid behind Angor in embarrassment while observing the two so-called advanced academy teachers in secret.

What was the Advanced Academy? Was it a new project?

“I’m Angor, the city lord of the first city. The city is not well equipped, so I had to come here on foot. Please forgive my slight delay,” said Angor, still panting a little. It was obvious that he came here in a hurry.

“No, no...” the principal looked at him with a smile, but his eyes showed a hint of surprise. He thought to himself, ‘The Mayin clan is exactly the same as in the information.’

Jimmy’s eyes also lit up. He thought to himself, the Mayin clan, my God, are the natives of this place able to adapt to any bloodline?

“Most of the people haven’t returned to their dorms at this time. If the two adults want to see people, I’ll take you to the workplace to have a look.”

The principal was stunned for a moment, he looked at the sky and then frowned. “You’re still working at this time of night? Isn’t it a little too much even if you lack the labor force? At the very least, you have to leave time for the children to receive learning and training, right? Otherwise, how will they grow?”

It was understandable for such a good seedling to carry bricks in the past, but now he did not know what to do.

Such a good seedling had great potential. They could take on a wave of shortage of manpower for the time being, but they could not give up on their training completely. In order to gather more energy and mineral resources, the children had to work for so long.., they were simply giving up on the root of the problem!

Angor did not show any displeasure at the principal’s question. Instead, he looked ashamed and said, “Well... There’s nothing I can do about it...”

Chapter 917 propaganda (Part One)

They followed Angor all the way to the main base. The first city’s main base was the most crowded among the five major cities because Angor bought the most mining equipment.

When they entered the base, the headmaster and Jimmy, who were good at space studies, instantly sensed the thousands of maffins in the base. They were all focused on controlling the complicated and sophisticated equipment, they did not notice that they were being spied on at all.

However, with the current level of the Germanic race, even if they were on high alert, they would definitely not notice that they were being spied on.

At this moment... ... The headmaster and Jimmy, who were spying on them, became more and more alarmed, working genetic bodies could better reflect their talent in spiritual power. The Ma Yin race was stronger than the developers in terms of spiritual power control, and this advantage was fully displayed when they were working, the principal and Jimmy were so excited that their bodies trembled.

The two of them could become star level powerhouses, so they were both top-notch geniuses in the universe. Whether it was their bloodline or their acquired talent, they were all first-class big shots among their peers. However, they knew that when they were young, they definitely didn't have this level of talent... ...

Even some of the members of the royal family in their previous generation didn't have this kind of talent. The key was that there were at least a thousand people with this kind of talent in front of them. This wasn't even taking into account their bold assumption. If these guys were all natives who had transformed.., how many more would there be in the future?

Thinking of this, the two masters who had lived for centuries began to pant.

As a member of the Mayin clan, Angor was quite observant. Judging from the two masters' expressions, they seemed to be very satisfied with their people. Angor was delighted.

Getting a better education and stepping into the technological level was the key to the rise of the number one city in the future.

She quietly waited for the two to walk through all the folded spaces before she slowly said, "Didn't you ask why the working hours are so unreasonable?"

The principal nodded repeatedly. The more he looked at the talent of the children, the more he realized that the manager was a fool. Using such a good talent's precious time to exchange for some energy ores was like trading gold for feces!

"Mainly because they have nothing to do but work..." Angor sighed.

"Nothing... nothing to do?" Jimmy stuttered.

"We have very few teachers in this city..." "There are six in total," Angor said. "Three physical teachers, two fighting teachers, and one mechanical culture teacher. Educational resources are too limited. Take these children for example. One mechanic teacher is not enough. In order to take care of everyone, public classes are the only way. In order to take care of the children who came to the city later, public classes are often repeated. These children are also very good learners. After they finish their classes, they can only work and earn some points while waiting for the next class "... "..."

"And the children of the Leica Elves..." Angor looked at Nie xiaoying, who was following behind him. "These children have special physiques. They need professional stylist teachers to strictly train them to keep their bodies in shape. Otherwise, they could easily transform and affect their agility. Most of the physical fitness teachers in the base did not dare to train them easily. Most of the time, these children could only watch the demon spirits train in the base. They could only pass the time by working"

Nie xiaoying pursed her lips in grievance. To be honest, this was what she cared about the most right now. After the demon spirit players earned money, they could still spend it on training to improve themselves. However, because they did not have a molding teacher., most of the time, they could only take some low-intensity physical training classes. The combat class and the Berserker Bloodline Awakening class were all enjoyed by the demon spirits. The elves could only watch helplessly.

She was also considered the most marginal among the Leica Elves. Although the physical instructors did not dare to train them too much, they would at least arrange some training programs for them, as a priest, she did not have any instructors at all. She could only try to train the wolf spirits with public teaching materials. Her speed was not as fast as her companions.

“Great!” Jimmy slapped his thigh excitedly.

Angor:”...”

Nie xiaoying:”???”

“Ahem... .. I mean, what a pity “...”. Jimmy quickly changed his expression to one of pity. “But don’t worry, my Lord. We’re here to solve the problem of education resources.” “...”. He then looked at Nie xiaoying with a kind expression. “Don’t worry, Kid. Our Academy has a priest-type teacher. His skills are average, but he’s more than enough to teach you!”

Nie xiaoying:”...”

Should I say thank you? Why does it feel like this teacher’s words are asking for a beating?

The principal couldn’t help but cover his head. This Jimmy is still the same as before. If he doesn’t know how to speak, then don’t say it, okay... ..

“Ahem... City Lord...” the principal hurriedly pulled Jimmy Down, he said, “According to what you said just now, these children haven’t even received an initial education. In other words, they haven’t decided on the direction of their future subjects, right?”

Angor nodded. “Without a teacher, they can only rely on the public basic courses given by the higher-ups. The only teacher in the base is in the mechanics department, and the public courses are also in the Mechanics Department. However, this is also in line with our city’s position. Since our city is mainly in the mechanical civilization, I hope your school can send more teachers in this area...”. “...”

The principal frowned. Before he could say anything, Jimmy quickly said, “How can you do that? These kids are so talented. How can you fix their direction?”

Angor frowned. “This is what our city needs right now. Please cooperate with us...”

Before Jimmy could refute, the principal pulled him back again, he smiled apologetically and said, “I’m sorry, sir. Our teacher was a bit hasty. I’m sorry... but he was right. Your citizens are very talented. It’s not reasonable to set a direction...”

Angor frowned, before the principal could finish, he said, “Sir, you might have a misunderstanding about the mechanical civilization. It doesn’t mean that you have to take all the mechanical subjects. You have to understand that the operation of mechanical energy requires a variety of subjects, such as materials science, energy science, and transformation science. I’ve read your city’s information. The Civilization classification includes Hex Technology. HEX technology is a combination of Arcana and mechanics. It requires a large number of talents from the Plastic Energy Department and the Transformation Department. It's not like a single machine department can support a civilization...". "..."

Angor finally relaxed. He nodded and said, "I'm sorry for my lack of knowledge..."

"No, no..." The principal quickly added, "It's normal for people to specialize in different subjects. How about this? Call all the Mayin children together. I'll teach them about the various subjects in our school and see what they're interested in. I'll give them some statistics so that I can assign a suitable number of tutors to them when I get back. What do you think?"

"Thank you so much!" Angor was delighted. "Please wait for a moment. I'll make the arrangements right away!" He then ordered his people to gather in the hall.

Jimmy secretly sent a message to the principal. "Sir, we need these kids very much!"

He did not want to come all the way here to make a wedding dress for those idiots from the Mechanics Department.

"Ahem... I know, don't talk later, I know how to arrange it!" The principal replied.

What a joke, their space department academy had always been hungry for talent and had extremely high requirements for spiritual control. It wasn't easy for them to meet such a pure Mai clan, how could he let them go?

Chapter 918 propaganda (in)

All the citizens of the Maines came from West Germany. At this time, they were as numb as usual as they worked day after day on the boring assembly line. Many of their faces no longer had the fresh air that they had when they first arrived.

Perhaps at the beginning, when they first came into contact with the new knowledge, when they first came into contact with the sophisticated equipment, the novelty had always filled their minds.

But soon, this feeling was suppressed. Those who were too good at learning quickly learned the basic knowledge, and the sophisticated mining equipment soon became as boring as an assembly line as they practiced day after day.

In order to take care of the newcomers, there would not be a new lesson in the tutor's Open class for a week. Many times, when the newcomers came, they would have to start from the beginning again. Many times, they would almost fall asleep listening to it.

This wasn't the life they wanted in their hearts. If it wasn't for the novel world outside that was still tempting them to persevere, they would have started complaining long ago.

"Nico, how are you? How much did you earn today?"

In a folded room, a slender woman finally stopped the work in her hands. She glanced at her companion who was still controlling the equipment and asked curiously.

The companion called Nico was a short and fat woman. After hearing her question, she directly turned around and said, "Well... I refined 31 energy blocks, 17 high-quality, 13 high-quality, and one low-quality. It should be able to be exchanged for 100 points. What About You, Maggie?"

At this time, they were already very familiar with the operation of the equipment. Even when the machinery was still operating, they dared to divert their attention to chat. In the beginning, it was impossible. Facts proved that the Maines were indeed very powerful in mind control.

This also caused their work to be extremely boring after they learned how to operate the equipment. At this time, the topic that they were interested in was this relatively generous reward.

"I'm about the same as you..." Maggie smiled and said, "I have two more fine products than you, which should be around 100 points. Why Don't you take a day off to go to the sand and have a drink with those big men?"

"I'm not going..." Nicole curled her lips and said, "The alcohol there is so high, it's too easy to get drunk. I don't want to be buried in the wind and sand like last time..."

"But it's really boring..." "...". "...". Maggie leaned on the chair and said, "All day long, it's just mining. I feel that it's not as interesting as those big men moving bricks, you know? "I used to despise factory assembly line work. I didn't expect to walk on this path one day."

"Calm down, Maggie!" Nicole quickly comforted her, "It's only temporary. You've seen the civilization vault. Our life will be colorful in the future."

"How long do we have to wait?" Maggie said weakly, "One year? Two years? Oh My God, I think I'll go crazy if I wait another month!"

"Everyone, please pay attention!" Just as Maggie was complaining, the smart electronic voice sounded in all the folded rooms.

"Everyone, please pay attention. Everyone, please pay attention. The castellan has called for everyone to gather in the hall. He has an important announcement to make. Everyone, please stop the operation of the equipment in your hands. If you are in the process of refining ores, please freeze the ores that are being refined and turn off the equipment manually one by one..."

"Huh?" Maggie, who was originally powerless, was energized when she heard this. She quickly stood up and asked, "What happened?"

With such a boring life, she really hoped that there would be something new to kill some time.

"Can't we just go and take a look?" Nicole, who was relatively quiet, carefully stored the ore crystals in cold storage and then began to manually turn off all the programs. However, from her expression, it was obvious that she was also very excited.

The castellan valued the production of mineral crystals very much. This time, he must have something important to ask everyone to stop working. No matter what it was, it was more interesting than having them sit here and work as assembly line workers.

With this kind of mood, in less than five minutes, a group of Germanic engineers gathered in the hall very efficiently.

Looking at the Maines who had extremely pure spiritual power, the principal and Jimmy could not help but take a deep breath.

The group of Germanic people were also extremely curious when they saw the two old men that had just appeared.

[who are these two? They look so old. Could they be the legendary high-ranking officials of Luofu? Those scientists who joined the galaxy in the Middle Ages?]

[I think so too. Look at the old man at the back. This genetic body is very special. Moreover, I vaguely feel that the outline is very similar to Newton.]

-LBullshllsT.* t. he looks a lot lPelantlant, right?]

[Bullsh * t. how could pelant have such a big nose?]

“Everyone, please be quiet and listen to me!” Angor clapped his hands and interrupted the young people’s gossip, “The higher-ups have just established an advanced academy and sent thousands of instructors here. This is the president of the Advanced Academy. He came to our first city to check out our requirements. He will send high-quality instructors here according to your requirements!”

“Wow! !” This news immediately made everyone’s eyes light up. Did it mean that they finally did not have to listen to that idiot instructor’s repeated beginner lessons?

“Wow, really? Thousands of instructors? Could it be that Einstein is personally teaching us?”

“You want to eat your farts? That kind of big shot must be a higher-up. Why would he personally come to receive instruction? He must be the wild scientist who joined Luofu all these years, right?”

[I’m lucky to have one, I’m really sick of teacher Simeir’s beginner’s classes, please let me take in something new, you have no idea how bored I am, last time I went back on holiday, I played Lol and never died, when did the game become so easy? Hey... . Come on, give me something exciting. I feel so empty... ..]

[pretentious guy, have you ever tried to make a single with Mother Star?]

[heh... do you believe that I can make a single V 5 with Lulu?]

[PFFT, I’ve played with it for too long. Boring...]

“Ahem... calm down...” Angor cleared his throat and continued, “The principal came here personally to gauge the public’s interest in the subject. It’s convenient for him to send the corresponding instructors according to their needs...”

“Subject?” A group of Germanic bigwigs sneered. “We don’t need a subject now. If you have anything, just bring it to us and we’ll learn it. We just want more stuff, not boring us after two or three days...”

The principal smiled. “Looks like the kids don’t have much respect for knowledge...”

He snapped his fingers, and the space around them shook. Then, the surroundings became strange and spacious. There was a strange-looking mechanical chair behind each of them, the whole space was also milky white.

“What the... Is This? The base has this function?”

Everyone was stunned. Angor was also shocked. As the owner of the highest authority in the base, she knew very well that the base did not have this function!

But if it was not a function of the base, what was going on around here?

“This is not a function of your base...”the headmaster was satisfied with everyone’s shocked expression. He smiled and said, “I’m the one who brought you to another dimension...”

“Another dimension?”Everyone was confused for a moment before they realized what was going on. “This is Magic?”

“We call it Arcana. Strictly speaking, it’s a space spell. It’s one of the many classes in our academy. Are you interested in listening to me?”

“Holy shit! Cool!”Everyone was excited. “Can I learn this?”

“Of course!”The principal smiled amiably!

One person could change space?

Angor narrowed his eyes. He suddenly felt that he was not very knowledgeable about personal abilities... ..

Chapter 919 Propaganda (Part Two)

“First of all, let me explain the nature of our school. Our School is an advanced school that focuses on practical engineering and Arcana, supported by science. Of course, we also open up a branch of the sacrificial school, but it doesn’t involve martial arts. I’m sure your higher-ups have other arrangements for martial arts instructors, but our school only accepts spirit students and ELF students of the sacrificial school.”

The headmaster’s introduction lifted the spirits of the Germans. Angor’s separation of civil and military forces had caused quite a stir in the city. Some rational people thought that Angor was trying to preserve the competitiveness of the Germans, to reduce the racial conflicts caused by racial competition, some people thought that Angor’s policy was killing the future of the Germans in another direction.

There were both positive and negative comments, but for the Ottomans who had already settled in the city, they were most concerned about their status and treatment as technology personnel.

The warrior class had an enviable upper limit. Every man loved to venture out, explore new worlds, and conquer the unknown. Such a loss really made many Ottomans regret it, therefore, they would rather have better resources and social status if they had to give up such a romantic idea.

However, Angor never promised this. Although she always emphasized that the Mayin race had a bright future ahead of them, her slogan still made many people uncertain.

However, this new news cheered them up a lot. The establishment of Galaxy's first Advanced Academy was really about science and technology. This clearly showed how much the higher-ups in galaxy valued the students of science and technology, at the very least, the priority seemed to be more in their favor.

Seeing that these students were listening to his speech very seriously, the principal felt much more relaxed. He thought to himself, it seems to be going better than I imagined.

So he continued, "First is science. The scope of science courses offered by our college is not large, but they are all designed for the foundation of Engineering and Alchemy in our college. They include the federal advanced mathematics and Applied Mathematics, the Federal Information and Computing Science, the federal origin physics, the applied physics of the universe, the federal origin chemistry, the Applied Chemistry of the universe, the biological science of the universe, the biological technology of the universe, the astrology of the universe, the basic geology of the universe, the astrology of the universe, the resources and environment of the universe, the management of the universe, the science of the universe, the technology of the universe, the theory and applied mechanics of the universe, optics, the basic energy science, the physics of the basic materials, the chemistry of the basic materials, the ecology of the universe, statistics, and so on... . . ."

"Science is an auxiliary subject in our school. It is set up to deal with the engineering or alchemy that you choose. For example, if you want to learn the space spells of our School of modifications, you have to first learn the Federation's origin physics, the applied physics of the universe, the basic energetics, and advanced mathematics. The reason is that you have to understand the basic exercises of space and physics, as well as the basic exercises of space and energy changes. Then, when casting spells, you have to be proficient in advanced mathematics by precisely calculating the structure of the alchemy array. These are the foundations of being an alchemist. In contrast, if you want to be a mechanical alchemist or a biological alchemist, you will be equipped with the corresponding science. The instructors will judge whether you are suitable to be an alchemist based on your ability to learn the science."

"Do Alchemists Mean Mages?" Someone asked a crucial question.

The principal smiled. Many people used to ask this question when they went to aboriginal planets.

"When they can't understand the principle behind it, these things are indeed magic to many people..."

"Then... can we all become such mages?" Someone asked nervously.

"You're quite talented. There's a good chance..." the principal smiled.

Angor frowned. He noticed that the principal was getting more and more eager to lead the students toward alchemy. This made her a little cautious. The direction of the first city's civilization had not been decided yet., alchemists were definitely more attractive than traditional mechanics. It would be bad if a large number of maarins were taught some random stuff by the principal.

However, she could not object right away because she did not understand many things herself. Thus, she decided to ask a question that she was concerned about.

"I have a question that I don't understand. I hope you can help me answer it."

"Please..."the principal answered gently.

"There are two main civilizations in our first city. One is a pure mechanical civilization, and the other is an alchemy mechanical civilization. What's the difference between the two?"Angor asked

"Well..."the principal smiled. "If there's a big difference, there's a big one. But in general, there's not much difference..."

"Huh?"

The principal said, "Alchemy is a kind of science, but compared to traditional science, alchemy relies more on a person's spiritual power. Take mechanical alchemy for example. A mechanical alchemist relies more on alchemy arrays to make mechanical products in the early stages. Complex alchemy arrays replace traditional systems with various formulas that change the energy structure and material. This requires a higher individual's ability, because many complex tactics require a huge amount of spiritual power to operate. It's equivalent to evolving your brain to a level stronger than your intelligence, using the evolution of a person to improve your technological abilities."

"As for traditional mechanics, due to their limited abilities, they usually rely more on machines. This kind of civilization is more likely to appear in races with congenital defects. If they want to develop technology, they will use machines to replace their own defects. Today's computer technology and artificial intelligence were born in this kind of civilization to replace the complicated structure of the human brain. When the technology improves, they will use the technology to evolve the human body."

Angor's heart skipped a beat. The headmaster's words were more or less true. These people were definitely not from Planet D!

However, she already expected this, so she was not surprised. Instead, she was more concerned about the headmaster's theory. She asked curiously, "So traditional science and Arcana are ultimately the same thing?"

"In theory..."the headmaster smiled and shook his head. "But in fact, there's still a big difference..."

"What do you mean?"

The headmaster said, "Take the mechanical civilization for example. In general, the time limit for the establishment of a civilization is faster in the traditional mechanical department. According to big data, most mechanical civilizations can reach the level of stepping out of the universe in a few hundred years once they start, while alchemy civilizations usually take tens of thousands of years or even hundreds of thousands of years."

"Why?"Angor quickly asked.

"Because it's hard to cooperate with the alchemy civilization..." The principal shook his head. "Alchemy arrays are not something that can be shared. In the arcane civilization, the stronger the strong, the weaker the weak. You'll see that Top Arcanists can create powerful arcane machines on their own, but low-level arcanists can't. If you want to reach the same level, you have to reach that level. For example, it takes three hundred years for an ordinary person to become an arcanist in that world. That means you have to study for a long time to reach his level, but traditional mechanics is different.”

“The traditional mechanical civilization could rely on their predecessors to design and produce industrial software, and later generations could rely on this software platform to do higher-level things. They didn’t even need to learn the bottom-level knowledge, they just needed to know how to apply it. That is, the so-called platform sharing. With the platform, the younger generation could use this platform to save a lot of unnecessary learning time, and they could carry out a more detailed division of labor. They didn’t need to know everything. Therefore, the traditional civilization would be more efficient and develop faster than the Arcana civilization, which had a higher qualification requirement. “... “...”

“I see!” Angor’s eyes brightened up. If that was the case... ...

The principal immediately understood what Angor was thinking when he saw his expression. Of course, he would not allow Angor to lead such a talented student to the traditional path, he came here mainly to promote his school in front of the other professors.

“But traditional civilization has its drawbacks,” he said quickly

Chapter 920 Shameless Old Thief!

“Flaws?” Angor frowned.

“Everything in this world has two sides. It’s an unchanging rule...”. The principal smiled. “Traditional civilization is built on the foundation of inborn defects. Although the efficiency of creating shared platforms is very high, it also causes the people of traditional civilization to rely too much on platforms. Many advanced lifeforms of traditional mechanical civilization relied on artificial intelligence to calculate modules even though their spiritual power was improved through life science. As time went by, many knowledge reserves were more dependent on platforms. Without platforms, it would be difficult for them to achieve anything “... “...”

“On the contrary, advanced arcanists do not rely on platforms, because they are used to relying on their own calculations for the most basic things. Although the process of accumulation is very long, the upper limit of an individual’s ability is very strong, and the inheritance is not easy to break. As long as a senior Arcanist’s inheritance is complete, he or she represents his or her entire civilization.”

“...” Angor

Angor did not know if this was true, but the man’s words were quite harsh.

If the man told Angor in private, Angor would definitely encourage the citizens to follow the traditional path. After all, it was a good thing for the ruler to emphasize the collective rather than the platform to weaken the role of the individual.

However, it was not the case for the individual. ... for the individual, heroism and individualism were what many people pursued.

“Then, headmaster, is our school focused on Arcana or tradition?” One of the citizens asked quickly.

Nie xiaoying, who was watching the show, rolled her eyes. Our School? Who said that these Germanic people were old-fashioned?

“All of them!” The principal said with a smile, “What I just said doesn’t mean that arcanists are better. On the contrary, for most of you, the traditional route is better.”

“Um... Why?” Everyone was surprised.

“Of course it’s because of the employment problem...”. The principal smiled and said, “Nowadays, civilizations pay attention to integration and learn from each other’s strengths. There are many combinations of arcana civilization and traditional civilization, but in the employment problem, the demand rate for traditional engineers is even higher. The products made by Arcanists are all high-quality products, and using the combination of refining arrays to operate them from the bottom is equivalent to personal handmade products. Take Mechas as an example. In actual combat, arcana mechas made by Arcanists can often defeat hundreds of mechas made by ordinary engineers of the same level, but the problem is that ordinary engineers can rely on the assembly line to build tens of thousands of mechas in the same time. Which one do you think ordinary civilizations need more?”

Everyone: “...”

The principal said, “Under normal circumstances, when an ordinary engineer debuts, he or she will refine it according to the platform of the civilization, create higher-end industrial software and artificial intelligence, and distribute it to the lower-level engineers in the assembly line mode. The efficiency is more than ten thousand times that of an arcanist of the same level. When a civilization absorbs a population, the first thing they need to improve is productivity. This is why ordinary engineers are more useful to most lords, and that is why ordinary engineers are more employable.”

“Well...” everyone looked at each other. Nie xiaoying asked curiously, “Can we learn both sides?”

Everyone’s eyes lit up. They thought to themselves, “Yeah. If we can learn both sides, can we solve the problem of employment and personal improvement?”

The principal smiled. “Theoretically, yes, but it’s hard for people to do that. For arcanists, using an array is a habit. When you’re used to using software and AI, you won’t want to use an array. It’s human nature to be lazy. Very few people can still use an array after using AI, but it’s not impossible, because most of the teachers in our school go in two directions...” “...”

“Oh...” everyone nodded. Angor also felt relieved. If she could have both, she would not completely oppose the People’s pursuit of personal improvement... After all, she was not the kind of ruler who pursued imperialism...

“But first... “... “...” the principal smiled. “The threshold of Arcana is very high. Whether or not you’re suitable to be an alchemist requires a teacher’s careful judgment. So please take this seriously when the teachers come to teach you. The teachers will judge whether or not you’re suitable to be an alchemist based on your ability to learn... “...”

Everyone was filled with anticipation and nervousness. They were all waiting for the instructors to come over and teach them. They were all wondering if they were qualified to become the alchemists that the other party was talking about... ..

“Let me introduce...”. The principal pointed at Jimmy and said, “This is the head of our school’s Space Department, teacher Jimmy. The space department is one of the nine branches of our school’s transformation department. It is a very difficult subject. Space Warlocks have always been a relatively unpopular but very popular profession in the universe. Those who are interested can register with teacher Jimmy to learn the basic subjects

Jimmy’s heart skipped a beat when he heard that, but his face was extremely serious, he walked up to Jimmy and said coldly, “Space alchemy is the most difficult subject in the Arcana Transformation Department. If you want to take this path, you have to be careful and check if you have enough excellent learning ability. Otherwise, if you can’t keep up, you might be judged by me to only be able to take ordinary subjects, or even be persuaded to quit!”

Everyone had different expressions on their faces. Some were full of confidence and eager to try, while others were hesitant. Jimmy quickly memorized everyone’s expressions and locked onto those confident players. This was his first time...

He and the principal sneaked here first. They could not lure everyone into the space department, but that did not stop them from getting the better ones first.

Angor saw through Jimmy’s plan almost instantly. He frowned and looked at the principal. “Principal, the teachers from other departments are not here. Isn’t it a bad idea to let Jimmy do the promotion first?”

She did not want the best citizens to study the space department. It was obvious that it would not help her mainstream civilization much.

“No problem...”the principal seemed to see through Angor’s plan, “Space science is also an indispensable subject in the mechanical civilization. For example, the space transfer station between your cities is a product of space science. In the future, large space stations will need a lot of space engineers...”

“Don’t bully me, Principal,” Angor said. “I don’t know much about space science. It sounds like a less popular subject, right?”

However, the principal acted as if he did not hear Angor’s words, he turned around and smiled at the players. “By the way, I’m also a space sorcerer. If you have any outstanding students, you can come under my tutelage. I’ll teach them myself!”

Everyone had different expressions. Most of the players were excited, while Jimmy and Angor froze.

Angor: I see...

She finally understood why the principal only brought a space professor.

Jimmy: Shameless Bastard! ! !
