Capítulo 1009: Chapter 1009: If We Can't Find Her, We're Done

Nora Brown suddenly froze in place, her eyes wide open, filled with shock.

“Mmh mmh... mmh mmh... mmh mmh mmh...”

She kept struggling, the chains clashing, constantly emitting a clanging sound.

“Mmh mmh...”

“Nora, what’s that sound over there? Nora? Nora? Are you listening?” Nora’s mother felt something was wrong and kept asking.

Nora's face was full of tears, and she struggled even more fiercely.

Wesley Ruiz ripped the tape off her mouth.

In an instant, Nora screamed, "Mom, save me, save me, Mom... Mom! Help me!"

Upon hearing Nora's shrill screams, her mother was instantly silenced in shock.

After several seconds, the person on the other end of the phone regained their voice, "What's going on? Nora, what's wrong? What's happening?"

Nora didn't know how to describe her current situation; she also didn't know how to describe this place, knowing no one could come here to save her. She could only keep shouting for help.

Nora's mother was losing her mind with worry on the other end of the call.

"What's going on? Where are you, Nora? Are you kidnapped? What's happening? Tell Mom where you are."

"Mom!" Nora cried out in pain.

She deeply regretted telling the truth; if this call had not come, she would have firmly said Zoey Sanders had died at sea.

But now that she's made the call, her words prove she knows Zoey isn't dead.

This means they'll go looking for Zoey, and if they find her, won't she be finished?

Nora deeply regretted coming here.

She regretted taking Zoey's identity.

The people here are simply demons.

Especially this silver-haired man, he's a devil!

She felt like she was about to die here.

Nora cried even more desperately.

Her mother was constantly questioning on the other side, while Nora just kept crying.

The crying didn't stop.

"Tsk." Liam Cloud frowned irritably.

Hope Williams hung up the phone and tossed it onto the table beside her.

Nora's strength was draining away, her face gradually losing color.

"Still not telling the truth?" Hope asked coldly.

Previously, she feared Zoey was already gone...

So much can happen in two days.

But that call and Nora's shocked expression proved Zoey wasn't dead.

However, she was afraid to let them find Zoey.

Nora sobbed, shaking her head constantly, “I don’t know, I really don’t know, I’m telling the truth...”

“Ah!”

The empty surroundings were filled with Nora’s screams.

Hope glanced at Liam, who had completely lost patience, and the dart had hit Nora’s knee.

The dart was sharp, piercing the bone, the pain drilling into her.

Nora felt the pain was almost going to kill her.

Liam’s patience was limited.

Nora kept arguing repeatedly.

He could make her suffer intensely, but until she confessed, she definitely wouldn't die.

Liam picked up another dart.

"I'll talk... I'll say everything..." At this moment, Nora felt that even dying was better than this.

"I... I saw Zoey two days ago... She was taken onto a boat by several people, and then... then taken away. What I'm saying is... it is the truth, really the truth."

Nora took a deep breath, "Please spare me... I know I was wrong, I'll never do it again... never do it again..."

After speaking, all of Nora's strength was gone; she couldn't make a sound. Her exquisite clothes were stained with blood, her long hair hung disheveled, sticking to her sweaty face, making it impossible to see clearly how pale she looked.

Liam furrowed his brow tightly, glanced at Wesley Ruiz and Eliana Shaw, “What are you waiting for? Go find her.”

“Yes.”

Upon hearing that Zoey had been taken away, their faces turned serious immediately.

Not daring to waste a moment, they gathered people to start the search.

Zoey was initially their responsibility, but she disappeared, and now there’s an imposter.

If they don’t find Zoey, they’re doomed too.

Roman Frost heard Liam had returned and was also disciplining someone, so he came to join the fun.
