

Alpha Dimitri By LS Barbosa Chapter 12

Chapter 12

Dimitri:

“When I said that she would be cleaning your shit if you ask her to, I did not mean it literally.” I said, glaring at Charlotte who frowned.

“You know, there came a time when I was cleaning everyone’s shit in this place, taking a number of criticism on a daily basis, and...”

“And now you are the main lady.” I said, stopping her. “Unless you want to lose that title, then I do suggest that you start controlling your jealousy and anger.”

“I am not to take threats, Alpha.” She said, snapping at me. “If you think that you can strip of me off a title that you think deems me worthy, then go on ahead and do so, but I will not tolerate the bullshit of an omega who is always asleep in her bedroom. It is bad enough that she has her own maids assigned to her, and that her...”

“Can I ask where are you going with this? Because I have other things to tend to, and the last thing that I want to care about is whatever jealousy you are going through over an OMEGA, a lower rank than you are.” I said, reminding her of the facts. I still had to go and see her father after all the bullshit that he and his men have been doing over the past month, and though she doesn’t know about it, I would rather handle things. quietly to ensure that we settled things on mutual terms.

“You are honestly taking her side against your own lover, and do not tell me otherwise. I see it in your eyes that you are...”

“I am taking no one’s side, but I don’t have time for all this bullshit. One thing that the two of us agreed on, years ago, when the two of us chose to be lovers, was that I had my duties and that you were going to be submitting to them. You claimed that you would go to the edge of the world with me, and yet, I do not see you standing yet, I do not see you standing on a surface ground. with me.” I said, and she looked down at her feet, avoiding my eyes. “recoil your actions and I do suggest that you start acting upon them when I am back home. Otherwise, the two of us are going to have a lot to talk about, and believe me, neither one of the conversations would be ones that you like.”

I didn't wait for her to respond as I walked out of the room. She stood behind me, and I could tell that she didn't move an inch as her heart raced against her ribcage.

My eyes caught sight of Ivan who nodded at me, and I nodded back before the two of us went to head to the living room. However, I was surprised when I found Aurora standing in front of the concierges, tending to a tasting that they were showing her.

The maids surrounded her, taking out a bunch of glasses and plates, and she started choosing from them.

She wore a light sundress that reached her knees. It was tight around her waist, giving out her cleavage, and would loosen right as it lowered to her hips. She wore heels, making sure to look ready in case of any guest decided to show up this early in the morning.

“What is she doing down here?” I asked, nodding at her. She looked up at me, hearing my voice, and I watched as she took a step toward me with one of the plates. The plate had samples of food, and she handed it to

“I was instructed by Beta Ivan to tend to the concierges considering that the elders are coming tonight. My family has been known for hosting, and I do believe that it would be adequate of me to tend to these.” She said, looking down at the plate. “I you would like to see the selections that I made. I was told by the headmistress that you preferred cold receptions. and that is why I settled for salmon, caviar, and shrimp.”

I didn't bother responding as I turned to leave, choosing to teach her the limits that she needed to mind and to remind her that I wanted nothing to do with her. Plus, I kept in mind that I had a promise that I made to Charlotte, and unless I needed to, I was going to be sure not to talk to her. Ivan followed one step behind before I turned to the door as I glanced at the woman as she turned to the maids and concierges.

“You did remember that the elders are coming tonight, right?” Ivan asked, and I rolled my eyes.

"I did, but the last thing that I expected was for you to assign the omega to tend to this." I said, raising an eyebrow at him. He chuckled and opened his car door before getting inside. The driver had already started. the car, and I walked in, waiting for what he was going to tell me.

"She is right about her family's receptions, and I think that the two of us. know that she would be better than..." I growled in warning, knowing that he would be referring to Charlotte. "She has the etiquette for it and no matter how much we might want to deny it, it would be better for your side if the elders saw that SHE was the one taking care of the house and not the maids. At least you would be seen as the Alpha that has control over his Luna rather than having her lazy on bed all day."

"You know that you speaking this much sense to me is starting to get on my nerves." I said, and he chuckled. He shook his head at me before looking at the driver through the rear mirror. He nodded at him to drive, and I watched as he pulled out his laptop from the seat's pocket. He opened it and started scrolling through the emails that he had to review, wanting to check on the data that needed his attention.

My phone rang, and I frowned when I saw that it was Charlotte. I shook my head and hung up before turning my attention to my beta as he turned to look at me.

"Well, someone has to do it. Otherwise, the two of us are going to find ourselves lost in some desert, wouldn't you agree, Alpha?"
