Chapter 16

Dimitri:

“She did a good job, you do know that.” Ivan said, looking me in the eye. and I rolled my eyes.

was one of

The last thing that I was going to do was fatter the woman. It her duties to be able to tend to such things, and I knew that the concierges that were with her and the maids would have helped. She wouldn't have done all this on her own.

“She is required to, and it is not like she wasn't trained by her family to be able to host simple dinners. At least she would be good at doing one thing,” I said, and Ivan nodded, knowing not to say a word against that. “I want you to make sure that Charlotte doesn't try doing something stupid. tonight. The elders are going to be observing everything that we do, and the last thing that I need is for her to end up doing something that would risk us getting caught.”

“Don't worry, I will be sure that she is well grounded.” Ivan said, and I nodded.

Charlotte walked down the stairs, and I couldn't help but shake my head when I saw the bright smile that she had on her lips. Knowing her expression, I knew that she did something devious, and most likely, it was toward Aurora.

“You know, tonight is not the night to play such games, Lotte.” I said, and she smiled, running her hand over my chest as I wrapped my arm around her waist, pulling her to my chest.

“You are my lover, and I merely proved a point.” She said, and I shook my head at her before kissing the crown of her head. I let my lips linger there for a few seconds before pulling away to look her in the eye.

“Ivan will be staying with you tonight, ensuring that your jealousy doesn't get the best of you before the night ends. And when the elders leave, I will be reminding you that I have one oman, and one woman alone settled in my heart.” I said, and she smiled before nodding. She stood on her toes before connecting my lips with hers. I smiled into the kiss before. she pulled away, allowing the two of us to breath.

I looked up to find Aurora walking down the stairs before turning my attention back to Charlotte.

“Go, I will be seeing you soon.” I whispered, and she looked back at Aurora before pulling me closer again. She pecked my lips one more time, biting my bottom lip as she did, before she pulled away. I shook my head at her as a small smile played on my lips before I nodded at Ivan to take her with him.

Aurora’s eyes were fixed on the ground, and I could hear her heart racing as she walked toward me as both Ivan and Charlotte left the house, closing the door.

She didn’t bother looking up at me, and I couldn’t help but find myself rolling my eyes as the scent of our guests filled my nostrils. I cleared my throat, catching her attention before extending my hand toward her just as their car entered our Estate, knowing that they would be here in a minute or so.

“Put on a smile on that face of yours. You know, that is, unless you want to find yourself losing it for good.” I said, giving her my warning. The last thing that I wanted tonight was for her to make a mess of everything that we discussed. It was bad enough that I was going to have to spend the evening with her, I wasn’t going to have things getting screwed up because of her.

She smiled and the two of us walked toward the door just as one of the maids opened it, revealing her mother, father, my parents, and the elders Jordan and Sirius. I didn’t need to wait for them to knock on the door before opening it. As long as I knew that they were here, I was going to open the door for them, and that was something that they expected, especially, since to them, we were not supposed to have anything that we would be ‘hiding.

I smiled and extended my hand toward the Lord Alpha, knowing that he was the highest in ranks here. He smiled at me, and I shook his hand. before turning to Jordan. Aurora stayed quiet as she kept her smile on her face.

“Lord Alpha Sirius, Elder Alpha Jordan,” I said, greeting them, and they both smiled. “I trust that you are well after your long trip?”

“We are well, how are the two of you? I trust that things are going well?” Lord Alpha Sirius asked, smiling at the two of us. His eyes met Aurora’s for a second, and I couldn’t help but frown before tightening my grip around her shoulder, making her flinch slightly when I noticed that instead of lowering her gaze, she kept her eyes on the man’s.

Aurora was quick to look down at her feet, avoiding his eyes as she feared my reaction, and I stayed quiet before forcing my attention on the Alpha as I kept my smile on my face. Her heart raced, and I could feel her body heating up.

“The two of us are well, we have been spending more time at home. enjoying one another,” I said, looking at Aurora to find her cheeks red as she blushed. She looked up at me and I kissed her forehead, forcing myself not to frown as I felt how hot it was. Her heart raced, and she smiled at me before putting her hand on my chest.

“Mother, father, I do hope that you are well,” Aurora asked when I pulled away and nodded at her, allowing her to speak. Lord Alpha Sirius kept his eyes on hers, studying her expression, and she kept her eyes on her parents’. Her chest rose and fell as she took deep and slow breaths before I let her go and greet her family.

“Your mate seems to be unwell.” Elder Jordan said, and I smiled, shaking my head at them. It was the one thing that I knew announcing would do me more good than bad. I knew that it would be something that they would all want to hear, and not only that, but it would be making us grow closer when it came to the packs uniting and us following the ‘order of the elders’ would only make our packs grow higher in ranks. It was something that we all wanted.

“She is fine, her body is just a little exhausted.” I said, watching as she turned to face me. I nodded at her to come before cupping her cheek to kiss her forehead. I put my hand on her stomach, and she placed hers on top of mine, her hand shaking as she was clearly surprised by my action.

It wasn’t one that I would have normally done, but I knew that I had to fake being the happiest man alive at the fact that I was going to be a father with the woman who was chosen for me. It wasn’t like the elders believed that the two of us had anything of a romantic relationship, but as long as the two of us lived together, they believed that intimacy and tending to one another's heats was one of our duties toward each other.

"Dimitri..."

"Aurora is carrying my child," I said, keeping my eyes on hers. "It seems to me that our family will be growing closer as time passes..."

Alpha Dimitri By LS Barbosa Chapter 17

Aurora:

I walked toward the kitchen to check on how things were going as I put my hand on my stomach, running my hand over it as I soothed myself for a few seconds, getting lost in my thoughts as I did.

I didn't understand why he chose to go ahead and announce to them that I was pregnant when he knew that they just arrived, and the fact that I was yet to even tell my own parents was something that pained me. The last thing that I wanted was to hide something like this, but I knew that waiting until I went a bit further in my pregnancy was going to be better. Plus, I wanted to be the one to announce it when I was ready, at least, to my parents.

But then again, thinking about it. I knew that they didn't see me as their child, and that was a reminder that I was forced to keep in mind now that I was Dimitri's 'mate, in their eyes.

"Is it true?" Mother's voice stopped me from moving. The way that she had treated me when I told her about Dimitri being with Charlotte played in my head, and I couldn't help but find myself feeling small before I nodded as I took a step back. I didn't want to talk about this in the kitchen in front of the maids. It was bad enough that they saw me being treated the way that I was earlier.

"Yes," I said, and she raised an amused eyebrow. My chest ached as so many feelings that I didn't like or understand hurt me. I knew that my mother wouldn't be caring about them, and that was something that pained me a lot more to think about and consider.

"That means that the two of you are....

"It happened on the night of the mating." I said, stopping her. She held onto her dress, making sure not to trip over it as she looked at me. It was a habit that she had whenever she wore long dresses and heels. "The two of us haven't been spending the night together since."

"I see," she said, and I nodded before looking down at my feet. "Is there anything that you need? As I have to check on the kitchen and how things are going before we start with serving."

"I don't think that I need an appointment to see or speak to my daughter now, do I?" She asked, making my chest ache. She didn't consider me her daughter when I was begging for her help. I didn't understand why she was bothering to do that now.

I swallowed both my pride and the words that I wanted to say before shaking my head. My chest ached, but I knew better than to say a word about it. I smiled and she put her hand on my shoulder, gently squeezing

"You are going to have a long road ahead of you, and it is going to be beautiful." She said before taking a step back. I looked down at my feet, avoiding her eyes, knowing that she was doing what she was for her own benefit. I had to admit that much to myself at least.

I simply smiled in response, knowing to remember my limits as I stood in front of a pack's Luna. "I will leave you to tend to your duties. And I am sure that after what I saw in the reception that whatever you are preparing for us would be extravagant."

I smiled and nodded in thanks before watching as she took a step back. She turned to leave while I turned to enter the kitchen. My heart throbbed as Mariana's eyes met mine and I couldn't help but find myself looking down at my feet, both embarrassed of the fact that the maids have seen me being insulted, and upset that I was putting myself in such a situation to begin with. I could have fought back, somehow, but I was forced being stuck with the fate that I allowed for myself.

"Girls, the pack's lady has entered. Mariana said, looking at the girls. They all stopped what they were doing before turning to face me, and gulped before she turned to face me. She nodded in assurance, and I couldn't help but smile in thanks at her small action. It was one that meant more to me than I could describe to her right now.

"Time for dinner to be served. The elders, Alphas, and Lunas are waiting." I said, and they nodded before Mariana approached me. "Thank you,"

She smiled and nodded. "You need not thank me, Ms. Aurora, and if you think that what happened to you earlier would change the way that we treat you, then I do suggest that you reconsider."

"What is that supposed to mean?" I asked, and she smiled.

"It means that we respect YOU for what and who you are." She said. before nodding at the door. "The walls have ears, but I do believe that you understood how we feel about her."

I gulped, not saying a word before she took a step back. "I will go and tend to my duties, my lady."

My heart raced against my ribcage as they got things ready, and I couldn't help but find myself putting my hand on my stomach, wondering how I was going to be passing the night with an Alpha who hasn't bothered look at me since I entered his house. I didn't even know how he was managing to act as good as he was when I found myself choking under my breath just as I looked at him.

"My lady, would you like to drink something? You seem a little pale." One of the maids asked, extending a glass of water to me. I nodded in thanks and she smiled before handing me the cup of water. I took a sip before staring at my reflection in the glass before I got up as I saw the girls heading toward the door.

As the house's woman, I knew that I was to be sure that the dining table was set the way that I wanted it to be. And for that to happen, I was to check on everything that the girls did when they did them, and that was one of the things that I often saw my mother do as I grew older. It was one of the reasons why we were always famous for hosting such important evenings.

All I had to do was follow in suit, and knowing that everything was being watched and observed, I knew to make sure that everything was perfect. Otherwise, I knew that not only that it would be a night that both my parents would give me a hard time for, but the Alpha was going to make sure that I paid for it. And I didn't want to test my luck with whatever he was going to have in mind if that were to happen.

"I want everything set the way that we discussed earlier today," I said, nodding at Mariana who smiled. "And each side will be having three. concierges to serve the main dishes and fill the cups with drinks. Unless stopped, I want no glass empty, is that clear?"

"And the dessert?" One of the concierges asked, shaking her head in question. And I had to admit, I couldn't help but find myself feeling somewhat thankful for the fact that someone in this house was willingly listening to me. Having been used to everyone ignoring me, I knew to be used to that kind of treatment now. "We do not have drinks to..."

"Coffee or tea depending on preference. I want them to be ready by the time that we are done with meal." I said, stopping the woman who nodded. "And the silverware for washing their hands and the white towel should be ready upon finishing and before starting the meal."

"They are all ready, ma'am."

"Thank you," I said, watching as the table was set before taking a step.

back. I took a deep breath as my hands shook, and ignoring the fear and anxiety that I currently felt, I walked toward the living room before smiling,

My eyes met Dimitri's and he stayed quiet for a few seconds before I turned my attention to our guests who turned to look at me. I was sure to take a deep breath before extending my hand to the door, smiling when I saw that they had their reception meals already dined with.

"The table is ready whenever you are." I said, smiling at them. "Please, do enlighten us with your presence while the food is hot..."

Chapter 18

Dimitri:

"I have to admit, she did not fail to amaze me." Lord Alpha Sirius said, looking at Aurora who blushed. "She indeed is your daughter,"

"I am not surprised." I said, smiling at Aurora who looked at me. "She does have her taste in food, and I knew to only expect the best from her." Aurora looked down at her plate before nodding in response as she tucked her hair behind her ear. She blushed, and it took everything in me not to roll my eyes at how easy it was for her to be fooled by words, and the funniest part about it was that she knew very well that she meant nothing to me.

"I am glad to hear that you are enjoying your meals." She said, not looking up from her plate.

"We are enjoying it very much, Aurora." Elder Alpha Jordan said, and Aurora smiled.

"You don't seem to be the type to talk a lot, are you?" Lord Alpha Sirius to talk a lot, are you?" Lord Alpha Sirius asked, shaking his head at her. Our parents looked at me for a second before looking back at her, and she looked up at the Alpha and shook her head.

"I do, when spoken to, Lord Alpha." She said, and he nodded in understanding.

"Well, if your mate would not mind, I would be honored to speak to you after dinner." He said, making both her parents frown. Her eyes widened in surprise before she looked down at the table again. I looked at her for a second, waiting for what she was going to say before she nodded. "It would be an honor, but I do believe that it would be right of me to ask permission from my mate." She said, looking at me. It was customary that a Luna asked her mate when something like this occurred, but I had to admit, I couldn't help but find myself worrying about how the night. was going to end if I did allow her to go and speak to the Lord Alpha, and the thing was, even not allowing her to do so was going to end up creating a conflict and a series of questions and mumbles and that wasn't something that I wanted to find myself dealing with.

I took a deep breath before smiling and nodding as I looked at the Lord Alpha. His eyes were fixed on me, clearly waiting for my response, and I knew better than to disobey the elders and what they wanted. It was one thing to risk something, but it was a completely different thing to try and go against what the elders wanted.

“You know for fact that I wouldn’t tell you no about something that an elder would want,” I said, looking at Aurora. She looked at me, her eyes filled with worry as she understood the silent message that I was giving her. I didn’t need to say a word, but I knew that she was going to understand that I wasn’t going to allow any mistakes. One wrong word and not only was I going to end her before she managed to do so to me and my pack, but I was going to be sure that everyone saw it.

“Well, how about the two of us meet outside for an evening stroll. I m sure that the weather would be lovely and that we would be enjoying the evening breeze, what do you think?”

車

“Why would he want to speak to her?” My father asked, shaking his head. in question. I took a deep breath and clenched my first before unclenching it.

“If I knew, father, do you believe that I was going to be as anxious?” I asked, turning to face him. He glared at me, clearly annoyed with my response but he knew better than to think of questioning me right now. It was bad enough that I was having to deal with this, now the last thing that I needed was another series of conflicts to be dealing with when it came to a woman like Aurora, and yet, here I was, dealing with bullshit of an omega that I did not even want to be with. “Why was she chosen to be my ‘mate’ again?”

“Dimitri, we have already gone through this.” My mother said, glaring at me. I shook my head at her.

“And I never understood why. Neither one of you chose to give me at reason to why I was chosen to a weakling, orphan omega. Now, if she was an orphan Alpha, I would have understood. If she was a rogue Alpha, I would have taken it. But no, I got an omega that was thrown out for probably being a bastard, and yet, no one is bothering to explain the reason behind it.” I said, glaring at both my parents who shook their heads at me.

“It is bad enough that you are having Charlotte within the pack grounds, and God knows whether or not she has been spending her nights with you...”

“You wouldn’t expect me to be sharing a bed with an omega, would you?” I asked, glaring at my parents. Both of them shook their heads as I turned.

to look out the window.

“It explains why you are worried about what she would be telling the Alpha Lord.” Mom said, and I turned to look at her, raising an eyebrow. “How are you even sure that the child is yours? As far as I understood and heard, the girl didn’t bleed when you first touched her. She might have been carrying the child all along.”

“It could be a possibility, but I doubt that she would have the guts to do so. And if that does happen, then even better.” I said, and mom frowned. in confusion.

“What are you planning, Dimitri?” Dad asked, shaking his head in question.

“So far, nothing. But I am now very interested in what you just suggested, mother.” I said, smirking as I kept my eyes on the window. “It would, at least explain to me why she is choosing to stay quiet about Charlotte. The omega could be hiding her very own secret when she is pretending to be this sweet, innocent little girl...”

Alpha Dimitri By LS Barbosa Chapter 19

Chapter 19

Aurora:

“You seem to be unhappy.” Lord Alpha Sirius said, looking at me. I frowned in confusion at his statement before wrapping my arm around myself. The man looked at me, studying my expression as the two of us. walked around the empty garden, and I shook my head in question.

“I am curious about why you would think of that?” I said, choosing to be honest. I knew that it was unwise to question an elder, but I knew better than to lie without knowing what was in stake. I also knew that Dimitri was going to be waiting or listening to everything that I said, and I didn’t even need to mention my mother who would be more than a little. concerned about what I was going to be saying to the Alpha.

"I am impressed by your smart response. You did learn a lot from your mother." He said, and I looked down at my feet, avoiding his eyes at the word mother. No mother would be treating her daughter the way that mine was treating me, and if anything, I knew that the suffering that I was living could have been stopped if she simply stood by my side rather than forced me to submit. "You are carrying your first child, and as a new mother, normally, a light glow would be in your eyes. The girl that I met when you were first introduced to the Alpha seems to have escaped you," "I am no longer a girl, Lord Alpha. As for the light, it is my first month here and everything just seemed to happen too fast for me to process. You know, I went from being the spoiled little girl to being a responsible mate that has to tend to her home." I knew that my lie was one that was wrong, and I knew that the man might have wanted to help me out. But right now, I knew that things would be better if I said them the way that I did. "I am just having a little hard time coping with everything, and the fact that I am not in my comfort zone alongside my pack and family is something that tears me apart."

"Though you are aware that you are not part of the pack by blood." He said, making me choke on my own blood. I knew that the elders knew. that I wasn't part of my parents' pack, but I didn't expect to find myself being slapped in the face with that fact from the Lord Alpha. "Do not get me wrong, child, but it was necessary to wed you the Alpha to ensure that the pack does not perish when your parents pass away. And with no true. heir, we all know that the other wolves would be fighting to rule. This way, Dimitri would be the Alpha, and the child that you are carrying would be having the Alpha blood. It was the best option that we found."

I looked down at my feet as a number of questions played in my head. I knew that he was right with what he was saying. I was nothing but an orphan but I knew the pack more than anyone would, I grew up in it, and I was raised by the Alpha and Luna. Why would wouldn't I be fit to be ant Alpha simply because I didn't carry their blood?

"I understand, Lord Alpha." I said, not bothering to look at him. It wouldn't be making sense for me to do so, and that was something that I knew. I was just reminded, by the Lord Alpha, that I was of the lowest rank, and even worse, the one that was thrown out. It was a fate that I wouldn't wish for my enemy, and yet, here I was, living through such moments. "It is still a lot to take in sometimes, and that is why I am trying to cope with everything that I am doing. My apologies if I delivered the wrong message.”

“It was not about delivering a message, but it is a genuine question of whether or not you are happy. If not then we can interfere from a starting point to fix the issue. You know, leaving them to deepen the way that some might do would only result in consequences that no one would like dealing with.” He said, looking at me and I nodded, knowing that he was doing what he believed was best. It pained me to see that this was how he thought that it would be best to deal with the situation, but being an elder, I couldn’t expect any less anyway. The point of this mating was not a loving bond. It was one that ensured a certain stability, and that was something that even I needed to put in my mind when thinking of my relationship with the Alpha.

“Please do not be concerned or worried. I am happy and my mating with the Alpha is stable. I am sure to manage and maintain the relationship between us.” I said, and he nodded in understanding. He kept his eyes on me, as if questioning whether or not I was being honest, but at this point, I couldn’t change anything.

Alpha Dimitri was going to kill me if I tried to mess anything him,

and I did not want to think of how my parents would be reacting if I chose to defy them by going to the Lord Alpha with my problem.

I was stuck between stone and fire with the one option of digging on the concrete floor. It either broke or broke me. But I had no other option than to submit to the fate that they threw on me. And for my child, I was going to be sure to be the woman that they all want me to be. The last thing that I wanted to risk was losing my child, and that was something that I was sure of.

“I do hope that you are telling the truth, Aurora.” Lord Alpha Sirius said, breaking my train of thoughts. “Because if you are not, the two of us know very well that I will not be able to help you. And it would be a shame to lose such beautiful potential because you are choosing to hide something that we can solve in early stages.”

“You needn’t worry, Lord Alpha.” I said, smiling at him. My next words tearing me apart more than I could think they ever could have as I looked toward the house for a second, wondering what my fate would have been if I had ONE person defending me. “I am very happy with my mating. with Alpha Dimitri...”

Alpha Dimitri By LS Barbosa Chapter 20

Chapter 20

Dimitri:

I watched as Aurora and the Lord Alpha entered the house from their stroll in the garden. And the fact that he chose to walk with her was something that I couldn't help but try to wrap my head around; however, no matter how hard I tried to think of ONE reason that would have him do so, I couldn't find the right answer.

The Lord Alpha's eyes met mine for a second before I looked at Aurora who stood beside him. Her eyes met mine but she was quick to look back down at her feet, and I had to fight back shaking my head in question at Aurora as a thousand questions played in my head.

Elder Jordan was with Aurora's mother by the time that the Lord Alpha and the omega were outside, walking around, and that was how I got my privacy with my parents considering the fact that I haven't seen them in a month.

Aurora walked toward me, and I wrapped an arm around her. The two of us shared a glance, and I was quick to notice that she looked down at her feet, avoiding my eyes for a second before the Lord Alpha cleared his throat.

“It was nice speaking to your mate, Alpha Dimitri. She does have her way with her words, a lot like her mother, as I told her already.” He said, looking at Aurora who smiled. Her smile was one that reached her eyes, to my surprise, but I knew that it was how she was trained to act and behave. Her mother was who she was for a reason, and the number of things and events that they often held and had people over ensured that she knew how to behave.

It was one of the main reasons why I knew not to trust her. For someone who was as fake as she was couldn't be trusted, and that was something that I knew very well.

"I am flattered by your compliment, Lord Alpha." She said, looking down. at her feet, and the Lord Alpha smiled.

"I had my doubts about how your mating bond was going, but it seems to me, after speaking to your Luna, that the two of you are happy." He said, and I looked at Aurora for a second before turning my attention to the man. To say that I was surprised would not be a lie, one was the fact that he actually asked, and the second that she chose to tell him that she was happy rather than the truth. It was something that I wouldn't have expected from her, but it seems to me that I was learning more and more from this woman by the day. And that was something that I wasn't sure. how I felt about. One part of me knew not to trust her, and the second had its doubts about what her intentions truly were.

"I am not sure what made you doubt the two of us, but I am glad that things have been cleared by my Luna." I said, looking down at Aurora who tensed. She did not say a word, nor did she even look at me, but I knew that if the Lord Alpha said something like this, then she must have. said something that convinced him that the two of us were happy together. My main question was why would she do that? What was she hiding with the bullshit that she just threw in?

The question of whether or not the child was mine played in my head, and I couldn't help but wonder whether this was some kind of game to hide the fact that the baby wasn't mine. It was a possibility that I kept in mind, but I knew that IF it was true, then Aurora would have been. digging her own grave with her own hands.

"You know that it is my duty as Lord Alpha to be checking on such cases, especially since we were the ones that chose to mate the two of you. Had she been your significant other, this was not something that I would have been concerned of, but I am well aware that you two are tending to your duties as you fulfill this mating bond, and it is my duty to take care of it." He said, looking at the two of us. "But I believe that we should call it an evening, do you not agree? Our Alpha and Luna are still on their first stage of mating, and I think that they would want to spend a little time. together after a long day, do you not agree, Jordan?"

Elder Jordan looked at the two of us for a second before she nodded as she turned to look at my parents and Aurora's. Aurora walked toward her mother who cupped her cheeks. The two of them shared a silent message as the woman looked her daughter in the eye, and I couldn't help but find myself wondering what it was.

My own parents looked at me, and though I could tell that my mother was now concerned with the new news that she heard about Charlotte, I knew that she couldn't say a word about it.

"Do take care of yourselves, and we will be repeating such gatherings more often. You know, sometimes it is best to be gathering around considering that the mating bond is one that would bring more than one pack together." Elder Jordan said, and both Aurora and I smiled.

"You are all always more than welcome." I said, looking at the elder who smiled. Her eyes studied Aurora's expression for a second, and I couldn't help but look down at the woman, watching as she stared into space. Her heartbeat was calm, and I could hear her soft breathing, but I could tell that it was because she was trying her best to think of something different than what were in. I had to admit, even I wanted to be anywhere but here, but I knew better than to hold onto false hopes.

"We will be seeing you again soon." Aurora's mother said, looking at the two of us. I smiled and nodded at the woman, watching as she took a step back alongside her mate before I closed the door. The two of us were quiet as we waited for the cars to leave the Estate, and I watched as Aurora turned to walk to the bedroom.

Her hands shook as she clenched and unclenched them for a second, and I waited until I was sure that no one could hear us before following her toward her bedroom. I knew that Charlotte would be coming in a few minutes, but I did not intend on letting what happened tonight slide. If anything, I knew better than to trust anyone, especially not someone like her, that just entered my pack.

"Care to tell me what kind of fucked up game you are playing. Aurora?" I asked, and she frowned in confusion as she saw me entering her room. "And don't you fucking tell me that you went ahead and told the Lord Alpha that you were happy with me for no fucking reason..."
