

A Divorce After My Rebirth Chapter 131 -140

A Divorce After My Rebirth Chapter 131-The Unexpected Uncle In an unusual turn of events, the two individuals who had always been at odds whenever they met surprisingly found themselves in a pleasant conversation this time.

After a while, Wanda approached and respectfully asked Rebecca, "Madam, the food is ready. Shall we start the meal?" Rebecca nodded. In a rare good mood, she turned to Benjamin and said, "Uncle, why don't you stay for the meal?" "No need," Benjamin replied.

"Please, do stay," Elizabeth insisted as she descended the stairs, having overheard the conversation between them just moments ago.

That was how things were in big families. If the disputes between them didn't reach an irreparable point, there was always still hope for the members to bond.

As she passed by Rebecca, she gave her an approving look. Elizabeth had always been satisfied with her daughter-in-law.

The Johnson family had been turbulent recently, and things had been too chaotic! Now that things had calmed down, there was a natural desire for a family gathering.

"It's been a while since we gathered. Please stay," Rebecca urged.

"Alright," he agreed.

Elizabeth normally wouldn't have the patience for such matters, so delegating this task to Rebecca was only natural, Benjamin sat beside Elizabeth, and the latter sighed.

"Having such an unruly younger generation at home is truly a headache." It's not the case anymore," Benjamin responded.

Elizabeth nodded. "Yes, it's not the case anymore, and thankfully it's not! Ced is still young. He can find someone better." On this point, Rebecca wholeheartedly agreed.

from the moment Natalie entered the Johnson family. Rebecca had been constant. Than, she would find another proper match with a Three years passed, and she finally succeeded.

If Natalie hadn't caused so much trouble during this time, Rebecca would have simply ignored her and arranged another engagement for Cedric.

The more Rebecca thought about it, the more discontent she felt towards Natalie. Fortunately, Natalie would soon be unable to remain in Verde City. Once those collaborations halted, there would be no way for her to survive here.

Rebecca had ways to make her stay in Verde City unbearable.

“Normally, we wouldn’t bother with someone younger like her, but Natalie is just too much to handle!” Rebecca expressed her frustration. “Cedric has treated her so well over the years, yet she’s so heartless!” When Natalie’s faults were mentioned, Elizabeth’s hatred toward her grew.

Undoubtedly, in the eyes of the older generation, Natalie was a troublesome woman.

Benjamin raised his cup and took a sip of water. “It’s surprising that she has the ability to do what she did.” However, the more capable she was, the less tolerant they became.

When it came to Natalie’s abilities, Elizabeth felt even more uneasy.

In reality, considering her abilities, keeping Natalie in the family would benefit them.

However, Natalie’s delicate appearance was infuriating to behold during her time with the Johnson family.

Now, she seemed like a completely different person outside the gates of the Johnson family!

“Enough, let’s not talk about her,” Elizabeth clearly didn’t want to talk about Natalie.

In the current context, Natalie’s name within the Johnson family was almost like a taboo.

Rebecca wanted to interject, but she was interrupted by her phone ringing. She took it out and noted the number. Then, she glanced at Elizabeth and Benjamin before stepping outside to answer.

Hello!

Madam, it seems our plan might be falling apart, a solemn voice came from the other end of the line, the situation was not as optimistic as they had hoped, “What do you mean?” The brows that had just relaxed now furrowed again, and even a hint of gloominess appeared.

The voice from the other end continued, “The companies that had promised not to collaborate with Auro Studio again have unexpectedly resumed their partnership.” “What?!” Rebecca’s tone escalated as she processed the information.

Those companies had resumed collaboration?!

What was happening?

“Now those companies won’t answer my calls. It seems Master Cedric may have to intervene personally,” the caller sensed the change in Rebecca’s tone and became uneasy.

Rebecca’s face turned ashen at that moment.

Those companies were not answering her assistant’s calls?!

This time, rather than going through Cedric, Rebecca used her own and Benjamin’s name within the Johnson family to thwart the activities of those restless companies.

Natalie, it turned out, had some real capabilities, and Rebecca reluctantly had to admit it at this moment.

Natalie had successfully secured projects with Apex Global and Premier Garden, boosting her reputation behind the scenes.

Many companies were eager to collaborate with her, and if they didn’t exert some pressure on their end, who knows how busy Natalie would be?

But now, Rebecca received a call informing her that those who had promised to terminate their collaboration with Natalie had once again sent their projects to Auro Studio.

“What on earth is happening?” Rebecca’s voice trembled slightly.

Her face turned an ashen color, her emotions fluctuating. The sinister undertone in her eyes couldn’t be concealed any longer.

Had the underestimated Natalie?

person on the other line explained, “Ms. Walker’s background is probably not as simple as we thought.

kind of background could she possibly have? Rebecca became irritated when Natalie’s Found was mentioned.

family for three years, Rebecca bellaved she know Neraka indi And now, speaking of backgrounds..

Rebecca scoffed, “She’s just dependent on men. What kind of background is that?” However, the support Natalie received from those men was something Rebecca hadn’t anticipated.

“But judging by the relationship between the chairman of Regal Horizons International and her, it doesn’t seem to be as simple as her being a kept woman,” Rebecca’s assistant said.

They had seen many cases of kept women and mistresses before.

In essence, those women were nothing more than playthings for men. In such arrangements, men wouldn’t take things seriously.

But in Natalie’s case, it seemed that Stephen had been particularly protective of her, especially since returning from abroad.

Now, all those collaborations had been reclaimed under Stephen’s name.

“Madam, please allow me to say... I feel the relationship between the chairman of Regal Horizons and Ms.

Walker might not be that simple.” “What other relationship could they have?” Rebecca couldn’t figure it out.

Natalie and Stephen—what other relationship could there be?

For two strangers to get so close, that was the only relationship they could have, right?

Could they possibly be in a romantic relationship with such a significant age difference?

Based on the investigation into the chairman of Regal Horizons, he was a family man and hadn’t divorced.

Therefore, a romantic relationship with Natalie seemed unlikely. The only plausible relationship was that Natalie was his mistress!

But the things Natalie received in this support arrangement seemed excessive..

...owning a company, living in Elegance Bay, and the collection of new high-end cars—these were perks that most women couldn’t attain even if they climbed the social ladder. “What’s really going on!” In conversation, Rebecca began to doubt the innuendo.

A Divorce After My Rebirth Chapter 132-Coveted Identity The collaborations that Rebecca had suppressed all returned to Auro Studio.

...days... Natalie had been in Sylvan Gems for the past few days, with Karina taking full responsibility for the studio’s operations. She had recruited three batches of designers consecutively!

As for Apex Global, the detailed interior design was delegated to the design team after the blueprints were done. Natalie only needed to perform the final review.

In just a few months, the studio had developed in an unexpected direction. It attracted significant attention to Natalie's image as a career woman.

Rebecca was completely unaware of Natalie's current involvement with Sylvan Gems, and was busy plotting how to drive her away.

In a towering skyscraper, Cedric stood by the large window. Yuvan stood beside him, reporting on work matters.

Then, he added, "Also, Madam Rebecca has been quite active lately." "What has she done?" "She's been in close contact with Mr. Benjamin. It seems they want to force Ms. Walker out of Verde City," Yuvan replied.

Ms. Walker?

Yuvan's way of addressing Natalie had changed from "Madam" to "Ms. Walker." Moreover, Yuvan's report on Rebecca's actions had a formal tone.

Cedric watched as the vehicles passed below and felt a twinge. "Force her out of Verde City?" "Ms. Walker's recent actions led the company to lose two important projects consecutively. Madam Rebecca is unlikely to tolerate her." That was the truth!

Cedric knew Rebecca's personality all too well.

ick in the Clohson family, the two didn't get along. After the divorce and chees, Rebecce p Initially, Yuvan thought Cedric wouldn't be bothered by it, given his indifferent attitude during this period.

However, after hearing the report, Cedric turned around. He casually grabbed the car keys from the desk.

Yuvan was puzzled and moved to follow. "Sir, where are you going?" "Don't follow me," Cedric replied coldly.

Yuvan's eyes darkened for a moment.

It seemed... Cedric couldn't suppress his emotions when it came to Natalie?

No, there was no need to think too much into this!

To Yuvan, someone like Natalie was completely undesirable. A woman who didn't stay at home properly and caused so much trouble was nothing but a nuisance!

After leaving the company, Cedric drove straight to the Johnson Manor. The dinner table had already been cleared, Benjamin had left.

When he returned, Rebecca and Elizabeth were in deep discussion. Rebecca's expression seemed off, and Elizabeth didn't look pleased.

"So, are we powerless against her now?" Elizabeth asked with a sharp gaze.

That was the truth!

"Let's not do anything rash. We have to first investigate where she comes from!" Rebecca said.

Rebecca increasingly felt that something was amiss.

Considering his high-profile status, Stephen's repeated protection of Natalie should have attracted significant attention.

Even if Simeria's journalists dared not report it, what about international news? Yet, there was no news of the slightest marital discord.

She found it hard to believe that Heather had no objections to her husband protecting a young girl so pondered, she felt that something was off about this situation.

and and said, "Involving Benjamin in this matter was the right thing to do. Even if it able to maintain a good image with him Over the years, the most significant disputes had been with Benjamin and his family. If Benjamin wasn't causing trouble, there wouldn't be any issues.

Now, Benjamin was involved. Even if things didn't work out, it would be fine. With how concerned he was about preserving his reputation, he would likely find a way to suppress the matter rather than trouble them.

"Yes, take advantage of this time to investigate the relationship between Natalie and Stephen," Elizabeth advised.

"No need to investigate!" Rebecca's words were cut short by Cedric's voice echoing from the doorway.

Both Elizabeth and Rebecca were momentarily stunned, especially when they saw Cedric's displeased expression.

Their hearts skipped a beat. Undoubtedly, every time they criticized Natalie in the past, Cedric wore this expression.

They hadn't expected that even after their divorce, Cedric would still behave in the same manner.

"Ced, I..." Rebecca stood up and walked towards Cedric.

Dressed in high-end custom attire, her entire demeanor exuded a certain stiffness. Her appearance made it impossible to reveal the intended warmth she was trying to portray at this moment.

Cedric tossed the car keys into the entryway key basket.

Then, he walked to the side and sat on the sofa. Crossing his legs, he pulled out a cigarette and lit it before taking two deep drags.

This agitated demeanor never existed when Natalie was around, and it made Elizabeth and Rebeccal exchange a glance. There was an unspoken understanding as they both looked at Cedric, waiting for his explanation.

Midway through his cigarette, Cedric spoke, "Stephen is her uncle." cca and Elizabeth were speechless. They exchanged another glance, a bit bewildered.

The atmosphere suddenly turned cold, and even a pin drop could be heard in the silence.

moment, Rebecca finally reacted and nervously asked, "What do you mean?"

aid Cedric replied.

Exactly what he said?

Stephen was Natalie's uncle?

Cedric looked at his mother and then at Elizabeth. "You heard correctly. Stephen is Natalie's uncle, Natalie's mother's brother." Now, Rebecca and Elizabeth fully understood.

Uncle!

A familial relationship.

Natalie was Stephen's niece?!

"How is that possible?" Rebecca asked, disbelief evident in her tone.

Indeed, how could it be?

Three years!

No, not just three years—Rebecca had known since the beginning of Natalie and Cedric's relationship. At that time, she had started investigating Natalie's background. The results showed that Natalie had no family and no relatives.

Since then, she had opposed their relationship. But her son was too stubborn, and she couldn't stop them. In the end, they got together. They dated for seven years and were married for three.

With Rebecca's excessive attention to Natalie's background, how could she not know that Natalie had an uncle?!

"That's right, Ced. How is this possible?" Elizabeth was also shocked.

They had long heard about Stephen's formidable presence, and their understanding of him had deepened.

during this time while he had been involved with Natalie.

The term "highly successful individual" didn't do justice to Stephen!

Since Natalie had such an uncle, how could neither they nor Cedric have known all these years?

How is this possible? Yeah, that's the question. I don't know! I don't know how this was possible!" Cedric took a fierce drag from his cigarette, inhaling it right down to the butt, indicating his current frustration not to know, how was this possible?!

Rebecca and Elizabeth exchanged a glance, shock evident in their eyes.

It was clear they needed some time to process this news. It had come too suddenly!

A Divorce After My Rebirth Chapter 133-Marriage Alliance Cedric left after dropping such earth-shattering news. Even if he didn't say anything else, Rebecca knew what to do now.

Half an hour later, Rebecca and Elizabeth snapped out of their stupor. When their eyes met, confusion still lingered in their eyes.

"Stephen's niece?" "Yes," Rebecca nodded.

*Stephen Jarvis from Regal Horizons International?" "Yes," Rebecca nodded again.

"S-she..." Elizabeth faltered, unsure of what to say at this moment.

Rebecca was also unsure of what to say now. Natalie was Stephen's niece, a result that no one had anticipated. Though only a niece, he was Natalie's only family in this world.

Judging by Stephen's attitude, it was clear that her existence was extraordinary in his world.

Rebecca turned pale. Her lips trembled as if trying to say something, but at this moment, nothing came out.

Christina entered and sensed that something was amiss. She approached and asked, "Mom, what's wrong?" Tina... "Huh?" Rebecca still didn't know what to say and was silent.

Natalie!

Her identity.

In Verde City, her identity would be considered as an elite status. She was not an orphan with no background or support!

What's wrong? Christina noticed Rebecca's hesitation and asked. Ultimately, Rebecca didn't say anything.

She needed more time to process this information. Now... she didn't know how to feel when Natalie was mentioned.

In the past, she used to feel angry and hateful when Natalie was mentioned.

But now?

"Grandma, what's wrong with Mom?" Seeing Rebecca hesitating to speak and her obvious distress, Christina shifted her gaze to Elizabeth.

Elizabeth also didn't know what to say at this moment.

"Don't ask," she sighed, somewhat helpless.

Clearly, Cedric's sudden revelation had left them all in shock, unable to fully process the situation.

Seeing their expressions, Christina knew something was up.

Rebecca struggled to suppress the turmoil in her heart!

Turning to Christina, Rebecca asked, "How is Isabella doing?" Christina's eyes flickered for a moment but quickly recovered. She casually tousled her curly hair and replied,

“The doctor said they’ll remove the stitches tomorrow.” So, tomorrow would reveal the outcome. They would find out if Isabella could truly see again then.

Rebecca nodded. “Good. That’s good.” Isabella was special to her. Just the thought of the conflicts between Isabella and Natalie gave Rebecca a headache.

At this point, she realized that there was really nothing they could do to Natalie. If Natalie didn’t retaliate, that suited them just fine!

“I go to the hospital with you tomorrow,” Rebecca said, attempting to divert her own attention.

She hoped to temporarily shift her focus away from Natalie. Otherwise, she feared she might lose control.

What kind of person was Stephen?

kind of entity was Regal Horizons International?

adelled that Stephen had a daughter: Over the yeare, many families in Simeria and Vere Rebecca escorted Elizabeth upstairs, leaving Christina alone.

Wanda approached her and said in a tone filled with gentle indulgence, “Miss, you’re back!” “Ah!” Christina was startled by the sudden sound. She turned around, giving Wanda a displeased look However, considering Wanda’s many years of service with Rebecca, Christina quickly suppressed her discontent.

“Wanda, please don’t sneak up behind me,” she said, suppressing her displeasure but still evident in her tone.

Wanda didn’t take offense. She spoke with continued gentleness, “Master Cedric was just here.” “What did he say?” Upon learning that Cedric had returned, Christina probably understood why Rebecca and Elizabeth’s attitudes had changed again.

Could it be because of Natalie?

She could see it!

Even though Cedric had divorced Natalie, he hadn’t truly let go emotionally. It seemed that they still needed to find a way to force Natalie out of Verde City. Handling her then would be much easier.

“He talked about Natalie and Stephen’s relationship!” Wanda had always been on Christina’s side, so she didn’t address Natalie respectfully either.

Rebecca disliked Natalie, and Wanda had followed her lead in making Natalie's life in the Johnson family more difficult. Because of that, Christina's attitude toward Wanda had improved somewhat.

"What relationship?" As soon as Christina heard it was about Natalie and Stephen, she frowned.

What kind of relationship could Natalie possibly have with Stephen?

was nothing more than Natalie being Stephen's kept woman!

She had always looked down on Natalie, and her mood improved considerably when she saw Natalie forced to be with an older man.

listened carefully to what Cedric said when he returned. Clearly, even she hadn't have such an identity.

Now, Wanda recounted everything she had seen and heard to Christina in detail.

The more Christina heard, the more her expression stiffened. "What are you saying?" Turning around, she looked at Wanda in shock, unable to believe what she heard.

Noticing the darkness in Christina's eyes, Wanda added fuel to the fire and said, "You're also surprised, right? She hid it so well these past few years!" "That's not it! Are you sure everything you said is true?" "Master Cedric personally said all these things. How could it be false? But what's so great about being just a niece?" Wanda scoffed.

Christina glared at her sharply.

Wanda's current attitude made Christina see that the older woman was a naive and uncultured peasant.

"You saw how luxurious the car was. What do you think?" Christina retorted angrily.

Then, she stomped up the stairs.

"Miss, I... Seeing Christina's attitude, Wanda became anxious.

However, Christina's response was only the sound of her footsteps.

As Christina passed by Rebecca's room, she instinctively slowed her pace.

Yet, she didn't go in and instead entered her own room.

She splashed her face in the bathroom with cold water, attempting to calm herself. But it was futile. She shed the masks she wore to the outside world, revealing only a cold and fierce demeanor.

Natalie was Stephen's niece?!

Stephen was Natalie's uncle?!

Her identity and background...!

Without thinking, Christina knew what actions Rebecca would probably take next!

Picking up her skincare products, she intended to apply them to her face. But the frustration and agitation side her was about to erupt and med onto the vanity mirror, causing it to crack.

A Divorce After My Rebirth Chapter 134-Issues with the Surgery Natalie was still unaware of what had happened at the Johnson Manor.

She had been in meetings the whole day in the office. When she returned to Elegance Bay, Stephen was already waiting for her at the dining table.

He had told her that he had planned to leave in three days, but then had extended his stay for some unknown reason.

"The dishes tonight look good," Natalie sat down and remarked to Stephen.

Stephen glanced at her and said, "Of course! They're all your favorites." "Thank you, Uncle." "You've settled everything on your end, so I should be heading back tomorrow," he mentioned, He had received the news in the afternoon. Rebecca had revoked all actions against Natalie, indicating that the Johnson family was now aware of their relationship. As long as they knew their limits, he felt reassured.

Natalie raised an eyebrow at him. "Tomorrow?" "Yes." Natalie was silent.

"I stayed because I was worried about you, but now it seems there's nothing to worry about!" he teased.

This girl knew exactly what to use to her advantage and was not shy about it. Otherwise, how could the Johnson family easily revoke those actions?

Looking at Stephen, Natalie said, "Yeah. I think it's about time for you to go home." Although she felt a bit reluctant, Heather was still waiting for Stephen, and she was an extremely fragile woman. In the past few days, he had received countless calls.

Stephen took a bite of vegetables. Then, he glanced at Natalie and asked, "What do you think of Irwin?" Natalie paused, a bit surprised by the sudden mention of Irwin.

a good she replied indifferently.

know much about Irwin's character. They had only collaborated on a project and shared a leve Natalie only cared about the success of her studio and their business quality, personal qualities were irrelevant to her.

Stephen noticed her casual attitude and said. "You need to learn how to judge people, hmm?" "As long as the project is successful, payments are on time, and business quality is good, what else do I need to care about? What more do you expect me to see in people?" Natalie retorted.

Stephen sighed internally. This wasn't working!

"What's wrong? Did I say something wrong? These are all teachings you gave me back in Simeria!" Stephen was speechless.

That was true!

After all, he never cared about what kind of person each business partner was in private; he only cared about the quality of their business.

Typically, the bosses who manage to grow a business to a large scale wouldn't have poor business qualities.

As for their personal lives, whether they were humane or not.

Well, that remained unknown.

"...Ahem!" Stephen cleared and put down his utensils.

He looked at Natalie and said, "You need to understand, now, you're not just looking at business partners but also your life partner," Natalie stiffened, and the utensils made a faint clattering sound as they dropped on the table.

Stephen picked them up and handed them to Natalie.

His gaze remained sharp as he continued, "Even if Cedric has some intentions towards you, you wouldn't want to return to the Johnson family." Putting aside Natalie's thoughts about the situation, Stephen would still have the final say even if she told him she still had feelings for Cedric now.

When Stephen mentioned the Impossibility between her and Cedric, Natalie felt a sudden, piercing pain in heart.

The pain felt as if it came from another lifetime. However, it was just a fleeting moment. The feeling disappeared soon after.

“So, why did you bring up Irwin?” she asked.

“The situation with the Frazier family is somewhat complicated, but he is a responsible man!” Stephen considered for a moment before explaining.

Natalie frowned.

She understood her uncle’s concern—was he worried she wouldn’t find a suitable match?

Taking a deep breath, she said, “Alright, Uncle.” With that, he slid a ticket to a concert in front of her. “Tomorrow night at seven. Be on time!” “But I…” Natalie started, “Irwin likes this kind of concert,” Stephen interrupted.

“But I…!” She didn’t like it!

In truth, those kinds of concerts were just displays of elegance for high–society individuals—something she had no interest in.

Before Natalie could say anything more, Stephen’s expression became serious. She swallowed back her words at his look.

“Alright, I’ll go. Going didn’t mean anything, anyway.”

“That’s a good girl.” Hearing that Natalie agreed to go, Stephen’s stern expression softened slightly.

“But don’t you have any business dealings with the Frazier family?” Natalie asked.

“What? Are you suspecting that I’m arranging a business marriage for you?” It’s hard to say. You can’t control Winona, so you’re focusing on me!” He had seen Stephen arrange several blind dates for Winona back when she was in Simeria, but tended any of them, “Are you liking your uncle’s Hmph!” Natalie snorted.

“It’s for your own good, can’t you see? Or do you want to wait for Cedric?” Stephen continued.

Natalie remained silent.

“A person has to live their life! After dealing with Isabella, who knows what other issues might arise? Are you sure you can handle it all?” “I don’t intend to wait for him!” Natalie responded.

However, Stephen continued as if he hadn't heard her, "Do you think I'd transfer the cooperation with the Frazier family to the Johnson family? Do you think I need to use you for a marriage alliance to secure a cooperation with them? Am I that helpless?" Natalie remained silent.

When the word 'helpless' came out of Stephen's mouth, Natalie felt her heart tighten.

She retorted, "You've never been helpless, Uncle!" That was the truth.

Stephen glared at her fiercely.

Natalie could tell he was angry. She then playfully hugged his strong arm and said, "I know you're doing this for my own good. I was just kidding!" "You can even joke about this?" "No, I was confused!" Lately, she had indeed been confused by Isabella and her scheming.

Stephen poked her head in frustration. Natalie retreated and exclaimed, "Ouch! That hurts!" "At least you still remember what pain feels like!" "Of course I do." Natalie looked at Stephen with a pitiful expression, and his stern demeanor softened a bit.

Get along well with Irwin, okay?" Honestly?

Natalie thought Irwin's serious expression could probably impregnate a woman even without being in bed with her!

His seriousness was such that she began to doubt whether Irwin had a sense of humor at all.

Although there were tender moments, she could still clearly feel the distance between them when it happened.

"It's not that I can't control Winona. That cousin of yours seems to be heading in the weirdest direction!" Stephen remarked with a sigh.

"What do you mean?" Natalie looked at Stephen in confusion.

Stephen sighed again, choosing not to elaborate. Seeing Stephen's reluctance to explain, Natalie didn't press further.

"With our relationship becoming public, it should clear up all the unnecessary drama on your end. But, Nat..." and finish "I know what you're worried about," Natalie interrupted Stephen before he could finish his sentence.

"You do?" Stephen raised an eyebrow.

“Yes, don’t worry. I’m well aware of it!” With their relationship revealed, it meant that her connection with Regal Horizons International would attract attention.

Jealous people were inevitable, but Natalie was more concerned about those with malicious intentions.

Many had wanted to secure a connection with Regal Horizons International over the years. However, because Stephen only had one daughter, none had succeeded.

A Divorce After My Rebirth Chapter 135-Failed Surgery So now that Stephen’s niece had come out, it was inevitable that those with ulterior motives would seek alternatives.

Hence, Natalie needed to be cautious. Seeing how smart she was, Stephen felt somewhat reassured.

Then, he pushed several other tickets to Natalie. “There are two art exhibitions this month. Go and see them with Irv.” “That many?” “Whether someone is suitable or not not only depends on shared interests and values but also on the ability to accommodate each other.” Irwin liked concerts, while Natalie liked art exhibitions.

Understanding Stephen’s intention, Natalie felt deeply moved. Taking a deep breath, she forcefully suppressed the pain in her chest.

“Uncle.” “You feel like crying?” “No, I’m not going to cry!” “That’s good!” Stephen couldn’t stand seeing women cry, as he had caused a few women to cry in his younger days.

Natalie was truly touched. The warmth and kindness that Stephen gave her was always present.

That night, Natalie slept well as usual.

Meanwhile, Cedric had been losing sleep for several nights. Natalie’s situation weighed heavily on his heart like a stone.

Finally, at daybreak, Rebecca called.

the matter? Cedric didn’t have a good attitude toward his mother now due to the situation with Rebecca felt a dull pain in her heart.

She took a deep breath, suppressing the discomfort in her chest.

In the past, she might have retorted harshly to Cedric’s attitude because of Natalie. However, now that they suddenly knew Natalie’s identity, they probably needed to carefully consider their position.

“Isabella is having her stitches removed today. I’m heading to the hospital now. Will you also be coming?” “Yeah.” If Rebecca hadn’t called, Cedric would have forgotten that Isabella had undergone an operation and that Isaac had yet to return.

After leaving the hospital that day, Cedric had been calling Isaac’s phone repeatedly, but there was no answer on the other end.

After Yuvan looked into it, they found out that Isaac had left Verde City and gone abroad immediately after leaving the hospital.

It was clear that something important had come up, or he wouldn’t have left without a word.

Rebecca and Christina arrived at the hospital together. They bumped into Cedric in the hospital lobby.

“Ced,” Christina called out.

She unconsciously approached him, wanting to cling to his arm as she usually did.

However, Cedric, who used to be easygoing, subconsciously avoided her.

“Ced?” Christina sensed Cedric’s distance and sounded a bit flustered.

But Cedric ignored her and walked straight to Rebecca. Rebecca understood what was going on. Cedric was upset with Christina because of Natalie!

“Don’t blame Tina for what happened before,” Rebecca whispered, wrapping her arm around Cedric’s.

Rebecca had not allowed anyone to get close to Natalie while she had been in the Johnson family, and Rebecca had obviously influenced Christina.

Cedric didn’t respond to Rebecca’s words.

Cedric didn’t want to express his feelings on this matter. Christina followed behind, feeling +15 INUS In the past, she always had a great relationship with Cedric. Because of that, she often embarrassed Natalie, and Cedric hadn’t noticed at all.

In addition, Natalie had never been good at words and never said anything to Cedric. This caused Rebecca and the others to be unrestrained in their actions.

Faced with the consequences now, they felt uneasy.

Rebecca saw that Cedric didn’t respond and didn’t push him. She continued, “I’ve arranged a property and a maid for Isabella. She can move in when she’s discharged.”

Without much thought, it was clear that Rebecca's arrangement had a purpose. Even though Isabella's brother was Cedric's benefactor, there were limits to gratitude.

Cedric appreciated the arrangement.

"Your arrangements are fine," Cedric nodded.

This way, when Isabella was discharged, everything would be settled!

Rebecca breathed a sigh of relief when she saw that Cedric didn't object.

All if them could tell that Cedric still had feelings for Natalie! But when Natalie was still around, Cedric's attention was divided between her and Isabella.

So, if Cedric had any special arrangements for Isabella, it would be challenging for Rebecca.

In Isabella's hospital room, the doctor and nurse were prepared.

When they saw Cedric, Dr. Landry respectfully approached and said, "Mr. Johnson, Ms. Morgan insisted on waiting for you before removing the stitches." "She said she wanted you to be the person she first sees when she opens her eyes!" Cedric didn't react much to this statement. However, Christina, who was following behind him, couldn't hide her displeasure at that moment.

Isabella! How dare she?!

Las begin Cedric's tone was indifferent.

cattitude, D. Landry didn't say much and hoded. "Ok He turned around and started to remove Isabella's stitches.

Rebecca glanced at Cedric and breathed a sigh of relief. The bandages were removed slowly, and the lights in the room were dimmed to avoid hurting Isabella's eyes after the surgery.

As it was a surgery, it was impossible to say the process looked beautiful.

"Okay, open your eyes slowly," Dr. Landry instructed.

Isabella's heart was pounding. Since Cedric arrived, she hadn't said a word. Obviously, she was nervous. about the unveiling of her eyes.

"Ced." "Yeah." "Come in front of me," Isabella said softly.

She knew.

She knew that Christina was there too.

Thinking about Christina's actions during this time, Isabella wanted to teach Christina a lesson. Even though Natalie was the one who ultimately caused her harm, Isabella still wanted Christina to know that she was not someone Christina could manipulate.

Cedric approached Isabella and softly said, "Open your eyes, hmm?" "Okay." Isabella nodded.

The smile on her lips was so beautiful.

Isabella's innocence made people feel pity for her. Even Rebecca, who had certain intentions before, couldn't resist when she saw Isabella at this moment.

Slowly, Isabella lifted her eyelids, revealing her eyes.

"It's a bit painful." Relax a bit," Dr. Landry reminded from the side.

After all, spending too much time in the dark and losing sensation around the eyes for an extended period would naturally require time to adjust.

Isabella didn't think much and gradually opened her eyes. But then..

"How is it?" Cedric looked at Isabella's somewhat lifeless eyes, his tone carrying a hint of nervousness.

Isabella blinked, closed her eyes, and then opened them again!

Her expression changed completely.

"Bella?" Cedric's tone tightened. Reaching out, he waved his hand in front of Isabella's eyes.

Rebecca's heart was in her throat, and her voice trembled slightly, "Bella, how is it?"

A Divorce After My Rebirth Chapter 136-The Taste of Disaster Isabella struggled to see what was in front of her.

However, despite Cedric waving his hand in front of her eyes, she couldn't even see a hint of a shadow.

Only boundless darkness enveloped the entire hospital room.

The atmosphere in the room became tense!

"Doctor!" Cedric roared in anger.

His furious outburst made the already tense atmosphere in the room feel as if it were covered in ice.

Dr. Landry had broken out in a cold sweat. He trembled as he approached, “Ms. Morgan, can you see anything?” His voice quivered slightly. In fact, everyone present already understood Isabella’s current situation.

Isabella’s heart was in her throat.

Waving her hand in front of her eyes, Isabella could only see darkness—nothing but darkness!

At that moment, her world collapsed completely.

“I... How could I....

She couldn’t see anything.

Nothing!

Wasn’t today the day she welcomed the light?

How could this happen?

How could she see nothing at all?!

“Ced! Ced!” Isabella reached out, frantically grabbing in all directions.

However, everywhere her hands reached was empty—nothing at all.

It was as if she were trying to grasp a single straw, but there wasn’t even a straw for her to grab.

Cedric grabbed her hand, his magnetic voice carrying a chill that strangely comforted Isabella.

“I can’t see! I can’t see! I can’t see anything...!” Isabella said in a rush, her voice full of pain.

She was panicked, completely panicked.

Why couldn’t she see anything?!

“Dr. Landry?” Cedric’s gaze pierced through, chilling everyone who looked at him.

Dr. Landry collapsed to the ground, shivering. "That's..." "What happened?!" Didn't he say the surgery was successful?!

Dr. Landry stammered, "T-this..." Dr. Landry didn't know what to say either.

The surgery was clearly a success, but now...!

Veins bulged on Cedric's forehead.

"Ahhh...!" Isabella let out a desperate scream.

She was blind. She was truly and utterly blind.

How could this happen? Wasn't the surgery supposed to be a guaranteed success?!

"Didn't Dr. Phelps perform the surgery?" Why was it Dr. Landry? Isabella couldn't accept this fact at the moment!

However, this reality was thrust upon her, and she couldn't escape it.

The atmosphere in the hospital room became ice-cold. All eyes were on Isabella, so no one noticed the exchanged glances between Christina and one of the nurses.

Christina was standing at the back, and she had a smug look in her eyes, which went unnoticed.

Isabella had lost in this aspect.

Wasn't it pitiful?

was pitiful, indeed.

might feel sympathy, but that wouldn't guarantee Isabella's entry into the Johnson family.

ing Jeabelle murmured in despair, gerdly touchin not see?

"Mr. Johnson, the surgery failed!" At this point, Dr. Landry had to admit it. Cedric's eyes filled with a murderous glint.

Failed!

That word echoed in Isabella's mind.

"What do you mean by that?! D--does it mean I'll never see again?" Her voice trembled.

It was sad, and it pierced the hearts of those who heard it.

Cedric stood there, stiff as a board. Meanwhile, Rebecca realized the situation.

“You poor child,” she said, stepping forward and embracing Isabella.

“Aunt, will I never see again?” What kind of concept was that? Forever—what kind of despairing outcome was that?

Rebecca looked at Cedric, and Cedric looked at Dr. Landry. The pressure Dr. Landry felt at that moment was unimaginable.

In the end, he nodded!

At that moment, the already tense atmosphere in the room turned even colder as the reality of Isabella’s blindness settled in.

“Bella.” At the moment Rebecca saw Dr. Landry nod, she wanted to say something to Isabella. However, her lips moved, and nothing came out.

What meaning was there in a lifetime of seeing nothing?

can’t see, can I? I’ll never see again!” She didn’t hear the doctor’s response. As intelligent as she was, how could she not understand this predicament?

didn’t want to accept it.

reality of it was right before her, and she had no choice but to accept them.

It hurt a lot!

There was a dense pain in her heart. Despair swept over Isabella.

This result caught everyone off guard. It had started with only being concerned about finding a donor for her, and now Isabella was completely blind.

“I can’t see. I’ll never see again!” She wanted to cry, but she couldn’t feel the touch of tears.

The despair emanating from her was heart-wrenching.

To be unable to see for a lifetime, living in a colorless world, unable to even care for herself, relying entirely on her senses?

The thought of those days brought sheer despair.

“Shh, child. Everything will be fine. It will be okay!” Rebecca reassured Isabella.

But deep down, she was quickly preparing for what would come next.

While Isabella was shrouded in despair at the hospital, Natalie was busy. Another morning of meetings had occupied her, and she didn't even have time to see Stephen off.

Stephen had told her not to bother with these empty gestures of sending him off. They didn't need such things.

Just then, her phone vibrated.

Natalie checked the number to find it was Irwin calling. Thinking about their evening plans, she felt a bit uneasy.

No matter how personal Irwin's questions had been before this, Natalie still treated him just as a business partner. But Natalie felt uneasy when her uncle suddenly broke through that barrier last night, hoping for a closer relationship. On this end, she answered the phone with an unnatural tone, “Mr. Frazier.” She tried to make herself sound natural. However, from the tone of her voice, her emotions were evident.

“Jarvis said you'll accompany me to the concert tonight?” “Yeah.” Natalie felt a bit uneasy.

This uncle of hers...!

To make her go out with Irwin, he didn't even leave room for her to refuse.

“Shall I pick you up after work?” “Sure!” Natalie began to be more concise in her words. Because now, she really didn't know what to say.

After all, there are times when certain relationships are better left unspoken. People could be business partners and friends without having to complicate things.

But now, from business partners straight to a potential romantic relationship...!

It was hard to feel natural about it.

“It's almost lunchtime. Want to have lunch together?” Natalie considered, glancing at the time on her computer. It was indeed almost time to take a break.

She wanted to refuse, but the man on the phone said, “Caleb will join us. I'll pick you up.” “Okay” Hearing that Caleb would also be there, Natalie felt a bit more at ease. Having someone else present would make her less uneasy.

Honestly, Stephen had done this so suddenly that she didn't have time to prepare herself mentally!

A Divorce After My Rebirth Chapter 137-Isabella Is Really Blind Natalie maintained her professional image as a career woman. She started caring less about who she dined with, influenced in part by Stephen, As a result, no one dared to write about her recklessly.

In the car, Irwin was driving, and Natalie sat in the passenger seat.

Irwin casually asked, "Did your uncle go back?" "Yeah, he was supposed to leave earlier, but he stayed here for a few more days because of me." Also, because of the Johnson family!

Rebecca and Benjamin had been aggressively trying to drive her out of Verde City before this, and the situation had been hysterical!

With how they acted, Natalie could anticipate the relentless pursuit she would face if she truly left Verde City.

"Well, you do make people worry, Irwin remarked.

Natalie felt a bit embarrassed. "Not really.

"You look the part." Natalie was speechless.

Okay!

She acknowledged that her petite stature did give off an impression of someone who might need extra Care.

She was too short, making it seem like anyone could bully her. Back in the Johnson family, people used to think they could pick on her as if she were still a child!

Fair enough," she admitted her conceding, Irwin couldn't help but find it amusing. How could such a small person dare to with the Johnson family, who resembled a group of fierce tigers?

afraid of being toin apart?

They sat facing each other "Wasn't Caleb supposed to join us?" Natalie asked.

Irwin checked the time on his watch. "When I went to pick you up, Caleb said he had a lunch appointment and couldn't make it." "Oh, I see." Now, Natalie truly felt uneasy.

Having meals alone with Irwin before was partly to annoy Cedric, and partly because she and Irwin had no real connection.

It felt natural then. But things were different now.

“Mr. Jarvis told you, right?” Irwin asked, observing Natalie’s awkward demeanor.

Natalie nodded. “Yes.” “Then, what’s your take on it?” Irwin inquired.

Natalie was silent.

What was this man’s intention now? Was he expressing his feelings? Or was he forcing a resolution?

Neither seemed likely at this moment.

Natalie felt a bit awkward, but she was clever. Instead of directly answering Irwin’s question, she countered, “What about you? What do you think?” Hah, take that!

Irwin raised an eyebrow at her counter. Then, he took a sip of his red wine and commented, “What a clever little fox!” “How do you expect me to respond to a question like that?” At this crucial moment, couldn’t he provide an answer?

Besides, she wasn’t just anyone who would give a decisive result.

Asan sitting across from her had a deep look in his eyes that was hard to read. The casualness he had vanished, replaced by seriousness.

A woman must have a certain level of resilience to have a husband like this, something like being able to endure emotional coldness.

After a long pause, just when Natalie thought Irwin wouldn’t respond, he laughed.

His laughter seemed somewhat baffling.

“What’s so funny?” Natalie didn’t understand.

Was what she said amusing?

“You’re very clever!” Natalie was speechless.

So, she was funny because she was clever?

There was absolutely no logic in this, and Natalie found it a bit challenging to accept his words.

With an elegant bite into a piece of beef, Irwin said, "I know that you've recently parted ways with the Johnson family. You're terrified of relationships now." Natalie stayed silent.

Though she was reluctant to admit the existence of any emotions between her and Cedric, she had to acknowledge that their ten years together couldn't be erased so easily. Pulling out completely was not as simple as it seemed.

"You're right, I am terrified!" She was terrified of relationships. It was more than just fear. She downright dared not touch it.

Yes, in terms of relationships, Natalie was absolutely afraid to approach them at all.

Just recalling the taste of those experiences was enough to make one feel like they were suffocating in pain.

Irwin's eyes flashed as he glimpsed fear and sorrow in Natalie's eyes.

Before he could say anything, Natalie asked, "Have you ever experienced the taste of being burned in a Natalie felt she had lost her composure. She raised the red wine glass before her and took a sip.

A previous life, huh?

The thought of such a thing would have seemed surreal in the real world, something she deemed impossible.

However, she had indeed experienced it.

It wasn't a dream; in it, every event was distinct.

In this life, her life trajectory changed with the arrival of Stephen, Irwin, and Caleb. Natalie didn't know what the final outcome would be.

"Natalie," Irwin's tone became more serious.

Natalie brushed it off, but she underestimated Irwin's scrutiny.

"What have you experienced?" he probed.

Natalie looked at Irwin, meeting his deep and serious gaze. Although he seemed to be trying to comfort her, his demeanor was cold.

She lowered her head and forced a smile. "What have I experienced? I've forgotten!"
Irwin "Forgotten?" "Yeah" The man across from her frowned. It was evident that Natalie's claim of forgetting was far from simple; her face was etched with memories that couldn't be shaken off.

Natalie took a deep breath and said, "Let's eat." She didn't want to continue the conversation. Of course, no one would believe her in her current state anyway. Reluctance to talk, Irwin didn't press further.

"You want to talk about it, you can tell me," he said.

Events weighed heavily on her heart, and it wasn't clear when it all started, maybe with her, had ceased to be. "I remember when you and Cedric were going through a divorce. You hadn't found your uncle initially, right?" "Yeah. At that time, I didn't know I had an uncle," she replied.

She only discovered she had an uncle when she went abroad.

"What about it?" As they steered away from the previous topic, Natalie's mood seemed to improve as she looked at Irwin.

Irwin gave her an approving glance. "Not bad, you have admirable courage!" The Johnson family was an existence that seemed both desirable and unattainable. Many Cinderellas aspired to become part of it. Those who didn't know often thought that being a wealthy family's daughter-in-law was an enviable position.

But Natalie, after experiencing the unpleasant side of it, decisively filed for divorce. Her actions caught everyone off guard.

It was undoubtedly a slap in the face for the Johnson family.

"So what? If you can't stay on, just split!" Natalie's words carried a hint of bitterness.

She didn't say it explicitly, but back then, she wasn't afraid of anything, even death. So why would she fear retaliation from the Johnson family?

"A Divorce After My Rebirth Chapter 138-Worthy of Celebration You're fortunate to have found your uncle!" Irwin said.

Otherwise, considering the methods of those people in the Johnson family, they could have torn her apart!

Later, Stephen's presence behind the scenes drove the Johnson family members who wanted to destroy her insane, as they couldn't do anything to her.

"I'm grateful as well!" Natalie said.

She spoke the truth.

While she had been fearless and unstoppable back then, Stephen's presence had provided her with significant support.

After lunch, Irwin personally drove Natalie back to Sylvan Gems.

When she got out of the car, he didn't forget to remind her, "I'll ick you up at six Natalie nodded. She was aware that the concert would take a while, and she needed to grab something to eat before fully enjoying the experience.

Even if she ate, she doubted she would appreciate the event.

After Irwin left, Natalie picked up her bag and turned to enter the company. To her surprise, she met Cedric with his icy gaze, standing not far away.

Dressed in a black trench coat, he exuded an elegant charm that could captivate anyone at first glance.

His extraordinary good looks were undeniably captivating, and he truly possessed the allure to make women swoon.

Natalie's tone wasn't particularly pleasant as she asked, "Why are you here?" She moved to walk around him, intending to go inside.

Cedric asked, "When did you and Irwin become so close?" the now believed that there was nothing between Natalie and Irwin, especially after clarifying the with Stephen, he still couldn't help but feel a tremor in his heart when he saw her getting out After a moment of contemplation, she responded, "Last night, my uncle talked to me." "What?" Seeing that she didn't directly answer the question and brought up Stephen, Cedric's heart tightened.

Intuition told him that this conversation was related to him and possibly Irwin as well.

"My uncle said the Frazier family is a deep and complex place, but Irwin is a very responsible man. I won't have to worry about external matters when I'm with him." "What do you mean?" Cedric's tone turned chilly.

Natalie looked at him, the previous indifference now carrying a hint of mockery.

Her smile was sharp, almost piercing.

"Can't you understand? The reason for our divorce was the external matters between us!" At her words, Cedric narrowed his eyes. Natalie's smile widened. Seeing the coldness in Cedric's eyes and the fleeting urgency, she felt a sense of satisfaction.

“Hello, Ms. Walker.” Employees who had gone out for lunch were returning one after another. Polite greetings shattered the awkward atmosphere between Natalie and Cedric.

The words “Ms. Walker brought Cedric’s thoughts back on track.

He looked at the petite woman before him. He studied her slender figure and noted that she was clad in a tailored professional outfit. She no longer wore casual attire or fashionable dresses before him.

She no longer exuded the slightest hint of a delicate or graceful charm.

“You should go back. I also need to get back to work!” Natalie raised her wrist to check the time.

Cedric recognized the watch—it was a limited edition released by Sylvan Gems this year, sought after by many women.

low, these things were easily accessible to her.

no longer relied on him! odc had already seen this, it still hit him at this moment.

“She has completely lost her sight!” Cedric remarked suddenly.

Natalie was momentarily stunned!

“She’s blind?” Cedric turned around and faced her.

Their eyes met.

Natalie stood straight with her small stature, and the smile on her lips exuded a sense of relief. It kind of satisfaction that made people feel like the person smiling deserved a beating!

The gloating was evident in her eyes, and her smile widened in delight.

“You...” Cedric was momentarily stunned. There was also a hint of displeasure evident.

“Can she still do another surgery for it?” “Natalie!” “What, you want my eyes?” Natalie’s tone became more cheerful.

Blind.

She had heard it clearly.

Isabella would never have a chance to regain her sight.

Retribution! It was truly retribution!

Cedric looked at her undisguised smile, and his anger began to rise. "Are you happy!?" He practically hissed those words through gritted teeth.

Natalie relaxed even more and laughed.

Happy? Of course, I'm happy! How can I not be?" t was the hepeated the word "happy" several times, showing that she was genuinely ecstatic. In her past life, novelbin hadn't been bli been blind at all. However, she still made Natalie spend her entire life in a dark world ad binded herself just to scheme against Natalie Haha... Hahaha! When she thought of it, Natalie couldn't help but burst into laughter.

Seeing Cedric's livid face, she tried to stifle her laughter but couldn't help herself when she saw his expression!

Her small shoulders trembled, showing how genuinely delighted she was.

"Natalie!" At this moment, Cedric had the urge to strangle Natalie. The laughter in her alluring eyes was infuriating!

Isabella had gone blind trying to plot against her!

Cedric's face looked extremely grim when he came to tell her about it. Despite his rude attitude, Natalie was dancing with joy!

"Don't worry: I'll send her many, many tonics to help her recover. Let her take good care of herself and her heart!" She wondered if a heart could ever turn red again. To Natalie, Isabella's heart was pitch black, as black as her soul probably was.

Cedric's expression changed unpredictably as he watched her reaction.

A storm was brewing, and it was going to hit soon.

"Even though you're angry, I... am overjoyed!" After saying that, Natalie turned and headed for the CEO's elevator.

Observing her petite figure, one could tell just how lighthearted she was by watching her back.

She was genuinely happy.

Cedric stood still, so provoked by Natalie's attitude that he forgot the real reason he came here.

Back in her office, Natalie couldn't resist calling Bianca.

Blanca quickly answered, "Nat?" et No, let's get breakfast tomorrow morning!" hine dinner with Blanca With such good news, she couldn't But tonight, she had plans to attend the concert with Irwin.

Blanca sensed Natalie's rare light-heartedness.

"What's the happy news? Tell me now!" From the other end, Natalie could hear the fl*pping of papers in the background, indicating that Bianca was busy.

"Isabella is permanently blind!" "What?!" "As I told you before, that woman tried to scheme against me and risked her own eyes as a wager!" "So she's really blind?" "Yes, she's genuinely blind. But there was still a chance for surgery to restore her sight!" "And?"

A Divorce After My Rebirth Chapter 139-Collapse "Cedric just told me that she's permanently blind! I think the surgery must have failed!" The more Natalie spoke, the less she could conceal her delight.

"Failed?" "Yes!" "It's karma!" Bianca exclaimed without hesitation.

In the past, Bianca had observed how Isabella schemed against Natalie. When that woman risked her own eyes to conspire against Natalie, Bianca thought she was exceptionally ruthless.

However, she had ultimately paid the price for her own cruelty.

"That's exactly it! Karma!" Natalie laughed.

"She trusted Cedric too much!" "Yeah, she believed him all the way!" Thinking about how Isabella trusted Cedric so much, Natalie felt a twinge of bitterness. She had once trusted Cedric too. But unfortunately, reality brutally slapped her in the face.

Isabella had similarly trusted Cedric. She believed that even if she truly went blind, Cedric would find a way to restore her sight.

But in the end... what good was trust?

"She should have known that if she reached that point, she should trust the doctor. But also, was the doctor worthy of her trust?" "Are you happy now?" Bianca asked.

Yeah, of course! I'm thrilled!" Natalie's happiness at this moment was like that of a child, showing no sympathy or pity for Isabella's misery ory, there shouldn't have been such animosity between her and Isabella. After all, Isabella was her them had grown too deep She thought about how Isabella had tortured her because of the resentment between their moters- Natalie had stood out in the open while Isabella stood in the shadows, gradually dragging her into hell!

“So, it’s true that you reap what you sow,” Bianca commented.

How much suffering had Natalie endured because of Isabella before this? It had been unimaginable.

But now, everything was fine.

“Alright, you go ahead and get back to work. I’ve also got work to do,” Natalie said.

Natalie was happy about what happened with Isabella, but she couldn’t afford to delay her work.

“Wait!” Just as Natalie was about to hang up the phone, Bianca called out.

Natalie paused and asked, “What’s wrong?” “About the reason for Isabella’s failed surgery... I think it’s best if you put some thought into it.” “What do you mean?” Natalie’s heart skipped a beat at Bianca’s words.

Bianca continued, “Who knows? She threw a lot of dirt on you, remember? And those monsters from the Johnson family did the same. When you mentioned this matter, I don’t think it’ll end so easily.” Bianca was an outsider. She had witnessed everything Natalie had gone through, from start to finish.

So, when Natalie brought up this matter, Bianca felt that the situation might not be straightforward as Isabella was still by Cedric’s side.

There might be more dirt thrown at Natalie in the future.

When Natalie was reminded of this, she immediately thought of Christina!

Yeah, I got it. Thanks, Bia!” You’re welcome!” Knock! Knock!

The sound of knocking interrupted Natalie’s thoughts.

“Come in!” In a split second, she composed herself and sat up straight.

The assistant pushed the door open and stood respectfully at the entrance. “Ms. Walker, Mr. Jacobs has arrived.” Zane Jacobs?!

Natalie immediately knew who he was. She hadn’t expected him to move so quickly; her uncle had just left Verde City, and now Zane was here.

Who was Zane Jacobs?

From Stephen’s words, Natalie knew that Zane’s abilities surpassed Karina’s. She had a clear understanding of Karina’s capabilities.

Zane's arrival would undoubtedly be of great help to her.

"Quick, let him in," Natalie said.

"Yes, ma'am!" The assistant left.

Soon, Zane was brought in. He was a sharply dressed man, and Natalie could sense the extraordinary air he gave off with just a glance.

Zane was one of Stephen's most capable assistants and possessed remarkable abilities in handling matters. Natalie, who had just entered the business world, urgently needed someone like him.

"Hello, Ms. Walker. I'm Zane Jacobs, and this is my transfer order." The man respectfully handed over his resume and transfer order from a folder.

Amidst this courtesy, Natalie distinctly felt his powerful presence. His aura exuded the seasoned essence of the business world.

Natalie took the documents. "Hello." Looking at the documents, she saw that her uncle had initiated and approved this transfer.

To be honest, Natalie's work experience was limited. Facing someone with such an impressive resume she felt overwhelmed.

Nevertheless, she strived to maintain composure.

After a few moments of organizing her documents, she began discussing the recent issues in Sylvan Gems with the man.

After the discussion, Zane stood up to leave. Before he could move, Natalie suddenly said, "Wait!" "Is there anything else, Ms. Walker?" "There's something I'd like you to keep an eye for me." "What is it?" Bianca's words echoed in Natalie's mind.

Natalie had completely immersed herself in her career, seemingly doing nothing else besides work.

However, Christina and Isabella were secretly engaged in a fierce battle.

In the hospital room, only Isabella and Christina remained. Rebecca had gone to contact the relevant medical team to see if there was any chance for Isabella to regain her sight.

"Going against me, huh? You're not even worthy of it!" Christina smugly said as she looked down at Isabella.

At this moment, Isabella was pale.

However, the despair emanating from Isabella's body gradually diminished, replaced by a chilling and sinister aura.

"Is was you?" Her tone was cold. At this moment, she wished she could tear Christina apart. She had underestimated Christina's ruthlessness.

While she always knew that Christina loved Cedric, she never expected this love to be so twisted!

Christine chuckled at her words. "How could it be me?" Isabella remained silent.

You made Natalie suffer such a huge loss. A ten-year relationship was ruined because of you. It's only in her to hate you more.

Christina directly brought Natalie into the conversation. Not mentioning Natalie would have been better, as bringing up her name intensified Isabella's hatred.

Yes, that was right... Natalie hated her more than Christina!

"By the way, I want to tell you something." Seeing Isabella's defeated appearance, Christina felt a sense of satisfaction.

Originally, she didn't want their conflict to escalate to this point.

But Isabella didn't know her place.

"What else do you have to show off?" Isabella tried to suppress the anger in her tone, but her fingers gripping the white bedsheet betrayed her emotions.

Christina stood proudly like a queen. She stared at her and said, "You have no idea how insignificant you are compared to Natalie. You can't even compare to a strand of hair on her head!" Isabella said "What do you mean?" "I might not like her, but among the three of us, you're the lowest. I once thought it was Natalie, but now I know it's you.

Isabella's already pale face turned even whiter.

Today's Bonus Offer GET IT NOW Christina directly brought Natalie into the conversation. Not mentioning Natalie would have been better, as bringing up her name intensified Isabella's hatred.

Yes, that was right... Natalie hated her more than Christina!

"By the way, I want to tell you something." Seeing Isabella's defeated appearance, Christina felt a sense of satisfaction.

Originally, she didn't want their conflict to escalate to this point.

But Isabella didn't know her place.

"What else do you have to show off?" Isabella tried to suppress the anger in her tone, but her fingers gripping the white bedsheet betrayed her emotions.

Christina stood proudly like a queen. She stared at her and said, "You have no idea how insignificant you are compared to Natalie. You can't even compare to a strand of hair on her head!" "What do you mean?" "I might not like her, but among the three of us, you're the lowest. I once thought it was Natalie, but now I know it's you" Isabella's already pale face turned even whiter.

A Divorce After My Rebirth Chapter 140-Humiliation "Do you know Stephen Jarvis? Christina asked triumphantly, looking at Isabella's defeated expression.

Stephen Jarvis?

It wasn't an unfamiliar name. During the half-year she spent by Cedric's side, she gained considerable knowledge about prominent domestic and international families.

Stephen Jarvis was the wealthiest man in Simeria.

"Heh, what are you trying to say? That you discovered you're his daughter after so many years of being the Johnson family's adopted daughter?" Isabella mocked.

Although she had always dismissed the title of being the adopted daughter of the Johnson family, she knew that it was the most taboo subject for Christina.

"Heh, I'd love it if that had happened! But having the Johnson family is enough for me!" Christina retorted. "However, Natalie is Stephen's niece! Do you know what that means? It means Stephen is Natalie's uncle!" As Christina continued, Isabella's face grew paler.

Eventually, her lips trembled uncontrollably.

Natalie was...?

Her world seemed to turn gray in an instant. It was as if it had collapsed at this moment!

Natalie... Natalie was... Looking at Isabella's completely changed expression, Christina knew this revelation had dealt her a considerable blow.

There was no trace of sympathy in Christina's face.

With a gloating look, Christina continued, "Now it seems that no matter how much hatred you have for Natalie, you can't retaliate against her anymore! With such an uncle to rely on, even if you blinded yourself or made yourself look like a pathetic pig to frame her, it wouldn't work!" Isabella was silent.

"What's the use of the world pitying you? With her uncle protecting her, even if the whole world pities you, It's useless!

Christina's words felt like salt being poured on Isabella's wounded heart Natalie had an uncle.

And not just any uncle, but Simeria's wealthiest man, Stephen Jarvis!

This news was too shocking for Isabella. The impact on her was indeed significant, as Christina continued to talk incessantly.

Isabella had worked so hard, and she didn't expect such an outcome. Christina was still rambling on about something and didn't notice Isabella's scattered focus.

"That's enough!" Isabella roared, interrupting Christina before she could finish her sentence.

Seeing Isabella furious but helpless, Christina's face showed no irritation.

Instead, there was only pure satisfaction.

"I never really liked Natalie, but Isabella.. Seeing how you used these tactics against her, I do believe in karma!" "If there really is karma in this world, rest assured... Mine won't be the only one, but yours will also come soon! Isabella retorted "I have the Johnson family backing me up!" Christina shot back confidently.

Yes, Natalie had Stephen protecting her.

Then Isabella... had the Johnson family behind her.

"Did you forget? I also have the Johnson family backing me now!" Isabella countered Christina's smugness.

She knew this woman wanted to strike her down, and she wasn't going to play into her hands.

Indeed, Christina's face turned dark at Isabella's words. Thinking about the change in Rebecca's attitude towards Isabella earlier, she couldn't believe it.

How could this happen?

The Johnson family? If you didn't remind me, I might have forgotten that you're the benefactor of our family! Christina said harshly.

Who did she think she was?!

In reality, it was all because of Ivan's favor that she managed to establish herself in the Johnson family's. To put it bluntly, Rebecca was the only one who seemed to regard her more highly, Christina's previous worries that Elizabeth would be the same were completely unnecessary.

"Yeah, I'm the Johnson family's benefactor!" Isabella responded calmly to Christina.

In the end, Christina stormed out.

Despite her cunning and intelligence, she couldn't always control her emotions.

Isabella was now alone in the hospital room.

"Natalie!" she hissed through gritted teeth.

Her once stunning figure now trembled with anger. She was blind!

Truly blind!

To ensure that the woman would face the most miserable fate, to make her experience the consequences of being sent to prison by the man she loved... Isabella had blinded herself.

Now, she was left with a lifetime without the possibility of regaining her sight.

However, even with a lifetime of darkness as the cost, Natalie hadn't paid even half the price of what she owed Isabella!

"I underestimated you!" Isabella muttered.

She had more than underestimated Natalie.

The outcome left Isabella in deep resentment. The thought of her enduring the darkness while Natalie freely enjoyed herself outside filled her with hatred.

However, there was no chance for Isabella to vent this anger and hatred now.

Because of this hatred, she felt like her heart was bleeding!

Isabella's hatred grew stronger.

She wished Natalie were dead!

But this hatred could only dryly linger the darkness, she lacked even the ability to care for herself in her most miserable state, she couldn't. Meanwhile, Natalie was in a meeting in her office. Just then, her phone started ringing. She subconsciously glanced at the caller, feeling a serious gaze upon her.

She turned slightly to see that it was Zane.

He was a very meticulous person.

The phone continued to ring, and he said, "Take a ten-minute break!" Without waiting for her response, Zane spoke first.

Natalie understood his meaning. She had to admit he was a very competent assistant.

She picked up the phone and moved to the side to answer, "Hello." "It's me," came Isabella's voice from the other end.

Natalie's eyes dimmed when she heard her voice.

It was unlike before!

Her heart was in turmoil.

Isabella was... her sister!

"What is it?" Natalie spoke again, her tone icy. Isabella replied, "I want to meet you." Both of their tones were calm. Natalie was surprised by this, not expecting Isabella to maintain such composure even at this moment.

"Why should I come just because you want me to?" Natalie replied coldly.

"I'm really blind now, Isn't that what you wanted to see?" Isabella's response was filled with self-confidence.

She seemed to think that everyone else had the same dark thoughts as her, living in this world with revenge as their sole motivation.

On the other end of the line, Natalie's disdain was evident.

But she wasn't in a hurry, "Or are you afraid I might scheme against you again?" Isabella questioned.

"All your schemes are meaningless to me!" Natalie retorted without a second thought.

Schemes?

If one were to talk about scheming against her, Isabella had indeed stirred up quite a lot of trouble during this period.

From hitting herself, stabbing herself with a knife, to blinding her own eyes—each act more ruthless than the last. She did all of this just to witness Cedric personally sending Natalie to prison.

“Yeah, now I realize where you get the confidence to say such things,” Isabella said, feeling like a clown.

She had gone to great lengths to put Natalie behind bars in front of Cedric.

But in the end?