Starting with A Divorce Chapter 19-He Won't Trade Himself

Lindsay also felt that it was inconceivable. When she thought of the house, Lindsay raised her voice. "Could it be that she has a lover in your school? Where is she? Keep an eye on her. Don't let her run away! I'll come over right away."

"What are you talking about? She's gone. Mom, why are you looking for her in such a hurry?"

"Your brother gave her the house in the residence! Can I not ask her about it?"

Kaitlin also stomped her feet in anger. "Is my brother crazy? Why doesn't he give me that house? He actually gave it to that woman! Mom, just wait. When I find her, I will definitely stop her and ask her what happened!"

Ainsley came out of the supermarket and bought a lot of food. She then called Lainey over, but she did not expect that not only would Roman come, but Manuel and his sister Serina would also come.

Ainsley saw the beautiful and shy little girl and the noble gentleman next to her at the door. Ainsley suddenly felt that she was ridiculously ***.

Roman did not really come to celebrate.

Roman had another purpose.

"On the way here, I happened to meet Mr. Gage and Ms. Gage. I want the celebration to be more crowded, so I came here with them. Ms. Easton, do you mind it?"

Roman smiled and served as a mediator.

"Ms. Easton, I'm sorry to disturb you." The noble and tall man politely nodded at Ainsley, a sly look flashing across his eyes.

"Nice to meet you, Ms. Easton." Serina looked at the gentle and beautiful woman in front of her. Her eyes were smiling. "My name is Serina."

Ainsley looked at the lively little girl and instantly realized something.

“Please come in.” Ainsley turned and invited them in.

“Please help yourself. I’ll go cook.” Then Roman directly walked into the kitchen with a lot of ingredients in his hands.

Ainsley couldn’t stop him in time, but fortunately, Lainey blocked his way.

“Chef, I know you’re good at cooking, but Aisy is the host today. How can we let a guest cook for us? We have already bought the deli.”

Lainey loved to eat. She meant it when she praised Roman’s culinary skills. She still remembered the taste of the food that Roman had made that day.

After hearing what Lainey said, Roman looked at Manuel awkwardly.

Manuel had a severe obsession with cleanliness and had always been wary of takeout food.

Unexpectedly, Manuel had a smile in his eyes, and his eyes kept fixing on Ainsley. “Deli’s great.”

Roman was shocked. He never expected Manuel would say that.

Soon, the deli was served. Several people sat around the table. The atmosphere was happy.

“Sir, thank you for sending Aisy to the hospital last time, I didn’t know that you and Roman knew each other. May I know your name?” Lainey raised a large glass of fruit juice, her eyes smiling as she looked at Manuel and Ainsley.

Lainey thought, Aisy has always been calm. This man looks as calm as Aisy and even more mature. This kind of man is worthy of Aisy.

Manuel smiled politely at her. “My name is Manuel.”

Lainey almost choked herself with a mouthful of juice.

Manuel?

Mr. Gage of the Gage family from Seattle, the ruthless and decisive man?

Lainey looked at the calm gentleman in front of her. She could not figure out how this man in front of her would be that Mr. Gage in rumor.

How did Aisy know him?

Lainey looked at Ainsley.

The little girl beside Manuel also turned to Ainsley.

The little girl's eyes were bright, clear, and spirited.

There had never been any women around Manuel, and this was the first woman that Manuel took her to see. So Serina was very curious.

Ainsley put a mouthful of food into her mouth and looked at the little girl beside Manuel. She could not tell them the truth that Manuel wanted her to treat Serina.

After thinking for a while, she swallowed the food in her mouth and said, "I just met Mr. Gage by chance."

"Then Ms. Easton must be a very good person," Serina finally spoke. Her voice was sweet and very agreeable. "Manuel has never had a female friend. I think Ms. Easton is the first."

Friend?

Ainsley hesitated for a moment. She did not regard Manuel as a friend. This was only the third time she saw Manuel. They were hardly friends.

"Ms. Easton is indeed a very good person."

Manuel's tone was hinting at something. He picked up a piece of food for Serina and then put another piece into Ainsley's plate. "Ms. Easton, you should eat more."

What Manuel did intrigued the other three people at the table.

Starting with A Divorce Chapter 20-You Are Still Thinking About That ***?

Ainsley was not a fool. She was slightly embarrassed, but she did not understand what Manuel intended to do.

The man seemed to want much more from her than just a favor to treat his sister, but she knew that her charm should not be enough to get the attention of Manuel, the most popular man in Seattle.

It was impossible that Manuel would trade himself for his sister, not to mention that Ainsley was not even a famous psychologist.

“I heard that Ms. Easton works at University of Washington.” Manuel looked indifferent, as if he had not noticed the others’ weird looks at all. His tone was soft while he was talking.

The eyes of the little girl beside Manuel lit up. She said in surprise, “Is Ms. Easton a teacher at University of Washington?”

The little girl did not hide her joy. She really liked Ainsley, who was beautiful and gentle.

Ainsley was stunned. She saw the obvious joy in the little girl’s eyes. She nodded and said, “I’m interning at the Psychological Counseling Room.”

“Great, can I hang out with Ms. Easton when I’m at school?”

The little girl’s eyes were full of expectation.

Although today was the first time Serina met Ainsley, she felt that Ainsley was very familiar, and she liked Ainsley from the bottom of her heart.

Ainsley looked at the little girl in front of her and suddenly thought of the little deer she had hunted in the hunting field, whose eyes were wet, clear, and harmless.

“Okay.” Ainsley nodded.

For now, she liked this little girl.

“Then I have to thank Ms. Easton for taking care of my younger sister.” The man’s voice was gentle, and he unhurriedly picked up a piece of food for Ainsley.

Ainsley looked at the food on her plate and raised her eyes to meet the man’s dark eyes. Manuel looked so satisfied. Ainsley felt like she had fallen into the man’s trap.

Lainey, who was at the side, was so excited. Her eyes were filled with thrill.

Manuel looked at Ainsley with a hint of romantic feelings.

Ainsley was beautiful and capable. It was hard for men not to love her.

What a pity for that **** of the Baldry family, who had lost such a treasure.

The five of them had a happy dinner.

After dinner, Manuel achieved his goal. Seeing that Ainsley was not in the mood, he bid goodbye. and left with Serina and Roman.

Serina was a little reluctant to leave. She looked sullen while sitting in the car.

Manuel saw her look and raised his hand to rub her head. "You will have many opportunities to see her. There's no rush."

She still had many opportunities to see Ainsley?

Serina's eyes lit up. "Manuel, is Ms. Easton going to be my sister-in-law?"

Manuel's eyes were deep, making people unable to see his thoughts. In the end, they heard him say faintly, "Yes."

Roman, who was driving in front, was scared by Manuel's words and coughed twice.

Oh my goodness, although I know that Mr. Gage treats Ms. Easton differently, I never expected that Mr. Gage would really admit his feelings about Ms. Easton.

What a surprise! Mr. Gage finally begins to have feelings for a woman.

At Ainsley's place, Lainey helped Ainsley to clean up the dishes. As she cleaned up, she could not help but gossip.

"Aisy, I think Mr. Gage is definitely interested in you. How did you know him? You concealed it so well. Do you still take me as your friend? You never told me about it."

Ainsley was in the kitchen in an apron and was about to wash the dishes. Hearing her good friend's words, she rubbed her eyebrows and said helplessly, “He needs my help. Don’t think too much about it: Besides, I don’t have the mood to get into another relationship.”

Lainey’s hands trembled as she heard Ainsley’s words. She widened her almond eyes in horror. “Aisy, don’t tell me that you are still thinking about that ***from the Baldry family? Don’t tell me you are going to be single for him for the rest of your life!”

Ainsley felt helpless when she looked at Lainey, who was worried about her. Ainsley could only patiently explain, “Lainey, since I agree to divorce, it means that I have let go of Cason. I do not intend to be single for a lifetime, but at the moment, I indeed have not met anyone I have a crush on.”

Lainey replied with “oh” and let out a sigh of relief.

When she thought that Ainsley didn’t even take a fancy to the handsome, Lainey did not understand how Ainsley had fallen for Cason.

Because she had to work the next day, Lainey didn’t stay with Ainsley for too long last night. Lainey helped her pack up and then went back.

Ainsley woke up early the next morning.

When she was married to Cason, Ainsley had been asked to stay at home and look after his family.”

Now that Ainsley would restart working, she couldn’t help but feel excited.

The school was not far from her rented apartment. Ainsley walked all the way there. Just as she was excited to embrace her long-lost campus life, Ainsley heard an extremely sharp female voice.

“Ainsley? Why are you here?”

Ainsley turned around and indeed saw Kaitlin, who was shocked and showed disdain.
