Chapter 231 Collective Amnesia

Ainsley's expression became more and more serious.

But no matter how she interrogated Manuel, he did not say a word. His fists were tightly clenched together, and the joints turned white.

And Ainsley asked the same questions crazily over and over again. Finally, under the emotional expressions of the two, Manuel opened his eyes, and his eyes were bloodshot.

"Nothing!" He growled.

Ainsley regained her calmness. Even though she could not ask the final question, she knew the answer.

Maybe she and Manuel had known each other a few years ago, and it was even earlier than meeting Cason. How could she forget all this?

"Manuel, did we know each other before?" Ainsley's gaze turned blank.

Manuel knew that he did not reveal any important clues, so he did not answer her. He just shook his head.

"Manuel, why do you not dare to answer me?" Ainsley did not know how to ask.

Perhaps, everything she had imagined was true, but Manuel did not want her to know.

There was a high possibility that apart from the memory loss, something bigger was hidden.

Ainsley wanted to ask more, but Manuel stood up and fled.

In the Gage's home.

Serina had been kept at home by Koen. She watched gloomily as Brady and Koen played chess in the living room. She dozed off out of boredom.

"Grandpa, I want to go out," she said listlessly.

"Brady, you are a bad player. I've already taken so many of your pieces out!" Koen placed a piece on the table.

"Grandpa! Did you hear what I said?"

"Koen, look at how bored your granddaughter is. Hurry up and let her out." Brady looked at Serina and couldn't help laughing.

"No, she will make a fuss if I do that. It was not easy for her condition to stabilize." Koen glanced at Serina, "Stay here. If you are bored, go to the company with your brother tomorrow morning. You are not young anymore. It is time for you to manage the company's affairs."

"What?" Serina widened her eyes and immediately became spirited. "Grandpa, I don't want it!"

She hated the company's affairs the most. She saw her brother busy every day, and sometimes, he wouldn't come back home until the middle of the night. She did not want to work in the company.

Brady joked, "Serina, your grandfather is trying to make you an heir."

"Brady, please talk to my grandfather. I don't have the talent to manage the company," Serina said in an aggrieved tone.

"If you can't do it, then learn Irene," Koen said.

"Grandpa, you should be satisfied. You already have an elite like my brother. How would I be able to manage the company?" Serina sighed.

"I know you can't do it, but you can't stay at home all the time. From tomorrow on, learn from Irene." Koen's tone was unnegotiable.

Serina knew that she could not resist, so she was forced to accept it.

Her mind was filled with the image of Ainsley. She wanted to go out and have fun with her.

Ainsley was her psychologist, but it was difficult to meet her because Koen wanted her to stay away from Ainsley.

The weather was mild. Serina woke up early and went to the company with Irene.

After arriving at the company, Irene said to Serina thoughtfully, "Serina, I know you don't like to manage the company, but your grandpa asked me to take you with me. How about this? Stay in my office for today. I have to go to the factory at noon."

"Irene, can I?" Serina looked at Irene gratefully.

"Of course."

"Irene, can I go out for a while? I promise I will come back soon. You know that Grandpa has been keeping me indoors. I am so bored," Serina said in a sad tone.

"Alright, but you must come back early."

"Alright! Thank you, Irene."

Half an hour later, Serina was at the entrance of the Psychological Counseling Room at the University of Washington. Coincidentally, no one was there.

“Ainsley, I haven’t seen you for a long time. I miss you so much. Did you miss me?”

“Of course, but I seldom heard from you.”

Serina curled her lips and said, “Grandpa locked me up at home. I can’t contact you.”

Ainsley asked Serina to sit down. She asked with concern, “How have you been? Did you have any nightmares?”

Serina shook her head. “I didn’t, but I have been having some strange dreams.”

“What kind?”

“I always dream of going to the amusement park with you, and I see you and my brother...” Serina’s face turned red.

“What?” Ainsley was curious.

Serina turned around and said embarrassedly, “I dreamed that you and my brother were kissing.”

Ainsley also blushed. She did not expect Serina to say it.

However, she could sense something through this dream. She guessed that she couldn’t just be Manuel’s friend. In Manuel’s subconscious, they were dating, and in Serina’s dream, they were kissing. These were things that only couples would do.

However, was this true?

“Serina, come over and finish this test.” Ainsley pushed the test paper to Serina.

It was a psychological test that Ainsley found for Serina. She had not treated Serina for such a long time, so she did not know how her mental state was right now.

Serina picked up the pen and went away to write while Ainsley dialed a number.

“Hello? Is this Mr. Strato?”

She pondered for a moment and continued, “Mr. Strato, have you ever seen a collective amnesia?”

“Are you talking about the Mandela effect? The Mandela effect is a false collective amnesia. From a psychological perspective, it should be a memory error in the subconscious,” Zane analyzed.

Ainsley did not hide anything. She told Zane all the strange things that happened in the past few days, including the photos and the bracelet in the villa.

“Based on what you said, there is a possibility of a memory disorder, but how can you be sure that the photos and bracelet you saw were from a few years ago? Moreover, from the narration of Serina and Manuel, their subconscious was tricking them,” Zane said.

Ainsley thought about his words carefully. What if she was wrong from the beginning?

After all, she and Serina did not have any memories of her relationship with Manuel, and Matteo and Manuel did not want to mention it.

Zane continued, "Do you know about the parallel universe?"

"Yes, but it has always been a heated argument."

Chapter 232 Hurry Up

Ainsley was puzzled. Why did Zane mention the parallel universe?

Most people thought that memory disorders existed because of the interference of the parallel world, but this theory was suspicious.

From a psychological perspective, the root of memory disorders lay in self-doubt.

But there were also exceptions, such as feeling shocked and being hypnotized.

Ainsley thought for a long time. She wasn't shocked, but she was not sure if she had been hypnotized.

Zane's voice sounded again. "The parallel world is hard to imagine, but you can consider it as a parallel world in your mind. Every period of time in the past is a parallel world. When shocked, the time you have experienced can be entangled. This caused a memory disorder."

He paused and continued, "Of course, there is also the possibility that you never felt shocked, but your subconscious is erasing those memories."

Ainsley understood what Zane meant. Memories being erased in the subconscious were more terrible than memory loss. This meant that she was lying to herself.

But this most reasonable explanation was suspicious. Three years ago, she had no reason to forget Serina or Manuel.

"Mr. Strato, Serina's condition has been stabilized. She seems to be fine, but I always feel uneasy."

It was like the peace before a storm.

All kinds of psychological illnesses would seem to be in hibernation when the patient's condition was stable. Once they broke out, the consequences would be unimaginable.

Zane knew Ainsley's concerns. "You can only make the consequences less serious. Psychological illnesses are the most difficult to eradicate."

"Okay, thank you, Mr. Gage."

Zane told her not to say that. "If you need a hypnotist, just contact me," Zane said calmly.

After Ainsley hung up and waited for a few minutes, Serina handed her the test paper. "Ainsley, I'm done."

The questions were not difficult. They were to test the changes in Serina's emotions. Ainsley nodded. She was still immersed in the conversation with Zane.

Get Boys

Serina looked at the time and got up. "Ainsley, I have to go. If I don't go back, my grandfather will look for me."

The most important thing was that Irene told her to come back early.

After Serina left, Ainsley searched in books for memory disorders. No matter what, the collective memory loss only happened to her and Serina. She could not rule out the possibility that those things those memories were fake.

Just as Zane said, what Manuel experienced was based on a certain sense. The scene he described was not necessarily true. It was possible to imagine it through the experiences in the depths of his memory.

After Irene returned home, she smashed everything in the room. She felt a headache whenever she thought of Halfmoon Island. This was a shame for her.

She had never been tricked like this before. The directors were mocking her during the meeting today as if they were saying how useless she was.

"I didn't see you so aggressive during the competition, but you became so at home," Brady asked Irene to go to the study with a cold face.

"Grandpa! It's all because of that bitch! She lured me into auctioning Halfmoon Island and found someone to auction for PineMist Island."

Brady glared at her, "Idiot! You don't know that you were fooled. You thought that the only one who lied to you was Ainsley. Why did Ainsley figure out the truth while you believed in Aedan's words?"

Brady had heard about the auction, especially the conversation between Ainsley and Aedan after the auction. He did not miss a single word.

Although he did not go, a lot of people brought him a recording.

Speaking of this, Irene became even angrier. "Grandpa! Aedan even said that he took you as his brother. This is how he treated us! He acted rather well. He attended almost all the auctions, and his acting was watertight. I thought that he was pitiful and could not buy anything. He is so impressive”

Brady looked out the window and said in a soothing voice, “Do you think that Aedan thinks of you as her granddaughter? We are merchants. Do not believe in anything related to interests. You have forgotten everything I told you.”

Irene felt aggrieved, but she had to admit it. She knew that she was reckless.

Brady looked at the proposal in front of him and said in a cold voice, “Rewrite the proposal. The of Halfmoon Island is beautiful. Although it is not on the new route, Seattle is now strongly supportive of tourism. If Halfmoon Island is well developed, it may be as attractive as PineMist “Yes, Grandpa.” Irene clenched her fists. What her grandfather said was right. Halfmoon Island was her shame, and if she wanted to regain her dignity, she had to rise with the help of the island.

She was just about to leave when she was stopped. “How is your relationship with Manuel?”

Manuel?

Irene put on a long face. Although Manuel didn’t often see Ainsley recently, he had been avoiding her.

Ever since the incident in the villa area, Manuel seemed to have harbored hostility toward her. She believed that she did not expose herself.

“Grandpa, about Manuel...”

“Don’t delay it anymore. The Gage family is significant in Seattle. If our family unites with them as a result of your marriage, our company might become as influential as the Gage Group. I told you to hurry up, but you leave it until now,” Brady said coldly.

Irene nodded. It was all Ainsley’s fault. If she hadn’t appeared, how could Manuel have treated her like this?

Kaliyah had been in the hospital for two days. The doctors checked her many times, but they couldn’t find anything wrong. The police stayed outside the ward every day as if they were watching a criminal.

Becky made some soup and sent it over. She didn’t see Lindsay and Cason in the sick room. She said with dissatisfaction, "The Baldry family is annoying. You are sick, but Cason is not here with you."

Kalayah sat up and Becky placed the pillow behind Kalayah's back.

"Come here to drink the soup. Does your belly still hurt today?" Becky asked while placing the plate on the table.

Kalayah walked over guiltily and whispered into Becky's ear, "Mom, help me. I don't want to go to prison. I know I was wrong."

Becky held Kalayah's hand and patted its back. "Don't be afraid. That bitch kept seducing Cason. It is reasonable for you to lose control. And you were used by Irene. How stupid you are! Why didn't you think of keeping evidence?"

Kalayah sat down in fear and drank the soup. She said helplessly, "So what if there is evidence? She is Irene. How could Brady let her go to jail? I will be the scapegoat in the end."

Becky sighed. She knew that Kalayah was right. "It's all my fault. I couldn't give you a family like Irene's. You are afraid of being sent to prison even during your pregnancy."

Chapter 233 Carnival

Kalayah's eyes became red when she heard this. "Lindsay, don't say that. Cason will not give up on He will definitely save me."

Even if Cason didn't save her, Lindsay would not give up on her. Kalayah touched her belly. For the child in her belly, Lindsay would save her.

The peace was broken at night. Lindsay had just brought the soup. Before Kalayah could drink much, the police came over and took Kalayah away.

"What are you doing!" Lindsay grabbed Kalayah's arm and roared.

Kalayah also did not expect that. She was taken to the police car. Lindsay angrily called Cason at the entrance of the hospital and then called Mathew.

At the University of Washington, Ainsley had just packed up her things and was about to get off work. She did not expect to meet Manuel at the door. Just as she was about to dodge, she heard Lainey's voice.

“Aisy! Don’t go. Let’s go to attend the carnival together!”

Carnival?

Ainsley suddenly remembered that from this afternoon on the school forum, there was a fierce discussion. The carnival was held on a street in Seattle.

However, Ainsley looked at Manuel a few more times. Lainey pulled her into the car without waiting for her answer. “Aisy, come with me! There must be a lot of interesting activities.”

Ainsley could not refuse Lainey. She and Lainey sat in the back seat. Roman drove, and Manuel sat in the passenger seat.

Roman seemed to be a little dissatisfied with it. He always turned back to look at Lainey.

Soon, they arrived on that street. Here, many people were dressed in various costumes.

The whole street was decorated with colorful lights. Maybe Lainey and Roman did it on purpose. They walked to the crowded place and held hands, trying to break away from Ainsley and Manuel.

They didn’t have to do anything. Soon, the four of them were quickly dispersed by the crowd.

Lainey looked around worriedly. “Aisy...”

Lainey shouted, but no one responded. There were too many people on the street.

When she wanted to call Ainsley again, she was stopped by Roman. “Don’t call her.”

“Why?” Lainey was a little confused.

Roman gently rubbed her head and smiled, “Give them a chance to be alone. Otherwise, why do you think Manuel will come to the carnival today? And don’t forget that you are coming here to date me. I’ll take you to a place.”

Roman grabbed Lainey’s hand and took her away.

Ainsley stood in the crowd and looked around. She did not see Lainey, nor did she see Roman.

She lowered her head and only saw the men and women around her walking in pairs. Only she was alone.

Just as she turned around, a big hand grabbed her wrist.

She subconsciously looked over. It was Manuel.

“You... What are you doing?” She turned her head embarrassedly, wanting to pull her hand back from the warm palm. But his hand was like solid shackles firmly locking her wrist.

Manuel tightly protected her in his arms. The people coming and going, as well as the peddlers selling goods, might accidentally touch her.

“Aisy, this is for you.” Manuel suddenly put a lantern in her palm. The lotus lantern flickered with pink light.

Ainsley’s heart beat faster. He should have gone to buy a lantern just now. Why did he buy it for her?

Her cheeks were red. In front of so many people, she couldn’t just walk away. Ainsley walked, and Manuel held her hand. Her eyes were always on the lantern in her right hand. She noticed the words written on the lantern. “Wish Aisy to be healthy and happy forever.”

Ainsley raised her head and looked at Manuel, who was walking in front of her and holding her hand. After so long, they once again held each other’s hands. She had mixed feelings. According to Ainsley’s character, she would not hesitate to throw his hand away. But this time, she was silent.

For the first time, she wanted to follow her true thoughts and indulge once. She liked Manuel and could not deny it. She looked forward to Manuel coming to her and holding her hand tightly.

His tall and straight figure kept blocking the passers-by for her. He was protecting her.

Finally, they walked to the river. Most of the people who had lanterns were going to put down the lanterns in the river with their lovers.

Ainsley was pushed to the side of the river, not knowing what to do. Manuel followed closely by her side to protect her.

She saw that the lanterns in other people’s hands were written with the names of two people, and there was also a wonderful wish. The lantern in her hand only had her own name.

“Wait for me!” Ainsley suddenly said and turned to leave the river.

Manuel looked at her in confusion. He immediately got up and wanted to follow her, but was stopped by Ainsley. “There are a lot of people. Just wait for me here. It’s not easy to find a place by the river.”

“Okay.” Manuel looked at her back as she left. The lantern was stuffed into his arms.

The lights on both sides of the river swayed. The branches of the willow trees hung down. The crowd was noisy. The two couples beside Manuel put the lanterns in the river and cuddled each other.

A gentle voice came from behind. Manuel turned around and saw Ainsley standing behind him.
“Take it.”

Manuel reached out and took the thing in her hand. It was another lantern with his name on it.
He was happy. He stood side by side with Ainsley. They put the two lanterns together, and they floated along the river.

On Ainsley’s lantern, it said, “Wish Aisy to be healthy and happy forever.”

And on Manuel’s lantern, it said, “Wish Manuel to be healthy and happy forever.”

The two lanterns were together, drifting further and further as if they were supposed to be one.

On the other side of the river, Roman and Lainey put a lantern into the river together.

Lainey looked at the lantern far away and could not help but put her hands together and make a wish.

After the lantern completely disappeared from their sight, Ainsley stood up. Manuel pointed in the direction of the pavilion. “We can see fireworks there later.”

Ainsley was surprised that he remembered this kind of thing. When she walked into the pavilion, the sky was already completely dark.

The colorful scenery on both sides of the river was beautiful. They could even see the colorful lights in the water.

The two of them were now in the pavilion. At nine o’clock, with a loud sound, fireworks exploded in the sky.

Ainsley covered her ears excitedly. She suddenly thought of the fireworks that Manuel prepared for her on the mountain that night.

She glanced sideways at Manuel. He was focused on watching the fireworks and didn’t know what Ainsley was thinking.

Obviously, Ainsley was also troubled.

Kaliyah was sent to prison, and Lindsay once again found Kaitlin.

In the psychiatric hospital, Kaitlin looked at Lindsay expressionlessly. Kaitlin was sad and upset.

Chapter 234 I Won’t Be the Scapegoat

“Kaliyah has already been caught. Could it be that you still want to persuade me to take the blame?”
Kaitlin angrily said.

Lindsay had an embarrassed look because she had been exposed. But she still stubbornly said, "Kaitlin, since things have become like this, you should be sensible."

"After all, it is a special time. If Kaliyah is not pregnant right now, I will protect you no matter what happens. After all, you are my biological daughter. But the situation is different now. Kaliyah is pregnant with the only descendant of the Baldry family. Anyway, I have to protect her. Don't worry. Even if you take the blame for Kaliyah, your brother and I will definitely use all of our strength to save you."

Kaitlin sneered, "Mom, you have already said the nonsense when you came to see me last time. You seem to have forgotten what happened when you said those words last time."

Kaitlin felt that it was very ironic. From the moment she entered the detention cell, and she was in prison now, Lindsay had only come twice. The first time Lindsay came to persuade her to commit suicide. The second time Lindsay tried to persuade her to be the scapegoat

It had only been a few days since Kaitlin committed suicide. When she finally left the hospital, Lindsay came again.

This time, Kaitlin did not want to hear those strange words from Lindsay's mouth. Kaitlin stood up and was about to leave. "If you came to see me for the sake of Kaliyah, why don't you stop coming?"

After Lindsay returned home, she sighed and wanted to ask Cason how he was doing. But before she could SPEAK, she was questioned by him.

"Mom, you went to meet Kaitlin again today? Do you ask her to take the blame? Now, the evidence in the police's hands all proved that Kaliyah did that. In this situation, you still asked Kaitlin to take the blame. You almost caused Kaitlin to lose her life last time, but you still went to persuade her this time. I actually miss the mother who used to spoil and pamper Kaitlin "but not the person who only knows about the child in Kaliyah's belly."

Lindsay was also very tired these days. Hearing Cason's complaints, she shouted, "Alright, alright! All of you said that it was my fault. If not for your child, would I be like this?"

Lindsay left angrily. She returned to her room and locked the door.

Cason returned to the study and had a splitting headache. Too many things had happened recently, and he couldn't deal with them.

He had to save Kaliyah. The only solution now was Ainsley. As long as she didn't sue, there was a possibility that Kaliyah would be released.

When the last ray of sunset appeared, Cason walked to the Psychological Counseling Room at the University of Washington.

The door of the counseling room was open. As soon as he entered, he saw Ainsley looking at him with a puzzled expression.

"Mr. Baldry, what's the matter? Ainsley thought Cason would come here for no reason.

Cason sat down and said with some embarrassment, "I know my request might be very stupid, but I still want to say it. Ainsley, can you temporarily release Kaliyah?"

temps

"Cason, are you joking? How can I let her out?"

"Cason, can you use your brain to think about it? If the person who was hurt that day was Kaliyah and I was the criminal, would you plead for me in front of her? Ainsley sneered.

"Ainsley, it's different. She is pregnant with my child. Cason stared at Ainsley.

"She is pregnant? Then you should protect her well. But what does it have to do with me? She hurt me, so she should pay the price." Ainsley roared angrily Ainsley's expression relaxed. She suddenly looked at Cason solemnly and said, "Although I did collect evidence of her crime, Kaliyah was arrested before I could send the evidence to the police station."

Get Boys

In other words, the matter of Kaliyah being arrested had nothing to do with Ainsley

Cason widened his eyes, not daring to believe what he had heard.

He couldn't believe that it wasn't Ainsley who reported to the police this time. Then who else could it be?

"But other than you, who has a reason to call the police? No one else has a reason to meddle in other people's business "Cason frowned

"Cason, don't forget that Kaliyah has other enemies, such as Irene who wants Kaliyah to be a scapegoat," Ainsley laughed at herself.

Cason was enlightened. Irene! He thought of what Kaliyah said. Irene was afraid that Ainsley would find out about her sooner or later, so Irene wanted Kaliyah to be the scapegoat.

Cason sighed and said to Ainsley apologetically, "Ainsley, what happened before was indeed Kaliyah's fault. Kaitlin also did wrong things Now, Kaitlin has entered the psychiatric hospital, and Kaliyah is in the police station. For the sake of Kaliyah's baby, can you give me a letter of understanding?"

If Cason could get Ainsley's letter of understanding, Kaliyah might get a light sentence.

"I won't give her a letter of understanding." Ainsley rejected.

"Ainsley, I... Cason wanted to continue pleading.

"Cason, since we've already divorced, can't you just disappear completely from my life? Why are you always like this? I'm really sick of Ainsley furrowed her brows.

She was tired of Kaitlin and Kaliyah, who always wanted to frame her.

Ainsley hated that since Cason had already decided to divorce, he began to pretend to be loving and caring.

Ainsley walked in the direction of the door and opened it. She said to Cason, "Mr. Baldry, the question you want to ask has been finished. You can leave now."

She drove him away indifferently, but Cason had no idea.

Cason was locked outside the door. He looked up at the cold and distant Ainsley and finally chose to leave.

In the police station, because of his pregnancy, the person asking the question would be much gentler.

The pregnant woman would not be detained. Kaliyah only needed to be brought over when she was questioned.

However, she was still very panicked. After all, this was the police station.

After all the inquiries, the police suddenly took her to an observation room where Cason was

"Cason, are you here to pick me up?" Kaliyah asked nervously.

Cason nodded. "Kaliyah, don't be afraid I will stay with you."

At the Psychological Counseling Room of the University of Washington, Ainsley was revising the thesis.

Before she finished, Manuel came again.

without him saying anything, Ainsley knew that he came for treatment again.

we have treatment or hypnosis today? Manuel asked with some lingering fear

The memory of that day was still fresh in his mind. He almost could not keep his secret ew his concerns, but she did not intend to let him go. "You do a test first "

Ainsley

Ainsley gave Manuel a set of test questions with three pages of content. He needed to finish at least fifty percent.

Manuel answered the test questions calmly as if he did not care about those test questions.

He gave the finished test to Ainsley and only used fifteen minutes.

Chapter 235 Leave the Baldry Family

Ainsley took the test and took out the red pen to check it

Soon, she took out another test question and placed it in front of Manuel. She said gently. "You answer my questions while doing this test. Each of my questions is for one question on it."

At the same time, she got a timer.

Manuel did not understand, but he still nodded in confusion.

Ainsley saw that he lowered his head to answer. This test was all advanced mathematics questions. Although it was not difficult, Manuel needed to be very serious and careful. Otherwise, he would not work out.

She asked, "Did you have a girlfriend three years ago?"

Manuel's pen shook. He did not expect Ainsley to be so... straightforward.

He thought for a moment and said, "Yes."

Ainsley watched him finish the question and pressed the timer to record the time.

Manuel began to answer the second question. Ainsley also asked, "Is your girlfriend Irene?"

"No!" he said resolutely.

"Then do you know me?" Ainsley asked again.

"I won't do it anymore." Manuel wrote down a line of words.

He slowly put down the pen. He just answered three questions, and he did not want to continue Ainsley pressed the third record. She did not even look at the answer to the test.

"Manuel, I already know everything I want to know," Ainsley said with a faint smile. Her eyes were full of seriousness.

"What?"

"Manuel, we met three years ago, right? Every question, when you lie, you answer the question very slowly. But you will answer very quickly if things do not happen," Ainsley smiled.

Manuel sighed. He knew that Ainsley had been suspicious since a long time ago.

"I'll go now." Manuel stood up. He did not want to mention what happened three years ago, so he had to leave.

Kaliyah didn't need to be detained because she was pregnant, so she could be released on bail pending trial.

Ainsley worked in the counseling room. As soon as Manuel left, Lindsay came over.

It was very awkward for the two of them to meet, especially the bad guys. When Lindsay appeared, she looked at Ainsley disdainfully.

which made Airpstery uncomfortable. "Ainsley, I think you should know why I came to you today."

Ainsley didn't even get up, but still sat firmly in her seat "What is it? Just say it directly"

Lindsay said, "You and Cason have been mamed for three years, but you haven't been able to give birth to a child for our family. This is one of the reasons that I don't like you But fortunately, you are divorced, and now Kaliyah is pregnant."

Ainsley laughed and spoke with heavy irony, 'Mrs Baldry, I don't know why you suddenly came to me to say these things. Although we've been mamed for three years, your son wanted to keep his promise of Kaliyah and we didn't have sex. How did it become my fault?

Lindsay's face was gloomy She didn't know about this, but the main reason she came today was not for this. "Ainsley, you and my son divorced and took away so much property. I don't care about those properties, but you must promise me one thing. Let go of Kaliyah You can tell me your requests.

Ainsley sneered, "I don't have any requests I just want you to stay away from me. Don't provoke me again."

"Ainsley! Don't go too fart You've already sent my daughter to a psychiatric hospital, and you still won't let Kaliyah go. Do you want our family to be ruined? Lindsay slammed the table angrily.

Ainsley glanced at her hand. "I never thought this way. I can't afford such blame. Mrs. Baldry, if you came to me for this, you can leave now"

Lindsay pointed at Ainsley's nose and scolded, "You bitch! You did it on purpose. You clearly knew that Kaliyah was also a victim. It was all Irene's fault! Why didn't you sue her? Are you bullying the weak and fearing the strong?"

Ainsley sneered. "Don't you know that the evidence of Kaliyah was sent out by Irene? Speaking of which, Irene is the culprit, right? Mrs Baldry only came to find me but didn't look for her. Could it be that you're bullying the weak and fearing the strong?"

"Your" Lindsay was so angry that her face turned pale. Ainsley did not want to talk to her. She looked at Lindsay coldly. "Please leave. I don't care about your family matters."

'Just wait and see!' Lindsay left behind a sentence

In the psychiatric hospital, Kaitlin had just finished eating breakfast. She had already gotten used to staying here for so many days.

She had already given up when Lindsay kept asking her to take the blame.

She was even beginning to fear people coming to her. Kaitlin did not want to hear those cold words from people close to her again.

But an hour later, she saw Lindsay again.

Kaitlin sat in the room and the nurse brought Lindsay over.

“Kaitlin, it’s me.” Lindsay’s voice trembled as she approached Kaitlin Kaitlin took a few steps back in fear. She did not want to look at Lindsay and only coldly asked, “You came to persuade me to take the blame? I won’t agree. Go!”

Lindsay’s pupils shrank, but she still approached Kaitlin “Kaitlin, do you want to completely separate from the Baldry family?”

Kaitlin was dumbfounded. She never thought that her mother would actually threaten her like this. Kaitlin’s face turned pale and she said in disappointment, “Everyone told me to take the blame. Alright, I’ll leave the Baldry family!”

Lindsay laughed. ‘Do you really think it’s that easy? After leaving the Baldry family, do you think you can still live in such a good room? Have you ever seen the public hospital?’

Kaitlin turned around and left “It’s none of your business.”

“None of my business? The clothes you’re wearing and the food you’ve eaten were all given by the Baldry family. After enjoying everything that the Baldry family has given you, you should pay for the Baldry family. Moreover, this is just a small matter. Anyway, Ainsley did not suffer any harm and you will not be sentenced seriously. I’ll ask your brother to help you. When you come out later, no one will remember this matter,” Lindsay said excitedly as if she had already seen the scene where Kaitlin took the blame and Kaliyah was released

Kartlin sneered, “I remember I remember everything! I remember that you came to me several times and asked me to take the blame. I remember that after committing suicide, you did not show any concern at all. Mom, I even suspect that you are not my mom. In the past, you were the one who cared about me the most.”

Lindsay might have guessed that Kaitlin would not compromise, so Lindsay did not panic at all. “If you don’t confess, don’t call me

Chapter 236 Car Accident

Kaitlin did not think that Lindsay would say this. Kaitlin helplessly sighed Lindsay could see that Kaitlin was very determined, but Kaliyah was pregnant. If Kaliyah was sentenced, the child in her belly would be shackled when he was born.

Suddenly, Lindsay kneeled.

Kaitlin's heart skipped a beat. She did not want to see Lindsay compromise like this for a child.

"Mom, I'll do it" Kaitlin said through gritted teeth.

Kaitlin thought that she could give up everything for the sake of benefits, but when she saw Lindsay kneel, she still could not control herself.

After the carnival ended, Ainsley had mixed feelings. She had never felt this before.

She just did not know how to treat her relationship with Manuel. The coldness of the past seemed to have changed after the carnival. She didn't know if she should be indifferent or passionate.

She drove on the city bridge, which was the bridge connecting Seattle and PineMist Island.

PineMist Island had been abandoned for a long time, and the city bridge had not been used for a long time.

Ainsley should drive for about 10 minutes on the bridge. Before she left PineMist Island, she had already noticed that something was wrong. Only then did she remember that the car had followed her the moment she entered PineMist Island

She saw from the rearview mirror that the black car was neither too fast nor too slow. She tried to slow down, but the car did not overtake her

Apart from her car, there was only that black car on the bridge.

The phone rang. It was Manuel. "Aisy, where are you?"

"Someone is following me!" As soon as Ainsley finished speaking, the phone signal was cut off and Manuel's phone was hung up.

Along with the loud crash, she almost couldn't hold the steering wheel, and the car crashed over!

Damn it!

Ainsley slammed the horn, and the response was another crash. Her forehead was full of sweat. There was no one on this road. After the bridge was a suburban road, and no one was seen.

Ainsley stepped on the accelerator, and the car rushed out instantly. There was no other way. She had to gamble!

On the bridge, two cars shot out like meteors. The black car followed closely behind and steadily followed Ainsley's car.

Suddenly, a car appeared on the empty road in her line of sight. It drove straight toward her. Her pupils shrank sharply. Hitting her car at such speed, did those people not care about their lives?

Ainsley was very fast if she rashly braked, she would be thrown out. There were enemies on both sides. She could only try her best to hide. When her car was about to hit that car, she turned the steering wheel. Although she did it very timely, she was still hit at the end of the car

Her car turned in place and flew again, moving at a speed that she could not control.

Ainsley was pulled forward by inertia. She hit the steering wheel and her chest felt a sharp pain. The pain was getting more and more intense. She could not even breathe

However, she could not retreat. She had to continue clenching the steering wheel under this pain and step on the accelerator

The car shot out like an arrow. Ainsley pinched herself hard and forced herself to calm down. Even though she was frightened by such a scene, her whole body was trembling

At that moment, the sky was misty. The car behind her was still chasing after her. The car that had been dodged launched a fierce chase after her. In a flash, Ainsley held the steering wheel firmly and stepped on the accelerator with all her strength

Get Boys****

At this time, she could not stop. If Ainsley stopped, she would die. The moment she rushed out of the bridge, she turned the steering wheel fiercely and rushed into the mountain road. There were broken stones everywhere. If she was not careful, the wheels would slip.

Ainsley desperately drove forward, and two black cars followed closely behind her.

Her cell phone kept ringing. She really wanted to answer the phone, but the current situation made her not dare to do so. The sound of the wheels rubbing against the ground made a terrible sound.

The dust went straight up all the way. The cars behind her continued to crash into her car crazily as if they were going to die together.

She knew that the one who kept calling her was definitely Manuel. Manuel must be very anxious after he heard what she said just now.

However, the cars behind her were chasing after her relentlessly. Ainsley could not relax at all.

Ainsley had underestimated the persistence of those people. At a corner, her mind was in a trance and her consciousness was blurred. Ainsley gritted her teeth and forced herself to wake up.

The mountain road was narrow and steep. If she was not careful, she would fall. Once the car turned over, Ainsley would die.

It was late. The road on the mountain was more dangerous because there were no street lights. The cars behind her directly turned on a remote light. The light flashed from time to time, which made her eyes hurt.

The moment Ainsley was in a trance, the car behind her slammed into her. The violent impact made Ainsley unable to hold the steering wheel. Moreover, she slammed into the steering wheel

At the end of the road in front of her was a curve. At this time, her consciousness was already very blurry. After losing all her senses, Ainsley could only watch herself fall straight down with the car. This terrible speed made the car fly.

She quickly controlled the steering wheel. After the car turned back and forth a few times, Ainsley's car crashed into a tree. She was lying on the steering wheel without any strength, and her forehead was bleeding.

The car that crashed into her car was not spared. It directly fell off the cliff after hitting her.

However, there was another one....

Ainsley's car suddenly turned around. The sound of the wheels rubbing against the ground was particularly harsh, especially on this silent mountain. She suddenly looked to the left. As expected, the car was about to crash in her direction.

And she was stuck in front of the tree, and could only look at the car that was about to hit her in despair.

The car rushed over, and Ainsley closed her eyes in fear.

Bang!

The sound of violent collisions and the sound of metal scraping against each other made an ear-piercing sound as if it was going to break her eardrums.

She didn't feel the expected pain, and she was not knocked down.

Ainsley slowly opened her eyes and found that the car was still in the same place as before. She saw that the car that was rushing Over was knocked away from the original direction by another black Cayenne. The Cayenne was so fast and hit that black car.

Before Ainsley lost consciousness, she saw Manuel!

When she woke up again, Ainsley was awakened by the cold. After a night of coma, she finally woke up completely. She felt very sticky and uncomfortable

She pushed open the car door. The car door that had been knocked on was slightly deformed. It took a lot of effort to open the door She climbed out of the car and breathed in the fresh air of the mountain. The pain in her chest had disappeared.

Ainsley suddenly thought of something and immediately walked to the black Cayenne.

Chapter 237 Save Him

Manuel was lying on the steering wheel, his forehead covered in sweat.

“Manuel!” Ainsley weakly called out Manuel’s name.

The car window of the Cayenne shattered, and the car door was deeply dented

Manuel’s airbag shot out and squeezed him into the seat.

“Manuel! Wake up!”

After Ainsley’s countless shouts, Manuel finally opened his eyes and moved his body.

It was not easy to move next to the airbag. He felt that his thigh was very painful

His voice was hoarse as he said, “Aisy, I’m fine. What about you?”

At this moment, Ainsley had completely forgotten everything that had happened. She looked at Manuel with red eyes. “I’m fine. How can you come out?”

“Did you call for help?” Manuel asked.

Ainsley took out her phone but found that there was no signal at all. She could not call for help.

“There is no signal Just now on the bridge, her phone had a signal from time to time.

One of the cars that were chasing after her had fallen off, and the other had crashed over. These two cars must have been equipped with signal jammers.

Ainsley looked at Manuel. The upper half of his body was squeezed together by the airbag, and his lower half was under the airbag and couldn’t be seen at all.

“Come out quickly.” Ainsley’s voice trembled.

“Aisy, don’t be afraid I will come out immediately. Manuel smiled at her

He moved his feet and used his hand to hold the airbag to make some space for himself. Unfortunately, he couldn’t.

Manuel smiled at her and comforted her, “Don’t be afraid. I will come out.”

As he comforted Ainsley, he looked at his legs with a wry smile. He knew his situation best. His right foot was stuck in the deformed car. It had been three or four hours since last night until now. His leg had been in this state all this time.

He could no longer feel his right leg. There was not enough blood supply. Perhaps he was disabled. He guessed,

After a long time of effort, Manuel said as if he had lost his strength, ‘Aisy, you go first. We don’t know when those people will wake

“Why?” Ainsley suddenly asked.

Manuel was stunned. He did not understand what she was talking about “What?”

“Why did you suddenly appear? Why did you clearly know that there was danger and still came over? And you even...” He even hit that car without hesitation

Manuel seemed to have never thought about this problem. He said, “Just sort of subconsciously

He heard the phone call and immediately drove over to find her He saw that there was a car that wanted to hit her and subconsciously hit that car first

He did not want Ainsley to be injured

Ainsley did not say anything else. Her tears fell on the car door She found a tree trunk from the ground and wanted to pry open the door However, her strength was too small, and she could not move it at all.

“Leave now. Don’t waste your strength Leave this place. If you go down the mountain and walk westward for an hour, you will reach a gas station. There must be someone on duty. You can ask for help” He paused for a moment before continuing. “After you get out, give Roman a call and tell him that I’m here. If you still hate me, you can ignore me.”

He lowered his eyes slightly and placed his hand on his right leg to gently massage it, trying to relax his leg.

Time passed by, and he also calmed down. The remaining bit of hope also dissipated bit by bit in this silence. His heart began to ache

Although Ainsley did not say anything, he already knew what she was going to say

She was still silent, and there was no emotion in her eyes..

Manuel smiled bitterly, "Just go. I know you don't want to. Don't worry about me. When you go out, be careful of Irene. I suspect that she was the one who caused this. Aisy, she is far more terrifying than you think."

This was the last reminder. Even so, Ainsley still did not say anything.

He felt like his heart had been stabbed. The moon was still hanging in the sky, gradually approaching the west.

In the darkness, Ainsley suddenly raised her head. Her eyes were already filled with tears. At that moment, lines of tears were falling.

"Manuel, never say such words."

Manuel asked, "What?"

Tears welled up in Ainsley's eyes as she laughed. "Leave you here alone.

"Heh, how can I leave you alone?"

Ainsley found a steel pipe in the trunk of her car, crossed the car door, and forcefully opened it

Only then did she see clearly that Manuel's leg was stuck inside, and there were already blood stains.

"Manuel!" she exclaimed.

"I'm not lying. My leg has to be saved by others. This time, I have to rely on you." Manuel laughed bitterly Ainsley raised her head, and a slight breeze brushed past her cheek.

She had to make a very bold decision. If Manuel was left here, he would not be able to run if there were beasts.

But if she did not go, there would be no signal and no one would ever know that they were here.

Ainsley looked at Manuel's leg and said, "Move to the side!"

Manuel didn't understand, but he still listened to her and leaned to the other side.

Ainsley found a stone

When the partition was broken, it pressed down on Manuel's leg, leaving a bloody mark again.

Manuel suddenly wanted to stop time. How good it would be if he could stop at this moment forever.

That night, Ainsley helped Manuel down the mountain and walked westward. They walked for more than an hour before leaving the mountain. Just as they walked down the mountain, Ainsley's and Manuel's phones began to ring wildly.

The calls from Ainsley's phone were from Lainey and Roman. Manuel's phone had more than forty missed calls. There were from Koen, the Gage family, and Roman....

Before Manuel could reply to them one by one, Roman called him again. "Manuel! Where have you been?"

Manuel looked at the pitiful amount of power left in the phone and finished the important words. In a few minutes, the phone was powered off.

After walking for nearly two hours, Ainsley, who was already in pain because of the violent impact, finally could not hold back at that moment. In front of them was the light of the gas station, and she fainted the moment she saw the light. Manuel was not much better. When he walked to the gas station, he also lost consciousness.

After waking up again, Manuel found himself lying on the bed in the hospital. He raised his head with difficulty and found that his right leg had been bandaged. Roman was sitting next to him and quickly typing something on his phone.

"Oh, you're awake? Where's Ainsley?" Manuel coughed.

Roman said without looking back, "Don't worry, Ms. Easton only suffered minor injuries. She doesn't need to be hospitalized."

"Did you tell my grandfather?" Manuel took a deep breath.

Manuel still remembered that he had seen Koen's missed call before he fainted, but his phone died.

Roman nodded repeatedly. "I have already told everyone to tell Koen that you just have minor injuries. And I told him not to worry."

"Did Ainsley go home? When did she leave? The expression on Manuel's face was very complicated.

Roman's face twitched. "Ms. Easton was with you for a long time, and she just left an hour ago."

Manuel was a little worried. Ainsley saved him and helped him walk for so long along the way. Ainsley's strength was more expended than his

"She cares about me The corners of Manuel's eyes were filled with joy.

Roman sighed and said, "I'm curious. Can you make up? If you are really so affectionate, how could you treat Ms. Easton like that when Irene came back?"

"Others don't know, but you don't know?" Manuel laughed at himself Roman sighed. "Those who should know don't know, but I think the reason why Ms. Easton is angry should not be this, but that you don't believe her, right?"

"You know her better than I do. You're right. She has always been brooding over the fact that I distanced myself from her because I was protecting her. If it were me, I probably wouldn't be able to accept it," Manuel smiled.

"That's why you have to think twice before doing anything"

Roman paused and said, "We have checked all the people who followed Ms. Easton. When you came out, those two cars all disappeared."

"Continue to investigate. Pay attention to the Wade family's activities," Manuel said coldly.

Roman nodded. "You suspect that it is..."

"Yes."

At noon, Manuel opened his eyes in a daze and saw Ainsley. He looked at Ainsley in surprise. "Aisy, you are here."

"Here you are "Ainsley brought a thermos.

Although Ainsley knew that Manuel did not lack tonics, she could not help but want to see him.

Although Manuel's right leg was injured to the bone, it was not too serious. He just needed to rest in bed and could not walk around casually Manuel looked at the thermos in surprise. Ainsley was really worried about him.

However, Manuel looked at Ainsley and asked, "You could have just left that day. Why didn't you leave?"

Ainsley looked down and shook her head, not wanting to answer Manuel's question.

"Aisy, don't lie to yourself anymore You love me, and you can't help but care about me."

"You are too narcissistic Ainsley's face was slightly red

Ainsley thought for a moment and then said, "I just saved you incidentally."

Manuel nodded in disappointment. He opened the thermos and smelled the fragrance inside. I've already sent people to investigate.

They will find out"

Ainsley sneered. It looks like someone can't wait '

"Do you know who they are?" Manuel asked

Ainsley sat aside with a smile on her face "It's just those few people. We will find out and handle it well"

With the carnival incident and the incident at PineMist Island, the relationship between Ainsley and Manuel seemed to have been restored a little

At the Wade's place.

"Trash! They are all trash!" Irene roared angrily.

Irene had waited for a long time. Even on the day of the accident, she had stayed up waiting for news. But in the end, she received a failed notice

Irene did not have more time to plan. Her grandfather, Brady Wade, gave her a month to let her solve Manuel's problem. Brady needed the Wade family and the Gage family to unite by marriage to complete their plan.

It was already unexpected that Manuel had Ainsley by his side

Before Irene returned, she had never treated Ainsley as a threat. Irene thought that Ainsley was just someone who kept Manuel company when she was not there

But now, Irene didn't know if Ainsley was just a pastime for Manuel, or if he loved her.

Irene only knew that if she wanted to complete Brady's instructions, she needed to kill Ainsley.

As long as Ainsley disappeared, Manuel would naturally return to her side.

Irene calmed down, and Brady walked in

“You just break something when you meet trouble. Have you completely forgotten how I taught you before? Did you fail?” Brady’s expression was grave

Irene nodded her head in discomfort. It wasn’t easy for her to seize an opportunity.

“Ainsley is so difficult to deal with? She even managed to escape in such cases?” Brady said with a tone full of admiration.

Then he did not forget to comfort Irene “Don’t worry and take it slow. There is still a month to grasp Manuel’s heart. I believe in you.”

Irene was raised from a young age by Brady, and her temperament and style of conversation were top, not someone like Ainsley could compare to “Grandpa, what about Applegath?”

“I have already roped in Ormus, but the best choice is to continue to be tied together with the Gage family,” Brady said.

Irene handed Brady the new plans. “Here are two new plans that the Planning Department has given me. I think they are both very good

Brady took and scanned them. Then he said, “The first plan is not good because the color combination is very uncomfortable. The second one is very novel but it will be difficult to build”

How will you know if you don’t try?” Irene never gave up.

Brady looked at Irene with admiration and felt gratified

Manuel’s legs could not walk, but it was too boring to lie on the bed all the time. Ainsley wanted to push him out for a walk.

Manuel sat down with joy, and a warm feeling surged through his heart. “Thank you.”

“You saved me” Ainsley shook her head.

Yes, everything was based on him saving her, but was that the true reason?

Ainsley pushed Manuel to the garden. The garden in the hospital was blooming with lush flowers. They breathed in the fresh air, and even their mood became very good.

It was pretty sunny. And it was a good time to breathe freely in such a comfortable season.

A few bald children ran barefoot on the grass. Their family sat on the side and watched this scene with pity and affection.

The hospital gowns they wore were wrinkled, and it was unknown how many more times they would run like this.

Ainsley pushed the wheelchair to the wooden chair, sat on the wooden chair, and looked blankly ahead.

Manuel did not look at the scenery. His gaze stayed on Ainsley the entire time.

Chapter 239 Draw a Picture

The sun was shining on her, and her fluff was shining with golden light For this beauty of peace, Manuel really hoped this moment could stay forever.

Suddenly, there was a cry from afar. Ainsley was brought back to earth and listened carefully. She looked at Manuel doubtfully. "Did you hear the cry?"

Manuel listened carefully. There really was a cry. He nodded immediately

Ainsley stood up, looked around, and finally saw a woman lying on the ground crying behind the tree.

Ainsley immediately walked over and said, "What's wrong with you? Are you alright?"

When the woman heard Ainsley's question, she said in a hoarse voice, "I'm having a baby. Help!"

Having a baby? Ainsley's face turned pale. She is pregnant!

She looked down at the woman. Her pants were wet. The water had broken.

She rushed out to look for doctors and nurses.

Fortunately, the pregnant woman was sent to the emergency room in time.

She gasped and then remembered Manuel.

Fortunately, Manuel had already pushed himself back. She found Manuel was already in bed when she entered the ward

At night, Matteo mysteriously brought Ainsley into a room. The door was guarded by several men in black. After opening the room, she saw a man tied to a chair.

"He is?" Ainsley looked at Matteo curiously

"He is from the black sedan."

After his sister's accident, Matteo sent people to thoroughly check the surveillance video of each road section. PineMist Island was originally not monitored, but after buying PineMist Island, he immediately installed two surveillance cameras. It was really thanks to these two surveillance cameras that they captured their faces. Although the car window covered their faces, Matteo specially asked the technicians to restore their lineaments. It took him a long time to find this person.

Ainsley stared at the person who was tied with cold eyes.

The person was black and blue. He must have been beaten by Matteo, but it seemed that he did not say anything. Matteo said coldly, "He is very stubborn. He has not spoken since he was brought here last night."

Ainsley nodded. She looked at the man seriously and said, "Leave it to me "

The bodyguards in the room all went out. The man's hands were unbound, but he was still tied to the chair. He looked at Ainsley expressionlessly as if he was looking at a lifeless object Matteo was in another room, watching the monitoring screen.

Ainsley said, " doesn't matter if you don't say anything, but can you answer me a few questions? Just think it's for your family to live."

hesitated He frowned and finally said, "You want to kill?"

Ainsley laughed at herself and said. 'I never said that I wanted to kill someone, but you seem to have done it. Since you are still nervous when mentioning your family, why do you do that?"

The man thought for a while and replied, “Bard Smith.”

“Okay” Ainsley placed a pen and paper in front of him and pushed a table toward him. “Hard, draw a picture

“Draw a picture” Bard was a little confused

“Yes, just draw your home” Ainsley nodded

Bard’s hand that was holding the pen trembled. Draw my home?

His face paled and he put the pen down.

“So you refuse it? Ainsley smiled ‘It doesn’t matter. It’s fine if you don’t draw, but I have to go to your home.”

Ainsley pointed at the door “But they will go there with me.”

Bard took a deep breath and took up the pen again. He stayed on the paper for a long time but didn’t know how to paint “Draw your family members first,” Ainsley reminded softly.

Bard was drawing three people on the paper, a woman, a man, and a little girl.

“Draw a house, a big tree, and a car moving forward.” Ainsley hinted.

Although Bard didn’t know why Ainsley asked him to do this, he seemed to have known that it was useless to refuse.

According to Ainsley’s instructions, he drew a house, a road, and a car on the paper.

Ainsley looked at the house and the people tenderly, but she gave the car a poisonous look.

“You have a sister? Ainsley took the picture and looked at it carefully.

Irene put the thermos she brought on the bed and glanced at the pink thermos on the table. She quietly pushed it in.

Manuel obviously did not expect her to come. He glanced at the time. After a while, it was time for Ainsley to come. Before that, he had to let Irene leave.

"Don't bother. The business should be hush-hush before we find the mastermind." Manuel said, reading Irene's face.

"The mastermind?" Irene looked at Manuel with some doubt.

Manuel nodded. "I told Koen that it was a car accident, but in fact, it was not the case. That day, I met two black cars chasing to kill me, so I had to get in on the ground floor."

A cold gleam flashed in Irene's eyes. She stared at Manuel with some doubt and asked, "Chase to kill you? Why would someone chase to kill you?"

Why didn't Irene know that Manuel was sounding her out?

Chapter 240 Eavesdropping

She was disappointed to think that the relationship between her and Manuel had become like this.

"I'm not sure, but I will find the murderer." Manuel's voice was cold.

Irene hurriedly put the small table on the bed and look out the thermos

"Try it I made it myself." Her cheeks were red

Manuel did not refuse because of Koen's instructions. He took a sip and put down the spoon.

"It tastes good"

Irene smiled. "If you like it, I can often make it for you.

"Manuel, Grandpa asked me about our relationship today. He said that he had discussed it with Koen. If it's okay with you, we can get engaged first."

Manuel frowned. "Irene, I only treat you as a sister."

"But I didn't treat you as a brother. Manuel, I always thought that you would understand my feelings."

Irene looked at Manuel with grievance

She was very nervous. Would Manuel marry her?

"Irene, we

"Is it because of Ainsley?" Irene narrowed her eyes

"What?"

Irene said crazily. "It must be because of Ainsley! You like her, and that's why you don't like me!"

Her face began to become ferocious as if she had already guessed Manuel's thoughts.

As long as Ainsley was around, she would never get him.

Manuel's lips slightly opened and closed, but in the end, he still did not speak.

Ainsley walked over with a thermos. Today, she had specially asked Jillian to make soup. She thought it was good for his health, Ainsley just walked to the door of the ward when she heard the sound of a woman crying inside.

"Manuel, why are you treating me like this?" Irene asked. Koen has already told you. We were already engaged when we were young. You used to treat me very well, but why has everything changed now? Is it because of Ainsley? Other than that woman, I can't think of any other reason. You think I'm a vicious and selfish person just because of her?"

Irene seemed to be crying.

Ainsley didn't go in. She stopped at the door of the ward. She heard Irene complaining, so she thought it must be awkward for her to it's not what you think it is," Manuel said.

Irene suddenly thought of the content of the meeting this afternoon. He hurriedly said, "Manuel, Applegath is very satisfied with the heard that you were in a car accident. He couldn't wait to come over, but I didn't let him come over," Irene said in a deep voice.

Would Ormus care about me? Manuel thought and mocked himself Ormus was only concerned about the speed of the factory's production efficiency

"How's the factory these days?"

Irene smiled. "Don't worry. Our two factories are next to each other, and I will check the products carefully every time."

"However, how should I speak to Koen about this?" Irene asked.

Brady and Koen had been talking for a few days just for their engagement.

Manuel was silent for a moment and said, "Just say that I won't consider it for the time being."

"Manuel, so you actually want to be with me, don't you?" Irene was pleasantly surprised.

Manuel did not say no.

Ainsley felt that there was no need for her to stay here now.

She turned around and left the hospital. Her eyes were cold.

Ainsley and Matteo looked at Kaliyah, who was sitting on the dock. She looked at the crowd fearlessly and still had a smile on her face as if she was attending a meeting with ease.

She didn't know why Kaliyah would look at her like this, but she knew that the Baldry family must have paid a great price to clear

Kaliyah's name

"The plaintiff's lawyer, please ask the witness."

The lawyer sitting next to Ainsley stood up and walked to Micheal.

The lawyer asked. "Mr. Wilson, was it Ms. Kaliyah Packer who went to the Wilson Group to find your son, Glenn Wilson, and asked him to insult my client?"

Micheal cleared his throat and said, "Yes, it is Kaliyah."

Kaliyah heard his testimony and was very flustered.

Ainsley turned to look at Lindsay and Cason. Both of them were calm, but Ainsley was always a little uneasy.

Her original intention was not to let Kaliyah confess. Although this matter was directly related to Kaliyah, there was an even more important person behind the scenes

The clear evidence was released in court now, but it did not yet point to Irene.

Kaliyah was not flustered. It was suspicious

After Micheal's interrogation, Kaliyah's defense lawyer stood up and bowed to the judge. "Your Honor, we think that Ms. Easton is the wife of my client's husband, so she's biased in this matter. The real murderer has already turned himself in, but Ms. Easton aterally believes that it is my client who did it. We want to invite the suspect who turned himself in at the time"

Ainsley frowned slightly and looked in the direction of the door. A person that surprised her appeared at the door

Kartun expressionlessly walked into court She walked over to the witness area.

The lawyer walked over to Kartlin and said. "Kartin, you were caught in the police station after all this happened, right?"

"The police found your crime scene and arrested you in that did you drive that car yourself?"

her. She spoke very calmly.

Ainsley noticed that when Kaitlin said these words, Kaitlin’s eyes would occasionally glance at Lindsay, who was sitting below.

She was very clear that Kaitlin would definitely not take the initiative to confess unless it was Lindsay...

Lindsay was a strange woman. Before Kaliyah was pregnant, her doting on Kaitlin had caused Kaitlin to become such a vicious person. But with that child, she started treating Kaitlin badly.

The lawyer continued, “So, are you preparing to admit it now? Since you are afraid, why do you admit it now?”

Kaitlin raised her head and looked at Kaliyah, smiling. “Because Kaliyah is pregnant. She is pregnant with Cason’s child. She does not want Lindsay and Cason to be sad.”

Cason looked at her with a cold expression. He saw a gratified expression appear on Lindsay’s face and found it hard to accept.
