

A Divorce After My Rebirth Chapter 41 -50

A Divorce After My Rebirth Chapter 41-A Change of Title Natalie shook her head and said, "He gave me three days to submit the design before they finish work on the 14th, but I can tell that it's not just us who got this opportunity at Apex." "Definitely not just us; you probably don't know how important the eastern suburbs are for Verde City's GDP. It's impossible for them to rely on us alone." Before coming here, Karina had thoroughly investigated Apex Global and had some idea of what kind of projects they might get But she never expected it to be the eastern suburbs project.

"It looks like we'll be busy for the next few days." "Yeah. Let's go check the site first," Natalie said.

In any case, they had to see the site first to find some inspiration.

In the car, Natalie's phone rang.

It was Rebecca calling.

Natalie didn't want to answer and just hung up. Shortly after, the phone rang again.

This time, it was a call from the Johnson Manor's landline.

"Go ahead," Karina said to Natalie and added, "You shouldn't stay on the line too long." Natalie was momentarily stunned, realizing that she was no longer a full-time housewife at home. She had a career now. After meeting two clients yesterday, she had received four calls from them. It was all about confirming various details.

With that in mind, she answered the call, "Hello, Ms. Carter." Ms. Carter!?

On the other end of the line, Rebecca clearly didn't know how to react to this new title.

"You're in such a hurry to cut ties with the Johnson family when you haven't even divorced Ced yet? It seems like you really like that man who's old enough to be your father!" "Isn't that what you wanted? Why are you acting all high and mighty now?" +15 BONUS "Even if you divorced, it'll be because my son doesn't want you anymore! You're not worth it, Natalie!" "It doesn't matter. I already initiated the divorce. If you're not satisfied, I can withdraw the lawsuit immediately. You want your son to initiate it first? Fine. I'll sign the papers without any hassle, no strings.

attached." *Are you implying that my son is bothering you?" "Yes!" "You...!" Rebecca's breathing was heavy as she grew angrier.

Natalie knew she had clearly angered Rebecca, But at this point, Rebecca's emotions and physical well- being were no longer Natalie's concern.

In her past life, Natalie didn't fully understand. Now, she finally grasped that when one deeply loved someone, one had to accept everything about them.

However, when that love was gone, nothing would matter anymore.

For Natalie, Cedric had become just that—a past love.

She had given up on him, and her attitude towards the people around him had become remarkably resolute, leaving them no room to react.

“You... You...! You need to come back to the manor immediately!” Rebecca commanded furiously.

Natalie retorted, “You can say what you want over the phone. There's no difference.” “I can't explain over the phone. Unless you want to hear rumors of you killing me, you'd better come back!

Without a second thought, Natalie hung up the phone.

So, Rebecca was resorting to threats? Had she lost her mind? Or was she simply this desperate?

Natalie wasn't buying it.

Karina Test +15 BONUS Natalie needed the world to know about her current situation. She was aware that people were watching her and Cedric closely.

The more they wanted to manipulate public opinion and pressure her using their relationship, the more she wanted to show them where she stood.

“Of course,” Karina replied.

Initially, Stephen had been concerned that Natalie might not be able to handle the pressure. Even with Stephen's protection, he was worried for her as the Johnson family had significant influence and power in Verde City.

Stephen was also afraid that Natalie might be overwhelmed and disoriented. However, it was clear now. that there was no need for such concern. Natalie seemed to be calm and organized about this matter.

She picked up her phone and scrolled through the news. There was a new headline.

[The Johnson family's young mistress injured someone using underhanded means. She refused to apologize and escaped legal consequences. Is this how we leave the powerful unchecked...] She finally understood why Rebecca had insisted on her returning to the Johnson Manor.

“They just won’t quit, will they?” Natalie smirked.

It appeared that if she didn’t fight back, these people would continue to see her as an easy target.

Natalie called Stephen, disregarding the fact that it was night on his end.

When he answered, his tone was somewhat lazy, “Nat?” “Sorry, I forgot it’s night there,” Natalie apologized with a hint of regret in her tone.

Even though she didn’t care much for what was happening, she still felt somewhat affected by what those people were doing.

“Don’t worry about it. What’s the matter?” Stephen understood that Natalie wouldn’t call him unless she were facing an issue she couldn’t handle on her own. Natalie took a deep breath and said, “Cedric bailed out the people who were stirring up public opinion. I don’t know why, but I’m sure it’s connected to Isabella.” Stephen was speechless.

Salihone we pain nudekly find This matter needed to be resolved promptly.

All of Cedric’s emotional turmoil now revolved around Isabella’s eyes and legs.

Natalie couldn’t understand why Isabella had chosen such an extreme way to divorce her and Cedric.

It seemed like a purely idiotic method!

But she also felt that it was impossible for a woman not to care about disabilities or blindness, even if they truly loved a man.

“Alright, I understand,” Stephen responded.

He promised to work on it so that this matter would be resolved quickly.

At the Johnson Manor, Rebecca had just returned from the hospital today.

She never expected to come back and be met with such shocking news. She was absolutely livid, and her face was red with anger.

“What sins have our family committed?” “How did we end up with a woman like this in our family? What a true misfortune this is!” The more she spoke, the angrier she became.

Christina was always by Rebecca’s side, accompanying her no matter when she needed support. This made Rebecca feel particularly close to her.

Right now, it was the same.

Christina comforted her and said, "Mom, don't be angry." "How can I not? Did you know about this?" Rebecca demanded.

"Yes, Christina nodded. "Cedric asked her to apologize to Isabella. Isabella is a very kind girl, you know?"

She has evidence of Natalie bribing the kidnappers. She didn't ask for much, just an apology." "Only an apology? Rebecca looked at Christina with a hint of surprise in her eyes.

Isabella's injuries were extensive. She was blind and unable to walk.

Yet, all she asked for was an apology?

Even though Rebecca wanted Isabella to cause a fuss, this matter was still related to the Johnson family's reputation.

Initially, Rebecca was discontented. But after hearing what Christina said, she suddenly felt that Isabella was quite a sensible woman.

"It's probably also because she's considering Ced's reputation," Christina explained, which made sense.

A Divorce After My Rebirth Chapter 42-Settling Old Scores From the numerous past scandals, it was evident that Isabella had feelings for Cedric Therefore, it wasn't surprising that she would behave so generously in front of Cedric. Though Rebecca didn't like Isabella, the way she was now did bring some relief to Rebecca.

However, Rebecca couldn't help but wonder. "Why is this news circulating now?" "Because Natalie has been refusing to apologize," Christina said in a low voice.

This remark only infuriated Rebecca further. Talking about Natalie was a surefire way to make her wish she could tear Natalie to pieces.

"She did such a malicious thing! Even if she was asked to give her eyes to Isabella, she would deserve it! Yet she remains unrepentant and refuses to apologize?!" Rebecca's anger grew with every word. novelbin Isabella had already spoken in such a forgiving manner, and Natalie still wouldn't apologize.

What the hell did she want?

Christina sighed, "If she continues like this, Isabella might just hand over the evidence to the police." "That wretched woman!" Rebecca fumed.

The situation had already caused considerable embarrassment to the Johnson family. If Natalie were to end up in jail, their reputation would be dragged through the mud.

The more Rebecca thought about it, the angrier she became.

In the end, Rebecca called Natalie again. This time, Natalie answered.

Before Natalie could say anything, Rebecca said furiously, "Come back immediately." No matter what happened, Rebecca wanted Natalie to apologize to Isabella and put this matter to rest!

Natalie had always respected her elders. However, she curtly replied, "I'm busy." "What could you possibly be so busy with? Since you married into our family, we haven't let you work a single day. How dare a young mistress of the family like you tell me that you're busy-" Before she could finish, the sound of the call ending interrupted Rebecca's scolding.

At this moment, Rebecca no longer exuded the air of a refined lady. She looked more like a woman full of "She's gotten completely out of control!" Rebecca screamed, unable to hold back her anger anymore.

Christina watched as Rebecca fumed, and she couldn't resist adding fuel to the fire. She said, "Ced is also at fault! Since he isn't getting a divorce, he should take control of the situation. If she goes and apologizes to Isabella, this whole matter will be resolved!" Apologize?

Christina was well aware that Natalie would never apologize to Isabella. She was using this method to ruin Natalie and Cedric's future relationship.

When Rebecca heard that, she decided to call Cedric. On Cedric's side, everyone felt like they had crawled out of hell after a long meeting. People gradually left the room, leaving Cedric alone. He picked up his phone and saw the push notifications for the top headlines.

The Johnson family had been a hot topic in Verde City for some time. Even if they managed to suppress most of the public opinion, any small incident could bring all the suppressed issues back to the forefront.

Even without news coverage, online comments and discussions could still ignite a storm of public opinion!

Now, headlines about how Natalie injured someone using underhanded means, how she had escaped legal consequences, and many others were being pushed as hot topics.

"Yuvan!" Cedric exploded in anger.

Yuvan had been waiting outside and rushed in upon hearing Cedric's call.

"Yes, sir?" Yuvan's expression wasn't much better. It was clear that he knew what had transpired.

Cedric asked, "Have you seen this?" "Yes, sir!" "Shut it down immediately!" Such extreme articles hinted at the kind of person lurking behind them. He also wanted to make those responsible understand the consequences of their negligence. Exploiting others' private matters for profit came at a price!

"I'm already on it," Yuvan said.

He had anticipated this situation and arranged for it to be dealt with as soon as he saw the news, even before Cedric's meeting had ended.

Just then, Cedric's phone vibrated. He checked and saw that it was a call from the manor's landline.

Cedric massaged his throbbing temples and said, "Spread the word. No company in Verde City is to employ Natalie. Otherwise, they'll be going against us." She wanted to distance herself from him in this way?

Did she think she could support herself like this?

Well, that depended on whether she even had the chance.

Yuvan was taken aback.

Was Cedric now planning to blacklist Natalie in the entire city?

This... was probably going to make things even messier!

In Cedric's view, Natalie behaved like a completely different person now. In the past, as long as he ignored her and gave her a few days to cool down when she kicked up a fuss, she would come back to him.

But this time was different!

Was it because of the public opinion about him and Isabella? Was that why Natalie was becoming increasingly unruly and had crossed all boundaries?

Cedric didn't want to deal with other issues now, such as the man Natalie had on the side or her divorce.

He only wanted her to understand one thing: if she left him, she wouldn't have the chance to be independent.

As for the man overseas and other matters, he would address them in due time.

For now, he wanted her to come back home.

The calls from the Johnson Manor kept coming in, and Cedric eventually couldn't stand it anymore.

He picked up the call and asked, "What is it?" His tone was unpleasant.

Rebecca, who had been waiting impatiently on the other end of the line, was furious.

"What's the matter with you? Do you know what kind of mess that woman has caused our family?!" Cedric pinched his nose in exasperation.

He didn't answer.

Seeing how he remained silent, Rebecca continued to shout, "Make Natalie apologize to Isabella immediately! She dared to do such a thing, but she doesn't dare face the consequences?! You've spoiled her too much!

"Look at what you've turned her into. She dares to do such malicious things. Such a woman has no place in our family!" "If there's nothing else, I'm hanging up." Cedric didn't want to hear any more of this.

Thinking Cedric was going to continue protecting Natalie, Rebecca lost her temper.

"Are you still protecting her?!" "I have a meeting soon!" Cedric said, then hung up.

He absentmindedly ran his fingers through his perfectly groomed hair, making it instantly messy.

His once clear and deep eyes were now filled with irritation and gloom.

With Cedric asking her to apologize and Rebecca forcing her to comply, Natalie would have given in to their demands if it was in her past life.

She would also have fallen into depression and drowned in her sorrows.

But things were different now. She was Incredibly busy.

She didn't even have time to enjoy the satisfaction of seeing those people frustrated.

On the way back, Karina said, "We're going to be busy for the next few days." Natalie nodded in agreement. That was good.

Being busy helped divert her attention. In the current tense atmosphere, work was the only thing that could help her escape the depression.

So, she was grateful to have her uncle's support.

However, she didn't know that Cedric had blacklisted her.

She received a call saying that a design project she had discussed the day before had been canceled.

"You haven't seen my design yet. Can you tell me why you're canceling the contract today?" Natalie asked, puzzled.

A Divorce After My Rebirth Chapter 43-Resign and Go Home Even if they wanted to cancel the contract, it was likely because they were dissatisfied with Natalie's designs.

She hadn't even submitted her design yet, so why would they...?

The person on the other end interrupted her thoughts, "I'm sorry, Ms. Walker. I didn't recognize that you were the Johnson family's young mistress earlier. It would be too much for me to use your designs." "You're being too kind..." Natalie muttered distractedly.

After hearing what the person said, Natalie knew that Cedric probably had something to do with it. Originally, it was to leave her without a job, but who would have thought that it would affect her ongoing collaborations as well?

She hung up the phone. Before she could say anything, Karina said, "It's okay, we have no shortage of orders here!" The way Karina said it made it seem like they were financially secure.

Natalie also felt a bit relieved.

She knew that with Cedric's interference, things wouldn't be so easy for her. That was why it was crucial to secure Apex Global's project, as the business was on par with Cedric's.

While smaller companies might give in to Cedric's influence, the man she had met today didn't seem like someone who would easily bow to pressure.

"What are you thinking about?" Karina asked when she saw Natalie was silent.

Natalie replied, "Mr. Frazier isn't someone who takes things lightly, is he?" Karina looked surprised and asked, "Wait... You didn't know?" Natalie asked, "Know what?" "Mr. Frazier has never had a good relationship with the Johnson family. So, this deal is a test of our capabilities and not anything else." Natalie was stunned. She hadn't heard about this before, but it was clear that Mr. Frazier and Cedric weren't friends. Otherwise, she would have seen them interacting over the years she had been with Cedric. That's good, Natalie sighed in relief.

With this in mind, she had to work even harder in the coming days and make use of everything she had learned during her months abroad.

Natalie knew that securing Apex Global was the key to resolving all her concerns.

Meanwhile, on Cedric's side, he was frantic as well.

After Yuvan presented the design drafts for the upcoming bidding three days later, Cedric found all of them unsatisfactory. "Tell them to redo them immediately," Cedric ordered. "What the hell is this crap?!" Cedric rarely cursed.

Even if he was dissatisfied with the work, he usually sent it back silently.

This time, however, he showed no restraint.

Yuvan picked up the designs and said, "Yes, sir. But, sir... We should communicate your thoughts to them so they understand what they need to-" "Didn't they visit the site? If they can't even do this, we might as well shut down the design department," Cedric's tone was sharp, showing he wasn't open to discussion.

Yuvan knew it wasn't the right moment to reason with Cedric. He had never seen Cedric so incensed before. The design department would have to work tirelessly for the next few days.!!

"If they can't produce anything adequate by tomorrow, kick them all out!" Cedric stated coldly.

As Yuvan turned to leave, he shivered upon hearing Cedric's ruthless words. He realized that Cedric was extremely serious this time. People might genuinely lose their jobs if they fail to produce satisfactory results the next day.

Back in the office, Natalie and Karina held a meeting and then dove into their work. The entire design team was gathered around a long desk in the lobby, discussing drawings and plans.

Any issues or concerns were raised immediately for efficient problem-solving.

Throughout the process, Natalie's phone kept ringing. She checked each time to see who was calling. She rejected calls from Cedric and Rebecca.

Unexpectedly, she received a call from Dylan, Mr. Frazier's representative.

“Do you need the architectural plans for the developments around the land in the eastern suburbs?” Dylan asked.

“Yes, I need them,” Natalie responded without hesitation. Those architectural plans were of immense importance to her.

What to build on a piece of land depended not only on its location but also on the surrounding facilities. It was not just about constructing something that suited that particular piece of land; it also needed to fit in with the overall image of the area.

“Til “I’ll be waiting for you downstairs.” “Alright, I’ll be down shortly,” Natalie replied, ending the call. She rushed downstairs without even taking her coat.

Outside the building, there was a striking Rolls–Royce Phantom that exuded an impressive air. The fact that an employee drove such a car was a testament to Apex Global’s extravagance.

Natalie hurried over to the car, and Dylan greeted her with a friendly smile. He handed her a folder through the window.

“These are all the approved plans for the surrounding area,” he said.

“Thank you!” Natalie accepted the folder with a sense of reverence. These documents were typically inaccessible to outsiders, and having them gave her comprehensive knowledge of the eastern suburbs. If she couldn’t create a satisfactory design with these resources, it would be her own inadequacy, and she’d have to admit defeat.

“Alright, we’ll take our leave.” Take care. Let’s have dinner together another day,” Natalie offered. According to etiquette, she should have invited her benefactor inside for a cup of coffee, but time was of the essence.

As the car started moving, Natalie glanced through the rear window and saw a figure inside the car.

The person looked like... Mr. Frazier?

In the distance, Cedric descended the stairs and spotted Natalie. When he noticed Irwin Frazier’s car, his face instantly darkened!

Cedric caught her in his arms. Natalie looked up, and her eyes met Cedric’s angry eyes. When Natalie realized who it was, the apologetic look on her face disappeared instantly, replaced by an icy demeanor.

od curving t A moment ago, she had been smiling Irwin. Yet now, she was acting cold towards Cedric.

Cedric's tone was unpleasant as he asked, "Why are you still here?" Which company in this building had employed her?

Natalie straightened up, breaking free from Cedric's embrace. She replied confidently, "I'm working here!" Cedric raised an eyebrow and said ambiguously, "You've certainly come a long way." Natalie didn't want to argue with him. "I'm busy. I'm leaving." "Stop!" Cedric ordered.

As Natalie began to turn away, Cedric seized her wrist. She shook him off and held the files in her arms.

tightly, as if they were a precious treasure.

Indeed, these documents were invaluable to the participating companies. Natalie had contemplated this, but she hadn't known how to acquire them until Dylan handed them to her personally.

"If you don't want to be embarrassed, resign immediately and go home!" Cedric threatened her, emphasizing each word.

Natalie couldn't care less!

"I won't go back," Natalie replied firmly.

She wouldn't back down.

From now on, she would never return to that place. It was a place she despised and loathed, and a place that had turned into a living nightmare for her!

A Divorce After My Rebirth Chapter 44-The Reasons for Her Hatred Cedric tightened his grip on her wrist, and Natalie stopped struggling.

She looked at him and said, "Tell me, what significance does that place hold for me?" Cedric narrowed his eyes. In the next moment, he stated firmly, "You know I won't divorce you." The underlying message was clear. Cedric was telling Natalie that since she was aware of this, she should stop trying to make trouble.

That was the best choice she could make right now.

In the past, Natalie would have complied.

But now, things were different.

Taking a deep breath, she said. "Then give me a reason to stay by the side of a man who wants me to disappear for the sake of another woman!" Cedric's breath caught in his throat.

Isabella was now like a ticking time bomb between them. As soon as she was mentioned, an explosion was guaranteed!

The two locked eyes. Cedric looked at the defiant woman, his disappointment growing. He thought about how the public opinion in Verde City was shifting against her. Even those who had previously supported her were now favoring Isabella.

“Do you even know what Verde City is like now? If this continues, you won’t be able to stay here anymore.” Cedric warned.

That was a fact, especially if she didn’t have him protecting her.

Natalie retorted, “Don’t waste your time worrying about me, Cedric. My presence in Verde City doesn’t matter. You know that.” For the past few years, she had been living in Verde City solely because of the man in front of her.

She was only still in the city because she was waiting for the divorce. If they did indeed divorce, her connection to Verde City would cease to exist. She would be indifferent to where she lived.

Though, of course... +15 BONUS Until she had sorted things out with Isabella, she wouldn’t leave. She wouldn’t mind if those people obtained what they wanted as long as it was within reason.

However, if they wanted to trample on her to get ahead, they had to go through her!

As Natalie had thought, the public opinion had gone completely wild. When Bianca returned home from work in the evening, she received several packages in Natalie’s name.

When Bianca called Natalie, the latter replied without hesitation, “Throw them all in the trash; don’t open any of them.” “Is it those things again?” Bianca asked.

“Yeah,” Natalie replied with a sigh.

She hadn’t expected those people to be so relentless and evil. She thought a few months abroad would help her avoid such a predicament.

Who would have thought things would get even worse?

Natalie laid out all the documents Dylan had sent for everyone in a meeting. It gave everyone a better understanding of the development plans for the eastern suburbs.

“Let’s get to work,” Natalie said.

And once again, she immersed herself in her work.

The outside world was in turmoil, and the weather in Verde City was mirroring Natalie's situation— gloomy and rainy.

Regardless of the chaos outside, Natalie remained focused on her work. She paid no attention to anything else.

As for the matter with Isabella, Stephen was helping with the investigation. He was also helping her with her business.

Right now, she had nothing else to worry about but her work. All she had to do was concentrate on her designs, which was the most significant way she could strike back against those who opposed her! *

+15 BONUS Isabelle looked at her through bleary eyes. There was some redness around her eyes, apparently due to the bandages irritating her skin. She had blocked pores and mild inflammation, greatly affecting her formerly pristine and delicate appearance.

“Ced has been working late recently, so you should be more cautious,” Christina advised, implying that Isabella should even sleep with the bandages on to prevent a surprise visit from Cedric.

Isabella frowned when she heard this, Women loved their beauty.

Seeing her skin deteriorate with acne due to the bandages made her feel quite irritated.

“When are they going to divorce?” The division of labor between Isabella and Christina was clear.

Isabella was responsible for creating tension in Cedric's life by pretending to be blind and pressure on him from time to time.

putting Christina, on the other hand, was responsible for pushing Natalie down from the position of the beloved wife.

Originally, Cedric's disappointment and realization that he had been mistaken about Natalie would have been the time for their divorce.

But unexpectedly...!

Even with everything in turmoil and their relationship suffering a blow, they were still not divorced.

“You don't want to continue pretending? That's easy. Just do whatever it takes to blind that woman, and you won't need to pretend anymore,” Isabella said.

Isabella's expression eased when she heard that.

"I got it." Cedric seemed to have been considering the idea. Isabella only needed to put in a little more effort from her end.

The hospital's disinfectant smell was nauseating, and Isabella didn't want to stay there any longer. Seeing the determination in Isabella's eyes, Christina realized her goal had been achieved.

However, she couldn't resist asking one more question.

"Can you tell me why you hate Natalie so much? She and Ced have been living a quiet life together, so she +15 BONUS Christina didn't particularly like Natalie, but she also knew her enemies quite well. After so many years. with Cedric, it was hard to find any fault with Natalie. If Cedric were to initiate a divorce, it would be challenging to find a valid reason.

So, why did Isabella hate her so intensely?

Isabella's face hardened at the question. Her eyes were filled with nothing but hatred.

"I despise her so much I wish I could tear her to pieces and feed her remains to the dogs!" Isabella snapped, her words dripping with malice.

It was evident that her hatred ran deep.

However, Isabella didn't reveal the true reason behind her intense animosity to Christina.

Their arrangement was strictly business—Christina wanted Natalie and Cedric to divorce, and Isabella. wanted Natalie to suffer a fate worse than death.

On Cedric's end, he went out for dinner and returned to the office. The people in his real estate company were working tirelessly through the night.

As the deputy chairman, Cedric was closely monitoring the bidding situation. However, he was unaware that Natalie was grappling with the same issue.

Both of them were working tirelessly to prepare for the bid that was only three days away.

At five in the evening, Natalie and Karina examined the design drafts that several team members had worked on together in the studio.

"Hmm, the effect looks good. It blends well with the surroundings, and it's quite prominent. It also showcases unique characteristics," Karina commented.

With her experience in Stephen's business, her judgment was generally reliable.

"That's enough for today. I'll drop by Apex Global tomorrow and present it to their CEO for feedback before making any modifications, Natalie said.

Her words eased the tension, and everyone hurried to take a break. It was impossible to go home at this hour, but Karina had already arranged a resting area in the office.

"You should take a break as well," Karina told Natalie.

+15 BONUS Natalie nodded as she was exhausted. She had never worked such long hours, and her mind was beginning to feel scrambled.

A Divorce After My Rebirth Chapter 45-Her Seclusion It had to be said that for most of their marriage, Cedric had been a devoted husband except for the last six months. He would return home early if he had no business commitments and never stayed out past eleven..

As a result, Natalie's bedtime rarely extended past eleven as well.

Working late into the night like this so suddenly was taxing on Natalie.

In the office's rest area, she sat in a large chair, covering herself with her coat.

Karina sat nearby and said, "You might need to move out of Ms. Sander's place." Natalie nodded, well aware of the situation. Living at Bianca's place had already seriously affected Bianca's life, which was why she had been reluctant to move there three months ago.

She just hadn't expected such tactics to resurface.

As she was pondering this matter, Cedric called.

Cedric didn't wait for Natalie to say anything when she answered.

200 He immediately asked, "You haven't gone back yet?" "I never said I was going back." "Do you think Blanca can protect you, or do you believe you can handle it yourself? Come back immediately!" Cedric said impatiently.

It was clear that he knew about the parcels.

Natalie closed her eyes. She was exhausted, and her patience had run thin.

"Seriously? I reported these people to the police three months ago, and you bailed out those people. Is it my fault that they're coming after me again?" "Natalie!" "Why are you yelling?" Natalie snapped.

She had no desire to hear anything from Cedric, especially when she remembered that he had bailed out. those people Why had he called her?

+15 BONUS Was he worried about her?

What a joke!

“It’s not a time for us to be arguing, okay?” Cedric said. He softened his tone, trying to use another tactic when he saw how stubborn Natalie was being.

“Just be good, okay? I’ll have Yuvan pick you up. Wear more layers. It’s chilly outside.”
“I’m not at Bianca’s place! I’m working overtime!” Her words left Cedric momentarily stunned.

Overtime?

At this hour?

On the other end of the phone, Cedric felt a chill running through him..

He hung up and called Yuvan. “Yuvan!” Those words were laden with suppressed anger.

Yuvan hurried over and reported, “Sir, they are still working overtime downstairs. We just sent back the drafts to be revised again. They need a little more time.” They were going through a difficult time right now.

However, instead of demanding something related to the drafts, Cedric said, “Find out where she’s working right now.” “Are you talking about the young mistress? No one would dare to hire her!” Yuvan was absolutely certain of that.

They had made it clear.

Employing Natalie at this point would be equivalent to going against Cedric, and no one in Verde City was that foolish.

The next moment, Cedric’s anger flared as he exclaimed, “She said she’s currently working overtime!” Yuvan couldn’t believe his ears.

Overtime?

Cedric must have heard wrong, right?

Something was wrong either with their side or with Natalie.

Why on earth would she be working overtime? How could she accept such a thing?

The air around Cedric was cold.

Indeed, Natalie was working overtime. Wasn't that ridiculous?

In the past, those were usually the words he said to her. Now, she was the one telling him in a very businesslike tone that she was working overtime!

Realizing that the situation was odd, Yuvan quickly said, "I'll find out immediately who employed her." This was madness.

Someone in Verde City must have gone mad.

i With Yuvan on his way to investigate, Cedric found himself alone in the office. He lit a cigarette, inhaled deeply, and blew out a cloud of smoke.

In the haze, the man appeared even more restless, and his eyes were colder than usual.

Early the following day, Natalie arrived at the doorstep of Apex Global with the drafts she had worked on for over ten hours.

She had been waiting before work hours even started, so she was freezing by the time the company opened its doors.

The receptionist recognized her from their previous meeting. She immediately let Natalie in and even thoughtfully prepared a cup of hot milk for her.

"Have some warm milk to take the chill off," the receptionist said.

"Thank you." Natalie was genuinely cold.

Karina had driven her here, but she had some important matters to attend to in the morning, so she took the car and left. novelbin It had only been half an hour since then, but Natalie was already shivering with cold due to her petite build.

However, it was also because she had always stayed indoors when she was together with Cedric that she was unaware of the seasonal changes in Verde City. In the past, she would just adjust the temperature She had no idea that winters in Verde City could be this chilly. It seemed she would need to dress more warmly when going out in the future.

"Miss, you didn't need to come this early. Mr. Frazier usually arrives around nine. He might even be later than that sometimes!" Natalie violently coughed as she was drinking the hot milk when she heard this. The remark had caught her off guard, making her choke.

“Are you okay?” The receptionist handed her a tissue while asking in concern.

Natalie replied, “I’m... I’m fine.” To her understanding, people in charge of entire companies were usually very busy.

For instance, Cedric always left the house before eight in the morning each day. Thus, in the years she spent with him, she had been accustomed to rising early to have breakfast with her husband.

Now, upon learning that the Apex Global CEO wouldn’t arrive until nine or even later, she couldn’t help but think that women married to Irwin must be very fortunate.

She was truly envious.

Good men like him were always taken, as the saying went.

She initially expected to wait for more than an hour after that discovery. To her surprise, Irwin arrived sharp at eight–thirty.

The receptionist immediately straightened up upon seeing him. She greeted him respectfully, “Good morning, Mr. Frazier.” “Hello, Ms. Walker. Why are you here?” Dylan was accompanying Irwin. When he spotted Natalie, he greeted her warmly.

Natalie stood up, breathing heavily. She quickly composed herself. Dylan’s amiable demeanor comforted her, but Irwin’s icy stare when their eyes happened to meet sent chills down her spine.

Natalie swallowed the words that had been on the tip of her tongue.

Thinking about it again, she couldn’t necessarily be happy with a man like Irwin. He was far too serious, making it difficult to imagine him smiling or even looking happy. She even wondered whether he was just as stern in bed as he was everywhere else.

+15 BONUS Wait a minute, what was she thinking?!

Her cheeks turned pink.

“Ms. Walker? Ms. Walker!” “Huh?” Natalie snapped out of her thoughts and saw the receptionist looking at her with concern.

Their CEO was indeed the type of man all women liked. It wasn’t enough that everyone in the company seemed to have their eyes on him, and now it seemed that even people outside the company were drawn to him.

“Mr. Warren was asking you something,” the receptionist gently probed.

“Oh! Well... We worked late last night and completed an initial draft. We wanted Mr. Frazier to review it so that we can understand your company’s requirements better,” Natalie quickly explained.

She had been worrying about it the entire night, and she stumbled over her words due to the fierce look in Irwin’s eyes Dylan glanced at Irwin, who had already entered the elevator. Then, he nodded at Natalie.

“You can come up with me.” “Thank you.” “You’re welcome,” Dylan replied.

He led Natalie upstairs. Instead of taking her directly to Irwin’s office, he brought her to a rest area.

“Please wait here for a moment. I’ll go check with Mr. Frazier.” “Okay.” After Dylan left, Natalie suddenly realized that her visit was rather abrupt. She just hoped that Irwin would.

provide her with some information that would give her more confidence in this project!

A Divorce After My Rebirth Chapter 46-Cutting Off Her Cooperations When Natalie entered Irwin’s office again, she was nervous.

Irwin’s expression was far from welcoming, and she didn’t have much confidence. Though she wasn’t under his direct authority, they had a business relationship.

If her designs left a bad impression, it would be embarrassing for her!

Irwin fl*pped through the designs, and his brow furrowed.

Natalie found it hard to breathe.

Had she made a terrible impression on him yesterday? Did he find her designs utterly unsatisfactory?

However, Irwin nodded in the next moment and said, “It seems I was too quick to judge yesterday. It’s better than I expected.” “R–really?” Hearing these words, Natalie felt a sense of relief wash over her.

But she remained cautious.

Irwin continued, “It appears you put in considerable effort last night, but there are some areas that still need improvement.” “I would greatly appreciate your feedback, Natalie replied.

This project was the greatest opportunity for her. She couldn’t miss a single chance to get ahead!

Irwin raised an eyebrow and gave her a scrutinizing look. While his expression was serious, his gaze was deep.

Natalie didn't dare to linger on his captivating presence. She lowered her head and pulled out another identical copy, ready to outline the areas that needed changes.

Her earnestness made it difficult to reject her.

Irwin took a deep breath and glanced at the design in his hand. He quickly marked several areas that needed adjustment and handed it to her, saying, "These areas seem suboptimal and completely overshadow the strengths of this design." Natalie accepted the paper and examined it. She didn't realize the problems with the design until Irwin pointed them out!

Irwin certainly had a unique eye for design.

"Do you need me to explain how to make the changes?" Irwin asked.

"No, I know what to do," Natalie replied, shaking her head.

Standing up, Natalie respectfully said to Irwin, "Thank you very much. I'll be heading back now." Irwin nodded, and his expression seemed less serious than before. However, Natalie maintained a professional attitude.

After all, he was a major client!

Exiting Irwin's office, Natalie found Dylan waiting outside. He wore glasses and had a cultured and warm demeanor. Yet, his politeness contained an undeniable air of competence.

When he saw Natalie, he greeted her with a polite smile. "How did it go?" "It went quite well. Thank you," Natalie replied.

"You're welcome, Ms. Walker." Irwin said "Well, I'll be heading back now. Goodbye." "Goodbye!" Natalie entered the elevator with her designs. She felt more confident today compared to the uncertainty she had when entering Apex Global this morning.

When Natalie returned, Karina asked, "How did it go?" While the Apex Global project was a substantial one, Karina felt it was still dispensable. So, compared to how nervous Natalie had been, Karina was much more relaxed about it.

Natalie nodded and replied, "Mr. Frazier suggested some changes, so we need to work on those." Karina agreed.

agreed with a nod. Taking the designs handed to her, she examined them and nodded again.

"I felt that something was off before, but I couldn't tell what it was until now." It was as Natalie had suspected. Though they hadn't said anything at the time, they both felt that something was amiss.

That was the reason Korina said "I'll hold a meeting with the team. You should get some rest," Karina suggested.

Natalie was the most stressed at the moment out of all of them. She had been working diligently and was genuinely tired.

Natalie agreed. "Sounds good!" On the other hand, Cedric was getting increasingly frustrated. Their design department consisted of top-notch designers, but not a single set of designs met his expectations this time.

He was initially already in a bad mood, and the repeated failures made him want to explode.

That was when Yuvan reported an infuriating piece of news.

"Mrs. Johnson isn't working at a company, she has opened her own studio." Cedric's eyes darkened at Yuvan's words. It appeared that he had severely underestimated his wife's capabilities.

"Then inform all the companies not to collaborate with her. Let's see how stubborn she can be." Cedric thought back to everything that had happened. Starting from her recent transformation, how she had severed ties with the family, even moving out of Scarlet Villa... All the signs pointed to her wanting to break all connections with him.

After a decade of marriage, Cedric had never imagined it would come to this.

Look at how estranged they were!

"It'll be easy for other companies to follow the order, but Irwin Frazier is in charge of Apex Global. I'm afraid it would be..." Yuvan trailed off, not finishing his sentence..

Irwin Frazier!

Cedric was no stranger to this man. Back in their school days, they were neck-and-neck competitors and remained on opposing sides throughout the years. Their rivalry only intensified as they both had stakes in the eastern suburbs project. It was still unclear who was the better man between them!

And now, Natalie was collaborating with Irwin?!

Cedric closed his eyes as rage surged through him. When he opened his eyes again, they flashed with intensity.

“We don’t need to worry about Irwin. She won’t be able to work with him!” Natalie didn’t have the skills to match Cedric. That said, she definitely wouldn’t catch Irwin’s eyes with her measly capabilities.

Cedric firmly believed that what he considered impossible would also be deemed unsuitable by Irwin.

Irwin was a man who strongly adhered to his principles and values, especially in matters of corporate dealings. He held every business partner to the highest standards.

“Understood, sir.” Yuvan nodded in agreement, relieved to a certain extent.

The constant turmoil between Cedric and Natalie had given him many headaches, and he couldn’t predict when it would end. The staff working under Cedric had also suffered as a result of their constant bickering.

They all prayed hard for Natalie to calm down soon so that the drama would end!

“I need you to look into someone,” Cedric suddenly said.

“Who?” “The chairman of Regal Horizons International!” Mentioning Regal Horizons International caused a chilling glint to flash in Cedric’s eyes. Even his handsome features, once enchanting, now appeared devoid of their former warmth.

Regal Horizons International had been a prominent player in the international real estate scene for many years.

The thought that Natalie had connections with this company made Cedric uneasy. He found it hard to believe that she could be attracted to someone who was old enough to be her father.

Yet, conflicting with his doubt was the image of Natalie elegantly accompanying Stephen to a social event.

In those moments, she truly appeared to be a woman of high status and grace!

A Divorce After My Rebirth Chapter 47-No Chance for the Johnson Family in the Future
Over the next two days, Natalie and her team camped out in a coffee shop across the street from the Financial International Center to save time. Novelbin Karina boldly reserved the entire place to provide the team a quiet workspace. Once they made the necessary modifications to the designs there, Natalie would deliver the drafts to Apex Global Group for Irwin’s review.

After his review.

she would return to the coffee shop for any further revisions.

The process wasn't as smooth as Natalie had initially thought. Irwin turned out to be exceptionally meticulous. After multiple revisions, Natalie realized she had been wrong about him.

He was more demanding than she could have imagined.

"No matter how I look at it, it doesn't match the previous excellence. The same specific areas need to be improved," he said as he returned the drafts to her.

Natalie's heart raced, realizing that tonight would likely be her final opportunity!

If she didn't hand in the perfect draft by tomorrow morning, her cooperation with Apex Global would come to an end.

She couldn't let this chance slip through her fingers!

Once Cedric got involved, she would definitely face additional obstacles in her business... Back at the coffee shop, it was time to get off work. The team watched Natalie with bated breath. Karina's anxiety levels were rising as well.

After all the effort they had invested, they were eager for a breakthrough.

"There are revisions," Natalie uttered, and the entire team slumped in response.

Natalie slumped into her seat with the same dejected feeling.

Karina approached her, offering words of encouragement. "Don't lose heart. Our team is just getting started, and working with Apex Global can provide us with valuable experience." While the words were reassuring, Natalie's frustrations increased.

If they couldn't produce a satisfying draft after tonight, it would only be the b Natalie took a deep breath and said, "He wants us to revise the same specific areas. Let's get to it!" The pressure weighed heavily on her, as Apex Global was now a significant client for her budding team!

Karina nodded and gathered everyone for a meeting to discuss what specific changes they needed to make this evening and how to go about it.

Natalie hadn't been in the workforce for many years, and facing feel a bit overwhelmed.

Uch an obstacle at the start made her n this journey.

But she knew that Stephen expected success from her once she embarked on this As they delved into their discussion, her phone buzzed on the table.

It was a call from Cedric.

Natalie closed her eyes briefly, her petite face filled with irritation.

Still, she answered, "Hello." "Are you still working overtime?" Cedric asked.

"Yes," Natalie replied.

"I'm outside the coffee shop, Cedric said.

Natalie's heart skipped a beat.

She knew that a man who hadn't even agreed to a divorce wouldn't easily let her go, but she hadn't anticipated him keeping such a close watch on her.

She felt like she was constantly being monitored, Annoyance welled up inside her!

"Is there a point to this?" She was already having a tough time at Apex Global. With Cedric showing up like this, Natalie couldn't hold back her frustrations any longer.

The man on the phone seemed to sense her exasperation, and his tone changed.

"Come out!" Cedric said forcefully "I'm busy!" "Do you want me to come in and drag you out?" Cedric threatened.

Natalie was furious. Karina obviously sensed that something was wrong and walked over.

"Hey now, everyone's working here," Karina said.

Tension was running high, with everyone working overtime and stressing out. Karina didn't want Natalie to disrupt the team's focus.

Natalie initially didn't want to leave. But when she saw her colleagues all on edge, she eventually stood up and stepped outside.

She exited the coffee shop to see Cedric's extravagant car parked conspicuously by the curb, its windows halfway down.

The man's refined profile momentarily left Natalie entranced.

"Get in," he commanded coldly, snapping her out of her reverie.

She walked up to the car door. But before she could speak, the man said disdainfully, "It's already been a few days, and you still haven't given up?" Clearly, he was referring to Irwin's excessive demands.

She had the opportunity now. But if she failed to secure a chance from the start... It would be impossible for her to continue, regardless of how hard she tried.

Natalie's breath caught in her throat.

"I don't give up on feelings so easily, but once I does.... it will never return," she replied, thinking of her relationship with him.

Her heart was utterly dead now. Thus, over these past few days, she had chosen to ignore the startling.

media attention and the constant reports trying to tie her to Cedric.

In the past, she could spend days reading reports about them.

However, now... She couldn't be bothered to even glance at them. She disregarded the attacks on herself and focused entirely on her work.

The media's frenzy continued, but she was only focused on navigating this deal with Apex Global.

Cedric's expression darkened at her words.

"Get in." +15 BONUS "I have a lot of work tonight!" Natalie protested.

"Do you still not understand? Irwin isn't interested in the trash you've designed!" Cedric said disdainfully.

Natalie fell silent at his words.

Her gaze turned cold and hostile.

Over the years, he had rarely resorted to profanity, but now he used it liberally!

That made sense. After all, they had both changed.

But in this aspect, it was hard to say who had changed more.

"I may design what you call trash, but at least with others, I have a chance to improve it," Natalie retorted.

That was right. At least she had a chance here!

Cedric used to say she wasn't suited for a job because she'd be unable to tolerate others' criticism. However, he had never given her a chance.

She was a designer, after all.

She could endure others' critique of her work, but this direct denial was intolerable. So, she retorted.

without holding back. She watched as the man's face grew progressively darker.

Natalie turned away and said, "If that's all you came to say, you can leave now!" "Stop right there!" Cedric shouted.

Natalie halted but didn't turn around.

Cedric said, "Come with me to the Johnson Manor in a couple of days. It's Grandma's seventieth birthday..." Natalie was stunned.

That was right. Elizabeth's birthday was in a few days.

In previous years, there had always been many guests for her birthday celebrations. So, for her upcoming seventieth birthday, a grand celebration was to be expected!

She closed her eyes, her mind filled with memories of the roles she had played at the Johnson family's various birthday parties. Her thoughts revolved around Elizabeth, Rebecca, and even Cedric.

On each of their birthdays, she had spent her time in the kitchen because she found it suffocation to be "What would I go back for? To make desserts for everyone?" she asked.

Yes, she had been in charge of desserts every year.

Rebecca thought that Natalie wouldn't survive without Cedric. She assumed Natalie was a helpless young mistress of the family. She never suspected Natalie had exceptional talent in dessert-making, surpassing even professional pastry chefs.

If you don't want to, you don't have to- "Hah! Of course I don't want to go! Rather than dealing with those condescending people, I'd rather stay in the kitchen! But the Johnson family will never have the chance for that again." With that, she walked away without looking back, leaving the brooding man behind.

Three years of marriage had been a nightmare, and the only relief had been this recent period of confrontation.

Reflecting on it now, she had been such a fool!

Why had she wasted so many years of her life for a man?!

A Divorce After My Rebirth Chapter 48-Isabella's Request Natalie didn't agree to go back to the Johnson Manor for Elizabeth's birthday, and Cedric was getting increasingly agitated.

At least today, the design submitted to him was satisfactory.

However, with Natalie causing a commotion, his mood...!

"Yuvan!" "Yes, sir. Where would you like to go?" Yuvan asked.

After leaving the cafe, Cedric wandered around for a while, and Yuvan was uncertain about his destination.

In the past few days, Cedric grew noticeably colder each time they approached Scarlet Villa. The driver and Yuvan were eager to drop him off at the end of each day, worried their hearts wouldn't endure the stress much longer!

"Let's go to the hospit to the hospital," Cedric eventually said after a brief pause.

Upon hearing this, Yuvan and the driver grew even more apprehensive. Every time they left the hospital, Cedric's mood was even worse.

It seemed they wouldn't have an easy time tonight.

They soon arrived at the hospital, and Yuvan followed Cedric to the ward.

Inside the hospital room, Isabella's eyes were covered by a white cloth. Her long black hair cascaded down, and she sat on the bed. She looked delicate and vulnerable, evoking sympathy to everyone who saw her.

"You're here," she said before Cedric could speak.

Her voice was gentle and soothing to the ears.

Cedric was momentarily distracted. Without waiting for him to respond, Isabella smiled and continued, "I was impulsive before. If she doesn't want to apologize, it doesn't matter to me." She was referring to the incident where she asked Natalie to apologize to her.

The first time Cedric was here, he learned that Isabella knew how Natalie had bought off those thugs. novelbin As Natalie's husband, he had agreed to her request without hesitation.

However, he had not expected Natalie's reaction to be so severe.

Not only did she refuse to apologize, but she also displayed an unconcerned attitude. Natalie had shown no remorse for her actions, and her attitude seemed to convey that she no longer wanted Cedric.

Her behavior left people feeling exasperated.

However, Isabella was now willing to let it go!

Her generosity tugged at people's hearts, making them treasure her even more.

"Bella," Cedric began, his tone somewhat stern.

Upon hearing Cedric calling her by her nickname, Isabella smiled gently. Her appearance already made her pitiful, and her demeanor now evoked a protective desire from those who looked at her.

It was evident that she was miserable!

And it was all due to Natalie's actions.

Cedric's suppressed emotions were increasingly apparent.

"Rest assured, she will face the consequences she deserves," Cedric stated.

He had been too lenient with her over the years, which had allowed her to change so drastically.

Isabella asked, "How so? Will you let her go to prison?" Cedric was silent.

No, he couldn't.

He wouldn't!

After all, they had shared ten years of their lives together!

The few years he had spent with Natalie used to fill him with pride. However, now they felt suffocating. He had been mistaken about the woman he had been with for a decade. "Sorry," Cedric eventually said with a heavy heart.

Isabella's smile faded, replaced by a sense of sadness.

She told him, I know you can't bear it, just let it go.

Cedric couldn't help but feel that Natalie deserved to be punished when he heard that.

How could Natalie be so heartless to someone like Isabella?

Natalie had never truly understood her. How could she refuse to apologize for her actions?

The more he thought about it, the angrier Cedric felt inside.

“But the next time...” Isabella began, seeming to sense his emotions and pausing for a moment before continuing. “Next time, I won’t forgive her. I’m only forgiving her because of you.” So, she was forgiving Natalie for Cedric’s sake?!

“Don’t worry, there won’t be a next time,” Cedric declared firmly.

One time was already too much for anyone to bear.

So, how could there be a next time?!

Before Cedric could say anything else, there was a knock on the door. A doctor and a nurse entered after a moment.

They respectfully said to Cedric, “Mr. Johnson, Ms. Morgan needs rest to recover.” “Alright.” Cedric stood up and told Isabella, “Don’t overthink it. Rest well. I’ve got everything covered.” The last part of his sentence made any woman who heard them feel filled with security and reliance. Isabella smiled beautifully, her angelic presence making everyone feel at ease.

Cedric, the doctor, and Yuvan left the room together. Cedric asked the doctor, “What are the potential complications from the infection? Does she need surgery soon?” “As it’s an infection, the risks are naturally high. She’ll need the surgery as soon as possible,” the doctor replied.

Cedric’s heart tightened. Isabella had already been in the intensive care unit twice. When he had seen her earlier, she appeared weaker than before.

Every time Cedric met with the doctor, the latter would undoubtedly talk about the surgery and hope Cedric could find a living donor as soon as possible.

They needed to at least let Isabella go through the surgery first.

“It’s not that we want to push you. But you’ve been determined to help Ms. Morgan recover. We can’t.” Cedric was silent.

“But if we leave it open like this for much longer and she keeps getting infected, it will also be dangerous for her.” “I got it already!” Cedric said with a bitter expression. Yuvan stood behind Cedric, feeling equally worried. Yuvan had been handling this matter all along, and he understood how crucial a living donor was for Isabella now. However, even in a world where people were short of money, no one would willingly give up their own eyesight.

What was the use of money when one couldn't see?

Cedric was already in a bad mood, and after he visited the hospital, his mood was worse.

He couldn't help but compare Natalie and Isabella.

At one time, Natalie was equally gentle and understanding, but who would have thought that beneath her kindness, there was... Bam!

He slammed his fist into the wall, leaving behind bloodstains instantly.

Yuvan tensed up from where he was standing behind Cedric.

In the coffee shop where they were working late, Natalie was in for another sleepless night.

The team was busy working when the shop's door was thrust open with a loud bang.

Everyone glanced up, looking toward the source of the commotion.

A few people in the group, particularly the girls, couldn't help but brighten up when they saw Cedric. His reputation in Verde City was widespread, making him a well-known figure.

But when they saw the icy glare in his eyes, they couldn't help but look at Natalie.

She had also seen Cedric. When she noticed the fierce look on his face, she closed her eyes and stood up. As Cedric approached her, she grabbed her coffee and threw it at him.

"Get out!" she demanded.

Everyone was left stunned.

Karina was speechless.

Natalie was furious.

This man had just left not too long ago, and now he was back.

She was no fool and understood precisely why Cedric had returned.

A Divorce After My Rebirth Chapter 49-The Conditions for Apology Yuvan felt like he was going to die soon as he watched the scene unfold before him.

As Cedric closed in on her, the coffee she had splashed on him earlier now adorned her white dress.

Natalie had a penchant for cleanliness, and she was furious.

“Cedric, are you out of your mind?! You... Mmph!” novelbin It hurt!

Cedric’s k*ss was domineering and fierce, lacking the tenderness he once showed. His sudden, forceful actions made everyone in the coffee shop quickly bury their heads in their work as if they hadn’t seen anything.

The taste of blood lingered on her l*ps.

Natalie struggled to push him away, but she couldn’t budge the unyielding man.

Warm breath tickled her ear, and his tone was gentle as he coaxed, “Nat, be a good girl, hm?” So, he was trying to coax her, huh?

In the past, Cedric would leave her alone to calm down for a while. Then, he would coax her like this, treating her almost like a child.

It was a trick that had always worked wonders on her.

it Whenever Cedric used it, it was very effective. It could turn her from the most enraged and furious woman into a calm and forgiving one.

Even when she faced the disdainful gazes of those from the Johnson family, a little coaxing from Cedric could make her forget everything.

But now... Natalie didn’t push him away. In the face of his coaxing, her voice grew colder.

“Spit it out. What do you want me to do?” Had he forgiven her?

No, he knew nothing about it.

He was blindly swayed b public opinion, putting unlimited faith in Isabella’s words. He had no intention of What he wanted was her compromise on Isabella’s matter.

*Come with me first,” Cedric said, not answering her question. He simply took Natalie’s hand and pulled her out of the café.

Natalie was reluctant to go!

However, Cedric was gripping her wrist so tightly that Natalie had no choice. She ultimately got into the car with him.

As they got closer to the hospital, Natalie's heart grew even colder.

He hadn't given up yet?!

"Cedric, what do you think of me?" She had clearly refused, but this man brought her here.

In the past, whenever she voiced her refusal, he never forced her to do anything.

But now... he seemed obsessed.

"Come inside with me first, alright?" Cedric didn't want to argue with Natalie. He now understood that she became particularly rebellious during arguments.

The current Natalie left him at a loss.

Finally, Cedric half-coaxed, half-forcibly took Natalie into the hospital. In the hospital room, Isabella emerged from the bathroom in a bathrobe. Her hair was damp, and the scent of her shampoo lingered around her. She had always been beautiful, and the post-bath glow accentuated her natural beauty.

She had long, shapely legs and the gift of natural beauty. Her inherent qualities were truly exceptional.

Her phone buzzed, and she noted it was Christina calling.

She answered, "Hello?" "So far, they haven't divorced. You need to put more effort into it," Christina said impatiently, her tone more like a command.

It had been dragging on for too long.

Originally, given Natalie's love for Cedric, she'd thought Cedric had also been raised like a prince in the Johnson family. If Natalie caused enough trouble, he would surely run out of patience, right?

After all, in the eyes of the people in the Johnson family, Natalie had always been a very proper woman. She had used her gentle approach to keep Cedric's heart.

Isabelle acted as a woman who was more gentle and understanding than Natalie. Christina had firmly believed that since Isabelle appeared, the relationship between Natalie and Cedric would be over!

However, Natalie had caused so much trouble. Yet, Cedric still showed no sign of letting go.

Christina was losing patience.

Isabella said, "I've done everything I should do. It seems the pressure from you and your mother hasn't had any effect." "What do you mean by that?" "Nothing!" Isabella felt her mood turn sour every time she spoke to Christina.

Christina's tone turned cold at the disrespect.

"Isabella, I hope you remember your position. After this is over, you'll go abroad, and you will get everything you're entitled to. If you dare entertain other thoughts, I won't hold back." As Christina spoke, her threats became more pronounced. As she finished speaking, her tone was filled with a strong sense of intimidation.

Isabella's gloomy face turned even darker at Christina's words. A hint of disdain flashed in her eyes.

Instead of directly answering Christina's question, she asked, "How do you plan to be with him after Natalie's out of the picture?" "You don't need to worry about that. I have my ways," Christina replied before abruptly ending the call.

Isabella listened to the beeping tone, and her eyes hardened.

Who did Christina think she was?

She was just the Johnson family's adopted daughter!

Even if Natalie and Isabella were no longer around, Christina had no chance of being with Cedric.

Rebecca couldn't even accept Natalie or Isabella. The Johnson family was a traditi Hmph! Did Christina think she was so great? It wasn't like Isabella had teamed up with her because she was a capable woman!

The more Isabella thought about it, the more disdain she felt. She slammed her phone onto the hospital bed and tossed her towel aside. Then she ran her fingers through her long hair.

There was no sign of the weakness and need for rest that doctors had mentioned!

All that was visible was her gentle and alluring charm!

The elevator's door chimed as it opened, and Natalie shook off the man's hand.

However, Cedric refused to release her and forcefully dragged her off the elevator.

Natalie struggled, but the man's strong arm wrapped around her slender waist in the next moment, leaving her with nowhere to escape.

Natalie glared at Cedric and said, "Do you think that forcibly bringing me up here will make me apologize to her? Dream on!" "Wait until you see her."

This time, Cedric didn't insist with force. He spoke calmly.

Since Isabella had been brought back, Natalie had not seen her once. At this moment, Cedric still believed that Natalie was a kind person who had acted impulsively.

He believed that once she saw Isabella, she would change her mind.

Also... she must face the consequences of this matter on her own!

He couldn't bear to impose too heavy of a burden on her, but the apology could not be avoided.

Natalie glared at Cedric in frustration.

Meanwhile, Isabella had put on her headphones and was lying on her bed, enjoying her favorite music. She had a habit of listening to gentle music when she slept. But due to her involvement with Christina, she hadn't done so in a long time.

It was a rare moment of peace tonight, so she would indulge!

Tue 17 meet her if that She agreed But in the next moment, Natalie continuing The age ough night Natalie couldn't break free from Cedric's grip. So, she stopped not far from Isabella's door and said, "Wait!

"What is it?" "Fine. I'll meet her if that's what you want." At these words, Cedric's expression softened slightly.

She...agreed!

But in the next moment, Natalie continued, "Have Yuvan bring the divorce agreement for you to sign right away, and I'll go in. I'll apologize however you want me to. I'll even kneel if necessary!"

A Divorce After My Rebirth Chapter 50-Isabella's Act Natalie had no desire to involve herself with this man anymore.

Cedric's face instantly darkened.

Right now, she was resolute about getting a divorce. Even at this moment, she hadn't forgotten to discuss the terms of their divorce.

Natalie gave him a challenging look.

Although she had already given up her feelings for this man... But at this moment, she still wanted to see how this man would choose.

"I can apologize if you want, but only if you agree to the divorce." A divorce for an apology!

Cedric looked at Natalie, and they stared at each other for a long time. Suddenly, Cedric laughed.

It was sudden, and Natalie asked, "Why are you laughing?" "You'd really do anything to get rid of me, huh? Do I disgust you that much?" "The moment you started things with Isabella, you should have known we would end up like this. Why bother holding on? Holding on?"

Was this how she saw him now?

In her heart, his reluctance had turned into holding on.

Just as he expected...!

Cedric took a deep breath and looked at Natalie. The warmth and patience in his eyes had all been replaced by a chill.

"Apologize." Natalie's heart sank.

She was already emotionally dead. But now, facing Cedric at this moment, it felt like her heart had She just stared at him intensely and calmly said, "Fine." There was no trace of emotion on her face anymore.

She turned and headed for Isabella's hospital room.

Cedric watched her back with an indifferent look on his face, but his heart grew even heavier. He had been trying to get her to apologize to Isabella all along.

But back then, she consistently refused!

Now, though... Was he... so disgusting to her?!

The door to the hospital room swung open.

Natalie looked at Isabella on the hospital bed and froze.

Isabella was leisurely wearing her headphones.

Natalie turned, her gaze instinctively shifted towards Cedric, who was waiting outside the room.

Cedric's eyes had been fixed on her all along.

At that moment, Natalie's mind went blank for a moment. Then, shock overtook her.

She turned and met Isabella's bright eyes.

Her eyes were sparkling and beautiful. They appeared so lively, and the woman before her didn't seem blind at all!

Natalie felt her breath catch in her throat.

When Isabella saw Natalie, she was equally startled. It was already nearly dawn, and she hadn't expected Natalie to come at this hour. After a moment of irritation, she composed herself.

Isabella's face smoothed out into an indifferent expression. There was also no hint of the hatred that burned within her. She calmly removed the white cloth on the cabinet beside her and used it to cover her eyes.

Natalie tried to speak but found herself too shocked to utter a word.

Then, Isabella suddenly swept the water jug from the bedside table. The moment it crashed to the floor, she let out a painful scream.

Natalie was speechless at her actions.

Cedric rushed into the room instantly. Isabella was now on the floor. Both her hands had been cut by the shards of the jug. Blood dripped heavily from her wounds, creating a gruesome sight.

Cedric grabbed her hand. "Don't move!" Isabella cried out in pain. She sounded pitiful, making those who heard her want to protect her. It was impossible not to feel compassion in the face of such a sight.

Natalie stood frozen in her spot.

When Isabella nestled into Cedric's arms, Natalie's heart tightened.

Cedric turned to her and roared urgently, "Quick! Get a doctor!" Anger and concern blended in his words.

Natalie also snapped back to reality, her thoughts in disarray. She stood there, unable to react or move. She had her suspicions about Isabella before. However, in the face of the truth, she couldn't help but be unable to react.

Guessing someone's intentions was one thing, but facing the reality of it was another.

She took a deep breath.

Cedric noticed Natalie didn't move. He shot her a cold look and hissed through gritted teeth, "Natalie!" "Cedric, you really are blind! You're so blind!" Yes, he was indeed blind.

She had said that in her previous life, but experiencing it again made her... Cedric wasn't in the mood to argue with Natalie at that moment. He stood up, carrying Isabella in his arms and heading out to find a doctor.

"Wait." As he was about to leave, Natalie blocked his path. She looked at Isabella, who clung tightly to him. Isabella gripped Cedric's shirt tightly as if seeking his protection.

Cedric observed her expression.

At that moment, their eyes locked, and she... she was smiling!

But her smile was so mocking. He instantly understood her reasons for pushing for a divorce during this period.

"Is that Mrs. Johnson? Cedric, you can go ahead. I'll be fine," Isabella said, still holding onto his clothes in a very composed manner.

However, from Natalie's perspective, Isabella seemed to be flaunting herself, despite her composed tone. To her, it sounded like she was acting as if she were bestowing Natalie's husband back upon her.

"I'll take you to the doctor first," Cedric said, but his gaze remained fixed on Natalie's face.

But Isabella, at this moment, was particularly stubborn.

"I'm really fine," she insisted.

When she slightly turned her head toward Natalie, Natalie could still see the victorious look on her face even though her eyes were covered with a white cloth.

At that moment, Natalie's heart constricted. She reached out as if to grab the white cloth covering the woman's eyes.

However, Cedric spun around, leaving Natalie grasping at empty air.

"What more do you want?" Cedric shouted in anger.

The once gentle eyes that were always directed at her were now filled with nothing but fury.

Natalie had been rather calm since waking up, but Isabella's actions had been too abrupt. The sudden stimuli had caused her to lose her composure.

In a fit of hysteria, she yelled at Cedric, "She's faking it! She's not really blind!" She had never been so enraged before, and she was seething with anger. All her conscious thoughts were centered on the belief that Isabella was faking it, that this woman was pretending.

If that was the case, what had happened to Natalie's eyes in her previous life?

Isabella hadn't used it at all!

Natalie had never encountered anyone so malicious and repulsive, and she felt that everything she had known was being turned upside down. She had once believed that the people from the Johnson family were the most terrifying.

But now, looking at Isabella in Cedric's arms, a woman who appeared so soothing, how could she...?!

She wasn't blind!

"Natalie!" Cedric hissed through his clenched teeth, directing a warning gaze at her.

But Natalie didn't care. She pounced forward, intent on tearing the white cloth from Isabella's eyes.

Today, she would make this blind man see how truly blind he was!

However, a sharp slap struck her face the moment she lunged forward. She lost her balance from the blow and slammed her forehead against the wall.

Her head was buzzing!

There was a warm sensation spreading from her head... It was blood!
