

A Divorce After My Rebirth Chapter 601 -650

A Divorce After My Rebirth Chapter 601-It had only been one night since Cedric left.

Natalie did have trouble sleeping last night. It felt cold enough that she asked Lydia to add another blanket for her.

Despite that, she still felt cold.

It was as if the cold was emanating from the very marrow of her bones. As a result, she woke up this morning feeling particularly uncomfortable.

Needles and intravenous drips...!

In the past, these were Natalie's biggest fears!

Every time Cedric brought her to the hospital, she would resist and make a fuss.

But now...!

"Don't be afraid," Irwin whispered softly by her side, but Natalie didn't feel anything.

She felt numb.

It was as if, after knowing Blair existed, Natalie had become a completely strong and independent woman!

She had abandoned everything she used to depend on.

Irwin sensed the distance emanating from her.

As Natalie lay in the hospital, Irwin held out a cup and said, "Have some water."

He inserted a straw into the cup and held it up to Natalie's lips, but Natalie turned her head slightly.

"I'm not thirsty."

People said that when one had a fever and felt their whole body burning, there would be a sensation of smoke in one's throat.

In such a situation, one would definitely want to drink water.

However, Natalie didn't feel that way now.

She felt cold.

The hospital blanket was thin. Coupled with the intravenous drip on her hand, her entire arm felt cold and uncomfortable.

Irwin.

“Yeah?”

“I want to see Mr. Larkin...” Natalie said after thinking for a moment.

Her tone was calm. It didn't take a genius to guess what she wanted to do when she requested to meet Edward.

Previously, when Cedric was around, he took her to see the doctor.

It was also Cedric who had handled all negotiations with Edward. So, Natalie was completely unaware of the specific details.

Upon hearing this, Irwin was momentarily stunned.

“Why do you want to see him?”

Irwin was an intelligent man. When he heard Natalie's request, he probably already had an idea what she wanted to do.

Cedric hadn't let her know much before.

“He's my doctor. Can't I see him?” Natalie said in a meaningful tone.

“Of course you can. But with your current condition, the hospital won't allow you to be discharged. Be patient,” Irwin responded.

“...”

“After you're discharged, I'll take you,” Irwin added to reassure Natalie.

In fact, it was also a way to comfort Natalie.

She was unable to see anything, so she naturally couldn't see the serious glint in Irwin's eyes at this moment.

Why didn't Cedric let Natalie know the details of her condition?

What was the reason?

Was it because the situation was much more serious than she could imagine? – After Natalie fell asleep, Irwin had someone stay by her side. He also had someone bring Lydia over, and it was clear he was being very meticulous.

Then, he went to see Edward.

Edward frowned when he saw Irwin. “Who are you to her?”

“I’m her husband!” Irwin said as if it was the most natural thing in the world.

“What about the gentleman from before?”

“Ex-husband.”

Edward was silent and instantly confused.

A woman had both her ex-husband and current husband fretting over her like this? novelbin It showed how important her eyes were...!

He sighed and said. “Just take medication for three months first, and we’ll see how it goes from there.”

Take medication for three months first?

At this moment, the renowned Edward couldn’t provide a more reliable answer?!

“What happens after three months?” Irwin’s tone deepened.

Yes, what would happen after three months?

Edward’s gaze was sharp, and he stared at Irwin like a hawk.

A Divorce After My Rebirth Chapter 602

A Divorce After My Rebirth Chapter 602-There was a hint of dissatisfaction in Edward’s eyes!

“I don’t care which of you is her ex-husband or current husband! If you value her so much, why did you let her eyes suffer so much damage in the first place?!”

The eyes were the windows to a person’s soul. They were something that couldn’t be separated from a person.

However, Natalie’s eyes had suffered such a significant blow.

Not only that, but she was also Stephen’s daughter.

“What will happen to her after three months?” Irwin asked again.

His tone was tense at this moment, and he clearly didn’t want to talk much.

“If there’s no improvement after three months, then...”

Edward paused at this point. When he looked at Irwin, it seemed as if his gaze turned deeper.

Edward continued, “There’s probably no hope for her to recover her sight.”

Irwin was silent.

No hope?!

When Irwin heard these two words, his mind went blank. It was as if something was about to explode in his mind...!

No hope?!

How terrifying would that outcome be?

One could only imagine...!

If there was no hope for Natalie’s eyes, what did it truly mean for her?

One can only imagine...!

“She must regain her sight!”

At this moment, Irwin’s words were resolute and dangerous.

“Are you threatening me?” Edward asked with a hint of danger in his voice.

“Your son, Max Larkin!”

“You...!”

“If her eyes recover, I’ll give him to you. How about that?”

Max was Edward’s most beloved youngest son and the most disobedient one. After Edward retired, his decision to go into seclusion was mostly because of Max.

“Deal!”

No one knew what had happened to that child, but a gleam flashed in Edward's eyes when he heard this proposal.

"In that case, I'm counting on you," Irwin said.

He didn't hesitate to use both soft and hard tactics when it concerned Natalie.

He...!

Edward said that if Natalie's eyes showed no improvement after three months, she would permanently plunge into darkness.

No one knew how much Irwin's heart churned when he heard that.

To spend a lifetime in darkness!

What kind of feeling was that?!

Regardless of where one went or what one experienced, it would all be in darkness.

Just thinking about it was terrifying.

How could he leave Natalie in such darkness...?

Irwin returned to the hospital after that. As soon as he pushed open the door to the ward, a fist came flying at him from inside.

He swiftly dodged.

When he saw it was Cedric, he smiled coldly. "That was pretty fast!"

"Irwin!" Cedric's tone grew heavier, filled with danger and hostility.

It was evident how much Cedric despised Irwin.

"Since that child is so important, why bother showing up here again?"

His words were heavy, and everyone inside heard them clearly!

Cedric's expression was already unpleasant, but it worsened after Irwin spoke.

"You've achieved your purpose! Why agitate her again?"

Cedric was referring to Natalie.

Irwin had deliberately said these things in front of Natalie. It was nothing more than to sow discord between Cedric and her.

However, Irwin just laughed.

It was a laughter filled with irony.

He said, "Are you scared?"

"Irwin!"

"Let's talk."

Compared to Cedric's anger, Irwin appeared nonchalant.

So, Cedric said Irwin agitated Natalie, huh?

Who was the one who agitated Natalie more?

When Cedric received word about Kayla's condition, he left Yuloria without hesitation.

And now, he had the guts to accuse others of agitating Natalie?

Why did he leave Yuloria? Did he really think Natalie wouldn't know?

A Divorce After My Rebirth Chapter 603-Irwin Gives It All Up A Divorce After My Rebirth Complete Novel Irwin Gives It All Up Irwin and Cedric sat in a cafe across from the hospital. He gave Cedric a meaningful look as his lips curled up into a smirk.

"I didn't expect to see you here now."

It didn't take a genius to figure out what the situation in Wexofrd was like right now.

Cedric was silent, and his already cold gaze grew even more dangerous as he looked at Irwin.

"If my prediction is right, Robert won't make it through the end of this month," Irwin said.

His tone was confident, suggesting that he spoke the truth.

Cedric remained silent.

Robert wouldn't make it through the end of this month?

It was obvious what the state of the Entes family was like at this moment.

Before Cedric could speak, Irwin continued, "And so far, Robert hasn't made any mention of his will."

So, any mishaps now would result in terrifying consequences!

It was a crucial period in Wexford now.

If something happened to Robert at this critical juncture, that half of the document would be pivotal.

Cedric frowned and looked at Irwin.

"Frederick..." Cedric hissed the name through gritted teeth.

Clearly, Frederick's whereabouts were still unknown. However, everyone assumed that he was in Cedric's hands.

It was especially concerning when Cedric saw Irwin had no intention of looking for Frederick.

What was Irwin up to?

Irwin lit a cigarette, took a fierce drag, and said, "Frederick is in your hands!"

"Irwin!" Cedric gritted his teeth.

So, all those sensational rumors circulating outside were because of Irwin?!

Irwin...! novelbin Cedric had tolerated him before, but now...!

"It's all yours," Irwin said.

Cedric fell silent.

Irwin's words made him freeze.

What did he mean by that?

"Once we get a lead on Frederick, it's yours!" Irwin continued.

"What are you trying to do?"

Cedric clearly didn't understand Irwin's words.

Irwin's gaze deepened, and he took two harsh drags on his cigarette.

At this moment, Irwin seemed to have made some significant decisions.

Instead of directly answering Cedric's question, Irwin diverted the topic and said, "Edward said that if his medicine doesn't have any effect on her after three months..."

At this point, Irwin suddenly couldn't continue.

He was supposed to be a strong, determined man!

But after knowing this result, he suddenly felt as if this situation was too cruel for Natalie!

Cedric fell silent.

Upon hearing this, Cedric also felt a sudden tightness in his chest.

Irwin knew? He went to see Edward?!

"Don't tell her!" Cedric said sternly.

When a person was in the dark, they would always be sensitive and anxious. It was worse when they also needed to drink an extremely bitter medicine.

If Natalie found out that the outcome in three months was still unknown, she might be even more unwilling to cooperate.

In three months... there might still be hope!

And Cedric was undoubtedly going to accompany Natalie in waiting for that hope.

"Once we get a lead on Frederick, I'll give it to you."

"Irwin!"

"In exchange, leave her."

When Irwin looked at Cedric, his eyes were sharp and serious.

Cedric fell silent, and he stiffened instantly.

Even if he were a fool, he should understand Irwin's words now.

Of course, Cedric did understand.

Irwin was...!

A Divorce After My Rebirth Chapter 604-Was Irwin really willing to let go of everything for Natalie's sake?!

He actually...!

"You..." Cedric began, but Irwin cut him off.

"You've hurt her enough. She will never forgive you,"

Not in this lifetime nor the next.

Irwin had seen this with his own eyes. So, in his opinion, Cedric being here now served no purpose.

And what about Irwin?

Ironically, a man who was indifferent and manipulated everyone like puppets found himself entangled in this situation.

Upon learning that Natalie might never regain her sight, Irwin's emotions were in turmoil as he made his way back to the hospital.

His mind was filled with many thoughts. It all boiled down to the relationship between Natalie and Cedric reaching such a point.

Cedric's own indecisiveness was one aspect, and Irwin's schemes... were naturally another.

If it weren't for his manipulations, Natalie and Cedric wouldn't have ended up like this.

If it weren't for that disastrous fire at the detention center, this wouldn't have happened to her.

And if there hadn't been that fire, her eyes... would have been fine.

"Hah... Haha!"

After a long silence, Cedric laughed. He looked at Irwin with a mocking smile.

"This is what you owe me!" Irwin said.

Owe him? Yes!

In the matter with Blair, Cedric owed Irwin.

But even if he owed Irwin, could it be repaid using Natalie?

Wasn't Irwin being too naive and presumptuous on this matter?

"Dream on!"

At this moment, Cedric understood everything, and he was surprised.

He was surprised that someone like Irwin, who had been scheming for so many years, would fall in love!

He was even willing to let everything go for Natalie's sake?!

Even before this, Cedric had already sensed Irwin's feelings towards Natalie.

If Irwin had no feelings toward Natalie, he wouldn't have desperately taken her to Mount Elven when she was about to find out about Blair.

From all these signs, it was clear that Irwin was genuinely panicked then.

And the reason for this panic was... Natalie!

But what about things between Cedric and Natalie? Should they make way for Irwin's newfound feelings? Cedric looked at Irwin and said slowly, "After scheming for so many years, do you still know what is real?"

Real?

When one schemed against others for so long, they may convince themselves that the schemes they had manipulated were the reality.

A chill crept into Irwin's eyes.

Cedric continued, "Irwin, matters of the heart are never that easily dictated. Do you understand?"

"I want your answer!" Irwin said instead.

Clearly, he didn't want to hear such words. His stance was already evident, and now he only needed one answer.

"Do you still remember how Blair ended up in my care?" Cedric asked.

"..."

"Do you even deserve to fall in love?"

How did Blair end up with Cedric?

Many believed that the rift between Cedric and Irwin was due to Blair's death.

However, no one knew how Blair ended up with Cedric and why she chose to be with him!

Natalie thought Irwin's schemes against Cedric started with her. She thought that Cedric and Irwin's relationship had always been good until Blair's death...!

That thought was truly naive.

The photo Natalie had seen made it look as if Cedric and Irwin had a great and pure friendship.

However, Wexford was a place that was deeply embroiled in hidden conflicts.

In such a place, how could such pure emotions exist between them?

A Divorce After My Rebirth Chapter 605-A Lifetime of Scheming A Divorce After My Rebirth Complete Novel Chapter 605 A Lifetime of Scheming Blair!

This name was one they had avoided mentioning for many years because that memory was as vivid as if it had happened yesterday.

If Natalie hadn't completely unearthed it this time, Cedric and Irwin might never have faced it head-on in their lifetimes.

"Irwin, you're truly pitiful!" Cedric said as he looked at Irwin.

Blair...! Did Cedric fall for Blair from the beginning?

No, it wasn't like that.

He couldn't pinpoint when it happened, but it was already too late by the time he wanted to take Blair away.

"I don't know if it's pitiful or not, and I don't care. I just want to know... do you want it or not?"

He was referring to Wexford!

Cedric chuckled ironically at Irwin's words.

Cedric said, "You've schemed for a lifetime, and now you don't want it?"

Yes!

Irwin's schemes against him had always been about Wexford.

First Blair, and then Natalie!

The depth of Irwin's thoughts was not something anyone could easily see. It was the same even for Cedric, who grew up with him.

Irwin was saying he didn't want complete control over Wexford anymore?

Who knew what the catch was?

"I only want her!" Irwin said firmly.

Nothing else.

He didn't want anything else.

The lessons from the past were bloody memories for Irwin. This time, he didn't want to miss out senselessly again.

He... didn't want to regret it again!

"Hah... Do you deserve it?" Cedric asked sarcastically.

If he recalled correctly, this was the first time they were facing the issue of emotions like this.

In Cedric's opinion, Irwin didn't deserve what he was asking.

He only wanted Natalie? novelbin "She's a person! A living person!"

Natalie wasn't an object that Irwin could simply claim.

In matters of human emotions, the key was mutual respect. This was something Cedric didn't understand in the past.

But now, he fully understood.

"Hah... so you finally realize she's a living person?" Irwin's tone was somewhat harsh.

Irwin knew that Natalie was aware of the real reason Cedric had left Yuloria.

With that said, what right did Cedric have to criticize Irwin?

Cedric fell silent, and his heart tightened painfully!

The two were locked in a confrontation, with neither giving an inch.

The conditions Irwin laid out were very tempting!

It had to be said that Irwin... truly had a change of heart this time.

Irwin had gone to great lengths to gain control of Wexford, and now he casually said he didn't want it anymore.

Judging by that, it was clear what kind of presence Natalie held in his heart.

But even so, what did it matter?

Putting aside whether Cedric wanted control of Wexford or not...

Just the fact that Cedric was in Yuloria at this moment showed that he was also indifferent to everything around him now!

What kind of existence was Wexford?

Without a doubt...!

The reason Natalie had suffered so much harm and trauma by his side was closely connected to Wexford. – In the end, Cedric and Irwin somehow went their separate ways.

Natalie's health wasn't great, so she had to stay in the hospital for a week. Lydia and Xyla were always by her side.

During that time, she also heard a lot about the situation between Cedric and Irwin.

"Hasn't Irwin left yet?" Natalie reached out to try to get out of bed, and Lydia moved forward to assist her.

"No," Lydia replied.

Now that Cedric and Irwin were both here, what would happen to the situation in Wexford? Natalie furrowed her brows tightly.

No one knew how suffocated she felt right now. She couldn't explain the feeling. She simply felt uncomfortable all the time now!

A Divorce After My Rebirth Chapter 606-Those two...!

Upon returning to the courtyard, Natalie listened to the comforting sound of the dripping rain on the roof, even though she wasn't quite used to the local climate.

“I made you some soup this afternoon,” Lydia said.

Natalie had been in the hospital for the past week, and she had a cold. Due to that, she hadn’t gotten the extra nourishment from the food Lydia and Xyla usually prepared for her.

Now that she was better, she needed to replenish her body properly.

“Okay,” Natalie nodded.

Leaning close to Natalie’s ear, Lydia whispered, “Miss, I overheard Mr. Johnson on the phone just now.

He mentioned something about Frederick!”

Natalie fell silent.

Frederick?!

She had always suspected that Frederick was in Cedric’s hands.

And now...?

Natalie replied, “Okay. I got it.”

Now that Natalie couldn’t see, she naturally thought more than others. During these days without proper meals, she had been pondering a question—the issue of Frederick.

Undoubtedly...!

Even though her relationship with Cedric had evolved to this point, what she had been contemplating all along was still how to get rid of Cedric!

Cedric prevented her from contacting the outside world.

Perhaps it was fortunate that he didn’t. If she had reached out, she could imagine how chaotic things would be now.

Cedric had obviously noticed that Natalie hated him. It was to the point that Natalie would do anything to make trouble for him.

When Cedric arrived, Lydia left the two of them alone.

“Did Lydia tell you everything?” Cedric asked in a profound tone.

Natalie was silent.

Had he seen Lydia?

Or had he let Lydia know about it on purpose?

Natalie remained calm on the surface. In response to Cedric's straightforward question, she showed no signs of panic.

With a cold smile, she said, "If I could contact the outside world right now, I would definitely send this information out."

"..."

"I would make sure it reached the ears of your adversaries!" She added through gritted teeth.

Cedric remained silent.

At her words, there was a slight sense of suffocation in his chest.

Did it hurt?

A lot!

As Irwin said, Natalie wouldn't forgive him.

She was now openly betraying him in ways that he couldn't fathom.

It was even to the extent of willingly handing over his vital information to his enemies.

She openly and brazenly let him know!

When a woman had completely given up on and even hated a man, how would she act?

Natalie wasn't pretending!

The love she once had for him wasn't an act, and now, her hatred for him was even more genuine.

Cedric took a deep breath, attempting to suppress the heavy weight in his chest. But no matter how hard he tried, he didn't succeed.

"Must it be like this?" After a long silence, Cedric finally spoke.

"I already told you before... this thing between us will never end until we're dead!" Natalie said. Her tone remained cold and calm.

Cedric fell silent.

It was an overwhelming hatred!

He now perceived this feeling from Natalie—an immense, overwhelming hatred.

Her hatred had reached a point where she almost wished for his death.

But could he blame her?

No!

“Cedric, you have so many important people in your world. I’ve never cared, nor do I have the right to interfere. But what you shouldn’t have done...”

What he shouldn’t have done was to lay hands on Luna!

Perhaps it would have been better if Natalie hadn’t mentioned the incident with Luna.

Even though she didn’t finish her sentence, Cedric clearly knew what she was implying.

His heart ached fiercely when he thought about his daughter!

“Nat, I didn’t...”

“You want to say you didn’t know?” Natalie coldly interrupted the man before he could finish his sentence.

A Divorce After My Rebirth Chapter 607-Indeed!

In the beginning, he didn’t know the child was his. So, when he took Luna away, he...!

He didn’t have the right to do anything to Luna, even if she wasn’t his. After all, Natalie had gone through so much to give birth to Luna.

Those few days were a nightmare for Luna and Natalie...!

Even now, Natalie could still remember how she frantically searched from one hospital to another like a mad woman.

She had been constantly worried that something might happen to Luna. It was such a heart-wrenching feeling for a mother!

Natalie could still vividly recall every moment. novelbin “You knew about it later, but you still planned to use her to save Kayla!”

So, this kind of reasoning simply didn't hold up with him.

In the end, he knew everything!

He knew it all.

That was the most unforgivable action he had done in Natalie's eyes.

At that time, when it was clear that Luna was his, he still did such things.

How could Natalie forgive him for that?

"Luna was crying and refused to eat back then. She kept asking for her mother! Didn't you feel any sympathy when that happened? Were you that heartless?!"

The suffocating feeling in Cedric's chest intensified at Natalie's words.

His body was rigid, and it was painfully tensed.

Didn't he feel any sympathy?

In fact, he... couldn't bear it!

When he found out Luna was his daughter, nobody knew the impact it had on Cedric's heart.

He was reluctant, and he loved her!

However, Kayla was in critical condition at that time.

"Nat, I..."

Cedric wanted to say something.

But now, no matter what words he said to Natalie, they all seemed pale and powerless.

Natalie was now saying straight to his face that she couldn't forgive him for this.

However... Cedric also couldn't forgive himself for this.

"You and Irwin have a deal, don't you?" Natalie suddenly asked as she turned around.

Cedric fell silent.

At her words, his throat became even more dry!

Did she know?!

Did she also know about the conversation he had with Irwin at the cafe that day?

Cedric was already feeling uncomfortable, and he felt a tremor in his heart when he heard Natalie's words.

She hadn't been in contact with Irwin these days. Yet, she still knew about the conversation in the cafe.

Why?

No one understood better than him why this was happening!

In the last life, although she was in the dark, her sensitivity to all perceptions and analyses was very acute.

The entanglement between him and Irwin now involved not only her but also someone else—Frederick!

And now, with Irwin still here, the implications were clear!

"Nat, he's not trustworthy!"

Cedric never offered more explanations about Irwin, but he repeatedly told Natalie what kind of person Irwin really was.

He had done it in the past, and he was still doing it now!

In the past, he couldn't explain in more detail to Natalie due to the matter with Blair.

And now?

Now, it seemed that in this matter, he... couldn't quite understand Irwin either!

In Cedric's view, Blair was such an important presence to Irwin.

She was an existence he would not let go of!

Yet now, Irwin actually used Frederick's information in exchange for Natalie?

Could Cedric trust him?

A Divorce After My Rebirth Chapter 608—"In my heart, you're all the same. None of you are good!" Natalie said sarcastically.

Her words were a fact.

After learning about Blair, she didn't trust either Cedric or Irwin.

Not one bit.

Cedric was silent.

His heart was bleeding!

No matter what the topic of discussion was between them nowadays, she always managed to make him feel pain without much effort.

"Information about Frederick, huh? Hah!"

What a temptation.

At that moment, Natalie didn't say anything. She was just waiting for a result. She wanted to see what choice Cedric would make this time.

In truth, she already knew the answer in her heart. But at this moment, she still wanted to carefully observe what the actual result would be.

Would it be like what happened with Kayla?

When Cedric heard that something was wrong with Kayla, he left without hesitation.

"Things in Wexford aren't as simple as you think, Nat! Don't draw conclusions about me in this matter,"

Cedric emphasized as he looked at Natalie's pained expression. What was Wexford really like?

Natalie had only scratched the surface. In a situation where nothing was clear, Cedric was most worried that Natalie would jump to conclusions the moment he did anything.

Just like she did with Kayla.

"Hmph!" Natalie snorted.

In fact, when Natalie heard his words, she could already guess what he would do when he truly obtained a lead on Frederick.

Frederick wasn't in Cedric's hands.

Natalie was already certain about this matter, but hearing him speak now only made her more certain about his inner feelings.

“No need for that!” Natalie sneered.

Actually, he knew...

There was no turning back once some choices were made!

Why bother getting involved with each other again?

Cedric couldn't stand it when Natalie spoke in this tone. For him, every minute of it was torment.

It was such a bitter feeling!

After returning from the hospital, every meal was accompanied by the bitter medicine. Both Cedric and Irwin were present, making many things even more unclear to Natalie.

Of course, she had no intention of seeing them clearly anyway. – In Simeria, things were proceeding differently than in Wexford.

Chaos has completely erupted...!

Irwin was right.

Robert didn't make it past the end of the month.

As the end of the month approached, the old man finally breathed his last. But what made people anxious was the fact that he didn't leave any unnecessary words.

He only left one instruction: “The document...!”

It showed how important that half of the document was to the Entes family.

When Zane returned to Verdant Villa, he saw Bianca dressed in black. She looked solemn but maintained an undeniable grace.

Her elegance was hard to ignore.

“The funeral is in three days,” Zane said calmly.

His voice sounded devoid of any emotion. It was difficult for anyone to tell if Robert's sudden departure had any impact on him.

However, when Robert was still around, he visited the old mansion almost daily.

Although the funeral was in three days, family members had already donned mourning attire as a sign of respect for the deceased.

Bianca approached him, only to hear Zane say, "You won't need to attend when the time comes."

Bianca was stunned. Something flashed in her eyes when she heard his words, but it was fleeting.

After a moment, she simply nodded. "Okay."

A Divorce After My Rebirth Chapter 609-The relationship she had with Zane was a contractual one, so it made sense that she wouldn't appear with him on such a significant occasion. That way, there was no need to explain too much to the world when they clarified their relationship when the time was right.

Zane frowned and looked at Bianca. Obviously, her unexpected compliance surprised him.

Bianca asked, "What's the matter?"

Zane said, "Is there anything you want to say?"

"I want to know when it will end."

Bianca didn't care much about the internal affairs of the Entes family. But now that Robert was gone, she wondered if it was time for the new head of the Entes family to settle in.

She had been waiting for this moment!

Now, she really wanted to know what the outcome was.

"What if he wins?" Zane suddenly took her hand. At that moment, he could feel the cold sweat in Bianca's palm.

It was evident that she had never thought of letting Malcolm win.

The relationship between her and Zane was like a strategic game against Malcolm.

When Bianca heard Zane's words, she couldn't help but feel a momentary suffocation in her chest.

She took a deep breath and asked, "Is there no other way now?"

Her tone was heavy, indicating she wasn't pleased with such an outcome.

Zane laughed.

When he saw the dissatisfaction in her eyes, he could probably tell what she felt toward Malcolm.

“It’s not that easy!” Zane laughed heartily, pulling her inside without waiting for Bianca to speak.

He continued, “It’s not easy for him to leave Simeria, but it’s equally challenging for him to win!”

Bianca asked, “What’s the current situation? I’m getting increasingly confused about what’s happening in front of me. Previously, I thought everything would settle down after Robert was gone.”

But now, the situation was different.

Robert had only left behind instructions about those documents. It had to be said that for the Entes family, now was truly a time of chaos and bloodshed.

When Bianca thought about this, she looked at Zane with concern.

“You don’t have to worry about it,” Zane said as he pulled her to sit on the sofa.

Bianca asked, “Is Yvette’s father’s support crucial for you?”

As she finished speaking, she could feel the man beside her becoming tense.

Yvette! What kind of presence did she have in Zane’s heart?

The term “unresolved feelings” would probably be the most accurate description for them.

In the end, they didn’t continue talking about it.

Bianca respected Zane’s evasion. Seeing that he didn’t want to respond to this matter, she naturally didn’t say anything further.

During dinner, Zane finally spoke about the complicated relationship between Yvette and Alto.

“The relationship between Yvette and my fourth brother is complicated. She was just an innocent person implicated in it all back then.”

Bianca had thought Zane wouldn’t say anything about this matter, so she didn’t expect him to bring it up.

However, now that he did, Bianca was unsure how to respond to it.

Glancing at the man in front of her, she could see a hint of gravity on his face.

Zane looked at her and took a deep breath. "Bianca, there are some things in the Entes family that you shouldn't get involved in because..."

Because of what?

As a member of the Entes family, Zane hesitated to reveal certain details.

A Divorce After My Rebirth Chapter 610-After hesitating, Zane said, "The Entes family is an abyss. You shouldn't keep staring into the abyss."

Bianca was silent.

An abyss?

Zane regarded his own family as if it were an abyss?

It was evident that in Zane's heart, that place was something else entirely.

At this moment, Bianca finally understood what the sparks in the man's hand represented in the dim space of the study.

That feeling, which seemed heavy to her when she didn't understand, now made sense.

It was... loneliness!

Even among a family with many relatives, what he felt most was still the taste of loneliness.

If that wasn't the case, he wouldn't have considered leaving the Entes family all those years ago. He wouldn't have hidden away in Regal Horizons International under another identity.

At that time, many people probably sought him out. However, no one would have expected that the illustrious seventh lord of the Entes family would work as an assistant at Regal Horizons International!

It was a good disguise, but one's birth... ultimately determined the many things one needed to face.

"The abyss, huh?"

The words carried a heavy weight.

Bianca felt that Zane, in this state, was even more terrifying than someone who had nothing in the world.

She had once thought herself a pitiable existence. She didn't have a family, and Malcolm had completely ruined her career.

However, looking at Zane now...

She realized that sometimes, having something could be more unfortunate than having nothing.

Zane had a family. It was a vast family at that, but he...

Even after Robert's death, Bianca couldn't see a trace of sadness on Zane's face.

Zane pondered silently for a moment before saying, "Don't meet with anyone from the main house for now."

"She has been coming frequently recently," Bianca said instead.

Recently? Yvette?

Yes! novelbin Since Zane returned to the Entes family, Yvette had been unable to restrain herself.

When Bianca mentioned Yvette, a complex expression flashed on Zane's face.

He looked at Bianca and said, "She wasn't like this before."

Sometimes, the abyss could cause a terrifying transformation in a person.

Bianca nodded and said, "I'm not trying to blame her or anything."

However, this situation was somewhat uncomfortable for Bianca, and she didn't like it very much.

The abyss...!

She hadn't thought of describing it that way before. But after Zane mentioned it, Bianca also felt that the Entes family was undoubtedly an abyss.

Those within it were constantly bearing an inexplicable heaviness and pain.

"Why did you help me back then?" Bianca suddenly asked Zane.

After spending some time together, Bianca had probably noticed how prideful Zane was.

Her methods were nothing to him.

Malcolm was a ruthless person.

Sure, she had talked about joining their forces together so they could deal with Malcolm.

But in reality, keeping her around only added to the rift between the brothers.

Yet, in such a situation, Zane unexpectedly agreed to her request.

When Bianca asked the question, Zane looked at her with a mysterious glint that was difficult to comprehend.

However, Bianca understood.

“Is it because of Natalie?”

A Divorce After My Rebirth Chapter 611

A Divorce After My Rebirth Chapter 611-Perhaps it would have been better if Bianca didn't mention Natalie.

Whenever Natalie's name came up, a fleeting and subtle complex emotion would cross Zane's eyes.

His gaze towards Bianca also grew more solemn.

Bianca fell silent.

So, what did Yvette's arrogant presumption amount to?

Zane didn't directly respond to her question. He simply said, “She can't afford any more upheavals in her world. Now that both Irwin and Cedric are by her side, it seems the situation isn't favorable.”

“What's wrong with her?” Bianca asked.

“If nothing unexpected happens, she'll lose her sight permanently.”

At those words, Bianca's heart skipped a beat.

Thinking about how Natalie would permanently remain in the darkness, Bianca felt suffocated.

In those two years...!

Under Malcolm's torment, there was a week she spent entirely in darkness, unable to see anything.

No one would understand how she barely managed to survive that week. She had even thought she might never have a chance to see light again in her life.

It was also during that time she grew to hate Malcolm completely!

She refused to spend her life in darkness like that.

But she was helpless...!

Darkness truly terrified and suffocated people.

"How could this happen?" Bianca's heart leaped into her throat when she heard Zane's words.

That was truly...!

"I suppose things between Irwin and Cedric have come down to this."

His words carried a depth that Bianca couldn't fully grasp.

But she knew one thing: if Natalie truly lost her sight, neither Irwin nor Cedric would ever be forgiven. She knew too well the helplessness in darkness, where nothing could be done!

10:46 06/02/2024 Read A Divorce After My Rebirth Complete Novel novel Those who were trapped in darkness wouldn't even be able to see their enemies! – The Entes family went through a complete upheaval. On the day of the funeral, all members of the Entes family attended except Bianca.

While she remained in Verdant Villa that day, she heard there was a significant conflict at the funeral.

Several members of the Entes family were injured because of it.

At that moment, Bianca instantly understood why Zane hadn't allowed her to attend!

Now, with several members of the Entes family teetering on the brink of conflict, the situation was precarious.

Accidents could happen anytime, anywhere.

Zane... still hadn't returned!

But Yvette came to Verdant Villa.

She brought a document and slapped it in front of Bianca. "Sign here, and it'll all be over." At this moment, Yvette looked at Bianca with unprecedented coldness and calmness.

Bianca frowned at Yvette. She glanced at the document placed in front of her, and the words "Divorce Agreement" stood out glaringly.

It felt ironic to Bianca.

"When did you have the right to make decisions for him?"

In Bianca's eyes, Yvette was once a hateful woman.

But now, she appeared pitiful.

Since Bianca realized Natalie's place in Zane's heart, she found Yvette pitiable.

How many years had she waited?

Throughout this waiting, Yvette probably never even considered giving up, did she?!

But now...!

"Bianca, now that Robert is gone, you should know what the Entes family is truly like!"

"He needs my father! And I'm the bridge of trust between them!" Yvette said in a serious and confident manner.

A Divorce After My Rebirth Chapter 612

A Divorce After My Rebirth Chapter 612-Bianca just stared at Yvette with cold and unyielding eyes.

Yvette didn't seem to feel any pressure from Bianca's gaze. She simply said, "If you truly love him, you should know what's best for him at this moment."

"The first time I met you, I thought you were quite mature!" Bianca suddenly remarked.

Yvette fell silent.

Mature?

No matter what Yolanda said back at the gathering, Yvette remained silent.

But looking back, perhaps it was simply because Yvette didn't know how to refute the older woman's words.

Once given the chance to rebut, her words could be sharper than anyone's.

Yvette continued to gaze coldly at Bianca. Then, she took a deep breath and said, "I don't want to make things difficult for you. Don't force my hand, okay?"

Force her hand?!

That was quite a statement.

Bianca just continued to stare coldly at Yvette.

Yvette took another deep breath. "You're not from Simeria. You don't understand what's brewing beneath the surface here."

"Why get hurt for no reason?"

Since being tough on Bianca didn't work, Yvette tried going for a softer method instead!

But perhaps Yvette didn't know what Bianca's job was or what she detested the most.

Even though Bianca had a certain relationship with Zane, being provoked like this still left a bitter taste in her mouth.

"You're too full of yourself!" Bianca finally retorted.

Some things change!

Especially a person's heart.

"So, you won't sign it?" Yvette asked, and her gaze turned colder.

"What, do you have even more ruthless methods?" Bianca shot back as she casually took a sip of her tea.

Her casual demeanor evidently irked Yvette.

"Bianca, I pity you for not being from Simeria. That's why I was being kind enough to offer you some advice. But it seems you don't know your place."

Kind enough to offer her some advice?

After enduring numerous divorce lawsuits, Bianca had never seen such a brazen and self-righteous attempt to coerce a woman who was the legal wife of a man. But Bianca wasn't afraid of these things.

Clack!

Bianca slammed the teacup heavily onto the coffee table. As she rose from her seat, she emanated an overwhelming sense of pressure!

With her naturally tall stature, she naturally gave off an oppressive feeling when she stood up!

"Are you leaving?" Bianca asked, "You..."

"I advise you to leave now. I have my limits. I don't feel like humiliating someone, even if it would take little effort," Bianca said slowly and firmly.

At her words, Yvette's already strained expression turned even paler. Her gaze towards Bianca became thoroughly vicious.

Was this what Zane meant by the abyss changing a person?

Bianca also believed that Yvette wasn't the person she was now when she married Alto, right?

It was just unfortunate that after being rolled in the mud for so long, Yvette had become covered in it herself.

Over time, Yvette herself didn't even know what kind of person she had become.

She simply waited blindly for so many years.

"Do you think Lord Malcolm will let you off easily?" Yvette trembled and asked as she looked at Bianca.

Yes, Malcolm!

Yvette trembled violently at the thought.

When Malcolm's name was mentioned, Bianca's expression soured.

Yvette continued to tremble as she added, "You have no idea what the Entes family is like now, do you? Do you want to kill him?"

A Divorce After My Rebirth Chapter 613-She Could Compromise Everything for This
Malcolm's true nature was well-known throughout Simeria.

With Robert gone now, Bianca was an existence that Malcolm detested the most. That was also before considering how the relationship between Zane and Malcolm has always been antagonistic!

In this light, Malcolm may hold Zane accountable for Bianca's affairs and intensify the rift between them.

"Bianca, what right do you have to make him protect you like this?" Yvette raged at Bianca.

Indeed.

Zane was protecting Bianca.

And one could only imagine the consequences for Zane to protect Bianca in this manner!

Malcolm had always been vengeful.

In such circumstances, things were bound to get worse.

Bianca fell silent.

Protecting her?

Why would Zane protect her?

Obviously, Bianca knew the reason!

However, Yvette didn't.

But in Yvette's opinion, Zane shouldn't be doing such a thing now!

"Bianca, consider this as me begging you, okay?! They've hurt me once, and I can't let them hurt me again..."

When Yvette reached this point, cold sweat poured down her forehead, and she trembled uncontrollably.

It was evident how much psychological trauma her past marriage with Alto had inflicted upon her.

Bianca was silent.

Suddenly, she felt that this woman's hysteria wasn't entirely despicable.

She... was just too afraid!

"I know all about the grudges between you and Lord Malcolm, Bianca. You know how terrifying he is.

Leave Simeria and go somewhere far away, okay?"

That was right.

In Yvette's eyes, Bianca absolutely couldn't stay by Zane's side.

As long as Bianca stayed with Zane, it would only further harm him.

"Do you think if I leave, the conflicts between them will cease?" Bianca shot back.

"But if you continue to stay with him, Lord Malcolm will surely hold him responsible for everything!

Don't you understand by now? They're truly at a critical juncture!"

"I don't want anything to happen to him!" Yvette exclaimed firmly.

She had to eliminate every possibility of harm to Zane.

Why did she break off her relationship with Alto so directly?

It was to deprive the Stewart family of reasons to help Alto.

Furthermore, she separated from Alto in such a firm manner! In fact, her actions indirectly caused the rupture between Alto and the Stewart family.

Everyone regarded her as if she were a lunatic, destroying everything as if she had gone mad...!

However, they didn't know that such destruction seemed to tarnish her reputation and undermine Zane only on the surface.

The true impact was that it had actually dismantled those connections they had.

Even if Yvette lost herself, she couldn't let those hidden forces side with Alto and Malcolm. She could give up everything.

For Zane, she could truly forsake anything, but she couldn't bear Zane encountering any mishap.

She wouldn't tolerate any mishap happening to Zane!

That was what Yvette truly wished for.

Bianca looked at Yvette, and the two stood silently facing each other.

"Please, I'm begging you."

When she noted how Bianca stared at her so coldly, Yvette's eyes suddenly revealed a sense of helplessness.

She was afraid!

She was truly terrified...!

Despite usually shrouding herself with a hardened mask, she felt extremely suffocated at this moment.

Once, Yvette could act arrogantly before everyone else.

But in reality, it was only because things hadn't reached a critical point yet

A Divorce After My Rebirth Chapter 614-Remembering One's Identity At this moment, how could Yvette still display the elegance and gracefulness she once possessed?

All her restraint had erupted, revealing Yvette's true nature.

When Zane returned, there was a chilly air about him. It was undoubtedly because of the events at the novelbin funeral earlier today.

The Stewart family was undoubtedly involved, so a cold glint flashed in his eyes when he saw Yvette in Verdant Villa.

"Why are you here?"

His icy words snapped both women back to reality.

Yvette turned to look at Zane as he strode towards them.

When he reached them, his gaze fell upon the divorce agreement on the table.

If possible, his eyes even colder.

Yvette's heart leaped into her throat, and Bianca's expression didn't look any better.

Zane looked at Yvette. "I told you not to come here again!"

His words were icy and cutting.

Yvette was silent. Her already pale face now seemed even paler, almost translucent.

She stared at Zane, speechless. She was unable to react for a long time.

He was protecting Bianca...?

Yes, wasn't this action protecting her?

He had anticipated that there might be an accident at the funeral today. That was why he didn't allow Bianca to come, even though everyone else from the Entes family had!

Because he wanted to protect her, he forbade Yvette from coming to Verdant Villa!

He had changed... everything had changed!

Zane was now protecting Bianca so fiercely.

Did this woman really mean that much to him?

Yvette looked at Zane silently, her eyes filled with indescribable pain and disappointment.

"Sebastian."

"Yes, Lord Zane!"

"Have someone take the fourth lady back home," Zane instructed in a frigid tone as he pulled Bianca into his embrace.

His instinctive action was like a sharp blade, piercing deeply into Yvette's heart.

It hurt so much that she felt suffocated, and her world seemed to crumble before her eyes.

Bianca instinctively struggled, but Zane tightened his grip on her.

As Sebastian approached, Yvette's voice rang out, cold and unyielding, "I'm no longer Lord Alto's wife!"

Her tone was icy, and she had hissed those words through gritted teeth. It was almost as if she was vehemently reminding Zane of the state she was in right now.

No one knew the despair in Yvette's heart when she heard Zane address her like that.

She detested that identity and title so much...!

Whenever others referred to her in a way that reminded her of her identity, she had to put on a kind facade to deal with it.

But what hurt the most was when even Zane referred to her that way.

Bianca could clearly see the pain in Yvette's eyes.

"Lady Yvette..." Sebastian called tentatively.

At that moment, something snapped in Yvette's mind.

"I told you I'm not married anymore... I'm not the fourth lady!"

Her hysterical outburst served as a reminder to those around her, yet it seemed as though they couldn't hear her at all!

She would never forget the night of her wedding. Alto had spoken like the devil in her ears.

"You'll forever be known as the Entes family's fourth lady."

That was what he had said.

Forever...!

How terrifying was that?!

It reminded her that the past was gone, but she couldn't shake off her present reality.

For so many years, even until now, that title had stuck to her like a shadow.

Yvette had doubted it then, but she believed it now.

A Divorce After My Rebirth Chapter 615-This Protection In the end, Yvette was escorted away.

Before she left, her last glance at Zane was heavy and painful. It stirred something within Bianca's heart.

At that moment, Bianca seemed to instantly understand what Yvette had been concealing behind her aloof facade all these years.

As they said, "You can't force what wasn't meant to be."

Her unwillingness back then was genuine.

Even after so many years, Yvette couldn't change anything.

A woman's fate, at times, was tragic... especially when she couldn't choose her own future.

Zane glanced at her, then at the divorce agreement. When he released her and reached for it, the veins on his hands were visible from his anger.

Just as he was about to tear it apart, Bianca said, "Wait!"

Zane turned silently to look at Bianca.

She approached him and slowly took the document from his hand. Then, she said, "We'll have to sign it sooner or later."

"Bianca!"

"I don't know what the Entes family is like now! But Robert's passing hasn't settled the disputes within the family. In fact, it seems to have made things more complicated," Bianca carefully said as she looked at Zane.

There was a twinge of pain and suffocation when she said those words.

"You...!"

"Malcolm is after you now, isn't he?"

Zane's eyes flickered when she finished speaking, making Bianca realize that at least Yvette hadn't deceived her.

She had spoken the truth.

According to their initial predictions, Robert's passing would have settled everything.

Bianca would have gained complete freedom.

However, Robert's death left no final resolution, and it tore the family apart instantly.

The document was now crucial. Yet, Frederick was missing, and Cedric held the other half. With how things were now, it would be tough for both sides. It wouldn't be so simple to resolve this matter fully.

If Bianca stayed by Zane's side now, it would serve no other purpose apart from burdening him.

It was a loss!

It wasn't Zane who lost.

It was Bianca's loss.

Ultimately, she had lost to that man.

She had been too naive.

Bianca took a deep breath and said, "Zane, thank you for protecting me all this time."

She was speaking the truth.

If she hadn't met Zane that day and hadn't reached an agreement with him, she knew she wouldn't be alive now.

Also, regarding Robert's death...

Bianca knew that Malcolm definitely had a hand in it!

"I know why you're protecting me like this, but I want you to win," Bianca said firmly.

She was sincere, yet her words were also heavy with pain.

Yes.

She hoped Zane would win.

Zane chuckled. "Why do you think I'm protecting you so much?"

Why?

Bianca fell silent.

Why?

In fact, wouldn't it be better if it weren't for that particular reason?

Bianca had never liked anyone in her life. When she was in Verde City, doing that kind of work made her numb to men and emotions.

Even facing those tasks for the purpose of work left her with psychological scars.

She felt that nothing in this world was real, and the only thing real in this world was herself.

But Simeria was an exception.

It subjected her to hardships but also made her feel what it was like to be protected, even though that protection was mixed with other elements.

A Divorce After My Rebirth Chapter 616-Don't Let Her Suffer Yet she still knew that there were precious emotions in this world.

Bianca approached Zane and carefully adjusted his tie.

At this moment, even her breathing felt suffocating and painful!

It was the first time she felt such discomfort.

"I still prefer the life I used to have."

The life she had when it was untouched by Malcolm.

Back then, she was carefree, proud, and unrestrained.

In her world, she was proud, with no hindrances.

But now?

This was an abyss she had never expected to experience in her lifetime.

"Bianca!"

"The Entes family is an abyss, and even Simeria is an abyss to me!" Bianca said deliberately.

Everything she had was ruined the moment she set foot on the land of Simeria.

Did it hurt?

Yes, it did!

Was it suffocating?

It was!

In the past, Bianca never imagined her life would have such ups and downs.

She gently adjusted the man's tie and then said, "Nat's world is in turmoil. Don't let her suffer."

Zane was silent, and his eyes darkened slightly at Bianca's words.

In Bianca's eyes, Natalie... was truly pitiful!

She had gone to great lengths to leave Cedric, even to escape Irwin. However, these two men kept bugging her. Because of such ridiculous reasons, they made her life so miserable...!

If it weren't for Cedric and Irwin, Natalie... would have had her own career!

She would have stood in a lofty position and be carefree.

But because of Irwin and Cedric, everything was ruined.

Now, Natalie was even stuck in the darkness.

"Bianca!"

Zane's tone grew more solemn, and he looked into her eyes deeply.

What was the reason she thought he was protecting her?

It was because of Natalie!

"I want to leave Simeria," Bianca said.

Clearly, Bianca didn't understand the man's reactions to her words.

"You want to leave?"

"Yes." Bianca nodded. She really wanted to leave this place.

It was too much for her.

"Can you?" Zane's tone was heavy and serious.

Bianca fell silent.

Could she?

In fact, this decision was quite sudden for her, and she knew that leaving here would be extremely difficult.

If she could leave Simeria so easily, then she wouldn't have gotten involved with Zane.

And now...!

Whether it was about Faye or Jade...

That dreadful man had almost entirely pinned everything on her...!

Yes, Malcolm attributed everything to her. It made it impossible for her to shake him off!

“Bianca, do you think the abyss will let you escape so easily?”

Would it? Obviously not!

If the abyss could be so easily shaken off, it wouldn't be called that.

The reason it was called an abyss was that once people were trapped in it, getting out was not that easy.

“But if I stay with you...”

“Shut up!” Zane harshly interrupted Bianca.

Something was spreading intricately in Bianca's heart, and the feeling was far from pleasant.

Zane glanced at her and said, “Just be good and stay in the villa, okay?”

“Yvette...”

“You don't need to worry about her. She won't come and bother you again!” novelbin.

A Divorce After My Rebirth Chapter 617-A Month Later Bother her?

Zane was wrong.

Bianca looked at Zane, unsure of what to say for a moment, then took a deep breath.

“So, have things between Yvette and Lord Alto been cleared up now?”

That was right!

Previously, Yvette mentioned that her relationship with Alto had soured.

Why?

It wasn't just a matter of emotions.

It also involved disrupting the connections between the Stewart family and Alto in such a forceful manner.

Undoubtedly, by severing these ties so directly, she had greatly offended the Entes family's fourth lord...!

Clearly, the relationship between the Stewart family and Alto was fractured now!

If Zane were to receive support from the Stewart family at this time, it was clear that he would be in a much more advantageous situation.

But it was still a mistake. The circumstances were different from before! Previously, they had placed all their hopes on the passing of the old master.

But now?

With Robert gone, things had become more complex and serious.

Zane frowned when Bianca brought up the relationship between Yvette and Alto.

"That's their business!"

Their business?

So, that was how Zane saw it.

Or was there something that happened back then that Bianca didn't know about? Did it cause him to have a different view of Yvette or Alto?

If nothing had happened, Zane wouldn't be so indifferent now.

Bianca couldn't see things clearly! She now fully understood what it meant to be uncertain.

"What about Lord Malcolm...?"

Even now, Bianca couldn't help but tense up when they talked about Malcolm.

It showed what kind of trauma Malcolm had left in her heart. Even though so much time had passed, she couldn't help but feel anxious. novelbin "Don't worry about it. Just be good and stay in the villa, okay?"

Clearly, Zane didn't want Bianca to know more.

As he said, whether it was Simeria or the Entes family, they were both abysses!

And he... wouldn't let her gaze into the abyss.

This reassurance weighed heavily on Bianca.

Even though Zane had now excluded her from the situation, she still felt the chaos of Simeria. This kind of turmoil evidently affected her, and the taste of it was unbearable for her.

Similar to the chaos and urgency in Simeria, tensions persisted between Irwin and Cedric in Yuloria.

At the breakfast table, the food that was served was Yuloria's specialty, which Natalie enjoyed.

"It's been raining for half a month now. Who knows when it will stop!" Lydia remarked, clearly not accustomed to this weather and climate.

Because she was unused to it, she complained more than usual about it.

"Take your medicine first," Cedric said.

Cedric had returned from Wexford after hearing about Irwin's arrival here. He hadn't left Natalie's side since then, regardless of any news from Wexford.

He was evidently on guard against Irwin.

Natalie asked, "How long has it been?"

"How long has what been?" Cedric asked.

"This medicine. How long have I been taking it?" Natalie's tone was faint, but a careful listener could detect the trembling in her voice.

It was clear that the medicine was a terrible experience for her. It was very bitter, and she had to be forced to drink it three times a day.

"Almost a month," Cedric replied.

Almost a month.

In the darkness, time was so agonizing.

It felt as if more time than that had passed in her world...!

A Divorce After My Rebirth Chapter 618-Can You Afford to Wait?

When she thought about how she might spend the rest of her life in this darkness, Natalie's heart tightened.

It was too long!

There was very little one could do in the darkness besides hearing sounds. No wonder some people said not everyone had the courage to face the darkness.

And now, Natalie felt she lacked the courage to face this darkness.

“Take me back to Simeria,” Natalie said after taking a deep breath.

Cedric was already tensed, and he felt more suffocated upon hearing Natalie’s request.

“Nat!”

“Mr. Larkin is a good doctor, but I feel nothing from taking this medicine,” Natalie said.

It would be better for her to get surgery.

That was the only thing on Natalie’s mind now.

Feeling nothing was the scariest part.

Cedric understood the implications in her tone. A hint of hurt and pain flashed in his eyes.

“Have you considered that surgery might...”

It would be great if the surgery were successful, but what if it failed?

Eye surgery was different from other surgeries.

If it failed, it would truly be a failure.

But with Edward’s expertise, there was still some hope for Natalie.

If this ultimately failed, they could still consider surgery.

Cedric was scared.

In fact, he was terrified, especially when it came to Natalie.

Even if it took a lot of time, he was willing to do it. novelbin “Natalie, I’m afraid,” Cedric said slowly.

Yes, he was afraid.

He was afraid of the surgery failing. If it did fail, Natalie would be in darkness for the rest of her life.

What would that even mean?

Cedric didn't want to face such a heavy outcome.

Upon hearing Cedric's words, Natalie reacted as if she had heard a joke.

"Hah!"

Afraid? Of what?

He said that he had chased her across one lifetime. So, if the surgery failed, his conscience would never find peace!

That was what he was really afraid of, right?

In this aspect, Natalie seemed to have seen through Cedric completely.

Without a doubt, it boiled down to her lack of trust in Cedric's feelings that led to such sentiments.

"Nat, wait a bit more, okay?"

"Can you afford to wait?" Cedric asked.

"I... can!" Cedric said carefully.

It was a rare sight.

This was the first time he showed such patience for her sake.

It seemed that Cedric was actually afraid when Natalie was tethering on the edge of darkness.

He remembered every bit of their past life too well! He remembered the moment he found out about Natalie's surgery.

Back then, he destroyed the entire hospital.

Especially when he saw her eyes covered with white bandages...!

That was probably something Cedric didn't want to face in this life either.

That pain suffocated him, and it was a feeling he never wanted to face in this lifetime.

He couldn't investigate everything that happened in their past life, but this time... he didn't want any regrets.

"I don't want to wait anymore," Natalie said flatly.

Clearly, she seemed more resigned than Cedric had anticipated in facing this darkness. It was as if she had become used to it.

Even if she had to suffer further, it wouldn't affect her anymore.

A Divorce After My Rebirth Chapter 619-The Child's Past Is Heartbreaking "We have to wait!" Cedric said in an unprecedentedly firm tone.

Natalie fell silent.

Had to?

Cedric continued, "Robert has passed away. You should stay in Yuloria right now."

Previously, she had been involved once with Malcolm. Cedric was obviously worried that she would be drawn into it again.

On the surface, things in the Jarvis family seemed calm. However, no one could see what was really going on inside.

And at this time, how could Cedric let Natalie take the risk of going back?

"He's gone?" Natalie murmured softly.

With that information, she could already guess the situation in Simeria.

Anything related to that document would definitely be nothing good, and the Entes family has always been entangled in this matter.

Natalie had to admit that the current situation was extremely uncomfortable for her.

"My family..."

"Your father has always been an insightful man. No one can easily manipulate him!" Cedric said.

At his words, Natalie felt a little relieved.

God knew how worried she was about her family now.

Cedric looked at her, and Natalie asked, "What about Bianca?"

Undoubtedly, Bianca was Natalie's greatest concern. Bianca had a feud with Malcolm, and she was also involved with Zane.

Now that Robert's death hadn't settled that matter, it must be chaos!

It was evident how chaotic the Entes family was now. In such chaos, Natalie was most worried about Bianca.

"You care about everyone," Cedric said with a somewhat bitter hint in his voice.

That was right!

She cared about everyone so much, yet she remained so indifferent to him.

Natalie fell silent, and her expression darkened.

Cedric noticed her displeasure and said, "Don't worry. Lord Zane is protecting her. Although things are chaotic, she hasn't been affected."

In the midst of that chaos, the calmest place now is probably Zane's villa. Even if something happened there, it doesn't count for much in that chaos.

Cedric was speaking the truth.

The Entes family was now completely torn apart, but Bianca was the safest in that situation.

"Okay." When Natalie heard this, her tone was light, but she was still very worried about Bianca.

The feud between Bianca and Malcolm wasn't so simple.

That is the most worrying aspect for her!

Malcolm was a complex man. In the end, Robert didn't have the mindset to do the right thing.

With the Entes family in this state, no one knew what kind of storms would arise.

"Take your medicine first," Cedric said.

The medicine had cooled down considerably, and he knew she had always avoided taking it.

"Apart from making my stomach feel uncomfortable, it seems like it's really useless," Natalie said.

What kind of impact did it have on her body when she drank such bitter medicine?

Natalie felt it very clearly.

It was as if her stomach was on fire. The discomfort made her reluctant to drink it, but she couldn't escape it either.

"I'm sorry," Cedric said.

His voice sounded hoarse. Cedric had apologized the most during this time.

These words were seemingly simple, but they were so painful every time he said them.

It was because these words couldn't make up for anything.

Natalie gulped it down. At that moment, the bitterness made her tremble violently, and a cold sweat broke out on her forehead.

It's evident what kind of pain this bitterness caused her.

Every time Cedric saw Natalie like this, he felt even worse inside.

There was a reclining chair under the eaves, and it made Natalie nostalgic when she spent her time there.

"Be careful not to catch a cold. You should head inside," Cedric said.

"It smells like bamboo."

There was a faint and elegant feeling, and Natalie liked it very much.

"You can't catch a cold now," Cedric said.

The man's tone was very patient.

"How long will this rain last?" Natalie asked. She couldn't see anything, but the deepest impression she got of Yuloria was that there was a lot of rain.

It seems to have been raining since she arrived here, and it never stopped.

Cedric replied, "According to the weather forecast, it will rain all week next week."

11 || It was strange.

How could there be so much rain?

The people living here were probably used to it, right?

Natalie said, "Ask Lydia to put the towels in the dryer again. They seem to have a smell in the morning!"

Actually, they were dried outdoors every day.

However, Natalie felt that the weather was unusual.

Lydia spent a lot of time washing towels every day, but the towels washed in the evening and hung well wouldn't dry as expected.

Instead, there would be a foul smell the next morning. Lydia had no choice but to put them in the dryer.

Even so, there would still be a damp feeling when Natalie used them.

"Okay." Cedric stroked her soft hair, his tone filled with indulgence.

He knew she was a neat freak. Back at Scarlet Villa, the servants were always meticulous and careful in their work.

"Nat."

"Hmm?"

"Tell me some interesting stories about her growing up."

Cedric's heart ached for Luna.

Natalie refused. "You don't deserve to know!"

Her already unpleasant tone became worse when Luna was mentioned.

Indeed!

He didn't deserve to know.

"Consider it your revenge against me," Cedric said.

Although he knew it wouldn't feel good to hear those things, Cedric still wanted to know.

After all, he was Luna's father.

He wanted to know everything about her.

“Hah...” Natalie scoffed.

Revenge?

So, he knew what that word meant, huh? He knew that everything she was doing now was revenge against him, right?

“When I returned to Simeria, the air around the manor couldn’t contain a single hint of pollution. Do you know why?”

“Because if my wounds were infected, I’d have to take medicine. And taking medicine...”

Taking medicine would cause great harm to the unborn child.

The medications a pregnant woman took had to have minimal impact on the child, which naturally determined the effectiveness of the medicine.

Others could take medicine normally and have their burns healed in a month, but Natalie had to go through the torture and pain for three months because she was pregnant.

“I was in pain all the time for three months!” Natalie said.

This was the first time Natalie spoke about her journey after experiencing everything back then!

At this moment, Cedric’s heart skipped a beat.

Three months...!

How much pain did she endure at the time?!

Even for a common burn...!

Cedric had seen the burns on her body, and he knew exactly how large the area was.

As Natalie spoke about it now, he could hardly imagine what kind of pain she had endured then.

A Divorce After My Rebirth Chapter 620-!Traded Her Life “Do you know what Jason said then? He said... I should abort the child!”

When the people around Natalie saw her in such pain, almost everyone advised her the same thing.

However, no matter how they persuaded her, Natalie endured it all!

“Some of the burns on my body were quite severe, and the rotten flesh had to be scrapped off! Even now, the pockmarks on my body result from cleaning the wounds back then.”

11 || “I couldn’t take any anesthetics!”

11 || The moment Natalie said she had to endure the pain without any anesthetics, Cedric trembled uncontrollably.

He was a strong man, but when he heard that, he couldn’t help but...!

He had seen it.

He had seen how extensive her injuries were.

To be told that she couldn’t be given anesthetic at the time...

He could only imagine how terrible the pain she had to endure.

“Nat...”

It hurt.

At this moment, Cedric felt an unbearable pain in his chest.

“People say a child is what a woman trades her life for. I didn’t quite understand this until Luna came along,” Natalie said.

At that time, her life was hanging by a thread. Yet, she still insisted on protecting the child in her belly.

It was obvious that Natalie had endured a deep pain in her heart back then.

“I was very cautious about what medication I took, but perhaps because of my health... I gave birth to her too early, and she was premature,” Natalie said casually.

But Cedric listened with shock and immense heartache.

“Nat!”

He wanted to say something, but he couldn’t find the words. His throat kept getting tighter, and it was so painful...!

“She almost died, you know?”

Did they think everything would be fine once the child was born?

No, having a child was just the beginning of worries for parents.

A normal baby already required a lot of effort and hardship to raise, but a premature baby... no one knew the difficulties and pain that followed.

For several months, several nannies took turns taking care of the child. There was no room for error.

But even so, when the child had problems, there was much more to face than Cedric had imagined.

“She’s grown up so much now. She has fallen ill for over thirty times. There wasn’t a month that went by without her falling sick!”

Natalie couldn’t remember exactly how many times, But in her memory, Luna’s body had been very weak initially.

Visiting the hospital several times a month was common.

At that time, it seemed she couldn’t do anything besides endure it. Every time she saw Luna fall ill, her heart ached!

Other than feeling heartbroken, Natalie couldn’t do anything else.

“Nat, don’t say anymore,” Cedric said, feeling suffocated.

“She was so small! Every time she gets a shot, I’m the one crying. She was so well-behaved... It was novelbin heartbreaking,” Natalie said.

Luna didn’t cry or fuss, but Natalie couldn’t bear it when she saw the child in such a state each time.

It was too painful.

With each passing month, Natalie felt extremely distressed just by watching everything that happened to Luna.

“My aunt...No, my mom stayed up several nights worrying! She couldn’t trust anyone else.”

Yes, at that time, Heather was still an aunt to her.

It was Heather who stayed up night after night, fearing any mishap with the child Natalie had traded her life for.

Everyone in the Jarvis family knew that if anything happened to Luna, it would cost Natalie her life!

So, no matter who it was, nobody dared to let anything happen to Luna. Even though the child's health was so poor, they all worked tirelessly to make her better.

Because only when Luna was well would Natalie be well.

As Natalie spoke calmly, Cedric felt his heart constricting further.

"Luna is not only mine but also my parents' child. She's a child they sacrificed their lives for. What right do you have to use her to save someone else?"

Natalie had never said these things before!

But at that moment, Cedric understood why Natalie never allowed him to use Luna to save Kayla, no matter what.

Luna was like a treasure in Natalie's hands. She was always fearing the child would slip away.

How could Natalie bear to let her child be harmed?

"At that moment, I never hated you so much before...!"

"I know. I know..." Cedric muttered as he tightened his arms around her.

At that moment, more than anyone else, he understood why Natalie hated him so much.

She just wanted to be good to her child, the child she had sacrificed her life for.

As long as she could be good to her child, she was willing to let go of all the hatred.

But even such a simple request was denied to her in the end, and she couldn't trust anyone anymore.

She was afraid!

That was why things between her and Cedric would never end until one of them was dead...

All for the sake of seeking peace for Luna.

"I'm sorry. I was wrong!"

Cedric wanted her to stop talking.

He didn't want to hear it anymore.

He hadn't been involved in those past events, but it felt like a bloodied battlefield...!

There were no interesting stories...!

In the child's growth process, they shed blood and tears.

No one knew how much the Jarvis family went through to raise Luna.

"Stop talking..." Cedric pleaded.

"Didn't you ask for interesting stories?"

"This was everything we've experienced on her journey to growing up!" Natalie said.

Cedric felt his heart bleeding at that moment.

That was... everything they had been through?

Even though there were beautiful moments, they must have been worn away by their pain and worry.

So, the bad experiences they had to endure as Luna grew up left a more significant impact on the Jarvis family, and those were the memories they remembered the most.

"Stop, Natalie. I get it... I get it already!"

Cedric tightened his embrace a little more. At that moment, he didn't want to hear anything else.

It was too painful.

It was all too painful for him.

He now knew that Natalie had endured so much during Luna's growth...!

"You're right, I don't deserve..." Cedric gritted his teeth and trailed off.

When Natalie once criticized him about this, Cedric simply thought it was because she hadn't experienced raising Luna with him.

If he had the chance, would it still be the same?

But now he knew...

He truly didn't deserve it!

"You must be thinking that I didn't give you the chance, right?" Natalie said calmly, as if she had seen through the man's thoughts.

Cedric was silent.

She had seen through it all!

"Even if you had the chance, so what?" Natalie sarcastically chuckled.

And what she said was true!

He had no right...!

That was the only thought that filled Cedric's mind.

In Natalie's opinion, Cedric wouldn't have cherished it even if he had been given the chance..

A Divorce After My Rebirth Chapter 621

A Divorce After My Rebirth Chapter 621-Is It Time to Leave?

Isabella held such significance in his heart.

If Cedric ever had the chance, she would be the only one he'd cherish.

And he would only leave the pain for Natalie and her child!

"Nat..."

Cedric's heart bled continuously as he listened to her words.

He didn't deserve it!

Even if he was suffering, he didn't have the right!

He didn't have the right to raise Luna as she grew up.

None at all!

As she said, he didn't deserve it.

No one knew what kind of inner turmoil Cedric experienced during his time with Natalie.

Each time he looked at Natalie, his heart seemed to ache like a sharp blade was cutting it.

The sensation was so painful!

At noon, Natalie had to drink the bitter medicine again.

After Irwin arrived, he spent a full two hours in the study with Cedric. No one knew what they discussed. But when they emerged from the study, Natalie could sense the weightiness in the air, indicating the severity of the situation in Wexford.

“Xyla.”

“Yes, Miss.” Xyla approached respectfully.

Natalie said, “This soup is delicious. Bring me another bowl!”

Her tone was cheerful, evidently finding comfort as the tension between the two men increased.

It was inevitable.

That was the dynamic between her, Cedric, and Irwin. She only felt some relief when she saw the two men in distress.

Cedric and Irwin exchanged a glance.

Both saw a subtle heaviness in each other’s eyes.

She blamed them!

Though they knew she would never forgive them in this lifetime, the burden weighed heavily on both their hearts when faced with the fact.

So... karma was indeed real!

One shouldn’t easily scheme against others. It might just backfire.

Cedric and Irwin never believed in those words.

But now, they did.

“Miss.” Xyla carefully served Natalie a bowl of soup, intending to feed her.

However, Natalie skillfully took the spoon from her hand. “I’ll do it myself!”

Lydia and Xyla silently exchanged a glance. When they turned to Natalie again, their eyes were filled with distress.

Their hearts genuinely ached for her.

She... was a lady of the Jarvis family, the treasure of her brother and parents. Yet, she suffered like no other.

What kind of fortune awaited her in such darkness?

Natalie didn't want this fate, right?

No matter what happiness one lived in, it needed to be seen with one's own eyes.

Yet Natalie couldn't see.

After Irwin left, Cedric sat beside Natalie. Natalie keenly felt the oppressive aura emanating from the man in the darkness.

"If you could see, you'd love this place," Cedric suddenly remarked.

It was true.

Natalie would indeed love this place. Just hearing Lydia and Xyla talk about it, she felt it was where she belonged.

"Sometimes, it's better not to see! Then you won't see the dirty things," Natalie replied in a meaningful tone.

Cedric stiffened!

He knew she was referring to him and Isabella...!

"I know you don't believe it, but it's true. Things between her and me weren't what you thought it was."

"She was carrying your child! That was the last I heard," Natalie said calmly.

Lydia and Xyla didn't quite grasp what Natalie was talking about.

But in that moment, they understood that Natalie would never forgive Cedric.

When a woman's heart bore such immense pain, no amount of subsequent reconciliation could suffice.

They didn't know it was a different life, but they knew Natalie loathed Cedric for having a child with someone else.

That... was the limit of a woman's patience!

"That child doesn't even exist!"

Cedric had never delved deep into this matter. Every time Isabella was brought up, Natalie's reaction was vehement.

She didn't want to hear it.

But now, he had finally said it.

He looked at Natalie and explained.

No one knew what happened to Cedric.

But at this moment, his resolute explanation made Natalie ask, "Are you leaving?"

Cedric froze at her words.

She was clever, yet sometimes, her intelligence tightened hearts and caused pain.

Cedric tried to say something, but at this moment, he couldn't utter a word.

The feeling was unbearable.

"That might be for the best. You've been away from Wexford for too long. I'm looking forward... to what happens when you return!"

Her words sounded almost gleeful.

Robert, the patriarch of the Entes family, had passed away!

Now, the members of the Enters family were all frantic to obtain that document.

And Cedric held half of it!

For Cedric, it was only useful if he had the whole thing! But with Frederick missing, only having half the document was troublesome for him.

But that wasn't the only problem he had on his plate. He also had to deal with the Schneider family. novelbin Abigail was still waiting.

"Nat, you really set up a good game for me," Cedric said bitterly.

Natalie fell silent.

A game?

Indeed!

Once, Cedric had hysterically tried to send Natalie to prison using any means necessary. He had done that for Isabella's sake.

And now, Natalie had gone to great lengths to set a trap that he couldn't escape, burdening him with endless troubles.

One month! That was the limit!

He said he would stay here with her for three months? He said he wanted to be the first person she saw when she regained her sight?

But would things in Wexford allow it? Hah!

Lucas was barely holding on now.

Cedric... had to return to Wexford.

"Everything is clear now, right?" Cedric asked with a hint of reluctance at this moment.

He had never thought of losing her, whether in their previous life or this one!

No matter how bad things had gotten between them, he had never truly considered losing her.

The fear of losing her was evident.

And now...

Natalie had personally woven a cage for him! If he didn't enter it, how could she be content?

How could she relieve her anger?

To let Natalie vent her anger, Cedric seemed willing to do anything now!

When Natalie heard Cedric's words, she coldly laughed, "Your wishful thinking is quite impressive."

A Divorce After My Rebirth Chapter 622-The Silent Agony How much had he invested in her, only to want to wash his hands of it all now?

Suddenly, he grabbed her slender waist. Amidst the dizziness, she found herself in his arms.

Warmth enveloped her, and then came the onslaught of kisses!

Natalie struggled, but the man's grip tightened. He was being more ruthless than before!

At that moment, his presence seemed filled with resignation, silent agony, and something even more sinister. It was as if he wished to merge her into his very bones.

Warm fingertips grazed her cheek as Cedric said, "If this is what you want, I'll grant it." Since the dilemma in Wexford was meant to trap him, let her watch!

If this could bring her a bit of relief, then he... would grant her wish.

"You're not granting anything. This is your just punishment!"

Natalie's tone was icy!

Her hollow eyes held no emotion, but her words dripped with venom. As Cedric held her, he could feel her presence but no warmth.

She seemed devoid of warmth... or perhaps, any warmth she had was extinguished by Cedric himself, leaving only her coldness.

"You're right, this is my just punishment," Cedric echoed her words.

But whatever it was, it was what she wanted to see. Since it was what she wanted, he... would give her everything!

Another kiss descended, and it was filled with how much Cedric was reluctant to leave.

Natalie struggled!

Yet, Cedric held her hands tightly, and he was relentless in his demands!

But all he received was her icy response.

Such a response made his heart bleed continuously, yet he... had no right, nor the strength, to blame her.

After a long time, Cedric finally released her.

He clutched her tightly in his arms. "I felt it!"

His tone was so bitter!

Even pained!

He said he felt it!

He felt her coldness... and her indifference!

So, one should never easily hurt a woman's heart. More importantly, never cross a woman's bottom line. When she truly gave up on a man, he wouldn't even have a chance to hear her grievances.

However, Natalie... brought up old grudges!

She never gave him even a glimmer of hope for their future.

It was as if they never had a future, to begin with!

In the end, Cedric left on the third day. He left after watching Natalie drink the medicine with his own eyes.

"Miss." Lydia's eyes were filled with worry as she watched Natalie.

During this time, Natalie and Cedric were inseparable. He stayed by her side day and night, watching her take the medicine. He also warmed her body at night until she fell asleep.

If only they hadn't faced so many twists and turns. Natalie wouldn't have been in such a plight in Cedric's world.

"Has he left?" Natalie asked.

"Yes." Lydia nodded.

"Good. He's gone!"

Her tone was cold and indifferent. It was as if the departing person meant nothing to her.

She was already in a sorry state!

She didn't want anyone to see her like this. She had been clamoring to return to Simeria. But now that she couldn't see, she didn't want to go back because... she didn't want her parents to see her like this!

"Lydia."

"Yes, Miss."

“What color clothes am I wearing today?” Natalie suddenly asked.

During this time, she rarely asked about these every day matters! At most, she inquired about what was in the yard.

But now, she asked.

It showed how sad a person unable to see truly was, not even knowing the color of the clothes they were wearing.

“Moonlight white,” Lydia said, feeling her heart ache for Natalie.

Lydia wished Natalie’s eyes would recover soon.

Previously, Natalie’s eyesight wasn’t the best, but at least she knew what color clothes she was wearing.

During the last moments before losing her sight, Natalie was in a panic!

She was most afraid of not being able to see Luna, afraid of missing Luna’s growth...!

But now...!

While Cedric had left, Irwin was still there. The next morning, Natalie wrinkled her brow at the damp smell emanating from the man.

Clearly, she wasn’t too pleased.

“He’s gone back to Wexford!” Irwin said.

“You should go back too!” Natalie said.

Wexford?

Even without thinking, she knew what it was like over there.

And all of this... Natalie had a hand in it!

She deliberately created those situations for Cedric. But now, at this moment, she felt no satisfaction.

Irwin glanced at her and asked, “Are you still angry, Nat?”

“Hah...”

Angry? That was putting it lightly!

Their relationship wasn't one of mere anger but... of grudges.

"I gave him information about Frederick."

Natalie fell silent.

Frederick?

Previously, she had been certain Frederick was in Cedric's hands, only to later discover he wasn't!

If Frederick had truly been with Cedric, he wouldn't have been able to stay here after Robert's death.

So, it could only mean that Frederick wasn't in anyone's hands.

Irwin had personally cultivated Frederick, so he should be someone cunning.

"That has nothing to do with me!" Natalie declared.

"Really?" There was a depth to Irwin's tone now.

Even the glint in his eyes had changed. Though Natalie couldn't see anything, she could sense it.

She had done so much before, all for this moment. Yet now that her goal was achieved, she felt no satisfaction!

"Do you know what I'm talking about, Nat?"

Irwin was talking about Frederick.

Natalie didn't know the exact significance of the document, but its involvement of numerous influential families hinted at its importance, both to Cedric and Irwin.

And now, Irwin had given Frederick's information to Cedric.

What did this imply?

He had let go of everything related to Wexford completely.

Yes!

Irwin had let go of everything related to Wexford. He had handed everything... over to Cedric!

Once, their relationship had been so fraught with schemes, all revolving around that document.

But now, Irwin had handed everything over to Cedric.

What did it truly signify?

He had let go of everything!

But why?

“I don’t know!” Natalie’s words were cold and firm.

Actually, she knew...!

That day, Cedric and Irwin had talked for two hours in the study.

So, how could she not know what Irwin’s words meant now?

A Divorce After My Rebirth Chapter 623-So She Hates Them Irwin had passed on Frederick’s information to Cedric!

Then, Cedric left her side!

Even a fool could tell what Irwin had outlined to her was a fact.

However, Cedric was given a multiple-choice question!

Ultimately, Cedric had to choose between her and Wexford...

And he naturally chose Wexford!

There was a suffocating feeling in Natalie’s chest. It was an uncomfortable sensation... and wasn’t easy to endure!

“You know, you’re very clever!” Irwin said coldly.

“Even if I know, so what? Am I supposed to follow your arrangements?”

Danger simmered in Natalie’s tone.

Irwin fell silent.

Supposed to?

Undoubtedly, this was a multiple-choice question for Cedric!

But for Natalie?

It was also one!

But she also had the right not to choose anything.

“Irwin, don’t you understand by now?”

Understand what?

“You better pray I never get the chance to see again, or... I’ll tear you and Cedric to pieces!” Natalie hissed, her words dripping with danger.

Irwin remained silent.

So, she hated them?

Natalie hadn’t let go of any resentment before this. After this ordeal, she clearly harbored even more hatred!!

She wanted to tear them apart! This was Natalie’s current state of mind.

There was a suffocating feeling in Irwin’s chest.

“Nat!”

“Are you going to tell me you’ve given up all of Wexford for me?” Natalie asked sarcastically.

Given up everything?

The fact that Irwin had passed on Frederick’s information Cedric... Wasn’t that implying that Irwin had given up everything?

Natalie snorted. “I didn’t ask you to do that!”

Her tone was very icy.

“And not everything in this world goes the way you think! Just because someone offered someone else something doesn’t mean they will accept!”

So?

So, what was it that passing on Frederick’s information to Cedric counted for?

Was it his wishful thinking?!

Irwin was usually a person who didn't show his emotions. But now, there was a flicker of emotion in his eyes as he looked at Natalie.

Irony... How truly ironic!

The current situation was ironic for Natalie!

Wexford... and her!

That was Cedric's choice...!

A substitute would always be one and always be expendable. It was the case with Isabella, and it was the case with Kayla!

And now, when Wexford was added into the equation...

The result was the same.

Before Isabella appeared, Natalie had believed she was the most important in Cedric's heart.

But in the end, this was reality!

"Alright, let's not dwell on this," Irwin's tone tightened slightly.

This topic was clearly unpleasant for them, and he didn't want to continue discussing it further.

Natalie remained silent, not wanting to say anything at this moment.

When breakfast was served, it was the food Natalie used to love.

However, eating it now felt like chewing wax.

Meanwhile, Cedric hadn't gone straight back to Wexford.

Despite the urgent situation at Wexford, he came to Simeria first.

So this was how it felt when one's heart was concerned. Cedric had never experienced this kind of feeling before.

Heather and Stephen were having breakfast at Lotus Villa. When they saw Cedric, they felt a chill run down their spines!

Heather immediately stood up and approached Cedric. "Where's Nat?"

Previously, when Cedric secretly went back to Wexford to see Kayla, they didn't receive any news due to time constraints.

Now...

Cedric finally appeared.

But Natalie wasn't with him...!

This made Heather and Stephen uneasy, indicating that Cedric was also considered unreliable in their novelbin minds.

"She's in Yuloria," Cedric replied.

Heather and Stephen were stunned.

Yuloria?!

They had heard of Yuloria. It was a pleasant place to live, but they had never been there...!

So, Cedric left Natalie in a place that she was unfamiliar with?

"What are you up to?" Stephen stood up and approached Cedric, his tone sharper and more dangerous than ever.

"I found Edward Larkin," Cedric replied.

Edward Larkin?!

Stephen and Heather exchanged glances. They obviously knew who it was. After all, when they saw Natalie's eyes so severely injured, they immediately thought of Edward.

However, they were one step too late. Edward had just retired back then, and they couldn't find him despite their efforts.

And now, Cedric found him?

But even so. Heather didn't have a pleasant expression. "How's the progress now?"

More importantly, why was Cedric here if Natalie was in Yuloria?

What was he up to?

"She's recovering. We'll have news soon," Cedric said casually.

Something was off about him.

Stephen noticed it and frowned. Meanwhile, Cedric glanced past them towards Luna. She was sitting in the chair and having breakfast.

Children's memories are limited!

Previously, when she saw Cedric, she would scream in fear and call him a bad person.

But now?

Seeing Cedric now elicited no feeling in Luna's heart.

This showed how much effort Heather and the people around had put into addressing the child's psychological issues, to the extent that now the child no longer harbored any fear.

"Don't look at her!" Heather instinctively shielded Cedric from Luna's sight.

At that moment, a heavy pain flashed through Cedric's eyes.

That pain...!

Stephen's frown deepened. "Come with me!"

His tone wasn't pleasant.

Clearly...!

Stephen was the first to give Cedric a chance in the Jarvis family! At that time, it was also because of the child's sake.

But in the end, it was disappointing.

Even with the child around, Cedric was still so disappointing.

Heather watched the two head to the study. Then, she took out her phone and called Clyde, informing him of Natalie's current location.

Previously, they had been frantically searching for her. Now that they had received the news, she naturally wanted to bring Natalie back as soon as possible.

No one could understand the anxiety a mother felt about her child.

Heather hadn't been able to sleep peacefully at night since Natalie had gone missing.

“Grandma.”

“Yes, Grandma is here. Sweetie, have you eaten?” Upon hearing Luna’s call, Heather hurriedly approached and hugged her.

Heather’s heart felt even more uncomfortable when she thought about how Luna had such a father.

What a fate this child had!

“Grandma.”

“Yes?”

“Why did the bad man come to our house?” Luna looked at Heather innocently and asked.

Heather fell silent.

Although Luna was no longer afraid, Heather had to admit that Luna was still significantly affected by Cedric’s presence.

The image of the bad man was deeply rooted in her mind!

A Divorce After My Rebirth Chapter 624-Agony Cedric probably didn’t know what kind of image he held in his daughter’s heart right now.

No, in fact, he did know...!

It was precisely because he knew that his heart was in great agony as he made his way back from Yuloria!

He had thought about so much.

These years...

He not only hurt Natalie but ultimately also hurt their child. He even became a villain in the child’s eyes!

In the study, Stephen looked at Cedric with a furrowed brow.

There was a glint of darkness in his eyes.

“Don’t blame me either!”

Obviously, he was referring to Natalie’s situation!

Just now, Stephen made it clear that Cedric should leave Natalie.

Indeed!

Cedric couldn't get any approval as he stood before the father of his beloved woman.

The entire Jarvis family didn't want to hand Natalie over to him! They didn't want any relationship between them anymore.

"Irwin is with her now," Cedric said with a heavy tone.

Stephen fell silent. He was already in a bad mood, and hearing Cedric say such things made the danger in his eyes even more apparent.

"What do you mean?"

Stephen was an intelligent man. When he heard Cedric say such things, his first reaction... was to think that Cedric and Irwin had made a deal with each other.

Cedric looked at Stephen with a pained expression and said, "Edward is skilled. But that doesn't guarantee perfect success!"

No matter how good his medical skills were or how many successful cases there were...!

There were always unexpected circumstances.

After Edward had examined Natalie's eyes for the first time, he had spoken to Cedric.

He had said it was the first time he had seen eyes so severely damaged by smoke. The fact that Natalie had been able to see for such a long time after the accident was a testament to her family's efforts.

And it was because the damage was so severe that her eyes had needed to be carefully maintained at all times, without the slightest carelessness.

That was why the lights at Lotus Villa, Hillside Villa, and even Regal Horizons International were changed repeatedly!

Every time, it was to find the absolutely suitable lighting for Natalie's eyes.

But who would have thought that the worst had happened despite all precautions, and Natalie's eyes had deteriorated to this extent?

No one knew what decision Cedric had made in his heart when he heard Edward say that he wasn't a hundred percent sure.

Actually, at that time...!

That decision was agonizing for him, and even... no matter how bad things had gotten between him and Cedric, he had never thought of making such a decision about Natalie!

Even when he first met Natalie and knew she wasn't that person, he had decided that he would never part from her!

But when he heard Edward say that she might never recover her sight in her lifetime then, he quietly made that decision in his heart.

"Three months!" Cedric looked at Stephen across from him, his tone a bit tense.

Stephen furrowed his brows. "What about it?"

"She'll be on medication for three months. It's been over a month now, and there's still over a month to go before we know the outcome."

11 || "And by then..." Cedric paused.

He had already discussed this topic with Irwin previously!

But when it came to the actual moment of facing Natalie's family, Cedric's heart still tightened painfully.

Such an outcome...!

If he didn't have to face it, it would be fine.

But when it really reached that point, it would mean the end between him and Natalie forever.

Just as she wished, it was really going to end!

And she... would be happy for it, right?

Cedric's heart clenched painfully again when he thought about Natalie. She always wanted to leave, no matter what or when...!

However, he couldn't blame her for feeling that way at all.

Everything was because of him...

It was he who personally brought them to this point.

Cedric and Stephen talked in the study for over an hour. When they came out again, Stephen's expression was grave.

Luna was no longer present, and only Heather was in the hall.

When she saw them finally coming out, there was an unpleasant look on her face.

She said, "I asked Cly to go get her."

Heather had asked Clyde to go to Yuloria to pick up Natalie?

No matter how Natalie was doing over there, Heather couldn't rest assured. It didn't matter, even if Edward was there.

Since it was about healing her body and taking medication, it was the same wherever she was!

"Ask him to come back!" Stephen said with a heavy tone.

Heather was stunned!

She couldn't believe it and continued to stare at Stephen.

What had these two been talking about in the study? Why did Stephen have such an attitude after they came out?

Obviously, Heather was very dissatisfied with this attitude.

"What's wrong with you?"

"Agnes!" Stephen called out to the butler.

"Yes, sir."

"Go and tell Cly not to go to Yuloria. Just say it's my order."

"Yes, sir!"

"You...!"

Seeing how Stephen was serious about it, Heather felt furious.

What was this about? novelbin Was he standing on Cedric's side?

What did they talk about in the study?!

Heather had always been calm, but she was on the verge of losing her composure because of Stephen.

Ultimately, it was also because she couldn't bear to see Natalie in that situation.

Stephen had once given Cedric a chance, but what was the result?

He hadn't treated Natalie well, and he also hurt Luna!

Thinking about how Luna had just earnestly told her that Cedric was a bad person, no one knew how Heather's heart bled.

Cedric was Luna's father, and he had ultimately become such a figure in the child's heart.

Even so, Heather couldn't find it in herself to be happy about it.

She only felt her heart ache for Luna.

It was obvious that Cedric had done something to Luna!

Agnes went downstairs to make a call, and Stephen looked at Heather.

"Where's Luna?"

"What are you up to now?!"

Perhaps it would have been better if he hadn't asked about Luna. When he did, Heather's temper flared up.

Clearly, she sensed it.

She sensed that after Stephen and Cedric talked in the study, their attitudes were obviously different after exiting the room.

And such an attitude made Heather's heart tighten.

Stephen was easy to fool, but she wasn't!

How could a man who hurt his wife and daughter to this extent be forgiven?

"Heather!" Stephen's tone became heavier.

"The backyard!" Heather replied coldly and angrily.

It was clear how angry Heather was about this matter.

Stephen glanced at Cedric.

Cedric understood and stopped respectfully when passing by Heather.

He looked at Heather and wanted to say something, but Heather turned her face away, unwilling to speak to him.

A Divorce After My Rebirth Chapter 625-Tell the Child I'm Not a Bad Person How could Heather forgive Cedric when her daughter was hurt like this?! She even wished Cedric would disappear!

It seemed like Natalie could only find peace once he was gone...!

Since Natalie returned to their side all these years, all Heather saw was Natalie trying to break free from Cedric...!

But what about him?

While he was devoted to Isabella, he kept pestering Natalie, even disturbing her peace at times.

No mother could stand by and watch that.

Heather was genuinely furious!

However, there was nothing she could do about Cedric's behavior.

In the backyard, Cedric watched the lively figure of his daughter catching butterflies in the distance.

His eyes were filled with tenderness and affection, but his heart... was constantly in turmoil.

Luna looked so happy here, clearly enjoying herself. The Jarvis family truly cherished her like a treasure!

She looked very small, probably due to being born prematurely.

"Lara, I caught one!" Luna caught a butterfly and ran happily to a servant.

Lara smiled, "You're getting faster, Miss Luna. You even managed to catch a butterfly."

"I'm great, right?"

"Yes, very great."

The praised little girl smiled even brighter.

“Yes, Miss?”

“I want watermelon.” novelbin “Okay, I’ll get it for you.”

Luna was truly adored here. They granted almost every request of hers, but Heather often felt helpless because of the girl’s fragile health. She couldn’t have too many cold things but loved ice cream.

Luna released the butterfly. She loved playing with them but never wanted to hurt them.

When the watermelon she wanted arrived, it wasn’t Lara who approached her with it.

When Luna saw Cedric, a hint of wariness flashed in her eyes, and she instinctively looked for people around her.

But there was no one else in the place.

So, her gaze towards Cedric became more guarded.

Cedric’s heart ached when he saw how cautious his daughter was around him.

“Do you want some watermelon?”

Cedric looked at his wary daughter and forced a smile on his face.

However, Luna shook her head.

She didn’t speak or allow him to come near at all.

“Don’t be afraid. I won’t hurt you.”

He wanted to tell her he was her father!

But the words stuck in his throat.

Did he have the right?

Yes!

At this moment, Cedric was clear and acknowledged this fact.

He... had no right.

As Natalie repeatedly told him, he had no right.

However, even after saying that, Luna still looked at him suspiciously. She even backed away when he approached.

“Don’t move. I won’t come closer,” Cedric said helplessly as he watched Luna’s guarded demeanor.

Finally, he placed the watermelon plate on the stone table and took several steps back.

“Go ahead and eat.”

However, Luna still shook her head. Clearly, her usual education was not to eat from strangers. She was even more unwilling to eat it because Cedric was still a bad person in her eyes.

Cedric felt a strong sense of suffocation in his chest. “How about I play with you?”

The response was still a shake of Luna’s head! This child held grudges. She didn’t want to approach him or talk to him.

Cedric probably had never felt so miserable in his life. What could be more painful than a child refusing to come near you?

He had now thoroughly experienced.

Luna continued to watch him warily.

After a long while, Cedric felt resigned about the situation. He couldn’t bear seeing Luna so frightened, so he left.

Luna watched his lonely figure curiously as he walked away, but she made no move to approach.

As he reached the corner, Cedric suddenly turned back. Luna was previously standing quietly, and she shrank back in fear at his action.

A bitter smile appeared on the man’s lips as he said to Luna, “I’m not a bad person. Remember that.”

His tone was gentle, but Luna remained wary.

Seeing her silent and cautious demeanor, Cedric felt despair.

This was his retribution!

Once, Natalie endured all of this alone.

Now, it was transferred to him.

The pain and suffering Natalie had experienced were now gradually corroding his soul.

After Cedric left, Heather fell silent after hearing what Stephen had to say. It turned out that Stephen and Cedric had discussed so much in the study.

“Live specimens? That’s a little...” Heather finally said after a long while.

This was also why Natalie had been unwilling to undergo surgery. She was afraid of using something from a dead person, but she couldn’t let a living person...!

So, she preferred to endure her deteriorating eyesight even when she couldn’t see anything clearly.

Living specimens!

There were hardly any, and it was simply impossible for anyone to be willing. So many people were waiting for donations, but Natalie didn’t allow them to use any means to quicken the process!

Because of that, she had been dragged into darkness and could not see.

Now, Cedric said that if Natalie still didn’t respond to Edward’s treatment after three months, he would...

give her his eyes!

Yes, that was what he told Stephen.

It was what he owed Natalie, so he would give her his eyes.

But the condition was that Natalie must not know. So what Natalie assumed in Yuloria now was that Cedric had abandoned her for Wexford.

But was it really abandonment?

If one of them was destined to spend the rest of their lives in such misery in the darkness, Cedric thought: Let it be him this time!

In their past life, she perished in the flames while trapped in darkness. If there was no escaping fate in this life, let it be him!

“This is his choice!” Stephen glanced at Heather and said.

That was why Cedric wanted to see Luna just now. He was heading back to Wexford today, and this might be the last time he saw the child.

So Stephen...!

Heather's heart was heavy. "Don't think we'll forgive him just because of this!"

She wouldn't.

Not ever!

Stephen sighed. "You..."

At this moment, he didn't know what to say to Heather.

"He's done so many malicious things to hurt Natalie, so this is the price he should pay. This is his retribution," Heather said fiercely.

It was clear she wouldn't forgive Cedric at all.

Stephen sighed again. "Yes, his retribution!"

But was a lifetime of darkness too heavy a price for one's evil deeds?

However, Cedric didn't hesitate at all.

A Divorce After My Rebirth Chapter 626- Truly Hating Him Cedric told Stephen that after he heard about the possibility from Edward, he made that decision.

He never thought of letting Natalie spend the rest of her life in darkness.

He would handle everything as quickly as possible and make her regain her sight quickly.

"He's punishing himself too!" Stephen finally said after a long time and sighed.

Heather fell silent, and her breath hitched at Stephen's words.

Was he punishing himself?

Undoubtedly...

Stephen was right. Cedric was punishing himself. He was atoning for the evils he had committed in that way!

But his sins were so grave.

Could he be redeemed?!

After Cedric left, Luna came into the house. She hugged Heather tightly and said, "Grandma, I didn't eat anything from the stranger just now."

"You're such a good girl, Luna," Heather praised.

As she listened to Luna's words, Heather felt a pang in her heart.

This was all Cedric's doing, the retribution he brought upon himself! No wonder no one pitied him.

He... was not worthy of pity at all!

But was it really so?

When Heather heard that Natalie might never see Luna again, she felt bitter!

Now, hearing that this might be the last time Cedric saw Luna, her heart...!

"When will Mommy come back, Grandma?"

Luna missed Natalie. A child's dependence on their mother was as natural as breathing.

"Very soon!" Heather replied.

"Grandma, who is my daddy?"

Heather fell silent. She already felt uneasy, and now she felt even more uncomfortable when Luna asked this question.

Daddy... her daddy!

"Do you miss your daddy, Sweetie?" Heather asked, suppressing the pain in her tone.

When Luna was asked if she missed Daddy, she tilted her little head for a moment and then shook it.

"No!"

"Why?"

"Daddy doesn't love Mommy."

He didn't love her mommy?

That was right.

To Luna, her father had never been around since she could remember. It had always been just Natalie.

A child's heart was simple. When she saw Natalie's loneliness, she could only think it was because her daddy didn't love her mommy.

"Luna."

"Daddy doesn't love Mommy, so I don't want him."

"Okay, I understand.."

Was it really okay?

Heather felt sorry for the child.

Luna couldn't articulate clearly in her tender years, but she was so understanding.

With Irwin in Yuloria, Natalie could contact her family. She called Heather and listened to Luna's voice through the phone.

Also, Natalie became more receptive to the bitter medication she had to take.

"I thought Luna started to speak relatively late, but her words are much clearer than before," Natalie remarked.

"She actually started speaking early," Irwin said.

To him, Luna's speech was quite clear for a child, with minimal baby talk. Luna also spoke earlier and more clearly than Kayla.

Natalie picked up the medicine before her and drank it all in one gulp. As she put down the bowl, Irwin offered her candy.

"Have a candy."

"No need, I'm used to it."

Was it bitter?

It truly was, and it caused tremors throughout her body. Yet, this bitterness was nothing compared to the bitterness in Natalie's heart.

"Why punish yourself like this?"

Irwin saw Natalie's actions as her punishing herself. In his view, Natalie had done nothing wrong.

Why resort to such methods?

"I'm not punishing myself. I've just gotten used to it," Natalie replied.

It turned out that suffering could become a habit for a person.

Irwin remained silent, his gaze deepening as he looked at her.

"What's the situation like at Wexford now?" Natalie asked.

"Cedric has gone back," Irwin replied.

As for the scene after his return, Irwin didn't need to say anything much! Yet, as Irwin mentioned the situation at Wexford, his gaze towards Natalie grew even deeper.

Before Natalie could speak, Irwin asked, "Do you really hate him so much?"

Irwin was referring to Cedric!

Natalie fell silent.

Hate? She truly did!

However, hatred also varied in intensity. She experienced both extremes with Cedric.

"I do."

"Do you hate him enough to wish him dead?" Irwin continued to probe.

Natalie fell silent again.

Did she wish for his death?

Yes, that was exactly it!

It turns out that when one loved someone, one could do so unconditionally. But when one hated someone, one could harbor such intense hatred.

Wasn't that how Natalie felt about Cedric?

"Is there a problem?" Natalie's tone turned cold.

Obviously, she didn't like such topics. For Natalie, discussions about Cedric were too heavy.

"Do you also... hate me in the same way?" Irwin asked tensely.

"What do you think I should feel towards you?" Natalie replied.

What else should she feel toward Irwin and Cedric besides hate? Should she sing praises to them after enduring countless torments and suffering?

She wasn't a saint.

Irwin looked at Natalie, the warmth of his palm covering her hand. But the next moment, Natalie withdrew!

Her indifferent attitude showed how she felt about him.

Seeing her like this, Irwin felt somewhat hurt. Taking a deep breath, he suppressed the emotions in his heart.

"Whether you believe it or not, I've always known who you truly are."

He never treated her as anyone's shadow or substitute. While there were some similarities between Natalie and Blair, those similarities were not enough to confuse them.

Apart from a slight resemblance in appearance, their personalities were completely different. Even their smiles were distinct.

"Can we not talk about this?" Natalie requested.

Obviously, she didn't want to hear about it at all.

"Nat, you should let it go," Irwin replied gently.

"Whether it's toward me or him...!"

Irwin and Cedric had already paid the price for this matter.

Natalie stiffened at his words.

Was Irwin...?!

Undoubtedly, he wasn't just speaking for himself but also for Cedric!

He was actually making excuses for Cedric?! novelbin Something felt off. The atmosphere surrounding Natalie wasn't right.

"What do you mean?" Natalie asked.

It felt somewhat hard to breathe now.

"We never mistook you for anyone else!" Irwin emphasized the "we" heavily.

Natalie felt suffocated.

Never?

"Why did you two conceal so much from me if you didn't?"

For so many years, she never knew!

She didn't know about Blair nor what Wexford meant to them. She thought she understood enough, but she hadn't even delved into Cedric's world.

Now, Irwin was saying they never mistook her for anyone else...?

A Divorce After My Rebirth Chapter 627-A Distressing Sense of Caution Never?!

Such an explanation seemed so feeble now.

And Irwin had especially shocked Natalie today!

He... actually spoke well of Cedric... Just because they both like the same woman.

Enemies could also be... friends!?

Such a result was truly ironic and laughable.

"Nat, you don't need to be like this."

Irwin felt a pang of anguish when he saw Natalie in this state.

"Enough!" Natalie's tone was icy.

Clearly, Blair was like a taboo to her, especially after the humiliation from Cedric and Irwin over the years.

Blair's emergence made Natalie fully realize what kind of presence she was in Cedric and Irwin's world.

She wasn't as important as outsiders thought, nor was she what she presumed herself to be. Natalie had just been indulging herself, hadn't she?

In fact, her presence in Irwin and Cedric's world over the years was laughable and pathetic.

"Nat, I'm not someone who likes to explain. You should know I'm telling the truth."

"Who knows what schemes you're plotting again!" Natalie said, obviously suppressing her temper.

Irwin fell silent, and he stiffened at Natalie's words.

In Natalie's mind, Irwin was always plotting against others!

The atmosphere became heavy.

Lydia and Xyla dared not intervene.

It was clear what the atmosphere in the dining room was like now.

Time passed slowly.

Natalie still cooperated with taking her medicine every day and never missed a meal. The difference was she could still accept that cube of yellow rock sugar when Cedric was around.

And now?

Every time Irwin handed her the rock sugar, she remained silent.

She was cold to Cedric, but even colder to Irwin.

Natalie didn't know the anguish Irwin bore in his heart every day.

It seemed that when he woke up every morning, he would ask, "Do you feel any different today?"

Naturally, he meant her eyes!

"No!"

Natalie would reply curtly. Once she finished speaking, she could clearly feel the air around Irwin turning colder.

Actually, you don't need to bother about me. If you want to go back to Wexford, go ahead," Natalie said.

Natalie seemed cold toward Irwin and didn't appreciate his company, and Irwin didn't intend to argue with her about her attitude.

He simply said, "It's okay, I'll stay by your side."

Was it really okay?

As time passed, Natalie seemed increasingly disinterested in Wexford, showing no concern whatsoever.

But she knew, Wexford was in chaos!

Even so, Irwin was still in Yuloria. It indicated that perhaps he had really given everything to Cedric.

Sitting at the breakfast table, she asked, "Do you think doing this is meaningful?"

"Nat!"

"Irwin, you make things difficult for people. I never had any intentions toward you, so why act so deeply attached?"

"You also used to be like that with Blair, right?"

When one possessed something, they would do nothing but scheme. Only when one truly lost it did one understand the pain it entailed.

"Yes, you're right!" Irwin replied.

Blair was his biggest regret in life!

So, he didn't want to endure that regret again with Natalie. So, any further plans he had were halted by this fact.

When Natalie personally dug up his past and mocked him like this, Irwin's heart tightened.

"Let's get married!" Irwin suddenly said before Natalie could respond.

Natalie fell silent.

The air seemed to freeze.

Was this man insane?

Natalie looked in Irwin's direction. She couldn't see, yet her hollow eyes seemed to exert endless pressure.

Irwin felt a bit uneasy under her gaze.

Natalie stared coldly in his direction for a long time and said nothing. Yet, the atmosphere grew heavier.

"Nat!"

"Wexford..."

What about Wexford?

"Do you want my father's support?"

Irwin fell silent.

Support?

So, in her eyes, his determination was based on self-interest!?

"It doesn't matter. For the rest of my life. I'll show you that some things are not what you see!"

"Hah!"

For the rest of his life?

He said it in such a meaningful manner, huh?

"I won't give you the chance to do so!"

Using her was enough.

Now, he also wanted to use her family?!

This man was truly delusional!

"Irwin, you better pray that I never see again!" Natalie hissed.

She had said such words last time, and now, each word was filled with resentment.

If she weren't blind now, she would definitely be in Wexford, turning everything upside down.

Irwin knew, Cedric... knew too!

That day in the study, Irwin asked Cedric, "After she regains her sight, she'll definitely make a move on Wexford first!"

She knew the Schneider family!

That was something they hadn't known before. No one knew the true connection between Natalie and the Schneider family.

But for Abigail to stand on Natalie's side indicated their relationship was not simple, and Wexford was already obscure enough.

Who knew what else lay beneath?

But how did Cedric respond back then?

"She must regain her sight!"

Once, Irwin and Cedric had stood on the same side for the sake of their own interests.

Even though they endured so much after that, and the animosity between grew...

At crucial moments, they still stood together.

They both knew Natalie wouldn't rest once she regained her sight.

Women...!

Their grudges could be fierce, and they understood that clearly in Natalie's case. It was especially true since Cedric touched her bottom line.

This meant this matter wouldn't just fade away.

Irwin hesitated, but Cedric remained firm!

Cedric had even... proposed such an agreement to Irwin.

At that moment, Irwin knew he had lost.

In the past, he had somehow lost when Blair was involved. Now, he had also lost when Natalie was involved.

“You must regain your sight!” Irwin looked at her and said resolutely.

That was what Cedric wanted.

“Hah!” Natalie snorted.

What a rare sight to see Irwin so determined!

“Let’s eat,” Irwin said hoarsely.

In fact, Irwin was well aware of one thing.

No matter the situation, Irwin prioritized his interests!

As for Cedric, whether with Blair or Natalie, he actually...!

If not for Isabella’s involvement, he and Natalie would have had a good life, right?

It was just a pity that Irwin had ruined it!

A Divorce After My Rebirth Chapter 628-Every moment was tormenting. The relationship between Cedric, Irwin, and Natalie is now murky.

Meanwhile, the Entes family had reached a critical point in Simeria!

Once Cedric returned to Wexford, the situation with the document escalated.

Things between Malcolm and Zane were also at a critical juncture!

At Verdant Villa, cigar smoke swirled in the man’s hand. When Bianca entered the room with the kitten, she noticed the man’s heavy gaze.

When Zane saw her, he composed himself.

“It seems you’ve taken good care of this little one. It’s growing well,” he remarked.

He recalled how he had found the little thing on the road and how it looked like a tiny ball then. Its fur hadn’t even grown out fully yet.

But now, in Bianca’s hands, its fur had grown beautifully. Though it was still small, it radiated with life.

Bianca sat beside Zane with the kitten in her arms. “The growth cycle of small animals is short, but raising a child is different.”

Children required much effort when it came to their care.

But small animals?

With care, they always grew quickly.

Zane fell silent.

When Bianca mentioned children, his mind wavered.

“Do you like children?” Zane asked suddenly, catching Bianca off guard.

Children?

Did she like them?

“I can’t say for sure,” Bianca replied.

“Why?”

“Probably because I’ve seen too much!” Her words carried a hint of bitterness.

What kind of existence were children, exactly?

Life!

They were an independent life that needed to be respected and nurtured.

And what had she seen?

Due to her profession in Verde City, she had seen quite a lot about children.

Many couples start with great affection, yet during divorce, they become so hysterical.

Where did those children end up?

Some ended up with one of their parents, but most ended up with grandparents.

Regardless, it didn’t change the fact that their family was broken, and their parents were separated!

When Bianca saw those children, she didn’t want her own to become like them.

“Children are different from cats. Single people can own cats, but children... need a complete family!”

Bianca’s words held depth.

Zane studied her, and something stirred within him.

Family?

A complete family?

His firm and powerful hand rested on Bianca's back, gently pulling her into his embrace!!

"What's wrong?" Bianca asked.

"I've never experienced the kind of complete family you described."

To be precise, none of the Entes family members had ever experienced it.

So, what kind of feeling was that?

Zane had no idea.

As he spoke, Bianca's heart constricted as well.

Yes!

As Zane said, he had never experienced it. It was evident from the recent happenings within the Entes family.

When faced with profits before them, the hysteria they displayed was terrifying.

"Zane..." Bianca wanted to comfort him, but Zane interrupted, "Malcolm's recent actions are erratic.

He's in close contact with the Winters family. You should be careful."

The Winters family?

Previously, they held little influence. But now, they've secured a place in Simeria. It was obvious how they had managed to do so.

It was a form of compensation from Malcolm to them.

Whether it concerned Faye or Jade, Malcolm harbored hidden guilt within himself.

He was a vengeful man, and the compensation he had given the Winters family... He would naturally place the blame on Bianca's shoulders!

"I'll handle it!" Bianca assured Zane.

After a moment of thought, he said, "I'll send you off."

Bianca fell silent.

Off? To where?

"Lord Zane?"

"Natalie is probably going to stay in Yuloria for a while. You should go there for now." novelbin Bianca leaned back from Zane's embrace. She looked at the inscrutable figure before her, evidently realizing something.

"Has it really come to this?"

"Cedric has found Frederick!"

Bianca fell silent.

Frederick!

He was the pivotal figure in Simeria right now!

Finding him seemed to promise closure, something everyone had been waiting for.

His appearance brought a mix of relief and torment.

Now...!

Bianca took a deep breath. "He's been found?"

"Yes."

So, the fate of the Entes family would finally be decided soon. It was clear the situation had escalated to an unprecedented level.

Seeing Zane's expression, Bianca felt even more worried.

"I..."

"Irwin is in Yuloria now, so you'll be safer there."

Simeria was in turmoil. There could be many unforeseen events, some of which... a single person couldn't handle alone.

An example of it would be how she had been taken from Verde City to Simeria out of nowhere back then...!

It was something Bianca couldn't handle.

If she were in Yuloria, she'd probably be fine now. Something like that wouldn't happen to her there.

With Simeria now in its current state, no one knew what kind of unexpected events might unfold next.

But amidst this complex situation, Bianca also bore Malcolm's hatred.

It was obvious what would happen if...!

"But I..." Bianca trailed off here, evidently feeling uneasy about Zane's situation.

Malcolm was a very cunning person. Though Zane was cautious, Malcolm seemed to be more than just cunning.

She had only heard about how things were between Zane and Malcolm. But now, facing it firsthand, Bianca realized her heart was bleeding.

The feeling was so painful and unbearable for her.

"What? Don't you trust me?" Zane looked at her with a hint of a smile playing on his lips.

His smile seemed reassuring, as if everything was under control, yet this very same smile indicated he would send her away.

From this, it was evident that everything happening in Simeria, regardless of how calm the surface seemed, was not simple at all.

Bianca looked at Zane, and her throat tightened. She wanted to say something, but she couldn't find the words.

"If it helps you feel at ease, I'll go to Yuloria."

Bianca wasn't foolish.

Once Zane proposed such an idea, it meant that things had already escalated to a complicated level.

Her being here might cause trouble for him.

When he heard Bianca's answer, Zane's smile deepened. His smile was so bright that it dazzled her eyes.

A Divorce After My Rebirth Chapter 629-As Bianca had mentioned, perhaps she had seen too much when she had been in Verde City. Because of that, she never once thought about getting married.

She never thought she'd go hysterical over loving a man!

In her opinion...!

The more passionate love, the more painful it was when it ended. If that was the case, it was better not to indulge in such emotions.

Bianca had seen a glimpse of Zane's inner turmoil, which made her even more cautious.

But women...!

Sometimes, what people said did make sense—women were naive when it came to matters of the heart.

Bianca used to respond to such remarks with, "Yes, they were naive. If they weren't, the one who ends up crying won't be the woman!"

Back then, her words were so sarcastic. She had been so easygoing then and always felt it was best not to get emotionally involved.

Wasn't it great for a woman to live freely? novelbin Why... must she have that kind of potentially life-threatening affection?

Actually, in matters of the heart, whoever took it seriously would lose.

She had seen too many women hurt.

She had also seen too many men hurt!

But now...!

Despite knowing certain things and even restraining herself from having such feelings, when the actual moment came...

When she truly saw Zane, her heart was thoroughly shaken.

"How long will I need to be there?" Bianca looked at Zane and asked.

Since he was sending her to Yuloria now, it meant that things in Simeria had reached a critical point.

So, how long would it take?

"If nothing unexpected happens, a month," Zane replied.

Had the Entes family really reached this point?

Taking a deep breath and suppressing the turmoil in her heart, she said, "Okay."

Just one word!

It contained so much of her emotions that only Bianca understood as she walked away. – It sounded like Zane had given her a choice to go to Yuloria. However, he was actually simply informing Bianca of his decision.

He had already arranged everything for her.

Sebastian told her she would be leaving that night and that all her luggage had been packed. This gesture made Bianca realize even more what kind of situation Simeria was in now.

In fact, Zane had been very busy lately. With now occupied he had been, Bianca vaguely sensed something from it. Also, Verdant Villa wasn't actually peaceful these days.

Yvette would arrive soon.

Bianca was leaving tonight, and Yvette... had come again!

Compared to before, her complexion today was particularly bad. From that alone, Bianca could tell that something significant had happened.

Bianca was silent. she opened her mouth to say something but ultimately decided not to.

Yvette said, "Do you know that Zane has gone somewhere far away?"

Bianca was silent.

Somewhere far away?

That couldn't be!

Yvette suddenly looked at her and said, "Simeria isn't as peaceful as you think it is now."

Bianca could sense that.

But where had Zane gone?

Before Bianca could ask, Yvette continued, "Actually, Zane hasn't been around Simeria much lately."

Bianca hadn't noticed this; She only knew Zane was busy and often not at Verdant Villa. It felt like they were in the same city, yet she was immersed in solitude.

However, she couldn't do anything about it.

In fact, when she felt that sense of solitude, Bianca knew... she might have lost something.

"You could say Zane and I have been through thick and thin, right?" she said, not directly responding to Yvette's words.

Her words made Yvette pause, and the latter's expression also froze.

Even at that moment, a hint of jealousy flashed through Yvette's eyes. However, having been tempered by the Entes family for so many years, she could quickly suppress these emotions.

"The Entes family is at a critical juncture."

'Ulllll ; Yes, Bianca knew.

Otherwise, Zane wouldn't have arranged for her to leave in such haste.

"Lord Alto has taken Yolanda."

Bianca was silent, and she raised her eyebrows at the information. She stared at Yvette for a while.

She knew what Yvette meant by giving her this information, but she was still shocked by the turn of events.

"Did you not know, Bianca?"

"What?"

"During Grandfather's time, the struggle for the head of the family's authority was intense!!"

Yvette looked at Bianca.

And Bianca remained silent.

As Yvette said, Bianca had no idea how intense it was!

She only heard Yvette continue, "My father told me, Robert was really ruthless back then, even more so than the current sixth lord."

Bianca remained silent, but she stiffened at the words.

She recalled her meeting with Robert. He was an elderly man, but he looked at her intensely during the banquet. She had felt a chill run up her spine. It was as if his eyes were as sharp as an eagle's.

In Bianca's mind, Malcolm was already a formidable presence!

So, the Entes family... as Zane said, it was an abyss.

"Lord Alto took Yolanda away, claiming they're going on a trip to the seaside. But he actually did it because the first lord has found a lead on the document."

It was just a lead, yet Alto had already resorted to such actions?

There was a suffocating feeling in Bianca's chest.

"To the Entes family, it isn't just about that document, right? It doesn't look that simple."

In reality, it had always revolved around that document.

However, now Bianca felt that Zane hadn't told her the whole truth!

If it were really just about that document, then it would definitely be all directed at Cedric by now.

But now it seemed to her... whatever everyone was doing internally seemed to be more important than that document.

Yvette replied, "The Entes family seal!"

"The seal? What about it?"

"When Grandfather passed away, he didn't give it to anyone."

That seal represented the absolute authority of the head of the family. So, that seal must be more important than anything else to the Entes family right now.

"That seal is very likely not in Simeria!" Yvette looked at Bianca and said.

Not in Simeria?

So before Robert passed away, he didn't trust any member of the Entes family?!

He even guarded against them so cautiously!

When Bianca heard this, her heart tightened fiercely.

So Zane...!

Bianca recalled the conversation they had about family recently, and the heavy feeling in her chest intensified.

So, was the Entes family having more problems than anyone right now?

A Divorce After My Rebirth Chapter 630-Yvette looked at Bianca and said, "My father still hasn't shown whether he supports Zane or not."

As she spoke these words, there was a heaviness in Yvette's tone, and Bianca naturally understood the gravity behind it.

The look in Yvette's eyes towards her was both silent and sharp.

"Because you're still here," Yvette's words were direct and carried a sense of urgency.

Bianca remained silent.

It seemed that Yvette didn't know she would be leaving tonight.

As Bianca gently touched the sleeping kitten in her arms, Yvette felt a suffocated feeling at the sight of the cat.

She also loved cats!

Zane had probably forgotten, but on the last good day they had, she had said to him, "Zane, I want to raise a kitten."

"Alright, I'll find you a beautiful one."

Zane's words echoed in her ears.

Yvette still remembered that day vividly. It had been a wonderful day, and neither of them had foreseen what was to come.

It was to be their last moment of harmony before diverging onto completely different paths!

When she returned home that day, what awaited her wasn't the beautiful cat Zane promised, but rather her father's decision to marry her off to Alto.

She resisted and fought like a madwoman to escape, but she couldn't withstand the family's coercion and threats in the end.

She fell into despair.

That was the most desperate day of her life. They had destroyed the beautiful moments in her life so easily.

She was in pain and unwilling to accept it.

That was why she hated everyone involved.

"You severed ties with Alto, so your father...?"

Bianca couldn't believe what she was hearing from Yvette.

What kind of family was this?

She didn't finish her sentence, but Yvette knew what Bianca wanted to say. She smiled bitterly, a smile tinged with sarcasm and pain.

"That's right, Bianca. Even if it weren't you, it wouldn't have been me either."

Bianca's heart skipped a beat.

What did she mean?

"My father recently took my cousin from my uncle's house and adopted her into our family. I'm now a disgrace even to my own family. Even if my father wants to cooperate with Zane, I won't be the bridge."

"If Zane and I had a good relationship, they would be fine with it. But I've had a complicated relationship with Alto for so many years. Once it's destroyed, it affects the entire family, just like what's happening now!"

As Yvette finished spoke, her tone carried a hint of ferocity.

Just like now?

This time, Yvette had initiated the turmoil with Alto. She had angered him and caused the relationship between the Stewart family and Alto to deteriorate irreparably.

Because of the strained relations, her past with Zane had also become a sensitive issue.

Her father suffered such a big loss in this matter, and now Bianca was by Zane's side. So, how could he let Yvette, who was disgraced, have a chance to be with Zane?

Bianca looked at Yvette in shock, clearly understanding the meaning behind Yvette's words!

"Why does your father want to cooperate with Zane?"

Bianca was truly and utterly confused. In the face of all this, Bianca couldn't see anything clearly now.

She couldn't understand what was going on, and all these things felt extremely oppressive.

"Because Zane is the last head of the family!"

He had to be!

Her tone was resolute.

"Why?" Bianca asked.

If the head of the Stewart family also thought so, then this matter is almost certain.

"Because Robert must have left something for him. After all, Zane was the old man's favorite."

Was Zane truly the favorite?

But with how Robert had left the world, didn't it actually show that he didn't favor any of the Entes family members?

That was what Bianca thought.

If he really loved his family, how could he let things come to such a deadlock?

"My father is holding on to something crucial in Simeria. You can ask your good friend, Natalie, how important my father is to him."

After all this time Yvette probably realized that Bianca was someone who responded better to a gentle approach.

Otherwise, why would all those methods she had used on Bianca before have been ineffective?

What could it be?

Some things in Simeria were too massive, even for someone as astute as Bianca, especially since Zane didn't involve her in these matters.

"So, what role does the Jarvis family play in all this?"

Yes, the Jarvis family.

The Jarvis family had a commercial empire like no other.

Bianca thought... Stephen had always been unscathed, which showed his cleverness.

And when it came to the Jarvis family, Yvette said, "If Natalie didn't have Cedric and Irwin by her side, do you think the Entes family would let Stephen stay out of it?"

It's just unfortunate that the Jarvis family only had one daughter, and Cedric and Irwin already have what they want in their hands.

So, Natalie wasn't someone easily tampered with.

Actually, if one were to ask Yvette who she admired the most, it would be Natalie!

Because what Natalie saw in Simeria was so simple.

Despite appearing to have hurt her, even to the point of being unforgivable, the two men behind her novelbin held enough power to protect her.

No one could easily harm her.

Yvette truly envied that, because only those deeply entrenched in the mire would understand how desperate things could be.

Bianca didn't expect there to be so many twists and turns in this.

What she saw was just scratching the surface of everything!

"And you?" Bianca looked at Yvette with a hint of complex emotions in her eyes.

In Bianca's eyes, Yvette's hysteria towards her was just a way to drive her away from Zane and take her place.

But now, Bianca realized she was wrong.

When Yvette heard that her father had adopted her cousin, she understood that her father never intended to use her again.

Suddenly, there was a feeling—a sense that daughters were merely bridges to power!

Whatever familial bonds between them were actually so fragile.

And when Yvette spoke of herself, a hint of dread flashed in her eyes.

That kind of dread... was born from immeasurable despair...!

Yvette took a deep breath and said, “Right now, I just want Zane’s matters to be settled quickly. I want him to stand in that high place.”

Her last sentence was deep and painful.

It was as if, as long as Zane was well, Yvette... would be willing to endure anything!

A Divorce After My Rebirth Chapter 631

A Divorce After My Rebirth Chapter 631-Bianca had never deeply loved anyone before.

But at this moment, in Yvette’s eyes, it seemed as though she saw just how profound love could be.

It was deep enough that... one would do anything for the other person!

All her emotions, whether serene, restrained, extreme, or bitterly sharp, were displayed for that one person!

The first time she saw Yvette, the latter stood out among the women of the Entes family. She was aloof and elegant.

When Yvette noticed the changes in the Entes family, she lost the grace and the gentleness of a noble lady.

She had been hysterical toward Bianca at Verdant Villa.

Now, when speaking of her father’s intention to adopt her cousin, she appeared even more hopeless and calm...!

Bianca had seen what happened to Natalie, and she had seen a lot of broken marriages during her time as a lawyer.

She wouldn’t believe that someone could love another so deeply.

But now, she saw that kind of love in Yvette.

As long as Zane was okay, Yvette would be fine with whatever that happened.

That was the impression she gave Bianca.

That love overturned all of Bianca's understanding of relationships. Initially, she didn't like Yvette much, but now she felt Yvette was pitiful and tragic.

Yvette's furious antagonizing of Alto and the Entes family was for Zane's sake. Her decision to leave Simeria was also because of Zane.

And now, her restrained reaction to her cousin's adoption was also for Zane.

What couldn't a woman like her do in matters of the heart?

"I'm leaving tonight!" After a moment, Bianca said to Yvette.

Yvette was stunned, and then a hint of joy flashed in her eyes.

"Are you serious?"

"Yeah." Bianca nodded.

Yes, she was serious!

Yvette breathed a sigh of relief. It was as if all her previous plans hinged on Bianca. Now that Bianca had agreed, they could move forward.

Bianca looked at Yvette's reaction with her deeply perceptive eyes.

"But I'm the only one leaving Simeria. As for Zane..." Bianca paused, looking at the joyful Yvette.

Zane was a proud man. He was mysterious and impenetrable.

"He wouldn't want the Entes family to remain in such chaos forever!"

"...With my father's support, it doesn't matter what's lacking. Everything will surely calm down."

Bianca was silent.

Was that so?

Why was there a suffocating feeling in Bianca's heart when she heard that?

It felt very uncomfortable.

What kind of place was Simeria?

Bianca now... wanted to leave!

Regardless of Malcolm's hysterical hatred, she had been floating in this vortex for so long.

She really wanted to leave.

Her heart... had drifted for too long!

Maybe it was a good idea to listen to Zane and calm down for a while in Yuloria!

However, Bianca didn't expect that apart from Yvette, Malcolm would also visit her!

This man, who hadn't been seen since the funeral, unexpectedly showed up today.

Bianca naturally didn't have a good expression when she saw him.

When Malcolm saw Bianca with so many suitcases, a smile crept up his lips. "Looks like you hold a special place in his heart."

Zane actually thought about sending her away?

Bianca didn't have a good expression to begin with. As she looked at Malcolm, her expression darkened even more.

"It's so rare for you to have time to wander around here!"

"Are you planning to leave?"

"Is that not allowed?" Bianca replied in a cold and sarcastic manner as she looked at Malcolm.

Before she could react, the man strode up to her. He reached out quickly and exerted pressure on her shoulder, almost crushing her bones.

Sebastian and the servants were about to step forward when her back hit the cold wall, but Malcolm roared angrily, "Get lost!"

Everyone trembled, but Sebastian and the servants didn't dare to leave. They feared something might happen.

"Leave!" Bianca said sternly.

Even knowing this man was a lunatic, she showed no fear in her eyes.

Sebastian and the servants stood hesitantly in place, torn between leaving and staying.

Bianca's tone grew firmer, "Leave!"

Under their mistress's stern command, they all hurriedly left despite the tightening of their hearts.

When only Malcolm and Bianca were left, a cold smile curved up Bianca's lips.

"The witnesses have been dismissed. What do you want?" She asked as she looked fearlessly at Malcolm.

Again, with that fearless look!

It was just like when she was by his side. No matter how much he tortured her, she always displayed the most indifferent demeanor.

Even when she was in extreme pain, she... could act as if it didn't matter at all.

It was as if she didn't know what pain or fear was.

She has no weak spot!

He used to think that if such a woman could be tamed, it would bring a great sense of achievement.

But now, Malcolm felt differently.

Her pride was so hateful. It was so hateful that one wished to dismantle every bit of it. Yet, this pride seemed to have been deeply rooted in her bones.

She made others understand what it meant to be inherently strong. Even if one tried to suppress and torment her, she never bowed her head!

He hated her eyes so much he wished he could gouge them out directly.

It was because she always looked at him with such indifference and fearlessness.

"What's wrong? Aren't you going to do it?"

"Do you want to die so easily? That's letting you off too easily!"

"Hah!"

Indeed, in this man's heart, to let her go like this was too kind to her.

Her cold hand slowly gripped the man's strong wrist.

"Since you don't want to be kind to me, stop gripping my shoulder like this! If you accidentally break more than that, it'll really be a favor to me."

Clearly, they were her own words, but she said them so casually now.

Malcolm never knew there could be such an abominable woman in this world, and such a venomous one at that.

Bianca had actually watched as Jade...!

"Bianca!"

"It's 74. Whenever I hear that name from your mouth, it makes me sick," Bianca said calmly.

"By the way! I'm just a number, so don't accuse me of being venomous anymore, okay?" Venomous? novelbin That term was reserved for those with intentions.

But Bianca seemed to lack even the slightest bit of intention, so how could she be accused of being venomous?

Her words undoubtedly kept poking at Malcolm's nerves.

This woman was more than just despicable!

"Is there anything else you need, my dear brother-in-law?"

Before him, she was 74. She was also his sister-in-law!

The only person she wasn't anymore... was Bianca.

He had killed that identity of hers with his own hands.

A Divorce After My Rebirth Chapter 632-The two locked eyes.

One was sharp and vicious, while the other... was fearless and mocking!

It had to be said that when a person reached the point of fearing nothing, not even death, it truly left others helpless against them.

Wasn't that exactly how Bianca was now?

Even someone as tough as Malcolm was...!

Looking into Bianca's eyes, which were devoid of fear, he truly wished he could gouge them out. It was as if that was the only way he could find some peace.

"Brother-in-law... Hehe!"

What a way to address him!

It was the first time Malcolm had been so ruthlessly outwitted.

No one had ever dared do such a thing to him before.

What made it worse was that it had been a woman who had done it! Women usually flocked to him, novelbin and none would dare do this!

Bianca had really broadened Malcolm's horizons.

After he released her, Malcolm patted her face and turned away. "Bianca, I'll be waiting!"

"I'll be waiting for the day Zane abandons you!"

There's joy in the man's tone, as if such a thing was about to happen right before his eyes.

Even though he didn't say anything else, Bianca understood. Once Zane abandoned her, what awaited her would be Malcolm's unrelenting wrath.

This was not the end of the animosity between them!

In fact, it was far from over.

Bianca remained utterly unfazed. She was like someone without a shred of fear.

As the man reached the door, he paused. He glanced sideways and said, "You underestimate the men of the Entes family too much!"

They were wolves...!

A group of men who would do anything for the ultimate position, and Bianca was now embroiled in this.

She would definitely be unable to escape unscathed.

Bianca stood rooted in place for a long time and didn't return to her senses.

Malcolm left, leaving Bianca alone in the heavy atmosphere... – Things in Simeria had reached the most critical moment. At the same time, Zane's men escorted Bianca on a private plane that soared into the night sKy.

Bianca gazes at the myriad lights of Simeria.

Once, she looked at these lights and felt empty... even wanting to escape.

But now, looking at these lights, she suddenly wondered...

When would she return?

Zane's eyes flash in her mind, stirring her heart...

In this chaos, what would Zane do?

Beneath his calm exterior, there were ripples. She was no longer as fearless as she was in front of Malcolm.

In fact, her heart... had been touched.

But she Knew that she could conceal herself only by putting on such an act. By doing so, it would force those who wished to harm her to retreat.

Malcolm!

The more submissive one was before him, the more he would trample them, leaving them no room to maneuver.

After all this time, wasn't there some understanding?

Wasn't that how Bianca saw Malcolm?

It was truly ironic!

...

In Yuloria, another night of rain passed. In the darkness, Natalie almost forgot if Yuloria had ever seen sunshine.

In the morning, she lay on the recliner under the eaves. She could still feel the rain in the yard, faintly carrying the scent of bamboo.

Natalie used to enjoy the rain. Back at Scarlet Villa, she thought rainy days were the most leisurely.

But now, this sporadic drizzle, tinged with a hint of soil, brought a sense of melancholy. Over time, it was inevitable for her heart to feel a bit gloomy. It was something she didn't particularly like.

"How are you feeling today?" Irwin appeared beside her, pulling a wicker chair and sitting down.

Natalie seemed familiar with the scent of this chair. Familiarity was truly a dreadful thing.

When she first arrived here, everything was unfamiliar. Every chair and stool felt hard.

Cedric got her this wicker chair with a cushion on top, but the simple scent of the wicker still made her feel good.

It wasn't a luxurious sofa, yet it gave a cozy feeling.

However, this comfort turned cold when she heard Irwin's voice.

"Nothing much."

It was the same answer as before.

Irwin would ask Natalie this every morning as if it were routine, and Natalie always had the same response.

As she finished speaking, she distinctly felt the tension in the man's breath increase slightly.

"Mr. Larkin's medical skills are excellent. Relax a bit. Sometimes emotions can affect a person's physical condition."

Irwin wasn't very good at comforting people, but Natalie's lack of response to the medication for such a long time worried him.

After listening to him, Natalie took a deep breath and said, "Isn't this what you want to see?"

Irwin "..."

That remark tightened the knot in his chest even more!

"Nat, what exactly do you want from me? You know it in your heart! Why say such things to mock me!?"

Indeed, Natalie knew.

Wasn't she the one who understood everything?

Amidst the chaos with Cedric, she still remembered which side she was on at the most crucial moment.

What did they want from her?

How could she not understand?

"Can we stop this?" Irwin's tone carried a hint of bitterness.

Once, he never imagined things would come to this point with Natalie. But now, as they truly faced this moment, his heart tightened continuously.

"You can leave if you can't handle it!" Natalie said in the same icy tone.

The atmosphere, the attitude... it felt suffocating.

Irwin had always been in control of everything!

When had anyone ever stirred his emotions?!

That was why everything he felt from Natalie right now was beyond torment for him.

It was the first time he had experienced this!

"I really want to leave..." Irwin looked at her, his voice tinged with bitterness.

Yet, he... couldn't bear to!

Such emotions had unexpectedly stirred within him because of past regrets! So, he understood even more how important it was to cherish and persevere.

The two-hour-long talk Irwin had with Cedric in the study that day wasn't as simple as Natalie had imagined.

Cedric... had made a decision that Irwin hadn't anticipated!

So, this bond with Natalie now wasn't something he won, but Cedric...!

Since Cedric made that decision, he hadn't thought of seeing Natalie again in his lifetime.

It was the same as Natalie.

Despite being trapped in the darkness, she still maintained her elegance and perseverance as she tried to adapt to everything.

And Cedric... How could he let her see his embarrassment?!

So, even though Irwin had won, it was a victory marred by embarrassment.

But neither Cedric nor Irwin had truly won in matters of the heart.

They both lost...!

The only difference was that Cedric paid a greater price and made more compromises.

A Divorce After My Rebirth Chapter 633-Irwin looked at Natalie and sighed. "You must get better..."

His words carried such depth and pain, as if there was a hidden meaning behind them.

Natalie was focused on the rain around her, and she stopped answering any of Irwin's questions.

Ever since Cedric left, their interactions had always been this cold!

Clack! Clack!

The sound of heels and wheels echoed in the yard, making Natalie frown as she rose.

"It's Ms. Sanders," Lydia said, leaning in close to Natalie's ear as she noticed the panic flicker across Natalie's face.

No one knew how Natalie's heart had jumped to her throat when she heard the sound of heels. It felt like what she had experienced back then...!

On the day Scarlet Villa burned down, she also heard such footsteps. So, in the darkness, she feared hearing such noise most.

Upon hearing Lydia say it was Bianca, Natalie breathed a sigh of relief.

But... why was Bianca here?

"Nat," Bianca called out.

"Bia?"

"It's me."

“What brings you here?”

Clearly, Bianca’s sudden visit surprised Natalie.

Perhaps the most helpless thing for Natalie now was what was happening with Bianca.

She truly felt helpless in this situation.

She wanted to help Bianca, but she just couldn’t.

And that feeling was painful.

“Zane sent me to find you,” Bianca said.

As she spoke, she was already by Natalie’s side. When she held Natalie’s hand, it felt cold.

Natalie tightened her grip on Bianca’s hand. Upon hearing that Zane sent Bianca, Natalie probably also 16:18 12/02/2024 Read A Divorce After My Rebirth Complete Novel novel Chapter 633 thought about what might be happening in Simeria.

Deep down, she felt sorry for Bianca.

But since Zane had smoothly sent Bianca over to Yuloria, that meant Malcolm must be quite occupied.

Bianca’s heart was also hurting. When she saw Natalie’s vacant eyes, her heart ached with suffocating pain.

Previously, she only heard Zane mention that Natalie might lose her sight.

But now, at this moment...

Bianca’s heart tightened continuously.

Reaching out, she waved her hand in front of Natalie’s eyes, but... was disappointed!

Because Natalie truly had no reaction at all.

“Can you really not see at all?” Bianca sighed.

“Mm.”

Bianca fell silent. Her heart, already aching, now feels like it’s bleeding upon hearing those words.

Natalie really couldn't see anything anymore.

When they embraced, both of them felt a sense of relief.

People would say that once a woman was involved in a romantic relationship, her friendship with her best friend would become impure.

However, they didn't know about a kind of bond that was inseparable. It was a bond where just seeing and hearing each other's voices brought an overwhelming sense of peace.

Wasn't that how Natalie feels towards Bianca now? novelbin Bianca's heart may have been swayed by Zane, and she may even suspect Zane's feelings for Natalie.

But when she truly arrived by Natalie's side, all inner turmoil was replaced by that sense of peace.

A Divorce After My Rebirth Chapter 634-Bianca realized that Natalie's world was truly simple.

Perhaps it was because of her parents' protection, as well as Irwin and Cedric.

Apart from not being able to see, nothing seems to affect her.

Not even the situation in Wexford or Simeria.

"Your presence makes me happy, of course," Natalie said.

"Is that so?" Bianca also felt it.

She thought, wouldn't it be great if time could freeze at this moment?

She was most anxious about her relationship with Natalie. She hoped that regardless of what happened in the future, their relationship would remain unchanged.

There had been too many changes in Natalie's life. It was to the point that Bianca couldn't bear it and couldn't continue watching it.

When Irwin returned, he was drenched in the rain. He took off his coat and tossed it aside, clearly not wanting Natalie to catch a chill.

"I'll go check the kitchen," Bianca tactfully excused herself.

She could feel Irwin's almost hostile gaze on her now.

It was probably because she monopolized Natalie last night, right?

Surely that was it!

Bianca knew exactly what kind of feelings Irwin harbored for Natalie, and it worried her even more.

If Cedric was Natalie's abyss, then Irwin was no better in Bianca's eyes!

After witnessing so much, she understood that matters of the heart are incredibly complex, with many factors to consider.

In many instances, things weren't as simple as one might think. Once emotions came into play, there was a lot to face.

Evidently, Bianca didn't want Natalie to face any more than she already had.

Cedric had already led Natalie to this fate, so how could Irwin be any better than him?

Especially after Bianca found out about Blair!

Regardless of the protection Irwin and Cedric may have provided Natalie, Bianca hoped Natalie could step away from these two...!

After all, their intentions of approaching Natalie were heart-wrenching.

How could Natalie endure it?

She couldn't!

Natalie was such a proud person. Even under Rebecca's oppression, she only endured it for Cedric's sake.

With no emotions involved, there's no need to endure any more!

Wasn't Natalie's current demeanor the heartbreaking result of this?! – uiaita went. IU LI ie MLU ICH.

Left alone with Natalie, Irwin forcibly grabbed her hand, causing Natalie to instinctively recoil.

But his grip tightened!

"Irwin!" Natalie frowned, her tone growing stern.

Irwin reached out. He tidied her slightly disheveled hair and sighed.

"What do you want from me?" Irwin finally said.

Yes!

What did she want from him?

He explained everything already! Why did it have to be like this? It wasn't pleasant for either of them.

Did she really have to be like this?

"I don't want anything from you!"

Natalie's tone was cold.

Whatever Irwin said or did during this time, she remained indifferent.

She was detached, and there seemed to be a tall wall between her and the world. It was hard for someone to cross over it, and Irwin felt helpless against her acting this way.

He had no idea what to do with her or how to handle her!

Looking at her coldness and feeling the weight of her indifference, Irwin finally stood up in resignation.

"How do you feel after taking your medicine today?" Irwin asked.

But before Natalie could answer, he added, "Nat, I hope to hear a sincere response. It's about your wellbeing!"

Indeed!

When it comes to health matters, Irwin hoped to hear Natalie's genuine responses.

He didn't want her previous answers, where she had remained cold and aloof.

It was enough!

Just the thought of it made Irwin think that way.

"Nothing much!" Natalie replied.

Even when Irwin pushed it this far, the response remained the same.

At this moment, Natalie clearly heard Irwin scratch his head in frustration!

It had been so long.

Edward seemed to be their only hope. It was as if everything had placed all their hopes on him.

It was as though if this medicine didn't work for her, it would have a huge impact on everyone involved!

"That's what I truly feel!"

Indeed!

She didn't feel a single thing.

"Don't realize what your answer means to us?"

Them?

What an ironic relationship!

Natalie sarcastically remarked, "What? Didn't you already make things clear with him?" She remembered when she first saw that photo, the first person she asked was Irwin. But what answer did Irwin give her?

He had no connection with Cedric.

What a convenient denial!

Irwin froze at her words.

Then he said, "Can we not talk about the past?"

"If it bothers you, leave!"

Irwin fell silent.

This woman!

A Divorce After My Rebirth Chapter 635-If you fear retribution so much, why did you do such things in the first place?

Irwin fell silent.

One could disappoint anyone, but never disappoint a woman.

The bottom line in a woman's heart was inviolable!

Yet he and Cedric both crossed Natalie's bottom line.

What does it mean?

“Are you afraid of owing me a lifetime?”

Natalie’s laughter turned more ironic.

Irwin’s heart was already aching, but hearing Natalie’s words made him feel even more uncomfortable.

Just a lifetime of debt?

But if her eyes didn’t improve because of Edward’s medicine, it wasn’t just a lifetime of debt.

What awaited would be a heavier price!

Cedric had already signed the surgery consent form and sent it to him.

It was clear how firm Cedric was in his decision.

If the medicine showed no improvement in three months, they would go to the hospital Cedric arranged.

Cedric would do the surgery for her sake, and when she returned to the Jarvis family, she would be whole again.

As for Cedric...

As he said in the study that day, it was his sin. If this was his retribution and punishment, he would bear it!

Natalie was a bit extreme in some matters. She knew many people were waiting for corneal transplants, and she had also been waiting.

But she didn’t allow anyone in the Jarvis family to use their connections for this matter.

But there were too many people waiting.

How could they easily get what they wanted without special means?

So even though Natalie had been waiting, she still hadn’t regained her sight.

So, it wasn’t as simple as Natalie had made it out to be.

It was even more cruel than owing a lifetime.

“Natalie, you don’t know anything...”

At this moment, Irwin’s tone became heavy and serious.

Indeed.

Natalie didn’t know anything.

Natalie fell silent.

She didn’t know anything?

“Yes, I know nothing! I didn’t know what Blair meant to you all.”

“I also didn’t know that in your hearts, I was just her substitute!”

Natalie was just a substitute, so they could manipulate her however they wanted, right?

After all, there wasn’t even any emotional attachment involved!

That was how Irwin was.

Irwin felt a suffocating feeling in his chest.

His mind was pounding!

He knew Natalie was doing it on purpose. She was deliberately provoking him to the point where he couldn’t stay by her side.

This woman was very malicious now.

And this malice was all because he and Cedric pushed her to this point...!

At that moment, Irwin turned around and said in a deep and tense tone, “Natalie, I regret it!”

He regretted involving her in the Wexford situation.

He truly, deeply regretted it.

“In life, how many times do we truly regret?” Natalie replied.

Even now, her tone remained icy, and Irwin truly didn’t understand how she managed it.

Irwin could do nothing but endure Natalie’s treatment of him. But more than that, he felt resigned!

All her misfortunes stemmed from him and Cedric, or more accurately, from him alone.
– Wexford was now thoroughly chaotic!

And now, waiting for the outcome of Natalie’s treatment was even more agonizing.

Irwin seemed particularly busy during this time. He barely had time for lunch before rushing off.

At the dining table, Bianca carefully served Natalie, watching her grope in the darkness.

Bianca knew Natalie was a prideful person. Though Natalie moved as if she were familiar with everything, Bianca still felt her heart ache for her best friend.

“Don’t overthink it. I just want to help you bear the burden,” Bianca added.

Indeed, just like any other time!

Whenever Natalie felt aggrieved by Cedric’s side, Bianca was there for her. No matter when or under what circumstances, they faced it together.

Natalie naturally sensed Bianca’s cautious tone.

A smile crept onto her lips. “Seriously, you...!”

Seeing Natalie smile, Bianca breathed a sigh of relief.

Because Natalie was special, so she had to be treated with caution.

Bianca smiled warmly. “It’s just...”

Just what?

This was something that would never have happened before, but now...

“Feed me, okay?”

“Alright.”

Joy seeped into Bianca’s tone. She picked up the small bowl in front of Natalie and carefully fed her.

“Nat, you don’t have to worry. Because... you’ll definitely get better!” Bianca said.

Forget about the past. Now, Natalie had the Jarvis family supporting her!

They wouldn't let her live in darkness forever.

"Anything is possible," Natalie replied casually, contrasting Bianca's nervous tone.

Yet Bianca couldn't help but feel even more concerned.

Had Natalie... already accepted this darkness?

Bianca's heart ached even more fiercely at the thought!

"Yes, anything is possible."

But Natalie's current state was reassuring. She didn't seem particularly frustrated.

As she carefully fed Natalie, Bianca couldn't help but admire her. Since she arrived here, she hadn't seen Natalie in a state of distress.

"Did the medicine really not have any effect?" Bianca asked with a slightly tense tone.

Bianca had obviously heard of Edward Larkin. Such a famous figure should have brought some hope, logically speaking.

"No," Natalie replied truthfully.

On this point, she wasn't deceiving Irwin. She genuinely felt no effect at all.

"Well then..." Bianca paused, unsure how to continue.

Every time Bianca saw Natalie take the medicine, she felt tense all over.

She had never known medicine could be so bitter!

Clearly, she had secretly tasted Natalie's medicine once. Just one sip almost made her throw up.

She couldn't fathom how Natalie managed to drink that bowl before every meal.

"Just three months," Natalie sighed.

Three months!

Hearing this timeframe, Bianca's heart tightened even more. She could barely stand it for a moment, yet Natalie had to endure it for three months!

Three months meant ninety days!

That was nearly two hundred bowls of medicine, yet Natalie felt nothing from it?!

“Perhaps Mr. Larkin’s treatment wasn’t meant for you.” Bianca sighed.

They say that herbal medicine was meant for those fated to receive it.

Natalie smiled. “Maybe.”

After all, his reputation preceded him. However, with no effect so far, perhaps Bianca was right.

But whatever the case, Natalie seemed to have truly accepted the fate of her eyes.

A Divorce After My Rebirth Chapter 636-Natalie didn’t feel anything particular about Edward’s medicine, but her routine had been adjusted.

She had to sleep half an hour after lunch. However, Bianca found it impossible to sleep.

The situation in Simeria was suffocating her. It was especially worse today as she read an article about it.

On the news, she saw Zane and Yvette’s cousin, Irene Stewart’, appearing in public together. They were holding hands...!

Rumors spread because of this report, even suggesting that she and Zane had divorced!

This bombshell of news, coupled with Yvette’s assertion that Zane now needed her father’s support, painted a clear picture of Simeria’s current state.

In the study, Bianca’s phone buzzed with an unknown number.

She answered. “Hello.”

“It’s me.” Yvette’s voice came through the phone.

“You...”

When it came to Yvette now, Bianca didn’t know how to describe her feelings. Even through the phone, she could sense the sadness in Yvette’s voice.

Irene Stewart!

She was Yvette’s cousin.

Yvette used to have such a good relationship with Zane, yet it had all come to this...

Now, she was willing to give up everything for Zane and compromise on her father's adoption of Irene.

Seeing the situation between Zane and Irene made it clear to Yvette what was happening in Simeria.

"Bianca, thank you."

Although Yvette's tone still carried sadness, she seemed grateful to Bianca at this moment.

Her gratitude made Bianca feel strange!

Despite her changed impression of Yvette, Bianca couldn't help but retort, "You don't seem to have the right to say that to me."

"Yvette, don't forget that things between you and Zane are truly over!"

Her words were sharp, and her attitude was icy.

Yvette was stunned, but Bianca hung up before she could say anything.

Yvette thanked her?!

Zane had sent her to Yuloria. Whatever her relationship with Zane was, Yvette had no right to interfere.

For the first time, Bianca felt a sense of suffocation. These feelings had never occurred to her before.

So now, she was...?!

"Calm down!" Bianca took a deep breath and told herself.

She only had a contractual relationship with Zane.

Yes... it was a contractual relationship!

In this contractual relationship, they had to deal with Malcolm, and she also needed to protect herself.

Bianca had always been someone who knew how to protect herself, especially in matters of the heart!

She had seen too much, so she knew how to protect herself.

“Ms. Sanders, are you there?” Lydia’s voice came from outside the study.

“Yes, I’m coming out now,” Bianca replied.

As she stood up, there was a loud crash!

Things on the desk fell to the ground. When she bent down to pick them up, a document caught her eye.

It was a surgery consent form.

The sight of Cedric’s signature on the form shocked her to the core.

She carefully read the contents of the consent form. However, when she processed the words, she was more than shocked!

Even though she had seen many grand gestures before, her heart couldn’t help but tremble a bit at this moment.

Cedric... actually!

He... actually...!

A Divorce After My Rebirth Chapter 637-Natalie found it utterly impossible for Cedric to do what Bianca had mentioned.

Upon hearing this, Bianca fell silent!

Undoubtedly, Natalie had long since formed a conclusion about Cedric.

It wasn’t just her.

Everyone who witnessed Cedric’s actions felt that Natalie was unimportant to him.

She wasn’t even close to Isabella’s position in Cedric’s heart!

- In Simeria, things between Zane and Irene were escalating rapidly. At first, Bianca would still go and watch, but after a few days, she simply couldn’t be bothered anymore. Some things were just too painful to watch. At night, Bianca went to see the night view in Yuloria. She had to admit that it was truly beautiful...! When she was in Verde City, she had heard that the night view in Yuloria was loved by many. In fact, Yuloria was quite known for it. After seeing it tonight, she realized it was truly worth it. On her way back, she saw a man standing outside the courtyard. There was a cold and lonely air around the man, and it turned out to be... Zane! Why was he here? Given the dire situation in Simeria and his escalating situation with Irene, why would he appear here now? Was it because of Natalie? Was he worried that Natalie would...? Thinking of this possibility, Bianca's heart, which had finally relaxed over the past few days, now tightened even more. That feeling was somewhat stifling and very uncomfortable. She approached and stood behind Zane. "Don't worry, Irwin is always around." Just like Zane said before, the power Irwin and Cedric held in their hands protected Natalie. Even if Cedric was not here now, Irwin was by Natalie's side. So, no matter how chaotic the outside world was, things were the quietest around Natalie. Upon hearing Bianca's voice, the man turned around, his eyes deep and dark. With just one glance, Bianca could see that the man had lost much weight. The next moment, Bianca felt him grab her neck and waist as she was pulled into his arms. "Ouch..." It hurt! He pressed his lips against hers in a domineering manner. It was overwhelming! The kiss seemed aggressive, yet it also felt as if Zane was releasing his pent-up emotions. Bianca could feel his emotions clearly. It was heavy, and it felt as if he were a trapped beast, eager to break free from the confines of taboo. Bianca was in pain, and tears threatened to fall as she struggled in vain! The orange glow of the streetlights was so warm. The two of them made a wonderful picture underneath the soft light. However, Bianca's heart... was bleeding. Just when she thought she was going to suffocate and die, the man finally let her go. "You don't have to..." He didn't have to do it for Natalie to see. After all, Natalie wasn't focused on emotions right now. "Where did you go?" Before Bianca could finish her sentence, Zane interrupted her calmly. Bianca fell silent. His tone was so serious, as if she was a child who had done something wrong before him. Yet, she hadn't done anything at all. "I went to the night market. The snacks here are delicious." As she finished speaking, the atmosphere around the man became even heavier. "It's rare that you still have the mood to eat something delicious now." Were there too many things going on that she couldn't even enjoy something tasty? Tonight's dinner was at Irwin's house, and the atmosphere felt too heavy for her! Because of Blair's emergence, Irwin and Cedric had become a completely different existence in Natalie's world. That feeling was truly not good at all. Every time she looked at Natalie and Irwin, it seemed like she could feel the tension between them. The atmosphere had been tense for some time now, suffocating from all angles. Bianca considered herself a free-spirited person. So tonight, feeling the wrong vibe between Irwin and Natalie, she decisively chose to escape! "Can't I?" "The situation is special now, so be more careful." Bianca fell silent. Be more careful not to upset Natalie? Even if no one reminded Bianca, she was already aware. But hearing Zane say it, she felt stifled inside. Zane's broad palm reached out to her, and Bianca asked, "What is it?" "Let's go, we're not staying here tonight." What did that mean? Were they really going to put on a show for Natalie? "I already said that... Ugh!" Before she could finish her sentence, Zane pulled her into his arms, and her vision spun. Before Bianca could react, she found herself being shoved into the car by the man. And then, he took her directly to the hotel! When she saw the luxurious presidential suite in front of her, Bianca still couldn't react. "You're not going to tell me that there are spies from the manor even here, right?" Since knowing that there were spies in Verdant Villa, Bianca and Zane had been staying in the same room. But this was Yuloria! Zane wrapped his arm around her waist from behind and embraced her. At that moment, Bianca keenly felt the heavy air around the man's body, and her initial struggle ceased in that moment. "It's been tough these days, hasn't it?" Robert had departed from the world so suddenly, and the Entes family was in chaos. Now, it wasn't just the Entes family's sixth, fifth, fourth, or third lord... Even the eldest lord was eyeing that position! The Entes family in Simeria was a century-old family. Who would want to go abroad and never return to novelbin Simeria? So...! Such family rules were cruel. The man fell silent, the lights dimmed...! And then, the two of them descended into darkness. That night, the weight on both of their shoulders was heavy. Eventually, Bianca drifted off to sleep in exhaustion. When she woke up, there was no trace of Zane in the room. And last night, they had...! Bianca sat on the bed, unable to return to reality for a long time. Although she and Zane were now in a marital relationship, she also knew what kind of relationship it truly was! They were partners. She had never thought about taking things to this level with Zane! However, it seemed like they had entered another vortex last night. So, what was this...?! Bianca took several deep breaths but couldn't suppress the heaviness in her chest. – When Bianca returned to the courtyard, Irwin was missing again. That was good. Seeing Irwin made Bianca feel uncomfortable all over. After all, she had a good impression of Irwin before, but now she was affected by Blair's existence. Natalie felt Bianca's presence and groped around. "You're back." Bianca was silent. At Natalie's words, she tensed up! "You knew?" "Zane was here last night. He left when he couldn't find you. Did you run into him outside?" "Zane came in?" Bianca asked. "Of course!" "Were you with Irwin at that time?" "Is there a problem?" Clearly, Natalie didn't understand what Bianca's question meant. Bianca took a sharp breath. At that moment, it seemed like she understood why Zane had been so crazy about her last night! It was obviously because...! That jerk! Bianca was a little angry. Although she had always been carefree, that wasn't a reason for him to act like a jerk towards her, right?!

A Divorce After My Rebirth Chapter 638-In the following days, Bianca was always by Natalie's side every time she took her medicine.

"Do you still not feel anything?"

Natalie was stunned at Bianca's words.

She looked in Bianca's direction and furrowed her brows. "Why are you acting like Irwin now?"

Bianca fell silent.

Irwin?!

That was right.

Every day after Natalie finished her medicine, Irwin would definitely ask if she felt anything!

After Irwin returned, Bianca went to the study to see him. It was unusual for her to seek him out.

Ever since she knew about Blair, she couldn't stand Irwin much.

Of course, she couldn't stand Cedric either!

Irwin looked at Bianca's serious expression and frowned. "Can I help you, Ms. Sanders?"

Bianca got straight to the point. "What's the deal between you two?"

A deal!

Yes, Bianca felt the same as Natalie. Whether it was Cedric or Irwin, their actions were always part of a scheme or deal.

Bianca still felt the same even now.

"Did you see it?" Irwin asked.

At this moment, the man's tone was so deep and icy!

"Nat wouldn't want to owe him for this!" Bianca retorted.

That was right!

Bianca knew how much Natalie hated Cedric. If Natalie had known about it, she would never have wanted Cedric's eyes, even if she were blind for the rest of her life.

Irwin fell silent.

Natalie... owe Cedric?

Bianca fell silent.

Irwin was telling the truth!

It was they who owed Natalie. If it weren't for Cedric getting close to Natalie that year and Irwin plotting against Cedric...

With how much Stephen and Heather loved her, Natalie would have had a simple and peaceful life after being brought back by the Jarvis family!

However, he and Cedric had shattered such a bright future.

Irwin was a schemer and a calculative man. As such a person, how did it come to this? Why did he get so involved?

So, one shouldn't do wrong things, because they might lose everything in the end.

"Even so, she wouldn't want it!" Bianca said firmly.

Bianca understood Natalie too well.

As Irwin said, now they owed Natalie. And if Cedric really gave Natalie his eyes, what would ultimately become of it?

A clean break of all debts between them?

Natalie wouldn't even want to give Cedric a chance for that!

"You have no right to interfere with her life at all. She's not willing to forgive you!" Bianca exclaimed confidently.

That was right.

Natalie wouldn't forgive Irwin and Cedric. And if she did go through with that surgery, it would inadvertently clear things between her and Cedric!

Did Cedric want to use a lifetime of darkness to achieve a clean break with Natalie?

How could that be possible?

It would only plunge Natalie into another abyss.

Sometimes, endless hatred towards someone was also good!

The most terrifying thing was being forced to forgive someone.

Irwin understood Bianca's meaning.

That was what he and Cedric were concerned about during their talk in this study.

Irwin took a deep breath and said, "Don't worry, he didn't want her to accept it as a clean break."

Bianca's meaning was clear.

That surgery was undoubtedly Cedric's way of returning something to Natalie, subtly pushing her to break things off cleanly with him.

But that past was too heavy to be wiped clean...!

How much harm had Cedric caused Natalie?

A clean break?

"Once the surgery is done, they'll never see each other again!"

Bianca was stunned when she heard Irwin's words, and her mind went blank!

At this moment, she was wrong.

They were all wrong!

Once, everything Cedric did for Isabella was just repayment! Besides repayment, there was no emotion.

Although he mentioned using Natalie's eyes at that time, Bianca thought... maybe Cedric was just trying to scare Natalie? Was it just empty words to her? Perhaps he never really intended to restore Isabella's sight with Natalie's help?

And now...!

When Natalie was in a situation similar to Isabella's, Edward was his first choice.

But Cedric had also prepared for the worst-case scenario. He would spend his whole life in darkness, even if it was miserable, just to restore Natalie's sight?!

That man was too complicated and hard to understand. Even in matters of the heart, he thoroughly deceived one person...

No, it wasn't just one person.

He deceived everyone.

They were all deceived by how angry he had acted!

"So, you're his concession, aren't you?" Bianca asked after a long pause.

“At this point, who else can he trust?” Irwin replied.

Right!

Someone who had been through such an experience, whether it was Cedric or Irwin, wouldn't easily trust anyone.

They didn't trust that anyone would be sincere toward Natalie.

At that moment, Bianca understood. Their agreement was that Cedric would restore Natalie's sight while Irwin accompanied her for the rest of her life!

“She wouldn't want it!”

“She can have her way with everything else, but not this matter,” Irwin said.

Bianca fell silent.

Not this matter.

At this moment, everything flashed through Bianca's mind.

What was Natalie like back then...?!

At first, she was radiant. But ever since Irwin and Cedric appeared, her world changed completely.

Now, she is a lady of the Jarvis family!

Obviously, various men would surround her, but those men undoubtedly had one thing in common.

And whether it was Irwin or Cedric, they didn't want to see this happening to Natalie...!

“Why do you treat her like this? What did she do wrong?” Bianca shouted angrily.

Why treat Natalie like that in the first place?

If it weren't for them, Natalie's world would have been peaceful, and none of this would have happened.

It hurt!

It hurt a lot.

Thinking of Natalie's past, Bianca's heart ached for her.

Natalie shouldn't have had to bear these burdens, yet it fell on her shoulders anyway.

She had nowhere to escape.

Irwin fell silent.

Why?

In fact, over the years, Irwin's most frequent question was why Natalie had to be involved!

She was innocent!

However, he couldn't find any answers.

There was a saying, 'One can't unring a bell'. Once something had been done or said, especially something significant or irreversible, it couldn't be undone or forgotten.

Perhaps neither Cedric nor Irwin ever thought this would happen where Natalie was involved! – Bianca didn't know how or when she left the study. When she returned to Natalie's room, she felt the antique room somewhat fit her gloomy mood.

Lydia was helping Natalie to dress as the weather had cooled a bit.

"Bia, where did you go?"

"I just went out for a stroll."

"Sounds wonderful."

Natalie's face was full of envy upon hearing that Bianca had gone out. She couldn't see anything now.

Going out only meant smelling the scents.

A Divorce After My Rebirth Chapter 639-Bianca tenderly touched Natalie's eye and said in a complicated tone, "You'll get better, Nat...!"

Natalie furrowed her brows. Obviously, she noticed the emotions in Bianca's tone.

Yet, she didn't know the reason behind it.

Natalie grabbed Bianca's hand, wanting to ask something, but the question stuck in her throat.

"Bia."

“Hmm?”

“You and Zane...” When she reached this point, Natalie trailed off.

Natalie obviously misunderstood, thinking Bianca’s current complex emotions were due to her and Zane.

Zane...!

The moment this name came up, Bianca instinctively withdrew her hand from Natalie’s grasp.

Natalie fell silent.

Her hand was left empty! For some reason, at that moment, her senses became more acute.

She... clearly sensed something different about Bianca’s attitude toward Zane.

What kind of person is Bianca?

Natalie knew that Bianca had always been someone who was absolutely not swayed by emotions.

However, that feeling had evidently been completely shaken now.

“Bia,” Natalie said again, her tone filled with concern for Bianca.

“Nat, what do you think of Zane?”

Suddenly, when Bianca looked at Natalie, there was a probing look in her eyes!

“Why are you asking like this?” novelbin “He’s been working by your side for so long. What kind of person do you think he is?”

What kind of person?

Natalie fell into deep thought. At this moment, Bianca’s heart was at its throat. She watched Natalie closely, observing every subtle change on her face.

She... had always been a composed and sharp person. She had never felt nervous before.

However, as she looked at Natalie now, her heart was on edge.

It’s evident what Bianca was enduring in her heart right now.

Natalie looked at Bianca. "Bia, you've fallen for him!"

It was said that when one door closed, another opened.

Even though Natalie couldn't see anything now, there was a sense of insight into human nature in the darkness.

Bianca fell silent, and she paled instantly!

Natalie could feel Bianca's obvious change very clearly. Her already tense heart was now at its limit.

Natalie sighed.

At that moment, endless concern filled her face as she looked at Bianca.

"You haven't answered me. What kind of person do you think he is?"

Clearly, Bianca was persistent on this issue. She was eager to know what kind of presence Zane held in Natalie's heart.

"What kind of person... don't you already know?"

Bianca was silent.

"How could he catch your eye if he were a bad person?" Natalie said.

Bianca remained silent.

Natalie's words hit the mark, and she was speaking the truth.

Bianca has always been good at judging people. When she was in Verde City, whether it was due to the people around her or other reasons, she went on numerous blind dates.

Each time, she could accurately point out the strengths and weaknesses of the other person. Such accuracy also meant that none of them were suitable in the end.

At that time, Natalie said Bianca was too picky!

There seemed to be no one in the world who could catch her eye!

However, who would have thought that Bianca would actually...!

"I want to know, what kind of person is he in your eyes."

At this moment, Bianca seemed very persistent about this question.

Natalie frowned, but in an instant, she understood why Bianca was so insistent. She looked at her and said, "He's only been around me for work, so I don't know much more."

Bianca fell silent.

Upon hearing Natalie's assessment of Zane, for some reason, there was a feeling of relief at that moment.

Just for work!

So, there was much more Natalie didn't know?

Clearly, as Bianca breathed a sigh of relief, Natalie felt it too.

She smiled helplessly and said, "Bia, just this once!"

Her words were calm and indulgent! But there was also a hint of reproach.

Bianca was stunned for a moment upon hearing this.

Then, a trace of an unnatural smile flashed across her face, and she even looked a bit guilty as she glanced at Natalie.

"I...!"

"You never used to show such emotions before."

Before?

Back then, Bianca was flawless from head to toe.

How could a person without emotions have such sensitive feelings?

And now...!

Thinking of the past, Natalie couldn't help but worry. "The Entes family in Simeria is a rather complicated family, as you know."

"Yeah."

Bianca knew.

Ever since Robert passed away, these complexities had become apparent.

The situation was now getting more and more intense.

No one knew what it would be like in the end, but in Bianca's heart, she is very determined not to let Malcolm succeed.

He had done so much evil!

If he did end up as the head of the family, then life wouldn't be easy, even if Bianca went abroad.

And regarding everything he had done to her...!

Just as Bianca was about to say something to Natalie, Bianca's phone rang.

She glanced at the number to see that it was a call from Simeria.

She answered. "Hello."

It was unclear what the person on the other end said, but Bianca instantly turned pale.

Then, she said, "I understand."

After speaking, she hung up the phone in haste!

Natalie naturally felt Bianca's change in mood. When Bianca hung up the phone, Natalie asked, "What's wrong?"

Bianca's breathing became heavier.

Natalie waited silently.

Bianca looked at Natalie and said in a trembling voice, "Nat, I have to go."

"You..."

"Malcolm may have caught Frederick."

Natalie's heart skipped a beat upon hearing this.

"That's impossible!"

Frederick was Irwin's man, and the reason Cedric obediently left Yuloria this time was likely because Irwin provided Cedric with information about Frederick.

"It may or may not be possible, but I have to go back to Simeria first!"

Bianca's tone still trembled as she spoke!

If Malcolm had Frederick in his hands, things would be...!

The chaotic situation in the Entes family would come to an end because of this!

But the result of this ending was not something everyone wanted to see.

"Who called you?" Natalie asked.

"Yvette!" Bianca replied.

Yvette?

Natalie knew that name. It had some connection to Zane.

A Divorce After My Rebirth Chapter 640-Natalie found Bianca's current situation increasingly complex.

However, Bianca always had her principles and a straightforward approach to things.

She understood the connections between Bianca and Malcolm well. No matter what, Bianca wouldn't let Malcolm ascend smoothly to that position.

So, her return now was not just for Zane but more so because of Malcolm.

In a moment, Natalie untangled these intricacies in her mind, which only deepened her concern for Bianca.

"Bia, Malcolm is a very dangerous man. He's a lunatic!" Natalie expressed her genuine worry.

Previously, Bianca had almost lost her life because of Faye. After that, it was because of Jade's vendetta.

Natalie was truly worried!

Bianca's eyes darkened at the mention of that man.

"Nat, some grudges aren't worth the hate. But some, we can't let go of," she said, her voice heavy with meaning.

It was a matter of principle for her. If she let go, what would it signify?

It was impossible for her!

“Malcolm won’t let me go!” Bianca stated firmly, seeing through the situation better than anyone else.

Her words were undeniably true. Malcolm had never intended to let her off the hook, not after what happened with Faye and Jade.

From the start of their conflict due to Faye, Bianca knew it would be a battle to the bitter end.

“Even if Zane wins, can it truly end between you two?”

Natalie referred to Malcolm. If he was determined not to let Bianca go, there would be nowhere safe for her, regardless of the outcome.

Bianca looked at Natalie, her eyes deep and somber.

“If Zane wins, Simeria will be my sanctuary. But if Malcolm wins, I won’t have a place to hide anywhere in the world.”

Natalie’s heart constricted at Bianca’s words, realizing the gravity of her situation. Bianca’s fate was no longer in her hands, and the resolution of Bianca’s conflict with Malcolm wasn’t something she could dictate.

Since becoming entangled with Malcolm, all initiative had slipped from Bianca’s grasp.

Once, Bianca was proactive, always holding the reins of her life.

But now...

“Bia, I was wrong,” Natalie confessed, her voice choking with emotion at this moment of realization.

Bianca fell silent, and her entire body stiffened instantly.

“You...”

“I shouldn’t have let you go to Simeria. I should have sent you somewhere else.”

Simeria was Bianca’s abyss.

At that moment, Natalie even pondered whether everything would have turned out differently if Bianca had never gone to Simeria.

If Bianca hadn’t met Malcolm...!

“You’re wrong,” Bianca softened her tone slightly as she listened to Natalie’s distress.

Natalie's heart ached even more fiercely at Bianca's words of comfort.

"That man has always had his eye on me. Actually, back in Verde City, he had already made a move against me," Bianca revealed.

"Don't say things like that to comfort me."

"I sensed it before you sent me away. It wasn't just Cedric who had done something to me back then...!"

Yes!

At that time, Cedric had repeatedly made moves against Bianca's career, and Natalie feared Cedric's tactics might become even more ruthless.

That was why she had sent Bianca to Simeria!

If what Bianca said was true and Malcolm had also made a move against her career during that time, then Natalie had essentially sent Bianca into the lion's den!

"But you and Malcolm..." Natalie began, taking a deep breath to suppress the pain in her chest.

"There's no need to say anything else about that!" Bianca cut in.

There was no point in saying more.

Natalie swallowed down the words she had intended to say because of Bianca's response. They had never discussed this issue before, and in this matter, Bianca had no choice.

She... was braver in dealing with these matters than Natalie.

Especially when Natalie learned that Bianca had married Zane, she was shocked!

Bianca was probably the only person Natalie knew in this world who would dare to do such a thing!

It was a complete defiance against Malcolm's relentless torment, a way of fiercely confronting him.

- After Bianca returned to Simeria, Natalie remained in Yuloria. Despite the chaos in both Wexford and Simeria, she finally found peace. z4 ->» I ->4+z^r lirn/Inn fr/MTn kz^r i->-> >-< rz^z^x -> ,->11 frz> rv, Aklzinll 16:19 12/02/2024 Read A Divorce After My Rebirth Complete Novel novel Chapter 640 one Clay, aiLer vvamng num I lei I lap, namiiu luccivej a cai num nuiyai. Over the phone,

Abigail told her, "Cedric has been acting very strange lately." "What's wrong?" Natalie inquired. "He seems like he doesn't want anything anymore," Abigail replied. Natalie fell silent. He doesn't want anything anymore? That must be Abigail's misconception! How could that man not want anything? Cedric was the type of person who always wanted more. He wouldn't just give up on everything. "Nat." "Yeah?" "He's been setting up trusts lately. The beneficiaries are all your daughter!" Abigail revealed. Natalie fell silent. "Why would he hand over everything under his name to a management company for trust?" Abigail's tone held some unease. Logically speaking, with Wexford in such turmoil, Cedric should be striving for a higher position within it. Irwin had already provided him with information about Frederick. Frederick might be in Malcolm's hands now, but if Cedric had returned to Wexford, everything there would definitely revolve around him. And yet, he seemed to be giving up something! "Who cares? Maybe this is his scheme. You and your family should be careful," Natalie warned. She had no interest in understanding why Cedric had become like this. "A scheme?" "Yeah," Natalie responded indifferently. Wasn't it a scheme? The man always acted in his own interest! Whether it was him or Irwin, they were both adept at scheming against others. Who knew who Cedric was plotting against now? That was how Natalie viewed Cedric and Irwin. They were people who were always ready to scheme against others. Forget about how strange he was behaving right now. Even a single word from him could have ulterior motives!

A Divorce After My Rebirth Chapter 641

A Divorce After My Rebirth Chapter 641-On the other end of the line, Abigail didn't refute Natalie's words.

After all, those who stood at the summit, whether outwardly or inwardly, were not simple individuals.

"Perhaps you're right," Abigail admitted.

"Alright."

Natalie ended the call.

Sitting in the darkness, Natalie's mind was in turmoil. When Irwin returned, she remained seated where she was.

The man approached, his cool aura enveloping her.

He knelt and took Natalie's hand. Then, he said, "Your hands are still cold."

His tone was gentle. Without a second thought, Natalie withdrew her hand from his grasp.

Irwin fell silent as bitterness flashed in his eyes.

To say he was sad...!

Despite Irwin successfully separating Cedric from Natalie, it wasn't like he was having a good time by her side. He didn't know how to break down the barriers in Natalie's heart.

"Nat," he sighed deeply, wanting to say something. But seeing Natalie's indifferent expression, he held back his words.

As days passed by, Natalie's eyes remained unresponsive. Despite Edward's expertise as a great doctor and the effectiveness of the medications administered, there was no improvement in her condition.

Was it inevitable that the surgery would have to be performed?

"Is it raining again outside?"

Natalie had become very familiar with the sound on the roof during her time here.

"Yes," Irwin replied.

"The weather in Yuloria isn't great at all."

It rained constantly, and Natalie wondered how the people in Yuloria managed.

"You don't like this weather?" Irwin asked.

He remembered Natalie once expressing her desire to visit Yuloria because of its beautiful scenery.

However, after experiencing it firsthand, she understood that every place had pros and cons.

"I don't like it."

"This is the rainy season here. It'll get better after this period."

"And after this period, it'll get so cold that it's maddening, right?"

"Pretty much!" Irwin replied.

It was the truth.

It was only after the rainy season had passed that she realized how cold it could be here.

As time passed slowly, Natalie became increasingly accustomed to the darkness.

People often said that familiarity was frightening. However, when one truly reached that state and saw no hope, adaptation and resignation were the only options.

Most people hesitated to give up their lives and chose to adapt.

Natalie was among the former.

When she lost her sight completely, just like in her previous life, she chose... to adapt diligently.

She adapted!

And with this adaptation, her hatred towards Irwin and Cedric grew stronger and stronger.

It was an overwhelming hatred!

So she warned Irwin and Cedric never to give her a chance to see them again in this lifetime, or she would make sure they suffered beyond redemption.

The medicine still had no effect on her!

When the three-month time limit was almost up, Irwin... reached out and waved his hand in front of Natalie as he held his breath!

Irwin kept an eye on Natalie's subtle reaction, but there was... no reaction at all.

How could she have no reaction?

Why was there no reaction?

Three months had passed.

Edward said that if there was no improvement in three months, surgery was the only option for her eyes.

"Nat?"

Irwin sighed.

Natalie was silent. At his words, she stirred slightly.

“When did you come back?”

At this moment, Irwin’s mind was blank.

There was no reaction. The medicine truly had no effect at all.

Three months had almost passed. Had the three months of suffering been in vain?

“Do you still feel nothing?” Irwin asked in a tight voice.

Nobody knew how complicated his feelings were at this moment. He and Cedric had been enemies for so many years.

They had fought for so many years! They had even schemed against each other for so many years.

Yet they... had never truly harmed each other. At most, they had caused damage to each other’s external interests.

However, now... Irwin understood better than anyone else what this meant.

Natalie frowned, “No!”

The words hit Irwin’s heart heavily. He took several deep breaths to suppress the heaviness in his chest.

Then he said, “It’s okay. There are still five days left.”

That was right!

There were still five days until the end of three months. Perhaps something would change in the next five days.

Natalie had already accepted it in her heart. She probably understood that the medicine had no effect on her.

But when it came to this point, the one who couldn’t accept it the most turned out to be Irwin.

“Let’s wait a little longer,” Irwin said, not sure if he was comforting himself or persistently believing that there was still hope for the medicine.

So, in the evening, he watched Natalie drink the medicine with his own eyes.

Although he was physically present during this time, he was always mentally elsewhere.

Given his nature, even though he was in Yuloria, he could very well be thinking about the matters related to Wexford.

People always said that once a person had been tainted, anything they did would always be associated with that stain.

“Just one more sip, be good,” Irwin frowned when Natalie put down the bowl.

Natalie was silent.

One sip?

Lydia and Xyla clearly sensed that something was off with Irwin.

What was he up to?

Although Irwin had been attentive to Natalie during this time, his demeanor today was clear to everyone.

“Irwin, don’t you understand?” Natalie asked.

“Just one more sip. Be good, okay?” Irwin forcibly interrupted Natalie’s words as if he knew what she was going to say but didn’t want to hear anything.

No one knew how tightly wound Irwin’s heart was at this moment. The pain gripped him fiercely, causing him to feel suffocated.

In the end, Natalie reached out to take the bowl from his hand.

However, Irwin said, “I’ll feed you...!”

“I’ll do it myself!” Natalie said coldly.

Irwin didn’t argue with her. He carefully placed the bowl into her hands and watched her drink all the medicine.

Bitter!

It was truly bitter.

Watching Natalie endure the bitterness of drinking the medicine was heart-wrenching, and thinking about what was to come made it even more bitter.

“Happy?” Natalie handed the empty bowl to Irwin, not leaving a drop.

That seemed to finally make Irwin relent.

“Open your mouth. I have the rock sugar.”

“No need.”

“Nat.”

“Isn’t the bitterness between you and him that you made me endure worse than this medicine?” Natalie novelbin said in a tone devoid of warmth.

Yet, it was these words that made Irwin feel suffocated instantly.

Indeed...!

Over the years, wasn’t the bitterness between him and Cedric, which affected Natalie, worse than this bowl of medicine?

A Divorce After My Rebirth Chapter 642-In the afternoon, Irwin sought out Edward.

The atmosphere between them was tense. Whether it was Irwin or Cedric, they had pinned all their hopes on Edward.

After hearing the purpose of Irwin’s visit, Edward looked at him with a serious expression and said, “If there’s still no response at this point, there’s no need to continue drinking the medicine.”

Irwin fell silent.

His already troubled expression darkened a bit more upon hearing this statement. “You don’t have to use Max to threaten me. Her injuries were too severe! Regardless of how we tried to control it, it was only a matter of time. If she had come to me earlier, there might have been a better chance for her to recover.”

Earlier?

Yes, the previous successful cases were all because those people sought help upon discovering damage to their eyes.

And what about Natalie?

Two whole years.

During those two years, her family had only controlled the lights around her and made her take some medication. In doing those things, they had merely prolonged the condition of her eyes.

Now, problems were surfacing.

Irwin remained silent.

At this moment, he felt a chill throughout his body.

“Prepare for surgery,” the old man’s sharp eyes glanced at Irwin like a hawk.

Surgery?!

Upon hearing those words, his expression grew even graver. After all, ‘surgery’ was a heavy term for him now.

He closed his eyes. Then, he took a deep breath and asked, “Is there no other way?”

Like adjusting the medication!

However, Edward never mentioned changing the medication, indicating that the medication couldn’t solve Natalie’s eye condition.

“She’s taken many other medications over these two years, and she went blind even while she was taking them. Recovery through medication is unlikely.”

Unlikely?

“Then, is there any way?”

Unlikely meant there was still hope!

However, Edward’s next words disappointed Irwin. He only said, “No. She’ll have to prepare for surgery.” Surgery!

Edward repeatedly emphasized surgery.

Irwin understood that if even the doctor repeatedly suggested surgery, there was probably no other solution.

- In the end, Irwin returned to the courtyard in a daze. Today was a rare sunny day. Yuloria’s afternoon sunlight was warm, and Natalie sat on a recliner in the courtyard. The sunlight fell on her, bringing warmth, but her hollow eyes were suffocating to look at. Irwin approached and sat on the stone bench beside her. Natalie felt his presence and frowned. “It’s been a long time since I’ve felt the taste of sunlight, but unfortunately... I can’t see it now!” She paused, her tone laden with bitterness, making it even more heartbreaking. Irwin took a deep breath, suppressing the heaviness in his chest. “Don’t worry, you’ll be able to see.” “Did you go to see Edward?” Natalie asked. “Yes.” “How did he respond?” How did he respond?! Irwin recalled Edward’s words and looked into Natalie’s eyes with a grave expression. He reached out and took Natalie’s hand. The warmth in the man's palm was like a blazing flame, making it almost scorching. Natalie instinctively wanted to pull away, but the man's grip tightened. "He said to finish the last few days of medication..." The last few days?! If there was still no effect until now, Edward himself had said there was no need to continue with the medicine. I lie only up.iun lei was surgery: However, Irwin still wanted to give it a try! The last few days! Traditional medicine... sometimes had such miraculous power. Natalie frowned. "Okay." She didn't inquire further. In her heart, she probably already had an idea. Just as the two were about to say something, Dylan arrived. "Sir." Dylan looked solemnly at Irwin, subconsciously glancing at Natalie. Irwin probably knew what news Dylan brought at this moment. He stood up and said, "To the study." "Yes, sir." Irwin released Natalie's hand and got up. Then, he gently adjusted the blanket on Natalie's body, his movements tender and indulgent. Dylan watched with a touch of bitterness. The two went to the study. Natalie lay in the darkness. Whether her eyes were open or closed, all she saw was darkness! It was meaningless to her.

- In the study, the atmosphere was heavy. Irwin held a cigarette. He took several heavy drags, unable to suppress the heaviness in his chest. Dylan handed him the relevant documents. Irwin glanced at them. "Is it all true?" His words carried an indescribable complexity and heaviness. Dylan nodded. "Yes, it's all true." True! Haha! Blair...! What a good one! At this moment, the turmoil in Irwin's heart over these past few days completely collapsed because of this file. Blair Russell. In his and Cedric's world, what kind of existence was Blair? She was an existence so perfect it suffocated people. The things from back then were what they least wanted to recall, and they were the reason for the complete rupture between him and Cedric. However, now... Bang! "That old man is really damn ruthless!" Irwin's words were fierce, revealing the depth of his inner pain. Dylan fell silent, and his brows furrowed tightly. Evidently, this was something he hadn't anticipated. He hadn't expected things to turn out this way. "How is he now?" Irwin asked. He was referring to Cedric! During this time, Irwin constantly inquired about Natalie's reaction to the medication, which ultimately stemmed from his concern for his childhood bond with Cedric. And now that he had discovered Blair's true nature, his feelings toward Cedric... There was no need to mention it! Yet Natalie still hadn't recovered. There was not even the slightest improvement! What did this imply? It implied that Cedric would inevitably give up his eyes for Natalie...! Irwin couldn't bear to think about it. When Dylan mentioned Cedric, the gravity in his already serious eyes deepened. He said, "Most of the things have probably been transferred under your name, and he's already restrained the Schneider family." Irwin fell silent. At this moment, his mind went blank! What... was Cedric trying to do? Though Cedric was physically in Wexford, he knew everything about Natalie's situation in Yuloria. He knew Natalie had no reaction to Edward's medicine. So, he had slowly begun to prepare everything! And all those things...! Irwin and Cedric had fought over all those things for so many years. Now, he had given them entirely over to Irwin, undoubtedly letting go completely. Cedric had... let go of Blair! And he had completely entrusted Natalie to Irwin. What kind of bond did he share with Natalie? Natalie hated him because of Wexford! But how could she know that Wexford was Cedric's pain? Cedric understood better than anyone what kind of whirlpool Wexford was. That was why he never thought of involving Natalie in Wexford's mess. He... was protecting her in his own way.

A Divorce After My Rebirth Chapter 643-When did his fear of letting Natalie know about Blair start?

He knew...

He always knew about Cedric's feelings for Natalie. Over the years, he had been exploiting those feelings.

Back then, Cedric drove him crazy!

And he wanted to make Cedric feel that madness completely.

Did Cedric truly taste this bitterness now?

However, Irwin felt no relief in his heart!

"Does he know?" Irwin asked.

He was referring to Cedric's awareness of Blair.

Dylan frowned. After a moment's thought, he said, "I think he's known for a long time."

After all, if he didn't know, how could he be so deeply moved by Natalie?

On the other hand, even if Irwin had fallen for Natalie, it was only because of the obsession in his heart.

That obsession would always overshadow them.

That obsession had also blinded him.

Now, it was all out in the open!

He wasn't just angry. He was also in turmoil.

The only time he felt peace... was when he was with Natalie!

"He's known for a long time..." Irwin murmured these words softly.

At this moment, no one knew what turmoil was raging in his heart.

Cedric...!

Since he knew, then why...?

There was no doubt that the magnitude of that incident between them was proportional to its impact on Irwin, as was evident from these years.

The impact that incident had on Irwin was almost lifelong.

Under such profound influence, if Cedric were to tell him about the agreement and understanding between Blair and the old man, then Irwin...!

There was no need to guess what the outcome would be, right?

“You’re dismissed.”

In this instant, Irwin seemed to have straightened out all the twists and turns.

As he closed his eyes, he hid the sharpness and coldness in his eyes.

Dylan knew that although Irwin had begun to suspect what happened in the past, Irwin was undoubtedly shaken when faced with the truth!

“Then, I’ll be leaving,” Dylan said solemnly, looking at Irwin with some concern.

After Dylan left, Irwin was alone in the study.

The moment he opened his eyes, endless coldness shimmered in their depths.

Yet, his whole body exuded an unspoken desolation.

“Blair...”

When he murmured the name again, there was no warmth in it.

There was only endless coldness. – Dylan left the study and saw Natalie lying on the recliner as he passed by the courtyard.

A complicated glint flashed in his eyes. He approached her and asked, “Is there still no improvement at all?”

When Natalie heard Dylan’s voice, she smiled and said, “That’s right.”

Although Dylan was one of Irwin’s men, he had helped her a lot when she was single-mindedly focused on building her business while waiting to divorce Cedric.

So, despite her dissatisfaction with Irwin and Cedric, she had never been unfriendly towards him.

When Dylan heard her answer, the complicated glint in his eyes deepened.

He wanted to say something, but he couldn't find the words. Finally, he sighed and left.

At the man's sigh, Natalie frowned!

The wind was picking up, and Lydia came out. "Miss, shall we go inside?"

The weather in Yuloria was like this, warm and sunny one moment, chilly and windy the next. Most people couldn't adapt to such weather.

Natalie nodded, and Lydia helped her up.

But just as she was about to take a step, she felt someone wrap an arm around her waist, and a crisp scent came over her.

Natalie fell silent.

It was Irwin!

Wasn't he in the study just now?

He carried her inside.

When they arrived indoors, he sat her down on a chair. Xyla had gone to make Natalie her favorite fruit tea.

Natalie sat in the darkness, keenly aware of the heavy atmosphere emanating from the man.

Natalie's expression turned cold, evidently impatient!

Irwin also sensed her mood. "What can I possibly say to you?"

The words carried a hint of helplessness and bitterness.

She couldn't see, but she could clearly sense people's emotions and breath.

"You don't need to say anything!" Natalie said.

"Let's get married."

Natalie fell silent.

Irwin's sudden words made Natalie's head buzz!

Married?!

In fact, ever since leaving Verde City, the topic of whether they would get married in Simeria was everpresent.

If Natalie hadn't found that photo in Stephen's study, they... probably would have been married already!

The photo of him and Cedric had planted the seed of doubt about Natalie getting married to Irwin.

When Irwin first came to Yuloria, he mentioned marriage.

What was Natalie's response then?

"Do you need something in Wexford that only my father can provide?"

In Natalie's mind, Irwin was a calculative man. He had manipulated Cedric for so many years and ensnared her in it.

She didn't believe this man truly loved someone or truly wanted to... marry someone!

Marriage was his tool for self-interest.

And she, the daughter of the Jarvis family who had Stephen's support, was the object he needed to use.

"Hmph!" Natalie snorted coldly.

Irwin's heart sank continuously.

Finally, he erupted.

"Natalie, can't you stop suspecting everything?"

Yes, she was suspicious.

She suspected that Stephen was useful to Irwin, and that was why the latter was proposing to her.

Natalie emanated an icy coldness around her.

Without waiting for her to speak, Irwin continued, "Right now... you have to marry me!"

At least, she had to marry him before going back to Simeria.

“What? Soft tactics didn’t work, so now you’re resorting to force?” Natalie said.

She smiled, but it was a smile that stung the man’s eyes!

The suffocating feeling in Irwin’s chest intensified!

He took a deep breath.

“I don’t care what you think. If you want to go back to Simeria, you must marry me.”

With that, he turned and left.

His hurried footsteps sounded more like he was fleeing.

He walked into the courtyard, and the scent of bamboo made Irwin’s chest feel slightly better. He took a deep breath and looked up at the sky.

In his life, he had never been in such a wretched state before!

Not even with Blair.

He and Cedric both owed Natalie. So this time... they should pay her back.

He couldn’t bring her back to ten years ago, but at least he could let her pass this time peacefully.

Inside, Natalie felt a chilling cold all over her body!

“Miss.” Lydia looked at Natalie with concern.

Obviously, she didn’t expect Irwin to make such a strong demand.

During this time, Irwin had been patient with her, but now...!

Before Natalie could speak, Lydia suggested, “Should we call Sir?” She was referring to Stephen!

A Divorce After My Rebirth Chapter 644-Irwin wasn’t like Cedric. He didn’t forbid Natalie from contacting her family.

Even when she contacted them, Natalie didn’t allow Lydia to disclose her situation here.

With both the Entes family and Wexford in turmoil, Stephen couldn’t remain uninvolved.

Ultimately, Natalie didn't want her family to worry too much about her.

Even now.

"No, it's fine."

She wanted to see what else Irwin could do!

But if he wanted to use her again, it depended on whether she agreed or not.

- Once, in the struggle between Cedric and Irwin, Natalie endured considerable harm. Now, she remained silent about matters that concerned them!
- Heather called. Her concern for Natalie was evident as they spoke to each other. "Don't worry, I can actually already tell..." "Can you see?" Heather sounded tense on the phone. Natalie fell silent. See?! Since the moment she lost her sight completely, she knew... this time, seeing again was just wishful thinking for her. When did the desire to see again become a luxury in her heart? A feeling of suffocation spread through her chest, making her feel increasingly tense inside. "Mom, I'll get better soon, okay?" At that moment, besides soothing Heather with such words, Natalie didn't know what else to do. During her time in Yuloria, whether it was towards Cedric or Irwin, she always showed her thorns. Yet nobody knew how she struggled to see in the darkness. She hoped to recover her sight and 15:22 14/02/2024 Read A Divorce After My Rebirth Complete Novel novel Chapter 644 believed that if she could see in the dark, there might be more hope for her to regain her sight. But she was wrong. She was disappointed in the end. Restoring a person's sight wasn't that easy. Failure after failure left her feeling hopeless. During the day, she tried harder to adapt to the darkness. She thought that even if she couldn't see for the rest of her life, she wanted to be an agile blind person so her family wouldn't worry about her too much. Yet nobody knew... With each mistake she made in the darkness, there was a collision of despair deep within her heart beneath her seemingly calm exterior. Nobody knew how much it hurt every time she heard Heather's concern in her voice over the phone, which eventually turned into hatred towards Cedric and Irwin. Cedric shouldn't have appeared in her life! And Irwin's plotting against Cedric, leading to Isabella's appearance, ultimately plunged her into endless despair. "Nat, would it be alright if I came to Yuloria to see you?" Heather's voice was full of heartache and concern. After Natalie had gotten back into contact with her family, Heather expressed her desire to come to Yuloria to care for Natalie more than once. But each time, Natalie refused. Now, it was the same. "I'd rather you take care of Luna for me, Mom." Luna! She was truly what Natalie had risked her life for. Heather felt choked when she heard Luna's name, and involuntarily remembered how much Natalie had suffered when she gave birth to Luna. "Wel... okay!" She knew how important Luna was to Natalie. Since Natalie went completely blind, Heather had been even more dedicated to caring for Luna. "Nat, actually, Cedric he..." "Mom." Natalie cut off Heather's words, her tone heavy. Heather often mentioned

Cedric during her calls, but Natalie always interrupted her. Obviously, Cedric was like a taboo in her life, even when mentioned by her own mother. Heather couldn't help but notice the change in Natalie's tone. "If there's nothing else, I'll hang up now." "Okay, take care of yourself." "Got it." Natalie hastily hung up, afraid that Heather would sense her current mood. After hanging up, she sat in the darkness, her face growing colder by the moment. When Clyde called the last time, he mentioned Cedric visiting Simeria, and the entire family was on guard against him. They didn't give him the slightest chance to take Luna. Just hearing about Cedric going to see Luna made Natalie's heart turn cold. What right did that man have to see Luna? – At dinner time, Irwin returned. Since his visit to Edward, regardless of how busy he was, he almost always sat beside her during meals, as if their hope was running out of time. In reality, the results were already out! But he persisted in waiting until the end. "Miss, it's time for your medicine." Lydia brought the medicine to Natalie. Natalie drained the bowl in one gulp, not waiting for Irwin to say anything. She even swallowed the last bit of sugar along with the medicine, causing the bowl to clatter heavily on the table. The sound struck heavily at Irwin's heart. "I won't be eating dinner," she declared. Every time she took such a large dose of medicine, Natalie couldn't eat anything afterward. Irwin always insisted she eat. Tonight, however, he didn't press her. Lydia carefully escorted Natalie to take a bath. After helping Natalie onto the bed, Lydia hesitantly said, "Miss, maybe we should..." She couldn't finish her sentence. During this time, Lydia and Xyla had been by Natalie's side, knowing full well that the medicine did nothing for her. And every time, the medicine was so bitter! Natalie seemed accustomed to it, but they knew she endured that bitterness alone. She knew it was novelbin futile, so why not arrange surgery instead of enduring such suffering? That bitterness was not ordinary! Both Lydia and Xyla had tasted it. So, every time Natalie acted like she was used to it, they felt even more heartbroken. "Let's go back! Sir and Madam surely have a solution," Lydia said, genuinely feeling her heart clench painfully for Natalie. It was evident even to those around her how meaningless this persistence was. "There's four days left, right?" Natalie finally said. "Miss!" Lydia's tone grew tense. "It's just a few days left anyway. Let's endure a bit longer," Natalie said in a calm and light tone. Lydia and Xyla couldn't even endure a mouthful of that bitterness. Yet Natalie had endured it for three months...!

A Divorce After My Rebirth Chapter 645-As the final days approached, it became increasingly agonizing for Irwin.

Natalie could almost feel how suffocated Irwin was. It was a testament to the torment he endured.

Yet, in the face of Irwin's torment, Natalie remained silent.

"Do you feel anything?" Irwin's emotions were barely concealed in his words.

“No,” Natalie replied, her response unchanged.

It was unclear how many times Irwin had asked this question during this time, just as Natalie didn’t know how many times she had replied with the same answer.

As she finished speaking, Natalie keenly sensed the urgency emanating from the man.

Such urgency was unlike any other time...!

It was as if he’s enduring something...!

They were too complicated!

Natalie naturally didn’t know why Irwin was feeling this way.

After breakfast, Irwin made a phone call from his study. It was an hour-long conversation whose recipient remained unknown.

When he emerged, the gravity in his demeanor was obvious.

“I’m taking you somewhere,” Irwin said after taking a deep breath.

“Where to?” Natalie’s response was calm compared to the depth in Irwin’s tone.

“The city hall,” Irwin replied.

Natalie fell silent.

Lydia and Xyla exchanged nervous glances before turning their attention back to Natalie. She sat in her wheelchair, and her hands unconsciously clenched. In the end, she chuckled.

Her laughter dripped with irony.

“I know you’re worried about me using your father. Don’t worry, I won’t use anyone this time,” Irwin assured.

“Is that so?” Natalie’s question dripped with sarcasm, amplifying the discomfort already festering within Irwin.

Doubt.

Yes, that’s what it was—the unmistakable aura of doubt.

Natalie exuded an aura of distrust towards both him and Cedric, which was evident in her tone and demeanor.

Perhaps Cedric also saw it.

Even though he forcefully stayed by her side, all he received was this bitter taste.

And they... had brought this upon themselves!

They deserved it!

In the car, Natalie offered no resistance. She was cold—dangerously so!

“Are you really going to marry me?” Natalie asked calmly.

Yet beneath her calm demeanor, a storm brewed. It was evident to anyone listening.

“Of course,” Irwin replied firmly, his words resolute.

Natalie fell silent for a moment. Just when Irwin thought she wouldn't say anything more, Natalie spoke again.

“Hopefully, you won't regret it.”

Irwin paused, sensing the tumultuous emotions swirling within her at those words. However, he didn't deserve the concept of 'regret' in his world, especially when it came to Natalie.

Initially, Irwin thought it would take some effort to persuade Natalie to marry him. He hadn't expected her to offer no resistance at all.

Inside the city hall, numerous couples preparing for marriage glanced at Irwin and Natalie. They were captivated by Irwin's striking appearance.

Yet when they saw Natalie with her empty eyes as she sat in her wheelchair, they cast envious glances her way.

“He's such a good man. He's willing to marry a blind woman. She's so lucky!”

“Do you envy her?” The man beside her sounded displeased.

The woman replied, “Of course, I wish I were her. Look at how handsome he is!”

“Shut up!” the man snapped.

Natalie listened to these envious comments, a smile playing on her lips. Only Irwin understood the true meaning behind that smile.

Though the process was complex, it was swift.

When it came time to sign the documents, Irwin signed for Natalie—a practice unheard of, but the officials said nothing.

They recognized the rarity of a distinguished man marrying a blind woman. Since that was the case, they naturally deserved the happiness of marriage.

After exiting the city hall, Irwin handed their marriage certificate to Dylan.

“Go ahead,” Irwin’s tone was profound, and Dylan understood his unspoken message.

Though there were still three days left Irwin accented that Natalie’s chances of recovery with Edward’s treatment were likely nonexistent.

They were soon returning to Simeria, and any obstacles in their path needed to be cleared before they departed.

“Nat, here’s to a happy marriage to us,” Irwin leaned in close to whisper in Natalie’s ear, his tone tinged with bitterness.

He didn’t expect Natalie to respond.

Yet, to his surprise, Natalie broke her silence and said, “Happy marriage!”

Those words were profound and piercing, and Irwin sensed the sharpness in her response.

His heartstrings tightened with each passing moment. Ultimately, he swallowed down the bitterness that lingered in his chest with determination.

Whatever lay ahead, he resolved to endure it all.

No one knew what storms Natalie would stir between Irwin and Cedric in the future, but her regaining sight was an inevitable necessity.

Regardless of what she would do once her sight returned, both Irwin and Cedric were determined to let her see the world!

Although Irwin had come to terms with the fact that Edward’s treatment wouldn’t work and had obtained the marriage certificate, he persisted in his duties. Natalie continued to take the medicine at noon and night. She didn’t refuse and drank it down calmly each time. There was an endless torment in Irwin’s heart as he watched her. He almost wished she would show emotions towards him, even if it was just anger. Yet she didn’t! Regardless of the circumstances, Natalie remained composed, which only made Irwin more uneasy. – In Simeria, the news spread like wildfire. Irwin and Natalie’s marriage certificate was plastered everywhere. Upon seeing it, Heather and Stephen exchanged glances. “It seems that there really is no chance for her to recover with Mr. Larkin’s treatment,” Heather remarked in a bitter tone. Stephen furrowed his brow and remained silent. Undoubtedly, it was true. Heather harbored genuine resentment towards Cedric. Even so, hearing about Irwin and Natalie’s marriage made her uneasy after knowing about Cedric’s sacrifice for Natalie’s sake. “If Nat were to find out, how do you think she’d react?” Heather looked at Stephen, her concern evident. Stephen’s frown deepened further at Heather’s question. How would she react? He sighed and remained silent. Some things were better left unsaid.

A Divorce After My Rebirth Chapter 646-Stephen and Heather were Natalie’s parents. They knew just how much Natalie resented Cedric and Irwin.

Yet nobody anticipated that Cedric would make such a choice at Natalie’s most crucial moment.

Natalie, however, remained oblivious to it all!

She was still in Yuloria, unaware of what would happen if Edward’s medicine proved ineffective.

She had no idea what scene awaited her next!

At this moment, everyone’s hearts were tightening.

“Don’t let Nat find out!” Heather thought for a moment before telling Stephen.

“You...”

Stephen started to speak, but Heather interrupted firmly, “This is what Cedric owes Nat! Whatever the consequences, he should bear them.”

Indeed, this was what Cedric owed Natalie. No matter the hardship, it was his burden to bear.

Though Heather spoke these words, her eyes betrayed a complexity and pain that was difficult to decipher.

Honestly, the emotions between Natalie and Cedric...

Despite witnessing Natalie being utterly devastated by Cedric, seeing Cedric willingly descend into darkness for her sake left everyone around Natalie feeling bitter. – On the other hand, Bianca had also seen the relevant reports. Seeing Natalie and Irwin’s marriage certificate, she concluded almost confidently that Natalie was about to undergo surgery.

When Zane came in, he saw Bianca sigh and put down her phone.

Approaching her, he asked in a deep tone, "What's happened?"

Seeing Zane return, Bianca gently touched the adorable kitten in her arms and said, "Nat and Irwin got married."

As she spoke, she subtly scanned the man's face, which remained indifferent.

After a while, Zane frowned and said, "This might be for the best for her. It'll reduce a lot of trouble when she returns to Simeria."

Bianca remained calm on the surface, but her heart stirred slightly.

"You shouldn't have come back," Zane said, his tone growing even deeper as he sat across from her.

Bianca felt a suffocating sensation at his words. In that instant, she smiled impeccably and replied, "You forget that we're partners in this."

"You're well aware that you can't do anything in such a critical situation. Why involve yourself unnecessarily?"

At this point, getting involved would only stoke Malcolm's fiery wrath.

Bianca knew this well. But she couldn't afford to think about that now.

Malcolm couldn't ascend to be head of the Entes family!

Absolutely not!

With determination in her heart and a sharp glint in her eyes, Bianca asked, "Where is Frederick now?"

Indeed!

She had returned because she had received news about Frederick.

Previously, everyone assumed that Frederick was in Cedric's hands. But for some reason, there was now another rumor that Frederick was in Malcolm's hands!

This person was once so familiar to Bianca, and he had now become a mysterious and crucial figure!

No matter what, Bianca absolutely couldn't allow Malcolm to ascend to that position because of Frederick's actions.

Zane's frown deepened, and he replied, "We can't be sure right now."

“We have to confirm it,” Bianca heard uncertainty in the man’s voice, and her already tensed heart tightened further.

Although Frederick may not be as critical as the Entes family’s seal at the moment, he was undoubtedly a key figure.

In such a situation, there couldn’t be any mistakes.

Zane looked at her. His deep gaze carried a sharp penetrative force as if he wanted to see through Bianca.

Under such a penetrating gaze, Bianca felt uncomfortable.

As she was about to say something, Zane’s phone vibrated.

He answered, “Hello.”

Bianca didn’t know what the person on the other end of the line said, but Zane’s expression changed instantly. His long coat accentuated his towering figure as he stood up, and the aura he exuded made Bianca feel uneasy.

“Alright, I understand,” he said to the caller before ending the call. His gaze toward Bianca grew even deeper. “I need to go out for a bit.”

“You don’t need to explain anything to me,” Bianca said, feeling Zane’s actions to be somewhat odd.

In fact, Zane had been very busy lately. He didn’t need to explain anything to her, no matter where he went.

Zane nodded with a furrowed brow. As he turned around, he seemed to remember something.

He looked at Bianca and said, “Don’t try to test him!”

It was as if Zane saw through Bianca’s intentions.

When Robert was still around, Zane was always at Entes Manor, while Bianca kept Malcolm hanging by a thread.

But now things were different!

Now was a crucial time for the Entes family.

If Bianca continued her old ways, she would undoubtedly cross Malcolm’s bottom line, especially after what happened with Faye and Jade’s unfortunate fate.

Malcolm placed all the blame for those incidents on Bianca.

“I know exactly what I’m doing!” Bianca retorted.

Zane’s brow furrowed even more at her response. As he turned to leave, his voice echoed from a distance, “Bianca, don’t force me to make you leave Simeria.”

Every word he uttered carried danger and sternness.

When Bianca returned from Yuloria, Zane seemed somewhat displeased when he saw her. Despite their long-term cooperation, this was the first time he had used such a stern tone with her.

What was the reason behind it? Was it because he was worried about her? Or perhaps he believed that their relationship had surpassed their original contract?

As these thoughts flashed through his mind, so did Zane’s reaction when Natalie and Irwin’s marriage was mentioned.

“Meow!”

Bianca’s thoughts were interrupted by the meowing of the kitten in her arms, and a bitter smile tugged at the corners of her mouth.

She rubbed the kitten’s head. “You’re such a delicate little thing.”

It turned out she had inadvertently squeezed the little creature too hard while lost in thought. Luckily, it didn’t bite her!

In Wexford, Cedric also saw the relevant reports. In truth, he already knew. Despite having made up his mind, his heart still felt a sharp pang when he saw the news of Irwin and Natalie’s marriage certificate.

Kyle entered the room, looking somewhat serious as he glanced at Cedric. These days, there was a pervasive atmosphere of tension around Cedric.

“Are we all set?” Cedric asked indifferently.

A Divorce After My Rebirth Chapter 647-Kyle nodded.

His eyes were filled with complicated emotions as he continued looking at Cedric!

At this point, it was clear that even those close to Cedric couldn’t understand. Once, whether it was him or Lucas, they both felt that Isabella was the most important presence in Cedric’s world!

But...!

Even though Cedric had watched how devastated Isabella was when she went blind, he never entertained the idea of sacrificing his own eyes for her.

At that time, even though he told Natalie to give Isabella her eyes...!

Even then, they could tell Cedric was just saying those things out of anger.

He never thought about taking Natalie to the operating room.

During that time, no one knew how much had happened!

In such chaos, no one could see through Cedric.

Especially when he personally sent Natalie to prison, they... almost confirmed Isabella's importance in Cedric's heart.

But they didn't know what kind of emotions were attached to that importance!

But at this moment, Kyle and Lucas understood what Natalie's existence really meant to Cedric.

Even during Cedric's time in Yuloria, Natalie remained calm and collected. She was never as desperate as Isabella.

It was then that Cedric silently made up his mind!

If Edward's treatment didn't restore Natalie's sight, he would...!

At that moment, he had already made up his mind and decision for the surgery.

"She..." Kyle thought momentarily, wanting to say something, but nothing came out when he tried to speak!

Just as he nervously considered what to say, someone called out from outside, "Your Excellency, Miss Kayla is here."

Kyle remained silent. Upon hearing Kayla's name, his heart clenched even tighter.

If one were to talk about how many unpleasant things had happened between Cedric and Natalie...

There was that day in the hospital when Natalie had gone hysterical. When Cedric had been injured on the same day, it was clear to everyone just how much hurt there was between them.

And then, there was Blair's existence...!

However, none of those incidents could compare to the connection between Kayla and Luna.

"Let her in." Cedric pressed the cigarette butt into the ashtray.

Kyle nodded with a grave look on his face.

Kayla didn't take long to enter after Kyle left.

Because of Cedric's attitude towards her, everyone around Cedric treated Kayla exceptionally well.

At this moment, Cedric remembered...!

At Scarlet Villa, whether it was their previous life or this one, he had treated Natalie and Isabella differently. Because of the difference in his attitude towards them, even the servants had dared to snub Natalie.

When Cedric recalled these things, his heart... tightened painfully!

There was no one else he could blame for how things were between him and Natalie now!

There was a flicker of intense pain in his eyes.

Kayla obediently stepped forward. "Daddy."

"Yeah."

Kayla's tender voice brought him back to reality/ Upon seeing this little face, Cedric's entire demeanor softened slightly.

Very indulgently, he took her little hand and stroked her small face.

Despite the careful care of those around him, Kayla's face was always very pale. It was likely due to the severe illness she had previously.

"Mr. Lucas said you'll be away on a business trip for a long time this time before coming back."

"Yeah."

"I'll miss you."

Cedric fell silent.

As he listened to the child's expression of affection, Cedric felt an indescribable tenderness in his heart.

He patted the back of Kayla's hand. He said with a hint of bitterness, "You have to be good, okay?"

"Daddy, are you going to find Mommy?"

Cedric fell silent again.

Daddy... Mommy!

Thinking of the existence of these two roles in Kayla's heart, Cedric felt even worse.

He was Kayla's father!

And in Kayla's heart, Natalie was her mother.

If it weren't for the incident with Luna... could Natalie have accepted this child?

Was it possible?!

Those were Cedric's thoughts.

Unfortunately...!

No, it wouldn't have happened.

There were the grievances of their previous and current life, coupled with her knowledge of Blair's existence, to consider.

With that, it was even more impossible for Natalie to accept Kayla.

"Kayla." Cedric took a deep breath as he suppressed the suffocating feeling in his heart.

Kayla looked at Cedric blankly. "Yes, Daddy?"

"Forget about Mommy, okay?"

Kayla fell silent.

Cedric watched as something in Kayla's eyes instantly shattered.

He had ruthlessly shoved away the heartbreak he felt just moments ago, but now it came back with a vengeance. It choked him, and his head hurt so much it felt like it was about to explode.

“Forget her, okay?”

She was not Kayla’s mother!

She would never be.

Cedric could see the child’s longing for maternal love. Precisely because of this, he felt even more heartbroken.

“Mommy doesn’t want me, does she?” Kayla’s emotions were somewhat out of control, and tears instantly filled her eyes.

Cedric knew that from birth until now, Kayla never had any memories of Isabella.

It was all part of Irwin’s schemes.

Kayla had always been told that Natalie was her mother.

If one were to say who Irwin was most ruthless to, it was probably this child, right?

However, Cedric also knew that Irwin had never seen Kayla.

If he had seen this child, he probably...!

No. Based on what happened back then, Irwin was capable of anything!

In the end, it was Cedric who disappointed Irwin.

“Forget her, okay?”

At this moment, it seemed there was no other way but to have Kayla forget Natalie.

They shouldn’t wait for her anymore.

Natalie would never turn around.

So, this was what it felt like to wait in vain.

Once... Natalie had waited in despair because of his entanglement with Isabella.

Now, Cedric was waiting with the same emotions.

Once...!

Had she also gradually fallen into despair as she waited for him?

That was probably the case.

Back then, how did she endure it?

This so-called torment...

Cedric understood it clearly now.

His heart... felt like it was continuously being torn apart. The pain was unbearable!

And similarly enduring the torment was Kayla, who stood by his side.

Her longing for motherly affection was so intense that in her heart, she had always regarded Natalie as her birth mother.

However, Cedric knew she... was just like him.

Their waiting would only be in vain.

Although presenting such truth to the child seemed cruel, Cedric believed that waiting in vain forever in this lifetime was even more cruel.

If there had to be pain, then she should experience it now.

After experiencing the pain, she would... learn to let go!

But what about him? Could he really let go?

“Daddy, sob, sob...”

After all, Kayla was a child.

Upon hearing Cedric’s firm tone, it seemed that she realized something.

Then, she was unable to control her emotions and burst into tears.

A Divorce After My Rebirth Chapter 648-Did it hurt?

It hurt a lot...!

So, placing someone would never return in the deepest and most important place in one’s heart felt like this.

Cedric had once occupied the most important place in Natalie's heart, but such a position also ended in tragedy for Natalie.

Once, Natalie had waited for him, regardless of anything that happened.

Cedric had taken it for granted!

Once, he had been so arrogant!

After enduring Natalie's indifference, he felt the despair...!

"Shh. Stop crying, okay?"

"I want Mommy." Kayla looked at Cedric as she cried pitifully. Tears streamed down her face.

Cedric closed his eyes to cover up the bitterness and pain in them!

He... also missed her!

Since leaving Yuloria, he had been thinking about her all the time. – In Wexford, everything that needed to be dealt with has been almost sorted out.

Three months' time was enough for many things to happen.

And what happened shocked the entire Wexford and the Entes family. Stephen was the only one who remained calm as he knew the truth.

Others thought Cedric had gone mad.

Cedric went to Simeria once again!

Although Heather still didn't give him a pleasant look this time, her attitude and aura were noticeably softer.

"Luna is upstairs." She said in a flat tone.

But compared to last time, when she didn't want him to see the child, the situation was obviously much better.

"Thank you," Cedric said.

Heather fell silent and felt depressed!

When Heather saw Cedric appear here again, she knew very well in her heart that this might be Cedric's last visit to see Luna.

Yes.

The last time.

There were only a few days left before Natalie left Yuloria!

During these few days, everyone's hearts are undoubtedly tense!

At this point, what did Edward really mean to Natalie?

They are all very clear about it, but at this moment, it seemed like no one was willing to give up.

They were all persistently waiting!

Even in the last few days, they were still waiting.

Heather also knew very well that if these few days passed and the result remained unchanged...!

Then, this would really be Cedric's last time seeing Luna.

As Cedric reached the staircase, Heather finally said, "Don't think that by doing this, she will forgive you."

"Cedric, you've done too much harm to her! This is your retribution! Even if you do this, no one will think you're even."

Every word Heather said sounded tense.

And when Cedric heard such words, the pain that was already gnawing at his heart became even more suffocating.

"I know."

He... never thought of wiping the slate clean with Natalie this way.

Taking a deep breath, he continued without waiting for Heather to speak, "This is what I owe her!"

Heather fell silent.

What he owed to Natalie?!

What a rare sight!

But thinking about it, it was true that Cedric owed Natalie. He and Irwin had approached Natalie with ulterior motives.

This was something that could never be forgiven.

Upstairs, Luna was playing with Barbie dolls. The doll looked very pretty. Upon closer inspection, Luna's doll was dressed somewhat similarly to Natalie.

"You have to sleep well, or you'll end up short like Mommy," Luna murmured, imitating adults as she played with the dolls.

Cedric could see that Luna had been raised very well in the Jarvis family. Her grandparents were the best teachers, and she had a good uncle. Her mother was also good!

But he... had done so much wrong in Natalie's life.

In the end, he wasn't even a good father.

When he thought about it, there was a suffocating feeling in his chest. There was also unbearable pain in his heart.

"Lara? Lara!"

When Luna saw Cedric, she instantly panicked and shielded her Barbie doll behind her.

Clearly, that Barbie doll was very important to her.

Yes!

It resembled Natalie somewhat. It was because she couldn't see Natalie, so the doll had become a kind of solace.

Even a child knew how to protect the most important thing to them.

But what about him?!

Cedric's heart was in unbearable pain when he saw how guarded Luna was against him.

Lara was the servant responsible for caring for Luna. She hurried over when she heard Luna's cries.

"Miss Luna."

"Bad... bad man!"

Lara was also startled when she saw Cedric! But since he appeared here without any ruckus, Stephen and Heather must have allowed it.

It had been three months.

Most people in Lotus Villa also knew that Cedric was Luna's father!

But those who didn't know the truth believed that Stephen and Heather were wrong in this matter.

How could they let a man who had hurt Luna so much see her?

Since the child of the woman outside was so important, then let him go and live with that child!

"Be good, Miss. Don't be afraid. Don't be scared." Lara held the child in her arms as she looked at Cedric vigilantly.

And Cedric, looking at how guarded people are against him here, felt even more suffocated.

No one knew what he was feeling right now!

His daughter...!

Nothing was more despairing than having your closest blood-related family member treat you like an enemy.

Cedric now fully felt what it was like with Luna.

He wanted to approach and hug her.

However, his legs felt as heavy as lead now, especially when he saw the vigilance in her eyes toward him.

Did he even have the right to approach?

"Luna..." He gently called out her name, but it only made the child more nervous.

The last time, he told her...

That he wasn't a bad person!

Perhaps Luna had forgotten?

The only thing she remembered was the harm he caused her during those days in the hospital...!

He was her father!

Yet his actions had instilled such fear in the child.

“Mr. Johnson, perhaps it’s better if you leave. Miss Luna has just gotten a little better,” Lara said nervously.

She was heartbroken at the way Luna was behaving right now.

“What’s wrong with her?” Cedric asked.

Hearing that Luna had just gotten a little better, Cedric’s already tense heart tensed up even further.

The suffocating feeling in his chest also intensified.

Lara hesitantly replied, “During the first few days after Miss Luna returned, she was always fearful. She even wakes up from nightmares at night.”

Every word Lara said seemed to make Cedric recall something dreadful, and his heart tightened.

And when Cedric heard the words ‘nightmares’, the pain in his heart became even more intense.

He... had actually become a nightmare-like presence in his daughter’s heart!

He...!

A Divorce After My Rebirth Chapter 649- How could this happen?

Why did things turn out like this?

Nobody knew what Cedric was feeling right now.

The despair he felt now... was the same as when he thought about how Natalie would never turn around, no matter how long he waited.

Yes!

It was an even deeper despair than that.

Cedric looked at the child silently, his eyes filled with pain.

“You should leave. Miss Luna is much better as long as she doesn’t see you,” Lara repeated.

People were like this!

No matter who it was, one couldn’t directly confront their nightmares.

It was the same for Luna.

No matter what mental preparation Cedric made before coming, when he truly faced this moment...

He... was truly hurt!

He was even confused... because he didn’t know what to do with his own child.

It wasn’t just confusion.

It was sheer pain.

He felt this pain vividly now.

Finally, he turned around!

At that moment, he clearly heard Lara comforting the child in her arms.

“There, there. Everything’s fine now, Miss Luna.”

Luna couldn’t hold back her emotions and started crying. “Sob, sob...!”

When he heard the child’s emotional breakdown, Cedric felt even more bitter.

He had scared the child!

He just wanted to see her. He just wanted to be by her side, hold her, and help her when needed.

But because of what happened in the past, Luna was frightened and cried when she saw him.

Was there a father in this world who failed worse than him?

Clearly, there wasn’t!

Stephen was waiting for him at the end of the corridor. He was dressed in a neat suit and had obviously rushed back upon hearing of Cedric’s arrival!

Seeing Cedric looking so bitter and hurt, Stephen furrows his brow.

“Is Luna still afraid of you?”

Cedric was silent.

Luna... was afraid of him!

This reminder painfully stabbed at his heart.

Once...!

Cedric probably never thought he would experience such a miserable and painful moment in his life, right?

However, this misery was actually brought by his own daughter.

“It’s my own fault!”

Cedric’s words were filled with an even deeper pain now.

Stephen fell silent.

His own fault?

That... was true!

But in this matter, Luna couldn’t be blamed. If it weren’t for that incident, Luna would have had a very positive image of a father in her heart!

“In her eyes, you’re a bastard who doesn’t love her mom,” Stephen thought momentarily and decided to tell Cedric what he learned from Luna the other day.

Cedric already felt like his heart was being torn into two before this. When he heard Stephen’s words, he felt like hands had reached his chest and squeezed his heart tightly!

It was stifling and painful!

“So, in her eyes, I’m a bastard like that.”

He wasn’t just a bad person, but a bastard who didn’t love her mom.

However, Luna...

How could she know...?

She knew nothing.

She didn't know that her father loved her mother dearly. It was just that the Cedric of the past never learned how to love someone properly.

He never knew how to love someone well, so he lost that love and lost himself.

"Are you sure about this?" Stephen asked, changing the subject.

Cedric was silent.

Was he sure?

He had decided long ago.

"I've taken care of everything in Wexford."

He didn't directly answer Stephen's question, but that was his answer. Wexford had been taken care of.

Since everything had been taken care of, what he was doing now at the end was clear.

"She's probably coming back to Simeria soon." Stephen thought for a moment before speaking.

Also, she... she was married to Irwin!

He didn't say this, but he thought Cedric probably already knew, right?

Yes!

Cedric already knew. It was because he knew that his heart was even more bitter.

"I'll wait for her," Cedric replied after a moment's thought.

Stephen was silent.

He would wait for her?

Obviously, Stephen knew what this meant.

This time, Cedric was waiting for her... to see her one last time.

After that... he would be waiting in the darkness for a lifetime!

"In fact, there's also..."

“This is what I owe her,” Cedric said, interrupting Stephen’s words.

He knew what Stephen wanted to say. He had thought about it!

Ultimately, why didn’t he want to?

Because he didn’t want her eyes to hold someone else’s light...!

Stephen sighed, not knowing what to say.

Once a person realized their mistake, they were afraid of repenting.

Once they repented... they would have to face even more pain.

Cedric was clearly experiencing that now.

He had repented, so now all of this was on him. – Bianca knew Cedric had come to Simeria. In the afternoon, she saw Cedric in the cafe.

In regards to Natalie and Cedric’s relationship, Bianca was undoubtedly a witness to it!!

“Do you regret it?” Bianca set down her coffee cup and looked at Cedric across from her.

Cedric was silent.

Regret?! novelbin What was she asking?

Was she asking about Isabella?

Yes!

In Bianca’s eyes, the most detestable thing was the entanglement between him and Isabella.

Bianca was a divorce lawyer. Over the years, she had faced many couples separating for this reason.

Naturally, the existence of a third party was the most abhorrent thing in her world.

And now, she asked Cedric if he regretted it or not.

Cedric smiled bitterly. “How many people have you asked this question?”

How many people had she asked?

Bianca fell silent.

In her mind, she instantly thought of Faye.

Years ago, the lawsuit almost caused a sensation in Verde City.

If it weren't for her assistant's quick response in quickly suppressing the news, Faye's reputation would have plummeted to rock bottom!

After they had managed to get things under control, Bianca coincidentally encountered Faye, who was working as a waitress in a restaurant.

She had asked Faye the same question.

"Do you regret it?"

What was Faye's reaction at the time?

She said, "Bianca, you better never get married in your life. Don't ever experience what a hopeless marriage is like."

"Otherwise, even if I become a ghost... I'll definitely watch how you wander in confusion on the path of marriage. I'll watch how you seek your own comfort in the most pathetic and disgusting way."

When Bianca heard those words, she was shocked!

She had never seen such a self-righteous woman before. That night, she picked up the red wine before her and poured it on Faye's face.

It was also that night that Faye... died in a gruesome way!

"Bianca, you better not fall in love with Zane! Otherwise, you'll always bear the pain he brings you, and..."

And what?

When it came to this, Cedric paused.

The next moment, the man's tone became even more bitter as he continued, "You better be able to see his helplessness in his high position. Otherwise, you'll suffer even more!"

A Divorce After My Rebirth Chapter 650-Suffer more? Helplessness?

Bianca laughed coldly and bitterly. "So you're telling me that your involvement with Isabella was your helplessness?"

Once again, Cedric's response refreshed Bianca's understanding.

Indeed, there was often a hint of contempt for the pitiful!

She had thought that because Cedric had sacrificed so much for Natalie, perhaps there might have been some remorse in his heart.

Yet, the answer turned out to be quite different!

"Bianca, you don't understand!"

"You're right. I don't." Bianca's tone turned instantly sharp, her gaze piercing as she looked at Cedric.

She spoke slowly, "You could have dealt with Isabella in many ways. Who did you trample upon by insisting on keeping her by your side?"

Cedric remained silent.

"Cedric, being drawn to Nat is actually your retribution!"

What if he hadn't fallen for her? Would Natalie have suffered even more pain in his world?

Bianca thought so!

The more she thought about it, the colder and sharper her gaze became as she looked into Cedric's eyes.

Cedric was silent, but his lips curled into a bitter smile.

Retribution, huh?

Yes, he also felt the same.

"If you were given another chance, would you still keep Isabella by your side?" Bianca asked.

That was the beginning of Natalie's tragedy. Bianca couldn't believe that even now, Cedric showed no sign of remorse for what had happened.

How terrifying was such love?

Even now, when Bianca asked this question...

Cedric opened his eyes. At that moment, they shimmered with endless pain as he looked at Bianca and said, "Yes!"

Bianca fell silent and was overwhelmed by a surge of coldness. She picked up her coffee and threw it directly in Cedric's face.

When she saw the surgical consent form in the study back in Yuloria, she thought this man might have some remorse in his heart.

Now, it seemed laughable to even have entertained such thoughts.

A leopard couldn't change its spots...! – Bianca stormed out and left in anger.

Meanwhile, Cedric sat there in his misery. He didn't move for a long time, lost in thought.

His eyes were filled with bitter pain.

Did he regret it?

Of course, he did!

But having experienced both the last life and this one, Cedric deeply understood that rewriting destiny always came with a price.

Even if one tried to change it forcefully, the price they had to pay might be even heavier than they could imagine!

And having gone through the transition between two lives, Cedric also knew... There would surely be a chance to start over again in this world.

However, he didn't want it.

In their previous life, Natalie endured such pain in the fire. She had spent almost her entire final days in unconsciousness.

But what about then?

The one in pain was him, who remained awake throughout the entire time. She had passed away while still unconscious, as if it were the best liberation for her!

He pleaded desperately at the heavens for a chance, never knowing that rebirth truly existed in this world.

Then, he finally arrived in the other world where she was.

However, inevitabilities couldn't be avoided, such as that raging fire!

Apart from the fire moving from Scarlet Villa to the detention center, Natalie had also endured more pain than before.

Nobody knew how Cedric felt after he saw the burns on Natalie's body.

Nobody knew how he felt after he discovered that she had endured endless suffering to save the child in such a severe condition!

Undoubtedly...!

In this life, what that fire brought Natalie was more pain. It was a heavier price!

That was the price of rewriting destiny. He was afraid!

He was afraid of a heavier price.

Since destiny couldn't be rewritten, he mustn't allow the price to become more severe!

He was in pain.

Was Edward's medical skill really lacking in Yuloria?

No, his medical skill was widely recognized!

It was fate.

It was the price of one's destiny.

And it had affected Natalie.

Three months of suffering in vain, yet surgery was still inevitable!

If someone had to bear the price of starting over, Cedric thought, why not let it be him?

He would endure all of this in exchange for her sight and stability in her future. – In Yuloria, there were three more days.

Meanwhile, Irwin's heart was breaking more as the days passed...!

He was usually composed and self-assured. Now, he was shaken each time he faced Natalie.

Dylan came over.

“Sir.”

Irwin remained silent.

Waiting seemed to become his final insistence. Even if it was the last three days, it must be... the last hope time.

Irwin had learned that Blair's death was planned. In fact, she and Irwin's grandfather had planned it a long time ago.

Nobody knew how he felt when he learned the truth.

Irwin had hardly slept these days.

He and Cedric were both schemed against. At this point, he naturally didn't want Cedric to lose his sight and spend the rest of his life in darkness.

During lunch, things were the same as usual...!

Over the past few days, Irwin had been repeating one thing—watching Natalie drink her medicine at every meal. Then, he would check if the bowl was emptied...!

Even if there was only a sip of medicine, it was definitely a ray of hope for them.

Bang!

Natalie placed the empty bowl on the table.

Irwin glanced at it to ensure it was empty!

This moment was different. His heart clenched even tighter as he waited for Natalie's answer.

Natalie indifferently replied, “Nothing.”

Irwin was tensed, and he reacted more visibly upon hearing Natalie's words this time. A profound sorrow flashed in his eyes.

Natalie asked, “Do you want me to drink another bowl?”

Irwin fell silent.

Lydia and Xyla silently exchanged glances. Clearly, they could tell that Natalie was growing impatient.

She had already accepted the fact that the medicine truly had no effect on her.

But the one who hadn't accepted it all this time was Irwin.

Yes.

It was Irwin who hadn't accepted it all this time!

"No need for that," Irwin said.

His words only made the atmosphere even more tense.

Since Natalie lost her sight completely, everyone had been struggling.

Irwin clenched his fists. He was almost ready to throw in the towel!

But at this moment, he still felt some reluctance.

They had persisted for so long, but there were still three days left.

Why give up now?

Even though Edward himself had said that Natalie should stop taking the medicine and prepare for surgery, Irwin still frantically held onto hope.

Did he regret it?

Of course...!

Unlike Cedric, Irwin truly regretted it.

If he hadn't stirred up that storm, Natalie wouldn't have been swept into this whirlpool.

In the afternoon, it rained again in Yuloria. It was rare to have sunny days in this place.

At first, Natalie was very uncomfortable and even disliked this kind of weather. novelbin
But now, she seemed to have grown accustomed to it.

It was already winter here, and Yuloria was truly cold. It was many times colder than Simeria.
