

A Divorce After My Rebirth Chapter 651

A Divorce After My Rebirth Chapter 651-How had she spent the three months?

Whether it was him or Cedric, they both saw her trembling from the bitterness of this small bowl of medicine.

She endured for three months...!

Every meal was like this.

“These are the last few days!” Irwin’s words were tight, each word spoken with tension.

Yes, the last three days.

No matter how bitter the medicine was, only three days were left.

“Do you know what kind of pain I’ll endure next?” Natalie looked in his direction.

She couldn’t see.

However, those empty pupils made Irwin feel what agony truly was.

What comes next...?

“Do you know what surgery means to a person?”

What did it mean?

Too much!

The pain Natalie endured between him and Cedric was simply too much.

But no matter what kind of pain, she had to regain her sight!

No matter how much hatred she held, she had to wait until her eyes could see again before saying anything.

Irwin never knew that an apology or money couldn’t solve the problem when someone made a mistake.

He never knew that a mistake could bring so much pain to the other person.

Now, he was experiencing it.

After a long time, Irwin finally said, "No matter what kind of bitterness, I'll endure it with you!"

Natalie fell silent.

Without waiting for her response, a force pushed against her in the next moment. Soft lips pressed against hers, and the bitter medicine flowed into her mouth!

It continued like this, one mouthful after another.

Irwin was holding her tightly, and she could clearly feel him trembling.

And Irwin also felt it. As she tasted the bitterness, her entire body trembled lightly.

Initially, the bitterness he felt from the medicine!

It seemed to be nothing compared to the pain she brought him.

The bowl of medicine... was quickly finished. Irwin clearly felt what kind of bitterness a bowl of medicine could bring to a person.

That was far beyond what one could taste with just one sip.

A whole bowl of medicine allowed one to know what the bitterest taste in the world truly was.

He held Natalie gently in his arms, gently pressing his nose against hers. Their breaths intertwined as they silently sat there.

At this moment, so many words were stuck in Irwin's throat. He couldn't say anything, no matter how much he wished to.

The only thing he could think about was the bitterness that even caused his soul to tremble.

"Nat..." Irwin softly called her name.

Natalie wanted to struggle, but she hadn't even recovered from that bitterness in her mouth. Her body seemed to have lost all its strength, allowing Irwin to hold her.

After a long time, she finally managed to speak. "Get lost!"

She spat out the words coldly, as if she had used all her strength.

But Irwin's grip on her tightened even more.

Although he realized beforehand that the one who would ultimately pay the price in this relationship was Natalie, he didn't know...!

She was in such pain.

These three months...!

It seemed that he and Cedric had accompanied her for her treatment and assumed it was just a bowl of medicine...

But was it really just a bowl of medicine?

What kind of pain was she really enduring?

Irwin completely understood and truly experienced it now.

"We won't take it anymore...!"

Finally, Irwin compromised.

Three days!

He was initially stubborn and thought that the last three days might have held hope! However, three months had passed, and there was still no sign of hope.

Perhaps... there really wasn't any hope to cure Natalie's eyes with this medicine.

After feeling Natalie's cold tremors, so much of Irwin's obsession dissipated completely.

"You're right. If this medicine doesn't work, you'll have suffered for these three days for nothing!"

And he had no right.

After all, if the medicine had no effect on her, then she would still endure the pain of surgery next.

He and Cedric were destined to pay the price for what they had done. But Cedric...!

Thinking of Cedric, Irwin's heart tightened continuously.

When Natalie heard Irwin say they wouldn't take the medicine anymore, her whole body... seemed to relax.

At this moment, Irwin also fully realized the pain that the medicine had brought to Natalie.

That night, Natalie fell asleep early.

Although Irwin said she wouldn't need to take the medicine anymore, he didn't specify when he would return to Simeria.

Lydia added another blanket on top of Natalie. "Miss, this might make you feel a bit warmer."

"Okay."

Actually, Natalie didn't feel anything.

It was still very cold!

The cold of Yuloria was truly bone-chilling. It was probably difficult for someone who had never lived here to endure such cold.

"I hope we can go back soon. It's really cold here," Lydia said.

It was even colder than Mount Elven. Although it looked like an icy wasteland there, at least it wouldn't be as cold as this when the wind wasn't blowing.

However, here... Even when the sun was out, there was a chilly feeling. If it rained, it would be bone-chillingly cold straight away!

"Lydia."

"Yes, Miss?"

"Never mind, you should go and rest. I feel like sleeping!" Natalie wanted to say something, but she swallowed it all back after a few moments of thinking.

Lydia watched Natalie close her empty eyes, her eyes filled with pity.

"Then, Miss, you should rest early," Lydia said before leaving.

Natalie could hear the fading footsteps as the door closed behind Lydia. When she opened her eyes, the emptiness in them deepened with endless bitterness.

Natalie waved her hand in front of her eyes, and her expression fell even more! – Meanwhile, Irwin sat in the study.

In the dim light, the melancholy contours of the man were even more pronounced. Dylan had come just after Irwin mentioned preparing to return to Simeria.

"Is there really no hope?"

When he spoke, Dylan's tone tensed even more!

Dylan had conducted the investigation himself and had been by Irwin's side for so many years.

Naturally, he knew what that matter meant to Irwin and understood the extent of its impact on him and Cedric.

He was also the one who had overturned Natalie and Cedric's relationship!

However, who would have thought that Blair would turn out to be such an unbearable existence?

"You should leave for now."

Irwin didn't directly answer Dylan's question. The man's bright eyes flickered with complex emotions in the dim space.

Dylan wanted to say more, but seeing the cold aura emanating from Irwin's profile, he swallowed back the words he was about to say.

He nodded and left.

When Irwin was alone in the study, the sound of a lighter echoed across the room. As the flame rose, it brought a strong smell of gasoline.

The moment the cigarette ignited, it mingled with the smell of tobacco. It was a scent unique to men.

Yet, the lingering scent in the study was not unpleasant. Instead, it was quite refreshing.

A Divorce After My Rebirth Chapter 652-How had she spent the three months?

Whether it was him or Cedric, they both saw her trembling from the bitterness of this small bowl of medicine.

She endured for three months...!

Every meal was like this.

"These are the last few days!" Irwin's words were tight, each word spoken with tension.

Yes, the last three days.

No matter how bitter the medicine was, only three days were left.

“Do you know what kind of pain I’ll endure next?” Natalie looked in his direction.

She couldn’t see.

However, those empty pupils made Irwin feel what agony truly was.

What comes next...?

“Do you know what surgery means to a person?”

What did it mean?

Too much!

The pain Natalie endured between him and Cedric was simply too much.

But no matter what kind of pain, she had to regain her sight!

No matter how much hatred she held, she had to wait until her eyes could see again before saying anything.

Irwin never knew that an apology or money couldn’t solve the problem when someone made a mistake.

He never knew that a mistake could bring so much pain to the other person.

Now, he was experiencing it.

After a long time, Irwin finally said, “No matter what kind of bitterness, I’ll endure it with you!”

Natalie fell silent.

Without waiting for her response, a force pushed against her in the next moment. Soft lips pressed against hers, and the bitter medicine flowed into her mouth!

It continued like this, one mouthful after another.

Irwin was holding her tightly, and she could clearly feel him trembling.

And Irwin also felt it. As she tasted the bitterness, her entire body trembled lightly.

Initially, the bitterness he felt from the medicine!

It seemed to be nothing compared to the pain she brought him.

The bowl of medicine... was quickly finished. Irwin clearly felt what kind of bitterness a bowl of medicine could bring to a person.

That was far beyond what one could taste with just one sip.

A whole bowl of medicine allowed one to know what the bitterest taste in the world truly was.

He held Natalie gently in his arms, gently pressing his nose against hers. Their breaths intertwined as they silently sat there.

At this moment, so many words were stuck in Irwin's throat. He couldn't say anything, no matter how much he wished to.

The only thing he could think about was the bitterness that even caused his soul to tremble.

"Nat..." Irwin softly called her name.

Natalie wanted to struggle, but she hadn't even recovered from that bitterness in her mouth. Her body seemed to have lost all its strength, allowing Irwin to hold her.

After a long time, she finally managed to speak. "Get lost!"

She spat out the words coldly, as if she had used all her strength.

But Irwin's grip on her tightened even more.

Although he realized beforehand that the one who would ultimately pay the price in this relationship was Natalie, he didn't know...!

She was in such pain.

These three months...!

It seemed that he and Cedric had accompanied her for her treatment and assumed it was just a bowl of medicine...

But was it really just a bowl of medicine?

What kind of pain was she really enduring?

Irwin completely understood and truly experienced it now.

"We won't take it anymore...!"

Finally, Irwin compromised.

Three days!

He was initially stubborn and thought that the last three days might have held hope! However, three months had passed, and there was still no sign of hope.

Perhaps... there really wasn't any hope to cure Natalie's eyes with this medicine.

After feeling Natalie's cold tremors, so much of Irwin's obsession dissipated completely.

"You're right. If this medicine doesn't work, you'll have suffered for these three days for nothing!"

And he had no right.

After all, if the medicine had no effect on her, then she would still endure the pain of surgery next.

He and Cedric were destined to pay the price for what they had done. But Cedric...!

Thinking of Cedric, Irwin's heart tightened continuously.

When Natalie heard Irwin say they wouldn't take the medicine anymore, her whole body... seemed to relax.

At this moment, Irwin also fully realized the pain that the medicine had brought to Natalie.

That night, Natalie fell asleep early.

Although Irwin said she wouldn't need to take the medicine anymore, he didn't specify when he would return to Simeria.

Lydia added another blanket on top of Natalie. "Miss, this might make you feel a bit warmer."

"Okay."

Actually, Natalie didn't feel anything.

It was still very cold!

The cold of Yuloria was truly bone-chilling. It was probably difficult for someone who had never lived here to endure such cold.

“I hope we can go back soon. It’s really cold here,” Lydia said.

It was even colder than Mount Elven. Although it looked like an icy wasteland there, at least it wouldn’t be as cold as this when the wind wasn’t blowing.

However, here... Even when the sun was out, there was a chilly feeling. If it rained, it would be bone- chillingly cold straight away!

“Lydia.”

“Yes, Miss?”

“Never mind, you should go and rest. I feel like sleeping!” Natalie wanted to say something, but she swallowed it all back after a few moments of thinking.

Lydia watched Natalie close her empty eyes, her eyes filled with pity.

“Then, Miss, you should rest early,” Lydia said before leaving.

Natalie could hear the fading footsteps as the door closed behind Lydia. When she opened her eyes, the emptiness in them deepened with endless bitterness.

Natalie waved her hand in front of her eyes, and her expression fell even more! – Meanwhile, Irwin sat in the study.

In the dim light, the melancholy contours of the man were even more pronounced. Dylan had come just after Irwin mentioned preparing to return to Simeria.

“Is there really no hope?”

When he spoke, Dylan’s tone tensed even more!

Dylan had conducted the investigation himself and had been by Irwin’s side for so many years.

Naturally, he knew what that matter meant to Irwin and understood the extent of its impact on him and Cedric.

He was also the one who had overturned Natalie and Cedric’s relationship!

However, who would have thought that Blair would turn out to be such an unbearable existence?

“You should leave for now.”

Irwin didn't directly answer Dylan's question. The man's bright eyes flickered with complex emotions in the dim space.

Dylan wanted to say more, but seeing the cold aura emanating from Irwin's profile, he swallowed back the words he was about to say.

He nodded and left.

When Irwin was alone in the study, the sound of a lighter echoed across the room. As the flame rose, it brought a strong smell of gasoline.

The moment the cigarette ignited, it mingled with the smell of tobacco. It was a scent unique to men.

Yet, the lingering scent in the study was not unpleasant. Instead, it was quite refreshing.

A Divorce After My Rebirth Chapter 653-Irwin smoked several cigarettes under the dim light, seemingly easing the heaviness in his chest.

Then, he pulled out his phone to call Cedric.

Soon, Cedric answered. "Hello."

"It's time," Irwin said.

"When are you coming back?" Cedric asked.

At this moment, both of their tones were eerily calm.

It was truly ironic!

Over the years, there had always been tension between Irwin and Cedric! There was never peace between them.

Everything stemmed from Blair, and now it was alleviated because of Natalie!

However, this peace only made their hearts tighten.

"You... should come and pick her up," Irwin said.

As he uttered these words, the air instantly quieted. Their breaths over the phone grew heavier!

He asked Cedric to pick up Natalie?!

What was his intention?

“For the surgery... I’ll do it!” Irwin declared.

Cedric remained silent.

The atmosphere became tense!

As Irwin said those words, it seemed like he had used up all his strength. Without waiting for Cedric’s response, he abruptly ended the call.

In the dimness, a cold and desolate aura surrounded Irwin.

He was wrong... he was truly wrong!

In the end, the only thing he got right was his understanding of Wexford. Wexford was like quicksand, but in the end, it engulfed him and Cedric.

Then, Irwin dragged Natalie into it!

If he owed anyone...!

Between him and Cedric, Irwin was the one who owed Natalie more.

Natalie and Cedric might have been fine if it weren’t for these conspiracies and schemes!

They could have been happy.

But in the end, things had turned out this way because of Irwin.

No one slept well that night.

The following day at breakfast, the bitter medicine that made Natalie tremble was nowhere to be seen.

“I’ll feed you.”

“No need!”

“Nat, could you not be so cruel to me?”

Natalie fell silent.

At this moment, Irwin’s emotions were clearly off.

Natalie couldn’t pinpoint what exactly was wrong.

During this time, she had only just become familiar with the darkness when Irwin arrived here!

At that time, Irwin had offered to help her, but he didn't press the matter further after her refusal.

Perhaps he saw that even though she had lost her sight, she still had her own resilience.

But what was happening now?

"Be good and open your mouth. okay?"

Irwin scooped up a spoonful of soup and offered it to her. His tone was filled with patience and indulgence.

"You..."

Natalie's words caught in her throat. Clearly, she had no obligation to care about him.

"Nat, what do you think about him?"

He was clearly referring to Cedric!

Natalie's already strained expression grew colder at the mention of Cedric. She replied icily, "There's nothing to say between him and me."

Indeed, there was nothing to say between her and Cedric.

Irwin's chest tightened even more.

Nothing to say?

Irwin probably knew some of what Cedric had done to Natalie.

He... shouldn't have laid a hand on Luna!

No matter how important Isabella's daughter was to Cedric, he shouldn't have touched Natalie's daughter.

Even if he didn't know the child was his at the time, she was still Natalie's daughter.

How could he?

"You and him are the last people I want to see in my life!" Natalie's voice was cold as ice, cutting off any response from Irwin.

Irwin's already constricted chest grew even tighter upon hearing Natalie's words. His heart clenched painfully.

The most terrifying thing about people was their emotions!

Blair's actions had made him angry back then.

Now, Natalie left him feeling helpless.

"You should actually hate me," Irwin said, his words somewhat intrusive.

Natalie fell silent.

She should hate Irwin?

Hah!

At least he knew he was detestable.

In fact, he was as detestable as Cedric.

"Remember when you took me to Mount Elven? Do you remember what you said?" Natalie asked.

"Nat."

"Now you want to be a good person and take all the blame upon yourself." The irony in her words was not lost on Irwin, and it only made his chest ache even more.

Natalie continued, "You told me then that you only brought Isabella to him. In the end, who was more significant to him was simply his own judgment."

Irwin fell silent.

His heart already ached, and after hearing Natalie say these words, the pain spread a little more.

Yes! He was only responsible for bringing Isabella to him. But why Cedric ended up prioritizing Isabella and even Isabella's daughter over Natalie... was something Irwin had never considered.

Whether it was him or Natalie, all they saw was Isabella occupying a more important place in Cedric's heart.

"Irwin."

“Yeah?”

“If you were a father, who would be more important to you than your child?”

Irwin fell silent.

Who could be more important than one’s own child?

There was only one answer in his heart—no one could be more important than their child.

But he couldn’t say this to Natalie now, especially since she was already upset.

So, he wanted her to...!

“Nat, give yourself a chance. Consider letting go as also forgiving yourself, okay?”

“Kayla is still with him, right? Isn’t it ridiculous that you’re talking about this with me right now?” Irwin fell silent.

His heart was torn apart by her words!

People said that women in love were foolish, and emotions consumed their thoughts.

But Natalie seemed so clear-headed now.

Did that mean she had no emotions?

Yes! She didn’t feel anything.

The realization that Natalie felt nothing for Cedric made Irwin feel suffocated.

He had succeeded. He had successfully created a rift between them.

Yet, he couldn’t feel happy even when faced with this success.

“Nat!”

How could she? How could she feel nothing at all?

It was no wonder that during this time, all he felt from Natalie was coldness and a complete lack of warmth.

Even those around her felt it.

“Irwin, the idea of letting go and forgiving myself is so laughable!” Her words were filled with bitterness, laced with simmering resentment.

Did they ever think of letting her go?

Amidst all that had happened, they expected her to forgive herself?!

A Divorce After My Rebirth Chapter 654-If it weren't for Blair... everything that happened in the past would have been emotional pain she should have borne alone.

But with Blair in the picture, it changed everything.

Because of Blair, she got entangled in Irwin and Cedric's mess.

How could she forgive that?

“You've ruined my life completely! And now you want me to forgive myself and let go of everything?”

Irwin fell silent.

“Hah... forgive myself?!”

They were ruthless to her!

And in the end, they even expected her to forgive herself?!

How ridiculous their thoughts were!

It was not just ridiculous.

It was downright hateful!

Irwin was silent, and his already pale face turned even paler now.

They couldn't let it go.

Neither Natalie nor Cedric could let it go now.

It was agonizing.

Irwin hadn't mentioned going back to Simeria, obviously waiting for Cedric to come and pick up Natalie.

However, two days passed, and Cedric didn't show up.

Finally, a message arrived.

[Take her to the hospital we agreed on!] The hospital they agreed on! It was the one he and Cedric had agreed upon in the study before.

Did Cedric... decide to stick by his decision after all?

Irwin's hand shook as he held his phone.

When Dylan came in, he saw Irwin dressed in a black coat with a gray scarf. He looked elegant yet emitted a sense of desolation. It was evident that everything that happened during this time had caused a drastic change in Irwin's heart.

"Sir."

Irwin snapped out of his thoughts and looked at Dylan. At that moment, his eyes were filled with turmoil. He wanted to say something, but he couldn't find the words.

Cedric, he...!

Perhaps he had also sensed it, right?

Everything that happened between him and Natalie had gone too far to turn back now.

So, he was giving her everything.

Finally, Irwin said, "Dylan."

"Yes, sir."

"Prepare to go to Yonwood City!"

Dylan fell silent.

Yonwood City!

In the end, it had come to this?

For three whole months, Natalie's treatment with Edward's medicine had no effect.

So, was it necessary to resort to surgery now?

"Yes, sir." Dylan nodded without saying anything else.

He knew that ever since Irwin learned about Blair and his grandfather, he had been tormented. But regardless of the torment, they had reached this point and had to face it.

They were finally leaving.

“What’s the name of this courtyard?”

As Irwin pushed her into the yard, Natalie suddenly asked the question.

Obviously, she had no idea where in Yuloria she was living during her time here!

Irwin smiled bitterly and said, “Forget about this place.”

This place was too bitter!

If not for the scent of bamboo wafting from the yard, the smell of the bitter medicine would have filled the place. Drinking medicine every day was bitter enough, but being surrounded by its smell all the time was another challenge.

Irwin had to admit that Cedric chose this place with care!

It was just a pity that Natalie couldn’t see anything. If she could, she would surely fall in love with it.

Natalie didn’t say anything more as Irwin pushed her out. Lydia and Xyla followed behind.

When they came, they didn’t bring much, and everything was purchased after they arrived. Now, there was obviously no need to take anything away.

As Irwin said, everything here... was too bitter.

As they walked along the pavement, a cold wind swept in, causing Natalie to shiver. Yuloria was indeed cold enough to make one tremble.

Though her reaction was barely visible, Irwin clearly felt it.

When did he start to feel Natalie’s subtle reactions so clearly? Did this happen when one cared so much about another person?

Irwin hadn’t expected that he would fall for someone one day.

This feeling was really uncomfortable!

It was even more uncomfortable than when he was with Blair. Anger and helplessness were completely different concepts.

Undoubtedly, he felt more helpless with Natalie.

He took off the gray scarf and wrapped it around Natalie's neck. The color complemented her greencolored attire and looked gentle.

The warmth from the man's body wrapped around Natalie, instantly dispelling the chill.

Irwin's tone was gentle as he asked, "Are you still cold?"

Natalie replied coldly, "You don't need to do this."

Irwin remained silent. Her tone used to hurt him, but now he seemed to be used to it. This was what he and Cedric owed her, so whatever attitude she had towards them now was justified.

"It seems you're not cold anymore," Irwin's tone was somewhat bitter.

Natalie remained silent. The road was not smooth, so she could feel the unevenness of the stones as Irwin pushed her wheelchair. Fortunately, these were crafted stones, so it didn't bother her much.

The road was made with bluetones, and they emitted a unique fragrance.

"People who live here year-round must feel very happy," Natalie suddenly said.

"Why do you say that?" Irwin asked.

"This is the city center, right? Yet it's filled with the scent of nature everywhere."

That was the rarest thing there was.

Irwin fell silent, his eyes revealing a hint of bitterness. Apparently, her perception of scents had become so sensitive that it surpassed what any sighted person could experience.

In the darkness, she possessed her unique perception of the world.

"Nat, don't try so hard to perceive things, okay?" Irwin said with a bitter tone.

The more she revealed this side of herself, the more unpleasant it felt in his heart.

It's all because of the darkness! Because she had been in the dark for so long, she made an effort to perceive everything within it.

"You will be able to see soon."

Irwin wasn't sure if he was saying this for Natalie's sake or to comfort himself. But whatever it was, he was feeling the most uncomfortable at the moment, especially with Natalie's silence, which intensified the tension in the darkness.

An hour later, they arrived at the airport. Natalie sensed that the further they got from that little courtyard, the tenser Irwin became.

They had a private plane. After completing the procedures, Irwin pushed her through the private channel onto the plane. Once aboard, the world quieted down.

"Have some water," Irwin said. He was considerate and offered her a cup with a straw. Because she couldn't see, a normal cup was almost useless to her.

In any case, since she fell into darkness, all dangerous things around her had been kept at a distance.

"Thank you," Natalie said calmly.

"No need for that," Irwin replied.

Regardless of how much effort he put into her, she deserved it all.

A Divorce After My Rebirth Chapter 655-As the plane soared into the sky, Natalie finally asked, "Are we going back to Simeria?"

However, Irwin smiled bitterly and replied, "Don't worry, I'm not selling you."

Natalie frowned. In an instant, she understood that this wasn't a flight back to Simeria. She became even more displeased.

"What are you doing?" she asked.

Irwin replied, "I'm taking you for surgery."

Natalie fell silent.

Surgery?

Since returning to Simeria, whether it was her skin or her eyes, she had always faced the topic of surgery.

But now, facing this moment, no one knew what she was feeling inside.

The air was quiet. She drank from the cup in her hand vigorously, then asked tensely, "Is it available?"

She was referring to corneal transplants!

Only those truly in darkness knew how bleak hope could be and how scarce normalcy was, even though it seemed like everyone on the streets was normal.

How many people in the world hoped?

Stephen repeatedly intervened... but she refused every time. She never wanted to be special because of her identity. She was just an ordinary person standing in the most ordinary position!

"Yeah," Irwin nodded.

At this moment, Natalie keenly felt the gravity in his tone. She took a deep breath and said, "I won't accept a living donor."

"You know that, right?"

"I do."

Irwin obviously knew that.

Regardless of how Natalie's identity changed, her stance never wavered, and her heart never changed...

Except for what she felt toward him and Cedric, nothing else about her had changed.

"Then..."

Natalie frowned, but she didn't finish her sentence. A long silence ensued between them. Natalie's eyes remained hollow, making it difficult for anyone to discern her emotions.

Irwin looked at her for a long time. He wanted to say something, but the words remained unspoken.

Finally, he sighed. Then, he picked up the glass of red wine in front of him and drank it in one gulp.

It was understandable that his mood was heavy right now.

Back in Simeria, three months had passed. Heather had wanted to go to Yuloria countless times. Yet, Natalie hadn't returned yet! She and Stephen knew what was probably going to happen next. "If Nat knew..." Heather's tone was uneasy. Stephen replied, "If Nat knew, she wouldn't agree!" Even though she resented Cedric, she would never accept such an arrangement from him. Heather sighed. "He deserves all of this."

Stephen fell silent. He deserved it! Although that was what they said, Heather's tone was heavy. After all, this matter couldn't be hidden forever, and Natalie would find out sooner or later. "How's Luna?" Cedric only left today. He had dropped by Lotus Villa that day. However, Luna had been so resistant toward him. So, he had watched the child from afar and never got close to her. "She's fine as long as she doesn't see him!" Heather said. Stephen frowned. "Who can we blame?" Heather's tone was unpleasant when this topic was brought up. Indeed, who could they blame for the situation between Cedric and Luna reaching this point? It was all Cedric's own doing. Nobody expected things to come to this. Stephen looked at Heather and said, "Oh, you...!" He obviously didn't know what to say to Heather. She was sharp-tongued but soft-hearted, that was for sure. In fact, neither of them expected Cedric to make such a decision about Natalie's eyes. They thought the surgery would take some effort. However, Cedric unexpectedly stepped forward at this critical moment. When Clyde came back, he saw the heavy atmosphere between Stephen and Heather. The two exchanged glances, and Stephen said to Heather, "Cly and I will go to the study, alright?" "Alright," Heather nodded. However, her expression still bore the weight of the situation, indicating that she wasn't feeling good about it. It was mainly because no one expected things to turn out like this. After Stephen and Clyde went upstairs, Luna came in from outside. "Grandma," Luna ran into Heather's arms. Heather hugged the child and smiled indulgently. "Don't run around like this. It's not good for a girl to have scars from falling." Speaking of scars, Heather thought of Natalie's injuries. All of them were evidence of Cedric's past harm to her. When she recalled this, Heather felt slightly relieved about Cedric's decision regarding the corneal transplants. Yes! That was the debt he owed Natalie. No matter who was scheming in that scenario, emotions were always their own. In that situation, Natalie always believed in Cedric. It was just that he ultimately betrayed her trust. That was why they had reached this point now. "Grandma." "Yes?" "When will Mommy come back?" Luna asked and looked at Heather pitifully. Heather affectionately rubbed the child's head. "Do you miss her?" "Yeah, a lot." Unlike her feelings towards Cedric, Luna genuinely loved Natalie. It had been three months without seeing her, so one could imagine how much Luna missed her. Heather held the child and affectionately rubbed her head again. "If your mommy knew how much you miss her, she would be happy." "Then why doesn't Mommy come back even if she's happy?" "She'll come back soon. Really soon!" Heather's tone was bitter as she said this. Yes, Natalie would come back soon. Natalie was her daughter. So, Heather knew that during Natalie's time in Simeria, she was actually afraid. Natalie wasn't afraid of the darkness but rather the possibility of never seeing her child grow up, which was the cruelest thought for her. Natalie would be able to see...! However, the price of seeing comes with its own hardships... "Oh, Luna." Heather thought about the child's fate and felt even more bitter. A mother and a father...! Was it really destined that only one could exist in Luna's life? Wasn't that too cruel of fate? "What's wrong, Grandma?" Luna was very sensitive to emotions. Perhaps it was because of what had happened with Cedric last time. Whenever adults have such heavy emotions now, Luna can clearly feel it. Her sensitivity often left people feeling helpless and, more importantly... heartbroken!

A Divorce After My Rebirth Chapter 656-Stephen sighed. "Have you gathered all the information?"

“Yes,” replied Clyde.

“The Entes family...”

Each word seemed to be uttered through gritted teeth. The depths of the Entes family were notoriously murky, and now Stephen likely understood why Irwin insisted on marrying Natalie in Yuloria before bringing her back to Simeria.

In truth, they were all well aware.

During this period of turmoil within the Entes family, the Jarvis family wouldn't have found peace if it weren't for Cedric and Irwin by Natalie's side.

With things escalating within the Entes family, it had reached a point where the Stewart family was inevitably involved. After a moment of thought, Stephen instructed Clyde “Go to Yonwood City,” “Yonwood?” Clyde furrowed his brows.

“Give Nat a heads-up. Things are crucial for her right now.”

Indeed, he was a man who understood that when a woman was consumed by hatred, she was capable of anything. And Natalie's feelings toward Irwin and Cedric were far beyond mere hatred.

In such times, she might resort to anything.

Blair was her bottom line. With Blair in the picture, this shattered Natalie's understanding of her feelings for Cedric.

In the midst of such a situation, every thought of her previous entanglement with Malcolm left Stephen endlessly worried.

“Alright, I got it.” Clyde nodded.

Natalie was truly a headache at the moment.

The extent of her hatred towards Cedric was evident from the situation in Wexford.

“Regardless, we cannot let her get involved with the Entes family this time,” Stephen said with deep conviction.

After all, he had suffered losses due to the Entes family in the past. Over the years, although he resided in Simeria, he kept himself detached from whatever happened within the Entes family.

Even if he had a solid friendship with them, sometimes... family was more valuable than any friendship.

Once a person didn't have a family anymore, there was nothing else to consider.

Now, things were different.

With a family, there were more things to consider when doing anything.

"Alright, I understand," Clyde nodded, understanding Stephen's implication.

The current turmoil of the Eintes family was unsettling, and nobody could see clearly amidst the chaos.

The Stewart family was involved due to Irene, and no one was uncertain who would eventually lead the household amidst the upheaval.

So, in such a situation, it was best for anyone not to wade into that muddy water. – Clyde emerged from the study. When he walked downstairs, he caught sight of Heather telling Luna a story...!

Instantly, he understood why Stephen remained aloof from all situations and never got involved.

"Are you going out?" Heather asked Clyde, noticing that he was about to leave.

Clyde nodded. "Yeah."

"Drink less," Heather advised.

In her mind, men like him who went out at this time were bound to socialize. And where there was socializing, there was bound to be drinking.

At the sound of her advice, a flicker passed through Clyde's eyes.

Undoubtedly...!

Since he was a child, he had never known such warmth. There had only ever been endless struggles...!

Apart from struggling to survive, he had no other choice.

However, since returning to the Jarvis family, he...!

Winter in Simeria wasn't pleasant, and there was snowfall. When he entered the villa, it was just light snow, But now, there was a blanket of white outside.

Bang!

Suddenly, Bianca stepped out of the car, and their gazes collided as she closed the car door.

Bianca tensed up instantly.

Memories broke through when his eyes met Bianca's, but it was fleeting, disappearing just as quickly.

In the dim snowy landscape, that wordless sense of familiarity shook him to the core.

Clyde was silent.

This familiarity also made his gaze fix firmly on Bianca.

She felt somewhat uneasy under his scrutiny. She frowned and stepped forward. "Is Nat back?"

"Are you looking for her?"

Her voice was also familiar!

Their interactions had been minimal before, especially in such dim spaces where Bianca and Natalie had always been together. But there had been a few brief encounters.

Bianca shook her head. "I'm looking for Mr. Jarvis."

The solemn look on her face remained, especially the depth in her eyes. It allowed Clyde to see clearly what Bianca intended by seeking Stephen at this crucial moment.

She was Zane's wife now, and the Entes family was in a crucial period right now. So, her purpose was evident at a glance.

Clyde said, "You don't need to go in. He won't agree to what you want."

Bianca fell silent.

At his words, her complexion paled. Beneath that cold, hard exterior, nobody knew the turmoil hiding within her at this moment.

Clearly, if she truly had to enter this whirlpool right now, Stephen was her best choice.

"We'll only know once we meet," Bianca said as she was about to step forward.

But as she took a step forward, she felt Clyde grab her wrist.

Bianca furrowed her brows, looking at the man's stern profile. She had to admit that apart from height, Clyde bore an uncanny resemblance to Natalie. It was almost as if he were a male duplicate of her best friend!

At this moment, Bianca pondered.

Would that have changed anything for Natalie if Cedric and Irwin had met Clyde in Wexford? Or would the connection between Clyde and Natalie have been discovered much earlier?

"Mr. Jarvis Jr.!" Bianca said sternly.

Clyde fell silent.

Jarvis Jr.?

It was the first time someone had called him that in Simeria. Previously, he had been referred to as Master Yarborough or Mr. Yarborough. Such titles always made him feel like he wasn't truly part of the Jarvis family.

But now, Bianca's address of him stirred something deep within Clyde.

"He won't agree." Even now, Clyde's response remained firm.

"I must see Mr. Jarvis!" Bianca insisted.

"You're her friend, so I won't chase you out of this place. You should leave," Clyde said. He released her, but his tone carried a hint of danger.

Bianca fell silent.

He...!

Before Bianca could speak, Clyde said, "As the Entes family's seventh lady, you should understand what kind of entity they are. Do you really want to involve her family?"

Indeed, Bianca wasn't just seeking the help of any family.

The Jarvis family... was also Natalie's family.

"I have no choice!" Bianca said as she looked at Clyde.

Clyde's eyes darkened slightly.

A Divorce After My Rebirth Chapter 657- Unlike the chaos in Simeria, Yonwood City was peaceful. It was a bustling metropolis with its myriad lights shining brightly.

It was a beautiful sight.

As the plane touched down, Natalie asked, "Where are we?"

"We're in Yonwood City."

Natalie fell silent.

She had heard of Yonwood City before but had never considered visiting it due to its distance from Verde City. The climate in Yonwood City was completely different from Yuloria.

Even in winter, the weather was pleasant.

The moment Natalie stepped off the plane, she felt waves of warmth and even caught a whiff of mixed floral scents.

Yonwood City was also known as the Flower City!

Many rare flowers and plants were produced here due to the suitable climate, making it ideal for plant growth.

"Do you smell it?" Irwin asked.

"Yes." Natalie nodded.

Her action added a tinge of bitterness to the man's demeanor.

The airport was adorned with nameless flowers, which looked beautiful and showcased the charm of the Flower City.

However, Natalie couldn't see any of this beauty. She could only rely on her senses and her sense of smell...!

"Once you're better, I'll bring you around this place."

"No need!" Natalie said.

Irwin fell silent.

Her refusal was so decisive, indicating that Natalie wanted to stay away from him and Cedric.

If she could see now, perhaps she would have distanced herself from them long ago!

Indeed!

He could stay by her side now because she couldn't see. If she could, she would never be with him!

When he thought of this, Irwin felt a suffocating sensation in his chest.

Naturally, Natalie also felt that suffocating feeling!

Eventually, the group arrived at Evergreen Peak!

Irwin owned Evergreen Peak, and it was said that anyone who could stay here while visiting Yonwood City was either rich or important.

The prices here were exorbitant, but the facilities justified the cost.

The scent of wood and flowers filled the air, and the buildings had distinctive architectural elements.

Lydia and Xyla instantly fall in love with the place.

"Miss, if you could see, you would definitely love it here. It's really beautiful!"

It was nighttime now, and it was a lively and bustling environment. It made people feel comfortable and relaxed.

Natalie could discern the joy in Lydia's tone.

"Do you like it here?" she asked.

"Yeah, I really love it! I've never traveled anywhere before," Lydia exclaimed.

It was no wonder wealthy people loved traveling. Now, Lydia understood the allure of poetry and distant lands.

Natalie smiled in a gentle and charming manner. Under the dim, orange light, her smile gave off a warm feeling.

Irwin stood nearby as he watched her. His eyes glazed over, and his heart felt heavy.

After Dylan sorted everything out, he approached Irwin. "Sir, you can go in now."

Their building was halfway up the mountain, and there was a dedicated slide to get there.

The group ascended together.

On the way, Lydia and Xyla found everything to be delightful. They hadn't expected Irwin to own so many nice places.

"Miss, this place is really wonderful!"

The ambiance of the lights gave a dreamy feeling.

Natalie replied, "It's good that you like it."

"I think you would like it too, Miss."

Would she really like it?

Natalie asked herself this question inwardly. When did she start not knowing what she liked anymore?

Outside their building, there was a wooden terrace. From here, they could see the lights of the wooden buildings in the banana grove.

The entire banana grove was bathed in the warm orange light.

"Wow, this place is so beautiful!" Lydia exclaimed for what seemed like the umpteenth time, showing just how wonderful it was.

The night view was enchanting!

Dylan remarked, "You'll love seeing the sunrise from here in the morning."

At the mention of seeing the sunrise from this spot, Lydia became even more excited. Although the old-fashioned places in Yuloria were charming and the food was delicious, she preferred places that broadened her mind.

Although the architecture in Yuloria was unique and flavorful, it always felt oppressive.

She didn't like it there, so she rarely told Natalie what it was like. But now things were different.

Because she liked it here, she enjoyed telling Natalie about it.

"Miss, once you're better, we must stay here for a few days," Lydia said, holding Natalie's hand.

Natalie replied, "Okay."

Irwin remained silent.

At Lydia's words, there was a hint of bitterness in his eyes. After all, when he had suggested they stay here for a few days before, Natalie had outright refused.

Yet now, she had agreed because of the words of a maid?!

Lydia found everything here appealing. When preparing the bathwater for Natalie, she even added a bit of rose essential oil, just like Heather used to do. novelbin "It's no wonder people say Evergreen Peak has the most expensive accommodations. Look at the essential oils in the bathroom! They're just like what Madam used."

Naturally, Heather used the best things. But what they used here could easily compare to Heather's!

It showed that the furnishings here were definitely not lacking as compared to what they had in Simeria!

As people had said, this place was expensive for a reason!

The hot water made Natalie feel very comfortable.

"Miss, are you comfortable?" Lydia carefully washed Natalie, giving her a slight massage along the way to relieve her fatigue.

"Mmm," Natalie hummed.

She closed her eyes, enjoying the pleasant scent. Even though she was blind now, she could feel that this place made people feel better!

She always felt oppressed during her time in Yuloria. Maybe it was because it rained too much there, which made her feel uncomfortable all the time.

Even those who couldn't see could feel the heavy oppression.

"I'll put on a face mask for you in a while. The masks here are very effective."

"You even know about that?"

"Although I don't have money to travel, I certainly know about it."

Natalie chuckled.

"Tomorrow, I'll give you and Xyla a day off to have fun."

"Really, Miss?" Lydia's eyes sparkled with gratitude as she looked at Natalie.

“Expenses are on me,” Natalie added.

“Miss, you’re the best!”

God knew how high the expenses for traveling were. But considering Natalie’s current situation, Lydia shook her head, even though she really wanted to go.

“Let’s wait until you’re better.”

Now, she dared not leave Natalie for a moment. If anything happened, she would be done for!

“There shouldn’t be anything important tomorrow,” Natalie said.

Lydia still shook her head. “Even if there’s nothing important, I won’t go!”

Even if nothing was happening, staying by Natalie’s side was the most important task!

After all, Natalie couldn’t see anything now, and she needed people around her. So, even if Lydia wanted to have fun, she had to wait until Natalie’s eyes recovered.

A Divorce After My Rebirth Chapter 658-Lydia gave Natalie a massage with essential oils. Natalie had to admit that the oils here were truly excellent. All her weariness of the journey disappeared once it was used on her.

Natalie fell asleep while Lydia was giving her a massage.

Just as Lydia was thinking about how to turn Natalie over, the wooden door of the room creaked open.

Lydia looked towards the door and saw Cedric wearing a casual gray lounge outfit!

Cedric gestured for silence, but Lydia’s heart tightened. Just as she was about to say something, Irwin appeared at the door and gestured at her.

Lydia was reluctant, but she respectfully left.

In the room, only Natalie and Cedric remained.

Natalie lay peacefully on the bed, her hair falling softly over her shoulders. With her eyes closed and her curled eyelashes, she looked so beautiful, like an angel!

During this time, Irwin had been very attentive to her. Although she had been taking traditional medicine all along, her dainty face had regained some meat.

Girls were afraid of getting fat. But because she was petite, she wouldn't look good if she were too thin. Cedric gently traced her face. At that moment, his eyes were full of indulgence, tenderness, and an unprecedented bitterness.

"Mmm..." Natalie shifted, seeming uncomfortable sleeping like that. Cedric gently adjusted her.

But because she was too exhausted, Natalie didn't even have the strength to open her eyes. Feeling comfortable after being properly placed, she fell into a deep sleep again.

He watched her sleep peacefully, and the indulgence in the man's eyes grew even stronger.

He placed a light kiss on her forehead.

At this moment, it seemed like this warmth was thoroughly engraved into his heart. It was as if he wanted to carve her face forever in his memory.

"No... no..."

It was unclear what she was dreaming about, but she kept murmuring the same thing in her sleep. In this world, there were too many things she didn't want.

Cedric sat by the bedside the entire night!

He etched every one of Natalie's movements into his memory.

He... wanted to be by her side!

However, he didn't know when they had lost their way forward. It seemed like he had severed all the paths with his own hands!

Being well and safe on their own seemed like... their only path.

But in reality, even that path wasn't available to them.

How much resentment was there in Natalie's heart?

He... knew!

"In the future, I won't be in your life," Cedric said hoarsely when the sky outside gradually brightened.

She no longer liked him.

She would never like him again!

So, if he didn't exist in her life, perhaps that would be the best path for her.

That would be the best redemption.

Would she be a bit more relieved without him?

However...!

When he thought about how Natalie would never exist in his life again, Cedric felt an excruciating pain.

It was as if someone had torn his heart apart.

Finally, when Natalie turned over, Cedric got up and left.

Irwin was waiting for him outside, still in the same attire as last night.

He sat on the wicker chair on the wooden platform. The ashtray on the wicker table was full of cigarette butts.

It was evident that he had sat here all night.

Cedric was silent as he approached Irwin and sat down in the chair opposite him.

"Cigarette."

The next moment, Irwin threw the cigarette he had just taken out at Cedric, who caught it accurately!

Then Irwin threw the lighter, and the sound of the lighter clicking filled the air.

Cedric lit a cigarette and took two deep drags. It was as if he couldn't suppress the heaviness in his chest.

He said, "You should smoke less from now on. Your liver hasn't been too good for over a decade."

Irwin was silent.

Over a decade!

Yes, it had been over a decade since that incident!

And Cedric and Natalie's relationship had lasted ten years.

Irwin took a deep breath. "She was only sixteen when she met you, right?" Cedric was silent.

Sixteen years old!?

That was right.

That year, Natalie was only sixteen!

Cedric had never seen such a weary look in a sixteen-year-old girl.

She bore a close resemblance to Blair, yet... they were entirely different kinds of people.

One had been seemingly raised like a princess! Like an angel in the sky, she enjoyed unparalleled glory, making it unbearable for anyone to witness her fall.

Meanwhile, Natalie gave off the feeling as if she had endured hardships in purgatory.

Yes!

Wasn't Natalie the one who endured hardships?

At such a young age, she had lost her parents. She was left alone and had no one else in her life.

At a young age, she had bid farewell to all her loved ones.

After a short pause, Irwin continued, "It seems like she started having good days after meeting you!"

In the past, Irwin hadn't thought much of Natalie. But he knew her inside out. Isabella had always been hysterical, saying that Natalie inherited all her father's property because her mother left everything to her. Isabella said that even her portion had been given to Natalie.

However, in reality...

Did Natalie really spend all that money herself?

She had never seen such a naive woman. Clearly, she had nothing. Even in the world, she was alone.

Yet, she would regularly donate a portion of her living expenses to charity every month! The remaining part, although carefully budgeted, was barely enough for her expenses.

If the school needed additional fees sometimes, she would have only bread for her meals for almost half a month to make up for it.

Thinking about all these things, bitterness filled Cedric's eyes. "Where did she have good days following me?"

These words, spoken at this moment, were filled with such pain!

Once...!

After Natalie married him, he also once believed that it was the best outcome for her, even until the end!

Even when she couldn't see, Cedric was convinced that he was giving Natalie the best days of her life.

Little did he know...!

He overlooked a serious issue, which was...

What did Natalie want? Were the expectations of the Johnson family really what she desired? Their constant exclusion, was that really what she... wanted?

No, it wasn't!

It was only recently that Cedric thoroughly understood that Natalie had never been truly comfortable by his side.

"The best days she had with me were probably those seven years," he said.

Even though afterward, their relationship became unbearable...

But it must be said that during those seven years of their romance, Cedric did protect Natalie very well.

A Divorce After My Rebirth Chapter 659-The past... really hurt.

It hurt... and it was suffocatingly!

That was why many people were unwilling to face it, whether it was beautiful or not. Because alongside the beauty, there was also the ugliness.

The past between Cedric and Natalie was too heavy for them. It was the kind of heaviness... that suffocated a person.

"In fact, I could..."

“Irv!”

Irwin fell silent.

The word shattered all his resentment completely at this moment!

How long had it been? How long had it been since they had addressed each other like this?

What kind of presence were they in Wexford once?

If they hadn't broken apart because of Blair, would Wexford be in its current state?

No one could disrupt their alliance! No one could gain any despicable benefits from it.

However, now...!

“Take care of her.”

After a long while, Cedric fiercely finished his cigarette and pressed the butt into the ashtray.

Cedric knew very well what Irwin's intentions towards Natalie were. Because he knew it so well, he could entrust Natalie to him with peace of mind.

And between him and Natalie...!

Humans... couldn't be too clear-headed. If they were, they wouldn't even resort to shameless means.

Cedric could clearly see Natalie's disdain for him. Once he did, he even lost the courage to persist. If her sight was restored, he would clearly see her repulsion and disgust in her eyes!

Those were the evidence of his wrongdoings in her world, which could never be erased, and he... didn't have the courage to face them. Because her repulsion represented the suffering she had endured by his side.

How could he bear to let her be unhappy again and again?

“Also, you must respect her!” When he said this, Cedric looked at Irwin.

But more than that, he hoped Irwin could carve a place for himself in Natalie's heart for the rest of his life because of Natalie's current environment.

Cedric couldn't trust anyone to treat her sincerely!

Whether it was the Jarvis family or their daughter... Anyone approaching them now must be because they wanted the Jarvis family's power!

Irwin frowned.

Respect?

Now, he also knew what it meant to respect someone!

"Have you ever respected her?"

Cedric was silent, and he chuckled bitterly when Irwin asked this question.

Did he respect Natalie back then?

He did...!

However, that respect meant nothing between them.

Ultimately, he stood up and turned around without answering Irwin's question! At that moment, Irwin could practically feel the pain radiating from Cedric.

Irwin fell silent as he watched Cedric leave. At that moment, his heart felt heavy and tight.

How many times just now had Irwin wanted to mention Blair?

But as Dylan said earlier, Cedric probably knew.

Cedric should have known early on.

It was because he knew that he had invested so heavily in Natalie, even risking losing his sight because he loved her.

Natalie held the most important place in his heart. But after they had weathered countless storms, it was all still so helpless...! – An hour later, Lydia came over, and Natalie woke up to the scent of banana trees and the chirping of birds.

Lydia said, "Miss, it's also beautiful here during the day. You can see the sunrise from our room."

Natalie asked, "Who was here last night?"

Unlike Lydia's cheerfulness, Natalie felt an unpleasant tension in the air and frowned.

Lydia stiffened. She had to admit that Natalie's sensitivity to scents was truly heartbreaking, especially considering she couldn't see anything now.

Yet, she was so sensitive to smells.

Stepping aside, Lydia carefully picked out clothes for Natalie. "Miss, did you sense it?" Indeed, she did!

Natalie furrowed her brow.

Lydia approached, unsure of what to say. "Um... Miss..."

Natalie said, "Help me change."

Fortunately, Natalie didn't say anything else, which relieved Lydia. But what was Natalie feeling right now?

Cedric had been here, and the room was filled with his fresh scent. Natalie was sensitive to smell, and it made her uncomfortable.

Why had he come?

At breakfast, Irwin carefully served Natalie food.

"The surgery is scheduled for tomorrow. Eat well today. You won't be able to eat anything tomorrow before the surgery. And afterward, you might not have much appetite due to the discomfort."

Natalie ate quietly. Her face was calm, and she revealed no emotions.

Irwin glanced at Natalie, hesitating to speak.

Breakfast passed in a subdued atmosphere between the two.

"The sunlight here is lovely. Let's soak up some sun," Irwin suggested, leading her to the outdoor terrace where the warm sunlight bathed Natalie.

It felt very comforting.

Natalie also liked this feeling.

"Nat."

"Hmm?" Irwin paused, then asked Natalie, "Can we talk?"

Natalie replied, "There's nothing between us to talk about."

As usual!

Whenever Irwin seemed like he was about to say a lot, Natalie always showed impatience. Over time, Irwin stopped trying to say so much.

He stopped saying the things he wanted to say because of her interruptions.

But the surgery was tomorrow.

At this moment, Irwin couldn't suppress the words weighing on his heart any longer.

"Are things between you and him like this now? Is there really no chance left?"

Natalie fell silent. Her hands clenched into fists subconsciously, and her expression darkened.

When he saw her reaction, Irwin's heart sank. It was obvious what she thought about the matter.

"He came last night!" Natalie said.

"Yes."

"Irwin, do you think forgiveness is possible?" Her words were sharp and direct.

Irwin's already tense heart felt suffocated upon hearing Natalie's question.

Was forgiveness possible?

Clearly not!

Their actions were unforgivable.

"If you want to blame someone, blame me. It was me...!" Irwin began.

"Do you think you could change some things so easily with your schemes?" Natalie interrupted.

Could they?

Clearly, they couldn't!

Before Irwin could respond, Natalie continued, "If they can be changed, it means I misunderstood from the beginning."

Misunderstood what?

Had she misunderstood Cedric's feelings for her? If so, what were those seven years they had spent together?

"It's ironic when I think about it now," Natalie added sarcastically.

Indeed, it was ironic!

Seven whole years!

She never realized that the love she thought Cedric had for her was actually meant for another woman through her!

A Divorce After My Rebirth Chapter 660-Irwin's already suffocating heart felt even more stifled upon hearing Natalie's words.

Regardless of the role he played in Cedric and Natalie's lives in the past, he couldn't help but offer an explanation for Cedric.

"Nat, the thing is...!" Irwin began.

"When I found out that both of you approached me because of Blair, do you know what was going through my mind?" Natalie interrupted.

"Nat!"

"Nothing! My mind was blank!"

Indeed!

At that moment, Natalie's mind went blank, overwhelmed by tumultuous emotions that left her unable to react. She couldn't bring herself to believe that everything was real!

How could it be real?

How could things turn out that way?

She couldn't believe it! She couldn't believe that things could be like that.

"For seven years, do you know how he treated me during those seven years?"

At this moment, instead of speaking of hatred, she spoke of love.

But was there love between them?

Now, looking back, even saying 'yes' felt ironic!

Natalie scoffed, "I thought he loved me very much! So when Isabella appeared, when Isabella touched our relationship, I found it incredible."

Seven years!

How much did Cedric love her during those seven years?

Ever since he appeared in her world, it was as if he instantly reached out and pulled her out of the quagmire. He was like a godly figure in her world, but who could have known that this existence was so terrifying?

"Nat," taking a deep breath, Irwin moved his lips, wanting to say something, but he couldn't.

Before he could speak, Natalie continued, "He waited for me to eat together every day. He personally escorted me to the dormitory door every day."

"On holidays, he wouldn't go home! He stayed by my side, making me, who already had no family, completely devoid of loneliness."

At that time, she had nothing!

But Cedric, with a strong presence, became like family to her.

Irwin felt suffocated!

He never imagined that Cedric was such a presence in Natalie's world.

Considering all of this...!

"He took me traveling, wherever I wanted to go, he took me there. Whatever food I wanted to eat, as long as I mentioned it, he would find a way to get it for me."

This was what it meant to be attentive! That was the Cedric of those days.

From these words, Irwin could hear how sweet those seven years were between them.

Cedric truly cherished her.

Perhaps that's why, during the three years of marriage, no matter what grievances she faced, no matter how the Jiang family treated her, she never thought of leaving Cedric. She silently endured everything for him.

Even when rumors about Isabella and Cedric surfaced, she didn't cry or make a scene because she always believed in him!

But in the end...!

When Isabella was attacked, and Cedric wanted to save Isabella with her own eyes, that was when she finally erupted.

Not all love can withstand limitless harm.

"I never believed he would hurt me for another woman! It was only at Wexford that I realized I wasn't the one in his heart."

"Nat."

"You're the same, aren't you?" Irwin's words were cut off again by Natalie's direct interruption.

"..."

The same? Him?

"Time and time again, rescuing me from difficulties, it's not just about plotting against him, but because of... Blair!"

The last two words, Natalie's tone turned cold.

"..."

His heart instantly suffocated!

Wasn't it?

No, it wasn't because of that! But in Natalie's analysis, he couldn't say anything. In her mind, all analyses were definitive.

Yes!

Natalie now believed that whether it was him or Cedric, their closeness to her was all because of Blair.

Even all the care shown to her was directed through her towards Blair.

"Irwin, remember, I am Natalie!"

"..."

"Your kindness towards me won't be transferred to Blair!" Natalie's words were icy, each one colder than the last.

“I know, I know!” Irwin’s tone was bitter, tinged with a slight tremor.

He actually knew!

When did he know, and when did he come to terms with this reality, Irwin couldn’t remember.

But he knew long ago that Natalie was not Blair. Yet even so, he sacrificed everything for her time and time again.

“You knowing is good. I was afraid you wouldn’t know!” Natalie’s tone was biting.

“...,”

Even if he knew, Natalie couldn’t forgive him now. This was Natalie now, yes, this was Natalie now.

“Still want to talk?” Natalie looked at him, her lips curling with a sarcastic smile.

Earlier, Irwin said they should talk!

Should they still talk?

“No!”

What’s the point of talking now?

There was nothing left to discuss.

His heart was filled with a fine, dense ache.

Natalie smiled!

The sarcasm in her smile was thicker than ever.

Irwin remained silent.

Seeing Natalie’s smile, stuck in his throat, neither coming up nor going down.

Before they could say anything, a figure appeared on the path, it was Clyde!

How... was he here?!

Seeing Clyde, Irwin furrowed his brows.

But the man was already on the wooden platform.

Natalie heard the footsteps, her brows furrowing, then relaxing the next moment. Irwin looked at her change.

The ache in his heart grew stronger.

Perhaps that was why Cedric didn't wait! Because she was becoming more and more familiar with the darkness!! And her growing perception only made it more suffocating for them.

The men locked eyes and nodded at each other.

Irwin glanced at Natalie. "Clyde's here.

"I know."

Those three words hammered Irwin's heart mercilessly.

She knew!

The familiarity was so bitterly ironic.

In the end, Irwin left.

Clyde approached Natalie, looking at the woman in the wheelchair, her eyes hollow, devoid of expression.

But he couldn't help reaching out and waving his hand in front of her eyes.

"No need to wave, I really can't see!" Natalie said.

"You...!"

"Why did you come?" Natalie asked.

"I wanted to come earlier. When you were in Yuloria, I had planned to come," Clyde replied.

But Father didn't allow it!

Obviously, it was also giving Natalie and Cedric a chance. But they never expected this would be the outcome.

"You'll see soon," Clyde said, looking at Natalie.

A Divorce After My Rebirth Chapter 661

A Divorce After My Rebirth Chapter 661-Natalie fell silent.

At this moment, she sat quietly in place, and even Clyde couldn't discern what was going on in her mind.

The man pulled a wicker chair and sat beside her.

"Things in Simeria are chaotic right now."

"And?" Natalie responded indifferently.

"When you go back this time, it can't be like last time."

There was a hint of exasperation in Clyde's tone, and Natalie fell silent.

Last time?

Was he referring to her entanglement with Malcolm last time? It had indeed been a cause for concern in the Jarvis family.

Stephen had never wanted to get involved with the Entes family, so they definitely wouldn't want Natalie to be entangled with them.

And with Natalie's current resentment towards Irwin and Cedric, nobody knew what she might do in such circumstances.

That was the most worrying aspect.

"Alright, I understand what you mean, Cly," Natalie said gently.

Her words relieved Clyde.

"It's good that you understand. Dad has been worried about you, and everyone is waiting for you to return."

Everyone was waiting for her?

At this moment, Natalie felt a pang of discomfort in her heart. Ultimately, she had become the most worrying child in the family.

It was something she least wanted to happen, but it was staring her in the face now.

She took a deep breath and sighed. "I've let everyone down!"

As she said this, the suffocating feeling in her chest intensified.

“You haven’t done anything wrong,” Clyde reassured her.

Had she not done anything wrong?

In the midst of all the twists and turns between the three of them, everything had become unclear.

Who was the one truly at fault?

Was it Irwin’s fault for plotting everything?

But humans... could calculate actions, not hearts or emotions!

Or was Cedric at fault?

He certainly was wrong in some aspects!

“Nat.”

“Yes?”

“Listen to me... You should let it go!”

At this moment, Clyde looked at how lonely Natalie seemed, and his tone was tinged with resignation.

Did she hate them?

Naturally, she did!

Whatever Cedric or Irwin had done in her life was unforgivable. However, carrying hatred was too heavy for a person! Those who harbored hatred were constantly enduring a hellish torment.

Clyde had experienced such feelings. He didn’t know how he eventually emerged from such heaviness.

And it was precisely because of this that he didn’t want Natalie to sink into that pain.

Hating someone was too painful. In the process of hating, one was repeatedly hurt.

Fortunately, it was Clyde who said these words at this moment.

If it were Irwin and Cedric... one can only imagine how Natalie would react to them in such an ironic situation!

Clyde was also the only person who would say these words to Natalie now.

However, Natalie's lips curved into a smile. "I've tried it. It's useless!"

"Nat..."

"Cly, you don't understand!"

Understand what?

He didn't understand how much emotion she had invested in Cedric, nor did he know what it was like when Irwin saved her from danger time and time again.

No one knew how hard she had tried to overcome everything when Irwin succeeded in moving her heart each time...!

No one could understand how she felt then.

"The person who says to let it go thinks it's easy!"

Only those who endured it knew what it was like.

"Is it really impossible to forgive them?" Clyde asked.

"Ten years!"

Clyde fell silent at Natalie's words. He swallowed the words that had been on the tip of his tongue.

Ten years was a long time. Only Natalie knew what happened between her and Cedric during those ten years and what kind of feelings they had.

But it was also because of that long period of time that she experienced sweetness time and time again, which ultimately hurt her even more.

"How many relationships can last until marriage after seven years of being together?"

Not many.

However, in those seven years, the times she had with Cedric were truly sweet and beautiful. There had been nothing standing between them. Even now, looking back, the unpleasant experiences she had in those seven years were only related to the Johnson family.

There was no need to talk about what happened after they were married. But before marriage, the memories between them were too beautiful.

“I just didn’t expect that the reason he and I would get married was because of that person...!”

How could she not hate under such circumstances? How many years of youth did one have in life?

She had wasted almost all of her youth on Cedric.

How could she bear it?

Naturally, she couldn’t!

“Are you talking about Blair?” Clyde asked.

“Yes, her.”

That name.

During this time, that name tore at her sanity incessantly. It even became a nightmare haunting her in the dead of night. She had never seen that person, but she knew exactly what Blair looked like.

“For a whole ten years, I’ve been nothing but a shadow!”

She had unknowingly lived in someone else’s shadow in all her most beautiful moments.

At this moment, all the words that Clyde had wanted to say to Natalie in an attempt to persuade her vanished.

There was nothing else that needed to be said now!

Natalie could never forgive Irwin and Cedric.

Cedric had given her a beautiful youth, while Irwin had saved her from the depths of despair.

It was ironic! novelbin Truly... ironic.

The beautiful youth Natalie thought she had actually belonged to someone else. Irwin had destroyed her beautiful youth, pulling her out of hell time and time again!

“From beginning to end, I was the one bearing everything alone...”

Natalie couldn’t help but choke up a bit when she said this. Yes, it had been her alone bearing it all.

That was the most ironic part!

Clyde stepped forward and wrapped his arms around her. At that moment, the warmth from a family member's protection gradually calmed Natalie's emotions.

"In the future, you won't be alone."

In the future?

Yes!

In the future, she would have her family, and no one could easily hurt her.

"But Nat, no matter how much you hate them, you must not let yourself fall into deeper hell, understand?"

The Entes family was undoubtedly a hellish existence. Everyone knew that becoming a member of the Entes family was difficult.

After becoming a member, one enjoyed many things, but one also had to truly integrate into the family!

Only the person who held the highest power could have supreme authority. Otherwise... it would be a disaster.

Clyde, Stephen, and everyone else didn't want Natalie to be involved with such a family.

They... wouldn't allow it!

"I understand."

Natalie's rationality slowly returned.

She also understood what Clyde's reminder meant.

She understood it all!

A Divorce After My Rebirth Chapter 662-Clyde's embrace made Natalie feel secure and warm. So, this was the charm of family strength. Since returning to the Jarvis family, this warmth had been everywhere.

"When is the surgery scheduled?" Clyde asked.

"Tomorrow."

"Then I'll stay here with you."

“Okay,” Natalie replied.

Hearing that Clyde would accompany her, Natalie felt even warmer inside. She felt much more reassured by his presence.

Clyde tightened his arms around her. He didn’t ask Natalie what darkness truly looked like!

Even if the surgery succeeded, it was probably a pain she wouldn’t want to face in her lifetime. – In a wooden building not far away, Cedric and Irwin stood together. They watched as Clyde held Natalie.

At that moment, Cedric’s eyes held more than just sadness and bitterness. He spoke in a hoarse voice, “I once thought that her world revolved around me.”

“So, at one point, you also believed that she could never live without you, right? You thought that no matter what happened, she could never be without you!”

Cedric fell silent at Irwin’s words.

Indeed!

No matter what happened, Cedric always believed that Natalie would never leave him.

He thought Natalie would stay by his side forever.

However, he was wrong.

Even if she had nothing... she would still leave him if she was hurt!

Now that the limits of her patience had been reached, there would be no compromise or forgiveness.

“After tomorrow...”

Irwin trailed off when he reached this point. At this moment, the atmosphere between the two was heavy.

What would happen after tomorrow?

After tomorrow...

Cedric... would fall into the same suffocating darkness that Natalie was experiencing now.

“After tomorrow, Irwin... you’ll be the only one left in her world!”

This time, Cedric had truly made up his mind.

No... He had decided after he left Yuloria and when he allowed Irwin to head to Natalie's side.

He was leaving Natalie.

"Are you really...?" Irwin looked at Cedric with anxiety when he reached this point.

Previously, Cedric had said there seemed to be no one else in this world he could trust except Irwin.

But was Cedric really willing?

Naturally, he wasn't!

He couldn't bear to let go!

As Cedric had said before, he never imagined that he and Natalie would come to this point. No matter what had happened in their life before, he had never thought Natalie would truly leave him.

However, they have now reached this point.

"I can't bear it...!" Cedric said these words with such helplessness.

Irwin fell silent.

Cedric couldn't bear it!

He was obviously reluctant to leave!

Ten years... a full ten years!

How many couples failed to reach the ten-year mark? novelbin They spent ten years together, and the depth of their feelings in those years...!

So now, putting it down and letting go of everything was naturally unbearable for Cedric.

However, he had to let go!

"Irwin, don't let her down again." Cedric's tone was heavier than ever.

"In that case, cancel the surgery tomorrow."

"You-"

“Can you let go then?” Cedric cut off Irwin’s words before he finished.

Irwin fell silent instantly!

Obviously, he couldn’t!

His silence also made Cedric see his determination towards Natalie. Irwin was a man who had difficulty falling in love with a woman. But once he did, he would never let her down.

“Since there’s no way out for me and her, then I... will let go!”

Cedric glanced at Natalie in Clyde’s arms. His tone was somewhat solemn.

Irwin was silent. At this moment, even breathing felt difficult.

He would let go!

Cedric was letting go for real this time. He was no longer clinging to Natalie and had completely let go of her.

Irwin’s heart ached terribly.

The early evening sunlight, tinged with a faint red, could freeze anyone’s gaze for an eternity.

At this moment, Cedric had engraved everything about Natalie in the depths of his memory!

“Do you know why I scheduled the surgery for tomorrow?”

Irwin was silent.

Why?

“Because I want to see her in the morning sun. I want to see her bathed in hope,” Cedric said.

The morning sun represented hope.

He wanted to see her in hope!

“She’s been by your side for so many years. Haven’t you seen her like this before?” Irwin asked.

“For her, there’s been too much despair!”

Irwin stiffened at Cedric's words.

Cedric was right.

In the days leading up to their divorce, Natalie had experienced too much despair by his side. It was a despair that almost enveloped her.

That was a fact that could never be changed.

And now...!

Tomorrow was the surgery, and everything in her future was now filled with hope.

That was truly what standing in hope looked like. – Cedric left soon after.

During dinner, there was a bonfire party. Lydia and Xyla were thrilled. Although Natalie couldn't see anything, Clyde's arrival clearly improved her mood. The atmosphere was lively, and she could feel the enthusiastic ambiance around the bonfire.

"Open your mouth." Clyde's voice came from beside her.

Natalie protested, "I can do it myself!"

"Open your mouth!" The man's tone was firm, and there was also a hint of coercion.

Natalie fell silent.

In the end, she reluctantly opened her mouth. Clyde stuffed a piece of appropriately sized grilled meat seasoned with cumin, her favorite food, into her mouth.

She recalled the first time she and Cedric had eaten grilled meat together. It had also tasted like this.

The past surged like a tide!

But more than anything, it brought her a cold feeling of suffocation.

"How does it taste?" Clyde's voice brought her back to reality.

At this moment, Natalie realized that it was all in the past. Things were completely different now.

Forget it!

In the future, no one would ever be able to force her to accept what she didn't want to accept.

Natalie nodded. "Hmm, it's delicious."

"The coconut juice here is very refreshing. I'll ask Lydia to bring you some."

"No need, let her enjoy herself."

Lydia and Xyla rarely went out during the time they spent in Yuloria with her. Girls naturally loved to have fun, and now that they were in a lively atmosphere, Natalie didn't want to spoil their fun.

"Then I'll go get it for you." Clyde felt somewhat helpless with Natalie's temperament.

If it wasn't because of Blair, Natalie's attitude toward Irwin and Cedric probably wouldn't have been so resolute, right?

So, in the end, it was they who... wronged her first!

No one could accept that Natalie had only experienced all her beautiful memories because she was living in the shadow of another person!

A Divorce After My Rebirth Chapter 663-The coconut juice from Evergreen Peak was famous. It was even available in Simeria.

Heather often drank it, claiming it was excellent for the skin.

"It's so fresh and has a subtle taste," Natalie remarked.

"Authentic juices tend to be like that," Clyde said.

Natalie nodded. "Yes, it's very nice."

The taste was indeed pleasant, something she had grown accustomed to. She used to dislike coconut juice for its thick, cloying taste, but this one had a refreshing sweetness. It was the taste of nature.

Not far away, Cedric and Irwin stood on a wooden platform, watching the bonfire party in the square.

Irwin asked, "Are you leaving now?"

Cedric nodded. "Yes, I'll go ahead."

Irwin hesitated, feeling a tightness in his chest.

"Why aren't you over there?" Cedric inquired.

“Clyde is there. Also, she’s likely happier without my presence.”

As he said this, Irwin’s voice carried endless bitterness.

Cedric said he felt trapped and that there was no way out for him and Natalie.

What about Irwin?

Wasn’t he in the same situation?

Natalie’s indifference towards him was obvious, and her aversion to his presence sent shivers down his spine.

“At least she has the Jarvis family behind her.” Cedric sighed.

Irwin agreed. “Yes, thankfully.”

At least there was the Jarvis family.

Cedric recalled their previous life when she was in the darkness...

Even though she didn’t have anything, she still boldly demanded a divorce. Even though she knew she would suffer if she left his side, she did it without hesitation. Natalie’s actions showed how strong her principles were.

Once hurt, she would use all her strength to protect herself, making it impossible for anyone to get close.

Cedric turned away and said solemnly, “Irwin, if there’s even a glimmer of hope between us...”

Cedric didn’t finish his sentence, but Irwin understood.

If there was even a small chance between him and Natalie, Cedric wouldn’t give up, no matter the cost.

Hopelessness was the most despairing feeling, and Cedric had tasted it when dealing with Natalie.

He left.

Cedric... really left.

He went to prepare for the surgery, knowing that all the brightness in his life would belong to Natalie after tomorrow.

- Irwin watched Natalie as she stood near the bonfire, her face glowing with a gentle warmth in the firelight. It was this tenderness that left Irwin and Cedric helpless. Because... As soon as either of them approached her, that faint smile on her face, the smile that they both cherished, would vanish completely. – novelbin After dinner, Clyde personally escorted Natalie back to her wooden cabin. Meanwhile, Irwin stood on the other side of the wooden stairs, observing Natalie's smile. It was evident she was smiling because of Clyde's presence. "Rest well tonight," Clyde instructed Natalie. Natalie obediently nodded. "Don't worry." "Go on, then." "Okay." Lydia and Xyla accompanied Natalie into the room. After they went in, Clyde approached Irwin. The former was dressed in sportswear and exuded a sunny, boyish charm. But anyone who knew Clyde would understand... There was no sunshine in him! Once, both Cedric and he used Clyde's past to threaten Natalie. But now, they had ultimately given up. Cedric had given up! On the other hand, Irwin remained silent and held his ground. "Is the surgery all set?" Clyde asked with a heavy tone, his eyes shimmering with complexity. Irwin nodded. "Yes." "Make sure everything goes smoothly," Clyde said sternly. "Of course," Irwin replied. Neither he nor Cedric would allow any mishaps during the surgery. All they wanted was for Natalie to regain her sight. With such an important operation, everything was arranged meticulously to ensure no accidents occurred. Clyde nodded, "That's good." "You're staying here until tomorrow, right?" "Yes. Once it's over, I'll take her home with me." Irwin fell silent. Take her home? So... what did that mean? Wasn't Irwin Natalie's husband now? The thought suffocated Irwin a little more. Seeming to sense Irwin's thoughts, Clyde said, "Don't even entertain such thoughts. If there's truly no hope, let go!" His words were sharp and direct. There was already a suffocating feeling in his chest, and Clyde's words intensified the feeling! It wasn't just suffocating... it was downright difficult to breathe! Let go?! He made it sound so easy. "Let go, huh?" "Besides letting go, do you have any better ideas?" Better ideas? "None!" Indeed! He had none! Clyde continued, "Neither you nor him are worthy of her!" Irwin's eyes shimmered with profound bitterness. "You're right. Neither of us is worthy of her!" After all, their intentions for approaching Natalie were impure from the start. They brought trouble into her life! She was as resilient as a mountain! However, their insistence on dragging her into their world subjected her to even bigger troubles. Although her life was not without turbulence, at least she had slowly begun to adapt. Without Irwin and Cedric, Natalie's life would have undoubtedly been vastly different. Unlike the heavy atmosphere between Irwin and Clyde, Natalie had experienced rare moments of happiness during this period! Her mood had genuinely improved a lot. Lydia and Xyla were ecstatic. "Miss, I haven't been this happy in such a long time." "Oh, you..." There was a hint of helplessness and indulgence in Natalie's tone. It had been so long since Lydia had felt this happy? Natalie... was the same! It would be better if she could see. Everything she could perceive around her now was based on Lydia and Xyla's descriptions. "The barbecue was really delicious," Xyla remarked with a sigh. Natalie agreed wholeheartedly. She wasn't particularly demanding when it came to food, but tonight's barbecue was undeniably delicious. "I think so too,” she said softly, her tone gentle and serene. “Wow, Miss likes it too!” Lydia and Xyla were even more delighted when they saw how happy Natalie was.

A Divorce After My Rebirth Chapter 664-The night passed peacefully.

Natalie was happy because of Clyde’s presence, and her lingering discontent towards Irwin and Cedric dissipated. Due to that, she was able to sleep well.

Although Heather had been calling her, expressing her desire to be by her side, Natalie had been hesitant to accept for fear of revealing her vulnerability to her family.

Deep down, however, she longed for their company.

Girls were like that. They wanted their family by their side during the toughest times. They didn’t want to show their vulnerability, but they craved their family’s presence more than anything. – Natalie slept soundly, but for a few, sleep evaded them throughout the night.

The next morning, Lydia and Xyla hurriedly finished their breakfast before Natalie woke up. As Natalie couldn’t eat due to her surgery today, they had to finish before she woke up.

“Let’s go,” Clyde’s voice rang out.

In the next moment, he scooped Natalie up in his arms.

“Are you going with me to the surgery?” Natalie asked.

“Yes.”

“What about Irwin?”

“Do you miss him?”

“Of course not!”

It was just that Irwin had always been by her side recently, and now his sudden absence felt...

unsettling.

But perhaps it was for the best. Every time she heard his voice, Natalie felt a surge of anger.

In the car, Natalie sensed Irwin's presence. She understood that since Clyde arrived, he had forbidden Irwin from getting close to her.

"Cly."

"Yes?"

"Once the surgery is successful, will you take me home?"

She missed her family and Luna!

Nobody knew how much Natalie longed for Luna during this time. After all, if even her own father could novelbin hurt her, what other harm awaited Luna in the future?

Natalie wanted to be with her child. She wanted to see Luna grow up and witness every change firsthand.

"Of course," Clyde replied softly.

Natalie smiled at Clyde's response while Irwin sat in front, feeling bitter.

Three months!

During this time, she had requested to go home numerous times to both Irwin and Cedric. However, they had both refused, claiming it was for her own good.

In truth, they were selfish and wanted to pin their hopes on Edward.

Little did they know, they had wasted three months and caused Natalie unnecessary suffering!

At the hospital, everything was ready for the surgery. Clyde brought Natalie, and Dylan had taken care of the paperwork beforehand. They went straight to the preparation room. In the darkness, Natalie allowed Lydia and Xyla to help her change into her gown. When Clyde entered, Natalie was sitting calmly on the bed. "Are you afraid?" Clyde asked. "I'm... a little scared," she admitted. She truly was a little scared! She had been on the operating table more than once. She could still vividly recall how those people had forcibly placed her on the surgical table in her previous life, and how she had woken up to utter darkness after that. There hadn't been a single ray of light left in her life then! To say she wasn't afraid was a lie! She was genuinely scared. "Don't be afraid. I'll be by your side," Clyde reassured her. "Will you stay with me in the operating room?" Natalie asked. "Of course." Upon hearing that Clyde would accompany her into the operating room, Natalie breathed a sigh of relief. Her brother was the person she trusted most. With him by her side, she knew he would take charge no matter what happened in the operating room. "That's good... Great..." Natalie breathed a sigh of relief. Clyde watched Natalie trembling slightly due to how nervous she was, and he felt a pang of sympathy for her. He never used to have this sentiment, but things were different now. He accepted this emotion willingly, and his gaze softened when he looked at Natalie. "Don't be afraid. I'll be with you all the way," Clyde said gently. Natalie still didn't understand why the surgery had to be done in Yonwood City. Couldn't it have been done in Simeria? But she never asked why.

In the operating room, Natalie was already on the table. Clyde had promised to be with her, but someone else was also there. The smell of disinfectant overwhelmed everything, and Natalie couldn't distinguish anything anymore. When Clyde saw Cedric, his eyes showed a hint of complexity. Clyde knew...! Cedric had ultimately compromised. He was putting an end to his relationship with Natalie in such a brutal way. But was it truly over between them? "Cly." "What's wrong?" "I'm scared!" Natalie's voice trembled as she heard the cold clinking of the instruments. Clyde realized that Natalie's trembling had intensified since the preparation. Even when she spoke, her voice was filled with uncontrollable fear and tremors. "Don't be afraid. I'm here for you. Whatever happens, I'll be here. Try to relax a bit, okay?" "But I... I'm still afraid...!" Natalie's voice choked up as she spoke. That fear seemed to stem from the depths of her soul. Cedric was lying on the other side, and he felt a shudder run through his body as he heard her words. He knew exactly why Natalie felt such fear. That was why he told Irwin that his presence was hell for her. When Natalie was by his side, she never had good days. Even under his watch, those people dared to treat her so brutally and caused her such fear. Cedric... had ultimately failed to provide her with even the most basic protection. No one knew how angry he had been when he saw the surgical consent form in his previous life. Everything he said then was just out of anger! He never meant it! Even though he believed Natalie was behind it, he never truly wanted to see her go blind just to restore Isabella's sight. He never... ever thought like that. At that moment, all he felt was endless anger! He thought Natalie was retaliating against him with such actions because he hadn't explained the relationship he had with Isabella. Little did he know, there was a massive conspiracy behind the signed consent form. She never signed it! She never agreed to any of it. She was simply... manipulated by those people...! As Cedric thought about this, his emotions continued to fluctuate. He dared not imagine the depth of despair Natalie must have experienced. Yet, at her most desperate moment, he couldn't even be her support.

A Divorce After My Rebirth Chapter 665-Clyde kept comforting Natalie, "Don't be afraid. Listen to me and relax. Take deep breaths. It's okay...!"

After a long time, Natalie finally relaxed under Clyde's reassurance. Those horrible memories gradually faded away.

Her heart also calmed down completely, and Clyde felt somewhat relieved when he saw her like this.

Then, the surgery began.

Just as they were about to administer the anesthetic, Natalie asked, "Can you tell me whose corneas are being used?"

At her words, Clyde subconsciously glanced in Cedric's direction, and Cedric was also looking at him!

The two men locked eyes, sparks of tension and resignation flying between them.

Finally, Clyde looked away. "I don't know. They were donated."

"And the person?"

"Deceased."

Natalie fell silent, and Cedric said nothing.

Clyde's straightforward answer indicated his unwillingness to dwell on the issue any further, so what else was there to argue about now?

Perhaps this was the best resolution for all of them!

At that moment, Cedric and Clyde felt Natalie relax upon hearing about the deceased donor.

After the anesthetic was administered and right before Natalie lost consciousness, Clyde suddenly asked, "Nat, if Cedric had offered you his eyes from the start, would you have accepted them?"

The atmosphere in the entire operating room froze at that moment.

Cedric looked at Natalie, his eyes filled with endless pain.

Natalie was taken aback by the question. However, her consciousness was fading, and she didn't answer the question in the end! But Cedric knew she wouldn't have accepted them. Even if he had proposed such a solution earlier, she wouldn't have accepted them, even if it meant she would stay blind for life.

She resented him so deeply, so how could she allow herself to be tainted by a part of him?

Natalie's temperament had reached such a level after many years! Even though she had once been nothing but Blair's shadow, Cedric understood her completely.

What Natalie didn't know was that, in the end, she wasn't just Blair's shadow anymore. In fact, many times, Blair... was the one who walked in Natalie's shadow.

For both Cedric and Irwin, there had probably been earth-shattering changes deep in their hearts!

Yes!

That must be the case.

The surgery ended. Two people had entered the operating room together but came out separately... Then, they were wheeled away in different directions. Just like their paths in life! They had completely diverged, heading toward opposite ends! There would be no more entanglement between them, nor would they see each other again! They had completely moved on to different ends. – Lydia and Xyla were not involved in the surgery, so they were unaware of what had transpired. They quietly stood by Natalie's side. Clyde was there from the start to the end. Since he arrived, he had deliberately kept Irwin away from Natalie most of the time. Despite knowing Irwin's intentions, Clyde had spent many years in Wexford and had only one belief: Irwin was a dangerous man. Both Irwin and Cedric were dangerous individuals, and their existence was anything but simple. So, keeping a distance from them was for the best! In the hospital corridor, Clyde offered Irwin a cigarette. Irwin replied, "We're in a hospital. I don't smoke here." Clyde froze. Eventually, he put the cigarette back into the pack. Claspng his hands together, Clyde spoke with a deep, somewhat forceful tone, "Once she's better, you two should get a divorce." Irwin fell silent. At his words, Irwin's mind went blank! He looked at Clyde, and his eyes surged with uncontrollable emotions at that moment. Clyde met his gaze, his tone almost bloodthirsty as he said, "Do you think just because Cedric's gone, she's yours?" Each word dripped with icy sarcasm. In truth, Clyde hadn't arrived at this conclusion until now, not even last night. But why was it different now? Was it because of the surgery? There was so much blood...! After the anesthetic wore off, Natalie would have to endure endless pain. Pain she wasn't supposed to bear, pain that shouldn't exist in her world. But what was the reason she needed to endure it? It was because of Irwin... and Cedric! "You..." Irwin started. "Don't have the right to say this?" Clyde's lips curled into a smile. That smile was cold, ironic, yet filled with unwavering resolve. In Natalie's world, there was indeed an insurmountable barrier. At this moment, Irwin felt it more acutely than ever. Natalie wasn't alone anymore. She truly wasn't alone anymore. Once, in Cedric's world, she was alone! Cedric was the only person in her life, so whatever Cedric said was law. Whatever Cedric wanted, he got. But not anymore! She now had more family and more people to protect her. Now, no one, whoever they were, could easily harm her. Irwin took several deep breaths but couldn't suppress the heaviness in his heart. "The Entes family now..." "They're going through a critical period now!" Clyde's words cut through sharply once again. At that moment, Irwin didn't know what to say. Indeed. Everything Clyde said was true. They knew everything! Before Irwin could speak, Clyde continued, "Though it's the Entes family, our family will be able to protect one person." Irwin fell silent. Yes! Previously, Irwin's marriage to Natalie had been a show of strength. He had done it hastily to give Natalie some peaceful days, hoping to shield her from the current turmoil in the Entes family. But the Jarvis family's protection was Natalie's fundamental support. "And don't try to use me to threaten her. Both of you have threatened her far too much." Irwin remained silent. Once again, he was rendered speechless! Clyde seemed to have penetrating eyes, sharp enough to see through people's minds. Nobody could escape his gaze. Such eyes were too sharp. Irwin had never felt like this before. For years, he had never felt this exposed! As Clyde turned to enter the ward, Irwin couldn't hold back any longer. He exclaimed, "I won't!" Clyde halted in his steps. His gaze was piercing as he looked at Irwin, and Irwin's eyes met his with newfound resolve.

A Divorce After My Rebirth Chapter 666-"I won't let go of her hand. I won't leave her side!" Irwin said, each word simple yet resolute.

Clyde raised an eyebrow. Hearing Irwin's strong words felt almost like a joke to him.

The next moment, Clyde retorted, "If you want to keep her, it depends on whether you have what it takes!"

Clyde's words were meaningful, and no one knew Irwin's thoughts after hearing them. Clyde then entered the room, leaving Irwin alone in the corridor.

Irwin's eyes shimmered with an unprecedented determination.

Too much!

He had inflicted too much pain on Natalie. This time, he just wanted to do everything to stay by her side.

When Dylan approached Irwin, he couldn't help but feel a pang of empathy seeing the desolation in the man's silhouette.

Even as a man, Dylan's heart tightened at that moment.

"Sir." Dylan stepped forward, bringing Irwin's attention back.

"Did he leave?" Irwin asked.

"Yes."

"Where did he go?"

"Well..."

What could Dylan say? His tone was heavy, and Irwin understood that Cedric was really gone.

Irwin had received word beforehand that Cedric had evacuated all of his people from Wexford. Kayla had also been taken away.

Cedric had truly left Wexford. No one knew where he was headed. He had left Natalie's world completely clean of his traces. His departure felt suffocating and painful.

After a long pause, Irwin's voice tightened as he said, "It's better that he's gone!"

The departure of one person was agonizing, but the pain for those left behind was even greater.

Why did Cedric leave at this moment?

Undoubtedly, he didn't want anyone to see him in such a sorry state in the darkness.

The future seemed... even more uncertain now! – It hurt... It really hurt!

After the anesthetic wore off, Natalie endured endless tears.

"Miss, the doctor said you could have some soup."

"No need!" Natalie trembled, and her body was soaked with sweat.

When Clyde entered, he saw Natalie enduring the pain. He furrowed his brows and approached her. "Cly, it hurts."

"I'll go find the doctor to give you a painkiller injection."

"It's fine!"

"You..."

"Too many injections aren't good either!" Natalie had already received one earlier in the morning.

Perhaps she had used too many painkillers before, so the pain persisted even after the injection. She didn't want to use more painkillers. It wasn't good for her body.

So, she chose to endure it. But enduring it wasn't pleasant, especially for those around her witnessing her pain.

"Are you sure?" Clyde frowned.

"Yes, I'm sure!"

"Then have some soup. You need to eat something."

"I don't want to eat."

The pain was intense, and cold sweat beaded on her forehead.

Natalie had always been afraid of pain.

When was the last time she was in this much pain?

It was after the big fire at the detention center. She couldn't even use anesthetic in order to preserve her unborn child. She endured that kind of pain, never imagining she would have to bear such agony again.

That was also why she was reluctant to undergo surgery. During the operation, there was an anesthetic to numb everything. But once the anesthetic wore off, the pain she would have to endure would be almost unbearable.

"I'll call the doctor," Clyde said.

Natalie was visibly enduring endless agony. Even her family couldn't bear seeing her suffer so much, so the doctor was quickly summoned. She had already received an injection in the morning, so now only painkillers pills could be used.

When Natalie swallowed the pill, she could hardly taste its bitterness. Perhaps the medicines she had taken in Yuloria were too bitter, so now she truly couldn't feel even a hint of bitterness.

Ten minutes later, Clyde looked at Natalie and asked, "Feeling any better now?" "It still hurts," Natalie replied. She truly felt no relief. Perhaps she had developed a high tolerance due to previous medication overuse, so the painkillers had no effect on her.

"I'll ask the doctor again," Clyde said.

What kind of crappy painkiller did the doctor give her? Why was she still in pain?

"No need," Natalie stopped him, grabbing his sleeve as he got up.

"You...?"

"My pain receptors must be too sensitive. It's not the doctor's fault or the medicine's," Natalie explained.

Clyde was at a loss for words. Natalie always considered others' feelings, but what about herself? She bore so much pain alone, which made him feel even more sorry for her.

"I'm going for a smoke," Clyde said.

"You're not allowed to look for the doctor, okay?!"

“I got it,” Clyde replied, slightly irritated.

What could he say to her in such a situation?

At this point in time, she was still...!

As he left the ward, he saw Irwin leaning against the corridor. He had undoubtedly heard the conversation between Clyde and Natalie just now.

Both of them made their way to the rooftop.

Click! Click!

Clyde lit a cigarette in frustration and asked, “You heard everything just now?”

Irwin remained silent, acknowledging that he indeed heard it all.

“She shouldn’t have to endure this pain,” Clyde said with restrained frustration evident in his tone.

Even in his restraint, his anger was palpable.

Clyde was right. Natalie shouldn’t have to endure this pain. Whether it was the fire or the surgery, it was all related to him and Cedric.

Only when seeing Natalie in such agony could Irwin truly understand that neither he nor Cedric deserved forgiveness.

“Yes, you’re right,” Irwin finally spoke after a pause, his tone filled with bitter pain.

Clyde was right. Natalie shouldn’t have to endure this pain. Yet, it surrounded her, haunting her relentlessly.

“Just like him, don’t appear in her life anymore,” Clyde said.

Clearly, Clyde knew Cedric had left. After coming out of the operating room, Cedric was escorted by the medical team Kyle had arranged for and left the hospital.

He had left Natalie’s world entirely.

Irwin had witnessed Natalie’s suffering firsthand. Now, Clyde was also telling him to leave.

How could he?

“Do you know what he said when he decided to give Natalie his corneas?” Irwin asked, restraining his emotions as he looked at Clyde.

“It’s none of our concern,” Clyde replied curtly.

Irwin fell silent.

A Divorce After My Rebirth Chapter 667-What kind of existence were Irwin and Cedric to the Jarvis family?

A heartbreaking one—especially in Clyde’s view.

After witnessing Natalie endure so much pain, Clyde wished they would never appear in her world again.

So, who cared what Irwin and Cedric were like, and what had they endured?

It didn’t matter!

If Clyde had his way, neither Irwin nor Cedric would ever set foot in Natalie’s world again.

However, at this moment...

Irwin said, “He said there’s no hope between him and Natalie. He said there was... no way out for them!”

When Irwin had heard Cedric’s words, he sensed endless despair in his speech.

Yes, Cedric’s despair!

What could have driven a man to such a point?

“At least he knows it very well,” Clyde said sharply.

Irwin chuckled bitterly.

The laugh was bitter and painful.

“You really are her brother,” he said to Clyde.

From how Clyde reacted, it was clear that he and Natalie were siblings. They were emotionally indifferent to a similar extent.

Clyde took a harsh drag on his cigarette as Irwin continued, “He said he can’t let go of her, nor can he rest assured about her! No one will sincerely care for her anymore.”

This was about emotions between a man and a woman.

Natalie was the Jarvis family's lady, and no one would genuinely care for her anymore. Those who approached her would do so only because of the Jarvis family.

"You think too highly of yourselves. She might have had a better life without the two of you," Clyde said pointedly.

Irwin fell silent.

Her life might have been better without them?

Perhaps that was true!

However, until things improved, they couldn't afford to let anything go wrong in Natalie's life.

She had endured enough. It was time for her suffering to end.

"Maybe you're right. But until then, refrain from saying such things!" Irwin retorted. novelbin "You..." Clyde glared, instantly furious.

In the end, Clyde threw the cigarette butt fiercely on the ground and left! His icy silhouette exuded endless danger.

Clearly, if Irwin failed Natalie again...

Well, that would depend on whether Clyde allowed him to approach her at all in the first place.

Natalie truly had a good brother!

It was evident that Clyde cared deeply for the Jarvis family, for her, and for this bond. – The wind on the rooftop was strong!

Irwin stood there for a long time, lost in thought. Natalie's suffering in the hospital room haunted his mind.

He hadn't expected that even the painkillers would have no effect on her, indicating the severity of her suffering. And this pain would continue for a long time, tormenting him inside.

"Nat," he murmured softly. An unprecedented sense of helplessness consumed him.

If only he could bear Natalie's pain for her...!

But he couldn't!

He just couldn't!

Dylan approached him. "Sir."

"What is it?"

"We need to go back to Wexford," Dylan said gravely.

Cedric had left everything to Irwin, and now Cedric was gone. There was no need for Dylan to explain the situation in Wexford right now.

Irwin sighed. "She..."

Dylan was afraid Irwin would refuse, so he quickly continued, "Mr. Yarbrough is here for her. You can rest assured that nothing will happen while he's here."

In the past, Irwin had donned a cold armor after Blair left. Over the years, beneath his seemingly rational exterior, he was actually quite irrational.

And now, that armor was gone.

He had completely fallen in love, and his demeanor was even more helpless to witness.

Finally, Irwin said, "Okay."

Dylan breathed a sigh of relief at his words. Only God knew what would happen if Irwin didn't return to Wexford now.

Meanwhile, Natalie's phone was ringing off the hook. However, since the surgery, her phone had been on silent. Neither Lydia nor Xyla noticed anything, as their minds were entirely focused on Natalie.

So, no matter how many calls came through, Natalie never answered.

- Wexford was in complete chaos. Cedric's departure had caused a stir throughout the city. Meanwhile, Bianca and the Jarvis family received the news of what had happened. Bianca sighed as she saw the message, patting the kitten in her arms. She sighed again. At this moment, she had no idea what to say. No one knew what these past three months had been like for anyone who knew Cedric. Their hearts were on edge at all times. Despite being very dissatisfied with the man, no one had ever imagined he would do this. Yet, for Natalie's sake, he had reached this point. It was something no one had anticipated. When Yvette came in, she saw Bianca put her phone down with a serious expression. Yvette had completely severed ties with Alto now. Yet, Irene and

Zane were still together. "Is it confirmed?" Yvette asked. Bianca snapped out of her thoughts and looked at Yvette. Her gaze was deep. Undoubtedly, it was because of the information about Frederick...! When Bianca was in Yuloria, she received news that Malcolm might have gotten his hands on Frederick. Because of that, she rushed back to Simeria immediately. However, the information was uncertain. Zane had advised her not to probe further. Malcolm was now a madman. Plus, whether it was Faye or Jade, they were no longer around. So, at this moment, Malcolm was absolutely unrestrained. Anyone who approached him could trigger terrifying consequences and face dreadful consequences. Yet, Yvette repeatedly urged Bianca to confirm the information about Frederick?! "Yvette, you should understand what my return to Simeria means now." Bianca's tone was deep and sharp. "What do you mean?" Yvette asked. At Bianca's words, her expression changed! Bianca's lips curved into a smile. It was a smile that looked increasingly icy and sharp—a sharpness that made people's hearts tighten even more. "You...!" Yvette wanted to say something, but she couldn't find the words at that moment. Bianca was too mysterious—especially her eyes! They always gave people an extremely profound feeling. They made people strive to see clearly, yet none had ever succeeded. "Are you really willing to let Irene stay by his side?" Bianca raised an eyebrow. The smile on her lips was even more meaningful. It gave off the implication that Bianca seemed to have seen through everything. Yvette's already tense heart felt even more powerless and pale when she heard Bianca's words! "Yvette, let me remind you... You ended everything you had in your hands, but that doesn't mean you'll have a new beginning!"

A Divorce After My Rebirth Chapter 668-Bianca's words were profound and icy.

Yvette's complexion was already bad, and it turned even paler at Bianca's words. Anyone who knew about Yvette's past knew what kind of feelings she harbored towards Zane.

Whether in the past or during the years she spent with Alto, Yvette had always been dissatisfied with how things had turned out.

That kind of dissatisfaction...!

It caused a suffocating sensation in Yvette's chest whenever she thought about it!

Bianca's statement about how Yvette had ended everything echoed fiercely in her mind, tearing at her rationality.

Bianca was right.

It didn't matter that Yvette had ended things. It wouldn't lead to a new beginning.

But Yvette couldn't accept it.

Back then, she and Zane had been doing fine. They had been about to get married!

So, why had those things happened?

And why did she have to bear it all?

She didn't want to! No matter what, it shouldn't be her burden!

"Whether Frederick is in Malcolm's hands or not... You know in your heart, don't you?"

At this moment... Hah!

Yvette had always wanted Bianca to stay away from Zane, but she suddenly asked Bianca to return because of Frederick.

Why?

Because Irene and Zane were too close, and Yvette... felt more agitated than when Bianca was around.

Bianca looked at Yvette's pale face, and her smile widened. She said, "After so many years in the novelbin Entes family, you've finally learned how to do it."

Learned how to do what?

Learned how to scheme within the family, of course!

And these schemes...!

Yvette clenched her fists tightly.

"Scheming and acting!"

Bianca's tone was profound.

People said caring for something tended to bring more trouble, and excessive attention to a matter could create more problems than solutions.

They were probably right.

When Bianca didn't have feelings for Zane, she was extremely sharp. Whatever was in front of her, she could see through it at a glance.

However, recent events had left her... confused!

It was as if something had clouded her vision, and Bianca couldn't see clearly either.

Hadn't she suffered a huge loss because of that?

Now was a crucial time!

No matter what Zane was like, Bianca needed to let go completely from now on. She should set aside those feelings for the time being.

After getting through this period, they could talk about love again!

That was how Bianca was...!

She could pick up and put down feelings at will! When she was rational, she could be carefree. She adapted quickly and was rarely distressed.

No matter what tricks someone played, they'd end up in a mess before her as long as she remained rational!

"You...!"

After Bianca pointed out everything, Yvette paled further and trembled uncontrollably.

When Bianca looked at Yvette, her smile disappeared, replaced by endless coldness and sharpness.

Bianca said slowly, "Go back! Stop playing such petty tricks."

"The two of you can never return to the past. Why change yourself entirely before him until he doesn't recognize you at all?"

Changed herself entirely?

Those words struck Yvette's heart.

Was that what it looked like she had done?

When she had seen Bianca previously, Yvette seemed like she would do and give up anything for Zane's sake.

However, that was only on the surface.

There was nothing more than that.

Yvette said, "Bianca, even if things between me and Zane are impossible, it's the same for you and him!"

"I don't think that's the issue we're discussing now, right?"

Was the issue now about who could be with whom? What was the key issue now?

“Yvette, even your family doesn’t support you being with him. You should respect yourself even more!”

Respect herself?

Just now, it was about changing entirely!

And now, it was about self-respect?!

Bianca’s every word was so biting. What exactly did Bianca have for her to stand in such a high position so confidently?

Yvette’s face turned pale!

No one knew how suffocating Bianca’s words were at this moment, especially when she mentioned how Yvette’s family didn’t support her!

It made Yvette feel profoundly isolated, as if she were the only one left in the world.

Such a feeling was truly uncomfortable, but it seemed there was nothing else she could do besides enduring it!

Did it hurt? Was it suffocating?

Of course!

Right now, Yvette was drowning in these feelings.

She stood up and looked fiercely at Bianca. “What right do you have to judge me? You’re no different.

Do you think you’re so noble in their hearts?”

“My nobility doesn’t depend on their impressions!” Bianca retorted sharply.

Yvette originally intended to mock Bianca further, but the words were stuck in her throat.

In the end, the only one feeling choked and panicked was herself!

After her trip to Yuloria, Bianca seemed to have changed, or perhaps... she had changed after she had gone to Lotus Villa.

She had become sharper, and... no matter what she saw, she could see the deepest depths clearly.

In a sorry state, Yvette left.

That was how Bianca was!

She always made sure she was never embarrassed at her workplace. As long as she wasn't, the one who would be embarrassed would always be someone else.

No matter when, she could preserve her dignity by maintaining a high level of rationality.

Now she understood this.

This had nothing to do with love!

What she wanted was only to maintain her dignity endlessly.

When Zane returned, he heard that Yvette had visited again. His brows furrowed tightly, and he took the kitten from Bianca's arms, gently rubbing its tiny head.

The little creature seemed to know that Zane was the one who picked it up, so it behaved even more obediently in his arms.

"It's grown a lot."

"Yeah, it looks much healthier," Bianca remarked.

She genuinely liked such little kittens. She loved the fluffy feeling when she held it in her arms!

"She came over?" Zane asked.

Bianca fell silent. At the words, she stiffened! A complicated glint flashed in her eyes. She wanted to say something but ultimately decided not to.

"Do you want to say something?" Zane asked.

"No."

"What did she say?"

He was obviously referring to Yvette!

"What do you think she would say?" Bianca countered in a grave tone.

Zane turned to look at her. His gaze was not just deep. It was profound like the sea and impossible to discern.

For a long time, they simply stared at each other in silence.

A Divorce After My Rebirth Chapter 669-After a while, Zane said, "From now on, don't go to the Jarvis family again."

He was talking about what she had done two days ago!

When Zane suddenly disappeared, Bianca panicked!

So, she hastily went to the Jarvis family because they were Natalie's parents.

At that time, the only ones she could rely on and help her were the Jarvis family!

Unexpectedly, Zane came back after that.

"In the end, you still don't want to involve the Jarvis family," Bianca said.

"They won't be involved." Zane's words were calm and rational, and what he said was true.

What kind of existence was Stephen in Simeria?

He was like an old fox!

If he was going to be involved in the Entes family, he would have done it long ago. Why would he wait until now?

So even if Bianca had gone to meet Stephen, he ultimately wouldn't have gotten involved if he didn't want to.

"It's good that you're back," Bianca said after a while.

After Zane came back, Bianca had actually asked where he went. However, he never answered.

But his return also brought back Bianca's rationality!

So, she was calmer now.

In Simeria, especially in the Entes family, anything could happen at any time. And the only thing those involved could do was to keep calm and analyze the situation carefully!

"Zane."

"Yeah?"

Bianca thought for a moment and said to Zane, "Leave some people with me, okay?"

As soon as she finished speaking, Zane's brows furrowed. When he looked at Bianca, his gaze seemed even more profound.

Bianca said, "I don't want what happened two days ago to happen again.

That was right!

Two days ago...

What could she do at that time?

Nothing! She didn't want to encounter such a situation again, ever...!

No matter what difficulties occurred in her world, Bianca had never felt like that before. When that had happened, she was truly afraid.

Never again did she want to experience such a moment.

"Okay!" Zane nodded calmly.

At that moment, Bianca also breathed a sigh of relief. As long as there were usable people around her, nothing else mattered!

And Zane also realized that Bianca wanted to stay in Simeria.

It's impossible to send her abroad now! So, it was also good to leave some people by her side.

As Bianca listened to Zane's agreement, she smiled.

It was a smile that looked so pure!

Then, she asked, "Does what happened in Wexford affect you?"

"It does, but not much."

"That's good." Bianca nodded.

During the time by Zane's side, she discovered what kind of existence Zane was.

So, she knew that there were many things that she didn't need to worry about anymore.

She now had more important things to do.

“You haven’t told me what she said to you.”

“Is that important?” Bianca looked at Zane and asked.

There was a flicker in the man’s eyes for a second, but it instantly vanished! When that happened, the smile on Bianca’s face became even more intense.

“Since it’s not that important, you don’t need to worry too much about it, hmm?” Bianca said.

Zane fell silent.

Not that important, huh?

Who said it wasn’t important?

What exactly happened there?!

Zane sighed...! – When Heather saw the relevant reports, she sighed and said, “It seems it was just the final farewell.”

Whether it was concerning Luna or Natalie, Cedric had actually intended to let go early on.

Stephen said, “Don’t worry, Nat will be back soon. Cly said the surgery was very successful.”

When Heather heard this, she felt somewhat comforted.

“Okay.” Heather nodded, then said, “Dear!”

“Hmm?”

“He must have fully tasted it, right?”

Heather was referring to the pain that Cedric had once inflicted on Natalie.

This time, he must have experienced the same despair Natalie had endured... especially when Luna looked at him with those eyes!

At that moment, his heart must have been in turmoil, right?

Yes!

Heather was right. When Cedric saw Luna looking at him with such suspicion, his heart was more than just in turmoil!

There was also endless pain.

As Heather said, Cedric now fully tasted the agony of the pain he had inflicted on Natalie before this. However, Stephen frowned. "Are you happy?"

Happy?

Once...!

When Heather learned how much pain Natalie had suffered because of Cedric, she really wished she could tear Cedric to pieces.

However, when it really came to this moment, Heather was uneasy.

It was a painful and uncomfortable feeling.

That was human nature!

"It doesn't matter if I'm happy about it or not. For him and Nat to reach this point is the best outcome!"

That was right.

If it really ended here, it was actually the best outcome for them.

Stephen nodded.

He had to admit that it really was!

To continue the entanglement would be torture for both of them.

This was really the best ending for them.

Heather thought for a moment and said, "I just didn't expect him to make such a sacrifice for Nat and give everything to Irwin. He even let go of everything in Wexford."

In a man's world, what was truly important?!

Undoubtedly, it was power and status!

This time, Cedric had truly done it.

He had let go of everything for Natalie.

Even though he did that, Heather didn't feel relief about everything he had done. In her heart, it didn't matter that Cedric had done all of that.

No matter what he did, it wasn't enough to absolve his sins toward Natalie...!

Mistakes...!

A person shouldn't make such grave mistakes in their life.

When one truly made mistakes to that extent, the one who ultimately got hurt was oneself. No one would ever pay for their own mistakes...!

Cedric... had left.

He left Wexford forever, and nobody knew where he went.

He left Natalie's world.

He left everyone's world.

This departure was undoubtedly... heavy! – In the blink of an eye, half a month has passed in Yonwood City. Time ticked away, and the pain Natalie endured gradually faded.

Clyde fed Natalie some soup and said, "The doctor said they can remove it tomorrow."

"Okay."

"What's the first thing you want to do when you can see?" Clyde asked gently.

Natalie was silent.

What did she want to do the most?

Natalie had to admit that she really only considered this question after Clyde had asked her. Before this, she had never thought about it.

Irwin hadn't been around lately, and her mood had greatly improved. So, her recovery was also faster.

When Clyde asked her what she wanted to do, only one thing popped into her mind.

"I want to divorce him!"

A Divorce After My Rebirth Chapter 670-Natalie wanted to divorce Irwin!

Natalie knew why Irwin had chosen that critical moment to register their marriage in Yuloria.

However, she didn't want to accept Irwin's kindness.

To be exact, everything good about this man was accompanied by schemes, just like Cedric.

That was Natalie's opinion.

When did such thoughts start? It seemed that everything good Irwin did for her carried ulterior motives.

"Staying away from him would be best!"

Clyde smiled when he heard Natalie say she wanted to divorce Irwin the most.

His eyes were full of relief. But at the same time, there was also deep concern.

When Natalie said that, Clyde saw it as her wanting to protect herself.

And it seemed like overprotection.

After everything she had experienced with Cedric and Irwin, she was no longer willing to trust anyone except her own family.

It was as if anyone's kindness to her might have an ulterior motive!

In fact, Clyde had also pondered this question.

Why would Cedric allow Irwin to stay by Natalie's side once he was gone?

Cedric wouldn't have done it... unless there was absolutely no hope between him and Natalie.

It was as if Cedric expected that Natalie wouldn't open her heart at all to anyone except Irwin. He predicted that there would no longer be anyone sincere in Natalie's world, and she wouldn't be sincere to anyone else.

That was what was most frightening.

"Is it lunchtime now?" Natalie asked Clyde.

Fortunately, the surgery was over and successful. If it hadn't been, Clyde didn't know if he could bear it now.

Previously, whether in Yuloria or Evergreen Peak, Natalie could sense whether it was night or day from the atmosphere around her.

She could even sense the aura of the lights clearly.

And now...!

During the half month in this hospital, the most she could feel was the smell of disinfectant, which she didn't like very much because it disturbed her perception of the surroundings.

Plus, she had only been able to eat small portions during this time. All she had all day was soup. So, she couldn't perceive much from the food either!

"Yes, it's lunch," Clyde replied.

"Can I have something else tonight?" Natalie murmured.

She didn't know how long she had been eating this soup, and there was no taste in her mouth.

She couldn't stand it anymore.

"What you can eat depends on the situation tomorrow. Even if your vision recovers, you still need to avoid certain foods for a month," Clyde replied.

Natalie fell silent.

She simply didn't want to talk anymore.

Avoid certain foods for a month... what exactly did that mean?

"Do I have to drink soup for another month?"

When a person felt better, there was more expectation for food. Obviously, Natalie now has expectations.

However, when she heard that she could only eat soup, she felt a little uncomfortable.

Clyde smiled. "Probably light food and not just soup."

Natalie breathed a sigh of relief.

She looked cute somehow.

Heather has been calling almost every day, and Clyde knew about the situation in Wexford.

But during Natalie's recovery, he didn't mention a word to her about it.

And Natalie didn't ask about Irwin or Cedric either!

As long as they weren't there, she was indifferent. She went about her day as if she didn't know those people at all.

When Heather called again, she undoubtedly sounded nervous.

Clyde assured her, "Don't worry, she's doing well. The doctor checks her daily when changing the dressing, and there haven't been any issues so far."

At least for now, the doctor hadn't mentioned any problems.

"Hopefully, there won't be any!"

Heather was truly afraid. Issues with the eyes were usually serious problems, and they really couldn't afford such big problems right now.

So, everyone hoped fervently that there wouldn't be any issues at all.

"If everything goes well tomorrow, you'll be coming back, right?"

"Most likely, yes."

"That's good. I'll prepare some food for you."

Heather knew they probably hadn't been eating well during the surgery.

Clyde softened a bit at Heather's words.

"Okay."

His tone also sounded gentle.

When Heather heard his gentle tone, she was touched. Her eyes welled up with tears as she hung up the phone.

Clyde returned to Natalie's side.

"Was that Mom on the phone?"

Clyde looked at her and said, "Yeah. She's preparing food for you."

Natalie fell silent.

Thinking about the meals Heather made, her heart clenched painfully.

“What’s wrong?” Clyde asked. “When I found out she was my aunt, she was really good to me,” Natalie said, feeling somewhat touched.

So, people should remember and accumulate blessings in their life.

Back then, Heather didn’t know anything. Yet, she treated Natalie like her own daughter!

Clyde paused for a moment. “She’s a good person!”

“Yeah.” Natalie nodded.

It was true that Heather was a good person.

Cedric never received a good reception from Heather because he had done so many things wrong to Natalie.

Otherwise, how could he have received such treatment from Heather?

“Are you scared about tomorrow?” Clyde looked at Natalie and held her hand.

Natalie said, “Of course, I’m scared!”

She was telling the truth. How could she not be scared, especially since Isabella had undergone similar surgery before, and it failed?

So, any surgical procedure like this was definitely not one hundred percent guaranteed. There was always the possibility of complications.

That was the scariest part.

If there was an accident, it would definitely be a big one.

“Don’t worry, okay?”

“Yeah.”

In the beginning, Natalie wasn’t too worried. But as it got closer to the end, she became more nervous.

After all, this kind of surgery demanded precision.

If it fails this time...!

Natalie knew what would happen afterward!

The lifelong darkness was a result not everyone could bear. Even she might not be able to endure it.

Isabella was someone she despised.

Regardless, Natalie could almost feel how desperate Isabella was back then when the latter was trapped in the darkness.

When one had to wait... it didn't feel like torture initially. But as it neared the end, every minute and every second became agonizing.

Natalie hardly slept well that night.

The next day, the medical team arrived at the ward.

Natalie was tense.

"Relax a bit," Clyde said.

"Okay."

Even though Natalie said that, her heart clenched tightly when the doctor's cold fingers slowly unraveled the gauze from her eyes.

As the gauze was completely removed, she felt the cold air on her skin. There was also an empty sensation as if she had lost a layer of protection.

"Open your eyes."

A Divorce After My Rebirth Chapter 671

A Divorce After My Rebirth Chapter 671-At that moment, Natalie and Clyde couldn't help but hold their breaths.

Natalie kept her eyes closed. It felt as if they were glued shut, and she was too afraid to open them.

This was the final moment...

This was indeed the final moment!

Both she and Clyde were well aware that whatever she faced when she opened her eyes now would be what she'd have to confront for the rest of her life.

"Open them!" The doctor's tone grew more stern.

Natalie was silent.

The voice sounded somewhat familiar, was it... Isaac?!

The person who disappeared completely after fighting with Cedric...?

When Natalie heard the voice, her face turned pale.

But the next moment, Clyde spoke up, "Zac, you're scaring her."

Compared to Isaac's stern tone, Clyde's was even graver.

The atmosphere instantly grew tense.

Hearing Clyde address Isaac by a nickname shook Natalie's composure.

Finally, she tried to open her eyes!

However, after several attempts, she couldn't do it.

"I can't open them."

The room fell silent.

Then, the man's cold fingertips lightly cleaned her skin.

It had been half a month, and every day was critical. Upon hearing Isaac's voice, Natalie knew he was the one who performed the surgery.

She never expected it to be Isaac!

So, at this moment, she wasn't just nervous. She was completely terrified because of Isaac's surgery on Isabella!

What was Verde City like at that time?

Why did Cedric still have the audacity to ask her to accept all of it in the end? How did he manage to say such things so calmly?

At least for now, Natalie couldn't understand it.

"Natalie, in my impression, you were never a weak housewife." As Natalie continued to keep her eyes shut, Isaac's tone grew heavier.

The term 'housewife' struck a chord deep within her.

Yes, Natalie used to be a housewife!

But then, everyone around her had witnessed the earth-shattering changes that happened to her...!

It was precisely because of her change that made people more suspicious.

How could a housewife be so calm and composed in those situations? How could she remain so serene in the face of such events?

In the end, it wasn't about whether people believed she was innocent or not.

Rather, it was about how deep she had hidden herself!

It was so deep that no one had ever seen through her, and no one had ever suspected whether they had misjudged Natalie.

And now, Isaac believed he had indeed misjudged her.

With Isaac's sharp words, Natalie finally opened her eyes gradually. No one knew what kind of pressure she was under at that moment.

What unpleasantness had occurred between her and Isaac in the past? How much fear did she have facing this surgery now?

She hadn't done anything to offend Isaac before. However, just thinking about his hatred and hysterics towards her before this revealed how much he cherished his late fiancée.

So, he might have retaliated against her in this surgery, right?

Finally, she opened her eyes!

"Can you see?" Isaac asked.

Natalie was silent.

She could see a little... but it was blurry!

She closed her eyes, then opened them again. It was still a bit blurry! She closed and opened them again...

It was clear now...!

Everything in front of her... was all clear.

She... could see!

Everyone watched her nervously. Lydia and Xyla were holding each other's hands tightly.

They all knew that Natalie was an extremely proud person, and taking away her vision for the rest of her life would be too cruel for her.

"Natalie." novelbin "I can see."

Isaac didn't retaliate against her!

Natalie breathed a slight sigh of relief when she thought about this. She was really nervous and even scared when she heard Isaac's voice earlier.

Isaac was a renowned doctor, and getting his help without any connections was hard. However, she knew that no one should offend him because, as a patient, they would still need his help in the end.

"Nat."

Clyde embraced her. At that moment, Natalie could clearly feel the trembles in his body.

She had gotten used to it. So when Clyde held her, she subconsciously used her senses to perceive everything.

Now, she could see.

The next step was to gradually block out this habit of perceiving things through her other senses.

"Can you really see?" Clyde released her and waved his hand in front of her eyes.

Natalie nodded. "Yes, I can see."

It was true.

Clyde asked, "What color is my shirt?"

"Navy blue!"

"Okay... Okay! I can even see your scruffy beard," Natalie joked, trying to lighten the mood.

Clyde laughed. Wasn't he the one who forgot to shave today? She even noticed that. It was unbelievable!

Both of them laughed. The whole ward relaxed because of this moment.

The surgery was successful.

It was considered a success when the bandage was removed, and she could see.

And now, it was clear how successful it was!

“Nat, it’s great that you can see again. You have no idea what this period was like...”
Clyde trailed off, unable to continue.

Natalie tried hard not to let everyone worry about her, and everyone tried hard not to show their worry.

They didn’t want to pressure her.

But now, everything was fine.

Everything was finally okay...!

“I’m sorry,” Natalie said, choking up slightly.

“Don’t cry. You can’t cry now!” Clyde said.

Now that she could see again, the significance of tears for her was evident.

“I’m not crying!” Natalie retorted.

Regaining one’s sight was truly not easy. So, she needed to protect her eyes well. She wanted to go back and see Luna.

When first blinded, she was genuinely afraid and constantly engulfed in darkness. No one knew how she felt when she thought about how she wouldn’t be able to see Luna grow up.

But now, things were different.

Now, she could see and clearly witness every change in her daughter.

However, she didn’t know... In exchange for her being able to see now, there was someone who would forever live in darkness.

Perhaps there was a chance for them to see together, but he ultimately gave up. He wanted to endure all the suffering Natalie had endured.

He wanted to experience it all.

The pain of another lifetime, the suffering of this life...!

He chose to live in darkness, using the pain she had suffered to atone for his endless sins.

A Divorce After My Rebirth Chapter 672-Clyde and Natalie returned to Simeria, and Isaac went with them.

It was different from when they were in Verde City. Natalie could still sense Isaac's sunny disposition back then.

However, after losing his fiancée, Isaac was consumed by endless madness and despair. During that time, Isaac seemed like a madman. He lashed out at anyone who came near him, especially Natalie.

Even now, Natalie remembered that night at Elegance Bay vividly. He and Yuvan came to her door, intending to take the child from her womb.

After over two, nearly three years of separation, Isaac seemed more composed. He looked as if he had weathered countless storms. Yet, this composure was also bitter and painful.

Clyde was tired. He had been taking care of Natalie tirelessly day and night. Now that she was better, he decided to catch up on sleep in the lounge during their flight back.

Isaac picked up the glass of red wine and took a sip. He looked at Natalie and asked, "Do you truly hate him?"

He was obviously talking about Cedric!

During this time, hardly anyone mentioned Cedric and Irwin in front of Natalie, and she seemed to have been more relaxed because of it.

Now, Isaac brought him up.

Natalie picked up her glass of water. She had been on a restricted diet for some time and protested against eating only soup. She had also made a fuss about wanting to eat something else repeatedly.

But now that she could see, she understood the true value of a person's sight. For the sake of her eyes, she was willing to follow any dietary restrictions. She would withstand it even for a year or two if she had to.

Alcohol was absolutely off-limits!

Hearing Isaac ask if she truly hated Cedric, Natalie asked, "Who do you hate in your heart?"

Natalie had thought about this.

Isaac had performed the surgery for her, ensuring its success without any interference. That meant he must have discovered the truth about who had really kidnapped his fiancée back then.

"Natalie..."

When Natalie asked him who he truly hated, a hint of melancholy flashed in his eyes. It was clear how much pain Isaac was in at this moment!

"You must hate that person very much, right?" Natalie probed.

Though Isaac was reluctant to say, Natalie could sense that he despised the person to the extent that he wouldn't even speak their name.

That was how much he hated the person!

And now, he was asking her if she truly hated Cedric?

"Can you stop hating that person?" Natalie asked.

Isaac remained silent.

Could he?

Of course, he couldn't!

Natalie observed the blend of sorrow and anger in his eyes like a raging storm. She smiled faintly.

The ability to clearly see someone's expression was such a wonderful feeling. Previously, she had to rely on her senses to gauge people's emotions when she couldn't see.

Now that she could see clearly, it was truly a blessing.

She continued, "That person destroyed what you loved while they destroyed me."

Wasn't it the same logic?

If Isaac couldn't let go of his hatred for that person, Natalie certainly couldn't let go of her own hatred either.

Isaac felt his heart clench when Natalie spoke the most malicious words in such a melancholic tone.

In fact, it wasn't hard to understand.

When Natalie didn't know Cedric, her world might have been devoid of everything, but at least it was pure.

Cedric had been in her life for two years of nurturing, five years of love, and three years of marriage. She believed such emotions were genuine and reciprocated with all her love.

However, his love turned out to be false.

Everything that Cedric and Irwin did turned out to be a lie.

Cedric had showered her with endless affection during her prime years, while Irwin had protected her when she was at her lowest.

One offered love but no protection, while the other offered protection but no love. Both dealt heavy blows to Natalie, making forgiveness impossible.

"I understand," Isaac said bitterly.

Natalie added, "If it was just the fact that they didn't love me, it would have been bearable."

"But during that time, what they gave me..."

Natalie paused abruptly. She could have overlooked it if it were only a lack of love.

But that wasn't all.

They... had never let her go.

"Isaac," she continued.

"Yes?"

"The most helpless pain in this world isn't separation by death, but unrequited love."

To see what one desired in someone else's possession was agonizing.

And what about her?

Everything she received belonged to someone else.

That was more ironic than unrequited love.

“His feelings for you were sincere!” Isaac couldn’t help but say after hearing Natalie’s sorrowful yet unforgiving tone.

But Natalie laughed sarcastically.

“Hah!”

Sincere! Whenever she heard that word now, it just felt ironic.

What was sincerity in this world?

Who could be sincere to whom? The sincere one was the one who truly lost.

And she was too sincere before!

That was why she suffered such pain.

At this moment, Isaac understood that Natalie would never forgive Irwin and Cedric. These two had occupied such important positions in her world before...

And for Natalie, it was so painful and so unforgivable. – Once they arrived in Simeria, Natalie looked at everything familiar before her and thought it was beautiful.

Even the ordinary crowd seemed wonderful to her.

“Miss,” Lydia looked at Natalie eagerly.

Natalie understood the girl’s thoughts. “There will be chances in the future.”

Natalie initially agreed to stay at Evergreen Peak for a few days after recovering. However, Natalie was considerate of Heather and everyone else who was waiting for her. Besides, she missed Luna. So, no matter how beautiful the scenery, it couldn’t keep her there.

“Alright,” Lydia grumbled.

Natalie laughed. “Let’s go.”

They walked.

It turned out she could still walk with her own legs.

Although she could walk before, it was hard to navigate in the darkness. Walking while being able to see was the best.

Lydia and Xyla followed Natalie. They hadn't played enough at Evergreen Peak this time, so both felt it was quite regretful.

At Lotus Villa, Heather came forward and hugged Natalie when she saw that she had finally returned.

At this moment, everyone present keenly felt just how malnourished Natalie was as a child because she still hadn't surpassed her mother's height.

A Divorce After My Rebirth Chapter 673-"It's good that you're back!" Heather held Natalie tightly in her arms and felt like her heart was instantly full of warmth.

Before Natalie came back, Heather already knew her eyes had healed. Clyde had called her to inform the family about it.

When she heard the good news, Heather was ecstatic! After all, everyone's heart was tight with worry before the surgery.

"You're suffocating me, Mom!" Natalie grumbled.

"Oh, child..." Heather released Natalie but didn't step back.

Instead, she cupped Natalie's delicate cheeks and caressed her eyes. Seeing the brightness in her eyes, Heather's heart felt indescribable.

No one knew that during those two years, as she watched Natalie's eyes grow dimmer and even grow empty at the end, her heart was in pain and fear.

But now, everything was fine.

"You can really see now, right?"

Even seeing such lively eyes, Heather was still a bit worried. She carefully examined them, confirming repeatedly.

"I can really see now. Mom, you're wearing a navy dress today."

"That's great... That's wonderful!"

When Natalie accurately mentioned the color of her clothes, Heather felt relieved.

Stephen also felt relieved when he heard this.

"Okay, that's good."

"Dad."

“Let’s eat.”

This was the atmosphere of family. No matter when they returned home, delicious food was always waiting for them.

It was the warmth of home.

Clyde also clearly felt this. It was a taste he had never experienced in his past life. That was why he could calmly accept Stephen and Heather.

This was wonderful!

Among the aristocratic families, such a harmonious atmosphere was truly rare. They were not only harmonious but also deeply attached.

Besides what Clyde liked, almost everything was prepared at the dining table with Natalie’s light diet in mind, and Natalie happily accepted it.

“Mama, I want that.” Luna was clearly over the moon because Natalie had come back.

Natalie carefully picked out food for Luna. She still wasn’t eating well, but she was trying.

Watching her eat, Natalie felt her heart heal.

When Luna stuffed a piece of meat into her mouth, Natalie smiled. It was the gentlest smile she had shown in this period.

Only in front of Luna could she reveal such pure tenderness.

“Do you like it?”

“I do. Mommy, you should eat.”

“Mommy won’t eat. You should eat,” Natalie said.

Luna was so persistent!

Natalie smiled.

As she accepted and ate the food, Luna also smiled. That moment of shared smiles between them was truly heartwarming, especially seeing the contentment on her child’s face.

Natalie felt it was truly wonderful!

Previously, even though she appeared to accept her complete loss of sight with calmness, deep down, she was distressed!

After all, there's nothing more cruel in this world than not being able to see your child grow up.

After dinner, Stephen called Natalie to the study.

In the study, Stephen looked at Natalie and hesitated.

"Dad?"

"It's nothing. You should head to bed."

Natalie fell silent.

He called her here but didn't say anything?

Natalie could clearly see the hesitation in Stephen's eyes, but it was probably better for him not to speak now.

What was happening in Simeria and Wexford? It was suffocating even to mention it.

She nodded. "Then I'll go back to my room."

"Okay."

Natalie turned and left.

When only Stephen was left in the study, he exuded a complex aura.

Meanwhile, Irwin had returned to Wexford.

And Cedric...!

Irwin had sent people to investigate and discovered that Cedric had disappeared without a trace. He had concealed his whereabouts completely, so nobody knew where he had gone.

As Cedric had hinted before leaving, he would never see Natalie again in his life after the surgery!

So, before leaving Natalie completely, what kind of heartache was he enduring? – Natalie returned to her room. Lily and Luna were there.

When Lily saw Natalie, she handed Luna a Barbie doll.

“Here, Miss Luna.”

“Mm.”

“Wait a moment,” Natalie said as Lily turned to leave.

“Do you need something, Miss?” Lily asked respectfully.

“How many times has he visited?”

Natalie was referring to Cedric!

At this point, Natalie didn't even want to mention that person's name anymore. However, as long as they were people in the Jarvis family, they knew who Natalie was referring to.

Lily respectfully replied, “He's visited twice.”

Twice.

So, he came once after Yuloria, and then another time later?

Natalie was displeased with Cedric's visits to see Luna! After all, in Natalie's heart, that man wasn't worthy of being her father. Knowing the child was his, he still did what he did.

Since that was the case, what else was he capable of doing in this world?

“You may leave.”

“Understood, Miss.”

Then, Lily left.

Natalie approached and carried Luna in her arms. The little one smelled of soap. At that moment, Natalie's heart softened and became bitter.

The bitterness was because of her child. Over these years, she had never regretted having Luna.

However, she felt a bit of regret after the incident with Kayla.

Now, Luna was still young. She was able to grow up in Natalie's embrace and enjoy her boundless love.

But what about after Luna grew up?

Would she be heartbroken when she learned what kind of person her father was?

That was what being a mother was like.

Natalie didn't want her child to have any kind of heartache. novelbin "Mommy."

"Mm?"

"That bad man always comes to our house," Luna murmured in Natalie's arms, expressing her dislike for Cedric.

Natalie patted the child's back. "In the future, Mommy won't let anyone hurt you."

"Will he still come then?"

Would he?

Natalie fell silent when Luna asked such a question. In her view, that man was constantly unpredictable.

Who knew when he would show up again? And with what unbearable intentions?

For example, the last time he used Luna to save Kayla...

No one could have expected or understood why he did such a thing!

A Divorce After My Rebirth Chapter 674

A Divorce After My Rebirth Chapter 674-That night, Natalie held Luna and watched the faint moonlight outside the window. She felt more satisfied than ever before.

Undoubtedly, the surgery was very successful. Even in the darkness of night, her vision was excellent.

It was evident that the surgeon had protected her eyes very well.

She slept well that night.

With her daughter beside her, Natalie had the best sleep in days.

The next morning, when she woke up, Natalie saw a message from Bianca on her phone. Without even eating breakfast, she headed to the back of Hillside Villa.

They hadn't been in contact since Bianca left Yuloria. During this time, the Entes family was going through a crucial period. Natalie wondered if Bianca had been affected by it.

When she got out of the car, she saw Zane leaving the house. He was wearing a trench coat, and he exuded an elegant and majestic air.

His family background added to his inherent superiority. How did Zane conceal this aura when he was around her before?

She had never noticed it.

Or...!

Did her transition from a homemaker to a career woman make her overlook the people around her at that time?

Yes! It must have been like that.

Their eyes met as he approached her, and Zane's deep gaze shimmered. "It seems you can see now."

"Yes." She nodded.

From the French window, Bianca observed their interaction. Sofia, who was taking care of her, stood behind her, looking worried.

Sofia was an elderly woman who had been with the Entes family for a long time. So, she knew what the lady of the Entes family was like and could see through all the so-called changes.

"Sofia."

"Yes, ma'am?"

"Everything is light, right?"

"Don't worry. We've prepared everything according to your instructions."

"Okay. She just had a successful surgery and can't eat anything too heavy."

"Yes, ma'am."

As Bianca spoke, Sofia looked at her with a hint of concern. It was unclear how genuine Bianca's words were.

Bianca didn't continue speaking. Soon, Natalie came in.

"Bia."

Bianca approached Natalie with a kitten in her arms, and her smile was a little different than usual!

At a glance, Natalie noticed the sharpness in it.

Natalie looked at the kitten in her arms. "It's cute."

"How does it compare to Ginger?"

Ginger?!

At the mention of the little pig, Natalie stiffened slightly. Bianca naturally noticed this subtle change.

Sensing her reaction, Bianca took her hand.

"It's all in the past."

Natalie nodded.

Yes! It was all in the past.

From the moment she came down from the operating table... No. From the moment the bandages were removed, she had bid farewell to the past.

No matter what had happened in her life before this... was all in the past.

"Have you had breakfast?"

"Not yet. I rushed over as soon as I saw your message."

"I'm sure Luna must be upset, then," Bianca said as she led Natalie to the dining room.

Natalie smiled. "She was with me the entire night."

"Making up for lost time?"

"Sort of!"

Actually, for a mother, no amount of making up was ever enough for the debts owed to her children!

Bianca understood Natalie.

On the breakfast table were mostly dishes Natalie loved from her time in Verde City. If there was anything different, it was... the taste.

Back when she was with Cedric, she would go to Bianca's place whenever she was upset, and they would cook together. Then, the two of them would enjoy themselves until they were thoroughly drunk!

"How is it?"

"Tastes great. The chefs here are really good!"

Natalie liked the flavor. It even had a hint of Verde City's taste.

"Is the chef from Verde City?" Natalie asked.

"You can tell just by tasting?"

Actually, it was Zane!

He had been worried that Bianca might not like the food here. He remembered how thin she had been when she first married him as a result of Malcolm's torture.

She had gained some weight during this time.

Knowing that Zane had brought the chef from Verde City, Bianca's heart felt somewhat strange.

"I've been everywhere to eat in Verde City, remember? If I'm not mistaken, this chef must be from Yummers Kitchen, right?"

The taste was too similar!

"Yeah." Bianca looked at Natalie sharply. "It would be harder to find a place you haven't been to!"

If they had to talk about Cedric...!

Thinking about him was upsetting, but Bianca had to admit that he was genuinely good to Natalie when they were together.

To ensure Natalie ate well, he visited almost every major restaurant in Verde City. Unfortunately, his efforts to help Natalie grow tall came too late. Even with Cedric's dedicated efforts to feed her, Natalie still didn't grow much taller.

"You should talk less and eat more since it's good, you know?" Natalie couldn't help but tease Bianca.

The two exchanged a smile.

At that moment, their smiles were so pure.

Bianca glanced at Natalie. "I had some with Zane earlier. Go ahead and eat."

"Still not much of an appetite?"

"Yeah."

Natalie's observation made Bianca feel a little unsettled. When they were in Verde City, Natalie observed Bianca's appetite closely whenever they ate together.

However, Bianca's appetite had diminished significantly after surviving Malcolm's ordeal. Although they didn't dine together often, Natalie still noticed it.

Natalie looked at Bianca and set down her spoon. "Bia."

"Why aren't you eating? I had the kitchen prepare your favorite. They're all light dishes and perfect for you now. Eat up."

"I don't have much of an appetite now either."

Why was it so small?

Was it because during their time in Yuloria, she had to drink a large bowl of traditional medicine before every meal?

How could one have an appetite after drinking such bitter medicine?

Three months of that, and Natalie's appetite really shrank. She'd feel full after just a few bites of novelbin anything. Last night, she forced herself to eat to avoid worrying her family but ended up throwing it all up later.

Bianca smiled bitterly. "Do you think we look like a pair of hopeless sisters?"

One couldn't help but admit the description was quite fitting.

"We're different!" Natalie said.

Although they both suffered greatly, suffering with love and suffering without it were entirely different concepts.

Bianca obviously heard the pain in Natalie's words.

She reached for Natalie's hand. She wanted to say something, but nothing came to mind...!

“Nat.”

“I’m fine,” Natalie said with a hint of a smile on her lips.

In this life, after being blinded once, she knew there was nothing more important than her family.

A Divorce After My Rebirth Chapter 675

A Divorce After My Rebirth Chapter 675-There was no need to bother about those things that troubled her at all!

Bianca understood now why Natalie had such thoughts. She pulled Natalie’s cold hand into hers.

At this moment, silence was a form of comfort.

It had been too bitter!

Natalie had been away from Simeria for nearly four months. Although Cedric and Irwin seemed to accompany her in these four months, she had been in darkness.

Only Bianca, having been to Yuloria, knew how desperate Natalie was in that darkness!

The two of them sat on the sofa on one side as the servants began tidying up. Soon, a servant brought them some tea after their meal.

Bianca said, “I know you like fruit tea, so I had someone make it for you.”

“Thanks.”

Natalie really liked fruit-infused tea. She lifted the cup and took a sip.

Bianca looked at her and said with a smile, “It’s not as tasty as when you make it, right?”

Natalie replied, “Of course not.”

“I think yours is also better,” Bianca expressed with gratitude.

Regardless of what their life was like now, what they missed most at the moment was the simple times they had.

Perhaps only Bianca missed it. For Natalie, she had thought of those times as pure...! Even after experiencing so many differences between her and Cedric, she once relied on those memories of pure goodness to sustain herself.

However, her world collapsed when she realized that the time of innocence was just her own assumption.

“Now, the Entes family is going through a crucial period. Aren’t you affected?” Natalie worriedly looked at Bianca.

The whereabouts of the Entes family seal were unknown now! So, Frederick’s importance was temporarily unconfirmed.

But one thing was certain...!

Once that seal appeared, the Entes family would erupt into a chaotic situation.

Natalie truly didn’t want Bianca to be involved in this.

Bianca replied, “It does have an impact, but it’s something I must deal with.

Natalie was taken aback!

Something Bianca must deal with?

“Because of Malcolm?”

Although they had had such a conversation in Yuloria before, at this moment, Natalie still felt endless worry towards Bianca. When she sensed Bianca’s aura becoming somewhat intense, Natalie hoped even more that she could leave.

After all, Bianca had once...

Bianca had earned everything she had through her efforts. She was at the peak of her life back then.

So, Natalie felt somewhat reluctant to see her in such a state...!

Bianca looked at Natalie. She took a deep breath and said, “Nat, I actually envy you a bit...!”

Envy her?

When Natalie heard Bianca’s complex words, she was momentarily stunned.

Bianca had clearly seen what had happened to her. Yet in such circumstances, she could still envy Natalie?

“Bia.”

“At the hardest time of your life, you had people protecting you.”

Bianca’s words were somewhat profound and heavy.

At these words, Natalie’s mind went blank!

Bianca had nothing in this world!

She had achieved her social standing in Verde City through her own efforts.

If it weren’t for Cedric...!

Yes, if it weren’t for Cedric in the end, Bianca wouldn’t have needed to be sent to Simeria.

Although Bianca had said that Malcolm had found her in Verde City and had secretly hindered her a lot, Natalie and Cedric accelerated Bianca’s tragedy.

That was Natalie’s opinion.

If Bianca hadn’t come to Simeria, with her professional skepticism in Verde City, she would have definitely sensed that something was wrong.

If that had happened, perhaps Bianca... could have dealt with it better!

“You don’t need to blame yourself. I’ve said it, this isn’t your fault. He had his eyes on me long ago!”

Bianca seemed to see through Natalie’s thoughts. She held her small hand, exerting a little more force.

Natalie looked at Bianca, her eyes slightly red.

Bianca wiped the tears from the corner of her eyes. “Didn’t your doctor tell you? You can’t cry now!”

“Bia.”

“That’s enough, okay?”

Natalie was still emotionally sensitive after going through so many things. It showed that these experiences had not tainted her heart.

That was a good thing. No matter when or what one encountered, one must never forget kindness!

“I don’t want anything to happen to you,” Natalie said as she looked at Bianca.

Yes.

She didn’t want anything to happen to Bianca.

They all knew what kind of person Malcolm was.

“But if I don’t deal with it, then I will definitely have trouble!” Bianca said.

“Can you really stop him?”

That was the most important point!

When Natalie asked this, she looked at Bianca with even more tension in her heart.

Bianca fell silent.

Could she?

In fact, when she was by Malcolm’s side, she already knew and thoroughly understood the crucial points of the Entes family.

She knew how crucial it was for the Entes family’s men when it came to controlling the family’s power.

She also knew just how crucial it was for them to gain control of the family.

She had always been biding her time...!

When she learned about that crucial point, she secretly swore that she would never let Malcolm reach the most important position in the Entes family.

Since he destroyed everything in her world, she would make sure he also lost everything in Simeria.

That was why she found an opportunity to work with Zane.

As for whether she could stop Malcolm...!

In this contractual relationship, she had never thought about it. No one had ever asked her this question, and she had never discussed it with Zane.

However, now, Natalie had asked.

This made Bianca also question this matter in her heart.

She looked at Natalie. "Can I?"

When faced with such a blunt question, Bianca undoubtedly felt a bit lost.

"Yeah, can you really?" Natalie asked.

During this time, the situation with the Entes family was intense. Regardless of how the Entes family's sons appeared to outsiders, they had undergone earth-shattering changes ever since Robert's death.

Faced with power, no one could remain calm. Even the third son of the Entes family, Austin Entes, who was rumored to be the family's fool, made people realize that something was amiss.

Even though everyone had anticipated significant changes in such an intense atmosphere after Robert's passing, no one expected it to be this intense. Now...!

As long as it was related to the Entes family, it gave people an inexplicable feeling.

Natalie had just returned yesterday and felt this unusually tense atmosphere!

"Nat, it doesn't matter if I can do it or not. I have no right to choose at this point. Do you understand?"

Natalie fell silent.

At these words, her mind went blank again!

A Divorce After My Rebirth Chapter 676-It didn't matter if she could do it or not!

She had no right to choose at this point?!

Natalie initially wanted to say something to persuade Bianca, but seeing the desolation in Bianca's eyes, she couldn't utter a word!

Bianca was right. Everyone had the right to start, but when it came to the end, it might not be entirely up to oneself.

From the tumultuous relationship between her and Cedric, it was evident that they had such a beautiful beginning. However, how many twists and turns did they go through at the end? How much sadness was there during that time?

Especially with Malcolm and Bianca, Natalie was even more aware that ending things was not so simple now. Whether it was Faye's or Jade's matters, Malcolm almost always blamed Bianca!

“So, do you need anything now?” Natalie looked at Bianca.

“No. I don’t need anything!” Bianca replied.

She said those words so decisively.

In fact, after visiting the Jarvis family that night, Bianca also understood what kind of man Stephen was.

Family and power!

Family came first in his heart. Otherwise, he would probably have long become the ruler of Simeria with his skills.

Thinking about all these twists and turns, Natalie couldn’t help but sigh. She didn’t know when there would be a conclusion on Bianca’s end.

“Alright, let’s do something else. Let’s not talk about these heavy topics,” Bianca changed the subject.

Undoubtedly, these topics were heavy for them. But since they had to face them, they might as well just do it.

Why burden oneself by constantly dwelling on them?

“Something else?”

“Yeah, come with me.”

Bianca got up, took Natalie’s hand, and walked towards the backyard. The layout here was similar to Natalie’s villa, and even the decoration style was similar.

When they reached the backyard, a fragrant scent wafted over. It turned out there were many fresh flowers.

“There are so many fresh flowers here,” Natalie remarked.

“Yeah.”

Fresh flowers?

Seeing so many and such precious varieties for the first time, Natalie felt a sense of wonder.

“Zane brought them all back from abroad. I can’t even name most of them.”

Though Natalie had seen many flowers at Scarlet Villa, she wasn't even able to recognize most of the species here.

Zane had brought them back for Bianca?

Natalie had to admit that Zane's actions was...!

She thought of something, and there was a hint of concern in her eyes when she looked at Bianca.

The people involved probably couldn't see anything in it, but outsiders... they could see everything crystal clear!

The Entes family's sixth lord was notorious in Simeria for being ruthless, yet inexplicably, he had allowed Bianca...

Perhaps Bianca didn't know.

Once a person was involved with Malcolm, they usually didn't end up with a tragic ending. Even many tycoons, once targeted, fell.

However, not only did Bianca survive, but she also had the opportunity to stand against him in life.

Was Malcolm... really just seeking revenge against her? Or was there something else?

Bianca was well versed in flower arrangement now. Watching her graceful movements, Natalie could tell she did this often.

"You used to be the one least likely to want me to do these," Natalie said as she arranged flowers with Bianca.

Bianca was holding a blue rose, and she stiffened at Natalie's words!

When she looked at Natalie, her eyes held a hint of complexity. In the past, Bianca looked down on women becoming full-time housewives.

To Bianca, if she could delegate household chores, she would do so. Why would she do something when she didn't need to do it herself?

Regardless of a woman's position or how insignificant their tasks were, they had to use wisdom.

But after Natalie married Cedric, she almost completely abandoned what she had learned at school.

She threw herself wholeheartedly into being a full-time housewife.

What had Bianca said to Natalie back then?

She said, "Being a full-time housewife is a high-risk occupation. Once the boss fires you, you'll immediately feel trapped."

And what she said was true.

The boss might start out well, but prolonged exploitation could indeed sour the relationship.

Husbands were no different!

Bianca took a deep breath and said somewhat bitterly, "Do you know how I learned to do these things?"

"How?" Natalie asked.

Didn't she learn it after she had gone to Zane?

After all, Bianca was now the seventh lady of the Entes family. Going out into the world to work was absolutely impossible. Natalie had learned these things because she had been bored.

Wasn't Bianca the same?

When Bianca picked up the scissors and cut the flower stems, her grip was heavy, as if reflecting her thoughts!

Then, she said, "I learned it when I was with... him!"

Natalie fell silent.

Him... Malcolm!

"He liked it when I was like a canary trapped in a birdcage."

Natalie remained silent.

At these words, her heart clenched even tighter!

At this moment, she could almost imagine what role Bianca had played at Malcolm's side.

Malcolm...!

Natalie had to admit that Malcolm was the epitome of cruelty in this situation!

Wasn't this even more unbearable for Bianca than killing her?

He saw the pride in Bianca. Also, back in Verde City, she was a renowned divorce lawyer. She was a figure held in awe by victims of marriage.

She was a dignified and proud woman.

However, Malcolm had made her do these things?!

These were the things she despised the most, the things she least wanted to do!! These were the most boring tasks for her.

She didn't learn these skills because she was bored. The tasks themselves were inherently boring for her.

"He..."

"Once, I went without a drop of water for seventy-two hours because I didn't follow his orders. I never knew how crucial a drop of water could be to someone."

Natalie trembled!

"Bia."

"And another time, because I didn't obey him... I think it was five days... I only ate one apple halfway through, and he..."

What had he done?

When Bianca reached this point, she couldn't continue. She just rolled up her sleeve and extended her arm in front of Natalie.

There was a scar in the shape of a centipede.

At that moment... Natalie's heart felt even more suffocated.

"What is this?"

Did he... do that to Bianca?

Bianca smiled and said, "It's from a surgery for a compound fracture!"

Natalie fell silent.

At that moment, Bianca's tone was so calm!

It was a calmness that made one's heart tremble involuntarily. However, who knew how desperate Bianca had been when she had endured all of this?

"There are even worse things he did," Bianca said indifferently as if those things didn't affect her at all.

A Divorce After My Rebirth Chapter 677-From Bianca's calm tone, Natalie could probably tell how Bianca had resisted when she endured all of that.

And Malcolm already hated her!

So, her resistance undoubtedly enraged him like a wild beast, making him even more ruthless.

In that kind of cruelty, Bianca went from initial resistance to eventual compromise. But, of course, it wasn't a genuine compromise.

It was... turning into the same kind of beast as him. By his side, she lurked in the shadows, waiting for the right moment to strike!

When Bianca became the seventh lady of the Entes family, Malcolm was probably shocked and furious, right?

Bianca was never one to surrender!

Even if she temporarily yielded, she would never abandon her pride. She would find a way to turn the tables...!

As Bianca said, everything she had was destroyed by that man.

So, how could she just let it go like that?

Previously, what Natalie saw was that Malcolm wouldn't let Bianca go unpunished.

But now, Natalie saw that Bianca... would never let Malcolm go unpunished either.

Malcolm destroyed everything Bianca had!

So she... would crush everything important to him.

"All right, we agreed not to talk about these things. Let's see if the arrangement is better than the ones you did before," Bianca said with a smile to Natalie.

However, at that moment, Natalie's heart clenched painfully.

“Stop it!”

She grabbed the flowers and scissors from Bianca’s hands.

But the next moment, Bianca calmly took them back.

“Give them to me.”

Bia!” Natalie’s tone became stern.

I want to remember,” Bianca said.

That was right!

She wanted to remember.

She insisted on doing every single thing she had learned while at Malcolm’s side. Even though she felt choked every time she did those things, why did she persist?

Because she wanted to remember!

She wanted to remember how Malcolm gradually dismantled her pride. And how he turned her into more and more of a canary in a birdcage.

She was waiting! She had always been waiting.

Doing these things now was suffocating, but she was also waiting for the day when she could do them novelbin without feeling this way.

Natalie felt for Bianca as she looked at Bianca’s serene and elegant demeanor.

These were the deepest marks on Bianca’s soul. These were memories she couldn’t erase. These memories also made her understand how she lost everything.

“Can you see clearly now?” Bianca asked Natalie.

Natalie nodded. “Yes.”

Her heart felt heavy! Being with Bianca used to be the best feeling in the world.

But now...?

Bianca was bearing too much burden.

Natalie hoped all of this would pass soon. Only when it truly passed could Bianca return to her normal self.

However, could one truly return to their normal self?

Even if all of this came to a complete end, the traces left in Bianca's world would still be vivid!

It was the same as what happened with Natalie!

Natalie stayed for lunch at Verdant Villa. Throughout the morning, Natalie sensed various changes in Bianca.

It was no wonder that everyone, including Stephen, said that the Entes family was like an abyss.

Previously, Natalie didn't understand the meaning of this sentence, but now she did.

"Is it good?"

"Yeah. It's delicious."

"It would be better if we had some wine, but unfortunately, you can't drink now."

Natalie fell silent.

Previously, whenever they had meals together, they would always have some wine. There were many troubles in the Johnson family, so every time Natalie met Bianca, she could comfortably have a few more drinks to ease her troubles.

"What's the situation in Wexford? Do you know?" Bianca asked.

After discussing the heaviest matters concerning Bianca all morning, they finally came to talk about Natalie.

"I haven't been paying attention lately," Natalie replied.

"Cedric is missing!"

Cedric was missing?

How was that possible?

Although she had heard mentions of it before, Natalie hadn't given much thought to it until Bianca brought it up.

Natalie's expression remained indifferent. "It has nothing to do with me."

That was right!

She remained indifferent to everything about Cedric!

Back in Verde City, Bianca had hoped Natalie would have this kind of clear indifference towards Cedric.

But now, Bianca stiffened slightly at this moment and said, "I saw him when he came to see Luna last time."

"You saw him?"

"Yeah."

Bianca nodded, and when she looked at Natalie, her expression became complicated.

Then, she continued, "Nat, do you remember if anything important happened between Cedric and Isabella?"

"The affair!" Natalie blurted out without hesitation.

What else could it be?

Other than that, there was only the matter concerning Ivan!

Natalie didn't know all the details. Regardless of what happened, she knew that was the reason Cedric never let go of Isabella.

"Seriously... Do you still believe there's anything between them?" Bianca asked.

"It doesn't matter anymore," Natalie slowly said as she stared at Bianca.

Natalie's words were heavy and indifferent. From her tone, Bianca could sense that Natalie had completely let go of Cedric.

She opened her mouth to say something, but Natalie continued, "Bia, when that incident with Luna happened, he became nothing in my world."

No, it was even earlier than that!

At the moment when the detention center burned down, Cedric truly meant nothing in her world. The entanglement afterward was just Cedric's wishful thinking.

"Blair is the most important person in his world, right?" Natalie murmured softly, unsure if she was speaking to herself or Bianca.

Whether it was her or Isabella, they couldn't compare to Blair in Cedric's heart, could they?

That was right. They couldn't.

At that moment, Bianca didn't know what to say anymore. Initially, Natalie had already given up on Cedric completely, but now... after knowing about Blair, their relationship seemed to be even more hopeless.

Bianca looked into Natalie's eyes. "Do you know whose eyes you received?"

"I don't know. Cly told me they're from a donor who has already passed away."

Bianca fell silent.

When she heard this, there was a suffocating feeling in Bianca's chest.

Even though Cedric had said such absurd things at the time, the brightness in Natalie's eyes right now was truly reminiscent of that man!

Even though there were some things Cedric couldn't let go of, Natalie was undoubtedly the most important person in his heart!

A Divorce After My Rebirth Chapter 678-Natalie glanced at Bianca and said, "Why do you ask?"

"Just curious. I wonder who gave you those eyes," Bianca casually deflected.

Natalie didn't press further.

However, neither of them mentioned Cedric again.

After lunch, Natalie didn't stay with Bianca anymore because she missed Luna. Spending such a long time away from the child was already challenging.

Bianca didn't stop her from leaving.

As they stepped out, they bumped into Zane and the fourth lady of the Entes family, Yvette.

Or was it the former fourth lady now that she seemed to have divorced Alto?

Yvette had tears in her eyes and was pleading, "Zane, let her go! Otherwise, my father..."

Before Yvette could finish, Natalie stepped forward and interrupted, "Zane!"

Their conversation stopped abruptly!

Both sets of eyes turned towards Natalie, and in that moment, she could feel Yvette's dissatisfaction emanating from her gaze.

However, Natalie didn't let that bother her.

She approached Zane. "Have you had lunch?"

"Not yet."

"Why didn't you come back earlier, then? Bia and I have already eaten."

At the sight of Natalie, Zane's gaze softened slightly. Meanwhile, Yvette keenly felt this change.

She looked at Zane, then at Natalie.

What was happening between them? What was this?!

At that moment, Yvette felt like a huge stone was blocking her heart. It made her feel heavy and suffocated.

Natalie said, "You go in first. I'll head back."

"You're leaving already?"

"Yeah, I have to go back."

"I'll have someone accompany you."

There was endless warmth in the man's tone that wasn't there before this.

Natalie shook her head. "No need. I can see clearly now. No assistance necessary."

"Can you see colors clearly too?"

"Of course." Natalie smiled.

Zane nodded. "Alright."

"I'll be off then. Bia is still waiting for you." Natalie emphasized Bianca's name particularly heavily and glanced at Yvette almost subconsciously.

During their time in Yuloria, Bianca had mentioned some things about her and Yvette. This woman didn't seem as innocent as Bianca perceived her to be.

Just now, what did Yvette say?

Let her go...?

Who was she referring to?

This woman from Simeria wasn't as simple as she appeared, especially considering Yvette's years of experience in the Entes family.

Bianca had been back for quite some time now. Hopefully, she had seen through this. After all, she had undergone significant changes herself.

Zane watched Natalie enter the car and waited for her to drive off safely. Once the car disappeared from sight, he turned away.

He looked at Yvette and said, "You should go back. Don't come here again in the future!"

The warmth in the man's eyes was gone!

Instead, there was only endless coldness.

This kind of coldness made Yvette's heart sink even more at this moment.

What was this...?!

"Just now, wasn't that the Jarvis family's daughter who has been wandering outside for years?"

"Yeah."

"You guys..."

Yvette seemed to remember something when it came to this, and her face turned a few shades paler.

She remembered...!

After Zane left the Entes family, he had been hiding within Regal Horizons International.

No matter how many people from the Entes family looked for him, there was no news whatsoever.

Zane had spent a long time working by Natalie's side, right?

Could it be that they...?!

"Zane!" When she thought of this, Yvette's lips trembled.

The suffocating feeling in her chest intensified.

Bianca's presence had already stirred up her dissatisfaction, and now Natalie...!

Thinking of the way Zane had looked at Natalie just now, Yvette felt even more threatened.

Everything had changed!

Truly... everything had changed.

Why? Why had Zane changed like this? Then what was she? What did her years of waiting amount to?

"You're my sister-in-law. You shouldn't be here!" Zane said sternly, ignoring the tears in Yvette's eyes.

The term made Yvette's already pale face even paler at that moment!

Cold... Zane was so cold!

At this moment, she felt not just the coldness in the air but also a chilling sensation in her soul.

She could feel how cold Zane was. It wasn't just from the coldness in his eyes but also from his attitude.

Previously, he had only shown her tenderness and warmth.

However, why did he and the Jarvis family's daughter...?

Why?!

Zane had already turned and walked in, leaving Yvette standing in the cold wind. She was unable to return to her senses for a long time...!

It was as if her mind had been completely swept away by the cold wind. It left her unable to react or believe what had just happened.

Bianca... Natalie!

Previously, she thought Bianca was her biggest obstacle.

But now, Natalie had appeared...!

How could this happen!?

How could she?

She already had Cedric and Irwin. Why would she have such a relationship with Zane?

Why?

Why did this happen?! – Inside, Bianca was on the sofa, petting the kitten. When she saw Zane return, she put the kitten aside and approached him.

“You’re back. Have you had lunch?”

Zane wrapped his arm around Bianca’s slender waist without a word.

Bianca fell silent and instantly blushed!

Although they had been intimate in Yuloria, they had never brought it up after returning. Neither of them mentioned what had happened as if it had never occurred!

Faced with Zane’s overly intimate touch at this moment, the man’s crisp breath almost enveloped Bianca entirely.

Bianca took a deep breath and said, “Actually, I’ve more or less handled everything here!

It was a subtle reminder and also a chance to secretly observe Zane’s reactions.

Since returning from Yuloria, Bianca had indeed dealt with many matters in Verdant Villa.

There wasn’t a need to ask why she had done so.

Betrayal was what Bianca despised the most in her life!

Following one master but working for someone else was absolutely intolerable in Bianca’s world.

So...!

Even if her relationship with Zane was merely contractual, those people indirectly touched Bianca’s bottom line.

The one thing people couldn’t tolerate the most was someone touching their bottom line!

“Are you sure?” the man said meaningfully.

The certainty in Bianca's heart became somewhat uncertain at this moment.

Simeria was already a complicated place, and the Entes family was currently in a critical period. How could she guarantee with 100% certainty that all the moles around Zane had been removed? novelbin "Have you had lunch?" Bianca relaxed and allowed herself to be held by the man.

The man's eyes softened with a hint of amusement when she started acting so obediently.

Bianca couldn't see his smile from her angle.

It was a smile so deep, like the gentleness in the ocean's depths.

A Divorce After My Rebirth Chapter 679-Zane shook his head. "Keep me company for a bit while I eat?"

"I just had lunch with Nat."

"You could eat something light."

Clearly, Zane didn't enjoy dining alone.

It was dull.

Bianca couldn't deny him and eventually accompanied Zane to the dining room. The room had French windows, offering a clear view of everything inside from the outside.

Seeing Zane embrace Bianca as they entered the restaurant, Yvette's mind was swept up in a storm!

He...!

He had completely changed.

Zane was gentle to everyone else, but he was so cold to Yvette. When he returned this time, it was as if everything between them had never happened.

This feeling made Yvette's heart even heavier.

The suffocating confusion enveloped her entirely.

She had always been waiting for Zane, even during the years of marriage to Alto.

But now, she didn't know what this waiting meant anymore.

It started drizzling.

Yvette stood in the wind and rain, unable to return to her senses. Eventually, her consciousness became increasingly hazy, and she collapsed in the rain.

There were noisy sounds around her, but she couldn't hear anything.

She just... couldn't hear anything.

Why did things turn out like this?

Zane and Bianca were eating in the dining room when they heard about Yvette collapsing outside.

It was only then that Bianca realized Yvette was here.

Before she could react, the man who had been sitting beside her suddenly stood up and strode outside.

Bianca was silent, and her brow furrowed tightly.

Meanwhile, Natalie had gone to Lotus Villa after leaving Verdant Villa. On the way, she received a call from Abigail.

"Cedric's sudden disappearance has thrown all of Wexford into chaos. He really left everything to Irwin.

It doesn't sound like he was scheming something like you thought," Abigail said.

Natalie was silent.

Bianca had brought this up earlier in Verdant Villa!

At the time, Natalie didn't want to talk about it. But now that Abigail brought it up, she understood.

Something was going on in Wexford.

"Nat? Nat!"

"Huh? I'm listening!"

"What's going on with Cedric and Irwin? Why did Cedric hand everything over to Irwin? This is a huge loss for us!" Abigail kept complaining from the other end of the line.

What was this?

It meant that everything she had squeezed out of Cedric's side was now completely irrelevant.

Had she been wasting her time?

Natalie took a deep breath and asked Abigail, "When did he leave Wexford?"

"About twenty days ago, I think? I don't remember the exact date."

Twenty days ago!

Natalie remembered that had also been his last visit to Luna, and then... he was gone?!

"Does anyone know where he is now?" Natalie asked.

"Nope!"

Natalie fell silent.

It seemed that twenty days ago, Cedric had come to Simeria to see Luna after leaving Wexford.

"Where's Kayla?" novelbin "You mean that child?"

"Yeah."

Yes, that child—the one who was incredibly important to Cedric. The child that was more important than his own daughter, even.

Some unpleasant memories were like that. They touched a nerve deep within a person!

Whenever Natalie thought of Kayla, she would remember how Cedric had tried to use Luna to save Kayla. It was the kind of sacrifice he was willing to make to ensure Kayla's well-being, just like he had once demanded Natalie's eyes for Isabella.

Cedric had later claimed he never truly meant to ask for them.

Natalie could sense, deep down, that he was sincere when he said those things.

Yes.

Regardless of how he explained it later, Natalie knew what he said back then was true.

However, she didn't know Cedric's exact reasons for doing what he did. She hadn't wanted to listen then. After all, those explanations meant nothing to her.

Abigail continued, "Forget about that child now. None of his people are in Wexford anymore."

"All of them?"

"Yeah! Didn't I already tell you? He handed everything over to Irwin." Everything?!

So, he was stepping back from Wexford?

Why?

When Irwin arrived at Yuloria, Cedric had departed!

What was Natalie thinking at that time?

She thought Irwin and Cedric had struck a deal for some benefit. She assumed that Irwin had given Frederick's location to Cedric, which was why he left Yuloria.

So, what was happening now?

What happened after Cedric had left Yuloria to return to Wexford?

Her previous speculation about why Cedric left Yuloria had been overturned.

Why did he leave if it wasn't because Irwin gave him Frederick's whereabouts?

Right now, Natalie was left with only more questions in her mind!

And now...!

Logically, everything in Wexford was under his control after he left Yuloria, so why hand everything over to Irwin? Throughout her journey back, Natalie hadn't asked Clyde why Irwin left or where he went.

But now...

"Irwin's in Wexford?"

"Cedric handed everything over to him, so where else would he be if not in Wexford?"

Abigail was exasperated. How many times had she said this?

"That has nothing to do with me!" Natalie said.

Nothing!

Yes, that was how she saw it.

Regardless of what she heard about Cedric and Irwin, it no longer concerned her. When she regained her sight, those two had become part of her past.

Whether it was now or in the future...

They were no longer her concern!

Abigail paused in surprise. "Are you serious?!"

"What?"

"No, I mean... seriously?!"

At this moment, Abigail really didn't know what to say. She never expected Natalie to respond like this.

Could it be that she really...?

"Don't you want to know where Cedric went?" Abigail asked.

They were talking about the entire Wexford here!

Cedric had completely withdrawn from Wexford, taking all his people with him.

So, where did they go? Why hand everything over to Irwin?

"Kayla has also withdrawn from school," Abigail added after a moment's thought.

Kayla withdrew from school?!

It was evident that Cedric's departure meant he didn't intend to return to Wexford this time!

Twenty days ago...

That meant that the last time he was seen was when he visited Simeria to see Luna!

Although her tone was indifferent, Natalie couldn't help but ask, "Did something happen to him?"

A Divorce After My Rebirth Chapter 680-Did something happen to him?

At Natalie's question, Abigail replied, "Nothing!"

“He started transferring a lot of things to Irwin’s side after returning from Yuloria.”

He started transferring things to Irwin’s side upon returning from Yuloria?

So, what was the deal they struck?

Natalie said, “I have something to do. I’m hanging up now.”

Undoubtedly, she didn’t want to hear about these things! They were all in the past, and she didn’t want to dwell on them.

More importantly, she had concluded that Cedric and Irwin were both in the past.

Was she too comfortable with the past to care about these matters?

“Oh, okay.”

Upon hearing Natalie had something to do, Abigail didn’t continue to pry. She simply hung up the phone. Meanwhile, Natalie’s thoughts didn’t end there.

Cedric...!

If it wasn’t because he had gotten information about Frederick that he left Yuloria, then why did he leave?

And why would he do that upon returning to Wexford?

Why?

When Abigail mentioned all this, Natalie initially thought there might be many conspiracies and schemes between Irwin and Cedric.

Perhaps it was part of some scheme between them!

After all, those two had schemed for Blair’s sake for so many years. Who knew what they were plotting this time after causing such a big ruckus?

Screech!

Bang!

Suddenly, her thoughts were thrown off course as her body jerked forward.

She had just crashed into someone else’s car.

She looked up to see it was a G-Klasse. As the person from the other car stepped out, she caught a glimpse of his face.

Wasn't that... the Entes family's third son, Austin Entes?

No, it couldn't be!

Austin couldn't possibly exude such a cold aura. She distinctly saw the icy glint in the man's eyes just now. Moreover, the Entes family's third son was rumored to be a fool and never seen in public!

Natalie had only been lucky enough to see him once, so she must have been mistaken just now, right?

That was right!

She must have been mistaken.

How could a fool emanate such an aura? Or were the recent rumors all without basis? – Two hours later, Natalie returned to Lotus Villa. Ultimately, she arranged with the car driver that he would send the invoice to her once the car was fixed.

However, upon returning, she realized she had only obtained the phone number, not... the account number.

So, how would she transfer the money?

Heather asked gently upon seeing Natalie, "Did you go see Bianca?"

Natalie nodded. "Yeah, did you guys have lunch?"

"We did. How about you?"

"I had lunch at Bianca's place."

Heather fell silent. A complicated glint flashed in Heather's eyes when she heard that Natalie had spent all her time with Bianca.

She was aware of the relationship between Natalie and Bianca. Because of this awareness, she couldn't help but feel some underlying concern about how close Natalie and Bianca had become.

"What's wrong, Mom?" Natalie asked when Heather remained silent.

Heather replied, "Nothing much. Right now, the Entes family is going through a crucial period. You should tell her to be careful."

Natalie breathed a sigh of relief at Heather's words. "I thought you didn't want me to associate with Bianca any more."

"Silly girl, what do you take your mom for?"

Previously, when Natalie and Bianca were in Verde City, Bianca had taken good care of Natalie. Now that Bianca was in trouble, should Natalie just cut ties with her?

When Natalie was with the Johnson family, who weren't exactly good people, Bianca never considered cutting ties with Natalie.

Although the Jarvis family couldn't intervene in the matters concerning the Entes family, they wouldn't go as far as severing ties with Bianca just because of her association with them.

After hearing Heather's words, Natalie felt even more touched by Heather's sense of justice.

"I knew you were a person of great integrity, Mom."

"You brat," Heather scolded, but her words were filled with affection for Natalie.

However, whenever she thought about Natalie's emotional issues, Heather couldn't help but feel a headache. From yesterday until now, they hadn't mentioned anything about Wexford. But she believed that given Natalie's hatred for Cedric, Natalie must have some idea of what was happening in Wexford.

Because of this, Heather looked at Natalie with even more concern.

"I'll go keep Luna company," Natalie said to Heather.

Heather nodded. "Okay."

Heather watched with a complicated glint in her eyes as Natalie walked away. Then, she sighed.

Evidently, she was unsure of what to say about this matter.

The current situation... had become so complicated...!

- When Natalie returned to her room, Luna was already lying on her bed and clutching a milk bottle. When Luna saw her, her eyes widened in an adorable manner. Natalie loved Luna to bits, and seeing her like this made her heart even softer and more indulgent. "Are you ready for your nap?" "Yeah. Stay with me, Mommy." "Okay." "... " "I'll go change my clothes!" Natalie said. She went to the wardrobe, took out a set of pajamas, and changed into them.

When she came out, Luna had already fallen asleep. Luna tended to fall asleep surprisingly quickly when Natalie was with her. Such a child was so easy to care for, and it made one's heart ache with tenderness. Natalie's eyes shimmered with gentleness as she got into bed. She embraced the child as if holding the whole world at that moment. "Sweetie..." Natalie murmured softly, her words filled with affection for the child. Luna nestled into her arms. She found a comfortable spot and fell into a deep, peaceful sleep. Natalie watched the Luna's even breathing through her tiny nose... which resembled that person's! That person...! Now, in Natalie's heart, Cedric had become... that person? He was a man who wasn't even worthy of a name in her world! Natalie and Luna had a peaceful nap that afternoon. When Clyde returned, some workers came to the villa to change the lights. "Why do they need to be changed?" Natalie asked. "It's too dark. Now that it doesn't affect you anymore, it's natural to return things to how they were before." Natalie fell silent for a moment upon hearing this! She just remembered those lights that had suited her perfectly, but were indeed too dim for ordinary people. Last night at dinner, she had felt the lights were too dim. "Yeah, it's time to restore them." Her world should also return to its original state and not be entangled with the past. She should purely... enter into the world she was meant to have. But what exactly should her world look like? When Natalie thought about it, she was filled with confusion and questions. When he heard her profound tone, Clyde frowned and looked at her. "What are your future plans?" Natalie remained silent. Her future plans? Natalie had to admit that the sudden question from Clyde really caught her off guard!

A Divorce After My Rebirth Chapter 681

A Divorce After My Rebirth Chapter 681- When Natalie had been trapped in the darkness before, she had lived her life aimlessly. So, no one ever asked her about her plans.

What plans could she have at that time?

But now, Clyde had asked!

After all, she had fully recovered and become a normal person.

Natalie looked at Clyde. "Maybe I'll go back to work at the company? But I don't want to do management anymore!"

She was telling the truth.

Before Clyde returned, Regal Horizons International's burden was on her shoulders, and she felt suffocated.

Especially at that time, she couldn't see clearly what role Winona played, so it gave her a headache.

At that time, it felt like she had no choice but to bear all the responsibilities.

But it was different now!

With Clyde as her brother, she naturally had more choices and wasn't fixated on everything as before.

"You should do something," Clyde thought for a moment and said.

Natalie asked, "What do you think I should do?"

"What do you want to do?"

"I want to be your assistant!"

An assistant?!

That would really be a waste!

After all, Stephen spent a lot of manpower and time cultivating her, and now she just wanted to be an assistant?!

"Pathetic!" It was the first time a man had spoken to her in such a tone.

Natalie pursed her lips.

How was it pathetic?

Couldn't people have what they wanted in this world?

She really didn't like standing in such a high position. It always made her feel like she was in the eye of the storm.

Previously, she had no choice but to endure it. But now that she didn't need to, why bother!?

"There are some projects at the company. Why don't I handle the designing for those?" Natalie asked after thinking for a moment.

Before returning to Regal Horizons International, she had started Auro Studios in Verde City.

She had some experience in designing.

Clyde nodded. "That's fine."

People always need something to do!

Otherwise, they would eventually become disconnected from society after a long time. If that happened, it wouldn't be good for Natalie in any way. Having something of her own to do would make a difference.

Although accompanying Luna was important, it would also be a lot of pressure for the child if Natalie was always with her.

As a parent, one had to distract themselves most of the time. – It was settled!

Natalie would become an affiliated studio under Regal Horizons International, and all designs belong to Regal Horizons International.

Because of her restored vision, her life and future had returned to the right track!

Obviously, her life would have returned to normal if Irwin and Cedric weren't involved. As soon as the two were present, nothing good would happen.

Half a month later, Irwin returned!

Natalie felt as if her initially soaring passion was hit by a hard rock when she heard the news!

Irwin's appearance also made her realize that things that were left in the past... didn't stay there!

Everything was just her own assumption. – How long had it been since Natalie last came to Maple Peak? Once, she rarely came here. And after seeing that photo, she came even less.

Yet Irwin came and brought her to Maple Peak, seemingly telling her in this silent way that she was still married...

And to remind her where her home was!

At the dining table, Natalie picked up the lukewarm water in front of her and took a sip.

She asked, "Do you have time this afternoon?"

"Why?"

The man across from her was dressed in a pure white lounge outfit. He exuded an air of nobility and elegance, and there was a serious look on his face!

“Let’s get a divorce!” Natalie said in a cold and indifferent manner.

As she finished speaking, Irwin tensed. Something flickered in his eyes at this moment.

But it was fleeting, and he instantly calmed down.

Irwin picked up a well-cooked piece of beef for her. “Stop being silly, okay?”

There was endless indulgence and gentleness in his tone, as if he was dealing with a mischievous child!

However, despite the calmness of his actions, Irwin knew in his heart that Natalie wasn’t being silly, just like Cedric before.

When she realized the importance of Isabella in Cedric’s world...

She wanted a divorce like crazy.

At that time, she had nothing. Yet, she dared to do something like that so decisively.

But now?

Now, she had the backing of the Jarvis family.

Therefore, her determination to leave instantly gave Irwin a sense of distance.

If she ran far away, Irwin could still chase her down.

But what if her heart was also far away?

Natalie looked at Irwin flatly and said, “Do you think I’m joking?”

“I know I’m not worthy!” Irwin said bitterly.

Yes!

He wasn’t worthy... He didn’t have the right to be with her. In fact, he wasn’t even worthy enough for her to joke around with like this.

“Do you know what kind of consequences there will be if you divorce me now?!” Irwin asked.

Consequences?

Once, when she was arguing for a divorce with Cedric, that man grabbed her and also asked her the same question.

Whether in her previous life or this one, it was the same!

From the beginning, Cedric had the mentality that she would never leave him, so it was settled.

No matter what happened in their life, Natalie wouldn't leave?

Yes!

That was Cedric's mindset.

And now, Irwin had asked this question.

It was as if every time Natalie made a choice when something happened, she had to be extremely cautious.

Otherwise, it would lead to terrifying consequences.

But would things really turn out that way?

"You're just going to bring up the Entes family again, right?" Natalie shot back.

Yes!

The Entes family.

The Jarvis family definitely wouldn't want to be associated with them, and they were a family that Stephen had always avoided.

Though Stephen had always kept away from them, the Entes family wanted the opposite. They wanted to be entangled with the Jarvis family!

Why had nothing happened in the past half month since Natalie returned?

It was because news about her marriage with Irwin had already been spread before she stepped foot in Simeria!

So, the Entes family couldn't use Natalie to get Stephen involved!

But if she divorced Irwin, it was likely they wouldn't care that she had been married twice! There was no guarantee that someone from the Entes family wouldn't come up.

"Since you know, why bring up divorce with me now?" Irwin asked in an indulgent tone.

The look in Natalie's eyes towards Irwin became sharper.

When it came to emotions, she never compromised on anything, even if it led to serious consequences.

She had proved it back in Verde City.

But now... everything was different!

No matter what consequences arose back when she was in Verde City, they were all on her. But now, she had to consider her family, who was supporting her.

A Divorce After My Rebirth Chapter 682-For years, Stephen had been avoiding the Entes family.

Avoiding them was one thing, and not getting involved was another.

But when the Entes family insisted on getting involved, it would inevitably lead to unimaginable conflicts...!

No matter how she analyzed the situation, now was not a good time for her to divorce Irwin.

But what about her?

The Jarvis family didn't want to be involved with the Entes family. She and Irwin absolutely didn't want to be involved either.

The air became tense!

Just as Natalie was about to say something, Irwin said, "At least wait until after this period, hmm?"

His tone still held endless indulgence.

Naturally, she knew what Irwin meant by waiting after this period. He was asking her to wait until the dust settled within the Entes family.

But the Entes family's seal was missing now, and Frederick's whereabouts were also unknown. So, the time it would take for the dust to settle within the Entes family... was actually indefinite!

No one knew who would ultimately find that seal.

But the position of the head of the Entes family wasn't just about that seal or that document.

There was also the support of these prestigious families!

So, this matter for now...!

Natalie looked at Irwin with a sharp and deep gaze. "Do you think the Jarvis family can't resist them?"

"And are you saying you will?"

Would she?

Was the Entes family a vortex in which she would involve the Jarvis family?

The sound of clinking cutlery and utensils told everyone around her what kind of mood Natalie was in right now, and Irwin laughed.

There was amusement in his laughter because he naturally knew Natalie's choice.

It was just that the reason for this choice was bitter.

While eating, Natalie asked, "What deal did you make with him?"

"Who?"

Irwin didn't immediately understand Natalie's sudden question, but realized what she was asking after a moment.

Obviously, she was talking about Cedric!

"What do you think the deal between us was?" Irwin's tone was more bitter when he countered her question.

"Who knows?" Natalie replied somewhat casually, but it was enough to show how cold she was.

"In your mind, are we always plotting?"

"You two do a lot of things, but it has nothing to do with me!" Natalie said.

The only thing that mattered was something Natalie found hardest to accept right now, and Irwin seemed to have noticed.

Was this woman trying to cause trouble for him?

Irwin had to admit that she had succeeded in just that.

Looking at Natalie's indifferent attitude now, Irwin understood why Cedric felt trapped back then.

She couldn't accept it!

She was still talking to him now, but if it were Cedric, she probably wouldn't even bother to acknowledge him, right?

Indeed!

Irwin had only done one thing to her, and that was enough for her to treat him with such an attitude.

So, what about Cedric?

With all the things he had done to her, it wouldn't be strange if Natalie never wanted to see him again.

Irwin took a deep breath and asked in a tense tone, "Nat, do you really hate him so much?"

Natalie raised her eyebrows at his question. She set down her cutlery and looked at the man across from her. Her eyes deepened at this moment, and she smiled.

"What? Isn't this what you wanted to see?"

What he wanted to see?

Indeed!

It was what he had always wanted to see.

He wanted to see Cedric and Natalie reach this point, which he had planned long ago!

But when it really came to this moment, it felt suffocating!

Perhaps if he didn't know the truth about Blair, he could have felt better. He could repeatedly tell himself that Cedric deserved all of it.

But it was different now!

Now, it was really different.

"Don't worry, he'll never appear in front of you again," Irwin looked at Natalie and said with a hint of bitterness.

"Never?" Natalie asked.

"Yes. Never again!"

This statement weighed heavily.

Although Irwin and Cedric had fought for so many years, they had also been entangled for so many years. The relationship they had before made it so that they understood each other enough.

In Irwin's memory, Cedric was such a proud person. How could he allow himself to show such a novelbin wretched side to Natalie?

He wouldn't. He wouldn't allow it!

Natalie fell silent. The melancholy that flashed in Irwin's eyes made Natalie frown even more.

At this moment, she stared at Irwin without a word. No one knew what Natalie was thinking in her heart, and her eyes were dark and cold.

The meal felt somewhat oppressive.

After dinner, when Natalie was about to return to Lotus Villa, Irwin said, "Three days."

"What?"

"I'll be here for three days. At least stay at Maple Peak during that time, okay?"

Natalie fell silent. The displeasure in her eyes was evident, and her face became even colder after she heard Irwin's words.

"Don't go too far!"

Too far?

"The people from the Entes family are very sensitive. None of them are simple people. Since we've decided not to give them any chance, enduring three days should not be difficult for you, don't you think?" Irwin explained.

"For me, every second spent with you feels suffocating!"

Natalie's tone was far from polite.

Irwin's already suffocating heart felt even more pained hearing Natalie's blunt words.

Was it suffocating?

It was!

He finally understood what Cedric meant when he said there was no way out in his relationship with Natalie.

Cedric was having a miserable time in the darkness. Meanwhile, Irwin was beside Natalie.

However, he had to endure her coldness, leaving him nowhere better than Cedric.

“I’ve said what I needed to say. It’s up to you to decide,” Irwin said in the end.

Natalie fell silent.

As the man turned away, he gave off an air of desolation.

Natalie just looked at him coldly. Her gaze was colder than ice, devoid of any warmth she once had.

Her heart remained unwavering!

In the past, Natalie thought that only dead people lacked emotions!

Yet, she never expected to become so emotionless one day.

Just then, her phone vibrated. Natalie glanced at the caller ID to find that it was a call from Lotus Villa’s landline.

She answered, “Hello.”

“Miss, Madam asks that you stay in Hillside Villa tonight and not come home to Lotus Villa.”

“What happened?” Natalie’s brow furrowed tightly at the news of not being allowed to return home.

After all, such a thing never happened in the Jarvis family. So, why were they telling her not to come home now?

The servant on the other end of the line sighed. “Mr. Johnson’s mother is here!”

Rebecca?

When Natalie heard that Rebecca had gone to Lotus Villa, her expression instantly turned cold.

A Divorce After My Rebirth Chapter 683- How long had it been since Natalie heard that name?

The name made her three years of marriage with Cedric agonizing! The name of the woman who constantly suppressed her!

Rebecca had always compared her to those other women and was never satisfied with anything Natalie did...!

How long had it been?

Ever since the fire at the detention center years ago, Natalie hadn't seen Rebecca. Natalie never bothered to inquire about where she had been or how she was doing all these years.

After all, Rebecca was an insignificant existence in Natalie's life now!

With the end of her relationship with Cedric, these people had become her past completely.

But she never expected them to come back.

Why was Rebecca here?

"What does she want?" Natalie took a deep breath, feeling a bit dizzy. Obviously, even now, Natalie wasn't too keen on facing the topic of Rebecca.

The servant replied, "It's because of Mr. Johnson's disappearance!"

With Cedric leaving Wexford and disappearing without a trace, such significant news was known everywhere. No matter where Rebecca was, she would also naturally know. She must have been frantic looking for Cedric these past few days.

That was why Rebecca was here!

Natalie never wanted to see Rebecca again, and Rebecca probably had the same idea, right?

If it weren't for Cedric going missing, Rebecca probably would never want to see Natalie, right?

"I got it," Natalie said before hanging up the phone.

Originally, she was going back to Lotus Villa, but now, she obviously wouldn't! Turning back, she glanced toward the stairs where Irwin had already gone upstairs.

Natalie stood alone and contemplated!

In the end, she returned to Hillside Villa.

Meanwhile, Rebecca was having a conversation with the Jarvis family.

Heather's expression was unpleasant as she coldly said, "You should leave. She won't see you...!"

"Mrs. Jarvis, you're also a mother! I think you should be able to understand my feelings!" Rebecca said with suppressed emotions.

Rebecca had known...!

She had known Natalie's identity for a long time, and she even made concessions regarding Cedric and Natalie's relationship. However, Rebecca never expected to receive such news when she finally settled down to enjoy her later years...

Her son had disappeared from Wexford!

What did that mean?

Back then, when Cedric went into prison for Natalie's sake, Rebecca felt as if her heart bled!

At that time, she had decided...

If Cedric came out of prison and pulled himself together, she wouldn't care about the reason.

Even if he did it for Natalie's sake...

She would forget about everything and no longer involve herself in their affairs.

Yes!

That was Rebecca's concession.

She would step back and give them their space. That was what she would have done!

But now...

What was going on?

Her heart ached terribly!

When Heather heard Rebecca's words about how she should understand as she was also a mother, her already uneasy heart grew even more tumultuous.

She picked up the teacup and splashed the liquid onto Rebecca's face!

“Understand? You want me to understand a woman who tortured my daughter and treated her as an outsider after marrying into your family?!”

How could Heather possibly understand such a person?

How dare Rebecca ask for Heather’s understanding? Did she have the right?!

Rebecca felt the cold sensation on her face. Suddenly, she looked even more disheveled than before.

However, even in such a state, she didn’t have the right to blame Heather.

Rebecca took several deep breaths and said, “Please... let me see Natalie.”

Rebecca had never imagined that she would one day have such difficulty meeting Natalie. But who could she blame for all of this? It was all her own doing that led to this point!

“She won’t see you. Leave!”

Heather was utterly blunt. She knew what Rebecca meant to Natalie. Now that all of this had become a thing of the past for her, Heather wouldn’t let Natalie see these people who haunted her like nightmares!

Indeed!

To Natalie, Rebecca and the others were like nightmares.

Heather truly cared for her daughter. So, no matter what happened, she wouldn’t let Rebecca see Natalie.

“Mrs. Jarvis!”

“You’ve been trying to climb the peak while pushing others down. What right do you have to see her?”

In the past, Rebecca had looked down on Natalie so much. Now, Heather wanted to make her feel completely outclassed.

Rebecca’s expression changed slightly.

Heather’s words were sharp, leaving her speechless.

After taking several deep breaths, Rebecca couldn’t suppress the anger in her heart any longer. That anger burst out like a broken dam.

“I just want to see her once!”

Just once is enough!

Rebecca’s restrained tone indicated that her emotions had reached their limit.

Without waiting for Heather to respond, Rebecca continued, “Right now, I have nothing. Do you understand?!”

Indeed!

Rebecca had nothing left.

Her son was missing, and Christina was still in prison. No matter what methods Rebecca used, she couldn’t get her out.

Heather responded without hesitation, “Your loss has nothing to do with me. There’s no reason for me to sympathize with you, right?”

“Why can’t you put yourself in my shoes and imagine if you had nothing?”

“I’m not like you! I don’t need to put myself in your shoes!”

Who did Rebecca think she was?

When Rebecca had everything, she was extremely arrogant.

Even if Heather hadn’t seen it with her own eyes, she could tell from Natalie’s demeanor what kind of suffering Natalie had endured in the Johnson family.

No mother could forgive someone who hurt their child. Heather already owed her children so much, so she wouldn’t compromise in this matter.

Rebecca looked at Heather in anguish.

“I just want to know...!”

“She doesn’t know where Cedric went! That’s the only answer you’ll get even if you meet her!”

“I...”

“You don’t need to hear it from her mouth!” Heather sharply interrupted Rebecca’s words.

Rebecca fell silent. At that moment, her already poor complexion turned even more lifeless.

Natalie didn't know?

Then... did no one know where Cedric was?!

Was this the result of Rebecca's neglect?

How could this happen?

"It was Natalie, wasn't it?"

Rebecca's tone was initially pleading, but now it turned sharp.

She looked at Heather with malice!

Rebecca had been aware of what happened in Wexford during this time, as well as the changes between Natalie and Cedric.

But what could she do?

Her son was so stubborn!

She had interfered too much in their lives in the past, so this time, she decided not to get involved. She also believed that her son could handle everything and would surely be able to bring Natalie back to his side.

A Divorce After My Rebirth Chapter 684- But Rebecca never expected this.

She never expected such news to be waiting for her at the end.

How could this have happened?

How did things escalate to this point?

Natalie had repeatedly pressured Cedric!

She... hated him!

Did she hate him for not protecting her all those years?

"If she wants revenge, why not take it out on me? It was me! I was the one who wanted to tear them apart! I was the one who looked down on her!"

Rebecca's emotions were completely out of control.

Yes, it was her!

It was Rebecca who brought them to this point of enmity. She never imagined that the moment two people in love turned against each other would be so hysterical.

It was... terrifying!

Heather listened indifferently to it all. "It's over. Everything has ended."

Yes!

It was over!

At least, that was how it was in Natalie's view. Natalie had accepted this ending calmly, right?

At that moment, Rebecca choked out, "No, it's not. She hasn't gotten her revenge on me yet."

Rebecca didn't need anything else. She didn't want anything else. As long as Cedric was safe, she could bear any consequences!

Heather's eyes dimmed.

Revenge? On Rebecca?

"It seems like you're really not on the same level as us!"

Revenge? Such a word was too harsh!

What Natalie did to Cedric was never revenge.

Those who didn't understand this didn't know anything at all!

"He didn't do anything wrong!" Rebecca continued as if she hadn't heard Heather's words.

Yes.

Regarding Natalie, Cedric didn't do anything wrong. The only mistake he made was insisting on being with Natalie back then. No matter how others tried to stop him or what happened between them, he insisted on being with Natalie.

That was what hurt Rebecca the most!

Back then, she looked down on Natalie. Rebecca couldn't bring herself to like Natalie at all. She thought Natalie was too delicate.

With how petite she was, it was clear she couldn't bear children. Rebecca couldn't allow her son to be with such a woman.

Her son was so outstanding. There were so many good women in the world. Why did he have to set his sights on Natalie?

"Hah!"

Heather snorted when she heard Rebecca say that Cedric hadn't done anything wrong.

"Then, in your view, what would you consider to be wrong?"

At that moment, Heather finally understood why Cedric was so indifferent to right from wrong!

With a mother like Rebecca, what kind of morals did he have? Rebecca had raised Cedric, and a mother's influence on her children was immense.

What was considered to be wrong?

When Heather asked Rebecca this question, the latter also silently asked herself...

What was wrong?!

"Me. I was the wrong one."

"Hah...!"

What a great mother Cedric had! At critical moments, she took all the blame upon herself.

Heather looked at Rebecca and mockingly said, "This is all really your fault."

Didn't Rebecca also have a hand in pushing Natalie and Cedric to this point?

Heather recalled that Rebecca had taken Isabella in as her goddaughter and even been very kind to her.

Rebecca knew full well what Isabella's existence meant in Cedric and Natalie's relationship, and she still insisted on bringing Isabella into her circle.

Although Rebecca had taken different measures later on, those were far from enough.

That was Heather's opinion.

It was wrong... Ultimately, it was still wrong, wasn't it?!

"Just leave!" novelbin Heather couldn't be bothered with someone like Rebecca, whose values were so skewed.

In fact, there were plenty of people like her in Simeria. It was why Heather rarely participated in the social circles of married women over the years.

They were filled with a bunch of boring women with questionable values and were truly unappealing in every aspect.

She wouldn't waste her time with them.

At that moment, Rebecca looked at Heather and pleaded, "Mrs. Jarvis, I'm begging you!"

"What good does it do for you to beg me?" Heather shot back.

"I just want to know what happened to him!"

Rebecca had never been in such a desperate state in her life.

However, she never imagined that Natalie's parents would be such high-ranking individuals in Simeria!

When she found out about Natalie's identity, why hadn't Rebecca met Heather?

It was because Rebecca couldn't face her.

The only thing Rebecca could do was to withdraw from Cedric and Natalie's lives, but this withdrawal was so bitter!

Rebecca never expected that the next news she received about their lives would be about her son in such a state.

How could she accept this?

"I just want to know if my son is okay!"

Where in the world was he?!

Heather was also a mother!

Once, Heather had also desperately pleaded with the heavens like Rebecca was pleading with her now.

When she saw Rebecca's desperation, Heather also felt like showing some mercy!

However, just thinking about how Rebecca had treated Natalie in the past made her emotions uncontrollable.

She said, "He took all his people and left Wexford without even thinking of taking you. It shows he's disappointed in you as a mother."

Rebecca's face was already ashen, and it turned even paler upon hearing Heather's words.

Disappointed?

Did disappointment mean Cedric could discard his own mother? Did he even understand what his departure in this manner meant to Rebecca?

Even though she hadn't been involved in this period, she had always kept an eye on him!

Despite feeling some disappointment in him regarding Natalie and Christina's matters, he was still her son.

It was different. No matter how disappointed he made her, Cedric was still her only son.

Now, Heather's words undoubtedly struck Rebecca hard.

The pain slowly but surely spread through her heart, and it was so suffocating...!

Rebecca left Lotus Villa in a daze.

At that moment, she felt as if she had lost everything. The Johnson Manor was once so magnificent.

But ever since Cedric left, the Johnson family had completely fallen.

Originally, she had been very devoted to the Johnson family. After learning about Cedric's background in Wexford, she also came to terms with it.

Actually, Rebecca was a woman with a tragic fate. From beginning to end, she never knew what kind of person her husband really was.

Even his life and death... had nothing to do with her!

Was it because she didn't want to be involved?

No. It was because that man never gave her a chance to be involved! Even her only son had done the same.

For some unknown reason, Cedric left Wexford and returned to the Johnson family. When he did so, Rebecca gave him everything the Johnson family had.

She thought that was the best for her son!

But now, looking back, what was the point?

Those... meant nothing to Cedric and that man!

"Why... Why?"

Why did it have to be like this?

Looking back now, Rebecca realized how unbearable her life had become, and she didn't even know how she had ended up where she was today.

A Divorce After My Rebirth Chapter 685-Cedric was fated to have a complicated destiny because of Wexford!

And his father... was the same. – Natalie returned to Hillside Villa for dinner. The lights in the villa had mostly been changed.

After their trip to Evergreen Peak, Lydia and Xyla returned to Hillside Villa to take care of things.

At this moment, Natalie said, "I still like bright lights!"

She spoke the truth!

Lydia and Xyla exchanged glances. "We like it too."

Natalie smiled.

So, that was how it truly felt to see the light. This was why a person needed always to take care of their eyes.

Losing one's sight would truly mean losing one's whole world!

Just then, the phone on the table vibrated. Natalie glanced at the number and saw that it was Irwin.

She answered, "Hello."

"Where are you?"

"Hillside Villa."

"Dylan will come to pick you up."

"Irwin, I told you..."

"Nat, I've said what I had to. I'll only be here for three days."

So, did they have to put on a show for these three days? To let everyone in the Entes family know that they were truly married? Natalie fell silent, and the suffocating feeling in her chest intensified at his words!

"I think you know what matters more."

Should she know?

Even if she didn't, his constant nagging made it crystal clear.

"Fine!"

Without waiting for the man on the other end of the phone to say anything else, Natalie hung up.

Undoubtedly, she was unwilling to interact with Irwin, let alone see him. However, it seemed that the man wouldn't let her off easily.

After hanging up the phone, it didn't take long for Dylan to arrive in his car.

Natalie couldn't bring herself to show a stern face to Dylan and eventually got into the car.

Natalie remained silent inside the car as she gazed out the window.

Halfway through the journey, Dylan, who was driving, suddenly said, "Don't hate him!"

Natalie was silent.

Upon hearing this, she looked at Dylan with a complicated glint in her eyes. Yet, beneath that complexity, there was an endless coldness.

Dylan could tell that Natalie had a strong reaction whenever these matters were brought up. In fact, he could only imagine what she felt when she discovered the truth behind everything that had happened!

Dylan kept his eyes on the road ahead and continued, "Actually, you're not a shadow to him. You're his solace!"

Solace?

When Dylan said these words, there was a hint of bitterness in his tone. He had personally witnessed how much pain and madness Irwin had experienced because of that person.

Irwin had gone through such madness, and he had also experienced so much pain after he discovered the truth...!

Over the years, Dylan had always wondered if Irwin could make it to the end if Natalie hadn't existed.

Or if Irwin met Natalie before Cedric did, then perhaps Cedric wouldn't have had any chance afterward.

When Irwin learned about Natalie's presence, Blair's shadow had always overlapped with her.

Irwin would watch Natalie from afar with a complicated glint in his eyes, but there was also a comforting solace.

At some point, Irwin began to look at her differently, unlike before.

Then, he... stopped!

The schemes, the hysteria, were meant to make Cedric taste the bitterness of losing his beloved...!

However, in the end, those schemes took on a different twist.

Irwin stood by Natalie's side.

While plotting against Cedric, he also protected Natalie time and time again. He wanted Cedric to taste what he deserved. Yet, he didn't want Natalie to get hurt.

He changed!

It was as if he had become a completely different person.

Irwin was no longer solely focused on scheming against Cedric. His heart... was thoroughly shaken.

Natalie had completely pried open the tightly sealed, icy heart of his.

“Hah!”

In response to Dylan’s words, Natalie just snorted coldly.

Solace?

Of course, it was solace!

After all, her face bore an eighty percent resemblance to Blair’s.

When Dylan heard Natalie’s response, he knew she hadn’t let it go, not even a bit!

There was too much.

In her world, too much had happened.

“Whether you believe it or not, he had feelings for you long ago and never intended to hurt you.”

If Irwin hadn’t harbored feelings, then despite her resemblance to Blair, he wouldn’t have repeatedly saved her from perilous situations.

His heart was cold and devoid of warmth!

It was difficult for anyone to enter Irwin’s heart after that incident, but Natalie was different!

When Dylan saw Irwin helping her, he knew... Irwin had indeed developed feelings for Natalie, and he...

couldn’t bear it!

However, at that time, it seemed everything with Cedric had already become irreversible, so Irwin kept intervening time and time again.

Natalie said she was just a substitute!

At first, that was true...!

However, she was no longer just that.

“Mr. Warren, please stop!” Natalie’s tone grew stern.

Clearly, she didn’t want to say too much on this matter. Some things didn’t need to be said much.

After all, things had already reached this point.

Dylan frowned as he looked at Natalie.

“Don’t be too cruel to him.”

Yes.

To Dylan, Natalie’s current attitude towards Irwin was cruel. Even to Cedric, it was cruel! They had both let her down and placed all the blame on her. And now, they were slowly returning everything to her.

They were trying their best to make it up to her!

Naturally, they didn’t want her to spend the rest of her life consumed by hatred. They hoped she could live a little more freely, even if it meant using the most extreme measures to ensure she wouldn’t suffer any harm in the latter part of her life.

“Cruel?” When she heard these words, Natalie laughed sarcastically.

She said, “Mr. Warren, don’t you think it’s cruel that a woman had to protect her child with her life after being hurt by her husband?”

“Or do you think I should endure all those cruelties on my own?”

It’s one thing for her to suffer alone, but to involve her child...!

Nobody knew how Natalie truly felt when she found out others orchestrated all the cruelty she had endured.

Now, Dylan was saying she was cruel!

Was she cruel to Irwin?

Or did Dylan not know what Irwin had done to her in the past?

Was that why he drew such a conclusion?

Dylan fell silent. From this brief conversation, he could sense that Natalie had deep-seated grievances, and making her let go of everything in her heart might not be so simple.

In the end, silence prevailed.

The rest of the journey was made in silence, and they arrived at Maple Peak without exchanging another word.

However, when they went in and saw who was inside, Natalie's already unpleasant expression sank even further.

The atmosphere instantly became chilly!

A Divorce After My Rebirth Chapter 686-Irwin had actually...!

Natalie turned abruptly and headed straight for the door, but suddenly...

Thud!

The sound of someone's knees hitting the marble floor heavily, accompanied by Irwin's somewhat stern voice, rang out.

"Nat!"

Natalie paused in her tracks.

Her whole body was trembling.

Her expression was stormy, and the veins on her hands were visible from how hard she clenched her fists.

It was clear how much she hated the person inside the room, or rather, this hatred arose because of Cedric and Irwin.

It was such an overwhelming hatred that it sank deep into her bones... and her very soul!

After a moment, Natalie finally managed to suppress the anger in her heart slightly. She glanced sideways, and her delicate profile looked so cold and dangerous.

Yes, dangerous!

Natalie said flatly, "You wanted me to meet her?"

Her... Rebecca!

Irwin fell silent.

At this moment, every word Natalie spoke seemed to radiate with danger.

Rebecca choked out, "It was me!"

Regardless of how Rebecca had left Lotus Villa or how angry she had been, she realized something when she finally saw Natalie in person.

Natalie had become such a proud woman!

Or rather, she was born proud.

That was why Natalie always seemed indifferent during the years with the Johnson family, no matter what Rebecca said to her.

At that time, everyone said that her daughter-in-law was very obedient. She would always do whatever Rebecca asked of her.

Even when there were banquets at the Johnson Manor, Natalie would come over to help. She wasn't as delicate as those other wealthy daughters-in-law.

She even went to the kitchen to help!

But Rebecca knew that Natalie didn't do all of those things because she respected her. Natalie only did it for Cedric's sake.

At first, she was still trying to please Cedric's family.

However, after a long time, she even couldn't be bothered to talk to Rebecca!

If Cedric wasn't there, Natalie wouldn't even bother going to the Johnson Manor.

She had always known...!

Natalie always seemed like she was being suppressed, but she was actually filled with pride and determination.

And now, Rebecca understood!

Natalie was born with pride and determination. She would have done anything for Cedric then.

She used to be such a compromising person. Now, she was equally decisive.

"I wanted to see you!" Rebecca said.

Yes, she was the one who insisted on seeing Natalie.

"You?"

“Yes. Don’t blame him for this!”

“Then, how did you get here?”

How did she get here?

Natalie turned around, looking at Rebecca sarcastically.

Just one glance made it hard for Rebecca to breathe!

How did she get here?

Rebecca looked at Irwin blankly. She was obviously not too clear about the relationship between Irwin and Cedric.

She didn’t know their relationship! When she came out of Lotus Villa in despair, Dylan had brought her here.

Back in Verde City, Irwin and Cedric had always been at odds.

However, Irwin treated her with courtesy when she arrived here and knew she wanted to see Natalie.

He even...

But why?

Natalie sneered. “Don’t kneel like this, I can’t afford it!”

With that, she turned around.

Back when Natalie was with the Johnson family, she never thought Rebecca would kneel to her, even if she hated her to the extreme!

Yes...!

Natalie hated her...!

Those venomous words Rebecca had uttered still echoed in her ears to this day. Rebecca had cruelly killed her child...!

Yet, Rebecca told others that Natalie and Cedric had been married for three years and hadn’t even had a child!

In fact, such venomous words were nothing.

But just the thought that Natalie had lost her child because Rebecca had tampered with her pregnancy medicine...

That was the most unbearable thing for Natalie.

How could she endure it?

No one knew...!

Natalie had been looking forward to having a child so much then!

When she found out that the child's own grandmother had gotten rid of them...

That was the first time Natalie had felt such hate!

From that moment on, she stopped trying to please Rebecca. All the compromises she made for Cedric before were also gone.

Every time she went to the Johnson Manor after that, it was only because of Cedric. Even if she went, she rarely paid attention to Rebecca.

Why was Rebecca kneeling before her now?

Was it because she was trying to atone for her sins of killing Natalie's child?

If so, Rebecca should kneel!

However, Natalie knew that wasn't the reason.

People like Rebecca would never know what remorse was.

Rebecca was practically crawling on the ground. "Natalie, do you know where he is!?"

"Tell me! I just need to know where he is!"

Rebecca's tone was somewhat hoarse.

She had exhausted all her options of finding Cedric. When her people couldn't find Cedric, the only person she thought of was Natalie.

After all...

After all, what?

They had been together for so many years?

But if Rebecca hadn't been involved, Cedric and Natalie would have been fine for the rest of their lives.

However, in the end...

"Given how things are between him and me, why would you think I'd know where he is?!" Natalie replied sarcastically.

Rebecca trembled violently after hearing Natalie's words.

Would Natalie really know Cedric's whereabouts?

If it was in the past when they still had feelings for each other, then Natalie might have known where Cedric had gone.

But things were different now, very different!

She might really not know where Cedric was now.

With this thought in mind, Rebecca's heart sank.

"No... You must know!" Rebecca trembled as she looked at Natalie.

She was afraid. At this moment, Rebecca was truly afraid. She was afraid that Natalie didn't know... afraid that Natalie knew nothing!

If even Natalie didn't know where Cedric had gone, then... who else in this world would know?

She was really going crazy!

Natalie fell silent.

As she listened to Rebecca's hysterical tone, her eyes were filled with a coldness. She was completely indifferent to Rebecca's desperation!

Natalie never expected that she would be this emotionless one day. However, she truly felt nothing.

"Natalie, I beg you, tell me where he is! I really have nothing left..." Rebecca pleaded.

Rebecca had finally managed to let go of everything and decided to live out her old age peacefully. She had decided to no longer meddle in Cedric's affairs but never expected to receive such news.

"I really have nothing left... nothing at all!" Rebecca said bitterly.

As long as she knew where her child was, it would be fine even if she grew old alone.

If this was truly a punishment from God, then... she would accept this punishment, but she had to know where he was.

What happened to him? Why did he give everything to Irwin? Why did he want nothing at all?!

What exactly happened in this period?!

A Divorce After My Rebirth Chapter 687-Rebecca never thought things would come to this point today, but now, she was truly scared.

She didn't know what happened to Cedric before he disappeared.

She didn't know what he had endured!

She had endured enough in her lifetime. She didn't want Cedric to also endure such things in life!

Rebecca was truly a pitiable person!

Her husband left her world by dying back then.

Now, her son left her world by disappearing.

Rebecca didn't know what happened in between, but she knew it wasn't simple.

But... was she even significant in their world?

Why didn't she know about such an important matter?

No one told her!

Or was it that she was nothing to them?

"Even if you have nothing, you deserve it!" Natalie said harshly and turned to leave.

As she reached the door, she added, "I don't know where he is!"

Rebecca fell silent. She instantly collapsed under Natalie's firm words, losing all her strength.

Her eyes were hollow.

She... deserved it...!

What terrible things had she done? She just wanted her children to be okay, so why did she deserve this?

And how could Natalie not know Cedric's whereabouts?

When Rebecca heard Natalie say that she didn't know where Cedric was, her world collapsed!

She trembled all over.

What should she do?

Countless despair swept over her like this.

Once... she had caused so much despair to Natalie. Now, it felt as if the despair had returned to envelope her.

Even when she lost her husband, she had never felt such pain. But now, after listening to Natalie's words...

The pain was excruciating!

"Why? Why...?" Rebecca muttered.

Her eyes were hollow, as if she had lost her soul. – Natalie exited the building and headed straight for the main gate. Her phone was in her hand, and she was calling a driver from the Jarvis family to pick her up.

However, before the person on the other end of the phone picked up, her hand was suddenly empty.

Irwin's chilling aura surrounded her, and Natalie turned around to see him hanging up the phone with a cold face.

Then, the man looked at her. He was suppressing some emotion in his eyes, but Natalie flatly met his eyes. She seemed not to care about his feelings at all.

Irwin took a deep breath and said, "You can't treat her like this!"

Was he referring to Rebecca?

Natalie was silent.

Then, she smiled coldly!

Irwin said she couldn't treat Rebecca like this?

Natalie raised her eyebrows. There was a question in her eyes, and she waited for Irwin to continue.

Was Irwin behaving this way because of his relationship with Cedric?

“From what I’ve seen, you and Cedric didn’t have a good relationship!”

At least, not since they started fighting.

But now, Irwin had even brought Rebecca over?

And he said she couldn’t treat Rebecca like this?!

“I never thought I’d ever hear such words from your mouth!”

Natalie’s tone was cold. Irwin stood frozen in place. At that moment, he came to an abrupt realization.

Yes!

In her mind, he and Cedric had always been arch-rivals. She didn’t even know the methods he had used to stay by her side this time.

So, Natalie concluded that it was Irwin... who had driven Cedric out of Wexford.

In their struggle, Irwin ultimately won!

And that was how Irwin managed to remain by her side. But did Natalie have to accept it just because he wanted to stay?

What does it mean to win?

In matters of the heart, there was never a winner or loser!

“Am I just a ruthless person in your eyes?”

“Yes.”

Irwin fell silent.

Natalie looked at him and added, “I just don’t understand what you’re doing now.”

She especially didn’t understand why he was treating Rebecca this way.

She was thoroughly confused.

Irwin remained silent.

Her words suffocated him!

As Natalie turned to leave, Irwin said, “Nat, I know you’ve been holding a grudge for a long time, but you really can’t treat her like that.”

She was Cedric’s mother, and Cedric was...!

What Rebecca said was true. She had nothing left.

“Hah...!”

Though Natalie really couldn’t understand, every word Irwin said now was quite funny to her.

What does he mean she couldn’t treat Rebecca like that?

“So you’re saying that she can treat me the way she did?”

“She has lost everything!”

“That’s her own fault!”

“You can’t say such things!” Irwin said, his tone turning stern.

Natalie fell silent.

She couldn’t say such things?

How many times has it been today? How many times has Irwin emphasized this?

But no matter why he emphasized it like this, none of this had anything to do with her.

What caused Natalie to hold such a grudge?

During the three years of her marriage to Cedric, her resentment slowly accumulated. She had endured so many grievances from Rebecca, but she could set aside most of them.

But among those grievances, there were absolutely things Natalie couldn’t forgive.

And now, she finally reached this point.

After Natalie had expressed all her feelings, it was hard to suppress them all!

Once, Natalie was so restrained. But now, she was so indifferent and cold!

Seeing their painful expressions, Natalie didn't even have a hint of sympathy in her heart. – Natalie left, and Irwin was helpless.

Rebecca murmured in agony, "She doesn't know? Even she doesn't know?"

At this moment, Rebecca seemed to have lost all rationality! Her mind was only filled with Cedric, as if that name was all she had left in the world!

Before coming here, Natalie seemed to be the only lifeline Rebecca had. But after Natalie also said she didn't know, Rebecca really didn't know what to do.

Truly... she didn't know what to do!

"Aunt." Irwin pulled Rebecca up.

Rebecca looked at Irwin blankly.

Irwin said, "I'll help you find him!"

Irwin would help her?

Would he... really?

How long had it been since anyone said they were willing to help her?

It had been a long time!

Since that person left, she had changed beyond recognition. Many people in the Verde City social circle said she was a woman who was hard to understand! And even if they interacted, those people were not sincere!

Many gatherings were just about showing off.

When she had lost everything and was helpless, those who used to flatter her stayed far away. No one was willing to help her.

This was the first time...!

Since the Johnson family fell into ruin, this was the first time someone had offered to help her.

A Divorce After My Rebirth Chapter 688- Rebecca choked up as she looked at Irwin, Cedric's sworn enemy.

Or at least... that was what she thought!

“Will you really help me?”

Would he really? None of those who seemed to have a good relationship before ever helped her once, so would Irwin... really lend her a hand?

Irwin nodded. “Of course!”

“Why?”

Although Rebecca’s mind was in chaos now, she wasn’t foolish!

Everything that Cedric had in Wexford had been handed over to Irwin. Why would Cedric do that!?

Everyone who knew about it was confused. They also wanted to know the reason.

Rebecca didn’t know what happened in Wexford. She only knew that before Cedric disappeared, things were chaotic. All the major families were involved, making it impossible to see the situation clearly.

But she never anticipated the Cedric would suddenly disappear. He should have completely controlled Wexford, so why did he suddenly throw everything away?

Why did he give it all to Irwin and disappear?

“You just have to wait for news about him,” Irwin said when Rebecca asked why.

He didn’t answer. He couldn’t disclose anything and simply just told Rebecca to wait for news.

Rebecca fell silent.

He told her to just wait...!

Only those who have waited would know how cruel and desperate waiting could be.

Rebecca couldn’t remember how much of her life she had spent waiting. If she could choose, waiting would be the last thing she would want to do.

Waiting was truly terrifying and cruel to her.

But now, what other options did she have besides waiting?!

In recent days, she had been as frantic as a lunatic as she tried to find Cedric, but each effort ended in failure.

But could she really trust Irwin?

When Irwin was in Verde City, he had turned everything upside down to get in between Cedric and Natalie.

Could she really trust such an adversary? – Natalie called for a driver to pick her up, then went straight back to Lotus Villa.

When Heather saw Natalie return, she breathed a sigh of relief.

“Weren’t you supposed to be at Hillside Villa?”

Rebecca knew about Lotus Villa, and Heather was worried that she might return anytime.

“Rebecca went to Maple Peak!”

“Maple Peak?” Heather repeated. Was it Irwin?

“I’ve already seen her,” Natalie replied.

Heather’s expression turned worried upon hearing that Rebecca was at Maple Peak.

“Did she do anything to you?” She scrutinized Natalie carefully, but couldn’t see any signs of distress.

However, considering Rebecca’s madness, Heather remained concerned. Especially now, with Cedric missing, Rebecca was capable of anything.

Seeing the concern in Heather’s eyes, Natalie felt a twinge of guilt.

“Don’t worry, Mom. She didn’t do anything to me.”

“That’s good.”

A mother who had lost her child could go mad and lose her senses! Although Cedric volunteered for this, Rebecca might wish to gouge out Natalie’s eyes if she found out!

And Cedric was seriously...!

Perhaps he had given up all hope with Rebecca, or his accumulated resentment against her had reached its peak. So, he only took Kayla when he left and didn’t bother about Rebecca.

Did he intend on living out the rest of his life without seeing Rebecca again?

For a mother to have left such an impression on her child showed that it hadn't happened over a short period of time, and it definitely wasn't due to only one or two incidents.

"Be careful during your time in Simeria. Have Lawrence accompany you, okay?"

Lawrence Yarrow was one of the elite security guards of the Jarvis family. He was skilled, and Heather knew Natalie would be safer with him by her side.

"Don't worry so much about it," Natalie said.

"Be cautious when necessary; Rebecca isn't a good person. I've seen that."

"Okay."

If this could reassure her family, Natalie was okay with whatever they did.

Seeing her nod, Heather felt somewhat relieved.

Natalie thought for a moment and asked Heather, "What about Leon?"

Previously, Leon had gone to Wexford. But now that things in Wexford have escalated, what was he still doing there? Since Stephen didn't want to be involved there, Natalie didn't see why Leon needed to remain in Wexford.

"He's still in Wexford," Heather replied.

"Oh, okay."

He was still in Wexford!

Natalie didn't inquire further about what he was doing there, as it was not important to her.

It was good to have men at home. That way, women didn't need to worry too much.

Since Clyde returned, Natalie felt much lighter. When all the responsibilities were pressing down on her before, it felt like she couldn't breathe.

- Luna was always happy when she was with Natalie, and Natalie felt that Luna's smile was a healing balm on her soul. "Sweetie, do you want to attend early education classes with Mommy?" Natalie asked. In fact, Lunad used to attend early education classes. But because of Cedric's actions, the entire Jarvis family had become vigilant. After Cedric had taken Natalie away to Yuloria,

Heather had worried about any mishaps with Luna, so she kept her indoors all the time. But it wasn't good to keep a child indoors all the time. Just because there was danger outside didn't mean a child shouldn't go out at all. There was still so much for Luna to learn! "Okay." Luna nodded eagerly, and Natalie smiled. Having Luna attend early education classes was so she could attend a good kindergarten in the future. It was also so Luna could participate in activities and socialize with other children early on. Although Natalie currently worked for a design studio under Regal Horizons International and provided various design plans for the company, she had more time to spend with her child, thanks to Clyde. Previously, when Natalie attended early education classes with Luna, her eyesight wasn't very good. Because of that, she couldn't see the other parents around her clearly and didn't chat much with them. But now she could see clearly. Confidence filled her face, and she slowly mingled with the other parents this time. As she conversed with them, she learned that many of the parents were already raising a second child in their families. As the women started to get comfortable with each other, the subject of their conversations also became more casual. "Have you thought about also having a second child, Natalie?" Natalie was initially stunned at the question. The woman who had asked the question seemed to sense Natalie's awkwardness and kindly changed the subject, "Don't even think about a second child. It's too painful!" "Once the child comes into the world, there's no room for regret! A child is not something you can return." "Is that so?" "Of course, even though there may be help at home, the child is yours, and you have to do many things yourself. People say that love makes women lose themselves, but I think it's having children that really makes women lose themselves!"

A Divorce After My Rebirth Chapter 689-Natalie smiled.

In such a relaxed atmosphere, it was easy for people to unwind. She felt like attending early education classes wasn't just for the children's sake! More than that, it was about easing the postpartum mood for moms.

"Is it really like that?"

"Yes! When you have one child, it feels so easy. Then you have another one, thinking it'll be fun, but it turns out the child ends up playing you."

"Hahaha! Exactly! Don't underestimate babies! They'll really make you understand what it means to voluntarily give up yourself!"

Voluntarily give up oneself?

Was having a second child really that bad?

At this moment, Natalie also noticed that many second-time mothers weren't wearing makeup.

Having one child was already enough to keep one busy. After having a second child, it got even busier, and going out became a hurried and chaotic affair.

"After listening to you all, I'm definitely not having a second child," Natalie said with a laugh.

The group of people continued chatting comfortably.

On the surface, they were all laughing and joking, but no one knew what they were really going through in their hearts.

It was the same for Natalie. She... was unwilling to have a second child, but it wasn't like she would get a chance anyway, right?

Natalie had to admit that she never thought about this issue before. Now that she thought about it, she couldn't help but feel a bit...!

Luna really liked her classes. On their way home, Luna said softly, "Mommy, remember to bring me early tomorrow. We were ten minutes late today."

Natalie was silent.

Were children nowadays so conscious of time?

She looked at Luna and said, "Alright!"

In her tone, there was nothing but relief and indulgence.

In the beginning, Natalie was worried that Luna wouldn't adapt, but now it seemed she could completely relax.

Children would only actively participate in something when they really liked it. They would refuse to go if they disliked it!

So, it seemed that Natalie didn't need to worry about that.

At least for now, it seemed there wouldn't be any problems when Luna started kindergarten in the future. – Back at Lotus Villa, Heather had already prepared lunch. Although they had some snacks at the education center in the morning, they were still hungry. "How was it?" Heather asked Natalie.

Natalie felt it had gone pretty well.

“I have to go to the studio in the afternoon, so you can play with her then.”

“Okay.”

Heather looked at Natalie, who now seemed completely back to normal, and felt very relieved.

Being able to let go of the past was Natalie’s greatest redemption and forgiveness to herself. So, seeing her in better shape now was quite reassuring.

“Nat.”

“Yeah?”

“Do you like that person?”

“Who?”

After Natalie had asked that, she realized who Heather was referring to. The only person Heather could be talking about was Irwin.

And when Irwin was mentioned, Natalie’s expression couldn’t help but darken.

Natalie took a deep breath and said, “It doesn’t matter if I like him or not. Everything between us is over!”

Natalie’s words were firm.

Heather fell silent. When she heard Natalie’s answer, she was stunned!

Ultimately, she guessed right. In Natalie’s mind, she didn’t want to be too involved with either Irwin or Cedric.

This was the best evidence of that now.

Natalie looked at Heather. “What’s wrong?”

“It’s good to be clear about these things!”

Although Cedric made such a big sacrifice for Natalie this time, they both knew that Natalie couldn’t find out about it.

Once Natalie knew, who knows what would happen!

They had gone through too much and understood what they had to endure for it.

Heather really didn't want Natalie to get involved in such things anymore.

It wasn't because Heather was ungrateful that she thought this way.

But having witnessed a person who had truly experienced such things, Heather understood that forgiveness shouldn't be spoken so lightly, especially by those who hadn't encountered such pain and despair.

Right now, Heather knew that if Natalie discovered the truth about what Cedric had done, it would only cause her more pain!

There wouldn't even be a question of forgiveness or not.

And Natalie wasn't a fool. She seemed to sense something, especially given the magnitude of the situation in Wexford.

There was no way she wouldn't have any doubts!

But no matter how she doubted or suspected, she never thought in that direction.

After lunch, Natalie was truly busy in the studio. It was likely because of her personality. Even though the studio was under Regal Horizons International, which belonged to her father and brother, she treated her work very seriously and diligently.

The studio already had several people working in it. Clyde had recruited them all, and they were all very reliable.

And her work officially began. With new people and a new work environment, she bid farewell to the past completely!

Just then, her phone vibrated. It was a message notification. Natalie picked up her phone and checked.

It wasn't a message. Someone had requested to send her a message, and she had to approve it.

Natalie frowned. She wasn't too used to unknown people sending her messages, but she accepted it nonetheless. And when she confirmed it, the person sent her a few invoices.

When she saw the invoices, Natalie instantly remembered who it was. It was the person she had collided with before, the one whose car she had damaged.

[Please send me your account number.] Natalie typed rapidly and sent it to the person.

The other side replied directly, [Deliver it to Orchid Bay.] Natalie frowned!

The person was asking her to deliver the money to Orchid Bay?

In this day and age, wasn't a bank transfer more convenient? Obviously, Natalie couldn't understand the other party's request.

She replied, [Let's stick with bank transfer.] However, after sending the message, there was no response whatsoever. No matter how many messages Natalie sent afterward, the other party didn't give her a single reply.

"This person is so...! Ugh!" Natalie muttered as she slammed her phone heavily on the table.

She couldn't help but wonder if people nowadays were all so strange. Especially the ones she encountered now, at least in her opinion, were absolutely eccentric!

Send money over in person? Who had the time for that?

Or was this person still using cash in this day and age? Did this person completely refuse to accept new payment methods?

It was possible, she supposed. Otherwise, why wouldn't they even give her an account number?

She didn't bother anymore.

Throughout the afternoon, Natalie was busy designing blueprints. Recently, Regal Horizons International picked up a project in Simeria. Because of that, she naturally needed to devote more time and energy to it.

After all, Regal Horizons International had an international reputation, so they were more cautious.

As she was about to finish work, her phone vibrated. Natalie picked it up and saw that it was a call from Caleb.

Caleb?

She answered, "Hello, Caleb."

Her tone softened involuntarily. Obviously, it was because of the trouble she caused him during the previous mishap!

Natalie hadn't expected Caleb to call her after returning to Verde City.

"I'm in Simeria, but I can't reach the person who was supposed to pick me up. Can you come and get me?"

Natalie fell silent.

Caleb couldn't reach the person who was supposed to pick him up?

A Divorce After My Rebirth Chapter 690-With how serious Caleb sounded, Natalie didn't doubt him and replied without hesitation, "Wait for me."

Caleb replied gently, "Okay."

After hanging up, Natalie neatly packed away the blueprints on her desk and placed them in a drawer.

Then she grabbed her car keys and headed out. Glancing at her watch, she realized it was almost time to finish work. If she went to pick up Caleb now, she definitely wouldn't make it home in time for dinner.

After all, it took forty minutes to drive to the airport.

She called Heather. "You don't have to wait for me for dinner tonight."

"Is work too busy? You haven't fully recovered yet, so don't strain your eyes too much," Heather said concernedly.

Upon hearing that Natalie wouldn't be coming home for dinner, Heather naturally assumed Natalie was working overtime.

"It's not overtime. A friend has arrived in Verde City, and we're planning to have dinner together,"

Natalie explained.

"Alright, come back early, and don't drink," Heather instructed from the other end of the line.

Heather was now worried about Natalie every single time she was away from home. It was probably because of everything that had happened before, and Heather was now traumatized.

"I got it," Natalie replied before hanging up and focusing on driving.

The drive was smooth, and forty minutes later, Natalie arrived at the airport to pick up Caleb. He was wearing a gray coat with a navy blue scarf, looking exceptionally gentle.

As soon as Caleb spotted Natalie, he began walking toward her with his luggage in tow. Natalie moved to take his suitcase, but Caleb skillfully evaded her and said, "How can I let a lady do the heavy lifting?"

He believed in treating women with kindness and respect, so how could he allow Natalie to do such a thing?

Natalie chuckled. "I didn't expect you to be quite the gentleman."

"Shall we?" Caleb prompted.

"Didn't Yvonne come with you?" Natalie asked. She wondered why Yvonne, who usually accompanied Caleb everywhere, was absent this time.

At the mention of Yvonne, Caleb stiffened, and he replied, "She resigned."

"Resigned?"

Natalie was taken aback. People like them typically signed long-term contracts for positions like personal assistants.

"She resigned after the last time I saw you," Caleb explained.

Last time?

Was it after the incident where they claimed the child was Caleb's to make Cedric back off?

Natalie didn't dwell on that particular matter too much. She was shocked by the news that Yvonne had resigned.

"You let her go?"

They talked as they made their way towards her car. Natalie sensed a hint of resignation in Caleb's demeanor when this topic came up.

This person really shouldn't spend too much time on the darker side of the world. Natalie had unconsciously always thought this way about Caleb.

Caleb glanced at her and said, "When a person's heart is no longer there, keeping a shell is extremely dangerous."

His words carried weight, and Natalie wholeheartedly agreed with Caleb's perspective. It was indeed risky to cling to something that no longer held true.

"You're right. Keeping a shell can be dangerous."

This was especially true for someone like Caleb, who was involved in various matters. If things turned sour with Yvonne, it could cause trouble for him. Parting amicably was beneficial for both parties.

Caleb noticed Natalie heading for the driver's seat as they got into the car.

"Let me drive," he insisted, clearly concerned about her eyes.

After their phone call at the airport, Caleb regretted it. Natalie had recently undergone eye surgery, and her eyes might still be recovering.

Sensing Caleb's concern, Natalie reassured him with a smile, "Don't worry. My vision is perfectly normal now."

As they settled into the car, Caleb observed Natalie closely. "Can you really see everything now?"

"Of course," Natalie replied confidently.

Caleb felt reassured by her response. Natalie glanced at Caleb and asked, "What do you feel like eating tonight?"

"Are you inviting me to dinner?" Caleb teased.

"It's already this late, so of course, we'll eat together," Natalie replied.

Caleb chuckled. "The food at the revolving restaurant in the Simeria Tower is good. Let's go there."

"Alright."

Natalie was familiar with the revolving restaurant atop the tower, which offered a panoramic view of Simeria. It was a romantic spot popular among couples and even frequented by social media influencers.

On the other hand, Irwin had been repeatedly trying to call Natalie.

Rebecca had been emotionally unstable and desperate to see Natalie since yesterday. It was evident that she believed Natalie was the only one who knew Cedric's whereabouts.

Despite Irwin's attempts to reach Natalie via phone, she never answered.

"Dylan."

"Yes, sir."

"Find out where she is." Irwin's tone was tense and cold.

He was leaving Simeria tomorrow. It was just for a day, and she couldn't endure even that?!

His mind felt extremely chaotic!

The saying that the ones left behind were the most tormented... felt really true.

Dylan nodded. "Alright."

Dylan went downstairs immediately to find out where Natalie had gone.

Meanwhile, Natalie took Caleb to the revolving restaurant atop the tower. They sat by the window.

Roses adorned the table, and the warm light added a touch of romance to the ambiance.

Caleb ordered the dishes, indicating his familiarity with the place. Natalie focused on eating. She rarely dined out, especially after returning to Simeria, where Heather maintained strict control over her lifestyle and health.

"How does it taste?"

"It's delicious," Natalie enjoyed the flavors.

A hint of amusement flickered in Caleb's eyes at her answer.

"Shall I leave the car for you to use after this?" Natalie asked.

The two seemed like familiar friends.

Natalie looked at Caleb while cutting her steak. As Caleb ate, he replied, "Sure, if you don't mind. I won't be staying here long."

"Alright." Natalie nodded.

But the next moment, Caleb suddenly looked at her and said, "Yvonne is pregnant!"

A Divorce After My Rebirth Chapter 691

A Divorce After My Rebirth Chapter 691-Creak!

The piercing sound resonated in the restaurant as Natalie accidentally ground her fork and knife onto her plate.

She looked at Caleb in bewilderment and said, "What did you say? I didn't catch that!"

Actually, she had heard clearly.

But it was shocking.

Undoubtedly, when Caleb mentioned Yvonne's resignation at the airport, Natalie hadn't even considered it from that angle.

So, Caleb's words came as a bit of a shock.

Caleb took a sip of his red wine and said, "It should have been before that."

"Before what?"

The more he spoke, the more confused Natalie became!

Wait, did he mean...

Could it be that Yvonne knew she was pregnant before they revealed that Luna was Caleb's child?!

Oh no!

That was really bad...!

If that was the case, then Yvonne's resignation had an entirely different significance.

"I'll go talk to her and explain!" Natalie exclaimed immediately.

A clear explanation was needed for this matter!

Natalie hadn't known that there was something between Caleb and Yvonne, let alone the pregnancy!

Now, Natalie really wanted to smack herself.

"You can't explain anything," Caleb replied.

"Why not?"

"After resigning, she disappeared."

D-disappeared? Yvonne was missing?!

That made it hard for Natalie to explain things!

Natalie's throat was dry. She took several sips of water, but it did little to calm the shock in her heart.

What on earth was going on?

"So, you didn't know she was pregnant when she resigned?"

"I only found out a week after she resigned. By then, she already disappeared."

Natalie finally understood.

When Yvonne was pregnant, news that Luna was Caleb's daughter came out.

And then things escalated.

After returning from Simeria, she simply quit her job, and Natalie had no idea what happened in between, but Yvonne ultimately left Caleb.

Then what?

A week after her departure, Caleb found out Yvonne was pregnant!

But when he regretted it and wanted to explain things to Yvonne, she... just couldn't be found?!

This was quite a predicament!

After such a major event happened, Yvonne must have been displeased with Verde City in various ways.

After resigning, her first thought must have been to leave the city.

"Didn't you explain everything to her back then? About how Luna isn't really yours?"

"There wasn't a need for one. There was nothing between us."

"You have a child together, and you think there was nothing between you two?"

"I said I wanted to marry her, but she didn't agree!"

It happened one night because he had gotten drunk, and he said he would take responsibility.

But Yvonne didn't agree.

So, was it because she refused that Caleb thought there was no need for an explanation between them?

Natalie had thought Caleb was a good man...!

What on earth was going on now!?

Natalie was completely bewildered.

Or was it that men were always so self-assured when it came to matters of the heart? Did they believe that the people around them would always trust them?

Once, Cedric was also...!

Actually, now that things had come to this point, Natalie also knew that whatever rumors circulated between Cedric and Isabella during that six months... were just rumors.

Yes!

They were just rumors.

But Cedric never explained a word. How desperate was Natalie at that time? She couldn't even remember now.

Back then, she was truly devastated.

At first, he never explained anything!

Then, when the situation escalated, there was no need for explanations between them, nor was there a chance for it.

"So why are you coming to me now...?" Natalie looked at Caleb with a complicated glint in her eyes.

After cooperating with Caleb for so long, she hoped that some suffering could be avoided.

Things between her and Cedric were already so unfortunate!

It was to the point that there wasn't even a way out!

So, if she could help someone avoid experiencing this pain, she naturally would.

Caleb looked at Natalie. "Force her to come out!"

"What?"

Natalie was confused.

Force Yvonne to come out?

What kind of logic was that?!

Natalie clearly didn't understand what Caleb meant by that!

"She's been gone too long. I'm sure her belly has grown bigger now, but I still can't find any news about her."

"According to the timeline, she's got two months left to give birth. In these two months, she must come back to me."

What was it like for a woman when she was giving birth?

It was a dangerous and intense experience.

"So, what are we going to do?"

Could they really force Yvonne to appear at this point? Was he sure?!

A woman's emotions were the most unstable when she was pregnant. According to Caleb, Yvonne was seven months pregnant.

Natalie was truly afraid. This man's methods were extreme. They couldn't push Yvonne too far!

Caleb looked at her and said, "For now, wherever you go in Simeria, you'll be with me. I'll take care of everything else."

"Huh?"

That was his plan?! novelbin "No! What if she can't take it?"

Natalie spoke the truth.

As a mother herself, she naturally knew how fragile a woman's emotions could be during pregnancy.

However, Caleb said, "A mother's strength knows no bounds!"

These words struck Natalie's heart fiercely.

Yes, a mother's strength knew no bounds!

A pregnant woman's emotions were indeed very fragile. But no matter how fragile, when she felt the child's movements in her belly, she would endure it all.

Just like Natalie did back then!

No matter what kind of pain she was going through... she endured it and resisted the pain for the sake of her child.

During their time in Yuloria, Lydia and Xyla said they couldn't handle such bitter medicine, but Natalie persisted for three months.

Why?

Because she had already endured so much suffering!

Although that suffering still made her tremble all over, it was much easier to bear compared to the suffering she endured before.

Natalie sighed. At that moment, she didn't know what to say.

"I'll hint to the public that I accept the child you have with Cedric."

"So you're using this method to tell Yvonne that the child isn't yours?"

"Yeah."

There was no other way!

"But there's no need to involve me, is there?"

Natalie didn't want to incur hatred.

When a woman harbored resentment towards someone, it was quite terrifying.

Natalie had suffered a lot in this regard.

So when Caleb wanted to involve her in this matter, she felt a bit uneasy.

But thinking that Yvonne left because of her in the first place, well... fine!

A Divorce After My Rebirth Chapter 692-Natalie knew very well that since Caleb had come looking for her at such a critical juncture, she simply had no right to refuse.

She had to agree whether she wanted to or not!

Caleb glanced at her and said, "She'll only come out when she's angry!"

Yvonne would only come out when she was angry?

So before this, how cruel had he been to make someone angry enough to come out? For doing things in such a way, Natalie truly didn't know what to say.

Once, she thought her relationship with Cedric was complicated enough, but she didn't know that such complexity was everywhere.

And so, Natalie accepted Caleb's proposal!

But thinking about the scenes to come, she...!

- In Maple Peak, Irwin called Natalie multiple times, but there was no response! Finally, Dylan tracked down Natalie's whereabouts. When he reported it, Irwin's already stormy expression turned darker. There was a dangerous glint in his eyes as he stared at Dylan. "So, are they in the tower now?" "Yes, they've entered the room!" As soon as Dylan finished speaking, Irwin clenched his fists instantly. When they got the marriage certificate, Natalie seemed like she wouldn't let him off, but he never expected that she would resort to this kind of method. But of all people... why did it have to be Caleb? Didn't she know Irwin's relationship with Caleb? How could she do something like this?! "They had dinner at the tower, and then they went straight to a room." Dylan's tone was also very serious. Clearly, he never expected Natalie to do something like this with Caleb. What was she thinking? Revenge on Irwin! Irwin abruptly got up, and the chair behind him crashed to the ground under the force of his momentum. Without waiting for Dylan's reaction, he swiftly moved and headed straight for the door. There was a cold and gloomy air around him, and it was obvious what Irwin intended to do. Dylan turned around and hurried after him. The car sped through the night like an arrow, heading straight for the tower. Even someone like Dylan, who was used to driving, couldn't handle the speed and ended up vomiting as soon as he got out of the car! After finally straightening himself up, he saw that Irwin had already gone through the revolving door with a dangerous look on his face. – In the room, Caleb opened a bottle of red wine and sat opposite Natalie. "I can't drink." "Coffee?" "I need to sleep well at night." After the surgery, Natalie had given up many of her bad habits. She ate well, slept well, and avoided alcohol and coffee! She always behaved obediently. Caleb chuckled. "Is it really over between you and him?" He was referring to Cedric! Caleb knew about what happened in Wexford. He didn't know the details, but he knew that by Cedric's actions, he had truly let go of Natalie. When a man loved deeply, why would he let go? It was because he couldn't see a way out, and he could feel clearly that the other person was suffering for him. Letting go was a form of self-redemption! It was also a way to indicate that a person had let go of the other party. Natalie wouldn't forgive him and didn't give him any hope. It was because of this indifferent attitude that Cedric let go. Instead of directly answering Caleb's question, she sharply retorted, "Do you think there was a way out for us?" A way out? Obviously, there wasn't one! In Verde City, Caleb saw with his own eyes how things between Natalie Cedric went. He also witnessed Cedric's cruelty towards Natalie! At that time, Caleb had seen the frenzy in Cedric's eyes. He had hoped that Cedric wouldn't regret doing any of those things to Natalie in this life... Because even if Cedric did regret it, it would be too late for him. And now, it had happened! Cedric regretted it, and Natalie made it clear that everything was irreversible. "What about you and Irwin?" Caleb had been preoccupied with Yvonne during this period. So, he didn't pay too much attention. It was precisely because of this that he was shocked to discover that Irwin and Natalie had married! When it came to Irwin, Natalie fell silent. The atmosphere between the two became heavy. Just then, the doorbell rang urgently, Natalie and Caleb exchanged glances. "Were you expecting someone?" "No!" Caleb replied. He came to Simeria to see Natalie, and he hadn't contacted anyone else! So, who could it be at this time? Natalie frowned and looked at Caleb. "Let's check it out," Caleb suggested. "Okay." Caleb had taken a shower and was wearing a nightgown. He stood and walked to the door but didn't open it immediately. Instead, he looked through the peephole to see who was outside. When he saw who it was, he turned to look at Natalie. "What's wrong?" Natalie asked. Why wasn't he opening the door? Caleb said, "It's Irwin!" Irwin? Why was he here? Was he here to see Caleb? Regardless of the type of information, Irwin was usually very well-informed. It wasn't impossible for him to get the news that Caleb was here. When Caleb opened the door, Irwin's fist flew through the air. If Caleb hadn't dodged quickly, he would have taken that solid punch right in his face. Natalie clearly heard the commotion at the door. When she saw Irwin's eyes were filled with hostility, her mind was shaken! The moment their eyes met, the crimson eyes of the man made Natalie's heart leap into her throat. Irwin had always been a man who kept his emotions in check. But what he had done just now... Had he been about to hit Caleb? Irwin strode to Natalie's side and reached out to her. At that moment, Natalie's eyes couldn't help but flicker with uncertainty. "Why are you here?" The next moment, she felt a sharp pain in her wrist. "Ugh!" Natalie was startled by Irwin's sudden, forceful actions. Her heart raced for a moment, then quickly returned to normal. She shook off the man's hand. "Let go of me!" He didn't let go. Instead, the man's grip tightened. Natalie winced, and a cold sweat broke out on her forehead from the pain. "Irwin, let her go!" Caleb had realized the situation and understood why Irwin had appeared here at this moment. Irwin had misunderstood! Regardless of the circumstances, Irwin was Natalie's husband in name. Tonight, Caleb and Natalie had dinner together, and then they entered a hotel room. It was something no man could endure. Irwin had never lost control like this before, except back then. And now, he was losing control over Natalie once again!

A Divorce After My Rebirth Chapter 693-Natalie was led out of the tower in a daze by Irwin!

In the car, she keenly felt the coldness and danger emanating from the man.

Dylan was driving. At this moment, if Irwin had been driving, they would probably be speeding past the other cars like the wind!

Dylan could also sense the ominous atmosphere surrounding Irwin.

After a long silence, Irwin finally spoke, "Why him?"

Natalie raised an eyebrow.

In a cold voice, she replied, "Why not?"

"Natalie!" The man's tone grew sterner.

Such a gloomy atmosphere caused even Dylan, who was driving ahead, to flinch. Everyone could feel the car slightly veering off course.

Natalie looked at Irwin. "Did you really take our marriage seriously?"

Her words held a hint of sarcasm.

Irwin fell silent. Upon hearing Natalie's words, his already somber expression darkened even more.

Natalie continued, "You really took it seriously, huh?"

Her tone was even more mocking.

Her words implied that she had never taken their marriage seriously from the beginning.

In the cramped space, the already icy atmosphere became even colder due to Natalie's response.

The sound of a match being struck, followed by the flames igniting, filled the air.

The man lit a cigarette and took several deep drags, filling the previously clear air with thick smoke.

With the window partially down, cold air rushed in, momentarily diluting the smell.

Neither of them spoke.

Undoubtedly, the topic at hand was heavy for them. Whenever this topic arose, Irwin was always enraged.

When Caleb opened the door in his robe, no one knew what kind of impact the scene had on Irwin's heart.

All rational thought escaped his mind at that time.

As they neared Maple Peak, Irwin finally spoke in a restrained tone, "Natalie, how much longer?"

He had enough of this...!

Natalie retorted, "What? It's just the beginning, and you can't handle it already?"

What were their feelings when they imposed all that on her back then?

Irwin thought he was retaliating against Cedric, and that it was a way to scheme against him. Yet, Natalie was the one who endured all the pain.

Did he ever consider letting her off?

No!

Obviously not. No matter what pain Natalie was enduring then, Irwin never stopped.

"When Cedric personally sent me to prison, didn't you think that was enough?"

Irwin fell silent.

Too much... it was all too much!

The grievances piled onto Natalie were too numerous.

What was accumulated resentment? It was those countless injuries that piled up. It wasn't just one or two matters that happened in just a few days. It was countless things that exceeded human endurance, stacking up one by one.

"So, will you keep doing this?" The man looked at Natalie with an imposing and dangerous gaze.

Natalie raised her eyebrows as she looked at Irwin, noticing the hidden resentment in his eyes.

She smirked and said, "What? Is this all it takes for you to want to kill me?"

Indeed, Irwin now truly seemed to want to harm Natalie. In fact, when she had given him that eerie smile earlier, he knew that things wouldn't be simple upon returning to Simeria.

He had no idea what awaited him.

Back then, Irwin probably never imagined facing such a situation.

“Why does it have to be Caleb out of so many people?” Irwin roared with restrained anger.

“Because I like him? Caleb is a good man,” Natalie replied.

It was obvious how Natalie felt about Caleb.

Irwin fell silent.

A good person?

Caleb?!

Was she really that certain?

“Do you trust him that much?” Irwin practically hissed every word through clenched teeth as he stared intently at Natalie.

“He’s more reliable than you guys,” Natalie asserted.

Indeed. In Natalie’s mind, Caleb was far more reliable than Irwin and Cedric. At least he wouldn’t spend a decade plotting against someone. At least he wouldn’t treat others like mere shadows.

But when Natalie confidently uttered those words, it struck Irwin’s heart painfully. Perhaps this was what Cedric meant when he said they had no way out between them.

But did Irwin have a way out now?

This woman seemed heartless.

“Do you know his assistant is pregnant? She’s pregnant with his child! Do you really think such a scumbag is reliable?”

Irwin’s words hit Natalie like a brick.

Natalie fell silent, meeting Irwin’s gaze. After all, such words would never have come out of Irwin’s mouth before.

But now... what was this?

Did he really just say that?

A scumbag?!

He was really saying anything to keep Natalie away from Caleb now.

“I know.”

“You know?”

“He said he didn’t want that child. He said he’ll give me a good future. Isn’t that good?”

Was he angry? Hah!

Irwin wanted to strike her with this?

Ridiculous!

Undoubtedly, Natalie won this round.

Seeing Irwin’s visibly darkening face and how he trembled with anger, she felt a rare sense of satisfaction.

People said that in matters of the heart, whoever cared more was the loser. She had lost completely in front of Cedric once.

And now, how could Natalie possibly be sincere about these matters? novelbin “So you insist on being with him?” Irwin trembled with anger.

He had always been good at controlling his emotions, but now, his emotions were like a wild beast unleashed.

Dylan felt the uncontrollable rage emanating from Irwin and was shocked!

Natalie... When did she become so important to Irwin that he had difficulty controlling his emotions?

“Natalie!” Irwin almost spat the words out.

“I think I still have that right to choose, don’t I?”

The right to choose?!

It was almost laughable. For a long time, Natalie had never truly had the right to choose anything about herself.

Now, it was a rare occurrence.

Irwin’s eyes were burning with anger. “Do you know that you’re becoming like Isabella?”

Isabella?

Back then, Isabella was the most painful presence in her and Cedric's world. Now, Irwin was saying she was becoming like Isabella?

Natalie's already somber expression darkened even further.

"No, it's not the same!"

"You're destroying the relationship between Caleb and Yvonne, do you know that?"

Wasn't she just like Isabella now?

A Divorce After My Rebirth Chapter 694-Such words were not supposed to come out of Irwin's mouth, so why could he say such things now?

Natalie laughed!

She laughed because Irwin was shaking in anger.

She was laughing...!

Irwin was also furious. After all, men couldn't tolerate having what was theirs violated by anyone or anything, could they?

"There was a ghost between Cedric and Isabella! Caleb will make things clear with Yvonne. How can you compare our situations?"

It wasn't the same!

Back then, Cedric was constantly entangled with Isabella while still holding onto Natalie...!

That was the most distressing part.

The key point was that there were no such feelings between Natalie and Caleb. So, Natalie spoke in a justified manner.

It was a reckless and irresponsible story that Natalie had made up.

Irwin was really having trouble breathing from anger! He had never experienced anything like this in his novelbin life...!

These moments were usually reserved for Cedric, where Irwin would helplessly watch him endure blow after blow.

Cedric was usually the one in this state, but now...!

Natalie was throwing all these retaliations back at him!

“You...” At this moment, Irwin looked at Natalie’s indifferent demeanor and really didn’t know what to say to her.

After a long while, Irwin finally said, “Leave him, Nat. Don’t force my hand!”

His statement was heavy and dangerous.

Natalie sensed the threat in the man’s words. She looked at Irwin and said teasingly, “What if I don’t?”

Nobody had spoken to Irwin like this, so Natalie was undoubtedly challenging Irwin’s extremes and bottom line. When the man looked at her again, there was endless danger in his eyes.

Irwin asked, “What do you think I would do?”

What would he do? A man who could scheme against someone for ten years showed just how extreme his character could be.

“Are you threatening me?” Natalie asked.

“I don’t want...”

No, he didn’t want this.

He hadn’t expected this situation before, nor had he anticipated that Natalie would prepare such a major “gift” for him upon her return to Simeria.

So, what was this now?

“You better stop thinking about it.”

Natalie’s tone was dark, and the danger within it became more evident. After a moment, she added, “If anything happens to him, I won’t let you off the hook!”

“So, you’re threatening me for Caleb’s sake?” Irwin asked.

When he spoke, his tone was calm. However, anyone could tell what lied beneath those words.

“Yes,” Natalie affirmed.

This feeling... was hurt, right?

Irwin was feeling hurt right now because of Natalie's words.

Yes! He clearly felt the pain of being torn apart inside. It was a pain he had never expected to experience.

However, Natalie was completely indifferent to him. There was no warmth or concern in her gaze for him.

There was only endless coldness.

- Somehow, they managed to make it to Maple Peak without further incident. "I don't live here!" Natalie stated. "It's late, don't go back," Irwin said. "Do I need to remind you why we're married, Irwin?" Natalie's tone was icy. "I don't need reminding. I'm well aware," Irwin replied. There was more than restraint in his tone. Dylan got out of the car and stood a short distance away, watching the two. If it weren't for Irwin's deep affection and persistence, could he endure this emotion? Perhaps, even with Blair, Irwin never showed such patience! It was no wonder Cedric stopped interfering with Irwin and Natalie when he decided to let go of her in the end! Wasn't Irwin treating Natalie sincerely now? It was because he was sincere that everything that happened tonight was so hard to bear. Irwin turned around and gave Natalie a meaningful look. "I'll be leaving tomorrow." Irwin had completely suppressed his emotions throughout the journey, leaving only his endless helplessness towards Natalie. "Is she here?" Natalie asked, referring to Rebecca. Irwin hesitated. Seeing Irwin's reaction, Natalie smiled. "Hah...!" Irwin knew what Rebecca had done to her previously, and he knew what Natalie thought of the older woman. So, what was he doing? "I really don't know what kind of deal you've made with him!" Natalie said. Was it part of his plans? That even Cedric's mother was involved now? And it seemed like he got along well with Rebecca. Natalie really had no words for this situation. Irwin took a deep breath and said, "Just for one night!" "Do you think I can coexist in the same space as her?" Natalie asked sharply. Even when she was married to Cedric and had endured so much for him, she never stayed overnight at the Johnson Manor. Not once. In Natalie's world, regardless of the disparity in status or how much she tried to please others... Natalie had her limits. She had her own uncompromising standards. "You can't treat her like this!" Irwin said firmly. "What are you saying?" Was he serious? He had been saying the same thing countless times since last night. Why couldn't she? She didn't understand why Irwin was saying such things. Irwin's gaze intensified as he continued staring at Natalie. At this point, whenever the topic of Rebecca arose, there was no way they could agree on anything. Natalie turned around. "Mr. Warren, please take me back." With that, Natalie headed straight to the car. When Dylan saw this, he looked at Irwin uneasily, especially when Natalie had already gotten into the car. It was obvious he was stuck between a rock and a hard place. When Dylan didn't follow her into the car, Natalie opened the door and got out. "It's okay, I can walk back. I wouldn't want to inconvenience you, Mr. Warren." With that, she started walking out of the area. As she walked, she remarked, "When I couldn't see, nobody gave me trouble. Now that I can see, I can't even ask for help?" Irwin's chest felt even tighter upon hearing Natalie's words. He couldn't help but stiffen. "Dylan," Irwin called. "Yes, sir?" "Take her back," Irwin instructed. He realized that regardless of what happened, Natalie would leave tonight... Because Rebecca was here.

A Divorce After My Rebirth Chapter 695-Inside the car, Dylan looked at Natalie with concern. He had heard every word of their conversation earlier in the car, and he knew it was Natalie's retaliation against Irwin.

Previously, waves had been stirred up in Wexford. Now, it was Irwin's turn to deal with the aftermath.

Natalie didn't intend to let anything slide.

Dylan cautiously said, "The relationship between Mr. Frazier and Mr. Spencer is quite special. I hope you can consider this matter carefully before making a decision."

Clearly, it was a reminder to Natalie that some things shouldn't be taken too far.

After all, Irwin and Caleb have been friends for so many years. What did she intend to do if something were to happen on Natalie's end?

"Mr. Warren, you don't need to worry about these matters."

Caleb knew the current relationship between her and Irwin. If he could directly approach her despite that, there was nothing Natalie needed to be concerned about.

Dylan furrowed his brows at Natalie's words. "Mr. Frazier is actually a pitiful man in this situation. Do you have to go this far?"

In terms of emotions, at least from Dylan's perspective, Irwin was the one who had been hurt.

"He's pitiful? Mr. Warren, are you joking?"

Irwin was pitiful?

If he was pitiful after all he had done, then no one else in this world could be described as pitiful!

"In fact, Ms. Russell isn't as important as you think," Dylan added.

“Mr. Warren!” Natalie’s tone grew stern, indicating she didn’t want to continue discussing this topic.

Blair wasn’t as important as she thought?

If Blair wasn’t important, why did Irwin scheme for ten years?

If Blair wasn’t important, why did Cedric use Natalie as a substitute for her?

It all boiled down to Natalie’s lack of importance, while Blair was significant, at least in Irwin and Cedric’s minds.

When he heard the change in Natalie’s tone, Dylan understood that there was no point in saying anything further. For Natalie, those memories weighed too heavily. The issues that stemmed from them were far too tangled up, and it was impossible to resolve them.

Dylan dropped Natalie off at Lotus Villa.

When Heather saw Natalie return, she approached her with concern. “What’s going on between you and Mr. Spencer?”

It was obvious that Caleb had moved quickly.

Now, the whole of Simeria was whispering that Natalie and Irwin’s marriage had come about undoubtedly because of Blair.

Every woman had a bottom line, and they wouldn’t allow anyone to trample over it.

Rumors were rampant that Irwin and Natalie would surely divorce. After all, such a reason for marriage wouldn’t hold firmly. The more intense part of the rumors was that Caleb was already waiting. He was even willing to accept Natalie and her ex-husband’s daughter!

“Oh, Mom.”

“Nat, this...”

Heather’s head was pounding now. She was completely unable to understand what was going on.

This was truly...!

Natalie cut off Heather’s chaotic thoughts. “It’s not what you think it is. I’m exhausted. I’m going to bed.”

“N-not what I think? Then what is it?”

Heather was completely confused.

What was happening here?

There better not be another terrible situation awaiting them!

Her mind was about to explode. She couldn't believe that things had come to this.

The rumors now...

It was easy to imagine how intense the scene would be when it unfolded...! –
Meanwhile, Irwin had clearly seen the gossip circulating on the internet. With a sharp thud, he slammed his phone on the desk, his eyes flashing with a dark glint!

When Dylan brought Natalie back, he felt the anger in Irwin's actions.

He approached Irwin. "Sir."

"Did you drop her off?"

"Yes, sir."

"Is Caleb still staying there?"

"Yes, sir."

As soon as Dylan finished speaking, Irwin rose from his seat. There was an intense air of danger so palpable that Dylan's heart clenched in response.

Just as Irwin was about to step forward, Dylan interjected, "Perhaps there's a misunderstanding in this matter. After all, the reports circulating are from gossip sites."

What was a gossip site?

It was a place where unconfirmed news circulated, and nobody knew if it was true or false.

Irwin clenched his fists. At that moment, he could only hope for what Dylan said to be true. Yet, his mind was flooded with images of Caleb answering the door in his robe.

"It's late now. Let's discuss this tomorrow," Dylan suggested.

Natalie had only just met with Caleb today, yet the gossip sites had already exploded with news.

Clearly, there was someone behind the scenes orchestrating this. But who? And what was their motive? Could it be related to the Entes family? And why involve Caleb?

With so many questions, they couldn't afford to act rashly.

"You're dismissed for now," Irwin said, his voice heavy with suppressed emotions.

Dylan nodded and left. After spending so much time with Irwin, he knew that if Irwin could contain his emotions like this, there would be no immediate action tonight. – That night, Natalie peacefully slept as if nothing had happened. However, Irwin lay awake and was unable to sleep.

His plans to return to Wexford tomorrow were now postponed.

At breakfast, Natalie glanced at the time and reminded Luna, "Luna, hurry and finish your breakfast.

Once you're done, we're leaving. You told Mommy you didn't want to be late yesterday, remember?"

Stephen and Clyde were both not around. Natalie accompanied Luna to the early education class in the morning as usual. In the afternoon, she went to the studio. However, just as she started work, she received a message on her phone.

[Orchid Bay, 3 o'clock!] Natalie remembered the message about delivering the money yesterday.

She replied, [Account details!] However, after waiting for a full ten minutes, she received no reply again.

"This person...!"

Why were they so stubborn? Did it mean they only accepted cash and absolutely refused transfers?

What kind of eccentric person was this?

Natalie picked up the landline and dialed an extension.

The call was answered promptly, "Yes, Ms. Walker?"

"Come in," she instructed her assistant.

After hanging up, her assistant, Emily, quickly entered the room. "Ms. Walker, you wanted to see me?"

Natalie handed over a card and the invoice to her assistant. "Go with Lawrence and deliver this to Orchid Bay according to the address on the invoice."

There was only one household in Orchid Bay. Natalie didn't know who it was, but whoever she could meet at Orchid Bay was definitely affluent.

Emily glanced at the amount on the invoice, and her eyes widened.

"T-that much?"

"Is there a problem?" Natalie raised an eyebrow.

Emily looked at Natalie, her eyes instantly filled with emotion. "Do you... really trust me?"

Natalie fell silent.

What kind of question was that?

In Emily's view, the studio had only been open for a short time, and they hadn't worked together for long.

Yet, the CEO trusted her with that much money...!

Instantly, she was moved!

A Divorce After My Rebirth Chapter 696-Natalie didn't think too much about it. She smiled, and a hint of chill flashed in her eyes instantly.

"Would you dare run off with it?"

Emily was instantly frightened by Natalie's gaze!

Of course not!

After all, all of Natalie's assistants had heard about Natalie's background. They were now taking orders from Regal Horizons International, and Natalie was the former CEO.

If anyone wanted to survive in Simeria, who would dare to easily deceive her?! – Two hours later, Emily and Lawrence returned, carrying a pile of money with them.

Natalie frowned. "What's this?!"

"Their security kicked us out when they saw us!"

Natalie's eyes twitched when she heard Emily's words.

What was going on? What kind of person was the other party?

Undoubtedly, this had left Natalie somewhat confused.

Just then, her phone vibrated.

Natalie picked up her phone and glanced at it. When she saw the message on it, she almost fainted.

[If you don't come tomorrow, the lawyer will come to see you!] Was this a threat?

No... what exactly did he want?!

Was he implying that she had to cover his car repair expenses and apologize to him in person?

Natalie found it hard to breathe because she had never encountered such a person before.

And the more she encountered such people, the more Natalie wanted to end things quickly. She quickly replied to the message.

[Are you still in Orchid Bay? I'll come right away!] She was probably scared that the person would pester her more, so she wanted to resolve this quickly.

Even if it meant apologizing, she would do it!

After all, she had crashed into him while making a phone call, and it was all caught on camera.

There was no escaping from that, right?

Soon, there was a reply.

It was just one word, [Yes!] Good, he was there.

Natalie stood up. "Lawrence."

"Yes, Miss."

The sturdy man stepped forward.

Natalie said, "Come with me."

The other party didn't seem like a good person, so it was better to bring Lawrence along.

Lawrence nodded. "Understood."

Natalie put on her coat and picked up the money. She threw it to Lawrence, who accurately caught it.

Then, the two of them left together.

Originally, Natalie was quite busy today. But with the current situation, she couldn't afford to let her guard down.

When encountering such a person, it was better to handle things quickly to avoid more troubles. – Half an hour later, Natalie and Lawrence arrived at Orchid Bay. This time, the security didn't stop them, and the two of them smoothly entered.

There was even an amiable butler respectfully waiting for her at the door. He was dressed in a standard uniform that indicated he was working for the Entes family.

So, Natalie hadn't been mistaken that day...?

Was it really the Entes family's third son, Austin Entes?!

No, this couldn't be!

The butler led Natalie and Lawrence through a series of twists and turns, finally stopping in front of a mansion. Then, the butler turned to Natalie and said, "Do you really want this gentleman to come in with you?"

"What do you mean?" Natalie's heart instantly jumped to her throat.

The butler smiled kindly. However, there was clearly an underlying coldness and danger in that smile.

The butler said, "There are things inside that he shouldn't see. If he really goes in, he may not leave here alive!"

Natalie and Lawrence silently exchange a glance. At that moment, Natalie clearly caught the coldness and danger in Lawrence's eyes.

He grabbed Natalie's wrist. "In that case, let's go back."

"Ms. Jarvis." The butler suddenly straightened up, and all the amiability on his face disappeared in that instant. It was replaced entirely by seriousness!

Although Natalie had changed her surname in the Jarvis family records, those who knew her still called her Ms. Walker.

The butler had addressed her in such a serious manner. Natalie knew that with such a powerful family behind her, she naturally had obligations that came with her identity.

Her expression turned more serious. "Then you should let me know who exactly is waiting for me inside!"

"Don't worry, since you're here, you will naturally leave unharmed. Our master just has some matters to discuss with you, Ms. Jarvis."

The butler still didn't say who it was!

However, the answer was becoming more apparent to Natalie.

That day, she hadn't been mistaken! It really was... the rumored third lord of the Entes family, Austin!

He was rumored to be a fool, but judging by her current situation, it seemed that the rumor wasn't true!

Natalie looked at Lawrence. "Wait for me here."

"Miss...!"

"Don't worry, they wouldn't dare!" Natalie said confidently.

Perhaps the entire Entes family didn't have the courage to act against her at this moment, right? After all, there were some prices they couldn't afford to pay.

Lawrence's eyes shimmered with deep concern, but he still nodded slightly. Natalie followed the butler inside.

The building felt special on the outside, and the interior decoration showcased the owner's discerning taste in every detail.

The butler led Natalie straight through the lobby to the dining room.

At this moment, Natalie realized it was already dinner time after all the twists and turns she had gone through. In the dining room, a man sat at the head of the long table. He exuded an unmistakable air of elegance and nobility.

Such an aura definitely didn't belong to a fool.

The butler stepped forward, "Lord Austin, Ms. Jarvis is here!"

Natalie was silent. When the butler addressed the man, her heart had leaped to her throat.

It really was the Lord Austin!

He... He deceived everyone.

What kind of life had he lived these years?

Natalie had heard of the hardships he had gone through!

But now?

The man before her seemed to be a completely different person from the one rumored. His refined features and distinctly artistic contours revealed a man of noble bearing. It was as if his sophistication extended even to the texture of his skin!

"Ms. Jarvis, please," the butler gestured respectfully.

Natalie approached. The butler pulled out the chair to the right of Austin, and Natalie stood nervously in place!

She took a deep breath and said, "I'm here to pass you the money. I've prepared the amount according to the invoices. Would you like to check?"

Her words implied she wouldn't be joining him for dinner!

Only a few would dare to eat this dinner casually with him, right?

The butler hesitated.

As soon as she finished speaking, the man at the table looked at Natalie with deep, profound eyes.

Natalie had to admit that the Entes family's genes were truly powerful.

Though Malcolm was known to be a ruthless man, he was so handsome!

And now, there was Austin...

Natalie felt he was even more handsome than Malcolm.

The man's long eyelashes were the envy of many women. They were visible even from afar, indicating their thickness.

"Do you think that I care about that small sum of money, Ms. Jarvis?"

Austin's gaze was profound, and there was a hint of teasing in his tone, as if he were joking about how naive Natalie was.

Natalie fell silent, and her face darkened instantly.

A Divorce After My Rebirth Chapter 697- In the end, Natalie sat opposite Austin, and the atmosphere... was quiet!

Yet, it exuded an intangible sense of oppression.

Looking at Austin's cold and piercing gaze, Natalie asked, "Lord Austin, what do you want?"

Previously, when he persistently demanded cash, she already sensed that something was amiss...!

Before she returned to Simeria, everyone who conveyed information to her hinted that Simeria was not a simple place. Even her marriage to Irwin happened because of the things happening in Simeria.

But she never expected this confrontation to come so quickly!

"Ms. Jarvis, you're a smart person. What do you think I want?"

"At this moment, I can't provide whatever you want, Lord Austin!"

Like all members of the Jarvis family, Natalie was straightforward in her refusal when facing such a situation.

As she finished speaking, the man across from her looked at her, and his lips curled into a smile.

That smile... was cold and dangerous.

Natalie's heart was already in her throat, but her face remained calm!

"I know what your marriage with Mr. Frazier is all about!"

He knew?

Even if he did, so what?

"Regardless of what it's about, I am currently married to him." Natalie's tone tightened.

There was a stern glint in her eyes, as if reminding Austin of the situation.

"Pfft...!" The man laughed sarcastically!

Natalie's already troubled expression grew colder at Austin's mockery.

“Do you know why the Jarvis family has never had any cooperation or contact with the Entes family all these years in Simeria?”

Did she know?

No, she didn't!

She only knew that regardless of what had happened in Simeria over the years, Stephen had always avoided the Entes family.

To put it bluntly, no matter what happened, Stephen's first move was always to avoid everything.

And no matter what happened over the years in Simeria, the Entes family always kept themselves out of it!

Austin's gaze grew even deeper, and at this moment, that depth exerted pressure on Natalie.

Natalie took several deep breaths but couldn't suppress the heaviness in her chest.

The two locked eyes and neither said anything more. Just as Natalie thought Austin would tell her the reason, the man changed the topic.

He said, “Divorce Irwin.”

Natalie fell silent. At his words, her mind went blank! Natalie's hands clenched into fists at the man's commanding tone, and she felt a bit anxious.

At this moment, even looking at Austin was somewhat dangerous.

From this exchange, Natalie could see what the situation was like for the Entes family now.

She thought she was utterly uninvolved with them, but she was wrong!

While the Jarvis family appeared to be detached from the situation at the moment, it wasn't as simple as it seemed.

“Lord Austin, you shouldn't go too far!” Natalie said tersely.

Austin's gaze became sharper after she finished speaking, as if it could pierce through one's heart!

Natalie had never seen such a gaze before. She had never seen someone at such a young age possess such depth and sharpness. It showed how formidable the Entes family truly was.

And he...!

It wasn't just his eyes. His whole demeanor was profound. Otherwise, how could he have been perceived as a fool by everyone for these years?

The ups and downs of the Entes family over the years were not just limited to a few individuals. Those who remained standing now were extraordinarily capable!

Now, Natalie realized that pretending to be foolish might also be a skill.

Suddenly, he handed her a file.

"You..."

"Take this and give it to your father!"

"What is this?" Natalie asked.

"After your father reads it, he'll know whether you should divorce Irwin or not!"

Natalie fell silent, and she felt suffocated! It didn't matter how her marriage with Irwin came about. At this moment, she felt this man was terrifying.

How could he...?

At this moment, Natalie's gaze towards Austin was sharp. "Do they all know?"

Yes! After all these years of being perceived as a fool, did the remaining members of the Entes family know?

"I advise you to see what your father has to say first, hmm?" The man's tone was calm, yet it exuded endless danger.

In the end, Natalie somehow made her way out of Orchid Bay. On the way back, Natalie's chest tightened even more as she watched the scenery outside rapidly grow further from them.

It was chaos!

Simeria already gave off a sense of chaos, especially after Robert had passed away. Everything seemed on the brink of eruption.

At such a critical moment, Stephen still firmly remained independent and didn't have the intention to get involved. But after meeting Austin today, Natalie had a strong feeling that things weren't as straightforward as they seemed!

In any environment, it's not just about what one wanted, but what one could actually achieve!

Watching Lawrence about to drive the car towards the studio, Natalie thought for a moment and said, "Let's head straight home."

Undoubtedly, after the encounter with Austin, Natalie had no intention of going to work anymore. It was clear she wanted to see Stephen as soon as possible.

Anyway, Clyde was at the company. So, that meant Stephen was often at home.

Lawrence glanced at her with concern and handed her a bottle of water.

"Thanks," Natalie said. She took the water and drank half the bottle, feeling slightly relieved.

Back at Lotus Villa, Natalie saw Heather with Luna. Luna had grown a lot, especially under Heather's careful attention.

Luna looked healthier than ever these days.

When Luna saw Natalie, she ran towards her with her short legs. "Mommy!"

Natalie lifted Luna and held her in her arms. At that moment, the soft body easily calmed her restless heart.

Heather approached Natalie and said, "You don't look too good. Is something wrong?"

Natalie shook her head. "It's nothing!"

The family had long been accustomed to not letting Heather know about anything that happened outside, regardless of what it was.

It wasn't just Stephen. Even Natalie and Clyde were like this towards her. Subconsciously, they were extremely protective towards Heather.

"Where's Dad?"

"He's in the study. He took a call earlier. He didn't look too happy when he went in. He hasn't come out since."

"Okay, I'll go see him."

Knowing that Stephen took a call and went in looking unhappy made Natalie's heart tighten even more.

A Divorce After My Rebirth Chapter 698-Since Robert's death, who in Simeria could truly stay out of its affairs?

Although the Jarvis family had been relatively quiet lately, Natalie realized how terrifying the lurking dangers truly were after encountering Austin.

When Natalie entered the study, Stephen looked visibly relieved at her return.

"You should stay quiet at home for the next few days and avoid going to the studio," he said.

"Okay." Natalie obediently nodded.

Clearly, Stephen had the final say in everything right now.

She handed the file to Stephen.

Stephen frowned. "Is this from Lord Austin?"

Natalie fell silent.

It looked like Stephen was already aware of this!

Natalie recalled Heather mentioned that Stephen had taken a call before this. It must have been Austin, right?

Natalie nodded in response to Stephen's question.

Stephen's eyes flashed with silent sharpness as he opened the file and skimmed through its contents.

Though the file wasn't thick, Stephen's face darkened as he went through the pages.

When he reached the final page...

Slam!

Stephen slammed the file onto the desk, and the air around him was so intense that Natalie could clearly feel it. Regardless of what had happened before, Stephen had always suppressed his emotions around Heather and Natalie.

But now...!

On her way home, Natalie hadn't opened the file to see its contents because she still recalled how terrifying Austin had been. Now, witnessing Stephen's reaction, she knew it couldn't be anything good.

She moved to pick up the file to see for herself, but the next moment, Stephen's hand landed on it.

"Don't read it," he said.

Dad." Natalie's tone was tight.

She regretted not reading it on the way back. Now, more than ever, she wanted to know what was inside.

Austin had made everyone perceive him as a fool for years. This showed that he shouldn't be underestimated. Each member of the Entes family was formidable.

"You should leave for now," Stephen said, his eyes filled with worry.

Natalie glanced at Stephen, her eyes filled with concern. But ultimately, she nodded. "Okay."

However, as she turned to leave, Stephen stopped her. "What did he say to you?"

He was referring to Austin!

When she heard that question, Natalie couldn't help but feel that Austin was incredibly rude. She had never encountered a person like him before.

Natalie turned back, her brow furrowing slightly as she said to Stephen, "He asked me to divorce Irwin..."

Before she could finish, Stephen's already grim expression grew even darker. His eyes shimmered with an endless chill.

"Dad!" Natalie exclaimed.

"You should leave," Stephen said.

Natalie wanted to say more, but seeing the oppressive aura emanating from Stephen, she nodded.

What was happening now?

Previously, even if the Entes family wanted to form an alliance with the Jarvis family, they would have taken a softer approach! Even Malcolm, under similar circumstances, didn't act like this.

And now Austin, the rumored fool, had...!

What had he done?

Had he openly coerced the Jarvis family?

Thinking of that man's sinister gaze, Natalie's heart tightened.

Things had changed!

Simeria was truly undergoing a transformation. Could the Jarvis family really stay out of it this time?

Clearly, no matter what had happened before, it seemed unlikely now.

As she exited the study, she saw Clyde coming up the stairs. He exuded a cold aura, indicating that something had happened outside.

When Clyde noticed Natalie, his demeanor softened. However, she could still sense something was off.

Clyde checked the time and asked, "When did you come back?"

"Not too long ago," Natalie replied.

"Did you see that person?"

"Who?" After asking this, Natalie realized who Clyde was referring to, especially seeing his somber expression.

She knew he was talking about Austin.

Having seen Austin in Orchid Bay, she knew he wasn't the fool he had pretended to be all these years.

Natalie realized that the situation in Simeria was changing. Seeing Clyde return now, she guessed he had received a call from Stephen.

Natalie nodded. "Yes."

"It wasn't like I wanted to go..."

And before going, she had already realized that there was a possibility it might be Austin who was waiting for her. But given his cunning, the fact that he had chosen to meet her today in such a forceful manner was a sign of impending changes in Simeria's dynamics.

So whether she went or not, the current situation wouldn't change.

"You should accompany Luna," Clyde said as he walked past her. But just as they passed each other, Natalie grabbed Clyde's wrist.

He stopped and glanced sideways. "What is it?"

"Do you think we... can withdraw from Simeria?"

She was talking about the Jarvis family and the entire Regal Horizons International. As she spoke, the atmosphere in the corridor became tense.

Undoubtedly, after meeting Austin today and sensing some necessary connections between the Entes family and the Jarvis family, Natalie knew that until the Entes family's situation settled completely, the Jarvis family probably couldn't stay out of it completely.

So, she thought of... leaving!

Simeria was too chaotic!

No one knew what would happen next, and she wanted to ensure the safety of everyone in the Jarvis family. She wanted to keep them out of this chaotic situation.

Clyde frowned. "Do you think it's possible?"

Possible? What kind of entity was Regal Horizons International? And what kind of existence was the Jarvis family in Simeria?

She thought she could run away when things went wrong?!

How naive!

"I..." Natalie began.

"Enough, this isn't something you should worry about," Clyde reassured her, gently patting her head.

That warm palm and comforting touch warmed Natalie's heart.

At this moment, Natalie's restless heart seemed to find solace.

Perhaps because she had experienced too many things in her life, her first thought now was absolute withdrawal when such things happened.

Clyde's answer made her understand that the Jarvis family... was different from her as an individual.

As she looked back and saw Clyde's chilling figure, bitterness spread in Natalie's heart

A Divorce After My Rebirth Chapter 699-Since coming over from Yonwood City, Isaac was often by Natalie's side. Once, Isaac had been at odds with her because of his fiancée.

But now...

After a thorough examination, he said, "You've recovered well, but since it was a major surgery, you still need to take good care of yourself."

After all, recovering one's sight through eye surgery was not an easy feat!

There was profound meaning in Isaac's words.

However, Natalie looked at Isaac with confusion. Clearly, she detected the deliberate bitterness suppressed in his tone.

"Of course," Natalie replied.

After all, she had experienced what it felt like to be in complete darkness in both lifetimes. She fully understood the despair, especially in this lifetime!

The despair she felt was a thousand times worse than in her previous life.

It turns out that a woman experienced life completely differently before and after she became a mother!

In this life, just the thought of not being able to watch her child grow up suffocated her! So, now that she had regained her sight, she naturally needed to take good care of herself.

"Natalie."

"Hmm?"

Suddenly, Isaac looked at Natalie with a deep gaze and asked, "Do you really not care about him at all?"

Natalie glanced sideways. She naturally knew who Isaac was referring to at this moment.

His tone was tense!

Natalie took a deep breath. "Do you think I should care about him?"

At this moment, Natalie's tone was unpleasant. Like every other time when Cedric's name came up, she was always icy! It made one truly understand what the meaning of cold was.

Isaac never knew that a woman could be so devoid of warmth when she became cold and uncaring, and he was experiencing it now!

"Such a major event happened in Wexford! Do you really...?"

"I'm not even curious about it. Why should I care?" Natalie coldly interrupted Isaac before he could finish his sentence.

Isaac fell silent. He was clearly stunned by Natalie's words.

What happened in Wexford was a significant matter. Yet, she wasn't curious at all?

It made sense! So far, regardless of what happened in Wexford, someone always told her about it.

But as far as Natalie was concerned, she never bothered asking about it first. She didn't even ask anyone from her family about what was going on in Wexford.

It was as if it didn't matter to her at all.

Isaac looked at Natalie in disbelief.

He couldn't believe it...!

Cedric and Natalie used to have such a great relationship, and now, they were silent about each other to this extent.

Natalie looked at Isaac and smiled. "Didn't you see with your own eyes how we ended up like this?"

Why would you still ask such questions?"

Her smile, at this moment, was so glaring!

How did they end up like this?

When Isaac had returned to Verde City back then, Isabella was already at Cedric's side. Isaac's eyes flickered with endless coldness when he thought of that woman.

"Do you still remember?"

"What?"

"That night at Elegance Bay!"

Isaac fell silent. At her words, Isaac's face turned uncontrollably pale. That night at Elegance Bay, which was also the night she had been thrown into the detention center...

What had he been doing there?

In an instant, Isaac understood which night Natalie was referring to.

"He told you, didn't he?"

"Natalie!"

"He wanted you to remove the child yourself!"

Isaac fell silent.

The child... Luna!

Luna had always been a very painful issue between Natalie and Cedric. Whenever Luna was mentioned, it was too painful even to breathe.

"Natalie...!"

Isaac wanted to say something, but there was nothing he could say at this moment. Seeing Natalie's indifferent demeanor, Isaac naturally understood what had led this once gentle woman to become so cold.

"With that has happened, how do you expect me to be curious? How do you expect me to care?"

Natalie wished everything about Cedric would never appear in her life again! So when that man disappeared from Wexford, Natalie only felt relieved!

Who cared where he went? Regardless of how many people worried about him, it didn't matter to her.

It was as if, without Cedric's presence, her world became quiet.

“No matter what happened between you two, he...”

Once again, Natalie ruthlessly cut off Isaac’s words, “Isaac, are you going to say that he loves me?”

Isaac fell silent.

Love?!

Why? Why did the word ‘love’ sound so cold when she said it?

“You also know Blair, don’t you?”

Isaac was once again speechless!

Seeing how the man remained silent, Natalie knew everyone around her knew about Blair and her significance to Cedric.

There was someone who was even more important than Isabella in Cedric’s life!

Natalie was the only one who hadn’t known! From beginning to the end, everyone kept her in the dark and ensured that she knew nothing.

“With that said, do you still want to say he loves me?”

Love?

The word ‘love’ undoubtedly weighed heavily between Natalie and Cedric. After everything they had been through, if someone were to tell Natalie now that Cedric loved her...

How ironic was that?!

Thinking about how Cedric was now trapped in eternal darkness, Isaac initially wondered if Natalie was being too heartless.

After all, Cedric was no longer in Wexford, and nobody knew where he was! Nobody knew the despair he faced in the darkness.

Yes, despair...!

When a person was blind and trapped in the darkness, unable to distinguish day from night...

How terrifying was it?

Cedric fell into darkness because of her!

More than that, he had done it to punish himself for the suffering he had caused Natalie to endure.

Yet, Natalie didn't even show a shred of concern.

Wasn't she heartless?

But when Natalie mentioned that night at Elegance Bay and spoke of Blair, it was only the tip of the iceberg of what happened when she and Cedric were together.

Before, how many times...!

When she endured all that darkness and despair, where was Cedric? From what Natalie knew, he was with Isabella.

In Natalie's world, the word 'love' became so ridiculous!

Once, that man had treated her with endless indifference and ruthlessness.

So, why would she care about him now?

A Divorce After My Rebirth Chapter 700-Isaac left.

Before leaving, he asked Natalie, "Is it that no matter what he does for you, you won't forgive him?"

And how did Natalie respond to Isaac's question?

She said, "There's no forgiveness or anything of the sort between us. There's only goodbye."

At this moment, Natalie sat in the dimly lit room. After a long silence, she bitterly laughed.

"Hah...!"

What would Cedric do for her?

Everything he did for her was because of Blair. The thought of Blair's existence brought Natalie immense pain.

Ten years! It was such a long time...!

Every moment they spent together was intertwined with the shadow of another person.

And Isaac talked about Cedric doing something for Natalie.

What had he done for her?

Looking back at everything Natalie thought Cedric had done for her... it was so ironic and laughable!

Natalie spent an entire afternoon in her room.

However, a groundbreaking event occurred outside. The news of her meeting with the Entes family's third son was announced!

Now, the entire upper echelon of society was speculating if the Jarvis family was really going to form an alliance with the Entes family.

But the subject of this alliance...!

Undoubtedly, the news also included the complete recovery of the Entes family's third son.

Complete recovery?

He was never a fool to begin with!

Bang!

In Maple Peak's study, Irwin slammed his phone fiercely on the table. At this moment, his eyes were filled with intense darkness.

Dylan furrowed his brows and hesitantly began, "Lord Austin is..."

Then, he trailed off, and he looked at Irwin with unease.

Undoubtedly...!

"Hah!"

When Austin's name was mentioned, the chill that was already present in Irwin's demeanor became even colder!

Austin... his acting as a fool was great!

If there was a person in the Entes family whom everyone hadn't guarded against, Austin was the only person who met this criteria.

"A complete recovery, huh?!" Irwin's tone was heavy with sarcasm.

Dylan fell silent!

Natalie was just there today, and then Austin's recovery was announced the same night.

Was it a coincidence, or...!

"It seems the waters of the Entes family are truly murky now."

Actually, they've been murky for a while.

But now, with the sudden announcement of Austin's recovery, the balance that was still maintained after Robert's death might be completely overturned.

"Where is she?" Irwin didn't want to know anything about Austin now.

Dylan replied, "After returning from Orchid Bay, she went straight back to Lotus Villa."

"Hmm."

She was quite obedient!

Undoubtedly, Natalie was probably scared out of her wits after witnessing the scene today.

After all, he was the Entes family's third son, Austin Entes!

He was a figure rumored to have been a fool since birth. Now, thinking back, just how deep was his mother's cunning?

It was all concealed for more than twenty years, and not a single person in the Entes family noticed! – As Irwin said, the waters of the Entes family have become murky!

After Austin's recovery was announced, the Entes family was in a chaotic state.

At Verdant Villa, Bianca frowned when she saw the news. "The third lord...!"

Although she didn't care much about the Entes family's affairs, she had always been engaged in fierce battles with Malcolm.

Indeed!

Before this, Malcolm and Zane seemed to be the most hopeful to succeed the Entes family.

And now?

The Entes family's third son, the rumored fool, suddenly announced his recovery?!

After all these years of foolishness, suddenly...!

Everyone knew now that this so-called "fool" was not as simple as he seemed.

When Zane returned, his gaze was deep, and no one could tell what he was feeling inside. Bianca approached and took his coat.

"Where's Malcolm?" Bianca's tone was tense.

Zane looked at her, brows furrowed. His already deep gaze became even more profound.

"You know?"

"Yeah."

Naturally, everyone knew. Regardless of how big or small Simeria was perceived to be, it was a place where information flowed easily.

It was because everyone knew that there was a slight tension in their hearts.

"Bianca."

"Yes?"

Zane fell silent. His silence made Bianca, who was already tense, even more nervous when she looked at Zane.

"What's wrong?"

"Why do you think my brother suddenly recovered now?"

"It's obvious because he was never a fool to begin with."

That was what the entire Entes family acknowledged now. Zane smiled.

"Why are you laughing?"

"You're right. He was never a fool."

"Then now...?"

Bianca trailed off and looked at Zane anxiously. If Austin had never been a fool, then everything that happened before would be overturned.

At this moment, everything seemed muddled, and no one dared to draw conclusions easily.

“You don’t need to worry about these things, okay?”

The man didn’t directly answer Bianca’s question. Instead, he looked at her reassuringly.

Bianca’s heart was momentarily stirred, but instantly, she regained her composure and said, “If we were to talk about who’s anxious now, it would be Malcolm, right?”

Indeed. Malcolm had always been the one who seemed to have it all under control. However, with Zane’s return and Austin’s sudden recovery, his previous control over the situation was completely shattered.

Zane rubbed her head gently but said nothing. Bianca understood Zane’s meaning with his comforting gesture. He didn’t want her to worry too much.

Originally, they were in a contractual relationship, but now Zane hardly let her know what he was up to.

This time, Bianca wasn’t going to be as obedient as she was before. She looked up while in his embrace and asked, “Do you... not trust me?”

“Bianca.”

“Alright, I won’t say anything more.”

Trust?

There shouldn’t be trust between them to begin with, right?

Thinking this way, Bianca felt slightly relieved.

She would wait until everything was over.

Now was not the time for these discussions.

After dinner, Bianca and Zane went upstairs together. When they entered the same room, Bianca tensed up almost instantly.

But Zane hugged her from behind and spoke with an extremely seductive tone, “What’s wrong? Are you afraid of me?”

“Zane?” Bianca’s voice trembled.

But the next moment, she heard him say, "Don't move!"