

A Ghost 551

Chapter 551 Setting Up The Farm

"Well, what a beautiful sight." Helga sighed in relief, breathing the fresh air.

"There's even wind in here..." Sighed Blackard. "We stayed here too little due to the dangers, but now I don't see any monster at all anywhere. And the air became way fresher and the wind's strong too. It is a beautiful place!"

"These types of grasslands are only at the north of the continent, the south where we live its just snow and more snow."

"Yeah, this place's like out of our dreams!"

"None of the other dungeons in the main mountain got ecosystems like these at all, they're all labyrinth-type or cave-type. Sometimes filled with lava or mushroom forests, those ones is where we get most of our edible shrooms."

Huh, so the Dwarven country really depends on a lot in the series of small dungeons they've got in their country. They even harvest a vast majority of their meat, tubers, and shrooms from farms they made inside dungeons and also from hunting, of course.

The thing they naturally lack the most is obviously vegetables, fruits, seeds, and well, more tubers are never too much. Those are all essential for their health, the more they have the healthier and more energetic their population will eventually become.

Meat and shrooms is okay I guess; they had lived like this for very long and they burn calories a lot doing all their hard work. However, they need more food too, their population is multiplying too fast, what they got for production is not enough, they had been buying stuff too much and want "independence" although they'll still be buying my food.

"Alright, I guess the plains are well cleansed." I said. "Here is a detailed map I made of the entire first floor."

I quickly brought out an entire camp from my Inventory, tables, seats, and many other things I quickly put all around, some jars were filled with seeds we brought from the dwarven nation which Ruby secured for us, they were very expensive and she spent a literal eye out of her face to get them all, but this is a good investment for the future. These seeds will bring endless more seeds and veggies.

"Woah you really mapped everything!" Blackard said.

"How did you do this?" Wondered Helga.

"I used my Automatic Mental Mapping Skill and my authority as the Dungeon Master, but keep that a secret alright?" I asked nicely. "Now, we are currently here. This place will become our camp, we could even potentially build a whole village here eventually where we can leave people to live here if they want to work in the fields. But for now we'll make my Undead do most of the work. Don't worry, they're well cleansed and thanks to my magic, they're not rotting either."

"Undead are going to do the farming..."

"Well that's certainly something I didn't thought about."

"A necromancer really has many insane advantages!"

"However that doesn't mean any of you are slacking off. Undead, the majority of them, are dumb. So they cannot do anything complex. And they'll need instructors to teach them the ways and guide them. We'll first prepare the soil and take away the grass from certain areas, and then we'll plant the seeds one the soil is rich enough, watering and tending the plants will be the Undead's job, and eventually also shaping the soil and tearing away the annoying grass." I said with a nod. "Alright?"

"Alright!"

"Then let's get to it!"

I quickly used my Pickaxe to hit the soil in the designed areas. Everyone else started using normal farming tools, mostly shovels and the like, but my pickaxe was enough for me! Using it, I easily tore through the surface of the grasslands, slicing away enormous mats of grass stuck to the soil below as if they were carpets, one by one.

The dwarves were doing a good job as well, they were accustomed to use their strength to smack ores with their pickaxes for hours to no end, so it wasn't that tiring to plow the land and do what I told them to do. Slowly, as the hours went by, we continued doing it and doing it, and as the undead watched me do it, they quickly began absorbing all information, the movements, the techniques, everything.

Skeletons (which look cleaner than zombies, so I decided to use these guys instead of zombies) quickly learned the ways, as I used my Soul Grimoire to build several farming tools out of the many bones I had in my possession inside my inventory, they were already a million bones, so I had materials to spare!

This was a Death Attribute Spell combining the power of the Soul Grimoire's Undead Creation Abilities with their Recipe, Bone Weapon Creation! I could shape the weapons to whatever I imagined using the bones, and if I wanted to make them stronger, I simply had to add Phantasmal Crystals, which are made by crystalizing my phantasmal essence, something easy to do as well without any cost except a bit of MP.

POOF! POOF! POOF! POOF! POOF!

A variety of farming tools made of bones imbued with phantasmal souls, which were Undead of their own quickly began appearing one after the other, the fusion of several techniques bringing this amazing new utility ability!

The skeletons quickly marched, grabbing their farming tools. Most of the were not even humanoid-looking, there were mostly all monster or chimera-like. Some of them were just bear skeletons with hands attached to their shoulders. However, the bandit haul we got back then gave me over a hundred human bodies so I made sure to make their bones into useful hand-having skeletons too.

Wait what?! I got that...? Well, that's nice. I guess that Spell came so naturally from me that it was inscribed into my Soul Grimoire into a Skill just as easy!

Ding!

[You learned the [Bone Weapon and Armor Creation: Lv1] Magic Skill!]

[You acquired the [Bone Queen: Lv1] Title Skill!]

[Bone Weapon and Armor Creation: Lv1]

A Skill only acquired by powerful Necromancers who have managed to be capable of shaping bones into a variety of tools and even armor and equipment. For the creation of tools, Bones are a must, and other materials can be added to the creation to enchant created equipment. Bone Weapons and Armor are beings of their own, being classified as both undead and living equipment.

Created Bone Weapons and Armor receive a +50% enhancement to their durability, stats, and abilities, with an additional +20% with each Skill Level. Additionally, there's a 10% chance, which increases by +5% with each Skill Level for the created Bone Weapons and Armor to gain powerful Magic Effects or Abilities.

[Bone Queen: Lv1]

A Title Skill only given to powerful Necromancers who have attained a great control over Undead's Bones and have become capable of masterfully crafting Bone-type Undead of all shapes and sizes, or to even turn them into powerful weapons and armor. Enhances the stats and physical and magical damage defense of all Bone-type Undead by +50% with an additional +10% with each Skill Level, while non-Bone-type Undead only receive half of these buffs.

Grants the ability to instantly turn non-Bone-type Undead into Bone-type if necessary. Also grants control over bones with more dexterity and masterfulness. And additionally, there's a 50% chance for created Bone Weapons/Armor to have one Quality Grade higher than normal when created.

Out of the blue, I ended acquiring two amazing Skills as I continued Raising more Skeleton Undead using my spare Bones inside my Inventory and also creating Weapons shaped as Farming Tools for them. Over a hundred Skeletons of all shapes and sizes were quickly assembled together, as I looked at the new Skills with eyes wide open.

In simple terms, these two skills allow for the creation of Bone Undead and Weapons and Armor with much ease, while also being able to enchant their strength and effects to even greater, more insane than ever heights. The moment I acquired them, some of the Bone Farming Tools I made suddenly began overflowing with colorful auras, gaining fire, nature, life, darkness, blood, and other elements randomly...

Checking at their status it gave me off they had pretty okay stats, but they were not comparable to the monstrous equipment the dwarf twins can make. Nonetheless, even those guys can't mass produce us stuff, so these bone weapons and armor might become a staple for my village. Although the legendary-level weapons the dwarf gramps make might also be a good staple... Well, I'll just use these for the Undead for now, while living people will get better treatment. After all Undead unlike the villagers are hundreds! Would be high impossible to get them good equipment for all of them.

They also tend to die very commonly, sometimes I blow them up to deal damage to a strong foe or various foes at once, so they disposability comes handy with the easy creation of these bone weapons and armor, which might get more OP as the skills develop by making even more, a simplistic cycle.

"Woah, such a big army of skeletons!"

"Lady Maria are you asking them to work with us as well?"

"Amazing, she has like endless Mana or something!"

The dwarves were naturally surprised.

"I told you guys the Undead would do most of the job. Now don't slack off and get to work. You've gotta instruct them how to do things, alright? Also grab these bone farming tools, they're way better." I quickly gave everyone farming tools made of bones. They looked terrifying and gave off creepy auras, but the dwarves seemed to be willing to just bear with it.

"These weapons... just by giving them a glance, they're cursed with phantoms!"

"However their quality is top notch."

"Not as good as the toppest notch, but still very good."

"Yeah!"

"Amazing stuff you made here, and just out of bones?"

"Yep! That's just how Necromancers are! ...Totally." I said while pretending to actually know how they were. Necromancers were very rare so there wasn't any known norm of how they even worked properly, I could do whatever I wanted and just say that's how Necromancers are. "Now go!"

"ON IT!"

The Dwarves worked the hardest, as they taught my skelebro's everything they knew and they had been doing. Over the hours, the skeletons began to do as they were instructed, sometimes failing miserably, while others just caught up to the techniques faster. Naturally some of the ones most talented gained Agriculture and Farming Skills very quickly.

When we were having a lunch break, we left the skeletons doing the job while we took a break. We have already covered half a kilometer on plowed soil, and I had thought on spreading my Phantom Familiars to plant seeds rapidly and more efficiently as they can fly around.

Though the whole enchantment thing will need to be done by Emeraldine manually with her spirits. Although she said she was preparing something like a magic circle that might spread out further across the fields, making it so she doesn't have to wander around everywhere.

"Have you thought about adding crushed ores into the soil?" Asked one of the dwarves.

"Crushed Ores?" I wondered.

"That's what Gold Sand learned from us, and a reason they buy so many of our ores. There are certain magic ores that enchant the soil with nutrients and life essence, even spiritual essence, making plants grow very fast!" Said Blackard.

"I think these would do the trick..." Helga opened her bag, putting several colorful ores over the floor.

"Earth Topaz, Rainbow Crystals, and the very rare and precious Turtle Shell Stone. Those three ores are very amazing and they contain enough magical power to boost the power of both plants and the soil and turn it richer. You have to crush them into sand first and then spread them around the soil."

Wait, aren't those very expensive ores though?!

"Huh, I guess the most affordable is Earth Topaz, it is relatively not so rare as the other two... Rainbow Crystals are very rare and contain all elemental magic essence, while Turtle Shell Stones can heal 50% HP when activated using mana and can even extend lifespan by ten days!" I said. "They're really the most expensive ones, huh?"

"You can actually use these other ones, any spiritual stone works, but those are the most effective. Let's try many combinations around the fields and see what's more effective." Said Helga.

"Sure, let's do that then!"

I never thought mining and farming would go hand by hand as much as now.

Like that, we took out some the stash we had, using all our Earth Topaz, deciding to use a few Rainbow Crystals, Turtle Shell Stones, and the other elemental spirit stones, such as Wind Emeralds and Flare Rubies, which could be used for a series of accessories, weapons, and armor, but that we are wasting out in this instead!

CRAAASH!

Merely smashing the ores with my bare hands did the trick, as the shattered into tiny pieces, and punching them several times grinded them into dust of various colors. Magical essence flowing over this little magical dust.

"Now, Phantom Familiars, spread this dust around, separate each dust in their own unique area!" I said, as I sent off flying snakes and flies everywhere. The Dwarves were once more surprised.

"Amazing, she can even summon ghosts shaped as beasts?!"

"What can Necromancers not do?!"

"They appear to be the ultimate class."

Well, I don't know about that...

I've barely interacted much with the entire world as a whole to be honest. I haven't really fought any high ranked human or something either. Nor I am honestly interested on that either. So I don't know much of the difference between classes and everything there is.

Maybe if I were to fight something like an A Rank Adventurer or an S Rank Adventurer, I would be able to figure out something? Maybe? Though I have no real idea and might never truly realize it. Perhaps I should try to meld with human society once more to know all these things.

The dwarves got their equivalently strong warriors too, mostly those at high places in society, though they rely on a lot in their golems and magic weapons as well. I haven't meet any of these strong dwarves' guys, but none of them is currently said to be the most unbeatable ever or something.

And because dwarves are a very work-centric society, people that is strong just because is not praised as much, and the hard workers that do their best are more praised. So these strong people often are working hard and not really relying on attention or being famous. Sometimes they become figures of high respect through efforts and hard work, becoming guild leaders and other things.

Probably those guys we saw the other day in that conference might had been the strongest out there. It is said that Ruby and her siblings all are amazing magicians but might be even stronger by using the power of their magic tools and golems.

Anyways, there are bigger threats than the tiny humans anyways so I shouldn't really care much about them, the moment of truth will come in that conference they'll have with all the duchies leaders gathered together, so I'll be able to test if they're any stronger in that moment.

For now, there are more important things indeed, such as the farm!

My Phantom Familiars spread out the magic ore dust around the entire place, as the Undead and the rest of our group continued plowing the land, more and more, relentlessly, and endlessly. My plan was simply, we were not going to care about nature at all and plow the entire piece of land, barely any trees will be left behind that won't be those of fruits!

However, a tiny girl and her two big siblings were exempt of working because they were children, and I am not into forcing kids to work. Nyx, Takeshi and Laura were playing around the grasslands and in the plowed soil.

Little Nyx was walking in all fours while waving her tiny tail, as she jumped like a frog from time to time whenever she spotted a little critter crawling out of the plowed soil. Her self-assigned task was to slay them!

"Chuuu..."

Suddenly, a tiny mole emerged out of the ground. It wasn't a monster, but a normal mole. These critters might look cute but they're a menace for farms, they must be exterminated.

"Raarr!"

Nyx jumped like a small frog, soaring by using her tiny wings and then catching the mole with her tiny claws.

CRAASH!

"Chuuuuu!"

The mole struggled pointlessly as Nyx opened her jaws and ate it whole.

"Chomp... Nom... Nom..."

Her cheeks were filled with mole as she crushed it and swallowed it. A rather terrifying scene for most people, even the dwarves, but we found her very cute with Lucifer.

"T-That girl's scary..."

"She's half dragon after all."

"Yeah, yeah... I guess those kids are different."

"Yeah! Isn't she the cutest?!" I asked happily.

"Chomp... Nom!"

Nyx continued hunting small critters. Rats, big crickets, frogs, toads, moles, and worms that popped out of the plowed soil, she was having a feast.

"She's really stuffing herself full, just how much does she eat?" Wondered Takeshi.

"Ugh, is her stomach going to be alright?" Wondered Laura.

"Craaah!" Onyx, the Abyss Phoenix the two kids hatched seemed scared of Nyx as well, I could notice it within the bird's eyes.

Oh, and talking about that bird, it had grown bigger, but it has the power to shapeshift into smaller size, so most of the time it has the size of a little canary to sit over Takeshi or Laura's heads. He seems scared of me and the rest, but it has grown attached to the children. I might trust him as a good guardian, I guess.

"Nom..." Nyx suddenly grabbed a rat from the soil and offered it to Takeshi. "Rat! Yummy!"

Aw, she's so cute offering a rat!

Chapter 554 Cutting Down A Whole Forest With A Single Slash

"What? Err... no thanks..." Said Takeshi, without feeling like eating rats.

"But don't we eat rat meat all the time back home kids?" I asked.

"Yeah but those are specially raised!" Takeshi said while sighing. "I also don't like raw food..."

"Weren't you Japanese?" Asked Laura.

"Maybe but... I just don't want to eat a whole rat..." Sighed Takeshi.

"She seems okay even by eating all of that crap. I don't think we'll be any worse than her, but sure..."
Laura said. "Is this because she got the stomach of a dragon?"

"Yes children." Said Brunhild. "Dragons can digest almost anything. We eat ores for an example, so it is obvious that our stomachs are the most resilient there are. Getting stomachache is near impossible."

So dragons got that Phantasmal Stomach effect I have... I suppose. Though I wonder if they poop metal if they eat too much ore- Wait I really shouldn't be wondering that to be honest.

Hours went by as we enjoyed a simplistic day filled with hard work, when we finally realized it. Over a kilometer was plowed, and it would continue to expand as the Skeleton Farmers continue their charge through the land to plow it all.

As the day was coming to an end, the sun of the dungeon slowly faded into the horizon, and the beautiful full moon appeared. Even small specks of stars. If you raised someone here and never told them this was a dungeon I bet they would just think this was the entire world there was.

"Woah, we really did this in just a day?" Partner wondered.

"Indeed, it was quite a harsh day but I got to train my muscles doing something more entertaining."
Lucifer said.

"I never thought this Farming thing tiny people did was so complex..." Brunhild wondered. "It was quite entertaining. I was able to relax and all."

"Yep, thanks a lot for your work guys." I sighed in relief.

"We are not done here though." Emeraldine said to me. "Spirits..."

Suddenly, her two spirits emerged out of thin air, traveling around her body and then, landing over the soil in the land. Several magical runes activated, alongside many magic circles. They all activated together, almost at the same time.

Golden and green light emerged from them, spreading everywhere beautifully. The light contained the purest essence of life and nature, which was quickly imbued into the dungeon's soil and plants of this floor. Spreading all across the plowed land, Emeraldine did an amazing magic circle to spread so further!

FLAAASH!

The light was absorbed by the land in front of us, as it shone brightly with spiritual essence. But then, it quickly was completely absorbed by the soil, as if nothing was there to begin with. I felt within my authority as the dungeon master that something was suddenly imbued into the dungeon's structure... did Emeraldine's magic somehow changed it?

"That was amazing elf lass!"

"Incredible!"

"You're really an amazing magician!"

"That magic just now... will it make the crops grow faster?"

"Yeah it will." Emeraldine said with a calm smile.

"Thanks for your help." I said to her, hugging her.

"E-Eh? But it was just a little thing..." She sighed.

"I saw you the entire day spending doing that magic circle so it surely took you time. Also your entire mana's drained! Don't lie to me." I sighed.

"Sigh... Right, I suppose I am quite exhausted after everything." Said Emeraldine, her bright eyes looked into my own. "This is the least I could do. This food won't only be for the dwarves but for our village as well, it will feed ourselves and our family, and children too."

"Hm, you're right- Wait you want a child?!" I asked.

"Ahaha, I meant the twins and Nyx." Laughed Emeraldine.

"O-Oh, okay..."

Although I don't have any idea how I could have a kid with her... So we better just not get into this territory. As a ghost I probably lack any reproductive abilities. The way Nyx is my daughter is only because I gave her my essence and even a part of my soul while in her egg, but I guess it was a one-time event.

I kind of want more kids, one for each of my lovers... so they can be happy too having a descendant. Perhaps I'll find a way eventually, this world got a lot of mysteries and magic everywhere. We could find something; I don't have to lose hope.

"Anyways! Now that we are done here, it would be good if you guys went back home for now. I'll send a Phantom Familiar with you guys." I said.

"Eh? You're not coming back?" Asked Helga.

"Nope, we've got a few little things to do first." I said. "Don't you worry!"

"Okay then, wish you luck!"

Like that, the dwarves left and we were left to our own devices. Without waiting a single second we reached the second floor and I quickly summoned a hundred more skeleton undead which were rather weak for fighting, but good for labor.

"This place's so beautiful, a lush jungle... We should keep it as it is- AAAH?!"

CLAAASH!

However, a Skeleton quickly used a bone hatchet to cut through one of the enormous trees, slowly making it fall.

BAAAM!

I quickly stored the tree inside my Inventory to clean the place right away.

"Hm? What?" I wondered.

"T-That's... isn't one floor enough?" Wondered Lucifer.

"Yeah, do you have to cut these beautiful trees?" Asked Brunhild.

"Of course I have, this place is also for farming and harvesting food! There's no way we are wasting this place. It is very fertile. Look at all the nutrients in the soil! Usually when there's so many trees and a lush jungle, the soil is very rich!" I said happily, beginning to cut down trees using my enormous axe.

"Barbaric Dark Axe Arts: [Mountain Slice]!"

I unleashed a powerful Barbaric Dark Axe Arts, the evolution of my Strong Axe Strike Skill as I unleashed the powerful Art that was included within the Skill, generating a monstrous, slicing slash of pure darkness that devastated almost a hundred trees in just a single second.

I am the catastrophe of the forest!

Chapter 555 Can A Ghost Become A Lumberjack?

SLAAAAASSSSHHHH!!!

"Store!"

FLASH! FLASH! FLASH! FLASH! FLASH!

And before the trees could fall, I stored them inside my Inventory, the sound of the trees teleporting inside this pocket space echoed across the dark forest, as countless birds and other wild animals flew and ran away from the disaster.

"T-This is an ecological disaster!" Cried Laura.

"Is this really okay?!" Cried Takeshi.

"Hehehe, yes! It is okay! We've got all this nice wood too; we'll make tons of furniture with it for our village. We'll have woods for days! These trees are softer too so they can be used and shaped way more easily than pine trees! [Mountain Slice]!!!"

SLAAAAASSSSHHHH!!!

"Store!"

FLASH! FLASH! FLASH! FLASH! FLASH!

More and more trees began to perish by the might of my axe, as the skeletons were simply taking out the roots left behind and then throwing them into a pile for later storage inside my Inventory.

"She's really going to cut everything..." Sighed Emeraldine.

"Well, isn't it alright though? This is her dungeon she can do whatever she wants!" Said Partner.

"I know but this is a beautiful forest..." Sighed Lucifer. "I wish we could have such a forest to spend time together from time to time, walking around, collecting berries and mushrooms, and the like... the snow land surrounding our village doesn't allow us such luxury."

"I suppose Maria can do as she pleases. Trees growing here at the end are just resources... Let's all calm down." Brunhild said. "It is better if we produce enough food for everyone. Since when you guys have been such naturalists?"

"Well, I guess I am being overexaggerated..." Sighed Lucifer.

"I am an elf so I can feel the pain of the forest and nature... even my nature spirit is crying a bit." Sighed Emeraldine. "But I know why Maria is doing this. She's not doing it out of spite or something, but because it is a necessity- even if she's laughing manically while slicing dozens of trees with each swing..."

SLAASH!

SLAAAASH!

SLAAAASSHH!!!

After a few more swings, I finished what I was doing. I cut down over a hundred trees and expanded the territory of the farm too. We were going to use 40% of this floor for the rest of the farm, but the other 60% will remain as forests that we'll grow over time to gather both wood and also other resources. I am not heartless or something!

Ding!

[You learned the [Chopping: Lv1] Skill!]

[You acquired the [Lumberjack: Lv1] Title Skill!]

[Chopping: Lv1]

A Special Skill granted to Lumberjacks who have cut over twenty trees all by themselves. A special Skill that enhances the natural ability to chop trees and not only that, but other things using an Axe-type weapon. Enhances damage dealt by using an Axe to chop something by activating this Skill by +25%, with an additional enhancement of +5% with each Skill Level.

A powerful Cutting Shockwave will be generated upon cutting something, which might cut any other targets within the vicinity (allies are not targeted). Additionally, when cutting trees, damage is enhanced by +50% and there's a 50% chance for the resulting wood to be of higher quality grade and improve its magical properties if the tree is magical.

[Lumberjack: Lv1]

A Title Skill only given to lumberjacks who have chopped down over a hundred trees by themselves. You have greatly mastered the art of cutting down trees and become an amazing Lumberjack.

Enhances Axe-type weapon Proficiency by +100% and Axe-type weapons Damage Dealt by +25% with an additional +5% with each Skill Level. When cutting trees, damage is enhanced by +50% and can ignore 20% of the tree's defenses.

Additionally, you can now guide yourself within any forest masterfully, detect trees more easily and be able to see and detect their age, texture, properties, and more intuitively, to find the best trees to cut down.

Wait, hold up! I got Skills out of this?! And they're just amazing! So I've become an amazing Lumberjack now... Who would had thought a ghost could ever become a lumberjack to begin with? This is pretty nuts if I say so myself.

With the first skill not only my Axe Damage has been enhanced to insane levels, but now I can chop down trees even more easily. I wonder what other sorts of powerful magic trees are out there, which could be amazing materials I could chop down in the future...

Maybe that's my calling, I have to also find materials within trees! There's no way there aren't amazing trees out there of all types with amazing effects waiting to be cut and put into alchemy to create items!

And even more, it enhances their quality grade! What's better than that?

Oh, and the second Skill is... well, even more of the same, which stacks with the previous one to make my Axe Strikes even more lethal. I guess using my new Axe won't be a problem anymore.

And... Oh?!

FLASH!

Suddenly, my eyes shone brightly. I felt the power of the Lumberjacks flowing across my soul as I felt intuitively capable of analyzing the forest. I somehow "knew" what to do or where to go if I wanted more of the better-quality wood or just run away from the forest. Getting lost in one is no longer a problem, it seems.

I guess even Lumberjacks in this world are something else if they got such incredible skills...

"Alright you guys! Now go plow the land that was cleansed." I said to my army of "Skeleton Farmers" as I like to call them now. Everyone quickly marched forward towards their destinations without wasting a single second.

And as the rest of my group caught up to me, I greeted them with a smile.

"You seem merry after slaying so many trees..." Sighed Lucifer.

"That's because we are planting new seeds of course!" I said.

"Eh? We will!?" Asked everyone.

"What? You don't know about reforestation? That's what we usually do when we cut trees, to preserve them!" I said. "I'll use the Farming Skill to boost their growth too. Emeraldine, can you help out?"

"O-Oh, sure!" Emeraldine seemed happy that I wasn't a tyrant against trees.

Chapter 556 Time To Grind Some Levels

Reforestation was the act of planting trees where they were once cut or damaged. It is a practice done most of the time back on Earth. So forests simply don't just disappear, workers plant trees, most of the time already grown seedlings into the ground where other bigger ones were cut. Progressively they cut trees only to add more saplings. This way there's a constant cycle and the forests never truly disappear.

With the help of Emeraldine, we enchanted the tree seeds we found from within these very trees and I sent my Phantom Familiars to plant them all around the forest. With that done, the forest quickly began to gain several saplings, which began growing rather rapidly.

"I guess you actually had a plan, you scared us a lot back then... Also you're not chopping more?"
Wondered Brunhild.

"Of course not sister-in-law! I know this forest is beautiful, we'll keep most of it." I said with a smile. "If those dwarves complain then they can just swallow a bitter bug, I am not giving them shit!"

"Well said." Said Emeraldine.

"I guess this is pretty smart. If we plant saplings and enchant them with the magic and powers you possess, they will grow faster. We can have a big supply of wood not only for us, but we can also sell it. This wood's soft so it is malleable, but it is also very resistant to humidity and hard once it dries out." Lucifer analyzed the wood. "It'll be perfect to sell and transport across long distances."

"Wow you really know a lot!" I said while rubbing my chin. "You don't happen to have the Lumberjack Skill?"

"I do..." Said Lucifer. "I just realized I have it. I think I got it from my previous life. I've begun to gain Title Skills and normal Skills out of the blue more commonly now..." My dragon husband said. "I remember I had burned and cut down many trees in the past."

"Eeeh?! So you're regaining your previous life powers?! That's unfair!" I proclaimed.

"Well, it kind of is. I don't know why though..." Lucifer looked at little Nyx in his arms. "Maybe my daughter awakened something within me."

"Nonetheless, you're pretty knowledgeable about trees naturally thanks to this title, it gives basic intuition about wood and forests." I said. "I got it as well!"

"Interesting... This world's Soul Books are really quite an intriguing thing to learn about all the time."
Said Lucifer.

"Anyways! I am kind of starving. So we are here only to cut trees?" Partner quickly interrupted our conversation.

"Not only that honey. Have more patience. Here." I quickly gave Partner a bottle with fresh and sweet blood.

"Oohh!" Her red eyes quickly shone brightly, as she grabbed the Blood Potion I made for her and she drank it all in a few seconds. "So good! Human's blood is the best! Even those nasty bandits, hahaha!"

"Yeah, that's a Vampire for you." I sighed. "Alright, let's go."

We walked down to the third and last floor, as we were greeted by an enormous and expansive cave filled with colorful crystals, stones, and rare ores growing here and there.

And of course, an enormous army of Abyssal Ants and commanding them was Lancelot, the Abyssal Ant Knight I had risen as an undead a week ago!

"Milady, you're finally back. We have been training with the squad awaiting your come back. We have also cleansed a large quantity of the miasma left behind, and look, we've mined you a lot of resources in the meantime!" Lancelot immediately showed me a gigantic pile of ores, crystals, and metals he and the ants had mined through the entire week! It was so much it filled an entire small cave!

"W-Woah!" I cried in surprise. "You guys have really exceeded yourselves this time! Well done! This is amazing! We've got tons of ores now! But we'll still mine our own. The materials in this dungeon are of way lower quality than the outside world. Nonetheless, we can still use them for a lot of things. Especially to reinforce our walls, build fortresses, and make those barrier devices, which will need hundreds of ores." I said with a smile. "Have you happened to find any Barrier Stone?"

"Barrier Stone?" Wondered Lancelot, quickly browsing his mind and then looking at the pile, his antennas moved around rapidly. "Oh, no. Sadly there are only the most basic of magic metals and magic spirit stones here. Earth Topaz, Flare Ruby, Wind Emerald, amongst others. But Barrier Stones seem to be of a higher grade and quality, I am afraid."

"Dang it... Well that's fine! Well done you guys! You make your mother proud." I praised all the ants as they cheered happily by clicking their jaws around. "Have you found any monsters?"

"No, the monsters have stopped emerging altogether, but we have detected that the Dungeon Core has been accumulating a large quantity of mana, if its not used monsters might emerge at the end. The Ants reproduced differently, so the monsters of this cave will emerge, the ants said they are different looking. Mostly reptilian, they eat the ores and crystals that regrow slowly and naturally here, they might become a menace for our resource gathering." Sighed Lancelot.

"Fear not! We've got yourselves the perfect training regime!" I said happily.

"Training... regime?" Wondered everyone behind me.

"Fufu, what did you honestly expected? This dungeon is naturally of B Rank in difficulty! Meaning monsters are big and give juicy EXP unlike Affnaria. And we can come here any time without being noticed or scorned about it! We are going to train to get strong enough to go to the Miasmic Dungeon sealed in the Dwarven country! Now our training montage starts, you guys! Let's do it!"

It was time to grind some levels!

"Grind some levels?" Asked Lucifer. "I guess... I had not thought about it. However, I had originally believed this dungeon was weakened upon conquering it."

"Yeah, didn't that happened to the other one?" Asked Emeraldine.

"Let me explain to you, my dears." I said while suddenly changing my clothes into those of a teacher. At the same time, I summoned a board from my Inventory and began drawing over it, showing two dungeons.

Chapter 557 The S Rank Dungeon

"Grind some levels?" Asked Lucifer. "I guess... I had not thought about it. However, I had originally believed this dungeon was weakened upon conquering it."

"Yeah, didn't that happened to the other one?" Asked Emeraldine.

"Let me explain to you, my dears." I said while suddenly changing my clothes into those of a teacher. At the same time, I summoned a board from my Inventory and began drawing over it, showing two dungeons.

"Affnaria Dungeon was always just weak! Pathetically weak. Lucifer was sealed in there and all, but the dungeon originally wasn't something beyond E Rank in difficulty." I said. "However, due to the Vampires' schemes, they used the lives of people to create a ritual that infused their many souls inside the dungeon. Dungeons feed primarily on souls which they convert into mana and power. this way the dungeon gained great strength, temporarily capable of bringing enormously strong monsters. They even added miasma into the mix, making the dungeon gain a greater and eviler consciousness which had planned to run over the entire Affnaria Duchy. Thankfully, we heroically defeated this dungeon's schemes... However!"

The board quickly changed as I showed how that when we defeated the monsters and I conquered the dungeon, I ended eating all the Miasma and the dungeon was cleansed. Without the miasma the dungeon weakened severely because it was already incredibly weak.

"The dungeon was weakened as it was finally completed and I conquered it. So it simply went back to its original level of strength! I know it is sad and all, but that's how life is." I sighed. "However this dungeon was always powerful. The miasma inside was provoked by a fragment of the evil god. Once this was cleansed the dungeon simply stayed strong because it was already strong. However, this dungeon is too STRONG, which means that once it accumulates enough Mana, it will poop it all out into countless monsters. So we are going to repurpose this option and just summon them all so we can constantly level up. Yeah it is a simple reason I shouldn't had explained it all like this."

"I see, so this dungeon was just madly strong!?" Asked Lucifer.

"There are dungeons like that. Weak and strong, like monsters in the wild." Said Brunhild. "To tell you the truth, this dungeon should had been way stronger. However, it was split in half."

"Split in half?!" We asked in unison.

Brunhild suddenly started talking about some info we didn't even knew before.

"Now that I've recovered after sleeping and eating nutritious things for a while, my memories have begun to flourish once more within my mind." Brunhild said. "I remembered a powerful Divine Lightning falling from the skies long ago, before the dwarves arrived at the mountains. The two mountains, this one and where the dwarves are living, used to be an enormous, single mountain. However, this divine lightning that came from the skies suddenly split it in half. Over time, it turned into just two twin mountains. The dungeon, the biggest one, which held the large evil god fragment was split in half as well, so it became two dungeons, this one and the sealed one."

"Amazing... Wait, lightning? Did a God did this?" I asked.

"Possibly. The gods sometimes do these things to punish mortals and bring divine retribution upon the fragments or those that attempt to use them. Perhaps someone had sneaked inside and tried to grab the fragments directly, and a god of thunder enragedly conjured the lightning, splitting the whole mountain." Brunhild said.

"Splitting a whole mountain..." I muttered. "(Oi Tyr, was this Thor?)" I asked.

The sphere of darkness and miasma opened his single red eye, looking at me from within the Realm that was created within my soul after I absorbed a fragment of the Evil God, him.

"Quite possibly. The gods deal these blows on my fragments from time to time to weaken me, most likely. Probably stopping any chances I might have for a resurrection..." Sighed Tyr. "Damned Thor, that was his lightning..."

"(Gods are pretty strong... How come we'll even go against them?)" I sighed.

"You might get there eventually, don't worry. The others too." Said Tyr. "You've got what it takes..."

"(What it takes? Don't act mysterious now and tell me...)"

"I can't, seriously, I don't remember more..."

"(Well, fine...)"

Tyr was the real identity of the Evil God, for a little refreshing of his mind. And was a God of War and Law that posed a threat against Odin and his other sons due to his ways of thinking and the strength he developed. A plot to destroy him happened, here even Loki and Thor worked together to beat him down.

Now he's called the Evil God, which only takes upon the name the Gods gave to him in this ancient era after Loki used his Chaos to corrupt his soul and body and transform him into an Evil Divine Being filled with anger and looking rather monstrous...

He's just fragments at this point, but if I gather them all, his resurrection might be possible, something Odin and his family would never want. Somehow, we have to go around this because if I want to find the truth about this world and more, I might as well get to it. Each fragment will also make me stronger too.

"In resume, the dungeon should be way stronger. It was probably... S Rank originally." Said Brunhild.

"S Rank Dungeon?!" I asked.

"Those Dungeons said to be the strongest out there?" Asked Emeraldine.

"There are supposedly even more stronger dungeons than S Rank, but yes. It was just as strong as an S Rank Dungeon. Once split, this one is B Rank and the other... I don't really know for sure, but perhaps A Rank." Brunhild said.

"Damn... well, that only motivates me more to get to work! Alright, let's get slaying for now. I'll summon a bunch of monsters, let's get ready. They shouldn't be anything too hard." I said to everyone.

Chapter 558 Summoning A Thousand Monsters

After hearing Brunhild's information, I got a bit pumped up over the possibility of somehow merging both dungeons into an S Rank Dungeon. But that should wait for later to be honest. Right now, there are more important matters. I quickly opened the Dungeon Information and then glanced at the monster spawning function...

The weaker monsters, which are C+ Rank can be summoned for 20k MP, B- for 50k MP, B+ for 70k MP, and then there are A- Rank monsters for 100k! However, that's kind of all. The entire Dungeon's Mana capacity is overflowing, as its maximum amount is a 100 million! Yeah, it is a tremendous amount because it is a B Rank Dungeon.

Of course, I cannot drain this Mana out for myself, but I can spend it into summoning monsters for EXP... the only thing I can actually do for now. It seems this dungeon has completely banned any drops. There are none! The only treasures are the natural ones. I guess it is not within the dungeon's traits or something.

Nonetheless, using the 100 Million MP we've got, I'll summon one thousand A- Rank Monsters! That gotta be a good amount of EXP, I am sure as hell. The EXP, however, after that, might take over a month to recover fully, but the dungeon is still pretty fast at draining MP.

"Alright, for this month we can summon a thousand A- Rank Monsters. That's sure going to be a bit of EXP." I said with a nod.

"I see..." Lucifer nodded.

"A thousand..." Partner muttered.

"A- Rank Monsters..." Emeraldine said.

"Oh, that's certainly-" Brunhild quickly stopped talking alongside everyone else.

"WHAT DO YOU MEAN A THOUSAND?!"

Everyone suddenly asked in shock and in unison!

"A thousand... a thousand A- Rank Monsters?! That's an insane amount of EXP!" Said Emeraldine.

"Shouldn't we bring more people here to leech EXP as well?" Asked Partner.

"No, I've seen that there's a certain level difference that cannot be surpassed. When monsters are too high ranked compared to others, the people won't earn shared EXP." I said.

"Only those in here can earn it. Takeshi and Laura just barely make it. I could summon the other stronger Undead, but I prefer them to protect our place for now. We'll eventually take turns around. Also if we suddenly make OP the dwarves in our guild, there'll be commotion and they might not be able to handle themselves with so much strength."

"Stupidly giving power to everyone is not the right thing to do. I am doing this with everyone here because we are all already super strong, and this is honestly the only way we can keep on leveling quickly... In that Ice Golem raid I only got very little levels; it is too slow."

"So how much EXP is this?" Wondered Lucifer.

"Hmm... A- Rank monsters gave roughly... between 80k to 100k EXP a pop." I said while rubbing my chin.

"T-That means we could potentially earn between 80 Million to 100 Million EXP tonight?!" Asked Lucifer.

"Hey, we need a ton of EXP now that we are A Rank." I said. "So it is a good starting point! If it were up to me we would spend the rest of the year grinding for levels leisurely but the sealed dungeon is telling me that it might break its seal in a few more days or weeks... I haven't told everyone but since I ate that evil god fragment that I can feel the other evil god fragments."

"I know exactly where they are, and I can also sense what they're doing... the one in that sealed dungeon is trying to break the seal, and it is doing a wonderful job at that! We've gotta get as strong as possible before that. So time to summon! Are you guys ready?" I asked.

"Can we... please eat before?" Sighed Partner, falling to her knees in defeating manner.

"Right... We haven't eaten since lunch." I laughed. "Alright then, let's get to eat first!"

Like that, with the aid of our new Abyssal Ant Friends, we started making a massive feast to fill ourselves with as much energy as possible. This feast included delicious monster meat we still had saved up, such as the various types of bird monster meats we had, the mole meat, and fish from the lake outside. I used my Cooking Skill to its maximum potential, to the point the food I make temporarily boosted our stats.

When we were done, we took a thirty-minute break where we cleansed a big area for fighting, and we all got ready for the battle that approached. However, it wasn't going to be hard or anything, we were too strong and I had a strategy.

"Alright, everyone's ready? We'll begin this training then! I'll first summon five A- Rank Monsters, we'll see how they are and how strong they are. And from there I'll deduce how many we can summon at once. Let's take our time."

Nyx was going to fight as well. She was more than strong enough, and she was still just Level 1, so she just needed to level up to get even stronger. I also wanted the twins to get powerful as much as possible. They had been growing with us but their Skills need higher stats to get stronger. Takeshi is already amazing as he is, and Laura's explosions are super lethal, but could be even more! Also Onyx was born naturally as a high ranked monsters at B Rank so he can actually earn EXP despite being just recently hatched, kind of like Nyx.

"Alright, got it!" Said everyone, preparing for battle.

For safety reasons, Nyx was kept behind her father while he and her aunt were in their dragon forms for further protection. We told her to stay in the back and use whatever magic she wants from a distance. Laura and Takeshi will keep her on check to not run too far.

"Alright!"

FLAAAASH!

I quickly gave the command to the powerful dungeon and its hundred million mana deposit, as a large quantity of Mana was spent and then, five large monsters were summoned. They were around five meters each, and they had varied shapes!

Chapter 559 Level Up Frenzy!

There were three types of monsters that originally inhabited these caves before they were overrun by the Abyssal Ants and their enormous Nests. Termites as big as these Abyssal Ants, but with metallic body exoskeletons and growing large colorful crystals over their bodies as spikes, Ore Eating Metal Termites. Giant Turtles the size of up to four to five meters with big shells covered on sharp crystals, Crystal Turtles. And then big, tyrannosaurus-like reptiles of the caverns that grew sharp spikes from crystals growing over their bodies, Crystalsaurus!

These were the three kings of this third floor before the Ants ate them all and made their nests all around here. But now such ants were completely exterminated. So obviously, such ants which were an external factor, cannot be summoned, and in fact, the original monsters were finally back!

"SHAAAA!"

The ferocious termites ran forward, immediately spotting us to bite us with their sharp serrated fangs, they even conjured spikes of sharp rocks, using earth magic!

"ROOARR!"

The turtles began spinning on their own shells, rushing rapidly towards us!

"GROOOOAAAARRRGH!"

And the ferocious Crystalsaurus roared angrily, rushing forward, and opening their jaws. As lesser dragons, they had elemental dragon breath attack!

And yes, they were all ferocious A- Rank monsters.

"Let's see what you're made of!" Lucifer roared, moving forward with Brunhild, the two quickly kicked the Termites, crushing them into pieces by their very weight and strength combined.

SPLAAAT!

They splattered over the floor easily.

"Let's see... Magic Bow Arts: [Spiritual Light Arrows]!"

Emeraldine pointed her magic bow at the turtles, firing several arrows made of spiritual light at them.

BOOOM! BOOOM! BOOOM!

The turtles tried to tank the hits, but the arrows easily pierced through their shells, which gained cracks and then exploded into pieces, the turtles died on the spot.

"Let's try out these two new spears! Dual Blood Spear Arts: [Dual Piercing Blood Dragons]!"

Partner rushed forward, unleashing a consecutive attack using both spears at the same time. A wave of blood essence emerged from her spears as the two unleashed powerful and devastating piercing blows against the Crystalsaurus.

CRAAAASSSSSHHH!!!

The enormous blow pierced through their bodies a hundred times. Their mighty scales were nothing against Partner's might. The monsters were defeated on the spot, covered with holes...

And...

"Wait, that's it?" Asked Lucifer.

"I thought A- Rank Monsters... would be stronger than that." Brunhild sighed.

"If you guys don't remember, the ants had many A- Rank members, the knights for example. Their boost was that they had miasma with them so it was tricky to fight them due to the toxicity of the miasma and its ability to reflect most magic damage as well. But normal A- Rank Monsters? They're just not that hard anymore... Alright, let's continue! I'll raise the number to twenty!"

FLASH! FLASH! FLASH! FLASH!

Like that, I continued summoning more and more monsters, slowly rising the amount of numbers I used in each wave of monsters. We were able to defeat them no problem. Already at the beginning they seemed easy, but when I joined the fray to fight directly things became even more easily.

Ultimately, at the last waves, we were being swarmed by hundreds, but easily dealing with them and blowing them all way into shreds using magic and skills of super high level. My battle axe and my magic longsword were amazing too, simple swings of these weapons generated shockwaves of darkness all around, impacting the monsters and slicing them apart.

The morning finally came, and a ridiculous amount of EXP greeted our sight...

Ding!

[You and your party have slain [Ore Eating Metal Termite (A- Rank)] x333]

[You and your party have slain [Crystal Turtles (A- Rank)] x334]

[You and your party have slain [Crystalsaurus (A- Rank)] x333]

[Calculating EXP earned...]

[You gained Bonus EXP for killing over one thousand monsters in a row!]

[You earned 125000000 EXP]

[Level Up!]

[Level Up!]

[Level Up!]

[Level Up!]

[Level Up!]

[Level Up!]

[Level Up!]

[Level Up!]

[Your Level has increased from Level 45 to Level 65!]

[All Your Stats have increased!]

[You gained Bonus System Points!]

[Several Skill Levels have increased!]

[You acquired the [Dragon Slayer: Lv1] Title Skill!]

[You acquired the [Relentless Hunter: Lv1] Title Skill!]

Holy shit! I gained twenty fucking levels in a row! And exactly twenty at that! And not only that but I even ended getting two Title Skills out of the entire grind... Man, it was really exhausting though. But at the end it was totally worth it.

[Dragon Slayer: Lv1]

A Title Skill acquired by slaying over a hundred dragon-type monsters. It enhances damage dealt against Dragon-type Monsters by +50%, with an additional +10% with each Skill Level. Additionally, it grant access to a Dragon's Powers such as [Breath Attack], [Dragon Scales], and [Dragon Eyes], which grow in strength with each Skill Level.

[Relentless Hunter: Lv1]

A Special Title Skill awarded to someone that has hunted an exceptionally large amount of monsters through a short amount of time. It enhances all Damage Dealt against Monsters by +20% with an additional +2% with each Skill Level. Additionally, increases Monster EXP and decreases Level Up EXP Requirements based on Skill Level.

Well now this is interesting! I never thought Titles could go this far... And Dragon Slayer gives three Dragon Abilities such as Breath Attack, Dragon Scales, and Dragon Eyes?! That's insane! Meanwhile, Relentless Hunter increases damage to all monsters in general, increases EXP earned and decreases EXP requirements! This is too good to be true...

And just after that whole fight, I feel way stronger. Leveling twenty times in a row really gives a godly amount of strength. Even my physical might has been enhanced.

However, I was the only one currently awake, everyone else was napping. The whole fight was too exhausting for everyone else. However, I could feel they were overflowing with new strength...

"A-Amazing..." Tyr suddenly showed up at my side. "To think you would be able to defeat a thousand of such strong monsters, this method was suicidal for most, but to you and your group, it seemed like a walk in the park..."

"Heh, surprised?" I asked while feeling like acting cocky.

Chapter 560 Surprising Growth

"I am not surprised or anything! Don't get the wrong idea..." Sighed Tyr. He somehow made me remember Lucifer when he gets overly prideful. But instead of being cute like my beloved husband he looks just stupid.

"Then why even talk? Are you getting bored now or something? I guess you can't really talk with anybody else, huh? Huh?" I laughed.

"Tch... It's not like I choose to be here trapped inside your soul or something! It's not like... I even choose to get killed by my own family to begin with..." Tyr sighed.

"Aw geez, okay. Okay, just relax go to take a nap or something. I am not really into the mood to listen to your sobbing story; I am fairly sure I heard enough and I even kind of related a bit with you but that's it." I sighed.

"I just want the others to know me!" He boldly said.

"Wait, what?! But aren't you like evil and mad at us?" I wondered.

"I don't care anymore I am bored in here! I just want to be seen and talk with others!" Cried Tyr, supplicating to me to let him do that. He even flew below my belly and started sobbing.

"U g h fine..." I sighed. "I'll tell them everything once they wake up."

I quickly walked back to the camp we had set up and found everyone there napping. Nyx was cuddling with me just now, so I had to bring her in my arms. She had leveled a lot as well, and her stats skyrocketed to rather insane numbers... In fact this was a good time to check mine too.

Ah, twenty levels really bring a ton of stats. Been a long while since I checked my stats already, so I guess the levels accumulated and now I can see the big enhancement to all stats. Stats all increase by a predetermined value with each level.

Each stat has a "level growth" which is predetermined and increases as I have evolved. I remember it was very low back then, but it has grow so much that I get thousands of stats in each different stat per level up.

Which constantly brings a greater enhancement to my strength in all areas!

...Except Aether, I have yet to increase that damn stat at all, and it is a real pain in the ass just standing there doing absolutely nothing, as if it were asking me to raise it!

However, today, that will change, as I've gathered a ton of materials, exactly one thousand Magic Crystals from the interior of a thousand butchered A- Rank Monsters.

I remember Tyr said that to increase the power of my soul, I had to enhance my soul scape, and to enhance my soul scape, I have to "feed" it highly magically charged materials.

These magic crystals freshly butchered from one thousand powerful monsters might finally do something!

...I hope.
