418 Chapter 417

This punch contained all of Keira's strength.

Seeing her swift attack, Chris immediately extended his palm, wanting to catch the punch and gauge its power.

A smile was on his face as he met the punch.

"Bang!"

Keira's fist collided with Chris's palm.

The next moment...

His expression changed.

This punch was so ferocious that it actually made him feel threatened.

He instinctively used all his strength, but to his surprise, even then, he was still forced back one step, two steps... five steps!

That...

Chris was dumbfounded.

He looked at his own palm, then raised his head to look at Keira, and his expression immediately became joyful. He took a step forward and said, "You..."

11:1

18

418 Chapter 417

Before he could finish, someone rushed in from outside. "Second Elder, something's wrong!"

Chris frowned and looked over. "What happened?"

It was an Inner Sect Disciple, ranking fairly low. "People from the Gill family have come, and now they're causing a fuss at the Disciplinary Hall, they're saying, saying..."

Chris asked, "Saying what?"

"They say the Freeman Sect allowed an Outer Sect Disciple to fight and brawl outside, and that they beat up Austin!"

After that, the person glanced at Keira.

Chris didn't understand what was going on and immediately asked. "Austin? That Gill family's third young master who only knows how to idle around? If it was an Outer Sect Disciple that beat him, then just deal with it according to the sect's rules. What's so bad about that?"

The disciple gave a wry smile and looked at James and 210

418 Chapter 417

Keira. "But, the person who beat him up was Keera!"

"What?"

Chris now understood and looked at Keira. "It was you who beat him?"

Keira nodded. "Yes, I did."

It was about Mary's incident, where he himself was spreading rumors outside. If she didn't drag him out and deal with it at its root, the rumors outside would never cease.

Austin also had a vicious streak, and no matter how Keira beat him, he wouldn't yield.

Therefore, her attack was a bit more severe.

It wasn't until Lewis personally intervened, and it was unclear what he did, that Austin finally gave in and was willing to admit his mistake.

Now, why were they making trouble again?

Keira's face darkened. "He slandered my friend Mary... who now, to reckon, is also my sister-in-law, practically family. The Freeman Sect's rules don't stipulate that you can't fight back when bullied by outsiders, do they?"

O

418 Chapter 417

This statement made Chris chuckle wryly. He nodded. "Right, there isn't such a rule."

Keira looked at him. "Being bullied doesn't just refer to physical abuse, it also includes being the subject of dirty rumors and such. The things he did a few days ago are known throughout Clance, and the files on the internet are still there. His phone contains all the evidence. So, was I wrong to beat him?"

Chris didn't know what to say.

Keira's arguments were clear and correct.

But the problem was...

Chris sighed, "If it were an outsider, a beating by a Freeman Sect disciple wouldn't be an issue, but you might not know that he's the nominal disciple of my fifth junior brother!"

Upon hearing this, Keira was stunned, "What?"

Chris couldn't help but sigh. "In Clance, the four other families among the five major families send at least one person to learn martial arts at the Freeman Sect each generation. Out of respect for the ties between the five major families, we generally choose an outstanding representative from the other four families for a marriage alliance. Your third brother is a martial arts prodigy, and I took him as an Inner Sect Disciple, which is one type of person, while there's another type. If a generation lacks a suitable candidate for martial arts training, to save their dignity, they would select someone from the Direct Lineage as a nominal disciple."

11:15

He sighed, "Austin is the nominal disciple of your fifth master uncle! The Freeman Sect has a rule that, except during martial arts competitions, one must not strike their elders. Being a nominal disciple of your fifth master uncle, he is your senior brother, so by hitting your senior brother, you are in the wrong."

Keira didn't know what to say.

Was it that casual to take on disciples in the Freeman Sect?

James, who was standing nearby, couldn't help but say, "Master, even if that's the case, after today, my sister will be your nominal disciple as well, and her status will be higher than his, right? Then this matter should be resolved, shouldn't it?"

Chris shook his head. "The Freeman Sect is very strict about taking on disciples. All the disciples we have taken are on record. Even if I verbally agreed, it's not yet on record, so she's not considered an Inner Sect Disciple..."

418 Chapter 417

There was a hierarchy among the Freeman Sect disciples.

The lowest were the Outer Sect Disciples, followed by nominal disciples and Inner Sect Disciples.

Nominal disciples and Inner Sect Disciples had equivalent status, but everyone understood that the Inner Sect Disciples were the foundation of the Freeman Sect.

No matter what, Keira attacking Austin was already a violation of the Freeman Sect rules.

Unless she had been an Inner Sect Disciple all along, and her apprenticeship started even before Austin's...

But that clearly wasn't possible! Immediately, James frowned Kate said, "We can't just hand Keera over! James, just say it was you who did it!"

James immediately nodded. "Keera, just say how you

11:15

6/9

418 Chapter 417

hit him that day. Later, I'll claim it was all my doing. As the the second senior brother it's only natura senior for me to reprimand a junior brother, isn't it?"

Keira pulled a wry face. "But that day, I hit him fair and square."

She and Lewis stormed into the club, dragged the man out, and there should've been surveillance.

James said, "Anyway, we look so much alike, we can just say I dressed up as a woman to do it!"

Everyone was speechless.

All eyes moved from Keira's face to James's face.

Then, disdainfully, they looked away.

How could these two faces possibly be mistaken for each other?

Just as Keira was about to say something, a commanding voicen came from outside. Is this how the Freeman Sect plans to brush off our Gill family?"

The group turned around and saw a middle-aged woman stride in.

With a bruised and swollen nose, Austin followed her inside, dark-faced. Seeing Keira, his eyes immediately turned vicious as if he were ready to pounce in the next second.

11:15

Pointing at Keira, he said to the middle-aged woman, "Mom, it was her who beat me! And she almost destroyed me. If you can't have your grandson in the future, it's all her fault!"

Lady Gill immediately turned to Keira. "Was it you who attacked my son?!"

Then she turned to Chris, her manner fierce. "Chris, do you plan on protecting this Outer Sect Disciple? The Freeman Sect has always been En.

known for its strict rules. Now, are you disregarding not only your own reputation but also the Freeman Sect's?"

After saying this, she scoffed and then looked outside. "Where is your Sect Leader? Get him here immediately; I demand an explanation today!"

419 Chapter 418

As soon as these words were spoken, Austin immediately picked a disciple and ran to find the Sect Leader.

Chris, covered in sweat from Lady Gill's glare, nervously chuckled, "Lady Gill, we can talk things out. There's no need to be too angry... Right, where's Mr. Gill?"

Lady Gill sneered, "He's too shy and too embarrassed to argue with you folks. He didn't come today; I told him to stay at home!"

Then, with a wave of her hand, Lady Gill had someone bring her a chair immediately, and she sat down, "Today, I'll wait here to see exactly how the Freeman Sect plans to explain themselves to me!"

Chris was speechless.

He stepped forward to exchange pleasantries with Lady Gill.

Keira watched from the side, furrowing her brows.

Lady Gill must be nearly fifty, yet she still carried

11.16

419 Chapter 418

herself with fierce determination, her face filled with anger, and with what she had just said....

Keira turned to James and whispered, "Does Lady Gill hold a high position within the Gill family?"

Weren't all the heads of the five major families men?

James whispered back, "Officially, it's Lady Gill's husband who's the head of the family, but really, they all listen to her. Currently, she's as powerful as the head of the Gill family, and with three sons under her name, it's no surprise she's spoiled her youngest into what he is now..."

Feeling a sense of lament, Keira recognized that Lady Gill was clearly a formidable woman.

Today's matter would be somewhat difficult to handle.

She cast her gaze downward James then whispered, "I've heard that when Lady Gill was young, she liked Uncle Olsen, so maybe we should call Uncle Olsen right now? How about a 'beauty trap' strategy?"

Keira couldn't believe it.

"Does your Uncle Olsen know you're asking for a beating?"

2/9

Kate nodded. "Yes, yes, that sounds good!"

Keira thought, "They really are a perfect match."

Looking away disdainfully, she asked again, "According to the sect rules, how would this matter be dealt with?"

James replied, "The sect rules dictate that your martial arts cultivation be abolished and you be banished from Freeman Sect."

Upon hearing this, Keira frowned.

Just as she was about to mention that she hadn't learned her martial arts at Freeman Sect, she suddenly remembered that she was now taking the place of her sister Keera, an Outer Sect Disciple of Freeman Sect, who did practice the sect's martial arts.

She didn't want Chris to be implicated, nor did she want the reputation of the Freeman Sect to be tarnished because of her.

While pondering, James whispered again, "But don't worry, we're all from the five major families. You're the daughter Uncle Olsen recently acknowledged. Lady

3/9

419 Chapter 418

Gill wouldn't dare treat you so harshly. The Freeman Sect will have to think twice before they punish you, weighing your importance within the Olsen family!" James's voice was resolute. "At worst, you'll leave Freeman Sect, right? If you want to leave unscathed, our family has many ways to ensure it. I'd like to see who dares touch a hair on your head!"

Keira didn't know what to say.

But she couldn't retreat!

She had to be accepted into the Inner Sect in order to establish a personal and cooperative relationship with the Freeman family.

As she was thinking, she heard Chris say, "Weren't the events at the Olsen family the talk of the town yesterday? This young lady here is Uncle Olsen's very own daughter, just recently acknowledged. It's said she wandered outside for a long time. Uncle Olsen is very fond of her and he especially called me, asking me to accept her as an Inner Sect Disciple. You and Uncle Olsen are old acquaintances, after all, and it's just a minor squabble between the kids. Why don't we call it even?"

419 Chapter 4181 Lady Gill's sharp gaze immediately turned upon hearing these words.

As she laid eyes on Keira's face, a slight frown creased her brow. After a long pause, she suddenly asked, "Is your mother Jodie South?"

Keira didn't deny it.

Lady Gill then sneered. "No wonder you dared to hit my son; you're the daughter of that cheap woman! Back then, she messed with James, so why didn't she just be with him? Instead, she vanished into thin air, leaving James unmarried all these years! Unexpectedly, she secretly hid herself away and gave birth to you!" From Lady Gill's words, Keira detected a hint of resentment toward her mother.

Was it because she liked James, so she was taking it out on her mother?

As she pondered, Lady Gill suddenly said, "Since you're his daughter, I'll show you some consideration. How about this, kneel to my son, and we can call it even!"

These words made Keira frown.

James also stepped forward at once. "Lady Gill, don't

"Too far?"

Pointing at Austin, Lady Gill said, "Look at how she beat up my son, not a single patch of good skin on him. I'm only asking her to kneel, not for her to take the same beating, and that's because I'm taking into account that she is a woman!"

Chris also frowned. "Lady Gill, this is a bit too much for a younger person, isn't it..."novelbin

Lady Gill scoffed. "I'm simply speaking fairly!"

Keira saw her speak in a clear and organized manner and decided to try reasoning with her. "Lady Gill, do you know why I hit your son?"

Lady Gill ridiculed. "Isn't it just some boy-girl thing? So what? Mary did it, but my son can't say it?! Since she seduced my son and then took away the collaboration from our Gill family, she should pay the price! My son didn't make it up, and you dared to hit him just because he talked. Do you think the Gill family was pushovers?"

Keira's brows immediately furrowed, "Mary didn't seduce your son' it's all his nonsense! He already III admitted it himself!"

"Ha! That was him admitting under duress, after being tortured by you, I heard. You have an assistant as well? You have an Call him over too. I would really like to see who dares to beat up my son like this in Clance!"

The Gill family's power was enormous, not any less than the Olsen family.

Austin was the third son, the apple of Lady Gill's eye, and had always been spoiled.

This was why, when Ellis acted against him, the man was so stubborn.

Austin was certain that Ellis wouldn't dare to truly harm him until he met... Lewis Horton.

As Keira listened to these words, her gaze once again turned toward Austin.

She then realized that Lady Gill was actually quite reasonable. It was just that she had been deceived by Austin.

But Lady Gill trusted her son; where could Keira now go to prove that there was nothing between Austin and Mary and that it was all his fabrications?!

Suddenly, Keira felt as though she was trapped in a dead-end.

How could she break this situation?

Just then, a somewhat hoarse voice strained from too much crying, came through "Lady Gill, on Lady Gill, how can you be so lacking in compassion toward the younger generation?"

"If a young woman has beaten up your son, you should reflect on m yourself. How could a man allow a woman to beat him to the point he cries? Don't you think?"

The voice arrived before the person even entered the yard.

James's eyes lit up, "The Sect Leader has come!"

420 Chapter 419

Keira immediately looked toward the entrance upon hearing this.

For some reason, although the voice of the Sect Leader was a bit off and hoarse, just like last time, there was a familiar quality to it.

Especially that careless tone... It carried a hint of a playful old man's vibe...

It reminded her of how her master often spoke.

As she pondered, she saw a familiar figure standing at the door!

Dressed in a gray training outfit, the Sect Leader had short, rugged hair and exuded a wild charm as he stood there with his hands behind his back.

Keira couldn't make out his face because the Sect Leader was actually standing with his back to them, his hands behind him, like a martial arts expert!

Keira twitched the corner of her mouth.

James immediately leaned in and whispered in her ear,

"The Sect Leader is showing off again."

1/7

420 Chapter 419

Keira was perplexed.

Lady Gill also saw him and immediately sneered. "Master Freeman, I've been here for ten minutes, and you've only arrived now!"

Although this was clearly a remark tinged with sarcasm, the Sect Leader seemed not to notice and simply smiled. "Hey, even though I'm getting on in years, I do practice martial arts after all. It's normal for me to be quicker on my feet than you all!"

Lady Gill felt like she was punching cotton, with a deep sense of powerlessness.

She took a deep breath, then pointed at Keira. "Master Freeman, what do you mean by what you just said? Are you intending to defend this Outer Sect Disciple?"

"How is that possible?"

Trevor immediately denied it. "The matters of the Freeman Sect must follow the sect rules! How can we bend the law for personal gain?!"

Lady Gill's expression relaxed a bit.

But then she heard the Sect Leader say, "I'm considering Austin's reputation here. He's a nominal disciple of our fifth brother and has made quite a name for himself in Clance over the years. Everyone thinks his martial arts are very strong. If we punish this Outer Sect girl, wouldn't it mean that his getting bullied by - an Outer Sect disciple would spread everywhere? Austin, are you sure you want to lose face like this?" These words made Austin hesitate slightly.

He cared about face more than anything in his social circle!

Otherwise, he wouldn't have insisted that he had slept with Mary, just to show off, right?

The fact that he was beaten hadn't yet spread...

If everyone found out, indeed, he would lose face.

As Austin was conflicted, Lady Gill sneered. "Master Freeman, you're truly silver-tongued! Your Outer Sect Disciple breaks the sect rules and bullies a nominal disciple, yet you want to push the blame onto the victim? Are you going to ask my son why this Keera didn't hit anyone else but him?"

Without hesitation, the Sect Leader asked, "Right, that's what I want to ask. Why didn't she hit anyone?"

else but you? Austin, shouldn't you reflect on yourself? Is there something about you that's asking for a beating? Or maybe you have 'I need a punch' written on your face?"

Lady Gill, furious, stood up, "Trevor, you...!!!"

"Oh my, don't get angry, Lady Gill. Anger brings wrinkles so easily! Alas!"

es With his customary insouciance, Trevor said, "Besides, children have their own fortune. Our sect may have this rule, but if my son were beaten, I definitely wouldn't seek revenge for him. I'd tell him to practice his martial arts and find a chance to hit back..."

Lady Gill sneered. "That's you, not me! Your Freeman family is a martial arts family, so everything with you is about proving through force but we, the Gill family, are merchants, so we must proceed by legal and proper means! Master Freeman, if you insist on not using the sect rules to punish this Outer Sect Disciple, then I'll have no choice but to resort to other measures and call the police!"

"That won't be necessary, that won't be necessary..."

Trevor waved his hand but still didn't turn around.

Lady Gill's eyes lit upon hearing this, and then she scoffed. "Don't try to tempt me with a handsome man! Let me tell you, I have a husband, and that trick won't work on me!"

Trevor coughed slightly. "What handsome man? What are you talking about?

Aren't we all friends here? Uncle Olsen's daughter hit your son, so it's only right for him to apologize... If you don't want him to come over for fear of making your husband jealous, just let him come here! We can all talk it over."

Lady Gill scoffed. "Stop talking nonsense here, Trevor. From the moment you arrived you've turned your back on me. What's that supposed to mean? Do you think I'm not pleasant to the eyes? Or do you think looking at my face will give you a stye?"

"How could that be?" Trevor chuckled. "Lady Gill is as beautiful as a goddess.

When you were young, you were known as a great beauty of Clance. Didn't we just meet recently? I just... well, it's a bit inconvenient, and I'm afraid my appearance might damage the integrity of the Freeman Sect!"

Lady Gill said angrily, "Stop making excuses! I think you're just looking down on me because I'm a woman! That's why you're being so disrespectful. Trevor, you don't plan because to deal with this matter with your back turned the whole time, do you?"

"That's impossible..." Trevor quietly sighed, "Lady Gill, you absolutely insist on me facing you, it's not that I can't do it..."

if

Keira had been watching Trevor closely, only uncertain of his own appearance. Upon hearing this, her eyes lit up slightly.

Then she saw Trevor pause for a moment, and finally, slowly, very slowly, he turned around...

If we punish this Outer Sect girl, wouldn't it mean that his getting bullied by - an Outer Sect disciple would spread everywhere? Austin, are you sure you want to lose face like this?" These words made Austin hesitate slightly.

He cared about face more than anything in his social circle!

Otherwise, he wouldn't have insisted that he had slept with Mary, just to show off, right?

The fact that he was beaten hadn't yet spread...

If everyone found out, indeed, he would lose face.

As Austin was conflicted, Lady Gill sneered. "Master Freeman, you're truly silver-tongued! Your Outer Sect Disciple breaks the sect rules and bullies a nominal disciple, yet you want to push the blame onto the victim? Are you going to ask my son why this Keera didn't hit anyone else but him?"

Without hesitation, the Sect Leader asked, "Right, that's what I want to ask. Why didn't she hit anyone else but you? Austin, shouldn't you reflect on yourself? Is there something about you that's asking for a beating? Or maybe you have 'I need a punch' written on your face?"

Lady Gill, furious, stood up, "Trevor, you...!!"

"Oh my, don't get angry, Lady Gill. Anger brings wrinkles so easily! Alas!"

es With his customary insouciance, Trevor said, "Besides, children have their own fortune. Our sect may have this rule, but if my son were beaten, I definitely wouldn't seek revenge for him. I'd tell him to practice his martial arts and find a chance to hit back..."

Lady Gill sneered. "That's you, not me! Your Freeman family is a martial arts family, so everything with you is about proving through force but we, the Gill family, are merchants, so we must proceed by legal and proper means! Master Freeman, if you insist on not using the sect rules to punish this Outer Sect Disciple, then I'll have no choice but to resort to other measures and call the police!"

"That won't be necessary, that won't be necessary..."

Trevor waved his hand but still didn't turn around.

"We're both decent families. How about this? I can.

contact Uncle Olsen and have him come to apologize to you."

Lady Gill's eyes lit upon hearing this, and then she scoffed. "Don't try to tempt me with a handsome man! Let me tell you, I have a husband, and that trick won't work on me!"

Trevor coughed slightly. "What handsome man? What are you talking about? Aren't we all friends here? Uncle Olsen's daughter hit your son, so it's only right for him to apologize... If you don't want him to come over for fear of making your husband jealous, just let him come here! We can all talk it over."

Lady Gill scoffed. "Stop talking nonsense here, Trevor. From the moment you arrived you've turned your back on me. What's that supposed to mean? Do you think I'm not pleasant to the eyes? Or do you think looking at my face will give you a sty?"

"How could that be?" Trevor chuckled. "Lady Gill is as beautiful as a goddess. When you were young, you were known as a great beauty of Clance. Didn't we just meet recently? I just... well, it's a bit inconvenient, and I'm afraid my appearance might damage the integrity

Lady Gill said angrily, "Stop making excuses! I think you're just looking down on me because I'm a woman! That's why you're being so disrespectful. Trevor, you don't plan because to deal with this matter with your back turned the whole time, do you?"

"That's impossible..." Trevor quietly sighed, "Lady Gill, you absolutely insist on me facing you, it's not that I can't do it..."

if

Keira had been watching Trevor closely, only uncertain of his own appearance. Upon hearing this, her eyes lit up slightly.

Then she saw Trevor pause for a moment, and finally, slowly, very slowly, he turned around...
