Chapter 11 Chapter 11 The underground was a scary place. Scary and dangerous, for non-werewolves and for werewolves that were not from the Moon lang pick It was located deep in the city, like many of Gabriel's other establishment were. Gabriel liked to drop in once a week, mostly unannounced, just to check up on what the werewolves were doing. The Underground used to be a former meeting ground, but then it had become too small and it was used as a training ground. One of the many training grounds the pack had in the city.

To a normal human from the outside world, it looked like a fight club, a place place where people came to box, fight and where people bet to see people fight. Draco had brought the werewolves who claimed to be part of his pack there, because that was the one of the places they couldn't escape. It was entirely surrounded by werewolves from his pack. And he wanted to be sure they were part of his pack before he provided them with whatever they needed. When Gabriel became Alpha, he would never forget the number of people who defected from his pack.

At least a hundred of them who refused to tear allegiance to him, just because they thought him young and inexperienced. Many of them had left, some of them became ones while others joined other packs, ultimately, many of them regretted the decision but he never gave them a pardon. Gabriel was very same the men who came to visit him were omegas, they had lost everything and now they were crawling back after remembering they had an alpha. The underground was below the Celine State building, a housing complex that he had purchased a few years ago.

He has refurbished it, safely put the underground below the building. Many of the staff who worked in the building were also werewolves, it kept the underground safer and off limits too, He got into the elevator with Dracs and another werewolf of his named Rick Rick was more or less his bodyguard in the non official way and in most cases, Rick accompanied him on special occasions. He had other men like Rick, but he liked Rick beside him Rick was reserved and loyal Inside the elevator, his mind went back to the events of the morning and his face felt hot.

Given the fact that he had a busy schedule, he had woken up early to check on Emilia. He was a bit drowsy, so he had barged in and he didist knock. Lori was already in and that wasn't even the weird part. She was breastfeeding Emilia. He had muttered a string of apologies before quickly closing the door and hurriedly rushing back to his room. But his mind still kept replaying the scene. How could he forget? Lori was sitting on the couch, she was wearing black shorts and a pale blue tank top. She had lifted the tank top to breastfeed Emilia.

And his daughter had latched on to her breast, sucking ravenously. He had closed the door as quickly as he opened it, Lori also looked equally shocked, but he didn't wait long enough to see her reaction. The elevator door opened and the first thing that was visible was the large boxing ring in the middle of the room. There were five men in the ring, two in their werewolf form while the other three were in their human form. Werewolf fights were common in the underground y common.

Gabriel had tried to outlaw them, but he had failed, the fights were more than a sport for many of them, it gave them purpose. Dangerous but very They all stopped when he walked in, in that way that only an alpha could make them stop. They bowed in reverence, even the ones in their wolf form. The keeper of the underground walked towards him after he stood in front of the ring. "Alpha The man simply said as he bowed again. Hen, His name was Ben. Ben Oslo. Have they arrived?" He asked and the man nodded. Chapter 11 "I know, You're just curious," He added and Lori nervously nodded.

"You knis, curiosity killed the cat." Lori scratched her arm uncomfortably as she slowly took a step back. Tve heard." Elliot looked at her again. Up and down, his eyes were practically taking all over her. Taking her in, slowly, delectably. Do you like watching the stars at night?" Elliot asked and she shruceed. Not really, but at the moment she would say anything to get him off her bark. Elliot nodded. "Oh me too. You should know there's a full moon in three days." "Elliee!" A voice called out from behind them and Elliot seemed to freeze.

Lori turned and found Mr Cabriel standing a few paces behind them. He had his hand in his pocket and his piercing blue eyes narrowed at Elliot How did he get there? She didn't see him coming and with the look on Elliot's face, he didn't either. "I was just talking to her getting to know her." Elliot said. "Lori would you please excuse us?" Mr Gabriel said as he dismissed her with a glance. She nodded and walked away. What was all that about. Chapter Comments
