

A Trash 118

Chapter 118 - 118 1 Billion! 1 Billion! This is Freaking Amazing! \(3\)

118 1 Billion! 1 Billion! This is Freaking Amazing! (3)

After watching for a while, Luo Feng received an epiphany.

“What’s the host doing?”

“Why is he up so high?”

“Is he pretending to be a mountain-gazing monkey?”

“Or perhaps he’s pretending to be the lookout of tomb raiders?”

“Haha, the host is someone who spends a million yuan like it’s nothing and out in the open. What is he so afraid of?”

“The heck are you doing, host? Stop messing around!”

Luo Feng returned to his original spot with a wide grin on his face. “I now have a rough idea of how this corpse came to be! This tomb raider got caught in the same landslide as the animal carcasses we saw earlier. So, what this means is that, what’s lying underneath here is indeed an ancient tomb!”

“Damn! These grave robbers were really unlucky! To think that they would be caught by a landslide not long after locating the treasure!”

“Oh! That makes a ton of sense then!”

Luo Feng picked up his Swallowtail Hoe and grinned, “Actually, I can’t say with 100% certainty on whether my observation is true or not, but all I need to do is to continue digging!”

Immediately after.

Reinvigorated by the knowledge that there was likely a large tomb lying below him, Luo Feng was able to infuse more strength into each of his strikes.

“Although I think there are some loopholes in the streamer’s statement, it somewhat makes sense!”

“Are you an analyst, host?”

“I think that the loot was unevenly distributed. Perhaps the porcelainware we saw earlier was from someone throwing it in anger from receiving a meager share of the loot!”

“Hahaha! Are you a comedian or something?”

“All this over a few copper coins?”

[Ding, you have found a copper coin.]

[Ding, you have found a copper coin.]

[Ding, you have found a copper coin.]

Wtf! I've been getting copper coins non-stop!

There's also some broken porcelain pieces!

Luo Feng was at a loss for words.

It was almost 6 in the evening, and he had found nothing else aside from the broken porcelainwares, copper coins, and of course, the corpse.

In another half an hour, the sky would turn dark.

Speaking of which, if the porcelain pieces were to be combined, they would be half a meter tall.

Fortunately, Luo Feng's never-ending streams of copper coins and porcelainware had provided enough entertainment to retain the viewers.

Even though nothing major had been discovered, many still watched with great interest.

After all, the ancient tomb was right underneath Luo Feng.

Everyone wanted to witness its discovery.

Many employees who worked in major museums and antique shops had gotten off work early. They were watching Luo Feng's livestream to see what kind of treasure he would dig up.

"Damn, he's already dug this deep and still, nothing?"

"This is nowhere near deep enough! Ancient tombs are usually buried very deep!"

"After all, if the ancient tomb is too shallow, it would be easy pickings for grave robbers!"

"All I'd like to say is that you'd better not be disappointed when there's nothing down there!"

"Hahaha! You sound really sour!"

Thump.

Suddenly...

Luo Feng had received feedback from his hoe. It felt like a soft item.

Soon, he had dug out the object.

It was a work bag that was meant to be slung over the shoulder.

There were also candles, electric drills, and various other grave robbing tools within the bag.

Well, that is, if the owner of the items had not applied for a permit to forage in the mountain.

"Hah! This is mud! I'm probably near the end!"

Luo Feng scooped up a handful of soil in his hand and inspected it.

"Has the host found the tomb?"

"I don't see any bricks though!"

“What kind of soil is this?”

“This is the soil before the landslide,” Luo Feng answered his viewers’ queries. “This seems to be a very deep site. It’s probably concave in shape!”

“Well, I’ll have to pause the stream here. Brother An, Zhang Shunyong, wanna go and grab some food?”

Luo Feng was impressed.

Neither of his two tag-alongs were looking tired.

In fact, he felt that they were even more energetic than him.

...

“Screw you, host! F*ck dinner, go back to work!”

“You’ve already rested for more than 5 minutes!”

“It’s 6 minutes now! Even my house’s donkey isn’t this lazy!”

“Hurry up, it’s been 8 minutes. Hurry up!”

Speaking of being anxious.

Luo Feng’s viewers were probably even more anxious than Luo Feng himself.

After all, Luo Feng had nothing to fear.

He had the foraging rights to the area, and he had Huang Tianba and his men watching over the mountain.

Plus, he was now an expert in fighting, and he had friends in high places who could shield him in the law.

In any case, he had the ancient tomb dead to rights!

Moreover, because of the large ancient tomb waiting for him, Luo Feng had decided to work overtime this time. It was something that only happened once in a blue moon.

...

After grabbing his headlamp helmet and putting it on, he then resumed his work.

Luo Feng surveyed the area once more.

The dots were scattered about like stars in the night sky, but right at the center of the area was a spot with a particularly dense cluster of dots. They were all high-level dots of red, orange, yellow, and green colors.

Luo Feng suspected that the cluster likely indicated the position of the tomb’s main chamber.

Through the dots, Luo Feng estimated that the size of the ancient tomb was about 300 meters in length and width.

Judging from the copper coins and porcelain pieces that the grave robbers had brought out, there must have been an entrance that they opened up somewhere.

Once they found the entrance, they would no longer need to continue digging.

Of course, Luo Feng had a feeling that the porcelainwares and copper coins were only the items that they had managed to take away when the landslide occurred.

Despite carrying only these lightweight items, however, they did not manage to escape.

Luo Feng continued digging for about an hour and a half.

Then, he heard a clang.

Luo Feng felt like he had struck a rock.

[Ding! Congratulations, host! You have found an ancient tomb from the Ming dynasty!]

[It is worth 1 billion!]

!!!

???

????

The moment he saw the figure, a silly grin crept onto Luo Feng's face.

This.

Is.

Freaking.

Amazing!

I've really done it this time!

However, based on the feedback from the swallowtail hoe, I've probably only reached the exterior of the tomb...