

Accidental love II

Chapter 17 Announce

In the Clinton Group.

At a meeting room.

Several directors were sitting in jeopardy, looking at Mr. Shawn Clinton with complicated expressions on their face. Now that everyone in the company knew that there was something wrong with Mr. Shawn Clinton's mind in the past two years. They wondered what strange things he would say today.

Shawn was sitting in the middle of the conference table. He was full of spirits. His face was covered with wrinkles. His deep and bright eyes were piercing and energetic.

"Everyone, I'm here today to announce something."

When Shawn spoke, he was full of energy and calm.

"Five years ago, I made a marriage contract with the Stewart family. After Janice graduates from university, Marcus will marry her. Now, the two have officially completed the marriage procedures. According to the regulations, the man in the Clinton family will get a certain amount of equity awards after getting married. I will transfer the equity that Marcus should have obtained to him."

What Shawn said made the directors' faces sink. If Marcus were to get the equity, he would definitely intervene in the business of the company.

At the beginning, Marcus wanted to make Marcus become his successor. At that time, Marcus was still a healthy, smart and capable elite. The directors believed that he could do a good job in the company's business, so naturally they wouldn't oppose Shawn's decision.

It was a pity that Marcus became lame and blind after a car accident. He didn't even have the basic living ability. Who could rest assured to let such a disabled man become the president?

The directors frowned, whispering to each other to discuss countermeasures, with only one core purpose, "Don't let Marcus become the head of the Clinton Group."

"Considering Marcus' physical condition, he couldn't be overworked. So I want him to assist Kyle as a vice president. What do you guys think about this arrangement?"

As soon as Shawn finished speaking, the directors let out a long sigh of relief, and agreed in unison.

“Agree!”

“Support!”

Shawn squinted his eyes slightly, glanced at the crowd indifferently, and declared domineeringly, “Since everyone has no opinions, it’s decided like this!”

“Okay!”

All of a sudden, there was a round of applause.

In Marcus’ office.

Gavin respectfully stood in front of Marcus, holding a few papers full of words in his hand.

“Mr. Clinton, the investigation report about Mrs. Clinton has come out!”

“What did you find?”

Marcus’ voice was cold and steady. Others couldn’t hear the slightest joy or anger in his tone.

“The actual situation of Mrs. Clinton is the same as we have seen. Her life experience is quite simple. The Stewarts had not had any children for several years after their marriage, so they went to the orphanage to adopt her. Unexpectedly, it didn’t take long that Gaby got pregnant and gave birth to her daughter, Fiona, smoothly.”

“Speaking of it, Mrs. Clinton is also pitiful. After the birth of her adoptive parents’ biological daughter, she lost their favor. The Stewarts has always treated her as a servant, rather than as a daughter to raise. For so many years, her life is hard. But fortunately, she has always been tolerant and obedient to her adoptive parents, so her life is fairly stable.”

Gavin sighed slightly. Seeing Marcus’ sullen face and pressed lips, he quickly continued seriously.

“Mr. Clinton, although Mrs. Clinton has suffered a lot, she has excellent academic performance since she was a child and she is definitely a good student of standards! She chose advertising design as a major when she was in college. After graduation and through several rounds of interviews, she entered an advertising company to be an internship.”

Hearing Gavin's report, Marcus frowned tightly.