Chapter 880 Where Is Daddy Part One

When Emma saw how determined Natalie was to make bagels for her kids, despite having flour on her cheeks, her impression of Natalie improved.

“Of course!”

Having years of experience as a housekeeper, Emma was extremely skilled at cooking. While kneading the dough, she taught Natalie the authentic way to make bagels.

Under Emma’s guidance, Natalie started getting the hang of it and kneaded the dough into small little bagels.

When she placed the dough into the oven, she smiled in satisfaction.

“Thank you, Emma!”

“There’s no need to thank me. I’m only good at this. When it comes to computers and technology, I know nothing.” Emma felt embarrassed when Natalie kept thanking her.

“If you want to learn how to use computers, ask Xavian to teach you,” offered Natalie proudly. “He’s very good with computers and technology. If you ask him for help, he’ll settle everything for you. As for Clayton, Franklin, Sophia, and Yumi, they know a lot of things too. If you need any help, you can approach them.”

Emma had already been awed by how good-looking the kids were. Upon learning how skilled they were, she was stunned.

“Can I ask you something, Ms. Nichols?” asked Emma.

“Sure! You can ask me anything.” Natalie grinned. “I need your help to take care of the kids for a long time.”

“Well... Ms. Nichols, are all five kids yours?”

“No.” Natalie shook her head.

I knew it! The five kids look like they’re of the same age. They can’t be quintuplets, right?

“The quadruplets are mine,” replied Natalie seriously. “Yumi isn’t my child. Although we aren’t biologically related, I treat her like my daughter.”

“Quadruplets?” Emma was astonished. She actually had four kids at once!

“Yeah! Quadruplets. It was tough giving birth to them.”

While Natalie chatted with Emma, the bagels were done. The oven beeped, signalling that the timer was up.

“Ms. Nichols, our bagels are done! I’ll plate them while you wake the kids up, okay?” suggested Emma with a smile.

“Okay!”

When Natalie went upstairs, the five kids had already woken up and brushed their teeth.

“Good morning!”

When Natalie greeted the kids, they replied simultaneously, “Good morning, Mommy!”

“Emma and I made breakfast for you. Come down and eat!” Not showing any favoritism, Natalie stroked each of their heads.

“Okay!” The five kids followed her down the stairs.

When Emma saw all of them, she was once again shocked by how good-looking the family was. All the kids looked like angels—adorable and lively. No matter how much she looked at them, she would always be filled with happiness.

Now that she had seen the mother and the kids, she was curious about their father’s appearance.

“Good morning, Mrs. Bunton!”

Emma grinned widely when the kids greeted her.

“Morning!”

Emma placed the fragrant bagels in front of them. “Your mommy and I made the bagels together! They’re extremely fluffy. They’re still hot, so be careful when you eat them!”

It was the kids’ first time eating something that Natalie made. Delighted, they took a bite of the bagels.

Xavian and Clayton, who had been with Natalie for five years, knew how good her culinary skills were. Although they did not have high expectations for the bagels, their eyes lit up when they took a bite.

“Mommy, this isn’t as horrible as what you used to cook!” Xavian spoke without any tact at all.

Indeed, Natalie propped her head up with an arm and gazed at him. “Xavian Nichols! Say that one more time!”

Xavian quickly clutched his head. “Oh no! I said something wrong!”

“You’re too dense, Xavian!” Sophia burst out laughing.

Although Franklin, Clayton, and Yumi did not say anything, they were grinning happily.

Sophia’s appetite was just like Natalie’s. Just like a little glutton, she finished all the bagels within a short moment.

“There are still some left in the oven...”

Emma lifted Sophia’s plate, wanting to add two more bagels. However, Natalie stopped her.

“She ate five for breakfast. That’s enough! We can’t give her anything else, or she’ll be too full.”

“I see...”

On the other hand, Emma was afraid that Sophia would be disappointed. Kids at her age would definitely cry or kick up a fuss if they could not eat to their heart’s content. However, when Emma turned around, she saw Sophia sitting there obediently. Sophia flashed her a sweet smile and said, “You really dote on me, Mrs. Bunton! But Mommy’s right. I can only eat five bagels, or I’ll be too full.”

Emma’s heart softened when she saw how obedient Sophia was.

Rubbing her stomach, Sophia said in a mixture of happiness and pity, “Mommy’s bagels are really yummy. It’s a pity that Daddy isn’t here! If only he’s here with us and can eat Mommy’s bagels!”

Natalie, who was halfway through eating a bagel, was at a loss for words.

Before she could say anything, the kids started discussing in front of her.

"I wonder what's Daddy busy with! He won't answer our calls." Sophia was filled with indignance.

"Hmph! He abandoned us to Mommy and stopped caring about us!" Franklin raised his eyebrows.

Yumi cupped her cheeks and asked, "Is he too busy with work?"

"Busy? No matter how busy he is, he can't just ignore Mommy and our feelings!"

"Yeah! Mommy's ranked number one. No one is more important than her! How can he ignore us? When I'm free, I'm going to track his IP address," suggested Xavian.

When the other four kids heard that, they nodded in agreement.

"Yeah!"

"Let's do that!"

Natalie was stunned when she heard the children's conclusion.

Track what?

Although the five kids were still quite young, they were extremely smart. They might discover that Samuel had abandoned them in their investigation.

"You're not allowed to investigate him." Natalie placed her chopsticks down and educated them earnestly, "Your daddy needs to finish an important task, so he can't come to Loang with us. If you really miss him, I can bring you back to him."

When Natalie said that, the five kids stopped discussing. They lowered their heads and fell silent.

Upon noticing the tense atmosphere, Emma asked, "Children, have you decided what you want to eat for dinner?"

"Chicken wings!"

"Lettuce!"

"Grilled pork!"

"Roasted chicken!"

"BBQ pork!"

As expected of little kids, their attention was directed away when Emma asked about dinner.

When they finally stopped asking about it, Natalie heaved a sigh of relief.

Indeed, lies should not be said too easily. Once she started lying, she would need to come up with even more lies to conceal the truth.

“I’m going to work.” As Natalie stood up, she reminded the kids, “You must listen to Emma’s instructions at home and respect her like your elder! If she needs anything, you must help her.”

“Okay!”

After bidding farewell to the kids, Natalie left the mansion.

Emma brought the plates on the table to the kitchen and started washing them. She then started preparing for lunch.

The five kids exchanged a look with one another before dashing into the second-floor living room.

As the eldest, Franklin asked, “To be honest, do you think that there’s something weird going on between Daddy and Mommy?”

Actually, the kids had already noticed the strange dynamics between Natalie and Samuel.

These thoughts had already been circling in their minds before they left for Loang. However, none of them brought it up. Now that Franklin was the first one to mention it, the five kids started discussing enthusiastically.

“I think so!” admitted Clayton honestly. “After Mommy announced that she’s going to work in Loang, Daddy didn’t even show up. Even Uncle Steven and Mr. Trevor came to send us off, but he didn’t!”

“Daddy’s always been busy with work. But it’s the first time that he hasn’t shown up for such a long time,” analyzed Xavian.

“Yeah! Previously, I’ve already thought that Mommy seems to be in a strange mood, like she’s very sad. I thought that she just couldn’t bear to part with Daddy!” The more

Sophia thought about it, the harder she shook her head. "Looks like that's not the case. It's like they had an argument and are ignoring each other."

Glancing at the other kids, Yumi expressed her own thoughts. "Then... Did they really have an argument?"

When she said that, everyone fell silent in shock.

None of them wanted to admit it. However, when they recalled Natalie's reaction in the dining room earlier, the same thought appeared in their minds.

In the end, Franklin said, "So... What Mommy's trying to say is that if any of us misses Daddy, she'll bring us to him. She wants us to make the decision! Isn't that like how divorced couples make their children decide between their parents?"

After hearing Franklin's analysis, everyone felt like they had just been struck by lightning.

Unfortunately, his analysis was exactly like what they had felt.

The thought of her parents separating caused Sophia to tear up. Choking up, she exclaimed, "I don't want Mommy and Daddy to be apart! It's been so tough for them to get back together! I don't want them to leave each other!"

Yumi wiped Sophia's tears with a piece of tissue. "Don't panic yet, Sophia! Franklin's just making a guess."

"But what about Daddy?" Sophia mumbled indignantly, "He didn't call Mommy or any of us!"

When Xavian saw the tears rolling down her cheeks endlessly, he pointed at himself. "Don't cry, Sophia! I have a solution."

"You have a solution?" asked Clayton with a frown. "You, Franklin, and I have been calling Daddy for the past few days. He didn't even pick up any of our calls! Since that's already the case, are you sure that you have a way to make Daddy pick up our calls?"

"Previously, we've been relying on conventional methods." Xavian blinked. "This time, I'm going to pull out my trump card. I promise that once he sees it, he'll definitely pick up my call."

When Xavian made that promise so confidently, the four kids glanced at him simultaneously.

"Really?" asked Sophia as she grinned through her tears.

Xavian patted his chest. "Of course!" With that, he started moving.

Taking his laptop out from the suitcase, he turned it on and selected a picture of Natalie with Jerome from the thumb drive. Then, he selected an image of a couple acting intimately and photoshopped their faces on that image.

Initially, the image looked a bit unnatural. After Xavian did something with his keyboard and mouse, a flawless image emerged in front of them.

"Okay!" Xavian's mission was accomplished.

"Is this your solution?" asked Clayton in shock.

"Yeah! Regardless of why Daddy and Mommy argued, do you think that he can bear to see Mommy being so intimate with another man?" Xavian smiled smugly. "When Daddy sees this picture, he'll definitely be furious. In that case, it'll be a piece of cake for him to answer our call."

Chapter 883 Where Is Daddy Part Four

"You're amazing, Xavian!" Sophia gave Xavian a thumbs-up.

Nodding, Yumi praised, "This is a great idea!"

Xavian scratched his head. "Not at all..."

When Franklin and Clayton saw the two girls fawning over Xavian, they were jealous.

Clayton said, "Let's leave the compliments for later. It's better to contact Daddy first!"

"Yeah!" Franklin's gaze was filled with a serious look. "We should grab this opportunity to ask Daddy about what's going on between him and Mommy!"

"Okay!"

Xavian wiped the smug look off his face and typed on the keyboard attentively. He sent the image to Samuel's email.

Furthermore, he even created a special programme. Once the email was sent to Samuel's inbox, Xavier would terminate all of the device's programming. The email would automatically pop up and could only be closed if Samuel replied to the email.

Xavier clicked the 'Enter' button and sent the email.

Meanwhile, Samuel heard an email notification from his computer in the middle of work.

Before he could click on it, the email popped up automatically and filled his entire screen.

Naturally, he glanced at it. The screen was filled with a picture of Natalie looking into the eyes of a handsome soldier and smiling.

He had an impression of that man. When he first reconciled with Natalie, that man had visited her in the hospital ward.

However, he was completely different from Yandel. While Yandel admired and respected Natalie, his love for and obsession with Natalie was blatant.

Did he rush over to find her immediately after finding out that Natalie went to Loang alone?

Samuel clenched his fists.

When he clicked on the photo, a line of text appeared.

“Daddy, something bad happened! Mommy’s about to be snatched away! Pick up the phone!”

When Samuel read those words, his phone started vibrating on the table.

Without any hesitation, he picked up the phone and put it to his ear.

“Hello?”

“Daddy, you finally answered our call!” Xavian’s excited voice rang out.

“Yeah,” replied Samuel in a deep voice. “What’s up?”

“Mommy’s going to be snatched away by Mr. Sutton!” Xavian exaggerated it deliberately.

“Really?”

“Really!” exclaimed Xavian. “Did you see the photo I sent you, Daddy?”

“I saw it,” answered Samuel. “Are you sure that you didn’t photoshop the picture?”

Having been exposed by Samuel, Xavian confessed, “Fine, I admit that I photoshopped the picture! But if you don’t contact us in time, Mommy will still be snatched away by other men! Oh, right! What happened between you and Mommy? Why haven't you shown up? Mommy's acting weirdly too..."

Samuel noticed that Xavian's phone was on speaker mode. The other four kids are probably with him too.

He loved the kids as much as Natalie did. Although both of them had separated, he was unwilling to break their innocent hearts.

"I've been busy with work," replied Samuel. "Your mommy has probably explained to you too."

"Busy? How busy can you be?" interrupted Sophia, unable to hold herself back. "Daddy, no matter how rich you are, you won't be happy without Mommy!"

Yeah! Just like what Sophia said, I might be the richest and most powerful person in the world, but I'll still be left with nothing if I don't have Natalie by my side. Unfortunately, my life is coming to an end. I'd rather let Natalie hate me than wallow in self-guilt and memories.

"I understand everything that you said," coaxed Samuel. "I promise that after I'm done with my work, I'll come to Loang to look for your mommy and you guys."

Chapter 884 Where Is Daddy Part Five

"Did you have a change of heart?" asked Franklin observantly.

At that moment, Jesper knocked on the door. "Mr. Bowers, I've already gotten the information about what you asked me to investigate."

Glancing at Jesper, Samuel told the five curious kids on the phone, "I really need to settle some work now, so I'll hang up first."

On the other end of the phone, the five kids pouted sadly when their call got cut off.

"Daddy picked up the call and promised that he'll visit us after he's done with work..." Sophia mumbled gloomily, "But why do I feel like something's wrong?"

"Something's definitely wrong," commented Franklin objectively. "He seems to be hiding from Mommy."

However, Xavian had a different opinion. "I don't think so! Although Daddy didn't manage to answer your last question, he definitely still feels the same way toward Mommy. Otherwise, he wouldn't have been so furious that he answered our call, despite realizing that the photo had been photoshopped."

"Yeah!" Clayton nodded in agreement. "I think Xavian's right. Perhaps, Daddy has some grievances that prevented him from being with us and Mommy. They've gone through so much together. How can he possibly have a change of heart so easily We... We mustn't be flustered!"

As the last person who joined the Bowers family, Yumi nodded too. "Yeah! Although I'm not biologically related to Daddy or Mommy, I can tell that they have a very close relationship. Now, they've just been separated from each other temporarily. We mustn't overthink and assume that there's a problem with their relationship."

As they spoke, the five kids reached the same consensus.

"In the future, we must help Daddy protect Mommy!" announced Franklin solemnly.

"Okay!" The five kids placed their hands together and cheered each other on.

After expressing what had been on their minds, the kids went ahead with their own day.

Meanwhile, Xavian grabbed his laptop, connected his phone and laptop to the Internet, and started tracking Samuel's address when he answered the call.

Although Natalie had warned him against doing that, Xavian still went ahead with his plan while keeping it a secret from her and the other four kids.

On the other side, Jesper placed the results of the investigation, which Samuel had instructed him to do, on the table. He reported, "Amos is twenty-eight years old this year. He is Consort Leia's younger brother. He's a frivolous man who's very generous with his money. He has a lot of close female friends. However, he did not instruct anyone to drug Ms. Nichols last night. Instead, his subordinate did that on his own accord to win his favor..."

The largest difference between Loang and Chanaea was that the power still remained in the royal family.

The king of Loang was already over seventy years old. Prince Hanson, Prince Anderson, and Prince Jonathan were all popular candidates for the heir.

Samuel did not expect Natalie to be involved with the royal family on her first day at Yaleview.

"Deal with it properly." Narrowing his eyes, Samuel instructed, "Obscure Natalie's background. Don't let the Stone family develop an interest in her."

“Mr. Bowers, Ms. Nichols will reveal her shrewdness sooner or later. Doing this now is actually...” Jesper wanted to say that it was pointless.

“Let her get a footing first.” Samuel glanced at Jesper. “Loang is not like Chanaea. The forces there are too complicated. After she can see the situation clearly, I won’t interfere anymore.”

“Okay!” Jesper sighed secretly.

Mr. Bowers is only saying it for show. How can he possibly stop himself from interfering? If he can, would he have pretended to be someone else and go all the way to Yaleview to expand the business? What’s sadder is that even though he did so much for Ms. Nichols, he refuses to say anything. Instead, he’s pretending to leave with another woman.

On the other hand, Samuel was unbothered. He started thinking about what he could do for Natalie in the next half a year.

Chapter 885 A Chat Part One

Dream’s office in Yaleview was a two-storey high building.

The first floor was around four meters high, with a modern contemporary design. The French windows revealed the lush greenery and tranquil lake outside.

“Boss, I chose a good office location, haven’t I?” Yandel’s eyes were filled with smugness.

“Yeah, it’s not bad.” Natalie nodded. “Before we scale up, this amount of space is just right. Indeed, you did a good job with this.”

“Yeah!”

Having thought of something, Yandel asked, “Fullmoon is filled with all sorts of weird people. After Lia and I left, did you encounter any problems?”

Although being drugged was probably quite a serious problem, Natalie was used to keeping things to herself. In a nonchalant tone, she said, “Don’t worry. What can possibly happen to me? After you left, I drank a bit more and left. What about you and Lia? What happened after you sent Anna back? “

“Boss, you shouldn’t have brought this up! I’m so furious whenever I think about it!” Yandel clenched his fists. “Yesterday, Lia and I sent Anna back. The moment we returned, that b*stard, Caleb, also got back. He threatened Anna with their child, demanding that she compensate him for his lost youth. He said that it's all because of her bad luck that his business failed and his gambles all lost money."

"F*ck!" Natalie was so angry that she cursed out loud. "That b*stard! I didn't slap him enough last night."

"Don't worry. I hit him."

"Oh? What's the outcome?"

"Nothing much. I just broke three of his ribs. He's now lying in the hospital with a cast," revealed Yandel with a laugh. "It's fine! I'll settle all the hospital bills and compensation. But it depends on my mood when his rib can be reattached and when he can be discharged."

When Natalie heard how miserably Caleb ended up, she said in relief, "I'm glad."

Then, she remembered Anna's kid.

"Yandel, pay more attention to Anna, especially in terms of her nutrition. Although she might not be sick, she's definitely lacking in nutrients," Natalie reminded Yara. Then, she told Lia, "When it comes to breastfeeding or other maternity issues, it's inconvenient for a man like Yandel to intervene too much. Lia, this is where you could help."

Yandel and Lia nodded. They knew very well that Anna was just like them in the past—she was being redeemed, and that was an amazing feeling.

Soon, the day when Anna promised to meet arrived.

Anna changed into a white dress. After cutting her dry and tangled hair, she now had a neat, shoulder-length bob.

The flaws on her face were also concealed behind some makeup. She now looked ten times better than when she was at Fullmoon.

"Anna." Natalie gestured at Anna. "Please take a seat."

"Thank you!"

After they sat down, Anna gazed at the beautiful face in front of her. She thought that Natalie was even more beautiful than two years ago.

Her beauty was not gaudy or conventional. Instead, her beauty came from deep within her.

When she stared at Natalie's face for a long time, even her heart would skip a beat. Naturally, she was an irresistible temptation.

"Is there something on my face, Anna?" Feeling self-conscious, Natalie touched her face.

"No." Returning to her senses, Anna shook her head. "I haven't taken a good look at you for two years, so I wanted to do so now. You're prettier than you were two years ago."

"I see."

"Unlike me..." Anna lowered her head and burst into laughter. "Every step I take is a mistake. If I have listened to your advice back then, I wouldn't have reached this stage. But I always had a question. How did you know that my decision to retire and marry Caleb is definitely a wrong decision?"
