Chapter 554 Stop Acting

Felix thought Rachel was planning something destructive. If she had proposed any action to harm Meryl, he would have had his dagger ready.

Yet, Rachel, such a coward, still wanted him to help her.

She had her own ideas.

Meryl was different from her.

She was pregnant now. If a snake bit her, she would lose her baby.

Moreover, Rachel, who had been frightened to death by those snakes that day, believed that Meryl would react violently.

Felix said meaningfully, "Don't ask me to help you with such a trivial thing. Solve it yourself, okay?"

His face was in the semi-darkness. "If you want me to take action, it should be a big plan."

Rachel was stunned for a few seconds. She inexplicably felt that Felix was up to something evil.

She subconsciously asked, "A big plan? What do you mean?"

Seeing that Rachel was fooled, Felix smiled slightly, "You have Chapter 554 Stop Acting to cooperate with me."

She somehow moved closer to him.

Hearing what he said, she widened her eyes in shock and gazed at him in disbelief. "You, you want to..."

Felix glanced at Rachel leisurely. I am doing all this for your own good. If you are unwilling, forget it.”

She rolled her eyes and suddenly had another idea.

“Okay! I agree!”

After she left, Felix fixed his eyes on her back, lost in thought.

He spit out the cigarette and asked disdainfully, “Why is such a superficial woman so confident to assume that I want to marry her and am interested in her?”

Being confident was great, but being blindly confident was stupid.

Philip, in the driver’s seat, heard the plan that Felix had just discussed with Rachel.

It was gradually getting dark. Meryl stayed in the ward to take care of Anne.

Dante felt ignored there. No matter what he said, Anne paid no attention to him.

He wanted to get an answer from her to prove that the baby was his, but despite his attempts, she made no reply.

He glanced down. After a while, Yancey came in from outside.

He was obviously surprised to see Dante in the ward.

Yancey walked over to Anne’s bedside and said gently, “I saw the nurse take the baby to the neonatal department. The doctor explained that the treatment would take about a week and that she could be discharged from the hospital with you if there were no other problems.”

Anne nodded. “Thank you. Go home and change your clothes now.”

Yancey’s white shirt was still stained with blood from the morning. As he had not had time to change, the color of the bloodstains deepened.

“I’ve packed my own clothes in the hospital bag so that I can stay here and look after you closely.”

Yancey took out the hospital bag from the suitcase and found a clean piece of clothing.

He turned to Anne and smiled, "How can I leave when you are in the hospital?"

Yancey's words upset Dante.

He rushed forward and grabbed Yancey by the collar. "Stop acting. I already know that the baby is mine."

Anne

and Yancey had nothing to do with each other, and he was almost deceived by Yancey.

Dante asked, "How much did Anne pay you to act with her? I'll give you double. Get out of here!"

Their eyes met, and Dante's were bloodshot. Yancey's collar was firmly grasped in his hand.

This was a matter between Dante and Anne. He only wished to resolve it privately with her and didn't want anyone to come between them.

He wanted to drive Yancey away quickly.

Dante was aggressive, and Yancey was somewhat embarrassed.

But he remained calm. Dante's rage didn't frighten him.

"Mr. Paltrow, don't forget that you and Anne have divorced. You are strangers now. What do you think you are to ask me to get out?"

Dante sneered, "Because I'm the baby's father!"

Chapter 555 Don't Be Afraid

There was a dead silence for a few seconds.

Yancey gazed at Anne's face and said firmly, "I am the baby's father."

His statement irritated Dante, and he punched Yancey in the face.

Yancey's nose bridge was hit, and blood gushed out instantly.

"How dare you say you are my daughter's father? Where do you get the courage?"

At the sight of the blood, Anne got angry.

"Dante, why are you going crazy in my ward? Get out of here right now!"

Yancey covered his nose bridge with his hands, his face showing pain. Meryl quickly took out a tissue and handed it to him. "Yancey, are you okay? Do you need a doctor?"

He shook his head and blocked his nostrils with a tissue. "It's just a minor injury."

With

that, he glanced at Dante and said, "Go out. Don't annoy Anne. She just had a cesarean section. If she gets furious, the wound will easily split."

Anyone could have persuaded Dante to leave, but Yancey was the last person he wanted to do it.

But he was also very clear that Yancey's words made sense.

Having just given birth to a baby and had been in a car accident, Anne really couldn't get angry.

"Anne, have a good rest."

Dante planned to talk to Anne when she recovered some of her energy.

Less than two minutes after he left, a nurse came in and gave her an infusion.

The nurse asked curiously, "The man outside has been standing in the corridor for the whole afternoon. Is he your family member?"

Anne looked out through the crack in the door and found that Chandler was still waiting for Meryl outside.

“Go home now. You’re pregnant. Take care of yourself. At least I’ve given birth now.”

Meryl was still worried about Anne.

Yancey immediately said, “Don’t worry, Meryl. I’ll look after her, and the servants are on their way here.”

Meryl nodded and left, leaving only Anne and Yancey in the ward.

“Are you hungry?” He considerately tucked the corner of the quilt for her.

Anne shook her head gently, gazed at Yancey’s embarrassed appearance, and said softly, “Wash your face.”

He obeyed.

More than ten minutes later, he came out with wet hair, and the water drops ran down his cheeks and dripped onto the white shirt he had just changed.

Anne closed her eyes on the bed. He moved very quietly, and even his breathing was barely audible.

Yancey walked to the bedside and stared at her. Suddenly, he recalled she had just been covered in blood on the side of the road.

At that moment, he was so scared that his soul left his body, and his mind went blank.

For the first time in his life, he was overwhelmed by a boundless fear, a sense of utter impotence.

Fortunately, Anne was not seriously injured, and both she and her baby were safe.

Yancey’s gaze fell on the back of her hand.

There was an IV needle. Her skin was very delicate, with a part of her wrist exposed, which was a little blue from the chill.

Without hesitation, Yancey immediately sat on the chair next to her and took her hand.

His palms were warm, and he covered the back of her hand, trying to warm the cold liquid.

He remained motionless and silent, gazing at her intently.

After a long while, Anne finally opened her eyes when he had fallen asleep, leaning against the bed.

In the operating room, she had been transferred from natural birth to cesarean section before.

She was put on the operating table in excruciating pain. Upon hearing the medical staff say that an emergency cesarean section was needed, she was terrified.

The cold air invaded her limbs and bones. She was suddenly at a loss. She couldn't stop shaking slightly, and her spirit was strained like a string ready to snap.

At that moment, Yancey was brought in by a nurse.

He approached Anne, held her hand, and coaxed, "Don't be afraid. I'm here."

Chapter 556 Let's Be Together

At that moment, tears welled up in Anne's eyes.

She felt that she was not alone.

She lay there in a daze while undergoing the operation, with Yancey on the bed next to her, giving blood transfusions to her and her daughter.

At that moment, Anne thought that he was like the baby's biological father.

For the first time in her life, she felt a strong sense of security from him, convinced that he was a responsible man.

Because of the anesthesia, she couldn't move her body, but she was aware that Yancey stroked her cheek and whispered in her ear after the blood transfusion was over, "Now, does the baby have my blood running through her body?"

“Anne, can you give me a chance to take care of you and your daughter for the rest of your life?”

Anne, under anesthesia, made no reply.

But at that moment, seeing Yancey falling asleep beside her bed due to exhaustion, she suddenly wondered if she should give him a chance and herself a chance to start over.

Chapter 556 Let's Be Together

Lying on the edge of the bed, he seemed to sense something.

He opened his eyes and immediately checked whether the IV needle on the back of Anne's hand had finished dripping.

“Did I hurt you?”

He let go of Anne's hand. “I didn't mean anything else. I just saw that you were cold, so...”

“Yancey,” she said.

He was stunned that she suddenly called his name so seriously.

“What's wrong?”

“Do you mind if I bring my daughter with me when we go on a date?”

Yancey was taken aback. After realizing the hidden meaning of Anne's words, he stared at her in disbelief.

“What did you say?”

His low voice betrayed his surprise, and his wide eyes were fixed on her cheeks.

Yancey was afraid that he had misheard her, for he had just awakened, or perhaps he was still in a dream.

He tried to stay calm, looked into Anne's eyes, and asked hesitantly, “What did you say? Can you repeat it?”

Chapter 556 Let's Be Together

Lying on the hospital bed, she met his gaze.

Noticing that he had released her hand, she took the initiative to grab his hand.

“I said, let’s be together.”

At night, it was cool. The moonlight generously shone on the earth. Meryl and Chandler walked out of the inpatient department of the hospital together.

He put his arm around her shoulders. “Are you still angry with me, Meryl?”

She shook her head and then nodded.

Chandler pressed Meryl into his arms and said, “I ignored your feelings before. It won’t happen again. I will let Walter handle her affairs from now on.”

She asked, “How did Rachel’s brother save you back then?”

Chandler was silent for a few seconds.

It seemed as if he had prepared himself mentally for a long time before saying, “They were a group of drug lords. During a police crackdown, they just happened to escape to the vicinity of our village. That day, Andy and I went up the mountain to pick mushrooms and ran into them. They took us hostage and Chapter 556 Let’s Be Together kidnapped—us,”

When talking about the past, Chandler lowered his voice, feeling quite depressed.

Meryl was shocked that he had met some drug lords.
