Chapter 560 Current Situation

Meryl sighed helplessly, "She gave birth to a child not because she loves you but because she loves her child. She doesn't want her child to become a sacrifice between you two. Dante, Anne is determined to leave you."

Dante didn't believe it. "She must still have feelings for me. We've been together for so many years. Now, we have a child . How could she leave me?"

With that, Dante was about to walk towards the hospital building.

Seeing this, Meryl got out of the car quickly.

It was too late. Meryl was worried that Dante would disturb Anne's rest. Besides, Dante looked drunk.

Meryl looked at Chandler for help. "Send your friend home, and keep an eye on him. Please don't let him bother Anne ever again."

Which woman who had just given birth had the energy to deal with frequent nagging?

Chandler stuffed Dante into the back seat of his car and glared at him fiercely.

He had finally reconciled with Meryl and planned to stay at home and spend time with Meryl tonight. After all, Meryl would soon be back to study.

They had been spending less time together lately.

But Dante suddenly showed up.

However, Dante was Chandler's good friend. Chandler couldn't just ignore him. It would be easy for an accident to happen if he just left Dante here like this.

Chandler sent Meryl home first, watched Meryl go into the house, and then drove Dante away.

Dante moved from the back seat to the passenger seat. He covered his head and looked uncomfortable.

"Chandler, I'm not going home. Please take me to the bar and have more drinks with me."

Chandler looked at Dante with a bit of helplessness.

“Go back and have a good rest. If you keep liking this, not to mention Anne, even I feel disgusted.”

Dante retorted, “But I feel bad and guilty. Anne almost lost her life to give birth to my child. What can I do? I can’t help her at all. The key is that Yancey even went to the operating room to accompany her.”

He felt heartbroken. The child was his, but he was the last one to know about it.

Dante felt like a fool. Anne didn’t give him any chance at all, making him feel suffocated by the guilt.

He said, “They just experienced separation today. In Anne’s heart, Yancey must have become different.

“But what about me? I am just an unimportant ex. I should have been the one to accompany her bedside. But I was completely deprived of the opportunity! It’s all Yancey’s fault!”

Dante thought, “Today, Anne actually cursed at me in order to protect Yancey.”

He felt distressed.

Then, he added, “Yancey is so pretentious! He works too hard on hooking up with a rich woman. I’ll kill him sooner or later!”

Chandler looked at Dante chattering and knew very well that Dante needed an opportunity to vent and treated him as an emotional trash can.

He responded from time to time, "If Yancey is not there, there will be someone else anyway. You are divorced. Why don't you try to let it go and look forward?"

Dante answered, "I let it go initially. Have you seen me pestering

"But she just gave birth and almost died. What do you want me to do? Should I pretend that the child doesn't exist? That's our child and has the same blood as me!"

Chandler stopped the car. To be honest, the current situation was indeed difficult.
