Then, Meryl immediately threw it away.

Felix looked indifferent. He leaned back in his wheelchair, letting the blood flow freely. He even used more force with his hand, as if it was not him who was bleeding.

Meryl didn't know what to say for a moment.

She snatched the dagger from Felix's hand and then threw it into the trash can outside the hotel entrance.

Meryl frowned. "Philip, send Mr. Powell back!"

She didn't want to continue watching Felix torturing himself here.

Seeing Felix had no objection, Philip pushed the wheelchair away.

Just as they left, Meryl breathed a sigh of relief.

She was ready to enter the hotel. But then, she saw Chandler inside waving for the security guard.

"Please send my friend up."

Faced with Rachel's request to send her to the room upstairs, Chandler refused.

Meryl placed her hand on Chandler's lips and said with a smile, "You don't have to say anything. I believe you."

She gently took Chandler's hand, interlocked their fingers, and looked at Rachel.

Only then did Meryl find that there were slap marks on Rachel's face, and her sexy dress was torn. It was apparent that Rachel had almost been raped just now.

Meryl thought, "Felix is quite cruel to his fiancée."

In any case, Meryl couldn't say anything sarcastic when she saw Rachel like this.

Meryl whispered, "Do you need me to go up with you?"

Rachel was stunned and looked at Meryl in disbelief. "What did you say?"

Her face was full of surprise. It took her more than ten seconds to come back to her senses.

Rachel moved her lips and said coldly, "No."

Meryl knew Rachel didn't like her, so she didn't force Rachel. She watched Rachel enter the hotel elevator before coming out with Chandler.

Chandler held Meryl's hand and asked, "Are you not angry?"

"At first, I indeed felt uncomfortable when you abandoned me. But she is Andy's sister, and she is alone and helpless now. She is quite pitiful."

Meryl didn't want Chandler to be caught in the middle, as it would only make things difficult for him.

As they were talking, they entered a women's clothing store. Meryl picked out a set of clothing and asked the salesperson to pack it and send it to the hotel.

They walked out then, and Chandler couldn't help but hug Meryl in his arms.

"Mrs. Aniston, you are so kind. I'm almost impressed

"We are on the street. What are you doing?"
