Chapter 801 Raiding The Capital

Grey looked at the group as they prepared for the raid.

"So, how do you plan to deal with the experts in the capital?" He asked. This was a question he asked the first time they asked him to join them, he refused because they didn't give him any tangible reply.

"According to what we've found out, the top experts are not in the capital. But they aren't far from the capital as well. Since you're good with arrays, you will work with her to create a large array that will block every single distress signal from going out." The leader of the group pointed at one of the young ladies in the group.

She was among the five geniuses he fought with.

"Have you seen the size of the city?" Grey looked at the leader of the group as if he was a clown.

He didn't expect them to create an array that would stop any signal from going out in such a short time. The capital was huge, it would take them a long time to complete, and the task was exhausting as well.

"I've been working on it for some time now, I just need a few more details." The young lady stepped forward.

"Oh, if that's the case, then no problem." Grey nodded.

He wasn't someone who would shy away from things like this raid, but if these people wanted to stress him because of his skill, then he didn't mind leaving them now. It wasn't like he couldn't escape on his own after all.

The leader of the group continued assigning positions and gave out orders. He wasn't a bad leader given how everyone seemed to listen to him. After almost thirty minutes of continuous speech, it was time to leave.

When Grey heard their target, he couldn't help but shake his head. He originally thought they wanted to raid the capital for treasures, only now did he know that they were doing this to save the humans inside the capital. They wanted to save every human they could find.

'How amusing.' He said to himself as he followed the group.

There was a reason they were doing this, and honestly, he does not care. He would only do something like this when someone he's close with is captured. If not, he preferred not to involve himself in any squabbles that might be dangerous.

A group of over twenty-five people walked out. Grey and the young lady were the first to leave the group since they had the job of securing their time there. The young lady had told Grey a few things about the array, but he would only know if to modify it after seeing it.

The young lady made the array outside of the capital, linking small arrays together to form a large one that would cover the capital completely. What was left was to create the array at the front gate to ensure that the array will be complete.

While the young lady was thinking of a plan. Grey strolled right to the front gate in a leisurely manner and before anyone could say a word, he used the fire and water element to create some sort of mist that spread out. In the blink of an eye, the vision of everyone there had been impaired. There was no way anyone would know he was not from the horned race with this much mist around.

The guards at the front gate were alerted by this and quickly rushed forward. Before the few Wind Elementalists could use their wind element to blow the mist away, Grey was gone.

Simple and effective.

The young lady never thought that what she had been thinking about would be solved in such an easy way. Grey didn't even act like someone who was making an effort, he only walked there and back within a few seconds and he not only created the array, but he did it unnoticed.

This was the front gate of an enemy race! Grey's boldness and quick thinking were something that astounded the young lady.

"Having multiple elements has its perks." She couldn't help but mutter when Grey returned.

"Naturally." Grey nodded while looking at the alarmed horned people.

He knew that the sudden mist would make them a little unsettled, but it wouldn't really change anything.

The group of five geniuses was the only Peak Overlord Plane Elementalists they had in their group. Even if most of the top level experts were not in the capital, there are bound to be some there.

Grey had always been the cautious type, so whenever he made plans, he would think of every possible scenario that might happen.

Void was still hidden from them, so they knew nothing of his hidden card. He also had his domain which he could use against even those top level experts here.

The group got to where Grey and the young lady were located and the leader asked why they were still there. The young lady told him how Grey was able to easily complete the array.

"Alright, we'll continue as planned." The leader nodded, pleased at how Grey made things easier for them.

"You will ensure that the array isn't destroyed." The leader pointed at the young lady before turning his attention to Grey, "Your services are still needed inside."

Grey nodded with a blank expression.

The young man asked Grey if he could use his mist to hide them as they entered the city. Grey nodded and did as told. He asked if there were any other Dual Elementalists that had the water and fire element. Making mist was an easy trick, so it wasn't something he had to teach them.

Only one person had both the fire and water elements.

They created a larger mist this time and even did what looked like a rainstorm above them with lightning dancing in the clouds.

Seeing the lightning storm coming closer to the front gate, the guards were cautious, and a little confused. They didn't know what to do, but seeing the mist below it, they knew this was not ordinary.

Chapter 802 Raiding The Capital II

Grey stood at the back of the group as they advanced forward. He didn't want to draw any attention to himself.

When the group got to where the gate to the capital was located, they attacked immediately.

The second they attacked, the young lady who was in charge of the array activated it to ensure that there would be no way any news would be sent to the experts that weren't in the city.

The guards at the gate were only in the Origin Plane, so they were basically useless against these youths. Each of the people present in the group was already in the Late stages of the Overlord Plane. Other than the five who were at the Peak of the Overlord Plane, ten were in the Ninth stage of the Overlord Plane, right were in the Eighth stage of the Overlord Plane, and the rest were in the Seventh stage of the Overlord Plane.

The array they set outside would ensure that no signals were sent out from the city. They closed the gates to ensure that everyone stayed inside.

The array was also solid, this way it would stop anyone that wanted to escape from the encirclement.

Grey looked at the lightning cloud above him and shook his hand gently. Tiny particles made from the darkness element flew into the sky, spreading in the entire city. Due to the size of the city, it was impossible for him to use it to poison everyone. That was never his plan in the first place.

He had done a few types of research on the horned race and surprisingly, he noticed they were weak against the darkness element. Once it manages to get into their body, it would be able to cause great harm to them. It would decrease their fighting capabilities first off. Presently, this was what Grey wanted.

Since he was part of the group, he naturally had to make sure things went smoothly.

Void had already mapped out all the places that had humans as either slaves or captives. Not just that, but there were also a few places where he sensed treasures. Grey planned on visiting those places while the others saved the humans there.

The moment the group entered the city, they spread into groups of three. Grey didn't group up with anyone. He preferred moving alone. He wasn't the only one who moved alone, all those at the Peak of the Overlord Plane did the same.

Each group had at least one Ninth stage Overlord Plane Elementalist, and a distress signal to alert the others in case they encountered a situation they couldn't deal with.

Grey's target was none other than the treasures Void sensed, and unsurprisingly, it was in the center of the city. The place where the largest building was located.

While he was rushing there, he noticed powerful auras rushing from different parts of the city and heading in the direction of the city gate. He could already hear the sounds of battles ongoing in different places.

He made sure to evade all of them. It would be best if he could get to the building without being noticed. Unfortunately, things never go to plan.

A young horned man blocked his path. The horned man had two colored horns, and even his eyes were two different colors. He was already at the Peak of the Overlord Plane.

"I can't go unnoticed, huh?" Grey looked at the horned man before him with a cold gaze. THIS CHAPTER IS

"I never expected your kind would fight back." The horned man said in a cool and collected manner. It was like he didn't think of Grey as an opponent.

Grey didn't even bother to speak, with a wave of his hand, he sent a fireball at the young horned man.

The horned man snorted coldly before summoning a large bird made of ice. The bird looked so lifelike that it had Grey a little surprised.

The bird screeched before charging at Grey's fireball. It collided with the fireball and shot past it as if it didn't even exist.

Grey's fire element was his strongest element, so the fact that this bird could ignore the attack showed how powerful it was.

He didn't feel any sense of pressure from it, rather, a smirk appeared on his face. Just as the bird was within a few meters of him, it opened its mouth and spat out an icy wind in Grey's direction.

An earth wall appeared in front of Grey, easily blocking the icy wind. The strength of Grey's earth defense was on another level presently.

The bird didn't stop its attack there, ice shards appeared on its large feathers as they shot at Grey. The ice shards continuously slammed into the earth wall, but it stood steadfast.

A light flashed through the eyes of the horned man and a lightning bolt struck the earth wall.

The wall shook and cracks started to appear on it. The ice bird continued its attack and the wall finally broke down.

The bird charged past the wall, hoping to use its sharp ice claws to slash Grey.

Grey chuckled and his eyes glowed with a mysterious light. The ice bird which was flying in his direction suddenly slammed into the ground when it got within five meters of Grey. The sudden change in gravity took it unaware and before it could even react it was shattered.

'Nice.' Grey was pleased with the result of his test.

This was the first time he was using his newly acquired power, and it was quite impressive.

He charged at the young horned man, but to his surprise, the horned man retreated, not wanting to engage in a physical battle with him. The horned man continued attacking with his elements alone.

Grey evaded and countered as their battle raged on.

The capital city of the horned race was thrown into chaos with explosions ringing out from different locations as a result of the battles going on.

The children and the weak all rushed to hide so they wouldn't be caught in the battle. This was a battle that even those in the Early stages of the Overlord Plane would be able to impact, much less people that weren't even in the Overlord Plane.

Chapter 803 Dreadful Attack

Boom!

The battles in the city raged on. On the side of the four Peak Overlord Plane geniuses who entered the city, they were engaged in a tough battle with multiple opponents. Luckily, no one at the Peak had attacked them yet. Of all the people present, Grey was the only one fighting against a Peak Overlord Plane Elementalist.

As his battle with his opponent raged on, more horned men rushed over, all in the Mid stages of the Overlord Plane.

'These guys are going to lose a lot of fighters.' Void commented from the side as he watched the battle from a rooftop. He was swinging his tail from left to right, not bothered with the fact that Grey was outnumbered.

When Grey saw over fifty people rushing toward him, he couldn't help but curse his bad luck. Opening both arms, multiple inscriptions appeared in the sky.

The reason he preferred using two or three inscriptions when fighting was because he could maximize the strength of his attacks then. But with over five inscriptions, the strength of each attack would reduce significantly. had no choice in a situation like this. Being the only person who was heading towards the palace, he was bound to attract all the attention in the city.

He didn't feel bothered by so many people rushing toward him. His hair blew in the wind as he rushed into the crowd of horned men. His physical strength was on the Eighth stage of the Overlord Plane as well, if he reinforced it with his elements, then his attack power would be a force to be reckoned with.

What made things even better was that with that light element, he could heal from all the hits he would eventually take while fighting against these people.

Grey's figure moved like a shadow within the crowd while his inscriptions attacked as well. He threw blows, used his legs, even headbutted one of the men who got too close to him.

The young horned man at the Peak of the Overlord Plane marveled at the performance of Grey and was forced to rush in as well. He initially wanted to watch the crowd overpower Grey, but he knew from the way things were going, that they wouldn't even be able to cause him any harm, much less overpower him.

Grey was hit while fighting against the crowd, but his light element was in full throttle as it worked to heal all the places he was hit while he fought.

In two minutes, Grey had taken out over thirty-five percent of the crowd. The young horned man's intervention in the battle slowed him down since he knew he couldn't neglect the attacks of the young horned man.

While fighting, he had been utilizing the gravitational force field, this had helped in putting his opponents off. He would disappear from a spot, and when he appeared in another location, he would immediately increase the gravity. Even for these people from the horned race who were used to such gravitational powers, the sudden change still affected them.

Grey also utilized his space element, manipulating it to the extreme.

The young horned man managed to force him out of the crowd, and he slammed into a building, destroying the entire building from the crash.

Before the crowd could even relax, Grey's figure shot into the sky and he opened both hands. Large boulders covered in powerful blue flames appeared in the sky.

"Meteor descent."

The large boulders fell from the sky, landing on different buildings as well as where the crowd was located. Grey minimized the size of the attack so as not to cause too many collateral damages. He was sure that their battles had already killed a few innocent citizens in this area. Although they weren't humans, it didn't mean that he condoned killing innocent people.

The horned men rushed to block the boulders in the sky, as they tried to protect themselves.

The young horned man at the Peak of the Overlord Plane created a lightning and ice sword and rushed at the boulders, slicing them apart.

When they finished dealing with the boulders, Grey's figure vanished from the sky and appeared in their midst. He opened both hands and a powerful repelling force spread out from the middle where he was standing, pushing everyone and everyone away from him.

The power of the move was on another level that even the young horned man at the Peak of the Overlord Plane didn't dare to take it head-on. He covered himself with ice and tried to block the mysterious repelling force from advancing.

Unfortunately, his strength was not enough to stop it from advancing.

This attack created a large empty space within a seven hundred meters radius. Everything and everyone within that range was either wiped out or forced out. The repercussion of such an attack was something that was dreadful.

Even the four geniuses at the Peak of the Overlord Plane couldn't help but look in the direction of the attack. They sensed it even though they were well over five hundred meters away from where the attack ended.

The soldiers fighting against them also looked in that direction.

Every single individual in the city had their attention in the same direction. The place where the attack originated from. At the center of the rubble, Grey could be seen standing leisurely. He looked a little exhausted after the attack.

"I never thought it would be this powerful if I used my entire strength." He muttered as he looked at his hands. This was a powerful attack that scared even him.

There was no building left standing around him, they were all in rubbles. He scratched his head awkwardly and looked in a particular direction.

The ground shook and a figure crawled out from the ground. It was none other than the young horned man at the Peak of the Overlord Plane. His current appearance was a far cry from what he looked like when he arrived.

He turned around slowly, looking at the aftermath of Grey's attack. Seeing debris and the dead bodies of the soldiers that attacked Grey, he flew into rage and his horns lit up.

"You animal!"

Chapter 804 Upheaval In The Capital

"What? You're allowed to kill my kind and I'm not allowed to do the same?" Grey looked at the furious young horned man.

He's encountered people like this since the start of his cultivation journey. To people like this, he didn't even have an ounce of strength to explain himself or any of his actions.

"No, you're not." The young man said through gritted teeth and attacked Grey.

There was a significant boost in the strength of the young man, evidently, the glowing of his horns seemed to improve his strength.

Grey couldn't be bothered with the strength the young horned man was displaying.

"I hate hypocrites the most." His eyes went cold and he vanished.

When he appeared, he was standing beside the young horned man.

The horned man was already prepared for this and he attacked with his lightning element. However, he felt the air grow heavier and he fell from the sky, heading to the ground.

Just as his figure hit the ground, he felt an intense heat, looking around, all he could see was a sea of blue flames.

Grey unleashed his domain. Even though he planned to keep it till the end, he wanted to kill this young horned man so badly that he didn't even care about it. Besides, it wasn't as if there were others here in the first place.

The horned man covered himself with ice in hopes to shield himself from the fire. Unfortunately, once caught in this inferno, very few in the Overlord Plane would be able to escape from it alive.

Grey watched as the ice melted away and the young man tried all he could to escape, but he was unable to leave the range of the domain. He shrieked in pain as his eyes turned red.

All he could see at this point was his death. He was just about to beat Grey up for killing people of his race, now, he was about to be killed by the same person he thought he would beat up.

"Damn it! I'll take you down with me!" He roared and his horns glowed even brighter.

Grey knew he was about to explode all the essence in his horns.

"Futile efforts." He muttered.

He looked around and saw one of the soldiers that managed to survive his attack and switched places with him.

The young man had already initiated the self-destruct, so even after Grey was nowhere to be seen, he was still unable to stop it.

"No... no..." He dragged his horns, trying to rip them off. He noticed that the second Grey left, the flaming inferno he was caged in faded off, this meant that he still had a chance to survive. Sadly, he had already initiated the self-destruct in hopes of taking Grey with him.

He looked at Grey, and the last thing he saw before dying was Grey's smiling face as he waved him goodbye.

Grey looked on as a large explosion rang out. The effect of the explosion was almost on the same level as Grey's last attack.

Being prepared for it, Grey was able to easily deal with the attack. When the explosion died down, the earth wall around him fell to the ground.

"Not bad. I guess the horns in my possession have another use." He chuckled before he continued moving forward.

He knew this wouldn't be the last battle he would have to fight since more opponents would be coming. But he wasn't afraid, as long as he didn't face someone in the Sage Plane, he felt confident in his abilities. If his opponent was too powerful, he would enter the Fusion State and beat the crap out of the person.

The second explosion from Grey's side of the battle stunned everyone. It hadn't even been more than two minutes since the first explosion, yet there was a second explosion almost on the same level.

"Who headed in that direction?" Gil looked in that direction curiously. He had already defeated all the people in front of him, and the cages in front of him were destroyed.

The place he was standing looked like an arena. This was one of the places where humans were forced to fight for their lives against beasts, or even each other.

Gil told the men to join them in their plan to rescue all the people that were captured in the capital. The rescued people had no option other than to agree. The reason for this was that most of them held deep-seated hatred for the horned race. A few of them had been here for over fifty years, fighting for survival frequently.

After being put through such difficult situations, all they wanted to do was to rip the people from the horned race apart.

Gil nodded and rushed in another direction. He was curious as to who went in that direction, but he didn't change their plans. The leader of the group gave him orders, and he wanted to carry them out.

Thinking about all the people that were given orders, his mind went to a particular figure, Grey. He was the only one who was given the freedom to move as he pleased. The chances that Grey was the one behind all the ruckus were very high. He wasn't the only one with this thought, the others felt the same as well.

They were each given an area to deal with. And none of those places had anything to do with the center of the city. They were told to meet at the center of the city after they were done with their objectives. The reason they spread out was so as to ensure that the forces of the horned race would have to separate as well.

They were at a disadvantage when it came to numbers. Minimizing their strength was the best thing they could do.

The upheaval Grey caused at the center of the city helped them even more since everyone from the horned race was rushing in that direction, giving the others the freedom to act more quickly. In fact, Grey was unconsciously making the mission easier than they expected.

Chapter 805 Massacre In The Capital

Boom!

Grey continued his onward movement, not phased by anything that tried to block his path. He hadn't fought against any other Peak Overlord Plane Elementalists, but he had defeated countless people from the horned race who tried to stop him.

When he was around one thousand meters or so from the palace, he felt the gravity suddenly increase.

'I see, they planned an ambush. Unfortunately, you're not the only ones who can play with gravity.' He smirked internally and tried to fight gravity with gravity.

He sensed friction in space when he sent out his gravitational force field. Luckily, the force field was on a small scale, so the friction wasn't that high.

'Hmm, I see.' He squinted his eyes.

The situation was a little dangerous, but he managed to escape from any problems. The clash of two opposing gravitational force fields was something that even the tough space here was almost unable to handle.

panda novel Grey acted as if he was impeded by the force field and stopped advancing momentarily. He only continued after much difficulty. Everyone could sense that his movement isn't as easy as it previously was.

When those from the horned race saw this, they sighed in relief. Grey had been a huge problem for them. Even though they were well aware that there were others in different parts of the city, none of them had caused as much damage as Grey had done.

Grey didn't fly because he was also using the opportunity to monitor things. Void told him there were two Peak Overlord Plane Elementalists hiding in wait. Not just that, but there are over five in the palace.

If he rushed inside the palace, he risked doing all the tough tasks in this raid. This wasn't how he planned it from the start.

'Void, you'll deal with one while I deal with the other one.' He said to Void who was nowhere to be seen.

'Got it.' Void's voice echoed in his head.

Grey didn't head in the direction of the Peak Overlord Plane horned race member, instead, he focused on the multiple horned men rushing at him.

The soldiers numbered in hundreds, and he was sure this was not all. If he fought against them all, he would be exhausted.

'You guys gave me a powerful weapon and think I won't use it?' An evil grin appeared on Grey's face as he rushed into the crowd.

When he got into the crowd, a breathtaking scene followed soon after. Wherever Grey passed, the horned man would scream in pain and burst apart. Grey didn't forget to grab the horns before they were destroyed as well.

The fact that this could cause friction in space was already evidence enough to show how powerful it was, now that he was using it as a means of attack, these people wouldn't be able to even defend against it, much less survive it.

The soldiers started to retreat in fear. All they heard were screams from their comrades wherever Grey passed through. It was as if Grey was a death god. What made things worse was that they didn't see him attacking, yet he was killing those close to him.

All those he had killed were still in the Mid stages of the Overlord Plane. When he got close to where those in the Late stages of the Overlord Plane were, they noticed the anomaly.

"He's using gravity against us. Break the formation!" One of the men in the horned race screamed before his head burst apart.

They gave Grey a deadly weapon, and he was using it to full effect. If not for the fact that this man was able to sense it, then the others wouldn't know what killed them.

Hearing the scream of the man before he died, those who created the formation couldn't help but exchange glances. This was something they hadn't heard of before, so they found it quite difficult to believe.

A few felt the man yelled this because he was on the verge of dying and wasn't thinking properly. It was only after ten more Late stage Overlord Plane Elementalists who managed to survive long before dying yelled the same thing did they finally believe it. Even the two Peak Overlord Plane Elementalists in the group were stunned.

Other than using the effect of the gravitational force field as a means of slowing and weakening their opponents, they had never seen any other way of using it to attack. Yet, Grey was using it so easily.

They hastily broke the formation, and when Grey got to where the next horned man was, the man fell to the ground from the sudden powerful gravitational force field around Grey.

This opened the eyes of all those watching.

"He made a force field around him. Doesn't that mean that both are clashing all this while?" One of the men that made the formation asked.

"This is what he had been using to kill our people. Such an evil individual, he shouldn't be allowed to live past today." One of the two Peak Overlord Plane horned men said through gritted teeth.

In the history of the horned race, Grey was probably the only person who had killed the highest number of their people with their own technique. What was worse was that they had a hand in helping him in his actions. The thought alone infuriated all those that made up the formation.

"They figured it out already? A shame, I was already getting the hang of this." Grey shook his head as he looked at the horned men that were on the ground around him.

Multiple black orbs appeared on his palm that rotated before each heading for a horned man. The horned men could only watch as the orb touched them. The second it touched them, those watching saw their comrades disappearing from view as if they were never there.

Grey was a frightening figure, and he killed without even blinking. This was what scared the members of the horned race even more. His methods of killing were numerous.

'Is he part of the same humans we have been capturing for years now?'

This was the thought that entered the head of almost every single member of the horned race as they watched Grey's horrifying methods.

Chapter 806 Disappear

Grey stood in the middle of multiple horned soldiers, but none of them dared to get close to him.

A smile appeared on his face as he took a step forward. He realized that these guys were already too scared to even block his path any longer.

"Move aside, you will only die if you try blocking my path." He stated calmly.

He didn't seem like someone who was in another realm, encircled by people from another race. Rather, he looked like someone who was taking a stroll in his backyard. This was one of the things that the soldiers found annoying, unfortunately, they knew they were no match for him.

What Grey did with the gravity already terrified them, seeing how he made those horned men vanish made things worse. Unknown to them, all Grey did was to use the logic from the wind element. If two opposing forces spinned in different directions, it would form something like a grater where they meet.

He noticed this when he tried to use his gravitational force field against the one those from the horned race created. When he sensed the potential of the skill, he hid from the powerful figures.

Only after killing many horned men did they finally find out. Now, with the gravitational field around him, anyone who got within five meters of him would feel a powerful pressure that would force them to the ground. This was the reason all these soldiers stared at him but didn't attack.

While Grey was moving forward, he saw a figure standing in front of his path.

"Your journey ends here." The horned man said coldly.

He was in the Ninth stage of the Overlord Plane, and Grey could tell his strength was well above ordinary people at the Ninth stage.

"I can say the same for you." Grey replied.

The horned man gave a nod and all the soldiers beside him created a space for them to engage in battle.

READ LATEST CHAPTERS AT ONLY.

"The general would teach him who's boss. Once the general beats him up, we will have the fun of tearing him piece by piece." Some of the soldiers engaged in a battle.

Grey overheard them but didn't feel much from it. He had defeated a genius at the Peak of the Overlord Plane, so he didn't feel threatened by someone who still hadn't even entered the Peak of the Overlord Plane yet.

When the general saw Grey's calm expression, he took a step forward and entered the five meters mark. He didn't flinch even after the pressure descended on him.

Grey was a little taken aback, but he didn't feel pressured. He didn't underestimate the horned man, even though he was confident he would beat him, he still didn't underestimate him.

The man charged at him after getting accustomed to the pressure. Grey blocked the attack of the horned man, but he was pushed back from the first blow.

He shook off the slight discomfort he felt in his hands and continued his fight with the horned man. They engaged purely in a fist fight, and Grey finally started to understand that a well-trained general of an army shouldn't be compared to a genius.

The general's skill and decision-making in battle were well ahead of Grey's. Even though Grey had superior elemental power, the general was more technical. Grey was forced to start using his elemental powers just after two minutes of constant battle.

He was on the back foot all through the time. The general attacked sensibly, not giving Grey the chance he wanted to use his flashy moves. While Grey was still having difficulties dealing with him, the general brought out a weapon.

A spear that had five different colors, blue, red, brown, silver, and black. Grey felt genuine pressure from the sword.

'Hey, take the spear, it's good.' Void's voice echoed in his head.

'I can tell.' Grey brought out one of the elemental weapons he had in his storage ring.

He engaged in combat with the general, and he wasn't able to take the advantage. However, he wasn't at a disadvantage as well. He fought sensibly now and gave the general very little opportunities to hit him.

The duo paused after fighting for over five minutes.

"You're a powerful opponent, I must give you that." The general commented and looked at Grey in a new light.

"I can say the same for you. You're not on the same level as those geniuses from your race I've fought against." Grey replied.

"Sadly, everything has an end. This will be the end of you. I hope you lived a good life till now." The general said and took an attacking pose with the spear stretched in front of him, aiming at Grey.

"I've been living a good life, and I will continue living a good life." Grey held his sword and prepared to attack as well.

Both parties looked at each other and vanished from their spots. All those in a lower stage saw was a bright light flashing.

A minute later, Grey and the general's figure stopped moving and they stared at each other.

"Goodbye." Grey said and kept his sword.

Even though the general was powerful, against Grey's array of elements, he still fell in the end.

Grey walked over to him and tapped him on the shoulder, "I will take this now. You don't know how to fully utilize it."

He took the spear from the hands of the general who stood still, not able to move. His eyes were placed on Grey's figure. He tried to speak and blood came out of his mouth.

"Let me show you the magnificent power of this spear of yours before you pass on." Grey held the spear in the sky and an orb started to appear on the tip.

The orb had five colors, identical to the one around the spear.

All those from the horned race sensed a powerful energy converging on the tip of the general's spear and they couldn't help but look at Grey. This was an attack the general had only been able to use once in battle, yet Grey was using it with such freedom.

"Disappear."

Chapter 807 Appearance Of An Old Expert

"Disappear."

Right after Grey's voice died down, a large explosion followed suit. The orb sitting at the tip of the spear shone with a bright light before spreading out in all directions.

"Fast, stop it." The Peak Overlord Plane horned man by the side yelled and jumped out from where he was hiding.

He wasn't the only one who came out, three more Peak Overlord Plane horned men jumped out as well as they tried to contain the explosion.

If they allowed this explosion to happen, then at least eighty percent of the soldiers left alive would die, not just that, but the destruction that would happen was too large. Grey had already destroyed some parts of the city, this explosion was going to have a larger impact compared to the last one.

All four Peak Overlord Plane horned men joined hands together to stop the explosion, after expending most of their strength, they managed to contain it.

"That's nice, I wonder how you plan to deal with the second one." Grey said with a slight smile on his face.

The four men looked at each other horrified, when they saw a second orb on the tip of the spear, their pupils shrunk.

"Run!" They turned to the soldiers and fled as well.

They could protect themselves, but they couldn't protect those soldiers. Luckily, they started evacuating the citizens to a protected area close to the palace. Even though not everyone had moved yet, the casualties wouldn't be too high.

Grey flew into the sky and looked on as the second orb exploded. The first orb which was contained by the Peak Overlord Plane horned men escaped and exploded as well.

With both explosions combining, the effect would be almost double what one would cause.

This explosion drew the attention of everyone once again. The four youths at the Peak of the Overlord Plane looked in that direction once again.

"What the hell is going on?" The leader of the group was stunned.

It hadn't even been up to ten minutes since the last explosion, yet a larger one had happened. He knew for a fact that Grey was the only one who went in that direction, but he never expected him to cause this much of a ruckus.

While they were trying to rescue all the humans, Grey was causing havoc in the city. They didn't know if they should be happy since this drew all the attention of the top horned men to him leaving them to carry out their mission peacefully, or they should be worried since the explosions are bound to harm the humans that were in that area.

Grey naturally didn't care about all this, all that mattered to him was getting the treasure inside the palace. Even if he had to tear this place apart piece by piece, he would. Well, unless the experts that weren't in the capital rushed over, then he would escape without a second thought.

Once he was done with this mission, his target was leaving this place, he was sure that was the plan of the five geniuses as well. They couldn't rescue every human here since they didn't even know how big this place was.

From the map Grey had, he knew this place was by no means small. It was even bigger than the Azure Continent with multiple cities. The only reason they appeared this close to the capital was all because where the portal appeared was not too far from the capital.

'This should show more of an effect.' Grey thought as he looked at the explosion.

He added the darkness element into the orb to ensure once it exploded, it would send out darkness particles across the place. Given the size of the place, the first one barely showed its effect. Once he added this to it, then the effect would be seen more clearly.

As long as these Peak Overlord Plane horned men were weakened by a bit, then he wouldn't have to fear them. They would still be a problem, but at least it wouldn't be too much for him to handle.

A minute later, the explosion died down and the horned men rushed back.

"You evil thing, I will kill you personally." One of the men said.

The man had red horns which indicated the fire element.

"Fiery." Grey commented casually.

He didn't feel pressured by the men. He knew they were all slowly getting weaker, so he didn't have to fear them.

The horned men rushed at him, not giving him any chance to think.

Grey smirked and his figure blinked, when he appeared again, he was standing between two of the Peak Overlord Plane horned men. In his previous spot was the horned man that was standing where he was currently standing.

The second he appeared, he attacked, sending the two horned men flying. They never expected this, but they still reacted accordingly.

They hurriedly tried to block the attack, but it still sent them flying. Grey rushed after them as he tried to take one of them out before the others would be able to join in on the battle.

Unfortunately, the red horned man rushed over and blocked him.

"You slippery brat, I will kill you." The man yelled and attacked.

Grey didn't panic as he blocked the attack that the man sent his way. They noticed that he preferred elemental attacks, so they did the same as well.

The battle flared quickly and Grey was crowded by all four men. The men were well organized, and after fighting with each other for so long, they understood each other perfectly.

Grey was placed at a disadvantage, and he couldn't even block their attacks perfectly.

'This is them in a weakened state? How powerful will they be in their full strength?' He was stunned.

The horned men were stronger than he predicted. It was just like when he was fighting against the general, even though he was confident in his abilities, he never thought that the general would be that powerful.

It was only after exchanging blows with him did he know that he was powerful.

'Void, I thought you were supposed to deal with one of them?' Grey couldn't help but ask.

'I did, he's here, unable to leave. Guess a few of them hid too well.' Void replied.

Grey was forced to continue fighting against the four men. He slowly started to emit darkness particles to ensure that they started to grow weaker as time went on.

Bang!

Grey slammed into the ground after receiving an attack from one of the men. The red horned man was the one who was attacking aggressively. It was almost as if he wanted to ensure that Grey died.

'Damn it! These people are too troublesome.' Grey complained.

He created a fusion orb that exploded when the men came close to him. The strength of the attack pushed them back as they tried to attack him.

Grey rushed at the man who was weaker amongst the four of them and started bombarding him with attacks. When he saw the others coming his way, he sent out a second fusion orb that pushed them back.

The horned men knew his plan so they tried to ensure that he wouldn't be able to kill the man he picked. If Grey succeeded, then he would be take out all the others as well.

Five minutes later.

Bang!

One of the horned men slammed into the ground. It was surprisingly the red horned man.

Grey was able to target him and hit him with a powerful attack. The red horned man started to bleed as the attack hit him.

'They're getting weaker.' Grey noticed a change.

Previously, he wouldn't have been able to hit them with this attack, but this time, he managed to break through his defense and hit him solidly.

"You still think you can defeat me?" Grey looked at the red horned man and threw a fusion orb at him.

The benefit of the fusion orb was that he could use it as much as he wanted to. His essence capacity was too high, so even if he used the attack continuously for hours, he wouldn't run out of elemental essence.

The red horned man watched on as the orb got to his body. Just as it was about to explode, another horned man appeared.

This man was older with wrinkles on his body. His hair was white and his beard was long, almost on his chest.

"Kid, you're powerful, I will give you that. But you're not on our level. If not for your ingenious plan, you wouldn't have been able to even hit them." The old man said with both hands behind him.

"I don't know what you're saying." Grey replied with a calm face.

"You're smart, but attacking this place was your biggest mistake." The old man said.

Grey looked at the man but didn't say anything, he could feel some sort of pressure from the man. This man was not ordinary.

Chapter 808 Void's Involvement

Grey looked on as the old man dealt with the fusion orb easily. It was as if the orb wasn't even a challenge for him.

'The darkness element. No wonder he noticed what I did.' He thought to himself.

The old man looked at Grey with a calm expression. He wasn't bothered by him, with a tap, the red horned man that was on the ground started to heal up.

'Hmm, he has the light element as well.' Grey's eyes narrowed as he looked at the old horned man.

Only after seeing this did he take his time to look at his horns. Now he understood why he missed the horn, they were very small. Compared to the horns of others, this old man's horn was very small.

"Kid, I'll let you live if you agree to give us your elemental core. This is a good deal for you since you get to keep your life." The old man said. To him, he was already being lenient with Grey, given the number of people Grey had killed, he was supposed to be executed in front of the entire kingdom, but since he could tell that Grey was extremely talented, he wanted his core.

"Actually, I can say the same for you. Remove your horns, and you just might not get to feel the pain when I do it myself." Grey smiled.

This old man might be powerful, but he was still in the Overlord Plane. Only someone in the Sage Plane can threaten him at this moment, and unfortunately for the horned race, there was no one in said Plane.

"Don't underestimate me kid, I'm not someone you can deal with." The old man didn't feel annoyed with Grey's statement. He also knew that their horns were valuable to people from other races. It was just like the way they were capturing humans for their cores.

"You might be powerful, but you're not enough to threaten me." Grey's eyes went cold.

'Void, deal with him. And make it quick.' He said to Void telepathically.

Void quickly killed the Overlord Plane horned man he kept captive and appeared behind the old man.

The old man sensed the vibration in the space behind him and turned around to attack. He knew Grey had the space element, so he felt Grey was trying to attack him from behind.

He threw a fist in that direction, but what he met was a large claw that sent him flying. Void's current size was well over two meters in length and over one meter tall. He wasn't like the cute little cat he always portrayed anymore.

Grey attacked the red horned man with the opportunity that presented itself from Void's attack.

His fusion orb struck the red horned man who was still in the midst of recovery after the old man healed him.

The other three horned men rushed over to block Grey. But he used his inscriptions to ward them off and focused on dealing with the red horned man.

The old man was infuriated by Grey's complete disregard for him and tried to get involved in the battle. However, he was blocked by Void.

"Get out of my way!" He threw a palm that was covered with a black light in Void's direction.

Void opened his mouth and spat out a fireball that crashed with the palm and destroyed the black light. Void's strength was not something the old man could take lightly.

When he realized this, he knew that there was no hope for him to be able to intervene in the battle. What was worse was that he hadn't cleansed the other horned men who were fighting with Grey. He only cleansed the red horned man since he was the one closest to him.

"You impudent creature, I'll skin you in the presence of your master." The old man stated coldly and attacked Void.

"He's not my master." Void replied and vanished.

He appeared behind the man and attacked. The old man was able to block the attack, but he was pushed back by the attack.

Void and the old man continued exchanging blows while Grey focused on the red horned man. With the weakening of the three horned men at the Peak of the Overlord Plane, they found it difficult to fight against the inscriptions.

Grey created six inscriptions to ensure that the attacks on the horned men will be sufficient to stop them. Nonetheless, they still managed to stop him from killing the red horned man.

They were, after all, at the Peak of the Overlord Plane, and they were very experienced fighters.

The battle raged on with Grey fighting against four opponents while Void was dealing with the old man.

The few soldiers who returned could only watch from the side. If they tried to get involved, they would only make things difficult for their superiors.

They couldn't even make use of their famed formation since Grey would just counter it with his own, putting their superiors in danger in the process.

Although Grey had the upper hand, he still got hit a few times by his opponents. It couldn't be helped, they were very powerful.

Just when the four were starting to feel they still had a chance, a change occurred on Void's side of the battle.

The old man who was being pushed back by Void suddenly froze, unable to dodge Void's claw attack. The claw hit him solidly on the chest and he slammed to the ground.

Before he could even move once again, Void appeared almost at the same time he slammed into the ground and continued his vicious assault.

Seeing the old man in trouble, the four horned men discarded their battle with Grey and rushed in that direction.

When they were twenty meters away from Void, they felt a powerful repulsion that pushed them back.

Grey appeared behind one of the horned men and the spear he took from the general pierced through his chest.

"You should focus on your battle." Grey whispered in the ears of the horned man.

He knew Void had used his domain, so he was more or less certain that the four horned men wouldn't be able to get close to Void. He quickly capitalized on the situation and injured one of them.

Chapter 809 Retreat

Twisting the spear, Grey removed the spear and just as it got to the tip, it exploded out destroying the body of the man to bits.

The three horned men were stunned when they saw this.

Void was assaulting the old horned man, while Grey on the other hand didn't spare the opportunity presented to him.

The three horned men were forced to fight against him since there was no way to get to Void. Their plan was to apprehend Grey and use him as a bargaining chip. They could tell that Void was here because of Grey, so if he saw Grey captured, he would most definitely let the old horned man go.

They fought desperately, but Grey held his own against them. His inscription and the space element made it difficult for the horned men to surround him.

While they were still fighting, they heard a scream coming from where Void and the old man were fighting. Looking in that direction, they saw Void plucking out the horns of the old man. It was just like Grey said, if the old man didn't offer up his horns by himself, then he would have to go through the pains of watching them being plucked out.

Void didn't go easy on him as he removed the horns either. In the most ruthless and savage way, he removed the horns.

The shrieks of the old man sent chills down the spines of every horned man present. Every member of the horned race would never want to experience this event. Removing the horns of a member of the horned race was not only a sign of embarrassment, it was the most gruesome thing that could happen to them.

Grey didn't really care about all this, and neither did Void. He removed the horns and moved them in the face of the old man.

The man held his face as he screamed in pain. He could feel his strength slowly receding. Their essence was stored in their horns, so losing it meant that they would gradually lose their strength. It was evident from the second the horns were removed.

"Now, die." Void said coldly and the space around the old man started to distort.

It was his special space attack.

The old man tried to fight against it, but he was already beaten by Void, adding the fact that his horns were ripped off, and his strength was not even close to someone in the Ninth stage of the Overlord Plane. He could only watch on as his body disintegrated into nothing.

Grey was the more focused fighter on his side. The death of the old man alarmed the three horned men he was fighting. They were unable to fight properly which gave him the chance to fight without pressure.

"What are you all doing? Attack them!" The red horned man was forced to call on the strength of the soldiers.

They couldn't fight like this, especially with Void watching from the side.

The soldiers nodded and rushed into the scene. Grey was forced to divide his attention to the soldiers. Void also joined in on the battle as well.

Boom! Bang! Bam!

The explosions from the attacks were massive, and as time passed, more and more soldiers started to flood the place. Grey might be powerful when fighting against a large crowd, but thousands of people were a little too much for him, especially when there are hundreds of Ninth stage Overlord Plane Elementalists and over ten at the Peak of the Overlord Plane.

The three horned men at the Peak of the Overlord Plane managed to call over more people at the Peak. Even though they were not on their level, they could still hold Grey and Void back.

'Grey, they're too much. Should we retreat?' Void asked.

The numbers were increasing as time went on, it was as if the soldiers were infinite.

Grey assessed the situation, and after realizing that it would be impossible for him to advance any further, he decided it was best for them to retreat. He was almost certain that his involvement had dragged all the powerful figures to this part of the city. He knew from the start that if he created a large scene, this would happen.

'Well, I've got a good number of horns, let's retreat then.' Grey said and turned around decisively.

He wasn't someone who would risk his life for a treasure. Besides, if not for the leader of the geniuses who wanted his help, he wouldn't have come here in the first place. The battles he fought here had taught him a few things, so he was satisfied.

When the horned men noticed that he was escaping, they were infuriated. Grey wanted to leave like that after what he did to them, impossible! at the Peak of the Overlord Plane chased after him with everything they had.

'They're chasing us.' Void said when he saw them.

'Guess it's time to give them some parting gifts.' Grey smiled and two horns appeared in his hands.

These were horns he took from the people of the horned race. After playing with it for a while, he threw them in the direction of the horned men chasing him.

"Insolence!" The red horned man yelled in annoyance, if he had the chance, he would rip Grey to pieces.

This was the first time he was seeing someone attack them with their horns. What was worse was that they knew how powerful an explosion from the horns would cause. Just looking at the horns showed that it was taken from a Late stage Overlord Plane Elementalist.

The horns exploded, but the horned men were already out of its range. This action made them want to capture Grey all the more.

Grey, noticing that they dodged the first one, smiled.

"I can play all day."

With that, he brought out another pair of horns and tossed them at the horned men chasing after him.

The horned men were red from anger. They had never been this angry in their lives. Grey was throwing horns at them, horns from their race.

Most of the horns were from the soldiers Grey killed not too long ago. They noticed him taking the horns, but they couldn't stop him.

Chapter 810 Drag Them All Here

Grey and Void rushed through the city, heading for the exit. He had been going in circles trying to stall for time for the others, but he felt he had already done enough.

They had been in the city for over thirty minutes now, if the others still hadn't completed their mission, it had nothing to do with him. If they still couldn't easily rescue the humans after he dragged out all the top experts in the city, then they were incompetent and slow.

While Grey was escaping, he saw Gil and the leader of the group heading in his direction.

"Done?" He asked.

The duo nodded.

"Thanks to you, things were smoother than we planned." The leader of the group replied.

"Nice." Grey didn't stop while speaking to them, he rushed past them and continued heading in the direction of the exit of the city.

Gil and the leader of the group wanted to ask what was wrong, but after sensing the infuriated roars from the horned men chasing after Grey, they decided it was best to run away for now. The auras they were sensing were not something they could deal with, especially given the number of people rushing there.

They turned in Grey's direction, fleeing as well.

"Duck!" Grey's voice came from ahead of them.

A confused look appeared on their faces, but seeing the shining horns that were coming their way, they didn't need anyone to tell them what to do.

The horns exploded in front of the horned men chasing after them, sending the horned men into rage once again.

"Ah... I'll kill you, I'll kill you all!" The red horned man yelled.

He was literally on the verge of going mad. Grey was insulting them with his antics. What was worse was that Grey had been going in circles, trying to buy time for the others, and he had also expended tons of horns in a bid to slow the horned men down.

"Isn't that one of the horns of those guys?" Gil asked as they caught up to Grey.

"Yap, it's quite handy, don't you think?" Grey took out another one and with a chuckle, he tossed it in the direction of the horned men chasing after him.

Gil and the leader of the group exchanged glances, they didn't think Grey would use the horns for such purposes. The thought of even taking the horns didn't even cross their minds, yet Grey not only took it, he even started to use it as a form of attack.

"No wonder those guys are upset." The leader of the group said with a knowing look on his face.

Gil laughed and rushed after Grey, he was just about to beg him for some horns when he saw some horned men fighting with the youths who came with them.

The youths were escorting the humans they rescued from the city. He rushed in that direction, leaving Grey and the leader of the group alone.

"You should lend a hand, I will be fine." Grey said to the leader of the group.

"Thank you, can you keep them busy a little longer?" The leader of the group asked.

"Two more minutes, no longer." Grey said to the leader of the group.

The leader of the group could only give a wry smile before nodding, "You've been helpful."

Two minutes later.

Grey rushed out of the city, with the horned men hot on his trail. The numbers of the Peak Overlord Plane Elementalist had increased to over twenty. At this rate, he was sure that over forty percent of the Peak Overlord Plane Elementals in the city were already out. He wanted to say fifty percent, but he didn't really know how many were left protecting the palace.

The formation that they used in blocking the city was easily broken as he fled. The horned men didn't even take a glance at the others since Grey was their main target. The King had ordered for Grey's head since he was the one who killed the highest number of his people. Forgetting the people he killed, just the soldiers alone was enough to cause an issue for any kingdom.

'Those guys are coming?' Void said to Grey as escaped.

'So quick?' Grey didn't expect the experts that weren't in the city to return so fast. It hadn't even been close to a minute since the array was destroyed, yet they were already here.

'They must have alerted them some other way.' Void said. They didn't know everything about the horned race, so there might be a way they could communicate with the experts outside the city without them knowing.

The brothers were an example, so Void wasn't too surprised they came here so quickly. However, it took a long time since the experts didn't come quickly.

'Looks like the array only delayed the transmission, but couldn't stop it.' Void said to Grey.

'My thoughts as well. But why are they only focused on me?' Grey was still trying to shake off the Peak Overlord Plane Elementals chasing him yet more were coming.

If not for the fact that he wanted to ensure that the others who came with him on the mission had escaped, he would've been nowhere to be seen. Even without using the Fusion State, he could still use the Great Void technique to leave these guys in the dust.

Six hours later.

The humans' hideout.

Grey walked into the cave only to be welcomed by a large crowd. He looked around before heading in the direction the leader of the group and the other geniuses were located.

"You made it back." Margaret exclaimed as she saw Grey.

"Hello." Grey waved at them before looking at the leader of the group.

"We'll leave in two days." The leader of the group knew the reason for Grey's coming.

Grey squinted his eyes and looked around, "Too long. Tomorrow, they should've recovered by then."

"They are not the issue, since we will be leaving in such a large group, we have to ensure that we draw as many experts here, to make things easier when leaving." The leader explained.

"What is your plan?" Grey thought about what he said and realized he was making sense. Given their current number, it would take them a long time for everyone to use the portal.

And since they couldn't go there twice, they had to ensure that they all used it.
