

After Divorce, She Becomes the Billionaire Heiress (Sylvia and Cyril) Chapter 149

Chapter 149: Big Brother's Idea

You can tell from the fact that the other party refuses to change their mind, just what Second Brother has put into this. Sylvia was really curious about it, but since Second Brother was dead set on keeping it under wraps, she gave up. "Well," she thought, "if he doesn't want to spill the beans now, I'll just ask him later."

"Well, I that's the case, let's talk about our collaboration. Did my brother mention it to you? I'm currently looking into a tech company. I don't know much about you, and I'm not entirely clear about your company either. He just hastily arranged for us to meet. Frankly, it seems quite inappropriate, especially to meet at the office."

As Sylvia started talking business, her demeanor changed. Her serious look deeply intrigued the man across from her, but what she said left Benjamin a bit puzzled.

"Collaboration?" Benjamin exclaimed, surprised. "While it's true I came here with that intention, the collaboration your brother mentioned wasn't about a tech company. My company isn't even in the tech sector."

Silence enveloped them both, neither expecting things to turn out like this. They had assumed the other's idea of collaboration matched theirs. But now they realized that wasn't the case at all their companies didn't align, what was the point of discussing collaboration?

w that. So why bring in someone totally unrelated?

Sviva couldn't wrap ber head around it. She was clearly involved in the tech industry now, and her brother knew that Sov

After a moment, Benjamin chuckled. He figured out what Sylvia's brother was up to. Frankly, it was a bit unethical, but hey, when opportunity knocks, you've got to seize it, right?

"think I've figured out what your brother wants. Though I can't collaborate with you directly, I do have contacts who could. You've probably seen Frank's profile, you know about his connection with Cyril So, I assume you won't be collaborating with him anymore. I have another company in mind that could be a potential match. Let me organize the details and send them to you later. Let's exchange contact information."

His main goal was to exchange contact information, but mentioning the tech company piqued Sylvia's interest. She couldn't find a reason to object, so she reluctantly gave him her work phone and added his contact details

Benjamin noticed that Sylvia's phone was different from the one she usually used, but he didn't think much of it. "It's all business," he thought, seeing no harm in it.

"Well, in that case, let me treat you to a meal I really didn't expect my brother to put you in such a difficult position..

"It's not that difficult," Sylvia interjected "I'm actually happy to be doing this. It's been a long time since we last met, so I'm glad for the opportunity. And your brother also gave me a choice, I didn't refuse."

After a pause, Benjamin added, "But if you're offering to treat me, I certainly won't refuse."

Sylvia reactantly took him out for lunch she had to admit, Benjamin was indeed a very considerate and gentle man

He knew Sylvia might not be used to this kind of atmosphere, so he spoke patiently, always bringing up interesting topics to ease her nerves.

After a pleasant meal, they parted ways to attend to their respective tasks for the afternoon.

As soon as Benjamin left, Sylvia's expression changed. She immediately called Baik.

"My dear brother, do you need to explain what's going on? Was the purpose of bringing this person today not about discussing collaboration at all? Did you just want me to assess him and bring him home

The way he looked at her was too suggestive. If this continued for too long, she might end up with another admirer around her.

Sylvia was fuming. She couldn't understand what her brother was thinking. He knew her well enough to know she wasn't interested in relationships. Could she really jump into another one so quickly after being hurt?

Baik protested on the other end of the line, "It's not my fault! It was Big Brother's idea. He said if you continued like this, your health would suffer. Seeing you unhappy makes us sad too. So, I thought of a way to help you relax. Besides, this guy contacted me on his own. I just thought he might have a company that could collaborate with yours. After all, we're just making recommendations within reasonable limits. You two were middle school classmates; what's the harm in chatting?"

“You wouldn’t normally do something like this. Are you trying to get back at me for not treating you well over the years? If so, can’t you find a better way than using something like this to get back at me?”

Sylvia gritted her teeth. If this guy really was sent by Big Brother, Balk would definitely try to reject him. But now, with Big Brother and Balk working together, it was obvious they were up to something.

Hearing Sylvia’s words, Balk burst into laughter. “Your brother isn’t that over the top. I just thought it was time for you ou to start a new life. Yes, the company is your responsibility, but that doesn’t mean your whole life should revolve around it. You should do other things too. Even if you’re not getting married, you should at least date. There are so many men in the world, take your time to choose. We’re just making reasonable recommendations. In the end, it’s up to you to decide.”

“Alright, I don’t want to hear any more about this. I have work to do.”

She hung up and walked to the office, feeling irritated. On her way back, she received another call from Big Brother.

She didn’t need to guess, it was definitely because Balk had run to tattle on her, or Big Brother had found out she met Benjamin. Reluctantly, she answered the call.

Chapter 150: Sense of Crisis

“What do you think of the person your big brother set you up with? He’s been into your slice childhood, you know? Then there was that thealty with Cyll, a lot of it was because of you. But later on, realizing you might be stuck in the middle, he hacked off and went abroad. Now seeing each other again, how do you feel?”

Usually, my big brother isn’t this nosy, Who got him into this?

Sylda felt a headache coming on. She saw Juliet staring at her with gossip written all over her face, making her headache worse.

“It’s been so many years since we’ve seen each other, what’s there to feel? Right now, my priority is sorting out the company’s collidiorations, other matters well, they’re not on my radar. Plus, I didn’t even recognize him back then, and now I’m even less likely to. You two are making this really awkward for me,” Syhia thought the guy came to discuss business, so she brushed it off casually at first. Later, she realized things weren't that simple. Her two brothers were really complicating things for her.

"All of this is your brothers' thoughtful concern. Anyway, you can think about it later. But it's true he likes you, and now that you're divorced, you've got to consider other options. He'll probably keep pursuing you for a while. Now, let's talk about the company's matters. Frank's company, Juliet has briefed me. If we don't collaborate, so be it, but you have to find another company. Otherwise, our people will need explanations. And how about the situation with the subsidiary?"

"It's almost sorted. There are still a few puppeteers behind the scenes we haven't caught yet. Once we grab them, I'll be mostly done. As for the collaboration, I'm already considering it. Don't worry, I've got things under control."

With the personal stuff out of the way, Sylvia breathed a sigh of relief and started discussing the recent state of the company seriously.

After discussing company matters, the siblings hung up. Sylvia put down her phone and looked at Juliet. "Did you secretly inform me about what's been happening lately?"

"Oh, come on, don't blame me! Your brother bombarded me with too much information. Plus, you know how irresistible he is when he's right in front of me. So, I had to spill the beans, sorry about that. How about I treat you to dinner?"

Juliet hadn't expected Sylvia to catch on so quickly, leaving her with no escape. She had to awkwardly blurt out these words.

"Never mind, let's not talk about this anymore. It's not that big a deal"

Even if it wasn't Benjamin today, it would've been someone else. So, fussing over this didn't make sense at all.

Anyway, once the company matters were settled, she'd be out of here soon. It wouldn't be wise to burn bridges now, especially since no one had done anything out of line. Let it be for now, future matters could be dealt with in the future.

However, Sylvia had underestimated the situation a bit. The incident where Bark beat someone up had been trending for days, putting her in the spotlight as well.

So, when Sylvia and Benjamin had dinner together, the media caught wind and spread the news online. Coincidentally, Barry saw it.

Barry felt uneasy seeing the news. Just as he was about to put away his phone, Cyril's voice sounded from behind him.

“Let me see your phone.”

Startled by the sudden voice of the I the big boss, Barry complied, handing over his phone along with the news article. Cyril looked at the online buzz expressionlessly. No one knew what he was thinking, especially Barry, who was now even more nervous...

Barry couldn't help but complain inwardly. What kind of dead-end question was that? Compatibility? What's the use of that now? They're divorced! If you're feeling jealous and insecure now, why didn't you do something earlier?

Though he was thinking all of this, he didn't dare say a word. He nervously replied, “Those online talks must have poor eyesight. Benjamin isn't a good guy. 1 when he was against us weren't noble, it's just that there's no comparison now. If there was, they'd surely think you, boss, are better, more compatible.” “You make a point. Find a way for me to meet Sylvia”

The things he did

Cyril did feel a hint of crisis. Back then, when he was at odds with Benjamin, part of it was because of Sylvia, Knowing their relationship wasn't great, it not unfamiliar, it was Benjamin's actions that fueled his anger towards Sylvia.

Now that this guy was reappearing, Cyril felt he needed to be cautious about him more than anyone else

So, he had to find a way to appear in front of Syhla and make sure she focused on him. As for Benjamin, he needed to stay on the sidelines.

He hadn't realized how difficult his request was expecting Sylvia to meet him when she clearly didn't want to Barry felt helpless. He wanted to say something, but Cyril didn't give him the chance, walking away.

As Cyril walked farther away, Barry felt even worse. Meeting Sylvia, now he had to figure out how to do that. It wasn't as simple as taking a car home like before. Even getting an appointment wasn't guaranteed now,

And Syria, she probably didn't want to meet Cyril right now.

But he had to follow the boss's orders. Barry had no choice but to try to arrange a meeting with Sylvia in the company's name, but whether it would succeed was uncertain.
