

Revenge On Love Rats After Rebirth by Olivia Marsh Chapter 1317 Want To See Selena?

Chapter 1317 Want to See Selena?

"Other things aside, relying on a boyfriend even for the old master's birthday celebration, Miss Turner is really heartless..."

Leia's anger had almost subsided, but seeing Vivian still stubbornly arguing with these annoying women, she burst out again. "You are all so annoying!"

"This painting was hand-painted by Madam Selena for the old master, and has nothing to do with my young master!"

"Madam Selena did not attend the old master's birthday celebration because he ordered us not to tell her about it!"

"She only found out about it this morning."

"Otherwise, Madam Selena would have given a better birthday gift!" Leia sneered at Vivian. "It's definitely something you, Miss Shaw, can't compare to!"

With Leia's words, the scene fell into a strange silence once again. Vivian's face froze once more.

Antonio's hand trembled and he almost dropped the painting he was holding.

Everyone looked incredulously at Selena, who was standing next to Osvaldo.

This painting was hand-painted by Miss Turner?

Selena frowned. She was impatient with these people, which was why she didn't want others to know that she had painted the picture. But these women were just too noisy.

After Vivian regained her senses, she could no longer control the trembling and sharpness in her voice. "This is impossible!"

Leia glared at her in anger. "What's so strange about Madam Selena being able to paint? I've seen her paint many times."

"This painting was painted by Madam Selena in just ten minutes before leaving this morning. I saw it with my own eyes. Miss Shaw, do you have any more questions?"

Vivian's face turned pale as Leia scolded her. She wanted to refute, but when she caught a glimpse of Osvaldo's cold gaze, she had to swallow her words.

Freddie had warned her earlier to control her words and actions. If she continued to be stubborn, her just-recovered image might crumble again.

Vivian clenched her trembling fingers and coldly stared at Selena, closing her mouth unwillingly.

On her side, she remained silent, but Antonio and a group of old men who had just learned the truth were on the verge of going crazy.

They looked at the young girl across from them in disbelief.

Did Selena paint this herself?

It's unbelievable that a nineteen-year-old girl can create such an imaginative painting.

The group of people were all stunned into silence.

Osvaldo gave a cold glance at everyone present.

Other than herself, Selena had only ever painted for him before.

Now, this honor had been shared with the old man from the Anderson family, which had already made him unhappy, and now these women were bothering Selena, which made him even more impatient.

If it weren't for the fact that Antonio was Osvaldo's biological grandfather, he would have taken Selena and left long ago.

Antonio finally understood why this young man had been looking at him with such a cold gaze.

It turned out that he had been robbed of his treasure, no wonder...

Antonio carefully hid the painting, knowing that with his grandson's terrible temperament, the chances of him getting another painting from Selena's hands were not very high.

After figuring out the source of the painting, the smile on Antonio's face couldn't be hidden any longer.

Looking at Selena, his gaze became even more kind, "I really likes Selena's gift."

Other people who found out the truth also praised Selena.

"Miss Turner really is talented. There is almost nothing she can't do..."

After the incident passed, Osvaldo lowered his head and asked Selena, "Are you tired, Selena?"

Selena had finished giving her gift and didn't really want to stay here to deal with these trivial matters, so she nodded her head, "I'm tired."

Seeing this situation, Antonio waved his hand generously, "Hurry up and take Selena to rest."

In full view of everyone, Osvaldo led Selena away.

Hattie gave Vivian a glare, said hello to Leon next to her, and followed them with her hands behind her back.

Osvaldo took Selena to where he lived, and the servants brought lunch that Lady Lauren had personally prepared for Selena.

After all, it was the Anderson family's banquet today, and Selena could be indulged in laziness, but Osvaldo couldn't let his mother be busy alone.

Osvaldo went to the front hall, and Hattie sat with Selena in the pavilion to eat.

After lunch, the two sisters sat in the pavilion chatting.

Selena hadn't had much contact with Hattie since the incident with the Riddle family, so she asked she for details.

Hattie explained the situation with the Riddle family to Selena.

After everything was over, Hattie asked Selena, "Selena, why didn't my brother just take care of that woman directly?"

Hattie had previously thought that Leon didn't move on Manny because he was worried about her scumbag father and the twins.

But after all this investigation, Hattie had grown a lot. She had a better understanding of her brother, and naturally, had grown in many ways.

Before Mrs. Riddle died, Hattie was the high and mighty Miss of the Riddle family. If it wasn't for that accident, she probably wouldn't have had a chance to witness the bloody and dangerous scenes in her entire life.

But her mother died early, her father suddenly changed, and Leon saw that she listened to Selena's words and wanted to take revenge himself, so his protection of Hattie wasn't as meticulous as before.

He began to deliberately or unintentionally expose Hattie to the brutality of the power struggle.

Hattie had followed Leon for a while and seen many things she had never experienced before. She had a deeper understanding of her brother.

Leon was definitely not the kind of person that rumors made him out to be.

If he really had the intention, her scumbag father would not be his opponent at all.

Taking care of Manny and the twins would be as easy as turning over one's hand.

But Leon had been quiet all along, letting the mother and others stay intact in the Riddle family. Hattie couldn't understand. She had asked Leon this question before, but Leon didn't give her a direct answer, he just told her to ask Selena.

Selena smiled and lightly touched her hair, "There are many things that you don't need to know yet."

"You only need to know one thing."

"Neither I nor your brother will let that woman go!"

"I will definitely kill that woman and avenge your mother!"

When Hattie heard Selena mention her mother's death, her eyes reddened slightly.

She leaned against Selena's embrace, and after a moment of silence, suddenly thought of something and looked up at Selena, "Oh, Selena, grandpa privately told me that he wants to see you."

"He also warned me not to tell my brother."

Selena raised an eyebrow.
