

Revenge On Love Rats After Rebirth by Olivia Marsh Chapter 1333 Abandonment

Chapter 1333 Abandonment

She had already taken the most crucial step tentatively. Would it still be far before she completely accepted him, fell in love with him, and became his wife?

Selena originally wanted to say that there was nothing important enough to call him. But facing the man's almost drowning gaze, she couldn't say the words that were on the tip of her tongue. Selena suppressed her anxiety and blushed, saying, "I'll try my best."

Upon hearing this promise, Osvaldo smiled joyfully. He took Selena's hand and led her to wash her hands before the two sat at the dining table and enjoyed a delicious dinner. During the meal, no one showed the slightest hint of nervousness about the upcoming competition for the position of the director of the research institute.

After dinner, Selena followed Osvaldo to the basement to practice martial arts, and by 10 o'clock, she was ready to go to bed.

Compared to Selena, who was already fast asleep, there weren't many people in other capital families who could sleep that night. Especially the Shaw family, where the lights in the study were almost on all night.

After the other members of the family left, Vivian pushed open the door and walked in.

Freddie sat behind the desk, looking tired. When he heard the sound, he looked up at Vivian for a moment.

Vivian walked over and shouted, "Brother..."

Freddie raised her hand and rubbed her brow. Suddenly he lowered her hand and stared at Vivian with heavy eyes.

Vivian met his eyes, felt somehow fearful, "Brother, what happened to you?"

Freddie looked at her for a long time and then said, "Forget that man."

From the moment he decided to cooperate with Cassius, the Shaw family was destined to be on the wrong side of the Turner family.

There would be no mercy on the Shaw family from Cassius.

And between them more than ten years of brotherly love also broke.

He even gave up the brotherly love, Vivian's unrequited love for more than ten years also can only completely come to an end.

Vivian was stunned, burst into tears, "Brother, what are you talking about? Are you drunk..."

In the past, Freddie had never told her to give up, although he did not like that.

Outside, people called her shameless, too confident about herself, but unexpectedly, even Freddie said so now.

Vivian can not accept, tears gushed out.

Freddie looked at her expression and could not bear it. He looked away, but his voice was firm. "Don't go to the Anderson's again."

Vivian was shocked and her voice changed as she exclaimed, "Brother!"

Tears streamed down her face. For over a decade, she had relied on her relationship with Freddie and Osvaldo to get closer to the Anderson family.

Even after Selena appeared and she became a laughingstock, she never missed a chance to get closer to that man.

But Freddie had asked her to give up on him, to cut off all opportunities to get closer to him. "Those women may not be polite, but they're telling the truth," Freddie said coldly. "That man will never like you, not in this lifetime."

Before Selena appeared, he hadn't fallen for Vivian.

After Selena appeared, he never would.

Everyone could see the Anderson family's infatuation. If Kiera could turn Cassius, once a proud son of heaven, into a traitor, what chance did Osvaldo have?

He would do anything for Selena.

Vivian had provoked Selena so many times, but he didn't retaliate. One reason was that he knew Vivian was no threat to Selena, and he disdained hitting a woman. Another reason was that he gave her a choice: give up the glamour and wealth of the Shaw family and repay the Turner family, or oppose Selena to the end.

Obviously, he had already made his choice when he decided to work with Cassius.

Once their brotherly relationship was broken, Vivian naturally lost her privileges.

Freddie's words tore her heart to pieces. She cried her heart out. She had been obsessed with that man for over a decade.

Giving him up was like digging out her heart.

Freddie couldn't bear to hear his sister cry, but his tone was still cold. "There are plenty of good men in the world, not just Osvaldo."

"The patriarch of the the Baker family told me today that his grandson likes you very much, and it's time for you to consider your future..."

Vivian felt shocked. She looked at Freddie incredulously.

He wanted to use her marriage to form an alliance.

Vivian has been struck repeatedly, her face contorted. "No, brother! I will never marry anyone but him in this lifetime," she said.

"Enough!" Freddie suddenly exploded in anger and interrupted her, "Vivian, you are the young lady of the Shaw family. Your marriage is not just your own problem, it concerns the whole family!"

"As the young lady of the Shaw family, you are demeaning yourself for a man who doesn't love you... Can you justify this to the Shaw family who raised you?"

Vivian's crying abruptly stopped.

Freddie had never spoken to her so sternly before, and for a moment, Vivian was frightened. When she came to her senses, her heart tightened instantly.

For the daughters of aristocratic families, marriage is mostly a tool for alliances.

Those who are lucky can seek a match that is suitable for them.

For those who are not so lucky, as long as they maintain their grace, they can do whatever they want in private, and no one will bother them.

This is a well-known fact.

When Freddie was in charge before, as the young lady of the Shaw family, and since everyone knew that she had a crush on the young master of the Anderson family, no one dared to interfere with her marriage.

But now, at this critical juncture for the Shaw family, after confirming that the young master of the Anderson family is unlikely to like her, Vivian's marriage has naturally become a bargaining chip.

Vivian instinctively wanted to refute him, but when she looked at Freddie's exhausted and stern face, her heart choked up.

But did she really have to listen to Freddie and give up Osvaldo and obediently become a tool for the family's alliances?

Vivian's eyes turned scarlet, and she trembled as she shouted, "I won't accept my fate!"

After speaking, she turned and ran out.

Freddie didn't stop her from leaving. He thought about the election for the research institute tomorrow and his eyes became sharp and heavy.

...

The next morning, Selena got up as usual, washed up, and went downstairs to have breakfast.

The hall was empty, and when Selena looked around, she didn't see Osvaldo, so she knew that he was busy.

Selena didn't think anything was wrong and sat down to eat quietly.

The butler had already prepared breakfast, and Selena was going to ask where Osvaldo was.

After all, today was a special situation, and Selena hoped that Osvaldo could be with her.

But when the young girl went downstairs and looked around, she only confirmed that Osvaldo was not there...
