Chapter 1334 The Turner Family's Affair is Unrelated to Mr. Poole

Selena began to have breakfast as usual, seemingly unaffected by the news.

After patiently waiting for her to finish, the butler spoke up, "Madam Selena, about the young master-

"Selena." A voice from outside interrupted the butler.

Selena turned to see Patrick walking in. "Are you ready?" he asked.

She nodded. "Noah, don't worry. Everything will be fine," she said to the butler.

Remembering what Osvaldo had told her last night, she added, "And if I can't handle it, I'll call him."

The butler remained silent.

Once Selena finished speaking, she followed Patrick out of the room.

The butler watched her leave, the words he had been about to say lingering on his lips. But perhaps it was better this way. Surprises were always more exciting when unexpected, and it would benefit the young couple's relationship.

Patrick opened the car door and Selena got into the backseat, headed for the research institute. He hesitated for a moment before speaking. "If you feel uncomfortable about this, Selena..."

Seemingly knowing what he was going to say, Selena looked up and smiled. "If I don't take this position as the dean, it would be an insult to both the Shaw and Poole families," she said mischievously, a glint in her dark eyes. "But you can rest assured. If my replacement isn't up to my standards, I won't give up my position easily."

She felt indebted to the Turner family and was willing to work hard, but that didn't mean she was a pushover. No one could use her unless she allowed it.

Patrick breathed a sigh of relief at Selena's words. The strained relationship between his father and cousin was a constant worry for him.

While he understood that Oscar must have had his reasons for treating Selena the way he did, it didn't change the fact that she had been mistreated.

Seeing that Selena was handling it well made him smile. "As long as you're happy, Selena."

However, he didn't see Osvaldo's figure in the villa.

On such a special day, that man was not there...

Patrick furrowed his brow, but unusually didn't say anything, just patted Selena's shoulder.

Half an hour later, the car stopped outside the gate of the research institute.

Oscar was sitting in a wheelchair, waiting at the door.

Selena's eyes flickered when she saw Oscar.

Even Oscar came in person... which could only mean that the situation was definitely not small.

Selena walked over with a calm face, stood in front of Oscar, and greeted him with a smile, "Uncle."

Oscar's gaze fell on Selena's face.

Her face was free of makeup, but her slender neck, and her exquisite and appropriate dress, no matter from which aspect, she was flawlessly perfect.

Oscar's tone was light, "Did the Riddle family come looking for you yesterday?"

Patrick looked at her with a slightly surprised look.

Selena's eyes flashed slightly, she bent down slightly, and looked at Oscar from a patient-friendly angle, "Maddox came to me, but he didn't say anything important."

Oscar paused for a moment as he watched the girl's caring gestures, then said, "If you find it difficult, the Turner family can step in to help you solve this trouble."

Although the Riddle family was Selena's blood relatives, they were not as close as the Turner family in terms of blood relationship.

From the perspective of blood relations, it was only natural for the Turner family to step forward to protect Selena.

Selena shook her head slightly, "It's not necessary. Neither Maddox nor Daphne should come looking for me again in the future."

Penelope was now in her hands, and Daphne was afraid to do anything to anger her.

As for Maddox...

Selena had already made her position very clear yesterday, and with her strong attitude, Maddox wouldn't dare to argue with her over their blood relationship if he was smart enough.

After listening, Oscar fell silent for a moment, "That's good then. Patrick, push me in."

Patrick came over and pushed Oscar's wheelchair. Selena walked beside Patrick, looking at Oscar's back.

It seemed that in capital, there was really no such thing that could escape the surveillance of this commander...

The Turner family of three walked into the conference room, and on the way, they ran into the Poole family.

Christ was wearing a black suit, his dark eyes falling on Selena's face for the first time.

Selena's expression was calm.

Patrick saw the man's aggressive gaze and almost subconsciously stepped forward to block Selena behind him.

Christ couldn't see Selena and smiled, turning his gaze to Oscar, speaking politely, "Commander Turner, how are you?"

Oscar's expression was calm, "Thank you for your concern, Mr. Poole. The Turner family is doing well."

Christ smiled insincerely, "The Turner family clearly has you and Patrick. How is it that all the burdens fall on Miss Turner's shoulders? She's just a girl, and she's so pitiful-looking. How can you two bear to put such a heavy burden on her?"

If it weren't for Selena in the Turner family, things wouldn't have gone so smoothly.

They wouldn't have been able to force the Shaw family and the Poole family into this position so quickly.

Patrick's face immediately turned cold, but he couldn't refute him.

The burden of the Turner family did indeed fall mostly on Selena's shoulders.

Oscar's expression remained unchanged, "The Turner family's affairs have nothing to do with you, Mr. Poole."

Christ smiled and glanced at Selena, who was blocked behind Patrick, before turning and leaving with the Poole family.

Patrick turned to look at Selena, "Selena..."

Selena was looking down at her phone, and when she heard the sound, she looked up, "What's wrong?"

Patrick looked at her somewhat bewildered expression and suddenly understood why Selena hadn't spoken earlier. He laughed, "Are you texting him?"

Selena was caught off guard and her face turned slightly blushing, "I promised him last night that I would send him a message today..."

She was afraid that she wouldn't have time after going in, so she wanted to send a message to Osvaldo before going in.

She had been struggling for a long time and still hadn't figured out what to send.

Patrick could see the girl's dilemma at a glance and kindly said, "There's still half an hour before the meeting starts. Father and I will go in first, and you can think about it slowly, Selena."

With that, he turned and pushed Oscar forward.

Selena's cheeks flushed even more, but she still found a place to lower her head and think carefully, looking at her blank phone screen.

Patrick pushed Oscar towards the conference room. Along the way, Oscar suddenly asked, "Has anything happened between that young master of the Poole family and her?"

At this question, Patrick's face immediately darkened, "When we were in Creephia, Christ tried to kill Selena several times!"
