

Revenge On Love Rats After Rebirth by Olivia Marsh Chapter 1345 The Character Cannot Collapse

Chapter 1345 The Character Cannot Collapse

Once she successfully stepped on Selena today and made the Shaw family the head of the research institute, who in the capital would dare to mock her?

Vivian stared at Selena on the screen with a gloomy expression.

She had been suppressed by Selena for too long and had dreamed of stepping on her!

The Turner family was weak in the research institute and had no advantage in voting.

The Poole family had half of the power, but Christ's thoughts on Selena were too uncertain.

In addition, he did not hesitate to refuse those who tried to please him for the benefit of their families. Those people were unable to do anything and could only come to the Shaw family for refuge.

The Shaw family, along with these aristocratic families, was enough to contend with the Poole family!

As long as their votes were all cast for the Shaw family, they could steal the day and change the whole research institute!

Instead of worrying about the Turner family coming to power and being suppressed by the Poole family all day long, it was better to take the opportunity to kick both the Turner family and the Poole family down and become the master!

Vivian showed an ambitious smile.

Vivian's words made most of the people in the Shaw Group move.

But some people were not reassured, "Mr. Shaw should not agree. Before he came, he repeatedly urged us to be careful and not impulsive..."

Vivian gritted her teeth.

Since Freddie was tricked by Selena in the incident at Union University, he had become hesitant in his actions.

Previously, his order was to never allow the Shaw family to agree to the opening of the voting system.

With the three major power institutions of the research institute, the Turner family was weak, and the Poole family was wavering. As long as the Shaw family did not loosen their stance, they could guarantee that more than one-third of the people would oppose this proposal.

Even if Christ was in favor of Selena, it would be useless.

As long as they did not go that far, the position of the research institute director could not be settled.

Even if the Shaw family did not stop Selena today, they could still find a way to discuss it in the long run.

This was the safest and most reliable way!

But as Vivian looked at Selena on the monitor, who had a calm expression, she remembered Freddie asking her to give up Osvaldo and marry into the Baker family...

She made up her mind and sneered, "Then I won't tell my brother."

The people in the lounge were all shocked.

"No--"

Vivian suddenly turned her head and coldly stared at the person who spoke, "If we miss this rare opportunity, and are subsequently driven out of the research institute by the Turner family, will you take responsibility for the consequences?"

The person choked, "But... but..."

Vivian stared at Selena and sneered, "If the Shaw family hadn't hesitated before and acted earlier to eliminate the Turner family, would there be any trouble today? 'Fortune favors the bold! How can you get what you want without taking risks?'"

"The Turner family has always been like this, haven't they?" Selena could do what she could, so she must be able to do it too!

The person hesitated for a moment after hearing Vivian's words, "If the young master didn't personally give the order, those families wouldn't listen to us..."

Vivian's eyes gleamed with cunning, "That's not something you need to worry about. You just need to listen to me, represent the Shaw family, and agree to start the voting election."

"My brother is just too cautious. He didn't even think that the Turner family has been expelled from the research institute for so many years. Except for Selena, there is not a single Turner family member among the high-ranking officials of the research institute."

"Even if there really is a vote, how many votes can Selena get?" Vivian seemed to have already seen the scene of Selena becoming a joke and laughed out loud, "Moreover, even if Christ really supports Selena, he can only do so much."

"Christ is still a Poole. Even if he is the head of the Poole family, he dare not openly shake the foundation of the Poole family."

"In any case, Selena's vote cannot surpass the Shaw family!" Vivian analyzed the situation confidently, and after careful consideration, the people around her gritted their teeth and agreed with Vivian's decision.

They heard Selena say that she would give up running for the position of dean of the research institute. This meant that Miss Turner was unlikely to participate in the voting election.

And even if the Shaw family's vote failed, the worst-case scenario was still that the Poole family would take charge, which wasn't much different from the current situation.

After making the decision, Vivian sneered at Selena and left the lounge.

The others also went to contact the families related to the Shaw family one after another.

In the lounge, Selena picked up the teacup on the table and took a sip of water while Oscar suddenly spoke, "Aren't you afraid?"

Selena gently put down the water cup and smiled, "Of course I'm afraid."

Oscar looked at her quietly.

Selena's lips curled into a cruel arc, and her tone was calm, "Everyone has weaknesses, and isn't Cassius' weakness already obvious?"

When Cassius threatened her by using what she cared about, did he ever think that what she cared about was already exposed under her nose?

For that woman, Cassius could betray even his own family members, so why would he let her get away with killing someone over a secret that had nothing to do with him when it was time for him to speak up? He would naturally do so. It was just a different way of doing it.

Oscar stared at Selena, his eyes deepening. Selena keenly sensed that there was a change in his gaze, blinked, and suddenly wiped away the fierceness on her face, returning to an elegant and dignified demeanor. Selena felt guilty and lowered her eyelashes. This couldn't be helped... it was definitely her occupational disease! When facing an evenly matched opponent, she always unconsciously wanted to compete with them.

Noticing Selena's image faltering a bit, she raised her head, opened her clear black eyes wide, and looked at Oscar with a sweet smile. Oscar paused for a moment and then said, "Although that's what I said, opportunities like this are rare. If we give up the election now and let the Shaw family and the Poole family succeed, the next election may have to wait another decade or so."

Selena nodded earnestly and said, "Uncle is right. The Turner family doesn't have that much time to wait for another decade or so."

"Diego worked hard to keep the position of the dean for the Turner family. To avoid wasting his efforts, this time, the Turner family is determined to win the position of the dean of the research institute!"

The two negotiators smoothly and effortlessly completed the task.

Footsteps were heard outside the door. Patrick pushed the door open and walked in. He saw his cousin and father sitting face to face, not knowing what they had said, and had an indescribable feeling.

Patrick walked up to Selena, looked at the girl's beautiful face, and a hint of complexity flashed in his eyes.

Selena seemed to have sensed something and looked up at Patrick, saying, "What's wrong?"

Oscar's gaze followed and fell on Patrick's face. Patrick looked at Selena and spoke lightly, "Selena..."