

Read Revenge On Love Rats After Rebirth (Selena) novel chapter 27 online free

Chapter 27

Dominic stood there, his heartfelt and stiff expression and eyes already saying everything.

At once, a gasp of surprise rang out in the hall, and as the men looked at Selena's icy face, many of them rose in pity.

Is this Dominic stupid?

Such a graceful and beautiful girl loved him with all her heart, and yet he did not cherish her at all.

And some of the girls, who are straightforward, have been unable to resist making accusations.

"Even I, an outsider, can't stand to see it, Mr. Watson, Selena is at least your fiancée, and you have given Leah so many gifts, but you've actually never given your fiancée anything, not even the most basic birthday gift. You are too much!"

"You didn't give her any gifts, but you actually forbid Selena from receiving others', it's disgusting!"

"If I were Selena, with a fiancé like you in the first place, and then a man willing to spend 500 million for me, in contrast, I would definitely receive it!"

"Dominic and Leah are a pair of scum and bitch! Don't say Selena just received a gift, even if she really cheated, I think it's justifiable!"

Dominic's face was white in the face of so many stinging accusations, but there was no way to retort a single word. Especially when he met Selena's eyes that were cold with a touch of pallor at the moment, it made him feel panicked, as if he had really done something unforgivable.

Leah's face was white.

She did not expect that Selena's rhetorical question would end up tainting her own reputation and further solidify her charge of malicious hypocrisy.

What the hell was wrong with Selena?!

She had always been quiet and inarticulate, but why had she become so eloquent and articulate?

Leah could not figure it out, so angry that her heart ached, she no longer dared to say more and quietly lowered her head. Luke was so satisfied that he almost wanted to applaud Selena, which, in fact, he did.

That's a great response!

The clear, crisp clapping of hands stood out above the chorus of accusations.

As if Luke couldn't get enough of the mess, his smile was all over the place, making the most of the joke he had purposely come to see.

"Cyril, please forgive me for being blunt, if a man like Dominic who is blind in his eyes and blind in his heart is not able to distinguish between right and wrong is in charge of the Walson family in the future, then please forgive me for not being polite."

The implication of wanting to annex the Walson family was barely concealed in the words.

Dominic and his parents' face changed greatly, and it was too late to even accuse Luke, and they looked at Cyril with trepidation.

Cyril sat before the high platform, his face gloomy to the core, his cloudy eyes revealing harshness and disappointment. He stared fixedly at Dominic with his withered eyes, and only after looking at him in cold sweat did he call out, "Talon." Talon, who had been looking at Selena in a daze, froze for a moment, then turned around in an unassuming manner and asked respectfully, "Yes, Grandpa."

Cyril stretched out his withered hand and said with little emotion, "Help me go in."

Talon helped Cyril up and turned to the guests present, nodding indifferently yet politely, "Sorry, my Grandpa is not feeling well, please make yourselves at home."