Chapter 8

Although she had already received her marriage license, morally speaking, Selena and Dominic were still in an unmarried couple relationship. This honorable man, now technically speaking, was still a third party.

A light smile appeared at the corner of Selena's lips, "I won't let any trouble alarm you."

Rarely does someone disregard Selena's notoriety and get a marriage license with her, so naturally she can't let him be implicated because of her own faults.

When Osvaldo heard her words so clear-cut, his fingers paused.

His wife is obviously treating this marriage between the two of them as an explicit deal, or a tool to get back at the the Riddle family and the Walson family.

But, can it really be what she wants it to be?

In the site of the largest charity auction in Creephia, Selena sat in the VIP room on the second floor and watched the scene downstairs with interest.

She has had a pretty good life for the past twenty years, but there are bad parts.

The biggest disadvantage is the congenital weakness of the body.

If she hadn't, she wouldn't have become a commander and would have gone into battle herself, given her cold and ruthless nature.

Given her health and status, Selena rarely appears in such a lively social setting.

The auction is even a first visit.

When Osvaldo saw her lazily lying on the windowsill in a very good mood, his eyes darkened slightly.

Selena soon found something that intrigued her.

She saw Leah and Dominic in the crowd sitting at the bottom.

These two, who previously would have been more restrained in public for the sake of winning fame, have been appearing on the same occasion with absolutely no qualms since the cancellation of the wedding.

Not only will they not be called scum and mistress, but they have reaped a large number of praise and blessings.

Selena held a cup and drank tea, coldness swept across her eyes, thinking that she had lectured too much in the morning and Dominic had brought Leah here specifically to have a break.

Selena seemed to think of something and turned her head back to meet the eyes of Osvaldo

Osvaldo was also looking at her, with eyes so deep they seemed to want to see through her heart.

Selena looked straight at him, "I'm going to fix the Riddle family and the Walson family, maybe even to the point where their families are broken." The identity of Osvaldo is a mystery.

But as far as Selena could see, this man's every word and action carried the coldness and dignity of a superior person.

He gave her the Olympus Group without blinking an eye as a bride price.

A figure with such aura and drive will never pursue what is right or wrong in the traditional sense.

However, there are some things that need to be made clear in advance.

After all, no one knew that the real Selena was dead and that Dominic owed her a life

The Riddle family was her family.

Her revenge, in the eyes of onlookers, definitely falls into the category of ruthless and treacherous.

Oswaldo frowned, "Whatever you want to do, just let do it, within Creephia, you have nothing to fear."

Selena put on a smile, and although she didn't think it was necessary, she still explained solemnly, "I have no relationship with Dominic, whatsoever."

The one who was related to Dominic, Selena, had been killed by his own hand.

The darkness in Oswaldo's eyes suddenly disappeared as he looked at her with a serious face.

He leaned closer to her, and said gently, "I know."

Even if there had been, he would have broken off the relationship between them completely. Selena's gaze was slightly frozen.

It seems that she did not expect that Oswaldo would trust her so much.

It doesn't seem like any man should take her word so lightly.

After all, the previous Selena, who loved Dominic, did so many out-of-the-ordinary actions.

When Selena thought of it, she felt heartbroken and unworthy for that girl.

Oswaldo raised his hand, stroked her hair, put his arms around his slender waist, looked her straight in the eyes, and his voice carried a compulsive encouragement, "In five days, dress up the nicest for the banquet and tell those two that you'll live better than anyone without them."

Selena was once again stunned.

She raised a hand to brush his brow with a grateful smile, "I will."

Coincidentally, the final item for tonight's charity auction was released on stage.

It was an extremely rare sapphire.

The moment this sapphire appeared, the atmosphere was instantly a lot more tense.

Sapphires are rare, let alone such a large one. Of the seven coloured stones, pink is lovely and lively, red is atmospheric and elegant, and blue is the most understated and dignified

The main thing is that it is so rare and unique that there is absolutely no embarrassment of meeting the same model.

The women tugged at the sleeves of the men around them, their expectant eyes glued to it, barely able to move away.

The host introduced, "This sapphire was mined three years ago, a rare sapphire that has been mined for hundreds of years and has not yet had an owner, it is priceless and has a reserve price of eight million!"

Eight million is nothing for the top group of wealthy people in Creephia.

Especially those with female companions are happy to make a splash.

Immediately, a sign was raised.

"Ten million!"

"Twelve million!"

"Fifteen million!"

When the price was shouted at 30 million, there were basically only a few people still holding out.

After all, not everyone would spend tens of millions on a sapphire, and not all women, for that matter, are worth a man's money

Amidst a chorus of complaints from the women, Dominic opened his mouth with a proud face and a tone of determination, "Fifty million!" The crowd looked up and saw that it was the president of the Walson's, and the few who were still speaking up gave up their fight. The women stared enviously and jealously at Leah, who was sitting beside him, gentle and beautiful, whispering:

“Leah is so lucky, she’s obviously an illegitimate daughter, yet she’s treated like a treasure by the young master of the Walson family.”

“Selena, having a fiancé, dares to have an affair with so many men, she is making her own death.”

“Yeah, if I were Dominic and had such a shameless fiancée, I would have picked the talented Leah too.”

Feeling the countless envious and jealous eyes, Leah’s vanity was immensely satisfied as she took Dominic’s arm, her face a mixture of joy and tenderness.

Even if she had robbed Selena’s fiancé in her capacity as mistress’ daughter, so what?

All she gets now is envy and blessings.

If Selena wants to fight her, she’s not even close!

“Fifty million once! Fifty million twice, fifty million, last calling-”

Just when everyone thought it had settled, suddenly a low, seductive voice descended.

“Half a billion!”

The crowd was astonished.

Upon reaction, they thought they had heard wrong.

500 million?

Buy a diamond.

After a few seconds of silence, it was an uproar,

The group looked up collectively, staggered, and followed the sound towards the second floor.

At the railing of the VIP room on the second floor, there was a hand landing on it.

Through the gap in the railing, a black figure could be vaguely seen sitting on the sofa. Although one could not see his face, the dignified and awe-inspiring aura of the body was so far away that it took one's breath away.

Leaning against the man, there was another slender, beautiful figure sitting.

The women, with faces of madness and fascination, stared in awe at the figure, their hearts beating wildly as they speculated about his identity. When they came today, the auction said that the VIP room on the second floor was closed and no entry was allowed.

They didn't know why a moment ago, but now they all understand.

He was able to make a group of the richest big shots in Creephia give way to clear the field for him alone, how distinguished must this man be?
