Chapter 121 I Never Trifle With Marriage

Theodore went back to the box after using the restroom, and Oscar was sitting in the box drinking. Thomas and Janet were also in the box.

“Where’s Manuel?” Oscar asked Theodore.

Manuel had left for a long time and never returned.

“He’s been taken away by Susan, the siren.” Theodore was speechless. He didn’t get a good impression of Susan. After all, in the past, Manuel was hurt so badly by Susan. He was afraid that his buddy would be hurt by Susan again.

“Now that Manuel has left, I’m going home, too.” Oscar put down his glass. Tonight was about Manuel. Everyone came here to welcome him back. Now that Manuel had left, it was time for the others to leave.

“I’ll go with you.” Thomas said.

Theodore was a little speechless.

‘How could they be such party poopers? The clock hadn’t struck twelve yet!’ he thought.

“I need to go to the bathroom, Janet. Wait for me at the door.” Thomas said.

“OK.” Janet agreed.

They walked out of the box together. At the gate, Oscar was about to get in the car. But Janet suddenly spoke to him, “Oscar.”

Oscar paused.

“I want to break up with Thomas.” Janet said bluntly.

“That’s your business.” Oscar was indifferent.

“I’ve tried. I can’t fall in love with any other man, except for you.”

“That’s also your own business.”

“I know your marriage with Hannah is a marriage of convenience. I’m willing to wait.” Janet spoke a little emotionally.

Theodore, who was around, didn’t know what to say. He, Oscar, Thomas, and Janet used to be classmates. To be precise, they were more than just classmates. They shared a lot of secrets with each other, so they could be described as very close friends.

At first, everything had gone well until one day, Janet announced that she had fallen for Oscar. She said her love for him was so deep that she was willing to give up her life for Oscar. At that time, Janet confessed her love for Oscar several times, but she failed. After that, she once attempted to commit suicide. Luckily, the attempt to commit suicide failed. Despite this, Oscar still showed no mercy to her. In a fit of pique, Janet slept with Thomas.

In fact, Thomas loved Janet. He just didn't show his feelings before because Janet always loved Oscar. After he slept with Janet, he and Janet naturally became boyfriend and girlfriend.

However, smart people could all tell that Janet loved only Oscar, and sooner or later, Thomas and Janet would break up.

Actually, before Hannah appeared, Theodore also believed that Oscar and Janet would finally be together. After all, among so many ladies, Janet was the only one who knew what kind of person Oscar was and she was the only lady who could approach Oscar.

However, all of a sudden, Hannah, who had never been known to them before, appeared. After her appearance, Oscar fell in love with her and couldn't hold it back anymore.

It probably never occurred to Janet that Oscar would suddenly have another woman and get married all of a sudden. She probably always believed that Oscar didn't accept her only because of his special status and that he would be with her after everything was settled. She never expected that there would suddenly be an outsider.

At first, she could fool herself by saying that Oscar and Hannah were just driven by interest and that they just had a fake marriage. Anyway, their marriage was a win-win cooperation as the Cooper family's wealth would only be beneficial to them.

As time went on, it became clear to clever people that Oscar had unusual feelings for Hannah. So Janet couldn't wait anymore.

Tonight, Theodore saw many times how Janet relentlessly badgered Oscar. Oscar was rather patient with Janet, not directly pushing her away. But apparently, he didn't give her any hopes either. His attitude was the same at this moment.

He was as indifferent as before, "I never trifle with marriage."

"Oscar!" Janet broke down.

Oscar had got into the car and left.

Janet's eyes were red. The sadness on her face was obvious. Seeing that, Theodore helplessly sighed and saw Thomas behind him out of the corner of his eye. He had better not intervene in this love triangle, he thought. So Theodore also got into another car and left too.

Sitting in the car, he made a phone call.

He couldn't understand why these people would get in a serious relationship and break their hearts. In his opinion, the purest and most harmonious relationship between a man and a woman should be the one about only money and sex.

"Darling, do you have time tonight?" Theodore asked with a smile as the call got through.

"Mr Wold, you finally come to me. I thought you'd forgotten about me." The woman's voice was sweet and extremely soft.

"How can I forget your charming figure?"

"You're so sweet." That woman was happy.

"Let's meet in the old place."

"I have work to do tomorrow. I can't stay up too late tonight."

"I'll let you go before two o'clock."

"You say it."

"Have I ever lied to you before?"

"Okay, I'll be there in half an hour." The woman was very excited.

"OK." Theodore hung up the phone.

This was the way men and women should deal with each other, simple and clear. It was too tiring to get in a serious relationship.

At the same night, Susan came down from the center of the stage drunk. The man she was holding just now was nowhere to be found. It was disappointing for her. Of course, Susan wouldn't do anything to him. After all, she had a boyfriend. She just sometimes joined in the fun on occasion, while her fair-weather friends had spent nights with many young men.

Feeling a little drowsy, she massaged her head. If she hadn't gone to dance, she might feel better now.

Feeling dizzy, Susan stumbled out of the hall, headed directly for a parked car at the door, and sat down heavily in it. After she sat down, she didn't realize that another person sat down next to her the next second.

Now she just wanted to go back to her room and lie down on her big bed immediately. She hadn't been so drunk for a long time. Hannah was the one who would bring bad luck to her. Hannah's words left her in a bad mood until now, and she even got drunk because of those words.

She seemed to recall what Hannah had said again. Maybe it was the effect of the alcohol that caused her to do the thing next. Susan angrily took out her phone and dialed Henry's number.

"Susan." The call got through.

"Henry, when on earth are you going to marry me?"

"Susan, are you drunk?"

"No, I'm not drunk!" Susan refused to admit it, "I just want to ask you when you're going to marry me."

"Susan, you got drunk. Where are you? I'll come and pick you up."

"I don't yearn for your gentleness, and I don't yearn for your obedience. I want to marry you, sleep with you, and give birth to a bunch of children for you!"

"Susan..."

"Henry, why on earth are you hesitating? What the hell are you afraid of?!"

Susan's eyes suddenly turned red. She just felt aggrieved, "Is it that difficult for you to marry me?"

Manuel sat next to her watching her quietly. He watched as big tears fell out of her eyes.

So, Susan's unusual behaviors today were only because of the conflict between her and Henry, he thought.

Chapter 122 Taking Susan Home

Inside the car, it could be only heard Susan's upset voice.

At first she said righteously, but then she was just crying.

The person on the other end of the phone should be in a hurry, but Susan just didn't tell him where she was.

Finally, she hung up the phone.

Then she lay on the window glass, like an abandoned puppy, looking pitiful.

The car arrived at Phillips Manor.

Manuel got out of the car first. After he opened the door for a long time, Susan didn't get off yet.

It was a private car of the Emperor Club, which was specially used to drive customers back.

Susan didn't get out of the car, which apparently embarrassing the driver.

Manuel hesitated, but still went to Susan's side to open the door.

Susan leaned on the car seat and closed her eyes. There were tears in the corners of her eyes. She slept so sound.

Sometimes Manuel felt that Susan didn't care about anything, yet sometimes she was so sensitive.

Manuel picked her up and walked into the house.

Susan moved her body uncomfortably. When Manuel thought she was awake, he saw that she stopped, as if she had just found a more comfortable position to lie quietly in his arms.

It was late at night and it was quiet in Phillips Manor.

Manuel went upstairs as quietly as possible, trying not to make too much noise to disturb the others. Then he put Susan on her large bed.

After that, he was about to leave.

Suddenly, his neck was hooked by Susan's hands.

Susan opened her eyes and looked at the person in front of her with blurred eyes. Then she said, "Do you want to kiss me?"

Manuel swallowed.

"I wanna kiss you." Susan said with soft voice and a coquettish look. No men could refuse such a charm. Manuel clenched his fists, trying to calm down. He looked up slightly. Then he saw Susan raising her head with the supporting of his neck. She was approaching his lips. Manuel's heart was pounding crazily and his head was bedlam at a point. The temperature in the room was rising little by little. Approaching, they two clung to each other so closely. A lot of things could happen in the next second. "Henry..." Susan murmured, calling out the name of the other man. It was not him. It seemed that all of Manuel's impulses were extinguished by a basin of cold water. He was so disappointed. Then he stood up. Susan seemed a little dissatisfied, "Henry..." "I'm not Henry." Manuel said indifferently. Susan was still in a somewhat confused state. It was as if she didn't hear what the person in front of her said. "I'm Manuel." Hearing it, Susan woke up. Then she fixed her eyes on the man in front of her. She was looking at the man standing by her bed and adjusting his clothes, and she realized that she was not dreaming just now. The last thing she could remember was that she was so sad and then went to the dance floor to dance. But how she left? She totally forgot it. She seemed to remember that she called Henry, but she didn't remember what she said. Because she called Henry, so it took for granted that she thought the person who had just been with her was Henry... Manuel got dressed, turned and left. In fact, without looking at Susan, he also knew how disgusted Susan would feel when she knew it was him. It was him who took advantage of this situation. So he accepted all the disgust that Susan had for him. He didn't explain anything. "Manuel." Susan suddenly stopped him. Manuel stopped, but didn't look back. "Don't tell anyone about tonight." Susan was warning him. "OK." Manuel agreed. "I should not take it to heart." Susan said fiercely.

Manuel nodded and walked out.

Looking at Manuel's back, Susan was filled with anger and felt a sense of sickness.

She really didn't know if Manuel made her sick, or if she was drunk and wanted to throw up.

She quickly got up from the bed and rushed directly into the bathroom.

Then came the sound of vomiting.

Manuel came in and returned the phone to her.

When Susan was in his arms, she held the mobile phone in her hand. He was worried that she couldn't hold it well, so he took it over and put it in his clothes pocket. As soon as he left the room, he found it, so he came back to return it to her. Now, he heard her vomiting in the bathroom.

He indifferently put down the phone and left after closing the door for her.

Then he went back to his room and pushed the door in.

Turning around, he saw Justine, who was clearly waiting for him and sitting on the couch in his room.

She pulled a long face.

Manuel looked calm, "Haven't you slept yet?"

"Do you still like Susan?" Justine asked him.

Manuel didn't answer.

"Can't forget her in so many years?" Justine's face turned gloomy.

"No." Manuel denied, "She's just my sister."

"Sister? Then how could you two kiss like that just now?" Justine shouted at him.

She just saw it.

"We have nothing." Manuel denied it.

"If she didn't call out to Henry, were you sure that you wouldn't do something worse with her?"

"I'm also a man. If a woman seduces me like that, I will be impulsive." Manuel also said loudly.

Justine was stunned.

"It's late. Go to sleep." In the next second, Manuel calmed down.

Justine looked at Manuel, endured it, and got up from the couch. As she left, she said, "Susan doesn't deserve you to love her so much."

"I know."

He knew it.

He shouldn't have loved her at all.

Justine left Manuel's room.

Then she saw a door at the end of the corridor suddenly slamming shut.

Susan took a deep breath, for she was almost found.

Leaning against the door, she felt somewhat irritated again.

Why did she have a feeling of being guilty?
She didn't mean to listen to their quarrel.

Chapter 123 Don't Worry, I'm Clean!

Susan lay back on the big bed and looked at the ceiling in a daze.

Just after throwing up, she felt a lot more comfortable.

But the more she thought about it, the more she couldn't figure it out.

How did she kiss Manuel?

Thinking for while, she decided to make it clear to him, lest he still had any illusions.

Doing immediately whatever came to the mind had always been Susan's style, so she went directly to Manuel's room.

Unexpectedly, as soon as she reached the door, she heard Manuel arguing with his mother.

To be honest, she had never seen Manuel lose his temper. No matter who it was, he would always be gentle. So Susan didn't expect that he would be quite scary when he lost his temper.

Fortunately, they two didn't quarrel for long. As Justine was coming out, she quickly left.

There was no need for Susan to say anything more to Manuel. After all, Manuel just made it clear himself. He said he was also a man. If a woman seduced him like that, he would be impulsive, which meant if she were some other women, that was how that would go.

If she still came in to make it clear, Manuel would think she was too self-righteous.

Touching her lips, Susan thought she had to brush her teeth a hundred times.

It was midnight. Hannah was up for getting some water. She was definitely not waiting for Oscar to come back. However, Oscar misunderstood it.

When Oscar walked into the living room and saw her, his eyes lit up. Hannah didn't want to talk with him and she turned and went upstairs.

"Hannah, won't you wait for me?"

As he spoke, he stepped forward and walked directly to Hannah's side.

Hannah frowned. She was impatient.

Oscar reached for Hannah's cup, "How do you know I'm thirsty?"

Hannah dodged his hand directly, "I've drunk it."

"It's okay. I don't mind." He still easily took the cup over.

Oscar had a triumphant smile on his face.

Hannah thought Oscar was so childish sometimes.

Watched Oscar drinking her water, Hannah held back the anger, took over the cup, turned around and went directly to the open kitchen to rinse it. Then she went to get some warm water again.

“Let me pour some water for you.” Oscar was always by her side.

“I can do it myself. It’s late. Just go to sleep.”

“I want to sleep with you.” Oscar blurted out.

Hannah glared at him.

“Sleep in separate rooms.” Oscar added.

Hannah didn’t want to talk with him.

She got some warm water again, drank it, cleaned it, and then put the cup in its original place.

After that, she got up and went upstairs.

Oscar followed her upstairs.

Hannah opened the door and was about to enter.

“Hannah.”

Suddenly, she was pressed against the wall outside the room by Oscar.

Hannah moved a bit to resist but failed.

With all her strength, she couldn’t push him away a little at all.

“To thank you for waiting for me until so late, I intend to repay you.” Oscar smiled.

The smile was evil.

Besides, he didn’t care about her resistance at all.

Without thinking about it, Hannah knew what Oscar was going to do.

She jerked her hand over his mouth.

Oscar looked at her, with his black eyes that seemed to have magic. It was easy to get people into it.

She said, “Isn’t it enough?”

Oscar frowned, seemingly unaware of what she was talking about.

“Didn’t get satisfied?” Hannah raised an eyebrow.

Oscar seemed to react.

He raised his hand and pulled Hannah’s hand away.

Hannah wasn’t as strong as Oscar so she was pulled away in an instant.

She also turned her face to the side. She didn’t want to be kissed by him no matter what.

Oscar couldn’t help but chuckled as he said, “Susan told you?”

Hannah didn’t speak.

When he was pestered by Janet tonight, he indeed bumped into Susan.

“Why didn’t you come to the scene to see it?”

“Am I that bored?” Hannah rolled her eyes at him.

“But you’re jealous.” Oscar was so determined.

“You think too much, Master Oscar.” Hannah looked back at him anxiously, “I just don’t like being stood up.”

“Huh?”

“Yesterday you said that you wouldn’t mess with other women, but today you just can’t hold on. Oscar, if you really can’t keep your promise, you’d better not make such a promise. Otherwise, you’re just too shameless.” Hannah’s tone was noticeably heavy.

“So you care a lot if I am clean?”

Hannah felt that she couldn’t continue to talk with him.

Wasn’t she talking about the fact that he couldn’t keep his promise?

“I’m clean.” Oscar suddenly said, “Hannah, just rest assured.”

What did he say?

She completely didn’t believe men’s vows in this regard.

“It’s late. I’m going to bed.” Hannah also thought it unhelpful to talk too much.

For her, Oscar meant nothing.

What he did had nothing to do with her.

She would turn a blind eye to him.

“Good night.” Oscar let go of Hannah.

Sometimes she thought this man was so troublesome, but sometimes she also thought he was surprisingly easy to talk to.

Hannah opened the door and walked into the room.

Then Oscar heard the sound of locking the door inside.

He smiled helplessly. It was so bad for him that he could only see her but couldn’t touch her.

The next day, when Hannah got up to work, Oscar didn’t get up yet.

Maybe he got drunk last night so he needed to sleep more today.

After all, Hannah could feel that he really drunk a lot.

Hannah didn’t ask. After breakfast, she took Jimmy’s car and went to the company.

Just when she walked into the company, she felt everyone was looking at her.

She was sure that there was nothing wrong with her demeanor, so the only reason was that something had happened.

She walked calmly into her office.

As soon as she got in, she heard, “Ms Hannah.” Rose, who had always been calm, had a little urgency in her voice at the moment.

“What’s matter?” Hannah sat in her office chair.

Jimmy still went to the couch.

“Mason wants to commit suicide on the rooftop of the top floor.”

Hannah looked at Rose.

“He said you were going to kill him.”

Hannah's face sank.

To make her feel bad, Mason did do everything.

"Ms Hannah, would you like to go up and take a look? I just saw that several senior leaders have gone to comfort him."

"Not now."

"But..."

"You go to see the situation first. Contact me at any time."

"Okay." Rose said.

She didn't work for Hannah for long, but she just believed that Hannah could get everything done well.

Chapter 124 Threats

After Rose left, Hannah called Theodore without hurry, "Did you get the results which I asked you to investigate yesterday?"

"Yep."

"Really?" Hannah was pleasantly surprised.

She knew that Theodore would definitely be able to find out, but she didn't expect it to be so fast.

Theodore went straight to the point, "Mason's daughter is Ernie Porter. She is 21 years old this year, a second-year student in Kensbury College of Media. She is major in acting and wants to enter the entertainment industry.

However, in the entertainment industry, not everyone can be popular even if they have good conditions. Ernie knows it well, so she seduced Maxwell when she went to the annual party of Cooper Group with her father. Now, she is Maxwell's mistress."

Hannah listened carefully.

In her previous life, she didn't know Maxwell, in his 40s, kept a college student as his mistress.

"Maxwell is very nice to Ernie, not only giving luxuries to her, but also buying Ernie a sports car worth more than 800, 000 dollars. Of course, he's not just nice to Ernie, but also to her father, Mason. The reason why Mason has always been so proud in Cooper Group because of Maxwell's covert supporting. If the information I got is correct, Maxwell should be in charge of the performance evaluation in Cooper Group. You can check to see if Mason's personal performance is manually adjusted every month."

Hearing it, Hannah was still a bit surprised.

How powerful the Wold family was? How strong their connection was? They could know Maxwell's work in Cooper Group so easily and even got the performance evaluation of their company's intranet?

"Don't worry. I won't attack Cooper Group." Theodore seemed to read Hannah's thoughts, "Oscar won't agree."

So he meant that as long as Oscar agreed, he could easily attack Cooper Group?

Hannah suddenly felt speechless.

"I will send you the information that Ernie has been raised by Maxwell. See if there is anything else you need. If not, I'll be busy with other business."

"Okay, thanks."

After hanging up the phone, Hannah got an email in her mailbox.

Hannah opened it and downloaded it.

Then she saw all the documents about Ernie and Maxwell's illicit relationship, including Maxwell occasionally transferring money to Ernie, the records of buying luxuries and cars for Ernie and getting a room, the photos of them making out, and even videos...

Hannah read them for a while.

After making sure that nothing was missing, she replied, "Perfect. Thanks."

Theodore just sent back with an OK emoji.

Hannah sorted out the documents.

Rose pushed the door in, "Ms Hannah, Mr Chairman asked you to go to the top floor. Mason is very emotional now. He said that he wanted to see you. He doesn't listen to others."

Hannah said okay.

But she was still slowly sorting out the documents.

"Ms Hannah." Rose urged.

"Calm down. Mason won't jump off the building. Just let him perform for a while."

Half an hour later.

After Hannah put everything in order, she got up and left the office.

At that time, Rose had also calmed down.

Anyway, it was useless even if she was in a hurry.

The elevator led all the way to the rooftop on the top floor.

Hannah had not yet walked out with Rose and Jimmy when she heard Maxwell's angry voice, "What is Hannah doing? She doesn't show up yet. Is she responsible for it if he dies? Mr Cooper, your daughter is really so cruel." Miguel's face was also bad at the moment.

After all, this kind of thing happened in the company, which had some bad impact.

Now, the media also knew it. They had been at the gate of the company but were just stopped by security guards.

Without getting Miguel's answer, Maxwell was agitated again, "Since you can't bear to embarrass your daughter, don't blame me for not giving her the chance. It's a human life. I can't just sit idly by. I'm going to go down to call her come over in person now. I just want to see what she is proud about so that she dares to be so lawless."

"Mr Watson, no need, I'm coming." Hannah's tone was frighteningly calm. As soon as Maxwell saw Hannah, he immediately said sarcastically, "I thought you didn't dare to come up."

"It's not me who don't dare to come up." Hannah smiled.

That smile made people shudder.

Maxwell's face sank.

He had been in the business world for so many years. How could he be threatened by a little girl in her 20s?

So he didn't take Hannah's words to heart at all. Then he continued to scold loudly, "Mason needs you to give him an explanation now. You'd better deal with it well. If something happens, you will be the murderer. Northfield is a country ruled by law. If he dies because of you, you have to pay him with your life."

"Mr Watson, don't worry. If he jumps off, I'll pay him with my life."

Hearing it, Maxwell was speechless.

Hannah didn't talk to Maxwell anymore. She just walked straight to Mason.

"Hannah." Miguel stopped her.

He was afraid that Mason would really jump off.

"Don't worry." Hannah smiled at her father.

Miguel endured it, but decided to let it go and let Hannah solve it.

Hannah walked through the crowd to see Mason standing on the guardrail of the rooftop.

There was nothing behind Mason. If he moved slightly, he would really fall off.

Hannah looked at him quietly.

Mason was thrilled when he saw Hannah, "Hannah, why did you fire me? I have worked diligently at Cooper Group for twenty years. Why did you fire me? Why?"

The more he said it, the more he couldn't control himself.

Everyone on the rooftop was frightened by his emotions.

"Calm down, Mason. We can talk." Maxwell hurriedly came out. He nervously soothed Mason.

"Today, if Hannah doesn't give me a reasonable explanation and doesn't give me a proper apology, I will just jump from here. I will do what I say."

Then he leaned back.

Everyone shouted in fright.

The scene seemed a bit chaotic.

“Take it easy. What explanation do you need Hannah to give you? Say it. We will satisfy you immediately.” Maxwell pretended to be a good person, and to have the courage to take on the responsibility.

“First, I want Hannah to make it clear why she fired me and inexplicably transferred me from my original position. Second, I want Hannah to apologize to me. Kneel down and apologize to me.” Mason threatened, “Otherwise, I’ll just die here.”

Chapter 125 Hannah Gained the Initiative

Mason’s words shocked everyone.

It was acceptable to ask Hannah to say the reason for firing him. But he actually asked her to kneel and apologize. It had really gone too far.

But no one dared to say a word, for fear to stimulate Mason that he really jumped off.

Then he would be a sinner.

In silence.

Mason suddenly spoke, forcing Hannah again, “If Hannah doesn’t do it, I’ll jump right now.”

He pretended to jump again.

“Hannah.” Maxwell said righteously, “Quickly explain to him why you fired him and why you transferred him from his position. Hurry up.”

Hannah glanced at Maxwell, and then looked back at Mason, “Haven’t I told you? How do you want me to explain to you?”

“Hannah, you’re really a bully.” Mason was furious.

Maxwell yelled at Hannah, “Are you crazy? You still go to stimulate him. Are you so merciless?”

“Mason, come down. I’ll give you a good explanation.” Hannah’s voice was really too calm, which seemed a little coldblooded.

“I won’t come down.” Mason said fiercely, “If you don’t explain to me or if you don’t kneel, I’ll die here.”

Hannah’s face sank.

She was about to speak.

“Mr Cooper.” Maxwell turned directly to Miguel at this moment, “Your daughter is trying to destroy our Cooper Group. Anyway, she won’t listen to what I say. As her father and as the chairman of Cooper Group, can you be a little responsible? You are still silent to defend your daughter. Don’t you think that what you have done doesn’t deserve to be the chairman?”

Miguel was a bit embarrassed by Maxwell's irony.

He turned to look at Hannah.

He didn't know what Hannah had planned. He didn't know if she really gave up a life.

"If he really kills himself today, I will definitely quit immediately. I will do what I say." Maxwell really took his noble character to the extreme. He didn't hesitate to quit his career for a human life, showing a fearless spirit of sacrifice.

"It's useless to yell at my dad. This thing started because of me. Mr. Watson, if you want to be that good person and to highlight your greatness, just come at me." Hannah said lukewarmly.

In the tone, there was a slight irony.

"Hannah, how did the Cooper family have such a child like you? So coldblooded. I'm really ashamed of Cooper Group."

"Who is ashamed? We will know in a moment." Hannah smiled coldly.

She suddenly took a step and walked in front of Mason.

"Stop." Seeing Hannah's action, Mason was so emotional, "If you take a step closer, I will jump."

Hannah stopped.

"Kneel down and apologize to me now. I will come down immediately. If you are still forcing me, I will die here." Mason roared.

"Just now I promised Mr. Watson that if you die, I'll pay you with my life."

Hannah walked over again.

Mason was frightened.

Everyone at the scene was also frightened.

Maxwell quickly yelled, "Hannah, are you crazy? Come back."

Hannah pretended that she didn't hear it. Then she approached Mason step by step.

Mason glanced behind him and then at Hannah.

He just watched this woman approaching him without hesitation.

Of course he didn't dare to die.

All he did today was to embarrass Hannah and to teach her a lesson.

This was the plan he had discussed with Maxwell.

Hannah must be humiliated today.

It would be better that she left Cooper Group directly.

But they didn't expect that this woman didn't follow their plans. Instead, she actually forced him to a dilemma.

"Don't come here. Don't come here." Mason was horrified.

Sweat fell from his forehead.

Instead of stopping, Hannah sneered.

It was a coldblooded look.

Maxwell didn't want Hannah to succeed. Of course, he also knew that Mason wouldn't jump. They just wanted to threaten Hannah. If she really went over but Mason didn't jump down, it would be clear that Mason was deliberately causing trouble. In the end, it would be seen as a joke.

He hurried over and tried to grab Hannah.

Jimmy was by Hannah's side. He quickly blocked Maxwell.

The sudden movement made everyone look over.

Hannah glanced behind.

She knew Maxwell's tricks all too well, so she told Jimmy before she came up, asking him to stop everyone who approached her.

She really had to thank Oscar.

He just seemed to know that Jimmy would be useful to her.

"Hannah, stop." Maxwell was stopped, so he could only yell at her.

Hannah didn't care.

She stopped in front of Mason.

Mason was shaking all over at the moment.

Apparently, he was frightened.

Hannah didn't reach out to pull him down.

She suddenly climbed onto the guardrail of the rooftop.

That move surprised everyone.

Miguel was taken aback, "Hannah."

She walked over, but Mason didn't jump off. It was clear that Mason didn't dare to jump. She just had to pull him down and didn't have to climb up.

Hannah didn't look back. She faced Mason straight, "Are you really not afraid of death?"

"You... you..." Mason pointed at Hannah, sweating profusely and shaking all over.

"If you jump, I'll jump with you." Hannah said word by word.

"Don't you think I won't."

"I didn't say you didn't dare. I just told you that you could jump off the building. I won't stop you. If you jump, I'll pay you with my life. I'm with you. I'll do what I say." Hannah looked resolute.

Mason's face turned pale with fright.

For a second, he really wanted to jump off.

He couldn't be threatened by Hannah. But as soon as he saw her determined face, he instantly gave up such an idea.

He just glared at Hannah but couldn't say a word.

"I count down to one now. Either we jump off together or we come down together. It's up to you." Hannah said coldly.

Mason looked at Hannah.

He was still forcing Hannah, "Don't threaten me. Anyway, I'm already old. I'm not afraid of death."

“Three.” Hannah didn’t talk with Mason at all.
Mason looked at her in horror.
Everyone looked at her with bated breath.
“Two.” Hannah counted down.
Mason was nervous.
“One.”

Chapter 126 Mason’s Embarrassment

The countdown ended.
Hannah was about to jump.
“God.” Everyone on the rooftop screamed in fear.
Mason was directly scared to pee.
See Hannah’s move, Mason was shivering. That made him wet his pants.
“No! I don’t want to die. I don’t want to die.” Mason was driven crazy.
The horror of death made his mind blank.
Now, he was desperate to descend from the guardrail, and desperate for a safe place.
But at the moment, he was so scared that he couldn’t move.
Hannah certainly wouldn’t jump. She was just pretending.
Seeing Mason sitting on the ground in fright, she gave Jimmy a look.
Jimmy understood it and quickly grabbed Mason. With his help, Mason came down slowly.
He knelt on the ground, without a trace of spirit.
No one could have expected that the person who threatened others would have been frightened by the person who was threatened.
Hannah also climbed down from the rooftop.
His face pale, Miguel helped her down before others reached her.
“Dad, I’m okay.” Hannah comforted him.
“I’m going to have a heart attack.” Miguel said angrily.
Hannah just smiled at him. She was not afraid when she just climbed up, while she was freaking out about her flashing back to the moment in her mind. If she made the jump from this height, she would lose her life. At the thought of it, she sighed with relief.
Someone went over and lifted Mason off the ground, intending to take him away.
Hannah walked over and stood in front of him.
Mason also seemed to come to his senses, but because of the fact that he had just peed in the pants, he didn't dare to face others at all.

"Didn't you want me to give you an explanation? I'll give you one in front of everyone now." Hannah said.

Mason had no mood to listen to it at the moment. When he thought that he had embarrassed himself but not Hannah, he couldn't wait to want to hide in a hole.

"Enough. Hannah, that's enough. There's no need to be aggressive." Maxwell started acting as a good guy again.

In fact, he was angry.

Mason was a fool who fucked things up all the time, Maxwell thought. Mason was so confident of his bravery when he came up with this idea, yet he became a coward who pissed himself in the end.

"I'm not aggressive. I just want to be fair to Mason, and to everyone." Hannah added, "Almost all the senior leaders in the company are here at this moment. Besides, there are a lot of employees. Some of them are also transferred from their positions. So, I'm here to make it clear to everyone."

Maxwell tried to stop her again. But Miguel spoke, "Well, I just want to know why you have to make such a big change in the arrangement of the team as soon as you come to the company? And why did you suddenly fire an experienced employee like Mason?"

The seemingly harsh words were actually helping Hannah.

Maxwell held back. He couldn't disobey Miguel, the chairman.

Hannah was allowed to say, "First of all, I answer the question about why I transferred you guys from your positions. Mr Richards advised me that it was not appropriate time for me to do so when I first took office. Right, Mr Richards?"

"Yes." Percy Richards answered her.

"I knew all the consequences of doing this, but in the end, I still went my own way because I was dissatisfied with the current staffing in the sales department. Some important positions required the cooperation of two people, but there was only one being assigned the tasks, while there were two or even three doing the work of one. For such unreasonable work arrangements, I have to make some changes. Second, after staying in a position for a long time, it is inevitable that some would be slack. Changing work is good to motivate staff. I do not feel anything wrong with it."

Another important reason was that she needed to drive away those who were against her, which of course she couldn't tell them.

"How do you know that everything you make is right? You just came to the company. How do you know what kind of talent is needed for a position? How do you know that your arrangements are right? How can you guarantee that employees will be motivated after they change jobs?" Maxwell retorted, showing no mercy.

“Mr Watson, whether the personnel change can ultimately achieve benefits depends on the final result. If I’m not mistaken, all the senior leaders promised to give me three months to half a year to prove myself. Now you let me show you results in a week? Won’t you be too much?”

“You...” Maxwell was talked back by Hannah.

Hannah continued, “Since the senior leaders agreed with me from the beginning, I ask everyone to support and respect my decision.”

If there was someone who was still against it, it would be a slap in the face.

After all, the executive of the company had approved her plan at the beginning. Now if they intervened in Hannah’s decision in just a few days, it would be that they broke their agreements. So there was no one to say anything.

Maxwell was gnashing his teeth. It was true that it was a matter within Hannah’s rights because it was a personnel dispatch inside the department. His intervention would be suspected of targeting Hannah, which could be commented on by others. So he could only hold back.

“Don’t you think you’re a little too much about firing Mason? Just because you don’t like him, you have to fire him? You probably don’t take the company rules too seriously.” said Maxwell.

“Mason told you that I didn’t like him so I fired him?” Hannah raised an eyebrow.

Maxwell immediately realized that he had said the wrong thing.

He hurriedly explained, “Didn’t Mason say it just now?”

“I don’t know whether Mason said it or not. But I did have that idea.”

“Employees can be reassigned, but layoffs are not within your right.”

“So I said I had this idea. Because I had this idea, I went to Mr Richards and asked about the process and formalities for layoffs. Unexpectedly, it was spread. I was planning to report this matter to senior leaders.” Hannah said calmly.

Maxwell lost again.

“What reason do you have?” he asked fiercely.

“In this personnel transfer, Mason incited all staff in the sales department not to accept the job transfer and deliberately opposed the company’s decision-making. Shall we not dismiss those who object to the company’s development?”

“Do you have any proof?” Maxwell asked aggressively.

Chapter 127 Dig up Maxwell's Scandal and Make Him Eat Humble Pie!

"I have no evidence." Hannah answered.

"You want to fire him even if you have no evidence, Hannah, You really think this company belongs to you?! Alright, this company does belong to the Cooper family, so you can do whatever you want? So you can fire me one day just like him if you're not satisfied with me?! If that's the case, you might as well let me go now. I have no responsibility to do my best for you guys."

Maxwell Watson said, full of indignation.

He still remembered to boast of his greatness while belittling her.

Staring at Maxwell, Hannah said, "Mr Watson, I think you're a little defending him. Is he any relation to you?"

"What are you talking about!" He bristled with rage.

It seemed that he was embarrassed because his scandal was revealed by her.

Even if his embarrassment is fleeting.

"I'm always dealing with things fair and square. As the second-largest shareholder of the Cooper Group, of course, I will work for the good of all of my employees and not betray their trust. But now you're slandering me like that, Hannah, What is your intention?" he said with dignity.

"So you faked Mason's performance without permission just to not betray his trust?" Hannah said sarcastically.

"Hannah, You're taking nonsense. Tell me when did I do that?!" said Maxwell, his face turning red, "Because Mason affected the personnel redeploys, so you're doing everything you can do to fire him, that's the reason you'd rather betray me! Hannah, can you think of the consequences before saying a single word?! You're so rude."

"Mr Richards." Hannah just turned to Percy.

Percy approached hastily and took out a piece of paper.

Hannah said leisurely, "Here are two copies of the performance report filed by the human resources department. One was from the sales department to the general affairs department, signed by all employees, and the other was checked by the general affairs department and handed over to the human resources department for wage accounting. I picked out Mason's report and found that his GPA for the past year was 75 according to the feedback from the sales department. However, his GPA turned into 91 in the final report checked and handed over to the human resources department by the general affairs department. I did the math and realized that, according to his position, 5 points was nearly $2, 000, which meant he got an extra $10, 000 every month!"

She just let it all out, which left the room stunned.

Because people didn't expect this kind of dark management.

Maxwell also was beginning to feel alarmed.

But he got the skill of keeping calm and collected after all these years, saying, "Hold the authenticity of the copies you provided, it's thoughtless of you to frame me for this. True, I'm in charge of the general affairs department, but I don't deal with everything by myself or it will tire me out."

"So you didn't know it at all."

"If you're right, I'll admit my negligence at work. I do sign and approve the final performance reports every month and I really don't have time to check each employee's report. So all I can say is I'll try to manage the internal workings to avoid this."

"So you're saying this malicious thing was done by your employee and you didn't notice it?"

"How many times do I have to repeat myself!" Maxwell lost his temper, "I already said I didn't know it and also admitted my mistake. What the hell are you doing?! What's wrong with you? Please don't argue a point to death, what am I supposed to do to shut you up?!"

"You're so pissed off, making me feel that you've really done this."

"Hannah!" Maxwell yelled at her, "I repeat, I have no idea about Mason's GPA. I'll conduct an investigation against him after this fucking thing's over. And I'm not gonna pass the buck no matter what the result might be! But do you have to think I was implicated in this? I won't admit what you just said! To say the least, he's not a relative or friend of mine, am I crazy to fake his performance report? Is he better looking than other employees?!"

It was so ironic that he spat this out.

As Hannah just opened her mouth,

Maxwell added, "Percy, you're an employee from the human resources department so you must know all the networks within our company. The company also teased out and archived all employee relationships. Now you tell Hannah, tell everyone, do I have any relationship with him or not!"

Percy answered, "There is no relationship such as blood, friends, classmates, etc. between Mason and Mr. Watson."

Maxwell sneered at Hannah sharply, "Did you hear it?"

"Yes, I did." Hannah responded.

"Now that you've heard it, stop your nonsense. As the heir of Cooper family, I suggest you should learn what is the sense of propriety. If you don't know that, you're just a base girl in other's eyes no matter how noble your family is..."

"Indeed, there is no relationship between Mason and you. But that doesn't mean you have nothing to do with his daughter." Hannah broke in on him.

Maxwell's face changed suddenly.

Not only is Maxwell, but Mason, who had wanted to kill Hannah, was shocked by what she said.

"I heard through the grapevine that," Hannah looked at Maxwell and said, "you kept her daughter as your mistress."

"Hannah!" Maxwell's veins popped out with anger, "How far are you gonna go with this?! I have my own family and my kid is already in high school, and I can't believe you're saying this..."

"Mr Watson, I don't think you should be so quick to deny it, or you'll eat humble pie once the truth emerges." Hannah threatened.

Maxwell was stunned, at that moment, he was literally overwhelmed by her power.

He thought the woman in front of him possessed a maturity that was not typical for her age and also made him nose a strange sense of majesty.

"At first, I didn't wanna expose it, cause after knowing that I was just gonna privately give a word of warning to you to avoid trouble. However, today you pushed me so badly, so I can only prove my innocence in this manner. Mr. Watson, please understand."

Obviously, Maxwell choked with rage and humiliation.

"Rose." Hannah said.

Rose hurried up to her and passed her another piece of file that was given by Hannah when she just left the office.

Actually, Rose also had no idea about this file.

She just had the habit of agreeing to the arrangement.

Chapter 128 Maxwell Admits His Guilt

Hannah took the file from Rose and took the papers out of it one by one. Everyone intently watched her action with a slight expectation, hoping she could spill the tea!

"The paper in my hand is the record of hotel stay from you and Mason's daughter, Ernie. And it shows that the first time you had sex with her was on March 18, two years ago, at a hotel in Kensbury. In these two years, you had sex with her at least twice a week at this hotel. Moreover, the last time was yesterday."

"You're slinging mud at me! You got a random hotel record and insisted it was mine, are you making fun of me?"

It was just his last struggle.

Hannah didn't take any offense. She glanced at Maxwell, watching him taking the road to ruin.

She kept saying, "This is a consumption record from you to Ernie. According to the record, you've spent a lot of money on her over these years. And the designer handbags, jewelry, and sports car you gave her as gifts, which are more than 2, 000, 000. It means you spent more than 1, 000, 000 on her a year."

"You think my money grows on trees, 1, 000, 000 a year? I only earn 3, 000, 000 a year in the Cooper Group and you think I'm willing to spend almost half of my annual salary on a mistress? How ridiculous! And I'm always handing over my salary to my wife, even my paycheck is also kept by her, you can phone and ask her!" Maxwell said with a sarcastic look.

"You really don't get enough salary to keep a mistress. But the yearly dividends of the Cooper Group are a big amount. If I remember rightly, you do overdraw your dividends every month. And I guess the money you've overdrawn was spent on Ernie!"

"Bullshit!" Maxwell shouted, full of indignation, "I can't believe you really can do anything to throw mud at me! I just stood in employees' shoes to right wrongs for them and didn't expect your retaliation. Hannah, I'm afraid you're not here to work but to plunge this company into chaos!"

"Mr Watson, the more lies you tell, the worse the consequences will be." Hannah reminded him.

"You'd better stop threatening me and shut your fucking mouth. I tell you, Hannah, If you still keep talking bullshit like that, then I'll never forgive you!" said Maxwell. His face was ferocious, with flames of fury and a slight of panic. In fact, he clearly knew that Hannah was aware of the true relationship between him and Ernie. Of course, he won't admit it. If he lower his head to her, he would lose his face so badly. He just expressed his love to his wife and family in a business interview some time ago, and he would be humiliated by everyone if his scandal was exposed now!

With heat in his voice, he said to Hannah, "I don't have the pleasure to talk to you! Now that Mason is fine, I don't wanna waste more time."

While saying that, he turned away and was going to leave.

"This is the picture of you and Ernie having sex!" Hannah said behind him, spacing every word for emphasis.

Maxwell whipped his head around.

He whipped his head around, and saw Hannah holding a piece of A4-size color-printed picture which was vividly seen by all.

As the paper was big enough, everyone could see that erotic picture clearly at first glance!

Maxwell changed his face so quickly even if he just calmed himself down. Now he was really in a panic.

So he rushed forward to Hannah, intending to snatch the picture in her hand. But Jimmy immediately came up to keep off him.

“Son of bitch, get away!”

Jimmy just stood motionless.

“Son of bitch!”

“Who’s the real bitch...” Hannah said, her face suddenly darkened, “Mr Watson, don’t you know?!”

“You!” feeling embarrassed after being satirized by Hannah, Maxwell yelled, “Tear it up, tear it up now!”

“If you dare to do this, you have to admit it.”

“It’s a fake, this picture is a fake!” his face turned red. At this point, he was so rude and noisy, which made him act like a buffoon.

“You want me to release the video, don’t you?” said Hannah, her forehead creased for a moment.

Maxwell was stunned suddenly.

He suppressed his anger, wishing that he can kill Hannah.

“Do you want me to do that?” Hannah said calmly, which contrasted with Maxwell’s getting out of control.

At the moment, his disguise was being torn off little by little, which made everyone in this room change from initial suspicion to absolute trust in Hannah. They now believed everything she said.

Maxwell’s bad behavior was exposed, which let everyone show a disgusted expression.

There was someone even whispering, “Can’t believe Mr Watson is that kind of man who keeps a mistress. And his mistress is almost the same age as his daughter.”

“I watched a financial show participated by Mr. Watson and his wife a few days ago. He acted like a really nice man on that show and I thought I was honored to work at his company.”

“It’s surprising that Mason would send his daughter into his superior’s bed for his own career. My values are completely disrupted.”

More and more comments like these appeared, heard by Maxwell and making his temper get out of control again.

“Shut up, shut the fuck up!” he shouted like a nut.

But Jimmy kept holding on to him so that he could not even move a finger.

“I said shut up! And you son of bitch let me go, let me go!” Maxwell threw a fit at everyone and yelled at Jimmy ceaselessly.

Used to be a business elite though, but now he suddenly became a middle-aged man who was not only frustrated but wretched and disgusting.

On the roof,
the air was filled with his crazy yelling and scolding.
Manson became unusually quiet at this moment.
Of course, he had already lost face for the pee thing, and now he was talked by people about sacrificing his daughter to make money, which robbed his courage to open his mouth.
Nobody knew how long after,
Maxwell finally yelled and scolded enough.
He suddenly admitted, "Yes, Ernie is my mistress, so what?! Did I break the law? There's no law in Northfield that says I can't do that! So what can you do to me? You can't get your dad to fire me, can you?!"
"What you've done should only be condemned by morality, and my dad can't casually fire you just because of your wild personal life. But it's also reasonable for him to let you go for the loss of the company's reputation."
Hannah bent the corner of her mouth and said, "Of course, I believe that my dad won't do that because you've worked at this place for many years and contributed a lot to our company. At the very least, even if I'm not gonna make you look good, I still have to save your father and grandfather's dignity. After all, your family helped the Cooper Group a lot in those days and made us successful today."
"Good you know." Maxwell sneered coldly.
He was defiant and ignorant again in that single short moment.

Chapter 129 Hannah Drives Maxwell Mad

"But I have a good guess: you will take the blame and resign if the chairman has no intention to fire you cause I believe anyone should be ashamed to have done such a humiliating thing. And as a well-respected man, you shouldn't tolerate yourself staying with the company." Hannah satirized.
Maxwell was choked by what Hannah just said.
He had seen the world and knew that the worst end would be falling into her trap as she wished.
And now he finally figured out that her intention was to dismiss him!
Once he was fired, nobody in the Cooper Group could grasp as much power as he had to go against Miguel, not even Roger Cooper.
Because Roger was only good at speech and bad at the action.
After figuring it out, Maxwell felt a chill down his back.
He completely had no idea how manipulative she could be. He couldn't believe that Hannah, a silly little girl, could push him into such a hell. Gritting his teeth and swallowing his anger, he said, "You're right, I lost face because of this thing, and the Cooper Group also was discredited by me. I should be responsible for all the consequences. But I think if I have to take responsibility, I shouldn't run away from it, I should face it bravely. Now in front of everyone, I swear to God that I will definitely deal with my personal life and never make this kind of mistake which every man would make!" He quoted that mistake that every man would make and easily absolved man of responsibility, which made Hannah really want to laugh. Was a man born superior to a woman? A man cheated on others so he just made a mistake that every man would make. But if a woman cheated, she would be sordid and disgusting and become an object of hatred. In ancient times, a woman who cheated would have been executed, let alone defended herself. Of course, at this moment Hannah didn't want to discuss women's rights with Maxwell, which just was a waste of time. So she said, "You should get back on track now that you are indiscreet about your personal life. I trust in you that you'll do what you say. But, Mr. Watson, not every mistake can be corrected only by individual effort. Like..." Maxwell stared at her murderously. He was disturbed by this woman, and felt like she was gonna do a bunch of bad things against him. "Like, the mistake involving a crime." Hannah said, separating every word to emphasize. "What crime?!" Maxwell got mad in one second. It took him a long time to settle down, but now he had pissed off again. "The crime of abuse of power for personal gain. You've already caused financial damage to the Cooper Group." Hannah said, "This crime is clearly written into Northfield's law." "Don't frame me, Hannah! When did I commit the crime you just mentioned? When!" "You took advantage of your position to forge Manson's performance report for his personal gain, which caused financial damage of about $200,000 to the Cooper Group!" Hannah said with great power, "Didn't you do this?!" "I said no, I didn't! This is only my negligence to management. Do you have any proof that I did this?" "I don't have proof..." "Without proof, how can you..." "I can call the cops!" Hannah said slowly.

Maxwell was shocked as soon as he heard what she said.

“I have two copies of the performance report that can be used as proof. The secret relationship between you and Mason can be regarded as the motive. The witness who can get you convicted... I guess he will show up as soon as possible after the cops come.”

“Hannah, you!” Obviously, Maxwell couldn’t keep calm again now.

He thought that if she really call the police, he might not go to jail but he would have a criminal record!

Once he got a criminal record, his son would get restricted in his development in the future, let alone his own career.

After thinking about this, he was beginning to freeze like a deer in headlights.

“Mr Watson, you want me to call the police, or do you want to admit what you’ve done!”

With a sullen face, Maxwell was angry and embarrassed.

Why did he let a little girl trick him into this evil trap?

He was going to get her embarrassed this time but now he pushed himself off the cliff.

He stared at Hannah wrathfully, and couldn’t say a word for a long time.

“Everyone’s time is precious. But we have wasted enough time, half the morning, to deal with Mason’s jumping. So in the end, I’ll give you three seconds to think. If you don’t want to make your choice, I’ll take it as you want me to call the police.” Hannah said to Maxwell, with a calm steady tone, “Three, two, one.”

Maxwell was shaking all over to take control of his emotions and keeping silent.

Hannah also didn’t show great emotions, tonelessly commanding, “Rose, call the cops.”

“OK.”

Rose looked down and called 911 on her cell phone.

“I admit!” Maxwell suddenly said in a loud voice.

Hannah gave Rose a meaningful look, so Rose hastily put her phone down.

“I admit I did that. For Ernie, I fake Mason’s monthly performance report from below average to first-class. So he could get a good salary in the company even if he was always slacking off at work.” Maxwell admitted.

He admitted and was tortured by embarrassment.

“But you only paid Ernie 10, 000 a month. So I don’t understand why you had to do something illegal that you knew was wrong. 10, 000 wasn’t too much for you, was it? You could just pay her yourself.” Actually, Hannah was somewhat surprised at what he had done.

“I just said I’ve given my salary to my wife so I didn’t have spare money at all. As to the dividends I asked for an advance, and I also spent this money on Ernie. I didn’t have any extra money every month, so I thought about this way that could solve the problem once and for all. Then I found that this way had another advantage: the higher the employee’s salary, the more benefits the Cooper Group would buy for them. So if I utilized my position to give him an extra 10, 000 in salary, he would get much more money than if I directly gave him 10, 000. I’m a businessman so I know the way to get the highest rate of return.” Maxwell said. At this moment, he simply didn’t have the confidence that he grasped at the beginning and gave a full account of the crime in a desperate manner.

“So you just said, you abuse your power in forging Mason’s monthly performance report for his own benefits.”

“Yes.” Maxwell nodded.

“Then...” Hannah’s eyes grown cold, “Today Mason threatened me by jumping, did you instigate him to do this?!”

Maxwell looked her squarely in the eye, thinking that what more did she want him to do when he was embarrassed and humiliated like this?!

“Um? You don’t wanna admit it this time?” Hannah reminded him, “If I remember correctly, it’s also illegal to blackmail and threaten others to do things that damage their interests!”

Chapter 130 Being Cheered for Expelling the Enemy

In the quiet atmosphere on the roof, other top employees of the Cooper Group were stupefied by these scenes happening in front of them.

They thought that Maxwell had been tortured so badly by the evil consequences resulting from himself.

Hannah casually waited for Maxwell’s answer.

After a few minutes, when Hannah was showing a sign of losing her patience, Maxwell finally admitted again, “Yes, I told Mason to do that.”

What he just said completely disrupted everyone’s values again.

People thought keeping a mistress and abusing one’s power were bad though, they were kind of common things.

But if Watson really played this kind of shabby trick, they would start doubting his character.

However, Hannah was calm because she wouldn't be surprised by something she already knew. She said, "What did I do that bothered you so much, making you have to threaten me like this! If just now Mason really jumped off the building and I followed with him, then you would have killed two people. How much you hate me to do this to me?!"

Maxwell was embarrassed by her aggressive words.

"Was it because I didn't follow your arrangement at the meeting of senior managers? So you beard grudges and found ways to retaliate?" Hannah was making excuses for Maxwell.

Maxwell's face grew pale and red by turns.

"Or did you actually, obey someone's orders?!" Hannah was to the point.

She also wanted to expose Roger, which, of course, was not easy.

Maxwell was also a clever old bird so he knew that if he really ratted out his accomplice when his abuse of power was brought to light, he would never be able to come back. But if he didn't inform against Roger, maybe he would be hired again. So he acted like a maniac and said, "I just hate your attitude! I just don't like being opposed all the time by a little girl! I only want to teach you a lesson and it's none of other's business!"

Hannah was also aware that she couldn't force him to name his accomplice.

But now she had almost got what she wanted:

firstly, she was clear of the charge that she bullied an employee so much that he wanted to suicide;

secondly, she exposed Maxwell's evildoing in public, making him reap the consequences; thirdly, she successfully fired Maxwell, her father's worst enemy, with fairness and reasonableness.

So she said, "Mr Watson, now that the truth has come out, I don't think you want to stay put at the Cooper Group anymore. Cause you have admitted your crime and mistakes, everyone will laugh at you."

Maxwell said

through gritted teeth, "I quit!"

"OK." Hannah agreed quickly, "Mr Chairman, now Mr Watson is willing to quit, so I suggest not to pursue the matter that his abuse of power to gain personal interests. Anyway, he has worked for the Cooper Group for years and contributed a lot to the company, so I think we should offer him an opportunity to correct his misconduct."

"I agree with Ms Hannah." Miguel nodded immediately.

He addressed her as 'Ms Hannah', which obviously meant that he had acknowledged her capacity.

And he also didn't conceal his euphoria at the moment.

For years, he got mad whenever mentioned Maxwell because Maxwell was always against him in all respects. But he couldn't do anything because of their position.

He didn't expect that his daughter could let Maxwell quit by himself in a week. Absolutely, what a pleasure it is!

"As to Mason..." Hannah turned her eyes to Mason, who was squatting down on the floor in wet pants.

She said with a cold voice, "You'd better ask for the resignation by yourself."

Mason dared not reply with a retort.

He was too embarrassed today to stay put at this company.

But he didn't expect to end up not only being fired but also getting Maxwell into trouble.

And now the relationship between Maxwell and his daughter had been exposed, so that relationship would be ended sooner or later.

He couldn't imagine the hard times he would suffer in the future after losing all his income sources!

"By the way," Hannah seemed like had new ideas suddenly, "Mr Richards."

"I'm here." Percy responded.

"Work out the sum of extra money he has been paid for these years and allow his resignation after the money back. If he doesn't give the money back in three days, we'll send him to the police."

"OK." Percy agreed quickly.

Mason looked worse now.

He couldn't believe now he had to give that 200, 000 back?!

"Is there anything else I can do?" Getting everything done in an orderly manner, Hannah asked Miguel with respect.

Miguel was surprised at his daughter's competence.

Not only Miguel,

but everyone on the roof was impressed by Hannah.

Nobody could have expected today's accident would end up like this.

So people even started admiring her from heart and soul.

"It's over." said Miguel.

Hannah gave him a light smile, then she turned around and said to everyone, "So everybody here, I'm sorry to waste your precious time, and please return to your offices. Mr Watson and Mr Mason, I'd like you to get your resignation procedures done by the end of the day."

After she finished, people began to leave the roof one by one.

Miguel and Hannah were also in the crowds.

Back to the office, Hannah said, "Rose, I need someone to keep an eye on Maxwell and Mason's resignation procedures."

"Yes."

"And make me a cup of black coffee, get Jimmy some water. We've wasted a lot of time today, I think we'll be working overtime."

"Yes." Rose answered respectfully.

She couldn't help but glance back at Hannah as she left the office.

She found that Hannah had calmly plunged into work and didn't feel any joy at all in reversing her defeat. It was like she had taken control of everything and didn't need to be excited as she had seen the future, which made her have to see Hannah in a more respectful way.

In the beginning, she was very unwilling to be informed to assist Hannah. But then she heard that she would together with Hannah for three months or half a year at most, so she agreed for her gratefulness to Mr Miguel. Her original plan was to work carefully and then leave, but now she suddenly wanted to work for Hannah for the rest of her life.

It's amazing for a 22-year-old little girl who just graduated from college to get these hard things done. She didn't know what else to do but admire her.

"Anything else?" catching Rose's eyes on her, Hannah asked.

"Nothing." Rose realized and hurriedly came back to the earth, "Just suddenly feel like, you're better than I thought.

"So you still think you lose?" Hannah showed a light smile while typing on the keyboard.

"Seems like, with you, I won't lose." Rose said slowly and clearly.

Hannah gave Rose a quick smile, feeling that her secretary seemed not as boring as she thought.
