Chapter 291 Driven Crazy

Edward agreed to Hannah's proposal. Hannah also told Manuel her plan. He hesitated and finally agreed. After all, this was the only way to force Susan to work hard.

So on that day, all the cards accounts of Susan were frozen. She tried paying by all her cards but failed.

Susan was very embarrassed in the beauty salon. She really didn't know where to go today, so she wanted to go to the beauty salon for beauty and massage, enjoying and rejuvenating herself.

There were still some inflections today after she was drunk last night. She didn't want her mood affected by Manuel. However, she never thought that after she enjoyed the service, no cards could pay for them!

She quickly called her father, "Were you bankrupt?"

Edward was almost angry to die by such a sentence.

"Otherwise, why were all my cards invalid?" Susan asked directly.

"I froze the accounts." Edward said calmly.

"What do you mean?" Susan got angry and said, "Why do you freeze my cards accounts suddenly? Do you want to give all the assets to Justine?"

"It's my business whom I give them to."

They would definitely quarrel with each other in less than two sentences, "For this family, you have not made any contribution, everything is of mine, and I can control them as I like! It's not your turn!"

Susan was so angry that her body was shaking.

Since she was a child, although the relationship between her and her father was not good, Edward had almost never talked to her like this. She always lost her temper on her father.

Susan was going to hang up. After all, she couldn't ask her father for money humbly.

"You are 22 years old and you have graduated from the university. I finished my obligation. I won't give you any money unconditionally. If you want money, you can either go out to work or work in our bank." Edward said frankly.

Susan didn't want to be threatened by her father and hung up the phone directly.

She dialed Hannah again, "Hannah, send me some money."

"Why?" Hannah asked.

Of course, she knew the reason. But unexpectedly, Edward took the measures so fast.

"All the cards my father gave me were frozen."

"Really?" Hannah obviously laughed.

"Are you gloating?"

"No, I'm sorry for that."

Susan didn't believe it.

She said, "You should hurry up and send me some money. I'm in the beauty salon now, and my cards accounts were frozen and I can't pay."

"How much?" Hannah asked.

Susan asked the staff and replied, "Twenty eight thousand."

"If I lend it to you, when will you pay me back?" Hannah continued to ask.

"How soon?" Hannah asked.

"You have already known that my cards were frozen by my father. How can I know when to pay you back? Besides, only 20, 000. With our relationship, do you want me to pay you back?"

"Short account makes long friends." Hannah's voice was firm.

"Hannah! You want to annoy me, don't you?"

"Your father has frozen your card now, and you will ask for everything you spend later. I can't always support you like this, right? I also work hard to make money."

"You..." Susan was too angry to say anything.

She was just annoyed by her father, now she was annoyed again by her best friend.

Susan was so angry that she wanted to hang up the phone directly when she suddenly thought of something. She shouted, "Hannah, you colluded with my father, don't you? You asked me to go to work in the morning but I didn't go, so you and my father thought of such a way. Don't you think it's too awful?"

"You are not stupid." Hannah laughed again.

"It's really you! Am I your friend? You hurt me like this!" She knew her father would not treat her like this. Edward usually flattered her. He didn't dare to treat her like this.

"In fact, if you don't want to go to your father's company to work, you can choose the second way." Hannah suddenly said kindly.

"What is it?" Although she knew that Hannah couldn't say anything good from at the moment, she was still attracted by her words.

"Flatter Manuel and ask him to give you money." Hannah said.

"Are you kidding me? Manuel gets the money from my father, how can he leave some money to me? You are thinking highly of him."

"Susan, do you have any misunderstanding about Manuel?" Hannah was speechless.

Manuel was the No. 1 hacker of Northfield. He could pick up any business, with which the pay was enough for an ordinary person to live a whole life.

“Whether misunderstood or not, I can’t compromise in front of Manuel anyway!” Susan was resolute.

“Then you have to go to work with your father.”

“I won’t!”

“Do you have the choice?” Hannah asked Susan.

Susan gritted her teeth. She thought that she was being scheming against by everyone.

“At last, you’d better negotiate with your father to get more money each month. Otherwise, Edward will give you the salary of an ordinary employee. I’m afraid you will spend the money you earn in one day.”

Susan was really angry and wanted to cry.

“Believe me, Edward, Manuel and I are the people who really care about you in the world.”

Then Hannah hung up the phone. She was afraid that Susan could not bear the stimulation if she said more.

Susan was always thinking that since she married Manuel, she was unfortunate every day.

At the moment, the staff didn’t dare to say a word beside Susan. Hearing Susan’s phone call, they knew she was obviously in a bad mood.

After a long time, someone knocked at the door and came in, “Ms Phillips, someone has already paid for you.”

Susan was stunned.

“Someone has paid.” The staff said again.

“Who?” Susan asked.

“He didn’t leave a name.”

Susan thought it must be Hannah. She knew Hannah’s bark was worse than her bite. She never thought about anyone else.

Susan left the beauty salon.

Driving around the street, she was so frustrated. Originally, she wanted to go shopping to buy some clothes and bags after she had a beauty salon. Now she didn’t have any money. She even couldn’t afford a bottle of water.

At the moment she fell apart, she found that her car oil was almost gone. She parked the car on the street in a huff. Sitting in her car, she felt herself having a breakdown with someone pushing her right to the edge.

Chapter 292 I Try to Be a Good Person

Finally, Susan still picked up the phone and called her father.

“Have you decided?” Edward asked. He said in an indifferent tone. It seemed that he didn’t care too much.

Susan took a deep breath. “OK,” she said. “I’ll go to work tomorrow.”

Edward over there was excited but he tried to calm down. “You come to the human resources department tomorrow.”

“What about my salary?” Susan was blunt.

“You’ll be paid ten thousand per month.”

“I would rather not go to work.” Susan was furious.

“Except for your salary, you have the same amount in your credit card as before.” Edward added.

It means, now she had all the money, plus 10, 000, as long as she decided to work.

Thinking about that, Susan seemed to feel better.

“Is that all right? Edward asked.

“No problem, but you’d better not expect too much from me. I can’t do anything but play.”

“I’ll arrange for someone to teach you.”

“That depends on whether I want to learn or not.” Susan looked disdainful.

“If you do a bad job, according to the company’s rules, you can be fired. Once you are fired, you will be treated as you are now, with no pay and frozen credit cards.”

“ ... ”

Susan couldn’t believe Edward threatened her like that. It did work. She had already prepared to go to work and spend time.

“Attendance time is 9:00 a. m., so don’t be late for your first day.”

“I see.” Susan impatiently said, “So can you restore my card now?”

“I’ll do it when you start work.”

“Come on!”

“I’ll hang up if that’s all.”

Then he hung up. In Susan’s eyes, Edward was still very indifferent to her. She was so angry that she almost threw away her mobile phone.

Since she married Manuel, and her father divorced with Justine, the whole world was against her. Now she was filled with so much anger.

...

Hannah received a phone call from Edward. He thanked her a lot because Susan agreed to work in the company. Hannah said a few polite words.

Actually, pushing Susan to work was just the first step. And to make Susan work hard, there was a long way to go.

"You've been giving me the cold shoulder all day." Oscar sat on the sofa, looking straight at Hannah, smiling.

"You don't spend time with your family?" Hannah put down the phone, looking at Oscar.

Oscar frowned slightly. It seemed he had no idea what Hannah was talking about.

"Theodore." Hannah said, "Don't you need to balance the family relationship? You don't have to play games with him?"

"..." Oscar was speechless.

He stretched out his hand and pulled Hannah directly into his arms. He was too strong. Hannah even felt that she did not have time to push him away, she had been nested in his arms.

"Not him." Oscar held Hannah, with his chin resting on Hannah's head.

Now they were very close to each other.

If it was not Theodore, who else would it be?

"You'll know someday."

"Male or female?" Hannah asked.

"Do you care this?"

"Never mind. I'm just trying to clarify your sexual orientation."

"I don't need someone to verify my sexuality. You can do it now." After saying that, Oscar's body apparently began to react.

"Oscar!"

Were they men always thinking about these things in their brains the whole day?

"It was you who flirted with me."

What did she say to flirt with him?

Hannah was about to contradict, Oscar had pressed her down on the sofa and kissed her. Hannah could not make any sound.

Max came to call them for dinner, and he was petrified when seeing such a fiery scene. Feeling so embarrassed, his face turned red.

Hannah also saw Max. She quickly tried her best to push away Oscar, who then smiled and let go of her.

He was afraid of losing control. Every time he just wanted to make jokes with her, it turned out that he was the uncomfortable one. He moved from her body.

Hannah's face was red. Seeing that, Max was worried he interrupted them, so he said, "You don't have to eat dinner too early. Go ahead."

Who wanted to go ahead? She didn't even know what Oscar would do next if they had not been stopped.

Hannah got down from the sofa, running to the table. Actually, it was called "ESCAPE".

Oscar touched his lip. He almost couldn't bear the lust. He got up and sat across to Hannah.

She found they had been more and more accustomed to each other in the life.

"The election begins next week." Oscar suddenly said.

Hannah paused, "A promotion to chief of staff?"

"That's right."

"Do you need to go around giving speeches?" Hannah asked.

The elections in Northfield were always run with a voting system. As for the selection of the officials in Kensbury City, it required an open vote by the entire population, thus, it needed a lecture tour.

"I will plan with my team where to canvass tomorrow."

"How many candidates are there this time?"

"Just me and Charles Sawyer."

Hannah frowned.

"Everyone else knew there was no hope, and they were afraid of offending me and him, so they didn't sign up."

Hannah nodded. That made sense. There was no one else qualified except Oscar and Charles.

"Is there anything I can do for you?"

"Not yet. But I may be too busy to be with you at this time."

"It doesn't matter." It would be better not to be with her, she thought.

Otherwise, he would spend a lot of time molesting her.

"The dinner." Oscar reminded.

Hannah silently nodded. Then she worried and said, "Don't be defeated by him."

"Don't you trust me?" Oscar's expression changed slightly.

"Charles was insidious and cunning."

"So you think I'm a good person?" Oscar smiled.

Hannah was shocked. Then she was relieved. If Oscar was honest and kind, he would have been killed by Charles for thousands of times in previous lifetime.

"I try to be a good person." Oscar suddenly said. It was like a promise.

Hannah suddenly thought of what Oscar said to her in her previous life. He said that he was not a good person. But now, he said he tried to be a good person. She was somewhat touched by this change.

Was he changing for her?

As for his sentence 'Not a good person', how would he interpret "a good person"?

"If I win this time, how about giving yourself to me sexually?" Oscar asked.

Hannah came to herself and said, "Didn't I say I wait for you till the day of your bright future?"

“Isn’t the position of chief executive a splendid future?”

“Why don’t you request yourself more strictly?” Hannah was speechless again.

At least, he should get the highest office of the aristocratic families.

Chapter 293 Approved by the Board Meeting

“Have I ever had high requirements to myself?” Oscar asked her.

Anyway, it should not be such a low one like this. Looking at Hannah, Oscar suddenly fell silent.

Smiling slightly, he seemed a little lonely.

Then he got up from the sofa, “I go to bed.” He just looked a little uncomfortable.

Hannah pursed her lips. She looked at Oscar’s back, and said to him, “Is it that important?”

Oscar looked back at her.

“Is having sex that important to men?”

“It depends on different people.” Oscar replied.

Hannah frowned.

“It’s very important to do it with you.” Oscar paused every word.

So what Oscar meant was having sex with her was very important to him.

Suddenly, Hannah felt bad for Oscar, looking straight at his lonely back.

This man was born into a wealthy family and he was admired by a lot of people. The loneliness in him was not compatible with him at all. He looked as if he had never received any love since he was a child, and he had grown up alone. He was a man of mystery puzzles. And she seemed to have been seduced.

When Hannah opened her eyes the next morning, she found the man who slept beside her was no longer there.

At ordinary times, Oscar wouldn’t wake up so early. What happened today?

Was he angry last night? He was so mean, Hannah thought.

When she threw off the quilt and got up with some displeasure, she saw a post-it note on the bedside.

She reached out and took it, “Leave first cause I have something to do, don’t worry about me. Yours, Oscar.”

The moment she read it, there was a smile on her face although she laughed at how silly he was inside.

“Yours, Oscar.”

Hannah controlled her inner emotions, put down the note, walked into the bathroom, and finished washing up. Then she simply made up and changed into a suit.

Hannah went to the building of Cooper Group after having breakfast.

When she came into the office and just sat down. Rose reported on her work, "Ms Hannah, there is a board meeting at ten o'clock in the morning. The office of chairman's secretary reminded me early in the morning and asked me to notify you to attend."

"What's the theme?"

"They didn't tell, just said that you must participate."

"Okay." Hannah nodded, and then asked, "The opening marketing case of the 'Huatan' project, bring it out earlier."

"Yes." Rose nodded, "I have urged the marketing department, and the deadline for submission is before this Wednesday."

"OK." Hannah responded.

"Ms Hannah, do you still want a cup of black coffee?"

"Thanks." Hannah had turned around and started working.

Rose made a cup of coffee for Hannah and a cup of warm water for Jimmy before leaving the office without disturbing her. She always thought that when Hannah was working, she was serious and dedicated.

It was ten o'clock in the morning. Hannah walked into the board meeting room. To her surprise, Mary and Wayne were also there.

She sat in the corner calmly, waiting for the meeting to start. Miguel sat in the middle, and he said bluntly to the microphone in front of him, "Today, everyone is in a hurry to hold a board meeting. The purpose is very simple. We need to check the goal that Hannah set for herself when she joined the company."

Hannah smiled lightly. It turned out that her father couldn't wait to credit the achievements to her.

"At that time, Hannah made a promise in front of all the high-level officials. Lily." Miguel called the personal secretary beside him.

"Yes, Mr Chairman." The secretary understood and quickly projected the document on the screen.

Everyone looked at the performance table on the huge electronic screen.

"This is Hannah's performance in the three months since she entered Cooper Group." Miguel said, "It has exceeded her original promise."

Suddenly, the audience burst into applause. Hannah had a smile on her face, but she was still calm.

"Cooper Group has always regarded the ones who have capability the most important, so I would like to put forward my position idea for Hannah." Miguel was very serious, and looked very powerful, "Roger, who was in charge of the sales and marketing part of the Group, my eldest brother, has been imprisoned for some things. I think everyone here should be very clear about that, so I won't go into details here. But now his work has been managed by the executive CEO. After all, the CEO has his responsibilities. He can spare his energy some time, but it will inevitably be exhausting after a long time. Therefore, I hope that Hannah will take up this position, Senior Vice Chairman of Cooper Group. She will be responsible for managing all marketing work." As soon as the words came out, it was still a little surprising. Hannah was also amazed. That was a rare leap. It was even more unbelievable than Oscar's promotion to a chief executive.

Indistinct conversations began in the meeting room. After all, Hannah was only 22 years old.

There had never been a 22-year-old female chairman in the history of Northfield. Moreover, Cooper Group was one of the top 100 companies in the world.

People might laugh at this.

"I don't agree!" Wayne suddenly said loudly, "Something happened to my dad and he is now in jail, so he can't manage the company any more, but even so, it's not Hannah's turn to take over. She just have only been in the company for three months, and got certain achievement, but no matter how great the credit is, she is not qualified to take up this position. Uncle, it is a bit too selfish for you to do so."

Miguel looked at Wayne, who was acting like he was being reasonable. If Hannah was to be appointed as the senior vice chairman of Cooper Group, he would not agree to it. Roger was only in his late 40s when he was in the position. Now that Hannah was appointed in the top position, it was ridiculous for them.

"So who do you think is more suitable?" Miguel asked Wayne.

"Anyway, Hannah is not qualified enough." Wayne said bluntly. Of course, it was not good to recommend him himself. Even though it was normal for a son to inherit his father's career here. Since no one else recommended him, he couldn't say it out and asked Miguel to give him the position.

"What's wrong with Hannah?" Miguel asked him.

Wayne was about to speak at that moment.

"Age?" Miguel said, "Just because she is only 22 years old this year, should all her abilities be denied? May I ask, with so many talents in the company, everyone was helpless when facing the project of Light Building, when facing 'Huatan', the international project, everyone avoided talking about it. But Hannah was able to turn the two most difficult projects of the Group into profits in just three months. Who can say that she has no ability to get the position!" With a tone so aggressive that it couldn't be refuted, Miguel made the scene instantly silent.

At least half of the people were convinced by him.

After a few seconds, someone began to echo, "I support Hannah as the senior vice chairman of the Group. I think we should give young people a platform to play a bigger role."

"I also support it. Hannah was able to achieve such amazing results in a short period of time. I believe that in the coming time, she will bring me more surprises."

"Agree..."

There were more and more voices of support. Hannah never thought that she would get such recognition.

Chapter 294 Hannah's Courage

At the meeting, Hannah looked at Miguel. Seeing her father was proud of her being approved by others, Hannah felt inexplicably sad. In her previous lifetime, she could stay by her father's side, share his worries and problems, and become his pride. However, she spent everything on a faithless man. In the end, their family was ruined. If she hadn't relived this life, she would be sorry to meet her parents in the heaven.

She inhibited the tears. She didn't want to be so sentimental anymore. At least for now, she was alive and what she should do at present was to be fine and live well.

"I don't agree!" A voice of disapproval suddenly appeared in the board conference room.

Hannah turned her eyes and looked over. This time it wasn't Wayne, it was another senior leader.

"Indeed, she is very capable, I admit that. But it is inappropriate for Hannah to take over Roger's position." The speaker paused for a moment, and seemed to be mustering up his courage, "Mr Chairman, I have something to say. I say it out of position, and I hope you don't mind it."

"William, if you have something to say, you may speak up." Miguel respected this director. After all, he was one of the few shareholders of the Group's older generation who were still working here.

"Your father left the Group to you, but he also clarified the position of your elder brother Roger. In other words, you are the owner of the company, but you are not the only one who owns it. What I'm talking about now is very straightforward, that is, Roger's position, within the reasons, should be inherited by his only son, Wayne. Hannah can take over all other positions, but this position, only Wayne can inherit it.” William said.

Hearing that, Wayne secretly felt exhilarated. With the support of a shareholder on Roger’s side, Wayne was thankful that that position wouldn’t belong to Hannah since she was hindered by such a powerful man in the Group. Thinking of becoming the senior vice chairman of Cooper Group, he almost trembled with excitement for getting such an authoritative name. Especially when he heard that Miguel recognized it at the moment, he said, “William is right, thank you for reminding me.”

“I’m just doing my duty, and I’m afraid that faithful words grate upon ears.”

“It’s not that serious.” Miguel quickly said politely, “I completely agree with William’s point of view.”

William nodded, with a little relief.

“It’s just that with Wayne’s current achievements, I’m afraid it will be difficult for him to take over the position.” Miguel said bluntly.

The joy on Wayne’s face vanished in an instant.

“When Hannah first joined the company and made a promise in front of the senior leaders, Wayne and Mary also made the same promise. Lily.” Miguel called his personal secretary again.

The secretary hastily pressed the next page of the presentation.

Miguel looked at the projected screen and said, “This is Wayne’s achievement in the past three months. The goal set at the beginning was that the public relations department would take the project of the international playground, and at the same time help the total revenue of the interface board to double. Now the result is that the international amusement park is still in the ambiguous stage of municipal planning. As for the number of signed orders, compared with last year, the orders of the customer collection department are one-fifth less.”

Wayne was extremely embarrassed by what he said. During this time in the company, he did not make any achievements. He wished he could but the truth was not his expectations. Just watching Hannah shine brightly all the time, but he seemed to be unable to do anything, even a help. Day after day, three months passed fast.

“William, I made it clear in front of everyone and in front of Wayne’s father, Roger, that if Wayne and Mary didn’t complete their performance, they would start over as ordinary employees. Now we give Wayne a higher position with disregard for his performance. Such an arrangement may not be appropriate.” William did not stand by Roger’s side. He just wanted the fair and put forward his own point of view. Miguel knew it too and that was why he respected him so much.

“Well, then I won’t say more. I just think that if the chairman insists on placing Hannah in the position of senior vice chairman, it will be a joke of our company.”

In fact, it was also for the sake of the company’s reputation.

“I don’t need to be the senior vice chairman. I feel that I am still young and need more experience. I am under pressure when I was given such a high position.” Hannah suddenly stood up from her seat and expressed her attitude. Such words made her very kind and generous.

“William is right. If I take the position, I will fall into disrepute. It will be rumored that the chairman of Cooper Group put obstacles in the uncle’s family’s way. Not only the senior leaders can’t accept that, but I can’t accept it. I can’t accept my father being misunderstood like this, so I won’t take over the position of the senior vice chairman of the head company.” Hannah stated. Miguel looked at his daughter. Although he appreciated her courage and that she was not appealed by the profit, this position was so appealing to so many people. She might regret it someday, Miguel thought. And once it was confirmed that this position could only be held by his elder brother’s family, Hannah would never be able to occupy this position in the future. She could only wait until she inherit his position and it was a long-term thing. He would feel sorry for her daughter.

“However,” Hannah said suddenly, “Mr chairman also made it clear that my uncle is in prison, and the work content of this position is managed by the CEO. But it takes much time and efforts. And there is no precedent of hiring two external chief executive officers. Besides, Wayne is not qualified enough according to his performance. So I would like to apply for the position, to be exact, for the work but not its title. I don’t need the job title.”

It meant that she didn’t need an appointment from the company and she would do the work of the senior vice chairman of the company while getting paid the present salary. As soon as the words came out, there was still a bit of uproar in the audience. Everyone was stunned by her idea of doing labor free. “Once the board of directors feel that there is a better person who can take up this position, to put it bluntly, if Wayne can improve his performance, I will give it up.”

Such a speech left everyone on the scene speechless. If anyone retorted, they would think he was making trouble on purpose. All of them had to admire Hannah’s courage. The younger generations brought the young attitude. In the quiet meeting room, no one said a word anymore.

Seeing her daughter’s resolute attitude, Miguel agreed, “Since this is Hannah’s decision, if you have no opinion, then we will do as Hannah said. In her current position, she takes over all the duties of the senior vice chairman.”

Chapter 295 She Had It Coming

After Miguel finished his words, there was no longer any objection. It was just convincing.

Wayne gritted his teeth. He knew that he had no right to disagree at this moment, so he could only grit his teeth and sulk.

“Okay, now we should clarify the work of Wayne and Mary.” Miguel said. Everyone’s attention was focused on the two of them.

“Mary promised to complete an independent marketing plan, and double the original marketing performance, and cooperate with Hannah to do the job. Mary has met the standard, so she was promoted from the director of the marketing planning office of the sales department to assistant to the general manager of the sales department.”

When Mary heard about her promotion, the smile on her face was completely undisguised. Then she quickly restrained her smile because Wayne was staring at her with hatred in his eyes, which made her not dare to feel a little bit of complacent at all.

“And Wayne, I thought about it again and again. Although he hasn’t completed the performance, since he is Roger’s only son, and he needs to be cultivated well, after all, I decided to make an exception for him. Let’s look at the results after half a year. If the performance hasn’t improved by the moment, Wayne will fulfil his promise and start from the grassroots, but if your performance improves, I will give you a promotion according to your ability.” Miguel’s words were quite a prestige. There was no favoritism and his words did show fairness and it led to no rebuttals from the other colleagues.

Wayne didn’t say a word.

Miguel turned to Wayne, “Any comments?”

“No, uncle.” Wayne had no choice but to answer. It had to be said that this was the best result for him. He could only be foolish if he resisted now.

Suppressing the anger, he swore to torture these people one day, especially Miguel and Hannah. He vowed to take everything from them!

At the end of the meeting, everyone left. Hannah walked into the elevator.

Mary followed her and said with a flattering expression, “Hannah,”

Mary probably thought that what happened today was all planned by Hannah and her father, including her promotion. However, that had nothing to do with Hannah, yet there wouldn’t be any objection from Hannah. After all, this kind of arrangement could make everyone see that Miguel was an impartial leader.

“I will work hard with you in the coming time.” Said Mary.

For Mary, what had happened today was exactly an answer from Hannah, an additional one to the suggestions about Mary's future, which were told by Hannah on the anniversary of Cooper Group.

"Work hard. It's good for you."

"Yes." Mary looked very well-behaved.

As soon as Mary returned to her office, her expression changed all of a sudden. She was so jealous when Hannah was pushed forward today. Now she took the initiative to show her kindness to Hannah as she understood that her father's family, including her grandma and Wayne, were unreliable. Only by following Hannah could she gain a position here. And once she gained a foothold, she swore to expel Hannah from the company. She was waiting for the day to come.

In the office of the General Manager of the Public Relations Department, Wayne overturned everything on the table. He didn't dare lose his temper at the meeting but when he returned to his office, he brought all his emotions to the surface. He felt very upset when it came to his mind that Hannah surpassed him so much at the meeting. At that moment, he couldn't help but blame his father.

If it weren't for his father's uselessness, he wouldn't be aggrieved to this point. If it weren't for his father's inability, his grandfather wouldn't have left all the inheritance to his uncle, and he wouldn't have been so embarrassed now! The rage in him was bordering on physical violence. At the moment, the phone suddenly rang. It was from Lorie.

"Grandma." He answered in an unkind tone, making no secrets of his antipathy.

"Wayne, come back quickly, your mother is going to kill me, come back and help me!" Lorie's sharp voice rang out from the other end of the phone. She didn't notice that Wayne was in a rage at the moment.

He hung up the phone abruptly and left the company right away. He drove fast all the way home.

They were living in a hardcover house in the urban area now, for all their assets owned by his father had been confiscated. With some private money saved by his mother and the help of relatives on Esther's side, they could barely maintain this life.

He walked into the house angrily. As soon as the door was opened, Lorie was heard crying and cursing.

"Esther, you threw my bowl, you didn't help me wash my feet, and you dared to let me go! Do you know who you are? If I hadn't persuaded my son back then, he would have divorced you long ago, and you would have become an abandoned widow!" At this moment, Esther was scolded by Lorie and her expression was extremely bad. Seeing his son come back, she restrained herself for a second.

Lorie quickly stepped forward to pull Wayne as soon as she saw him. "Wayne, Wayne, do you know how your mother abused me at home? You must teach her, your uneducated mother, a lesson!" she said.

Wayne was burning with hate, which had been contained for a long time since the meeting.

"Wayne, I couldn't bear your grandma." Esther looked at her son, her eyes turning red, and she seemed very wronged, "You know the current situation of our family, everyone knows. But Lorie insists me should stew dessert for her, so I stew her some white fungus to drink, and she poured the food on me. I was hurt, and I got angry, I did drop your grandma's bowl and wet her feet. Now your grandma says that I should buy her desserts and wash her feet on my knees..."

"That's the way it has to be..."

And suddenly Wayne smacked Lorie violently in the face.

Looking at her precious grandson, Lorie was shocked with disbelief, and so was Esther.

Since his childhood, Lorie gave Wayne, her dearest grandson, everything. How could he slap his grandmother without mercy?

"Who do you think you are? Do you think you're the queen in our family? You were indeed useful, because Miguel would give you money and listen to you, so we flattered you. Do you think we treat you well because we like you, because we are filial? Ridiculous! We thought that you were helpful for us. But now, we have nothing, what are you doing here? You still want my mother to wash your feet? From now on, you're the one to wash my mom's feet and you're the one to cook for my mom. You will be our servant for the rest of your life!" said Wayne.

Chapter 296 Abused

"Wayne, you ungrateful bastard! How could you talk to me like that? How could you say something so heartless to me? How dare you! I'm your grandma. I've always loved and cared about you and supported your life. You've made tons of troubles and I've got your back every time. But in return, you just said those ruthless words to me and even beat me! You dared beat me! You goddamn ungrateful bastard! You broke my heart. Your conscienceless words are killing me! I swear, you'll be terribly sorry if I die."

Lorie went out of control and screamed her lung out.

For so many years, Lorie had never been abused by anyone. Even though she didn't have a happy marriage with her husband, she was respected most of the time. Her husband had compromised in every way to avoid fussing with her. Later she became the only senior of the family after her husband died, and everyone must show her respect. She'd tried all means to make things difficult for Hannah and her family, but they still treated her with due respect and care. However, she turned out to be abused cruelly by the ones she loved and cared.

She just couldn't figure it out.

"Go to hell then! You're so useless and you should go to hell!" Wayne shouted at Lorie and showed his real face and said without sympathy, "Do you think you could live such a good life without Uncle Miguel? Grandma, do you think we like you and respect you? Wake up! We just made use of you to take over Cooper Group! You're useless to us now since you've offended Uncle Miguel and his family. You're a piece of trash, so useless and pathetic. Just go to hell. We hate to see your face again. You make us sick!"

"Wayne, you bastard! I'm gonna kill you! I'm gonna kill you!" Saying it, Lorie came at Wayne.

But Wayne pushed her down to the sofa abruptly before she could come close to him. Lorie was aged and got dizzy and couldn't rise to her feet. It seemed Wayne hadn't vent out his anger yet. He stepped forward and tried to slap her more.

Esther stopped him immediately.

"Wayne, I don't give a shit on the life and death of this evil old woman, but it's unworthy of it if you ruin your future by killing her and getting yourself into a lawsuit."

Wayne thought about it, stopped beating Lorie and said, "You'd better have some self-knowledge! I'll fucking kill you if you dare boss my mother around again or still do yourself proud like a queen mother in the house!"

"How dare you! I'm your grandmother!" Lorie screamed out. No matter how, she couldn't accept that she'd been abused like this.

"Wayne, you abused me and showed me no respect! I'll reveal the truth to the media right away. I'm gonna ruin your reputation and make you lose everything."

"Whatever!" Wayne didn't give a damn on it and said, "You framed Uncle Miguel and his family up that day and got busted on the spot. Try and see what media will still believe your shit now. Check your phone and see how many people have condemned you as a wicked old woman and cursed you to go to hell. You're asking for an insult yourself if you talk to the media and expose me! No one will ever believe a word you say!"

"I... I'll go for Miguel. I'll tell him to knock some sense into you! You damn kid!"

"Oh, my dear grandma, don't you know the meaning of 'digging your own grave'?" Wayne smiled evilly and said, "You gave Uncle Miguel and his family a hard time, and you want him to help you now? Do you think he is stupid? You know what, Hannah isn't the one she used to be. She's very vindictive now. You'll be kicked out of the house if you turn to them for help. I suggest you drop the idea. Or you'll look for trouble yourself."

"You ungrateful bastard!" Lorie cursed. She didn't know how to vent out her anger besides cursing him harshly.

"Well, since we've started it today, let's just make things clear, in case you still have those false hopes." Wayne meant to make Lorie suffer and said, "I don't like you and I just take advantage of you. So does my father. Jesus! You're so stupid that you even can't tell who really loves you and who just pretends to. Grandpa was much smarter on it. He knew my father wasn't attached to any of you and none of you would live well once my father took over Cooper Group."

"You cruel and heartless bastard! You and your father and your family are goddamn bastards!"

"You taught us that, grandma." Wayne said sarcastically, "Uncle Miguel and his family treat you well but you turn a blind eye to it. You even acted wicked and merciless and couldn't bear to see them live a good life. You're just suffering from your own actions now. You asked for it. You are the only one to be blamed!"

"Wayne..."

"Enough!" Wayne didn't want to waste his breath with Lorie again.

He turned to Esther and said, "Mum, take her phone away. Keep an eye on her. Make sure she behave herself."

"OK." Esther said. In fact, she'd had enough of Lorie in her life.

She wouldn't have grovelled to Lorie if it hadn't been beneficial to please her. But she was over the moon when she could torture her and take it out on her now.

"I'm not feeling well. I gotta take a nap in my room." said Wayne. He wasn't in the mood of going back to the office today. Whenever he recalled that he'd suffered wrong in the office, he couldn't help to get mad. He swore that he would make Hannah pay for it someday! She would have to pay big for it!

...

At the company, Hannah finished the work handover. Someone in the branch office took over the job of the sales director when Hannah was promoted to the senior vice chairman, while Mary became the assistant of the sales director in the Sales Department.

Hannah moved to the office of the senior managers. The office for the senior vice chairman was still empty. It seemed to be saved for Wayne.

In fact, they did it to hush the crowd.

Hannah knew clearly that Wayne couldn't be promoted to that position considering his working capacity. And Wayne knew himself quite well. He knew he wasn't capable of it, so he might reach his goal in the extreme way. She would do nothing but wait for Wayne to bring about his own destruction. Hannah's new office was temporarily made in a vacant room. In the letter of appointment, she was appointed as "The Provisional Senior Vice Chairman". So, it sounded very reasonable to work in a temporal office.

Even so, anyone would feel uncomfortable with it. But only Hannah could take it so lightly.

Rose moved to the new office together with Hannah. She just watched their sales director, to be more exact, the provisional Senior Vice Chairman, looking so calm and peaceful.

Rose was worrying about Hannah. 'Didn't she care about the so-called fame and reputation? Wasn't she afraid of making herself a laughing stock? She would have to leave with her tail down once Wayne had developed himself and got promoted. Wasn't she worried about it?' She thought.

"Just speak it out." Hannah had buried herself in work already.

The CEO had covered this job in the earlier stage, and there wasn't any problem with the big things. But many of the small things had been left behind.

"Nothing much." Rose came back to earth instantly.

She always thought it was unnecessary for her to worry about anything. It seemed that Hannah had confidence in everything. Everything had turned out to be fine in the end even though Hannah had met some unstable things or gone through some difficulties at first. So, she didn't have to worry about it at all.

"Get back to your work then. We've got much to do in this position. List all the job responsibilities of this position and find out what kind of work this position is in charge of now. Get back to me within this week."

"Yes." Rose said humbly.

After all, Hannah wouldn't leave any personal time to anyone during working hours. She wouldn't even give you the time to zone out. That was her process.

Chapter 297 Farewell Dinner

It was ten at night when Hannah raised her head from the work. She kept sitting there without moving since this afternoon. Now she'd got a sore neck and sore arms.

She stood up, stretched her arms and said to Jimmy, "Let's call it a day, Jimmy."

"Yes, Mrs Wells." Said Jimmy, who stayed close to her all the time except when she was in Oscar's manor.

They left the building together. Hannah was a little tired and leaned against the back of the seat, then she took out her phone to check the chatting records.

Suddenly she was surprised for a few seconds. She found Oscar had texted her at 5pm, saying that he wanted to dine out with her after work, and he'd also sent her the address of the restaurant.

But she had been too busy to check her phone, so she didn't know it at all. And, Oscar didn't call to remind her or double checked if she'd received the message. Then, she pursed her lips and called Oscar.

Oscar picked up the phone, "Finally, you think of me, Hannah."

"Why didn't you call if you wanted to ask me out for dinner?" Hannah was confused. She would just have missed it if she hadn't read the message.

"You're a busy bee. Would you simply leave your work and come have dinner with me if I called?"

"At least, I could turn you down." Hannah said righteously.

Oscar smiled on the other end, sounding like he didn't care much about it, and said, "Anyway, it made no difference. Why bothered to urge you? I'd better leave you to your work. You'll certainly get off work once you're done."

"You're getting on my nerves!" said Hannah. She didn't think she could hit it off with Oscar.

Normally, one would call to confirm if he didn't get a reply, and would go home early if his date couldn't make it. But Oscar just turned a deaf ear to it.

Or was he only being polite to ask her out for dinner? Or, in fact, he might have called Theodore or someone else, and he was just checking with her? So, it didn't matter even she hadn't replied. If so, Hannah didn't think she had to feel guilty.

"I'm off and on my way home." she said, and was about to hang up the phone.

"Shall I tell the waitresses to serve the dishes now?" Oscar asked.

Hannah was wondering if she'd heard it wrong or misunderstood it.

"I'm still waiting for you at the restaurant." Oscar added.

What? Was he out of his mind? Had he been waiting for her for the whole evening without calling or urging her? In fact, she thought Oscar was insane, but somehow she was touched deep in her heart.

She hung up the phone abruptly and told Jimmy, "Head for CAROLE, the restaurant, Jimmy."

"Yes, Mrs Wells." Jimmy just followed the order without asking much.

"Well, does Oscar go bananas every now and then?" Hannah felt a little wronged and couldn't tell the exact feeling right now, so she just wanted to take it out.

"Sorry?" Jimmy was confused.

"Does he ask someone out for dinner without calling and just keep waiting and waiting?"

"No." Jimmy said with earnest.

Hannah didn't think that was something Oscar would do. Somehow, she guessed he would definitely lose temper if he dined out with Theodore and the latter was late for even one minute.

"Mr Wells never takes someone out for dinner." Jimmy added.

Hearing it, Hannah was stunned and felt her heart was touched deeply by something. Was she so special to Oscar?

Very soon, the car arrived at the restaurant.

Hannah hurried to the restaurant, then stood there in the hall with her lips pursed. She found Oscar was alone in the hall, sitting at a dining table. The soft and white light shone on him. He sat without moving, looking like a delicate statue, so beautiful and so lonely.

Hannah took a deep breath and went over to him step by step.

Hearing her footsteps, Oscar turned around to see her coming up to him with determination. He put on a smile and stood up elegantly. He acted like a real gentleman, pulled out the chair for her and invited her to take a seat while she was walking over to him.

Hannah glanced at him and sat down slowly. Then Oscar made a gesture.

The waiters got it and began serving the dishes. Right at the moment, the waiter also filled the goblets with expensive wine.

"Is it a special day today?" Hannah asked.

She wondered what was so special about today. Why didn't he call and tell her on the phone if it was a big day? She might leave work early for a big day.

Oscar said nothing.

"The one-hundredth day of our marriage?" Hannah guessed.

Oscar shook his head.

"Your birthday?" Hannah kept guessing.

Oscar frowned deeply.

She admitted that she had forgotten Oscar's birthday.

"My birthday is on 2nd February." Oscar said.

Hannah was a little embarrassed, since she didn't pay much attention to it.

And she was thinking Oscar didn't know her birthday, either. Then she heard Oscar saying, "Your birthday is on 8th August." Hannah was speechless. Couldn't he just stop embarrassing her? "We're a perfect couple." Oscar smiled lightly. So, what was so special of it? "It isn't a big day today." Oscar said bluntly. "Then why all these fusses?" Hannah was still a little confused. "I'll leave Kensbury tomorrow. I'll be gone for a while." So, was this a farewell party? Even so, she should be the one to ask him out for dinner. "How long will you be gone?" Hannah couldn't think of much and just asked whatever she cared most about. "Telling from the schedule, I'll be away for about ten days." answered Oscar. "That's a long time." Hannah was a little surprised. And she couldn't accept it for the time. "The City Hall has planned a lecture tour. I've been assigned to some out-of-the-way counties. According to the schedule, I'll be back in around ten days." "What about Charles?" Hannah asked. Did Charles have the same work arrangement? Oscar's face changed a little. "Don't get me wrong. I just wanna know if you've been treated differently." Hannah said with a straight face. "He'll stay in downtown of Kensbury now, and later he'll go to some suburb counties." "So, they've made it hard for you." Hannah said firmly. But Oscar didn't seem to care much about it. "Are you leaving tomorrow?" Hannah asked, knowing that he couldn't say no to the the City Hall's arrangement. "Yep. I'll set out tomorrow morning. That's why I wanted to have dinner with you tonight. I'll be gone for a while and I'm afraid I'll miss you a lot." Oscar said naturally. She thought of his words and found them so warm and sweet. So, it meant Oscar couldn't bear to part with her, and asked her out for dinner, yet she'd just kept him waiting for at least four hours.

Chapter 298 Oscar Must Be Somebody

CAROLE was a fine and romantic restaurant. The waiters brought them food humbly and respectfully.

The two of them were the only guests in the restaurant. She had no idea if Oscar had made a block booking or all the other guests had left since it was late at night.

“Oscar.” Hannah called his name.

“Yeah?” Oscar said and raised his eyes to look at her, seeming that was listening to her carefully anytime.

Hannah thought of Charles, who always paltered with her after they got married. Sometimes, she had to repeat her words for at least three times before he could hear her. Sometimes, he simply told her to stop talking and keep quiet, because he was tired and needed a good rest after a full day’s work. Hannah tried hard to remain calm and peaceful. She thought she couldn’t release all the anger and grievance until Charles died!

“Why didn’t you call me? I could have left work earlier if you had called.” she said.

In fact, there was no need to guess or ask. She had never been able to turn Oscar down.

Oscar was cutting the steak carefully and saying carelessly, “Never mind. I used to wait for you a lot, and I’m used to it.”

Hannah frowned and couldn’t remember Oscar had ever waited for her. Did she lose her memories?

“And, you did come after you finished your work, didn’t you?” Oscar said naturally.

Hannah didn’t know what Oscar was thinking. Was he fine with it for waiting for her without complaint?

“Done!” Oscar said all at once.

Hannah frowned again and wondered what he was talking about. Could he just act like a normal person? It had really scared her out.

Then she saw Oscar stand up abruptly and exchange his plate with hers like a gentleman. The steak in Oscar’s plate had been cut into small pieces, while Hannah had taken two bites of the steak in her plate.

Hannah stared at him.

“Enjoy the steak.” Oscar said with a smile.

She thought she could definitely cut the steak by herself and she wasn’t so spoiled. What’s more, she’d tasted the steak. Then she saw him cut a small piece of the steak and put it into his mouth naturally.

Hannah took her eyes back and lowered her head to look at the steak of small pieces in the plate.

“Thanks.” she said.

It seemed that she was too moved to say anything else. It was beyond words. Oscar was so considerate. He was so thoughtful that she couldn’t reject him or didn’t want to reject him again.

“Don’t just say it. Do something.” Oscar said naughtily to ease things down. Hannah raised her eyes to stare at him.

“Hannah, you know I love...” suddenly, Oscar was interrupted and heard a kiss sound.

Hannah gave him a kiss on the lips. After kissing him, Hannah sat back on her seat properly and shyly, looking like a child who had made a mistake.

Oscar stared at Hannah without a blink for so long that Hannah couldn’t take it any more. The next second, she saw Oscar lick his lips softly with his tongue.

God! That was too seductive!

They finished their dinner in such a sweet and romantic atmosphere, and went home together. Max must be waiting for them no matter how late they came back.

“Oscar,” Hannah got back to the room with Oscar after she finished eating the dessert that Max had brought her, then she walked and asked, “how did you find such a good housekeeper?”

Oscar turned around to look at Hannah and said slowly, “With my life. Do you believe it?”

Hannah was kinda shocked to hear it. For a second, she thought Oscar was kidding. For the next second, she thought he meant it.

But Oscar didn’t explain much on it. He reached out to touch Hannah’s hair and said with dearly love, “He’s also your housekeeper. Don’t be envious.”

Well, she wasn’t envious. Instead, she just suddenly believed that Oscar must be somebody.

The next morning, Hannah turned over to feel Oscar but found he was already gone.

Hannah opened her eyes, looked at the empty place where Oscar had slept last night and felt kinda disappointed. She thought he would wake her to say goodbye before he left. But it turned out that he just left quietly.

In fact, she’d imagined it would be this, so she couldn’t sleep tight for the whole night. She was thinking that she might at least see him off this morning. But he just left quietly.

Hannah stretched herself and got out of the bed. At that moment, she looked at the head of the bed by the way, saw a note as expected and read it, “Text me if you miss me. I’ll text you back the soonest. Yours loved, Oscar.”

He was simply so over himself!

She put down the note, but couldn’t help to pick it up and read it again. Oscar had very good handwriting. He could write vigorously and smoothly. She guessed that was the reason why she had read it again and again.

Oscar had been away for ten days.

In fact, Hannah had got her hands full in the past ten days. She’d been busy sorting out the work in hand. In a word, she spent most of the time committing to her work. But she still paid close attention to Oscar's lecture tour whenever she was free from work.

They gave speeches locally to canvass, and the videos of their speeches would also be uploaded to the official website of the City Hall, so everyone could watch them. After all, they could make contact with very few people in the lecture tour.

Hannah was checking the online votes for Oscar and Charles. Obviously, Charles had much higher media exposure recently. Oscar must have been totally defeated if he wasn't so good looking as to have attracted quite a few of admirers.

If it kept going like this, it was like a pie in the sky if Oscar wanted to win. Anyway, it was too difficult for Hannah to accept the fact that Charles was gonna win. In this life, she couldn't wait to see Charles lose all reputation, and she hated to see him being arrogant and successful.

She hesitated for a while and finally decided not to call Oscar. Anyway, he would come back the next day, and they could discuss it face to face then. Moreover, she didn't want Oscar to be too stressful now. Her heart beat faster when she thought that Oscar would be back the next day.

Hannah closed the web page and was about to get back to work.

Her phone rang.

Hannah looked at the calling number and didn't imagine Oscar would call her first. They hadn't called each other in the last ten days, and they only texted with each other.

Actually, they didn't text a lot, either. Normally, Oscar would take a shot of the place and send her the location whenever he arrived in a new place. She didn't text him back much, but she was relieved and delighted every time she saw Oscar's selfies in the photos.

She answered the phone, "Hello, Oscar."

"Probably, I can't make it home tomorrow."

It was like a bolt from the blue for Hannah.

Chapter 299 He Was So Confident

Hannah was silent. Oscar laughed lightly and asked, "You miss me?"

"Nope." Hannah gave him a no, and just didn't want to admit it.

"I'm thinking that Charles will have defeated you when you come back."

Apparently, Charles had been taking the lead in the past ten days, while Oscar was barely known to the public.

She was thinking of making a plan to raise his media exposure rate after he came back. Well, he just told her he wouldn't come back as planned. Then he might just admit his failure.

"Do you think I can win only if I come back sooner?" Oscar asked her back. She couldn't guarantee he would surely win if he came back the next day. But there must be a better chance to win here than staying in the middle of nowhere.

"Obviously, the City Hall is specially promoting Charles now. It makes no difference if I come back or not."

"So, you're gonna delude yourself and hide yourself in the middle of nowhere?"

"You don't know me at all, Hannah." Suddenly, Oscar laughed.

Hannah frowned, wondering what was so funny about it. She was much too worried but he was still so playful.

"I've never failed to get whatever I want, unless..." Oscar paused a little and added, "unless I gave it up myself."

Huh, he must be over-confident! She remembered Oscar didn't steal much of the show from Charles in the previous life, but actually, he was no less better than Charles. Who exactly Oscar was to have made him so confident?

"Just like what I did to you, Hannah." Oscar added.

Hannah was surprised to hear that. What did he mean by saying that? Did he mean he could have her for sure if he didn't give up first?

Somehow, Hannah was annoyed with it.

Was she such an easy girl to him? More or less, she felt she'd been fooled by him. But she didn't think that Oscar only meant he'd once given up his love for her in the previous life. Otherwise, Charles wouldn't have had the chance to marry her.

"I stay here only to turn the table." Oscar told her straightforwardly.

"What are you going to do?" Hannah frowned and asked, because she had no idea how Oscar was gonna turn the table.

When Charles first worked as a government officer in the City Hall in the previous life, Oscar was still a useless playboy and no one had ever thought much of him. Apparently, everything in this life happened ahead of time. The competition between the two of them had begun sooner.

"Wait for my good news."

"Oscar." Hannah called his name.

"Hmm?" answered Oscar.

"Be safe." Somehow, she had the hunch that Oscar was gonna do something very dangerous.

"OK."

It was a simple word but meant everything. Sometimes, they wanted nothing but the trust and approval from the loved one.

They hung up the phone. After that, Hannah was still in silence. She was thinking of what Oscar was gonna do. What should he do to turn the table surprisingly at a disadvantage? She was confused, but somehow, she believed him. She took a deep breath and decided to wait for his news.

Then she picked up the phone to call Rose, "Rose, gather the managers of all departments to the meeting room in ten minutes. I need to make some work arrangements."

"Yes, Ms Hannah." Rose said respectfully.

Ten minutes later, Hannah sat on the most powerful seat of the meeting room. All the managers that she was facing were older than her, and some of them were even twice of her age. But she had a strong aura field and could crush it! Wayne looked at Hannah's face and got more and more jealous. In fact, that could have been his seat. He swore he would take it back someday in the future!

"Hi, everyone. I'm having the meeting today because of the adjustment of my position. I should have had the meeting earlier when I was newly appointed. But I wasn't familiar with the job back then, so it's been delayed for ten days. But, I did that to have the meeting more efficiently."

Everyone present listened to her carefully. After all, she'd been promoted to be the Provisional Senior Vice-chairman of Cooper Group due to her outstanding working capacity. None of them dared look down upon her again, though she was still very young.

"First, I'd like to introduce myself briefly. My name is Hannah Wells, and I'll be the Provisional Senior Vice-chairman for some time. Please advise during this period of time and I'll appreciate your guidance. Thanks." Hannah added. All people in the meeting room applauded to welcome her.

Indeed, Hannah made a very clever speech. She said she was gonna be in charge for some time, which meant she would leave this position after this period of time. It matched with her position of the Provisional Senior Vice-chairman, and she didn't cross the line.

"Next, let's get to the point of the meeting. I'm gonna redefine and rearrange the work for each department. Any of you can raise an objection if you find it unreasonable. I've made myself clear in the sales department. I won't take it personally. So, you're very welcomed to speak out your mind."

And everyone in the meeting room was listening very quietly and carefully. Hannah had reassigned the responsibilities of all departments that were in her charge. At the same time, she'd also rescheduled the work plan for each department. The arrangement was so specific that no one could believe she did that so well within ten days only.

In fact, all the managers were waiting for her to hold the meeting when she was first appointed with the job. They'd waited and waited but still got no news. So they thought Hannah might be panic since she was in this high position at a very young age. More or less, they believed she didn't have the guts to hold the meeting. And those who'd thought that way must have been proved wrong now.

It was the first time for her to hold the meetings for the managers. It took as long as two hours, and it was the longest meeting that she'd ever had so far. In the end, she added, "This is our first meeting, and I don't want to waste your time by having more meetings frequently, so I've tried my best to cover all at a time. Our coming meetings won't last longer than thirty minutes. And, I also suggest each department follow this rule and avoid having meetings for all staff of the department. Instead, we should have meetings in specially assigned groups of different projects."

"OK." All the managers replied.

"So much for today's meeting. Dismiss." Hannah said neatly. She was always so vigorous and resolute and never talked crap. Saying it, she stood up and got out of the meeting room.

Until then, all the managers began leaving one after another, and quite many of them were discussing heatedly while they were getting out of the meeting room.

"Hannah is young but she's really ambitious and bold!"

"I used to despise the saying 'The younger generation will surpass the older'. It finally awakes to me that the younger generation is more promising!"

"I guess no any other silver-spoon kids in Kensbury are better than her."

Endless discussions were echoing around Wayne. He tried hard to hold back his hate and rage. At that moment, he just couldn't wait to kill Hannah to vent out his anger!

Chapter 300 Are You in Love with Oscar?

Hannah returned to her office. She checked the time and suddenly didn't expect anything on it. She'd thought Oscar would come back today. Well, just forget it. She didn't need to waste time on thinking of him and saved the time to focus on her work. Thinking of it, Hannah made herself concentrate on work again. She'd arranged the work specifically for each department, and she had to focus on some very difficult projects next. She went through the ledger of the Planning Department. Suddenly, she fixed her eyes on the municipal planning project of 'South Bay New Town'.

This was a very important project to Kensbury for this year and the coming three years. It would be planned and built as an international metropolis, and it would be the example and standard of the cities in Northfield, which were gonna run for the world-class cities. So, the City Hall was gonna invest big in it. In other words, whoever could win the bid for the construction of this project would make a killing in the following five years.

In her previous life, Sawyer Group had won the project.

Normally, Cooper Group should handle such kind of project. After all, Cooper Group was specialized in real estates and it could do better than Sawyer Group in every way. But in her previous life, Hannah talked her father into giving up the project to Sawyer Group in order to help them cover the deficit resulting from poor management. Sawyer Group had made a fortune in the project and rocketed to be a big corporation valued as much as Wells Group, and it had also surpassed Cooper Group and Phillips Bank at the same time. But Hannah just smiled coldly this time. By no means would she let Sawyer Group have their way. Instead, she would get them into real troubles.

Suddenly, her phone rang. Hannah paid a glimpse at it and answered the phone, "Hello, Susan."

"Hannah, I'm so bored." Susan complained on the phone.

"Why? Aren't you working?" asked Hannah.

"Yep. That's why I'm so bored." Susan sounded desperate and said, "You can't believe what kind of job my father has given me!"

"Oh, tell me." Hannah asked out of curiosity.

"Financial accountant." Susan said it and felt like crying.

"Come on. That's not bad! As a financial accountant, you can be the first one to know the income situation of the company, and it helps you get to know the company better."

"But they're all Greek to me! I can't understand those freaking numbers at all. Seriously, I even dream of those horrifying numbers. It's driving me crazy!"

"What do you want me to do?" Hannah asked, knowing Susan wouldn't call for nothing.

"I want you to have dinner with me. I must get it off my chest. Otherwise, I'll be crazy."

Hannah checked the time. In fact, she'd planned to work overtime tonight to figure out the construction of the 'South Bay New Town' project. But she thought of it and said, "OK. You got it."

Actually, Hannah thought it was time to have a girl talk with Susan. After all, Susan had been married for some time but she didn't pay much attention to her life after marriage. Suddenly, she got a feeling that she wasn't a good bosom friend.

"OK. See you at 6pm. The same place."

“Will Manuel be there too?”

“Come off it! Can you just don’t mention him?” Susan said in rage.

Hannah rubbed her ears, wondering why Susan got so mad.

‘Sooner or later, you’ll know how good Manuel Johnson is!’ Hannah thought to herself.

Hannah went to HEROIC with Jimmy at 6pm. Susan had been waiting for her in a private room.

In fact, Hannah set out right after she got off work, but got stuck in the traffic jam as it was the rush hour in the downtown. Phillips Bank was further from here than Cooper Group was, but Susan had arrived earlier. Obviously, she had skipped work. Hannah was wondering how difficult it would be for Edward to discipline Susan and convince her to concentrate on work.

“A moment. I’ll talk to you later after I finish this game.” Susan glanced at Hannah and went back to playing games on the phone.

Hannah was kinda speechless. People around her were so obsessed with games but she wasn’t interested in it at all. She felt she was kinda against the grain.

“Focus on your game. I’ll order.” Hannah said, since she’d been used to it.

“You know my favorite dishes, right?”

“Sure.” said Hannah.

Susan said nothing else and just focused on the game on her phone.

Hannah ordered and waited for several minutes.

“Fuck! Lost again! ?” Susan cursed impatiently and looked unhappy.

Hannah just couldn’t understand what was the fuss about a game. At the moment, she suddenly thought of Theodore, who screamed out wildly each time he went absent-minded and made a mistake on his mobile game.

“Susan, would you like to be introduced to a new friend?” she asked.

“Who?” Susan was annoyed but still put down her phone, and tried to chill out.

All in all, she hadn’t had a good day since she married Manuel. She’d been used to it.

“Theodore Wold.”

“Pfff... That dumb-ass.” Susan said and looked indifferent.

Hearing it, Hannah bite back the words, “You two are very much alike in personality.” She was afraid that Susan would kick her ass if she spoke it out, but undoubtedly, they were both so thick.

“Oh, right. I think Oscar’s having a tough time in his election campaign.”

Susan changed the topic abruptly and asked with earnest.

Hannah nodded her head.

“I’ve watched their lecture tours. Honestly, Charles is barely good at nothing, but he’s way too tricky. You know what, he not only gave speeches on the spot to win the favor of the voters, but also paid people to come and canvass for him. He's doing it quite well. And he's really paid good money in the election! On the contrary, what is Oscar doing in the middle of nowhere? There are very few people there and they can hardly bring him publicity! I suggest you urge Oscar to come back ASAP since there are a couple of days left. Oscar is a looker. Perhaps he can still catch up."

So Susan was also an admirer of Oscar's handsome face, Hannah thought. "Oscar has his plan."

"His plan is... to admit his defeat in another way." Susan was sure of it.

"That's not him."

"Oh, that's so him! Anyway, Oscar is a playboy. He's known as an expert in time management but after all, he fools around for most of the time in his life."

"Anyway, I believe him." Hannah said. She didn't want to explain much because she didn't know how to explain it. After all, she didn't know what Oscar was gonna do.

"Hannah, you're in love with Oscar, aren't you?" Suddenly, Susan asked seriously.

Hannah felt her heart leaping as if she had suddenly been crushed.

"You do love him, right?" Susan smiled naughtily and said, "You believe him unconditionally only when you are in love with him. Just as how you believed Charles back then."

"Oscar is different. They're not the same!" Hannah said in earnest.

"I didn't mean that..."

"What I felt for Oscar wasn't the same as what I felt for Charles." Hannah said firmly.

Susan frowned and wondered if she'd said something wrong. Why was Hannah serious all at once?
