Chapter 621 Xian Yu wants to write English song

Indeed, the song that Lin Yuan was going to present was "Take Me To Your Heart".

This is the English title for the song "Farewell Kiss".

The English adaptation is sung by the Danish boy band Michael Learns to Rock, in the style of romantic rock.

This song made them the most popular foreign band among Celestial Dynasty's music fans.

Because of this song, they achieved the legendary feat of selling 250,000 CD's and millions of online downloads in the Celestial Dynasty in 2004!

In that era, these statistics are quite terrifying!

With this in mind, Lin Yuan started to write the English lyrics.

The melody for the English and Mandarin versions are the same, so no modification is required.

The arrangement could undergo some technical adjustments.

As for the singing...

Lin Yuan originally planned to have Sun Yaohuo sing the English version of "Farewell Kiss".

Upon further consideration, Lin Yuan felt that Chen Zhiyu could also give it a try.

Chen Zhiyu actually has quite a good voice, but his style is somewhat limited. This could be an opportunity for Chen Zhiyu to try different styles.

During the last test, Chen Zhiyu also proved his English to be quite good.

Among the singers in the Yu Dynasty, Chen Zhiyu and Sun Yaohuo were the quickest and best in mastering English.

"Let's let Chen Zhiyu give it a try then."

After Lin Yuan finished writing the lyrics, he asked Gu Dong to contact Chen Zhiyu directly.

This year, Lin Yuan planned to work closely with the singers from the Yu Dynasty for his song targeting the 12th consecutive championship.

Looking at the variety of music styles that the singers from the Yu Dynasty had on offer--

Lin Yuan should be able to ensure that the majority of the songs are produced in-house.

Yes.

In-house production.

Lin Yuan had now accepted the concept of the Yu Dynasty.

He felt that he and the Yu Dynasty were in a partnership.

Partners are supposed to cooperate and help each other.

Over at another side.

Chen Zhiyu was at home feeding his beloved goldfish.

His manager on the side remarked, "Sun Yaohuo has received another good song, and even used the power of 'Farewell Kiss' to defeat the dual award-winning singer from Han Continent. Teacher Admirable Fish really does seem to favor Sun Yaohuo."

Chen Zhiyu paused in his movements, said jealously, "I could sing this song too."

The manager laughed, "In the Yu Dynasty's internal competition, Sun Yaohuo is clearly leading."

Chen Zhiyu pouted.

Just at that moment, the manager's mobile phone rang.

After he answered it and heard what the other party had to say, his face suddenly lit up with excitement.

"What's up?"

Chen Zhiyu asked casually.

The manager exclaimed with excitement, "Teacher Admirable Fish is inviting you to record a song!"

At his manager's words, Chen Zhiyu suddenly perked up:

"Let's head to the company!"

Twenty minutes later.

Chen Zhiyu appeared at the company.

Lin Yuan took out the English version of "Farewell Kiss"'s lyrics and gave it to Chen Zhiyu, "Can you understand them?"

Chen Zhiyu began to read the lyrics out loud.

It was quite fluent.

He recognized all the words.

"Try singing."

"But I don't have the music score..."

"This is the English version of 'Farewell Kiss'."

Chen Zhiyu's eyes lit up. He began to tentatively sing along to the melody of "Farewell kiss".

After listening for a while.

Lin Yuan was surprised.

Chen Zhiyu sang it quite well.

Being able to read English doesn't mean you can sing well in English. The pronunciation of English songs is different from Mandarin and many of the syllable breaks can seem very rigid if you haven't specially learned them.

But Chen Zhiyu clearly doesn't have this problem.

This probably means that Chen Zhiyu has learned some English singing methods.

"It'll be you."

Lin Yuan got happy.

If Chen Zhiyu couldn't sing well, Lin Yuan would have asked Sun Yaohuo to do it. If Sun Yaohuo also couldn't sing well, he would have to find a singer from Han Continent.

Fortunately, Chen Zhiyu didn't disappoint Lin Yuan.

Lin Yuan didn't know how much effort Chen Zhiyu had put into learning English, and even singing English songs, behind the scenes.

All Lin Yuan needed to know was that Chen Zhiyu could handle this song.

For the majority of songs, his criteria for choosing cooperative singers is often based on this standard.

As long as there are singers in the Yu Dynasty that meet this standard, Lin Yuan wouldn't seek out other singers for cooperation.

Anyway, the share of the royalty fees would be the same.

...

In the next few days.

Netizens were still debating whether Han Continent's music had lost to Admirable Fish due to English songs being too niche.

Some people argued:

"The importance of lyrics to a song is undeniable. If the netizens of Qin, Qi, Chu and Yan can't understand English, then at least one third of the song's charm is lost."

Others retorted:

"Of course, lyrics are important, but the melody is the key point. Otherwise, how could you explain the classic status of instrumental music? At least English songs have lyrics, if translated, everyone can understand. With instrumental music, there aren't even any lyrics!"

In the end, each held on to their own views.

"Blaming the language is certainly unreasonable. Last year's season chart also had Chu language songs winning the season championship, which indicates that music can break through language bindings."

"Chu language songs seldom win the season championship, the occasional success is an exception, most of the time, Mandarin songs are more popular on the season chart."

"..."

Everyone has his own arguments.

Everyone is right in their own eyes.

In fact, those who think English songs lose out due to their niche appeal are mainly Han people.

Even if Han people have somewhat accepted defeat to Admirable Fish, it's inevitable they'd want to make a few defensive remarks.

Normally, this kind of argument wouldn't have any resolution.

Unless "farewell kiss" was also an English song.

But obviously, "Farewell Kiss" is a Mandarin song.

So, no matter how much they argue about it, it will always end up as an unsolved mystery.

The Han people knew this very well, that's why they kept on insisting that English is a niche dialect in the Celestial Dynasty.

However.

Just when the argument was reaching its climax!

On the fourth of February!

Starlight suddenly announced a piece of news:

"Admirable Fish's first English song 'Take Me to Your Heart', stunning release tonight at eight o'clock!"

In an instant!

All arguments came to a halt!

From the five continents, internet users were all flabbergasted!

Admirable Fish actually wrote an English song?

And it's officially releasing tonight at eight o'clock?

Is he trying to respond to the online argument with this English song?

After a while, the Chinese netizens had all regained their composure! Stay connected via My Virtual Library Empire

"Damn, Fish Daddy wrote an English song!?"

"Is Fish Daddy writing the lyrics himself?"

"He actually understands English?"

"Don't tell me Fish Daddy is planning to beat the Han people with this English song again?"

"Isn't that too risky?"

"English songs are Han people's forte!"

"Undergoing an English song competition with Admirable Fish is probably what Han people dream of, right?"

"Seems like Fish Daddy is getting a bit reckless this time."

"..."

Curiosity, surprise, even astonishment!

Nobody can be sure what it will look like when Admirable Fish writes an English song.

On the other hand, the Han people were shocked and furious, but also feeling a surge of excitement, their feelings were complicated!

"Admirable Fish wrote an English song?"

"Guys, the chance for revenge is here!"

"We're not going to be able to compete with 'Farewell Kiss', but if Admirable Fish wants to compete in English songs, we're not scared!"

"What we Han people are best at are English songs!"

"Who the hell said Chu Kuang is arrogant and Admirable Fish is modest and low-key? This Admirable Fish is clearly more arrogant than Chu Kuang!"

"This Fish, he's too arrogant!"

"He thinks he can write English songs just because he knows a bit of English?"

"We admit defeat to Mandarin song, but if Admirable Fish wants to win us with English song, he's dreaming!"

"..."

This man, thrashing us in his best skill set is one thing.

But he's not even satisfied with that, he wants to beat the Han Continent's music again with an English song?

Maybe this will feel more exhilarating?

Isn't he afraid of becoming overconfident and being taken down a peg?

How dare he!

How could he dare!

Nevermind the ordinary netizens from the Han Continent.

Even Jack, who ranked second in the season chart as the double king of singing, couldn't sit still!

Losing miserably to a Mandarin song like "Farewell Kiss" could be explained away as English songs being too niche.

But if he lost to Admirable Fish's English song, that would be a big matter!

However.

It can't happen again.

"It can't happen again."

His agent coldly spoke up next to him.

Jack thought he accidentally voiced out his inner thoughts. After a moment, he realized these were the words of his agent.

Uh?

It's his agent's words?

He silently turned his head to look at his agent.

Jack suddenly had the urge to cover his agent's mouth.

If he remembered correctly, a few days ago before facing "Farewell Kiss", the agent also said he was sure to win.

His agent used to be pretty reliable in the past.

But for some reason, a few days ago, his agent suddenly started jinxing things.

Is his agent jinxing it again this time?

Chapter 622: An Epic Level Awkward Situation

Although the agent had a record of poisoning the milk, Jack thought about it carefully and felt that it wouldn't be a much of a problem.

Lately on the internet, people have been saying that Han people lost to Xian Yu because of their niche English song.

Jack agreed with this statement.

In the Five United Continents, English music was indeed a bit niche.

However...

Claiming that Han music lost to Xian Yu because of the niche English song market would be a petty excuse.

Jack understood this as well.

Even if English songs weren't niche, he would still lose, but at least the loss wouldn't be so humiliating.

Of course, Jack would never admit this publicly.

He was trying to portray the reason for Han music losing to Xian Yu as solely due to the niche English song market.

Surprisingly, Xian Yu suddenly wanted to put out an English song too!

That crossed Jack's bottom line!

Losing to Xian Yu was something Jack could reluctantly accept, as Xian Yu wrote Mandarin songs that had a larger audience.

But if Xian Yu was also writing an English song, Jack absolutely couldn't lose!

If he lost, the dignity of Han music would be completely swept away!

If they lost this time, they couldn't continue using the excuse of English songs being too niche, could they?

After all, Xian Yu's new release was also an English song!

Therefore, Jack had another solid reason not to lose to Xian Yu!

In the words of Han netizens, what qualifications does Xian Yu have to win?

He had never written an English song before!

So...

Just like that night five days ago...

Jack and his agent were again waiting in front of the computer well ahead of time.

"It's time!"

"Log in!"

When eight o'clock struck, the agent suddenly roared, startling Jack.

What are you shouting about?

Immediately afterwards, Jack felt like something was wrong.

Five days ago, didn't his agent say the same thing?

"At least change the line you say!"

Jack glared at his agent and retorted.

How inauspicious!

I damn near thought I had dreamed myself back to five days ago!

Everything this agent was saying was identical to what he said five days ago!

The agent sheepishly said, "Then log in, it's time."

Jack: "..."

Jack couldn't be bothered to argue with his agent any further and directly opened up the music player.

The front-page promotion was Xian Yu's new song "Take me to your heart."

Without any hesitation...

Jack clicked play.

In the room, a familiar prelude resonated.

Jack suddenly stood up!

"Did I time travel?"

He stared at his agent: "What's the date today?"

His agent looked confused: "February 4."

Jack listened to the music's prelude:

"Isn't this still 'Farewell Kiss'?"

Over the past few days, Jack had listened to 'Farewell Kiss' quite a few dozens of times.

Even if this song turned into dust, he could still recognize it!

Even if the Heavenly Father himself came down, Jack could guarantee it:

Xian Yu's so-called English song was 'Farewell Kiss'!

The agent listened carefully, it did seem like it was the prelude to 'Farewell Kiss'.

"Is there a system malfunction?"

Jack suspected that there was a bug in the player's backend.

Just then...

The singing in the song suddenly began:

"hiding from the rain and snow trying to forget but i won't let go looking at a crowded street Explore more stories at My Virtual Library Empire listening to my own heart beat

..."

Indeed, it followed the melody of 'Farewell Kiss'.

But the singer, Chen Zhiyu, was clearly singing in English!

"Hiding in the rain and snow, trying desperately to forget, yet powerless. How could I just leave like this, gazing at the bustling streets but only able to hear my own heartbeat..."

You don't need to look at the lyric translation.

Jack and his manager can understand every lyric, their minds automatically realizing the simultaneous translation.

The room falls silent.

The manager and Jack lock eyes, their faces freezing simultaneously.

This moment.

It seems like they've been transported back to five days ago.

Jack's mentality, collapses again.

This manager is truly a jinx!

He suddenly shouts, "Damn Xianyu!"

The manager's mental state also breaks down, likewise yelled, "What kind of English song is this? It's just the English version of "Farewell Kiss"!"

Jack lost to "Farewell Kiss".

It has nothing to do with the language used in the song, but with the melody of "Farewell Kiss".

This song had already defeated Jack and the entire Han Continent with its melody!

And at this moment, even though it's under the name of an English version, the tune is still that of "Farewell Kiss"!

The iconic melody that caused the downfall of Hans Continent's music scene!

Even...

Because this time the performance is in English, Jack understands the subtleties of this song better than anyone else.

It's not just the lyrics that have been translated into another language.

Compared to the Mandarin version, Chen Zhiyu's performance of the English version is less sorrowful, but more affectionate.

Velvety.

Intoxicating.

The depth of this sentiment, instantly penetrates Jack's heart.

Jack's mental state, shatters into pieces like broken glass.

Tiny, tiny pieces.

This time, Jack can no longer use the barrier of language to explain his failure.

Because "Farewell Kiss" has now magically transformed into an English song.

On the list of English songs for the February season, it's clear just how much superior it is in comparison to the native English songs of the Han Continent!

The song continues.

But Jack returns to his chair, a somewhat lost look in his eyes.

The manager on the side stays silent.

Because he feels a stronger connection to this English song.

The manager even thinks that the English version of "Farewell Kiss" sounds better than the original Mandarin version!

If the manager himself believes this, what would the other people of the Han Continent think?

The answer is obvious.

All of the Han people who heard "Take Me to Your Heart" fell silent just like the manager.

They never would have expected it!

When "Farewell Kiss" is performed in English, it turns out the song actually sounds better than the Han people originally thought it did.

But why does it have to be "Farewell Kiss"?

You could have covered another song!

With any other song, our previous objections might have some room for reconsideration, but it turns out to be "Farewell Kiss"!

It's exactly the same song!

It's exactly the song that we once criticized as winning over Han people due to the popularity of Mandarin!

This is embarrassing.

Very embarrassing.

Later, Blue Star rated this as one of the "Five Epic Embarrassing Moments". This was even regarded as the originator of Epic Embarrassing Moments!

Before this.

No one has ever managed to embarrass an entire continent's population like this, causing countless Han people to collectively close off from the world!

Xianyu did it.

He did it in such an easy way.

Nobody expected Xianyu to slap the Han people in the face with the English version of "Farewell Kiss"!

Slap!

This slap was resounding enough to shake this mess apart.

No Han person would deny how great the English song "Take Me to Your Heart" is.

Not only would that be insulting the intelligence of the netizens from the other continents, it would be an insult to Han's native music!

If they deny Xianyu, it's almost the same as denying themselves!

So, with this move, Xianyu is set to leave the Han people speechless!

In the field that Han people are most familiar with, he defeated Han Continent's music using the very method Han people excel at...

At this moment.

Four Continents: Qin, Qi, Chu, and Yan fell into chaos!

Chapter 623 High IQ Game

"Such a heart-piercing move!"

"While others slap a face, Xian Yu seems to be beating the Han people till their insides bleed?"

"Didn't the Han people say that Xian Yu winning the season championship was due to the advantage of his native language? What about this English version of 'Farewell Kiss'?"

"So, when it's in Xian Yu's hands, English is not niche anymore?"

"Xian Yu: No one understands English songs better than me!"

"Suddenly thought of 'Ten Years'. Play one song with two versions of lyrics. Xian Yu is professional. Even if one version of the song is in English, it still sounds so good that you can't help but kneel!"

"The English lyrics were also written by Xian Yu!"

"So, the English songs written by Xian Yu are so formidable!"

"Both versions of 'Farewell Kiss' are amazing. The performances of Sun Yaohuo and Chen Zhiyu each have their own unique characteristics. I even like Chen Zhiyu's English version more!"

"Xian Yu's language talent is really strong!"

"I remember he can also speak Qi language, didn't expect him to master English as well. The style of the English version of 'Farewell Kiss', is absolutely authentic!"

"..."

Floods of people across Qin, Qi, Chu, and Yan are hotly discussing it!

And with the debates across each continent, the download numbers of the English version of 'Farewell Kiss' are skyrocketing!

Not only in Qin, Qi, Chu, and Yan.

The Han Continent is also providing a massive amount of download data for the English version of 'Farewell Kiss'!

Whether the Han people accept it or not, they have to admit:

While Xian Yu slapped them in the face, he also promoted English songs to a certain extent with the English version of 'Farewell Kiss'.

'Take Me to Your Heart' will arouse more people's interest in English songs.

At this time.

Some Han people begin to change their attitude: "Actually, there is no need to be so confrontational. We, Blue Star, are a family in all continents, and we, the Han Continent, are now also part of the amalgamation."

Qin, Qi, Chu, and Yan: "..."

Why does this sound so familiar?

It seems like we have another continent convinced by the Three Bros.

Looking back at the wave of amalgamation since it started in Blue Star, more than one continent has been persuaded by the Three Bros.

February 10th.

'Take Me to Your Heart' forcefully ascends to the second place on the seasonal chart! Enjoy new tales from My Virtual Library Empire

With this.

Xian Yu is now claiming the first two places on the seasonal chart all by himself, just like the previous news reported:

Xian Yu, with his own strength, targeted the Han music scene!

Compared to the wounds Chu Kuang left to the Han, this strike by Xian Yu is almost fatal!

Xian Yu defeated the Han in the and area where they excel the most. Could there be a more ruthless counterattack?

At this time.

Suddenly someone laughed: "Chen Zhiyu going back to his old business?"

The netizens of Qin, Qi, Chu, Yan were taken aback, and then could not help but burst into laughter--

Chen Zhiyu actually got the second place again!

On the seasonal chart, 'Farewell Kiss' performed by Sun Yaohuo is first.

'Take Me to Your Heart' performed by Chen Zhiyu is second.

"Hahahaha, he really is the perennial runner-up!"

"Xian Yu: Only kids make choices. I want both first and second!"

"If anyone wants to take the second place, is there anyone more suitable than Chen Zhiyu in the Yu Dynasty?"

"Chen Zhiyu's posture of taking the second place is still so skilled!"

"So this is the correct way to be a perennial runner-up?"

"..."

Chen Zhiyu's runner-up position sparked countless people's memory of the perennial runner-up.

In Chen Zhiyu's tribe comment section, the 'spirit of runner-up' a long unseen meme, came back again, with netizens crazily reposting it.

But this time, Chen Zhiyu wasn't upset at all, instead, he even laughed out loud.

After all, he was commissioned to get second place this time.

...

It wasn't until Lin Yuan saw the discussions on the internet that he realized that his English version of 'Farewell Kiss' had inadvertently slapped the Han people again.

Well.

Actually, he just thought that it would be a pity not to release such a good sounding English version of 'Farewell Kiss'.

But Lin Yuan did not care too much about this.

What he was more excited about was that he had won two championships in a row!

Claimed another victory on the seasonal chart!

Only ten more seasonal championships to officially become the Maestro!

Ten more.

Lin Yuan suddenly felt the pressure again.

His journey to becoming the Maestro is still a long and challenging one.

But too much pressure isn't good either.

He needs to balance work and recreation.

Thinking of this, Lin Yuan sat in his office, legitimately playing a small game.

Playing games while listening to music, he felt very relaxed.

Just at that moment.

Someone knocked on the door.

It turned out to be Sun Yaohuo.

Sun Yaohuo seldom came empty-handed.

As was the case today, he came with a bag of fruit.

"I saw a fruit shop on the way here, so I brought some for my junior."

Sun Yaohuo explained with a smile and then skillfully placed the fruit in the office's fruit bowl.

"Thank you, Senior Yao Huo."

Lin Yuan, engrossed in his game, said with a smile.

Gu Dong at the side pulled a face.

Fruit shop by the roadside?

If she didn't love eating fruit, she might have really believed Sun Yaohuo's lie.

Looking at the quality of the fruit Sun Yaohuo bought, which roadside fruit shop could take on such high standards?

Without a doubt.

These fruits must be top-grade products imported from various continents.

Common people couldn't afford them, and ordinary fruit shops couldn't stock such premium products.

But Mr. Lin was always a little bit careless, so he didn't notice the difference.

Last time she bought some fruits from a roadside shop for Mr. Lin, he even commented that they were not as delicious as the fruits Sun Yaohuo bought.

Mr. Lin even asked her to check with Sun Yaohuo to see from which fruit shop he bought his fruits from...

Really?

A box of cherries from Sun Yaohuo is worth a few thousand!

The fruit I buy on the roadside is genuinely bought from a roadside fruit shop.

"Gu Dong, why don't you join us and have some?"

Sun Yaohuo suddenly said to Gu Dong with a smile on his face.

"Thank you, Teacher Sun Yaohuo."

Gu Dong smiled sweetly and suddenly found Sun Yaohuo more likable.

"Lost again!"

Lin Yuan at the computer grumbled, "My teammates are too weak!"

Sun Yaohuo curiously peered at the screen.

The game Lin Yuan was playing was a classic tower pushing game. The hero controlled by Lin Yuan had a score of 0/12/0.

Sun Yaohuo:"..."

Men known for his wit, he didn't know what to say for a moment.

Lin Yuan reminisced, "My teammates are too weak. I'm more suited to single-player games like 'Plants vs. Zombies'. I can finish that game in a month!"

Sun Yaohuo finally found an opening, "What is 'Plants vs. Zombies'?"

Lin Yuan seriously said, "A game to test your IQ."

Sun Yaohuo was respectful, "Where can I download it? I can play with you and improve my IQ along with yours!"

Lin Yuan regretted, "Blue Star doesn't have it."

Sun Yaohuo was stunned, "Where did you play it then?"

Lin Yuan thought about it and said, "In a dream."

His previous life was just like a dream.

Sun Yaohuo: "..."

At this moment, Lin Yuan started another round of the game.

Sun Yaohuo was stunned to see that Lin Yuan's hand speed was extremely fast. In a fraction of a second, he had already selected and locked his hero.

Judging from the speed of picking a hero, Lin Yuan seemed really skilled at this game!

Chapter 624 - Plants vs. Zombies

The next day, Lin Yuan uninstalled the game.

Not for any particular reason.

Essentially, he had been on a losing streak since yesterday. He was repeatedly beaten and pressed to the ground by the opponents.

He felt frustrated.

Meanwhile.

This tower-push game called "Heroes of England" had been completely blacklisted by Lin Yuan.

He found it totally not fun at all.

Although it was a tower-push game like "League of Legends" on Earth, many of its designs were overly complicated.

"Don't be a slack!",

Lin Yuan motivated himself and decided to start focusing on work, and not indulge in games anymore.

At this point.

Surprisingly, Sun Yaohuo made another appearance.

Accompanying him were a few young men who appeared somewhat nervous.

"Junior!"

The moment he stepped in, Sun Yaohuo greeted with a smiling face:

"Look at what I have brought you!"

Lin Yuan was startled and looked at the young men behind Sun Yaohuo:

"Do we sell people on Blue Star?"

The few young men behind Sun Yaohuo were dumbfounded.

Sun Yaohuo burst into laughter, "Junior, you are so hilarious! Of course not, these young gentlemen are professional game designers. Remember how you said yesterday that the game you wanted to play wasn't available on Blue Star? Well, I had the idea to get these guys to design a game specifically for you. Just tell them what type of game you want and they'll see to it. I'll cover the design costs.

I've been considering venturing into the gaming industry lately, and I believe a game designed by you is bound to be a huge hit. Once it is, I'll give you a share of the profit—"

"Game design?"

Lin Yuan blinked.

Senior Yaohuo is even more addicted to games than I am!

He even got people to design a game specifically for him!

Does this mean I can play 'Plants vs. Zombies' on Blue Star?

This was quite enticing for Lin Yuan.

"Hello, Teacher Admirable Fish..."

The young men were nervous but excited. The leader among them introduced himself:

"My name is Pei Qian!"

Lin Yuan frowned, Pei Qian? Losing money?

That name didn't seem very auspicious.

Of course, Pei Qian had no idea about Lin Yuan's thoughts.

He was the owner of a game design studio. With dreams in his heart, he set up the studio a few years after graduation, hoping to make a name in the gaming industry!

But before his career could take off, he met Sun Yaohuo.

Pei Qian knew that Sun Yaohuo was a singer, and he had listened to Sun Yaohuo's songs.

Sun Yaohuo suddenly appeared yesterday, stating he wanted to acquire Pei Qian's studio and have Pei Qian work for him.

Pei Qian refused on the spot!

He was a game designer with dreams, how could he possibly sell his studio and work for someone else?

But in the end, Pei Qian agreed to the acquisition--

The offer from Sun Yaohuo was just too generous.

Pei Qian found it hard to imagine that a singer could be so extravagantly wealthy!

The way he made out the check, it was as if the check was just a scrap of paper!

So, being a singer made that much money?

After being acquired, Pei Qian was all set to make a big splash.

Sun Yaohuo was a wealthy boss and would definitely support him in developing the dream game he had in mind!

However, Sun Yaohuo brought him to Starlight and told him to design a game for a friend.

Pei Qian initially thought Sun Yaohuo had gone mad!

This guy had gone through all the trouble of acquiring his studio only to have him design a game for his friend?

Design a game specifically for a friend?

Just how boss must this friend be for you to invest so much in him!

It wasn't until Pei Qian arrived at Starlight and saw Lin Yuan that he realized what was actually going on—

Sun Yaohuo wanted him to design a game specifically for Lin Yuan!

This was a major figure in the entertainment industry!

That being said, Pei Qian still found it quite a headache.

Designing a game specifically for someone seemed a tad bit excessive, right?

"I wonder what type of game Teacher Admirable Fish prefers?"

For the sake of money, Pei Qian was resigned to playing along.

"I..."

Lin Yuan wanted to say 'Plants vs. Zombies'.

It was a game from his past life, which left him with the deepest impression.

But when he was about to speak he suddenly didn't know how to describe it. How was 'Plants vs. Zombies' played again?

Shit.

He couldn't remember. Continue reading at My Virtual Library Empire

Lin Yuan straight away called up the System: "Does the System have any games in it?"

"Ding-dong!"

The system responded as it was activated by Lin Yuan: "'Plants vs. Zombies', Classic Edition, can be redeemed by the host..."

Lin Yuan was surprised.

The System did have it.

He directly redeemed it.

In an instant, countless details of 'Plants vs. Zombies' appeared in Lin Yuan's mind.

He immediately spoke up:

"I would like to design a tower defense game. Terrifying zombies are about to invade the plant planet. Each zombie has different characteristics, for example, the buckethead zombie has a strong ability to resist attacks, the miner zombie can dig tunnels to bypass plants planted on the soil surface, and the thief zombie can steal plants..."

Pei Qian was stunned for a moment. He hadn't expected Lin Yuan to have some actual ideas.

"Could you demonstrate a little with some sketches?"

"No problem."

Lin Yuan picked up a pen and paper and began sketching images of different plants and zombies.

"See this sunflower? The sunlight it provides is the money the players use to buy other plants, and each plant has completely different functions. The players defend against zombies by planting different plants, such as this cherry bomb, which can obliterate all zombies within a certain range. The classic peashooter is the most cost-effective plant.

Additionally, I quite like this man-eating plant that can eat zombies. In short, players should plant their plants wisely to counteract the weaknesses of different zombies while managing their funds..."

Lin Yuan was speaking non-stop.

Pei Qian's mouth had unconsciously dropped open.

The young group that had followed Pei Qian was also dumbstruck.

Was this man really Lin Yuan?

Wasn't he into music and stuff?

Oh right, he also makes movies.

But what does that have to do with games?

Why are his game ideas so clear?

Indeed, Lin Yuan's ideas were clear. As he continued describing, he had filled his notebook with various drawings, even including corresponding names.

Even Sun Yaohuo was somewhat surprised standing by.

He had brought Pei Qian and the others over just to amuse Lin Yuan.

Whatever style of game Lin Yuan wanted, he would let Pei Qian and his team tailor-make it.

After all, it was all about Lin Yuan having a good time playing it.

Once he got bored, he could ask Pei Qian to design some other games.

However, much to Sun Yaohuo's surprise, Lin Yuan's game designing idea was so well-detailed it was as if he had really played such a game before. By the end, even Sun Yaohuo himself was intrigued.

"So this is the 'Plants vs. Zombies' game you mentioned yesterday?"

"Yeah."

"Brilliant!"

Sun Yaohuo suddenly felt that they could release the game later to allow everyone else to play the game Lin Yuan personally designed!

That should make Lin Yuan happy, right?

This was Sun Yaohuo's principle:

The happiness of Lin Yuan mattered the most!

Chapter 625 The Music of the Cloud Palace

If Lin Yuan truly wanted to create a game, he would have to produce a detailed design plan, complete with flowcharts and CG mock-ups, followed by a thorough analysis and design phase. However, Lin Yuan obviously didn't want to go through such trouble.

He had ideas.

But they weren't professional.

Lin Yuan simply followed the game content and design provided by the System, rambling his ideas on-the-go, luckily Pei Qian was able to grasp his seemingly random ideas.

Two hours later.

Sun Yao Huo and the others left.

As Lin Yuan picked up a washed cherry and took a bite, the System's voice suddenly echoed in his ear again, "Congratulations Host on initiating the game category. From now on, games will also be one of your sources of prestige!"

Lin Yuan was taken aback.

Game category?

When he discussed ideas for "Plants vs. Zombies" with Pei Qian, he simply wanted to play a game he was familiar with in his previous life on Blue Star. He never thought that the game would be a source of prestige, but now the System was telling him that games were a separate category?

Music, Films.

Painting, Literature.

Lin Yuan always thought there were only these four categories, it was no wonder he was able to customize games with the System. Did this mean that he could not only bring out "Plants vs. Zombies," but also work on other games?

That seemed right.

Games were indeed a significant branch of entertainment as they encompassed a wide range of elements, including music, painting, animation and even scripts, especially for large-scale games.

Not to mention large-scale games.

Even with a simple game like "Plants vs. Zombies," the background music of the game is instrumental. If Lin Yuan wanted to recreate this game, he would undoubtedly choose the original background music which was one of his expertise.

This was a major category!

It was all-encompassing!

The word "games" seemed to compile all the contents of the other categories: "It seems that I have to add another task to my workload. Without Senior Yao Huo, I wouldn't even know the System had a hidden game category."

Previously, it was for fun.

Now, it was different.

Lin Yuan temporarily set aside his playful mindset. Considering that Senior Yao Huo had contributed to the development of the System's game category, Lin Yuan planned to partner with him in the future to create games, transferring some of the classic Earth games over.

"I need to start studying."

Since Lin Yuan had decided to dabble in games casually, he couldn't be ignorant about the gaming industry. He simply asked Gu Dong to buy him some game-related books for him to read.

His reading efficiency was very high.

With the System providing Memory Pills, he could remember anything he had read. His rapid progress from knowing nothing about the film industry to becoming a semi-expert was achieved by taking Memory Pills and reading extensively.

This time was no exception.

Gu Dong bought back over ten books related to games. Lin Yuan sat in his office, leisurely absorbing and improving, gradually gaining a certain understanding of the game industry.

"There's so much to learn in the game industry."

Looking at these books, Lin Yuan sighed deeply. The thing he saw from a player's perspective was too simplistic. Looking at it from a game creator's perspective, there were many twists and turns.

...

A game couldn't be completed overnight. While Pei Qian had already started working, Lin Yuan took advantage of his free time to read extensively. This routine continued until mid-February.

On this day.

Gu Dong brought Lin Yuan some good news. The post-production of "Journey to the West" was more than half-way done, but the music for the TV series needed Lin Yuan's touch.

"Understood."

Lin Yuan's eyes lit up.

He had been waiting for this moment. He had prepared music for the first season of Journey to the West in advance, the one he attached the most importance to being the theme music for the TV series "The Music of the Cloud Palace".

This was a piece of instrumental music.

To achieve the best effects, Lin Yuan alone couldn't achieve it. The song contained a plethora of musical elements, such as electronic musical instruments, orchestral music, guzheng, pipa, triangle, and pipe bell, as well as, African drums, conga drums, even drums were all included.

Coupled with the effects of the bass and soprano opera singing, even those who hadn't seen "Journey to the West" would be blown away when they heard this song!

It's worth mentioning:

Many professional musicians on Earth refer to "The Music of the Cloud Palace" as the king of electronic music, and Xu Jingqing, the composer for Journey to the West, was canonized in the music industry because of his many musical creations in Journey to the West!

This was a true masterpiece!

However, many people don't know that when Xu Jingqing created "The Music of the Cloud Palace," the leaders at the time were very dissatisfied. China in the 80s had a conservative music outlook, how could they accept electronic music?

Stay tuned to My Virtual Library Empire

The song was initially rejected.

It was the director of the CCTV version of Journey to the West, Yang Jie, who insisted on Xu Jingqing's song being the theme music of Journey to the West despite all opinions. The facts proved that the song was successful, and even more than successful!

Lin Yuan had no such concerns.

He had the final say on Journey to the West's music.

To maximize the effect of this masterpiece, Lin Yuan hired expert musicians for all the musical instruments mentioned earlier. As far as recording costs go, this was definitely the highest among all Lin Yuan's pieces!

Of course.

The majority of the musicians were from Starlight, for instance, the "King of Bass" from Qin Continent who was under Starlight. After all, Starlight was one of Blue Star's most successful music companies, it was not short on excellent musicians. This was the advantage of making music at Starlight.

"What a lineup!"

When Starlight's top musicians gathered in the company's recording studio, Zheng Jing, who was passing by, was startled. She didn't really just pass by, she had heard the news and had rushed over to see what was happening. Only then did she realise how big a deal Lin Yuan's piece was.

"Sit down and listen together?"

Lin Yuan invited Zheng Jing.

Zheng Jing readily agreed.

Twenty minutes later, when Lin Yuan had coordinated the parts for each musician, everyone began rehearsing formally. When the familiar electronic sound first appeared on Blue Star, Zheng Jing's mouth fell open:

"Wait, wait, wait, wait..."

Lin Yuan couldn't help but smile. As the familiar music echoed, he seemed to see the image of Sun Wukong bursting out of the Five Finger Mountain in front of him, and he felt inexplicably excited!

"Ah ah ah ah..."

"Ah ah ah ah..."

"Ah ah ah ah ah..."

In the intertwining of various instruments, the soprano began to sing along. It was an astounding performance, even Zheng Jing had unknowingly joined in, awe written all over her face. If this song were to participate in the seasonal ranking?

It would be a massacre!

Chapter 626: The Legendary Transmigrator Must Copy Books

It's not only about "The Music of the Cloud Palace".

After recording this electronic music, Lin Yuan sought suitable singers from Starlight to record other soundtracks needed for the first season of the TV drama...

"Can it be broadcast in March?"

He finished dealing with the TV soundtrack.

Lin Yuan asked Ol' Zhou about the broadcast schedule.

Ol' Zhou shook his head: "The schedule is too tight, there are some finishing works needed to be done in the post-production, a March broadcast is definitely not feasible, but April should be fine."

Lin Yuan nodded.

It needed to be confirmed in advance.

If the Journey to the West TV drama could be broadcast in March, then Lin Yuan could rely on "The Music of the Cloud Palace" to hit the charts, this piece of music was indeed solid.

But if it couldn't be broadcast in March, he would have to look for other songs to enter the charts.

Ol' Zhou smiled: "Since we can't broadcast for now, we can promote the TV drama well before it airs. We will release the news tonight, and you can repost it on the Tribe to promote our Journey to the West TV drama."

"Okay."

Lin Yuan nodded again.

Sure enough, Starlight announced that night that Journey to the West TV drama would be broadcast in April, and Lin Yuan also reposted the news about the TV drama's April broadcast.

The news has just been officially announced!

The enthusiasm of the Internet users was ignited!

The novel Journey to the West has a high sales volume, and its influence is increasing day by day. More and more people have become fans of Journey to the West. Therefore, everyone has high expectations for the TV drama version of Journey to the West, among them is the hype added by Xian Yu being the screenwriter.

However.

When the passion of the fans of Journey to the West was awakened, before everyone could start discussing, surprisingly, The Primordial Chaos Association also posted a status:

"The new version of The Primordial Chaos is scheduled to be officially broadcast on April 1st, the orthodox mythology of Blue Star, let's meet then!"

Half an hour!

The official announcement of the broadcast schedule of the Journey to the West TV drama and that of The Primordial Chaos TV drama was only half an hour apart!

It was like the Journey to the West TV drama had just officially announced the schedule, and The Primordial Chaos TV drama immediately followed!

"Damn!"

Anyone with a certain sense of perception knew what this meant—

"So ruthless?"

"Broadcast at the same time?"

"This can't be a coincidence, right?"

"It can't be a coincidence, how could they both choose to broadcast in April without prior agreement, and just one hour after the official announcement of the Journey to the West TV drama broadcast date?"

"The Primordial Chaos is clearly aiming to hit Journey to the West, I say why The Primordial Chaos TV drama has been held back and hasn't been broadcasted!"

"Obviously, the loss in the dispute of the novels made The Primordial Chaos unsatisfied, they want to make a comeback with the TV drama."

"I knew that the two TV dramatics would compete, the fact that both sides produced TV dramas has determined this moment, but I never thought that The Primordial Chaos would play so intensely, specifically aiming at the schedule of Journey to the West, and preparing to broadcast at the same time!"

"..."

Internet users knew that there would inevitably be a dispute between Journey to the West and The Primordial Chaos in the TV dramas.

But broadcasting at the same period was something many people did not expect.

The Primordial Chaos also showed great confidence in the new TV drama with this action!

For a time, the morale of the fans of The Primordial Chaos was greatly boosted!

"It's finally here!"

"The rise of The Primordial Chaos!"

"We The Primordial Chaos should be this tough!"

"The Primordial Chaos TV drama is definitely not a match for The Primordial Chaos!"

"The ratings of the old version of The Primordial Chaos TV drama say it all!"

"It's finally out, I've long been unhappy with the fans of Journey to the West, let's deflate their arrogance with our TV drama!"

"Okay, let both choose April to broadcast, face-to-face confrontation can show the gap!"

"Our The Primordial Chaos's time to feel relieved is coming!"

"..."

It must be mentioned that from the start of Journey to the West's targeted promotion against The Primordial Chaos, the fans of Journey to the West and The Primordial Chaos have been opposing each other online.

From the novel to the theme song, both sides have taken turns with each other, with each time Journey to the West winning.

After a few successive failures, the fans of The Primordial Chaos have held their anger.

However, the foundation of The Primordial Chaos is strong, and even if they lose a few rounds, they are not desperate, the fundamental reason is because The Primordial Chaos is about to make a new TV drama.

For the new The Primordial Chaos TV drama, the fans of The Primordial Chaos are full of confidence!

They feel that Journey to the West's TV drama cannot be compared with The Primordial Chaos in terms of attractiveness!

The fans of Journey to the West are a bit provoked.

"So damn arrogant!"

"The fans of The Primordial Chaos really don't remember the beatings!"

"Comparing the quality of the novel, they lost, comparing the TV theme song, they lost again, still not giving up?"

"This wave must kill them!"

"If the TV drama is also knocked down by Journey to the West, let's see what excuses they can find!"

"However..."

"The foundation of The Primordial Chaos is indeed a bit strong."

"The disadvantage of Journey to the West is that the launch time is not as long as that of The Primordial Chaos, the story of The Primordial Chaos has been circulating for hundreds of years."

Stay tuned with My Virtual Library Empire

"..."

Be provoked as they may.

The fans of Journey to the West also knew where the biggest advantage of The Primordial Chaos was.

For some ordinary audiences, The Primordial Chaos is a bit like nostalgia, even if the story is well-known, a new version of the TV drama would still cause a huge attention.

And at Lin Yuan's home.

Lin Yuan also noticed the stir online.

He didn't expect The Primordial Chaos to target the Journey to the West TV drama, and even specifically chose to hit the same day as Journey to the West's broadcast.

"Are they so confident..."

Lin Yuan was a little curious, he didn't know what the new The Primordial Chaos looked like.

Looking at The Primordial Chaos Association's full confidence, he estimated that the quality is really good.

They didn't underestimate the enemy.

The fact that The Primordial Chaos has a huge mass base in Blue Star is unquestionable.

However confident Lin Yuan was in Journey to the West, he had to admit the huge influence of The Primordial Chaos among the public.

"Should I stay safe?"

Based on the industry experience Lin Yuan gained from reading books, he knew that the TV dramas of Journey to the West and The Primordial Chaos were likely to wage a publicity war next.

Although TV dramas don't rely on publicity as much as movies do, good publicity does give you an advantage.

"Release 'The Music of the Cloud Palace' in advance?"

Lin Yuan frowned, this piece of music was indeed amazing.

But without the support of the Journey to the West TV drama, it seemed to lack a bit of meaning.

He was a perfectionist and hoped that this piece of music could appear with the TV drama.

"Maybe I can change my thinking."

Lin Yuan thought about it for a while and gradually had an idea.

Publicity is a money-burning game, and such matters should be handled by Starlight, anyway, the momentum should not be lower than the other side's.

In addition to traditional advertising, in fact, Lin Yuan could also increase the popularity of the TV version of Journey to the West in his own way.

The previous "Wukong" was a promotional song Lin Yuan specifically brought out to enhance the popularity of the TV drama.

With the music ready, why not try something else?

For example...

Write some fan-fiction to promote Journey to the West.

You should know.

Lin Yuan's basic fan-base is fans of Journey to the West.

But not everyone who read Journey to the West would be interested in the TV drama.

Moreover, among the fans of Journey to the West, there are also many people who enjoy reading The Primordial Chaos novels and watching its TV dramas at the same time.

Despite the fierce fighting between the fans of Journey to the West and The Primordial Chaos online.

Both are mythology novels, and the audience overlap is actually quite high.

So when Journey to the West and The Primordial Chaos's TV dramas broadcast at the same time, they're bound to snatch each other's audience!

Especially the neutral audience who don't have a clear preference.

How do you make these hesitant neutral audience have a better impression of Journey to the West?

Lin Yuan's answer was, write a novel that would make everyone who read it like the story of Journey to the West more...

It's time to come out.

A transmigrator must plagiarize books!

The novel called "The Legend of Wukong"!

Chapter 627: The Name of the New Vest

The ongoing influence of the Journey to the West on Earth is partly due to the historical impacts passed down over hundreds of years, and partly because of countless interpretations by modern people, especially from a modern perspective.

Their fondness for Journey to the West can be largely attributed to various interpretations linked to it.

Without these layers of interpretation, Journey to the West probably wouldn't have continued to hold a unique artistic status in people's hearts into the 21st century.

Many are willing to believe that Journey to the West, as one of the four great classics of the Celestial Dynasty, is more than meets the eye.

When it comes to the most striking interpretation of Journey to the West, aside from Star Grandpa's movie series, many people will mention this novel:

The Legend of Wukong by Jinhezai!

The book tells the story of the tragic hero, Sun Wukong, along with Tang Monk and others, in their struggle against destiny.

The author offers a fresh reinterpretation of some of the plot points in Journey to the West from a modern perspective, imbuing the whole book with thoughtfulness.

This book is extremely profound.

Strictly speaking, this novel is a fanfiction of Journey to the West.

The author added his own spin to the original work.

For instance, the original work barely touched on any romantic storylines, which are brought to life in The Legend of Wukong.

This is a strategy that was also applied in Star Grandpa's A Chinese Odyssey series and even the demon-slaying sequences.

These interpretations all contributed to the popularity of Journey to the West.

Now, Lin Yuan wants to use the popularity of The Legend of Wukong's reinterpretation to boost publicity for his TV drama.

However...

There is a delicate issue.

Even though The Legend of Wukong is a classic, it is, after all, fanfiction of Journey to the West.

If Lin Yuan were to write Journey to the West under the pseudonym of Chu Kuang, that would be tantamount to an official interpretation.

By doing so, he would instantly limit the work's potential for derivative stories by 90%.

In the short term, this wouldn't hurt, but thinking in the long-term, the downsides outweigh the upsides.

What about having Xian Yu write it?

That also seems inappropriate.

The relationship between Xian Yu and Chu Kuang is unique.

If Xian Yu writes The Legend of Wukong, outsiders may well suspect:

That Xian Yu's interpretation is undertaken with Chu Kuang's suggestion.

Which wouldn't be much different from an official interpretation.

The same logic applies to Shadow.

Previously, Lin Yuan wrote a song called "Fairytale Town" under the pseudonym of Xian Yu, the lyrics of which touched upon the boundary of dark fairy tales.

As a result, some people began to suspect that Chu Kuang's "Fairytale Town" story is fundamentally dark.

This wasn't Lin Yuan's intention.

So, Lin Yuan is now faced with a dilemma.

However, this is merely a minor trouble, a slight shift in thinking will reveal the solution—

Create another pseudonym!

Lin Yuan was originally planning to stick to three pseudonyms, but often plans can't keep up with changes.

If he's going to write The Legend of Wukong, he'll need to create a new pseudonym.

That's it!

Lin Yuan suddenly thought:

Not only can the new pseudonym be used to write The Legend of Wukong, but it could also be specifically used to provide interpretations of works by Xian Yu, Chu Kuang and even Shadow!

Every time Lin Yuan saw netizens interpreting his songs, novels, comics and the like, he felt an itch to join in.

Blue Star netizens have wild imaginations, always offering splendid interpretations of his work.

But Lin Yuan has seen many brilliant interpretations on Earth, some of which Blue Star netizens overlooked, yet due to his identity, he found it inappropriate to point them out directly—

Official interpretations could actually harm the long-term development of the work.

If he came up with another pseudonym, he wouldn't need to worry about this.

The new pseudonym just needs to avoid associating with Xian Yu, Chu Kuang, and Shadow.

Focus only on interpretations!

No interactions!

On second thoughts, creating a new pseudonym seemed like a necessary matter?

This way, he could rightfully set the rhythm of his own works!

For instance, Lin Yuan could now write The Legend of Wukong.

In the future, he could also come up with fan-fiction like "Everlasting Regret" for his Yang Jian character—under this new pseudonym.

Right.

It's the Yang Jian character from Journey to the West, not the one from The Investiture of the Gods.

...

Having established his line of thought, Lin Yuan directly got a new mobile number and registered another Tribe account.

Tribe is the best social network platform on Blue Star.

Although other services like blogging platforms are not bad, their influence and user base still fall short compared to Tribe.

Now, what should the new pseudonym be?

Lin Yuan pondered for a moment.

The name 'Chu Kuang' was taken from the phrase "I am a madman of Chu, singing and laughing at Confucius."

'Xian Yu' came from that saying "Appease and take a step back rather than hankering after one's ambition."

His new pseudonym would be 'Yi An' then!

In Tao Yuanming's poem, 'The Return', this particular line is written,

"Examine the comfort of one's life."

Even in a simple dwelling, one can enjoy a life of wine-drinking merriment and arrogant self-satisfaction.

Simple.

Happiness.

'Yi An' and Li Qingzhao coincide any way.

Song Dynasty poet Li Qingzhao is exactly known as the alternate name 'Yi An'.

However, Blue Star has no Li Qingzhao, and certainly not the alias Yi An.

After registering a new account, Lin Yuan searched for some related information from fanatics on the Internet.

Blue Star also has fanfic, there are also specialized fanfiction websites, and there are also many derivative fanfictions of classic works in many forums.

For example, Chu Kuang's early work 'King of the Net', several authors have written fanfics about it, mainly leaning towards BL.

Cough.

Even authors have written fanfics about characters like Holmes and Watson, Poirot and Hastings, and even stories connecting Holmes to Poirot.

The most outrageous is:

There's even a fanfic about Xian Yu, Chu Kuang, and Shadow on this website. Lin Yuan didn't dare to look at the details though, he just found the title rather peculiar:

Three companions?

Some people might wonder, with Blue Star's copyright protection so strict, how can fanfic have the room to grow?

The reason is simple.

Because the authors approved.

These fanfics are not used for commercial purposes. Many fanfic authors are completely driven by their love for their work.

They did not make money out of fanfiction. Explore more adventures at My Virtual Library Empire

So how could the authors seek to hold them accountable?

The authors might even hope for more fanfics to appear, to make the original works more popular.

As long as the fanfic authors do not defame the original work.

Sometimes.

The original author even allows fanfiction authors to publish and make money, occasionally granting rights.

As long as it does not impact the fundamental interests of the original work, the original authors are quite lenient.

After all, the ones writing fanfics are all fans.

Moreover, most of the time, fanfic tends to add more depth to the original work.

For instance, some people developed an interest in the anime and even bought the original work to read after reading the Boys Love fanfic of 'King of the Net'.

Lin Yuan understood this well.

After all, he himself has become the protagonist of a fanfic.

Now, Lin Yuan was mainly searching for fanfic of 'Journey to the West'.

After searching around, there are actually quite a few interesting fanfics.

For example, there's a fanfic where the main character is Tang Monk. In this fanfic, Tang Monk is granted an amazing cheat which he uses while bringing Wukong and the others to the West, wreaking havoc in the Western Paradise...

One look and you know the author is not satisfied with the Buddha's suppression of Wukong.

So in this fanfic, Tang Monk uses his cheat to block the celestial clues, then scolds the Buddha for his dishonesty at every turn, encouraging Wukong to continue fighting back, never surrender, and when he gets the scriptures in the West, to smack them into the Buddha's face and get revenge for Wukong's five hundred years under the Five Finger Mountain!

This is the most popular 'Journey to the West' fanfic currently.

The author did not rely on selling the novel to make money, rather the author himself became famous.

He opened an account in the tribe and became a fanfic author, making money by taking a bit of advertising and such.

However, this novel has a strong online literature flavor, the plot can't stand scrutiny, it's completely aimed at satisfying the reader's appetite for excitement and doesn't place importance on logic and profound meaning. It is a good fanfic but it's not a classic one.

Meanwhile, Lin Yuan noticed:

In the same fanfic website, the number of fanfics about 'The Primordial Chaos' can completely crush 'Journey to the West'!

Can't be helped.

'The Primordial Chaos' has been around for hundreds of years and has a profound background.

Since the early development of the internet, people have been writing fanfic of 'The Primordial Chaos', among which there are many masterpieces.

In comparison, 'Journey to the West' was only released for so long, yet it already has this much popularity in fanfiction, which is quite astonishing.

Looking at the fanfictions, 'The Primordial Chaos' has a terrifying suppression over 'Journey to the West'.

Perhaps this is also one of the reasons why fans of 'The Primordial Chaos' feel that the TV adaptation of 'The Primordial Chaos' will definitely explode.

It appears that he must immediately come up with his own leading work in this 'Journey to the West' fanfic.

Lin Yuan's eyes moved, and he directly registered as an author on this fanfic website, which is said to be the largest in the country, and wrote down the title of the book, 'The Legend of Wukong'—

'Yi An' made his debut, and 'The Legend of Wukong' was born!

Chapter 628: What the hell is this crap written

In fact, "The Legend of Wukong" is only over a hundred thousand words long.

Given Lin Yuan's typing speed, it could be completed in a few days.

Taking into account that "The Legend of Wukong," a novel that uses dialogue to drive the plot and leans towards the stream of consciousness, is not suitable for continuous updates and is better read in one go, Lin Yuan didn't immediately upload the main text after setting up the piece, he planned for it to be serialized over several days.

He only first decided on the book title and pen name to reserve a spot.

The novel was actually completed a few days later.

As he typed the last five words "How can one forget the Journey to the West" on the computer, "The Legend of Wukong" was finally finished by Lin Yuan.

Then

the main text, consisting of just over ten chapters, was uploaded by Lin Yuan onto a fanfiction website.

The fanfiction website has a simple and crude name.

It's simply called "Fanfiction Library".

Although the name of the "Fanfiction Library" website is simple and crude, the website's traffic is genuinely substantial.

The review sections of many novels are bustling with activity.

After all, it is based on the crowd of netizens who love Qin, Qi, Chu, Yan, Han, and Wuzhou's fan works.

In Blue Star where piracy is almost non-existent, the actual influence of this website should not be underestimated.

Five minutes after the novel was uploaded.

Lin Yuan checked the data for "The Legend of Wukong".

Views: 0

Collections: 0

Recommendations: 0

Lin Yuan was stunned.

This was not what he had imagined.

Wasn't it supposed to be that once "The Legend of Wukong" was released, the netizens would be shocked?

A few seconds later, Lin Yuan finally realized.

He was accustomed to the previous pattern, where any work he published could attract netizens' attention immediately.

But now he is neither Shadow, nor Xian Yu, nor Chu Kuang.

Now, he is under a new pseudonym called "Yi An".

Who knows who Yi An is?

So, it's normal that there would be a disparity.

Many readers might see "The Legend of Wukong" on the website but not necessarily click on it.

Objectively speaking, "The Legend of Wukong" is not exactly an appealing book title.

Should he think of some ways to attract traffic and promote it later?

If either Shadow, Chu Kuang, or Xian Yu gives him a little shout-out, it will definitely be effective.

But wouldn't that risk exposing his new pseudonym?

Lin Yuan does not want Yi An to have any connection with his previous three pseudonyms.

Three Bros are Three Bros.

Yi An must shine by himself.

Therefore, Lin Yuan decided to continue to wait.

Giving the website's traffic volume, there will definitely be readers who will notice this novel.

Once the first reader clicks on "The Legend of Wukong", the second one will follow; this novel will definitely get noticed.

With this in mind, Lin Yuan continued his wait. Read exclusive content at My Virtual Library Empire

After waiting for a good while, he finally got a few views, but what dismayed Lin Yuan was that these views did not translate into collections...

This meant that some people clicked on "The Legend of Wukong", but were not attracted by the content and left after taking a glimpse.

This probably had to do with the opening of "The Legend of Wukong".

If you only look at the beginning of "The Legend of Wukong", you'd just see it as a spoof.

"Every beginning is difficult."

Lin Yuan cheered himself on and had his assistant Gu Dong peel a dragon fruit that Sun YaoHuo had sent for him.

After eating the dragon fruit, Lin Yuan refreshed the page for the third time and "The Legend of Wukong" finally got its first collection!

"Someone is reading my book?"

Lin Yuan felt invigorated, this was the first time he felt joyful because there was a reader for his novel!

Simple and pure!

If Chu Kuang was here, he would likely flash a supportive smile at Yi An-

From the outer atmosphere or even outer space, flashing such an encouraging smile.

...

The first reader on Blue Star who dedicated a collection to "The Legend of Wukong" was named Li Zhenghui.

With over a decade of reading experience, Li Zhenghui was a hardcore bookworm. When he particularly liked a novel, he would always feel not quite satisfied even after finishing it, then he'd specifically pop over to the "Fanfiction Library" to look for some derivative fan works.

Recently, Li Zhenghui was fond of "Journey to the West".

To be precise, Chu Kuang's version of "Journey to the West", which could be said to be Li Zhenghui's most engrossing novel of late, even over the past few years.

Even the classical Chinese version of "Journey to the West" was not missed by Li Zhenghui.

Heaven knows how much effort it took Li Zhenghui to read the classical Chinese version of Journey to the West.

He who once had poor Chinese language grades can now even write classical Chinese from memory.

After reading both the ancient and modern versions of "Journey to the West" and still craving more, Li Zhenghui started a mad search in the Fanfiction Library for fanfics about Journey to the West in order to satisfy his interest in the world of Journey to the West.

The quality of these fanfictions varied, and Li Zhenghui hardly encountered any that met his satisfaction.

However, out of his love for Journey to the West, Li Zhenghui still patiently read through many related fanfictions.

Under such circumstances, Li Zhenghui casually added the new book "The Legend of Wukong" in his Fanfiction Library's search results to his collection and started reading.

"I'll have a look."

When opening this book, Li Zhenghui didn't have high expectations.

He is fond of both Journey to the West and The Primordial Chaos.

These two are not incompatible.

There are quite a few like Li Zhenghui.

Fans of Journey to the West and The Primordial Chaos on the internet are always squabbling, but Li Zhenghui never participates.

For Li Zhenghui, both novels are wonderful and equally significant in his heart.

He is currently torn between watching Journey to the West TV series or The Primordial Chaos in mini TV series in April.

Even before Journey to the West showed up, Li Zhenghui had read novels and TV series related to The Primordial Chaos, including all the exciting fanfictions in the Fanfiction Library.

Compared with The Primordial Chaos, the fanfictions from Journey to the West aren't as interesting.

If it wasn't for his love for the story of Journey to the West, he wouldn't have persisted in reading so many fanfictions, the quality of which were not on par with the original work.

That's also why Li Zhenghui doesn't have high expectations for "The Legend of Wukong".

In fact, as long as this novel could barely pass, Li Zhenghui could grit his teeth and finish reading it.

Who let him love Journey to the West so much!

Just by seeing the original characters from Journey to the West mentioned in the fanfiction awakened Li Zhenghui's interest.

Just like in special circumstances.

Helpless, if the quality is low, then let it be.

However, when the opening plot of "The Legend of Wukong" appeared in front of Li Zhenghui, his brow furrowed quickly!

The opening is a pointless narration and dialogue:

[Four people arrived here, before them was a dense forest with no paths.

"Wukong, I'm hungry, bring me some food." Tang Monk sat on a stone and said most pretentiously.

"I'm busy, can't you find food by yourself? It's not like you don't have legs." Sun Wukong said, leaning on his staff.

"You are busy? Doing what?"

"Don't you think this sunset is beautiful?" Sun Wukong said, his eyes were still looking at the horizon, "The only way for me to keep heading west every day is to observe this."

"You can search while watching, just don't hit a big tree."

"I do nothing other than watch the sunset!"

"Sun Wukong, you can't do this, you can't treat the bald guy so badly, if you starve him to death, we can't find the west heaven, if we can't find the west heaven, the curse on us will never be broken." Said Zhu Bajie.

...]

After reading a few paragraphs.

Li Zhenghui almost burst into swearing!

What the hell is this crap?

In the original, the polite and gentle Tang Monk is as overbearing as ever;

In the original, the respectful Wukong somehow impolitely told Tang Monk to find food by himself;

In the original, Zhu Bajie, who always flatters his master, dares to call Tang Monk bald directly?

Things get even weirder.

Sun Wukong and Zhu Bajie start swearing at each other directly!

In the original, although Zhu Bajie does clash with Wukong, he never has such nerve!

The most absurd thing is:

Monk Sha, who is the most good-tempered in the original, is so assertive that he directly asked Sun Wukong and Zhu Bajie to go away and fight, so as not to disturb him from sleeping

That's totally spoiling the characters!

Where the hell is this Journey to the West?

This is clearly a group of thugs!

Who's the author?

Yi An?

Stupid author.

The pen name is quite elegant, though.

Li Zhenghui's first reaction was to delete the book and leave, but when his mouse pointer was on the "x", he stopped.

I have to read on!

If this Yi An smeared the protagonists of Journey to the West too much, he would report this author.

Fanfictions, in principle, should not blacken the main characters of the original.

It's not completely forbidden to criticize, but if the criticism is too exaggerated, it's a bit disrespectful to the original.

Just imagine, in some dirty movie, the director lets the female Spiderman get rubbed under the villain?

He decided to report it without hesitation after spending an hour watching that movie.

Fanfiction is not beyond the law.

Chapter 629 Journey to the West Conspiracy Theory

With this critical mindset, Li Zhenghui continued to read "The Legend of Wukong".

The rest of the first chapter is still a parody.

Strictly speaking, it's...

Nonsense?

It's utterly absurd.

Like a farce.

None of the four disciples seemed to hold a serious conversation. Even the dialogue of the demons were disjointed and disjointed.

"It doesn't make sense."

Li Zhenghui frowned deeply.

He was quickly losing patience.

However, a dialogue between the tree demon and Tang Monk was quite interesting: "Don't wish for death, but also don't live in loneliness."

Very surprising.

A literary line suddenly sprouted in the humorous narrative, seemingly raising the mood of the novel abruptly?

However, Li Zhenghui doesn't think there is any mood to this novel.

He tends to think this line was likely plagiarised by the author from somewhere else.

Just as Li Zhenghui was about to lose patience, another dialogue caught his attention.

Tang Monk actually told the female demon, "My cultivation is different from others. They practice Theravada, I practice Mahayana. They perfect emptiness, I pursue completeness."

Li Zhenghui paused.

It felt strange.

The original Tang Monk would never speak like this, even though this line carries a metaphor of the conflicts in Buddhist practices, similar to the debate between Theravada and Mahayana Buddhism in Blue Star's reality.

The female demon's response was even stranger:

"I only heard that a man named Master Golden Cicada once questioned Theravada Buddhism and sought his own enlightenment, but ended up getting lost and was trapped for aeons."

Master Golden Cicada?

Of course, Li Zhenghui, who is familiar with "Journey to the West", knows that Master Golden Cicada is the past life of Tang Monk.

In the original "Journey to the West", it was mentioned that Master Golden Cicada was punished for his arrogance towards Buddhism and disrespect for Buddha, thus Buddha demoted him to go to the West to atone for his sins.

This plot point is controversial.

Everyone thought it was not that simple.

Just because the second disciple of the Buddha, Master Golden Cicada, wasn't paying attention in class, he was sent to the mundane world to fetch the scriptures from the West?

Isn't this explanation too perfunctory?

Some interpretations suggested that the conflict between Master Golden Cicada and Buddha was not just about not paying attention in class.

Everyone speculated about the real reason, but few speculations were widely accepted.

However, the current author of "The Legend of Wukong", Yi An, seems to provide a possibility:

The reason behind Master Golden Cicada being demoted by Buddha was a divergence in their fundamental Buddhist philosophies?

Was their conflict due to the difference between Mahayana and Theravada Buddhism?

Interesting!

This interpretation that combines the current situation of Buddhism in reality to analyse the conflict between Master Golden Cicada and Buddha opened Li Zhenghui's eyes!

A parody is a parody.

Nonsense is nonsense.

It seems this author does have some ideas.

Li Zhenghui finally took some interest in this peculiar Journey to the West fan-fiction.

He continued reading.

Sun Wukong eventually came to save Tang Monk. However, to Li Zhenghui's surprise, the female demon recognized Sun Wukong and seemed to have interacted with Sun Wukong before!

But Sun Wukong didn't recognize her.

He claimed that he was a demon monkey from the Mountain of Flowers and Fruit, punished to Five Prison Mountain for disrespecting the Jade Emperor. After 500 years, the Jade Emperor's mercy had him promise to accomplish three tasks to atone for his sins. He mentioned the first two tasks: "The first one is to escort that bald man to the West. The second is to kill four demon kings.

They are the Bull Demon King of the West, the Peng Demon King of the North, the Monkey King of the South, and another, the Handsome Monkey King of the East..."

Li Zhenghui was stunned!

Those who have read the original Journey to the West would know what Sun Wukong went through before embarking on the scripture mission.

This Sun Wukong has issues with his memory!

Replacing Mount Wuzhi with Five Prison Mountain is one thing!

He even forgot that he himself was the Great Sage of the East, and was shouting about killing the latter!

"There is a plot!"

Li Zhenghui instantly smelled a hint of conspiracy.

Among the many interpretations of the original "Journey to the West", the conspiracy theory is the most marketable.

It seems that this novel also carries the same intent.

This author has got something!

Is he actually going to overlie the Journey to the West with conspiracy?

Li Zhenghui's interest was completely piqued.

He now wanted to see how this Yi An would interpret Journey to the West from the angle of conspiracy theories, especially considering that he himself is a faithful fan of the Journey to the West conspiracy theory.

As he continued to read, Li Zhenghui's excitement soared.

However, the subsequent plot left Li Zhenghui struggling to keep up with the author's pace...

A gloomy Sun Wukong surprisingly killed Tang Monk directly with his stick!

And the story shifted into flashback mode thereafter.

In the flashback.

Zhu Bajie had a romantic relationship with a deity called Yue;

Sun Wukong had a tie with a fairy called Purple Cloud;

Even White Dragon Horse turned into a maiden and held deep affection for Tang Monk;

If it weren't for the previous plot twists, Li Zhenghui would surely have scoffed at the author's 'creative' ideas upon reading this.

But at this moment.

Viewing this love story which runs totally contrary to the original, Li Zhenghui felt it wasn't absurd, but was even more curious...

What on earth happened five hundred years ago?

It seems that each of the disciples and their master all have secrets of their own?

This author named Yi An seems to want to lift the veil of conspiracy on Journey to the West.

But what is the true nature of the conspiracy?

Do all the disciples and their master share the same standpoint?

Li Zhenghui wanted to know how Yi An is going to resolve it.

And the plot continued along this trajectory.

Apparently, White Dragon Horse once transformed into a carp, was rescued by young Tang Sanzang, and became captivated by Tang Monk.

About this story, the novel supplied a lament:

No matter which direction you choose, will you swim into the same fate?

This sentiment left Li Zhenghui pondering.

Fate?

Is it referring to Little White Dragon and Tang Monk, or is it referring to the master and disciples who are going to take on the journey in the future?

The novel did not give an answer.

The young Tang Sanzang seemed to have the demeanor of a wise fool; he actually defeated the master by debating Buddhist scripture.

The temple abbot wanted to teach Tang Sanzang about Buddhism, but Tang Monk shook his head: "You can't teach what I want to learn."

The corner of Li Zhenghui's mouth turned up.

The young Tang Sanzang's personality was simply overwhelming compared to the original, the Tang Monk in the original could not say such a thing.

Now it was only Tang Sanzang's previous incarnation, Master Golden Cicada, who was qualified to say so.

Golden Cicada?

Li Zhenghui suddenly gasped, as if realizing something.

This Tang Sanzang, won't have inherited the will of Golden Cicada, would he?

At this moment.

The abbot asked Xuanzang: "What do you want to learn?"

Xuanzang glanced at the shifting white clouds in the sky and said:

"I want no sky to obstruct my sight; no earth to bury my heart; all living creatures to understand my intent; all Buddhas to vanish like smoke and disperse like clouds!"

This sentence rang out, like a thunderbolt out of the blue!

Li Zhenghui's eyes widened, a sudden chill ran down his spine, his hair stood on end!

Explosive!!!

Chapter 630: When 500 Years is Just a Scam

Boom!

The blood was surging up!

This was the most inspiring line Li Zhenghui had ever seen in all the fan fictions of Journey to the West!

In front of these words, Li Zhenghui actually started to tremble!

The character of Tang Sanzang, or should I say, Master Golden Cicada, stood up instantly. He felt the "spirit" of Journey to the West!

Majestic and domineering!

Defiant and unyielding!

Break through everything!

The previous plot seemed nonsense and irrelevant, almost altering the original characters of the master and disciples beyond recognition. But this line of dialogue suddenly revealed the novel's theme--

This is also the Journey to the West!

This is the Journey to the West!

The author is just using a seemingly exaggerated, yet subtly ingenious method to correspond with the spirit of the original work!

At this moment, Yi An's writing intention was displayed clearly before Li Zhenghui's eyes for the first time:

Sun Wukong is fighting against the Heavenly Court!

Master Golden Cicada is also rebelling against the Buddha!

They were both born rebels!

Of course.

Don't forget this is "The Legend of Wukong."

The story of the protagonist, Sun Wukong, is also taking place on another timeline.

That monkey has finally embarked on the path destined for him...

It was the heroic fate destined before the journey to the west!

"Great Sage, where are you heading to?"

"Stepping on the southern sky and crushing the aerial palaces."

"What if you can't return?"

"Then I won't return."

From the moment Xuanzang stood up to all the Buddhas, Li Zhenghui's goosebumps were already raised all over.

And when Sun Wukong's will, like a flame, emerged in his resistance against the Heavenly Court, Li Zhenghui had already applauded in admiration!

"Bravo!"

His heart was thumping!

The spirit of Journey to the West was burning fiercely!

If I can't return, then I won't return!

Even if he fails, it's just a temporary silence!

He did become a deity, became Protector of the Horses in the heavenly court, and met a girl named Purple Cloud.

Purple Cloud said, "Perhaps in everyone's heart there is a heavenly palace, and a piece of darkness. Deep in the darkness is a pool of water reflecting the shadow of his heart. The soul resides there. But when one decides to become a deity, he must give up all these. He must make the water reflect nothing and see nothing. When the water becomes empty and silent, he becomes an immortal.

But what does it feel like with an empty heart?"

Purple Cloud was a strange fairy.

Purple Cloud also said she wanted to visit the Mountain of Flowers and Fruit.

In her mind, the Mountain of Flowers and Fruit was beautiful, just like how Sun Wukong described it.

But when Purple Cloud truly saw the Mountain of Flowers and Fruit, she realized Sun Wukong had lied.

The Mountain of Flowers and Fruit was not beautiful at all.

The mountain was covered with charred soil, burnt trees stretched out like hideous claws dancing, and a thick black fog enveloped the place, blocking out the sunlight all day.

The cemetery-like wilderness was lifeless, with only some strange birds shrieking sharply, like the wailing of ghosts.

Rather than a fruit mountain, it's more like hell.

"Why did you lie to me?"

"You said I lied to you, then I did."

Li Zhenghui felt a pang in his heart.

He seemed to be able to feel Sun Wukong's helplessness.

Perhaps this is the true "Journey to the West."

The original script glossed over the ordeal of the Mountain of Flowers and Fruit, as if it remained untouched.

But with a little imagination, how could the Mountain of Flowers and Fruit remain intact after the battle between Sun Wukong and a hundred thousand heavenly soldiers and generals?

There it turned into a scorched land, a hell where ghosts cry and wolves howl, which seemed more realistic.

At this moment, Li Zhenghui felt sympathy for this monkey.

Did the monkey admit defeat?

He seemed to have yielded, yet he seemed to resist.

Purple Cloud said that deities didn't have as much disgusting greed as demons.

But Sun Wukong asked, "If gods are not greedy, why can't they tolerate a little disrespect from the world? If gods are not evil, why do they hold the fate of millions of creatures in their hands?"

Li Zhenghui's fist tightened slightly!

Indeed, the demons in Journey to the West all have a superior, and demons without a superior are all killed by Sun Wukong.

Are the deities really as noble as they claim to be?

At this moment, Li Zhenghui felt it deeply!

In the end, Sun Wukong still refused to yield!

The uninvited visit to the Peach Garden was just the fuse for Sun Wukong's havoc in the heavenly palace.

The real root cause was the fundamental divergence between deities and demons.

At the Peach Garden Party...

Yao was sentenced to be cast down into the mortal world by the Queen Mother just because the peach she picked was too small.

Yue pleaded for Yao, but nobody paid attention.

Tian Peng appeared.

He helped Yue up and walked out of the heavenly palace indifferently, at this moment, all the gods were shocked!

"Is this still the same Zhu Bajie?"

Li Zhenghui felt the blood in his body getting hotter!

Indeed!

Zhu Bajie used to be Marshal Canopy!

Why did he turn into a pig?

A lazy, gluttonous, sly and crafty pig?

Would such a character have been Marshal Canopy who held immense power in the Heavenly Court in his past life?

He should be this character!

He is meant to be this character!

And Sun Wukong, he helped a girl named Yao back up.

When he rebelled, it was the same as the Peach Banquet in the original tale. All the gods were no match for him as he remained the invincible Great Sage, Heaven's Equal!

He brought Yao to the Mountain of Flowers and Fruit.

The Heavenly Soldiers and Generals came to punish Wukong, and the underground monsters wanted to help, but they were ruthlessly turned away by Sun Wukong.

He said, "This is a matter of grudges among immortals."

He claimed to be an immortal, not a monster. He hurt the feelings of other monsters, but Li Zhenghui clearly saw the sadness beneath this monkey's tough shell.

He simply didn't want to involve others again and relive the tragedy of the Mountain of Flowers and Fruit.

There isn't much description of the great battle.

But as Li Zhenghui read deeper, his blood was boiling. He didn't know when the climax of "The Legend of Wukong" became a thrilling roller-coaster ride!

He was completely captivated by these words!

"If the sky oppresses me, I will break it; if the earth restrains me, I will shatter it. Who dares to dominate me when we are all born free!"

In a daze.

Li Zhenghui seemed to see the defiant monkey who dared to challenge the heavens and the earth, facing the Heavenly Soldiers and Generals alone.

Actually, this part is the plot from the original tale.

But in this fan-fiction, there were many embellishments and additions, making it bloodier and colder, yet more melancholy!

Yi An's Journey to the West is brutal!

The curtain of "The Legend of Wukong" has begun to rise with the unfolding of the past five hundred years!

"In this world, I've been here, I've fought, and I've loved deeply. I'm not concerned about the end."

"I have a dream. When I fly, the sky will clear the way, and when I dive, the sea will part. All gods and immortals will call me brother and there will be no worries. There won't be anything to restrain me or anyone to control me, or anyplace I can't reach or anything I can't achieve or battle I can't overcome!"

"Bound by endless wrongs, fosters an immortal heart."

"What is the use of my birth if I cannot laugh? What is the use of annihilating me? It won't lessen my pride!"

Li Zhenghui felt that these words were as if they were ablaze!

This is the monkey!

That's why he would say:

"I know heaven can be infuriated if its majesty is violated. But does heaven know that humans can also get angry if they've lost everything? You scoffed at me arrogantly when I begged, and you were indifferent when I was in pain. Now, I'm angry."

That's why he would say:

"I know heaven can get angry. But do you know, heaven can also tremble? When the celestial sphere shudders, I laugh out loud, swing my As-You-Will Gold-Banded Cudgel, and turn the world upside down. From this day forth for a thousand years, you will all remember my name, Sun Wukong, the Great Sage, Heaven's Equal!"

But after the hot blood ebbs, there is only endless loneliness left.

Just like what Bodhi lamented, "I couldn't change the beginning, why not forget the ending."

The rebellion of Sun Wukong and Master Golden Cicada failed.

How can we forget Journey to the West?

Seeing the last sentence of the novel, the conspiracy of Journey to the West has been unmasked in "The Legend of Wukong."

The text mentions twice: "When five hundred years of time is but a ruse, for whom in this void of time do these characters suffer and rejoice?"

Li Zhenghui's blood gradually cooled.

But his mood has not settled down.

It seems like something is about to break free.

He finally understands what the beginning of this novel was really talking about.

The four disciples, including the White Dragon Horse, were all harboring their own secrets and pretending to be happy.

Sun Wukong forgot the events of five hundred years ago, but instinctively continued to watch the sunset.

Tang Monk's westward journey was actually carrying out the mission to undermine Buddha.

Zhu Bajie was the best at playing the fool, but he clearly remembered everything.

Monk Sha remembered everything as well, but his purpose had always been clear: to complete the task given by the Heavenly Court and to put back together the porcelain lamp he'd broken, so he could return to hang it for the Queen Mother.

As for the White Dragon...

He came purely for Tang Monk.

That's why she brought a rainfall to the Mountain of Flowers and Fruit at the end.

Even though she knew that this action violated heaven's law and she would never recover from it.

The novel is narrated along several threads.

In the end, Monk Sha went mad and turned into a laughing stock.

Zhu Bajie, with his pig's mind, embraced Yue in the flames and perished together.

In the final spatiotemporal junction, Sun Wukong, who became the Protector five hundred years later, killed the monkey from five hundred years ago—

This is the real and fake Handsome Monkey King.

In fact, they are both the real monkeys. Read exclusive content at My Virtual Library Empire

In fact, the monkey died five hundred years ago.

He just preferred to die rather than to lose.

"I get it now."

Li Zhenghui felt somewhat relieved.

Sun Wukong and Master Golden Cicada "failed," but they also succeeded.

He looked at the second to last paragraph of the novel: "Fallen leaves fluttered down to the earth, the seeds embedded in the snow, the flower bloomed and immediately withered. In the changing light and shadow, constellations transformed.

In the sea, mountains stood tall, through hundreds of generations of prosperity and decline, there would always be things standing strong against the wind, much like their ancestors."

The spirit of Journey to the West is indomitable.

So the seeds have already been scattered over the human world.

Someday, scenes from the past will reoccur:

When the sound of thunder is getting closer, Sun Wukong leans on a burnt tree, waiting quietly.

When the moment comes, the dark sky is suddenly split open by a massive bolt of lightning.

Sun Wukong leaps up, pointing his Golden Cudgel at the heavens.

"Come on!"

At that moment, his silhouette illuminated by lightning remained frozen in the legends even after countless years.

How could we forget Journey to the West?
