Chapter 121

In the house, a middle-aged man sat on a sofa.

He looked to be around forty years of age and was slightly chubby. He wore a vest and had a Green Dragon tattoo on his arm. He was playing around with two walnuts in his hands.

“Move.”

The mercenaries pressed their firearms against the trio. They walked forward.

“Have you found out anything about them?”

“Boss, we've found something. The man in the middle is called James Caden. He just arrived in Cansington. Our information shows that he was recently decommissioned from the military in the Southern Plains. Yet, he doesn't have a high ranking and remains only a foot soldier. He's currently the son-in-law of the Callahans.”

“The man beside him is Henry. He opened a clinic in Cansington.”

“We’re still currently unable to find out anything about the woman. She could be an illegal immigrant into Cansington.” Upon hearing this, the old man frowned. Why would a decommissioned soldier and a guy managing a clinic be interested in purchasing information concerning the destruction of the Cadens from ten years ago?

They were no ordinary men.

Not only did they not bat a single eyelid when there were firearms pressed against their head, but they were even laughing and joking around

They were men who had been through ordeals. “Brooks recommended them?” “Yes, Boss.”

James sat on the sofa, crossed his legs, and lit a cigarette.

The smell of cigarette smoke filled the air.

Opposite him, the black-vested, middle-aged man who had been fiddling with walnuts had a darkened face. “I will say this once more. If you want information, make the transfer now.” James lightly waved. “Nah, it’s alright. I’m not buying it. It’s not worth it.”

He stood up.

Henry and Black Rose followed suit.

The man in the black vest snorted. “What do you take this place for? Do you think you can just come and go as you please?”

James chuckled. “Have your boss come to us himself if he’s interested in a deal. It’s a huge one, after all. I’m afraid you aren’t qualified to conduct business with me.”

Though momentarily stunned, the man in the black vest quickly regained his composure. “Are you implying that I’m not Jake Graham?”

The fully-armed mercenaries stood down.

The man in the black vest bowed and respectfully greeted him.

Jake nodded lightly and sat on the sofa. Meanwhile, the man in the black vest stood at his back.

Jake glanced at the trio. “You wish to purchase the truth of the Cadens incident ten years ago?»

James looked at him. “Yes. You have it?” “Indeed, I do. But the price remains the same. Ten billion.”

James snickered. “Ten billion’s too expensive. I’ll settle for ten dollars.”

Upon hearing this, Jake’s face immediately darkened.

The man in the black vest behind him drew his pistol and pointed it at James. He asked coldly, “Are you just looking for trouble?” “That’s right... James’ face turned grim. He threw the cigarette bud in his hands with great force.

A cigarette bud in James’ hands was a terrifying secret weapon.

Chapter 123 Before the man in the black vest could react, he felt a searing pain on his wrist. The pain was so excruciating that he dropped his pistol.

James rolled underneath the table and instantly appeared before the man in the black vest. He kicked the man and sent him flying. Then, he picked up the pistol on the ground.

All this happened in a split second.

Before Jake could even react, his man was sent flying, and a pistol was pressed against his head.

Upon hearing the commotion, the mercenaries returned and pointed their firearms at James.

Even with a firearm pressed against his head, Jake did not panic in the slightest. Composed, he calmly asked, "Do you know where you currently are? Do you seriously think you can get out of here alive after killing me?"

"Ten dollars. Deal?"

James pressed the pistol against Jake's head with a mischievous grin on his face. "It's better for you to make your men leave. Otherwise, a single movement of my finger and your brains will be blown out."

At that moment, the man in the black vest who was sent flying earlier got up. "B*stard! How dare you?!" He sputtered.

Jake lightly waved. Upon seeing this, the man in the black vest quieted down.

Now that the tides had turned, Scarlett was relieved.

As expected of the Black Dragon, he was composed throughout the ordeal.

As expected of the Black Dragon, he had managed to subdue Jake's man with a single cigarette bud.

She was in awe of James' strength.

At long last, she had witnessed the true abilities of the most powerful man in the world.

James was silent.

Yet, opposite him, Jake was restless.

The atmosphere felt strange and abnormal. After about five minutes, Jake could no longer hold it in.

It was because James exuded an aura too powerful for him to withstand. His body slowly shrank from the sofa. Soon, he was kneeling on the floor, begging, "G-General, please spare my life."

James glanced at him and said indifferently, "What are you doing? Get up and talk. Pray that the information you provide will be useful to me. Or else, the man by the name of Jake Graham will no longer exist."

Jake felt a chill down his spine. He trembled and collapsed to the floor. Then, he got up and kneeled, all while kowtowing. "General, have mercy on me!"

Chapter 124 The underground stone building in the People's Repair Shop. A dozen or so mercenaries were kneeling on the floor.

Jake Graham, the so-called Boss and King of the Underworld, too was kneeling on the floor, shivering.

To secure his current position and title, he had to be acquainted with influential men. Otherwise, he would have been long gone.

However, the imposing and awe-inspiring Boss of the Underworld was now kneeling on the floor like an obedient dog.

Soon, the man in the black vest returned with a handful of information. Upon seeing his boss on the floor shivering, he staggered and fell. The documents in his hands were scattered everywhere.

James glanced at Henry.

Henry took the hint. He walked toward the man and retrieved the documents scattered across the floor. Then, he handed it to James.

James read through them conscientiously.

As expected of Jake Graham and his underground intelligence network, even information that had been kept from official channels was recorded clearly.

“Ten years ago, the Cadens was the most powerful family in Cansington. They migrated from the Capital. Thirty years ago, Thomas Caden arrived in Cansington and established the Cadens.”

The underworld forces stood guard outside the villa and met with The Great Four.

The underworld forces involved in this operation include Dawson, Black Wind Xander, Nine Fingers, and a few other unknowns.

The mastermind was unknown.

The whereabouts of the Moonlit Flowers on Cliffside's Edge was unknown.

James continued flipping through the information.

Ten years later, Warren Xavier, the head of one of the Great Four, was dead. Trent Xavier was dead. All the leaders of the other three of The Great Four were dead. Xander Lawrence was dead.

There were speculations that the Caden who had been rescued by Thea Callahan from that fire ten years ago was now back for vengeance.

The identity of the ghost-masked man was unknown.

The ghost-masked man was publicly executed by the Blithe King.

Upon reading this, James sighed deeply.

The information was rather detailed.

He learned of things he previously was unaware of.

For example, how the Cadens had migrated from the Capital His grandfather had not revealed any of that to him, and it was also not found in Henry's search.

Chapter 125 Henry could not find anything about the underworld forces involved in the operation. Yet, there were names listed on the document. They never entered the Caden residence. Instead, they had concealed themselves outside as a pickup to prevent things from going sideways.

Among them was Black Wind Xander.

James never expected Xander, who he had previously killed, to be one of the main culprits behind the destruction of the Cadens ten years ago.

He was deep in contemplation.

The information revealed that there were still others besides the known ones.

Where was the Moonlit Flowers on Cliffside's Edge? Who was the mastermind?

James remained silent. The stone building was eerily quiet. After some time, James took out a lighter and burned the information in his hands. Casting his gaze on Jake and his men still kneeling on the floor, he hissed with a look of indifference on his face. "Get up and speak to me."

"I-I'm scared." Jake was trembling.

"Get up!"

James roared.

His roar scared the King of the Underworld out of his wits, and he collapsed to the floor. He tried to stand, but his legs were wobbly.

James turned to leave.

Henry and Scarlett followed close behind.

After they left, Jake sighed in relief.

He took out his napkin and wiped the sweat from his forehead.

“H-Holy sh*t. Why did the Black Dragon of the Southern Plains, the legendary Ares, come to Cansington? C-Could it be that he was the man rescued by Thea Callahan from the flames of the Cadens’ residence ten years ago? Yes, it has to be!”

After the meeting with James, Jake was deep in thought.

He had James investigated and discovered that he was the son-in-law of the Callahans.

Why would the Black Dragon be content marrying into the Callahans?

He was there to repay a kindness. More specifically, Thea’s compassion for saving his life.

Besides, Jake heard that the Black Dragon was Asclepius.

That was how Thea managed to restore her looks twice.

He also knew that the ghost-masked man who had caused an uproar in Cansington was actually James Caden, the son-in-law of the Callahans and the Black Dragon of the Southern Plains.

“S-Something bad is about to happen in Cansington.”

Chapter 126 James and his party left after obtaining the information they wanted.

Outside, in the car.

Henry started the car engine and drove back to the city.

James leaned back on the passenger seat with a thoughtful expression, making it hard to guess what was on his mind. “Henry...

Moments later, James’ voice interrupted the silent atmosphere. “Yeah? I’m listening.”

“Look into Dawson and Nine Fingers. Find out who they are and gather information about their backgrounds. Send me to the hospital. I have to see Rowena again.” Henry nodded. “Alright.”

“Ha!” James sighed.

He would not have discovered that many more people were involved in the scheme against the Cadens ten years ago if he did not visit Jake.

“The battle that earned him great respect was about a year ago. One of our armies had been ambushed. Alone, James invaded the enemy’s headquarters. It was a bloodbath, and corpses were piled into mountains. Ultimately, he returned with the head of the enemy’s commander in hand.

“This battle shook the Southern Plains and shocked the whole world. It was what earned and established James’ prestige.

“He earned high respect and was acknowledged as one of the Five Commanders, the Black Dragon
“Although they were called the Five Commanders, the means that earned them the titles differed. The other four commanders climbed the rankings step by step, relying on their political achievements, whereas James fought his way to the top. He accumulated military merits, stained his hands with the blood of enemies, and rose the rankings from a normal soldier to one of the Five Commanders.”

Henry let out a deep sigh. James’ ten-year military career was a legendary story.

It was impossible to completely capture the happenings of his life story, even if it was written into a whole biography. Scarlett was deeply shocked by the brief story.

She never expected James to have gone through that much.

“What about practicing medicine? It’s rumored that James has unparalleled medical skills. The weapon he uses is called the needle of death, and it’s said that his silver needles are comparable to skilled snipers.” “I’m not sure about that.”

Henry shook his head.

Chapter 127 Henry did not know where James learned his medical skills.

However, he had also acquired some medical skills from James.

Meanwhile, James entered the hospital and went to Rowena's ward.

James had slashed Rowena's face, and her wrist was cut off.

Although her wrist was reattached, she was not discharged from the hospital yet and was still hospitalized

She had been living miserably ever since she learned the identity of the ghost-masked man. The days went by slowly, and every day was spent in anxiety and unease. She was almost at the point of reaching a mental breakdown.

Tap! Tap! Tap!

The sound of leather shoes treaded on the hospital corridor in the dead of night. James arrived at Rowena's ward, pushed open the door, and walked inside. "Who! Who..."

Rowena was at her breaking point and had been haunted by countless nightmares for the past few days.

She heard the sound and sensed someone intruding her wardroom. She hurriedly tugged her quilt and frantically backed herself into the corner. She looked at the door vigilantly with fear on her face.

At that moment, she knew it was the end for her.

Yet she was relieved.

Her suffering would come to an end after dying.

She closed her eyes and waited for her fate.

However, James did not make a move.

He loosened his clenched fists and got up to leave.

“Rowena, your one month is almost up. Find out who has the Moonlit Flowers on Cliffside’s Edge as soon as possible. Also, don’t think about taking your own life. Otherwise, the hundreds of people in the Xaviers will be buried with you.”

James left

Rowena was still overwhelmed by the fear.

A few moments later, she seemed to have gone insane as she constantly slapped and cursed at herself.

“Rowena, why did you have to do it? Why did you have to touch the Cadens? You deserve it! Trent, you’ve led the family into the flames of hell. How could you go first and leave the Xaviers behind to suffer?”

Her cries echoed in the ward.

She wailed and bawled out in pain.

Chapter 128 Eleven o’clock at night. Thea and Yuna hung out for the whole afternoon.

The former had tried every means to inquire about the identity of the ghost-masked man.

However, Yuna avoided answering the question.

Thea was unable to focus the whole day.

Late at night. She recalled the past while lying in bed. Ten years ago, she had gone on an outing with her classmates, and they were playing near the river. Suddenly, she saw a villa being engulfed by an inferno in the distance. They immediately rushed over and heard cries for help from inside the villa. After a brief hesitation, Thea charged into the flames and rescued one person. However, the survivor jumped into the river after being pulled out of the villa.

Another flashback of the past surfaced in her mind,

Her birthday party was Yuna was the executive chairman of Longevity Pharmaceuticals and was one of the most influential figures in Cansington. However, Yuna was from the Capital and not a Cansington local. Therefore, she was not a candidate for the Great Four. Otherwise, with Longevity Pharmaceuticals' assets, she would outrank the Great Four easily. Yuna had invited many people to her birthday party. Everyone that was a prominent figure in Cansington received an invitation from her. She was not a flamboyant person and wanted to celebrate her birthday in a very lowkey manner.

However, she was a member of a well-known family

Although the Lawsons were very influential in the Capital, they were now in Cansington. She had only been here for less than a year and had a tiny social circle. This was an opportunity for her to make more friends in Cansington and build a solid foundation for her business.

The Callahans' house.

Thea's bedroom.

Thea was dressed in a white V-neck dress that outlined her perfect figure. Her curves were accentuated, and her smooth back was completely exposed. She usually never wore such revealing clothes and her back felt very chilly. She could not resist and asked, "James, is my dress too revealing?"

James, sitting beside her, glanced at Thea standing in front of the vanity mirror, constantly checking herself out.

The dress is really pretty but might be a little too revealing. See, there are only a few straps on the back, and half of your back is exposed."

"It's all Yuna's fault. She kept saying that this dress suited me a lot," Thea complained. "It's not a big issue. It's just slightly revealing on your back." "Look in front..."

Thea turned around.

Chapter 129 James almost had a nosebleed after seeing her from the front.

The dress had a V-neckline that exposed her deep cleavage.

On her pale neck hung a brand new crystal necklace that fell right into her cleavage.

She was entrancing, and he was captivated by her.

Her long black hair was tied up.

At that moment, Thea looked like a majestic white swan.

"You're gorgeous. The jewelry goes perfectly with the dress," James could not help but praise her.

"Really?" Thea's face lit up with joy.

"Of course. My wife is the most beautiful woman in the world. You'll definitely be the center of attention if you go to Yuna's birthday party in this dress."

Thea smiled from cheek to cheek

“H-how much is everything?”

Gladys also came from a wealthy background and recognized that the outfit was not ordinary at a “N-not much. The whole outfit costs about a few thousand dollars,” Thea was flustered and answered frantically.

“Do you think I’m stupid?” Gladys’s expression darkened.

Alyssa, who was sitting on the sofa, immediately fueled the flames, “Mom, I’ve seen this dress in a luxurious clothing store before. I think the price tag was hundred and eighteen thousand dollars. Her clothes, necklace, earrings, and high heels add up to at least three hundred thousand dollars.”

“What?!!

“Wh-where did you get the money?” Gladys raised her voice.

“I met the chairman of Longevity Pharmaceutical, Yuna Lawson. She bought them as a gift for me.”

Thea did not dare to say that it was James’ money. Her mother would surely confiscate his money if she found out.

Alyssa was envious and dissatisfied seeing Thea in such an extravagant outfit. Out of spite, she mockingly said, “The chairman bought it for you? Do you really think you’re some important figure, Thea? Why would the chairman of Longevity Pharmercitual buy you such an expensive outfit?”

“Well, she really did buy it for Thea,” said James.

Gladys glanced at James, who stood beside Thea in very plain clothing.

Initially, she had already accepted James.

Now, the feeling that James was not suitable for Thea increased.

Chapter 130

Thea was gorgeous and had a more glamorous charisma than the celebrities on television. She definitely qualified to be married into a wealthy family.

How could she stay married to someone like James, who was a homemaker?

Gladys had heard that those attending Yuna’s birthday party were all prominent figures.

The majority of them were company bosses.

With Thea’s current beauty, she was sure to capture the attention of super-wealthy men.

Gladys pulled Thea aside and whispered, “Thea, the people going to the Cansington Hotel today are very rich. I heard the owner of Gourmand, Mr. Grayson, will also attend. This is your chance. Make sure to find a chance to hook up with him.”

“Mom...what’re you talking about? I already have a husband. How can I do such a shameless thing?”

After about half an hour, they arrived at the Cansington Hotel's entrance.

Countless luxurious cars were parked outside the entrance.

Prominent figures began to pour into the hotel.

At the same time, a beautiful figure stood at the entrance.

She was the day's primary focus and chairman of Longevity Pharmaceutical, Yuna.

Yuna stood at the door and kept looking around. However, after waiting for a long time, she did not see James show up. Many influential entered one after another, and she greeted them symbolically.

Soon, an electric motorcycle approached.

The person driving the motorcycle was a man in his thirties. He had a very average appearance and was dressed in ordinary clothes. In a crowd, he belonged to the category of people who would not attract anyone's attention.

However, the person riding behind him attracted the attention of plenty of people.
