The Almighty Dragon General Chapter 2661—The moment the shadows merged, they formed a gargantuan silhouette in the sky.

James hurtled from the sky and plunged his long sword into the black dragon's body.

Time seemed to freeze for the few seconds that followed.

A few seconds later, time seemed to have fast-forwarded.

James' sword had completely pierced through the black dragon's body, and James could be seen under the black dragon.

James' afterimage could not keep up with James' own speed. Many of his shadow clones trailed close behind James and fused into his body.

Boom!

The sound of a loud explosion rocked the air.

Thousands of Sword Energies erupted from the black dragon's body, tearing it apart from the inside. The black dragon could not withstand the Sword Energies' damage and exploded, turning into nothingness and vanishing from sight.

The black dragon disappeared after it was defeated.

The Blademaster of Mount Grinch looked at James with widened eyes.

"You... What kind of sword technique is that?"

The Blademaster of Mount Grinch shook in disbelief.

He was also a swordsman and in fact one of the greatest on Galileo.

However, he immediately recognized his accomplishments were nothing after witnessing James' swordsmanship.

James' long sword dispersed into Sword Energy and melted back into his body. He looked at the Blademaster of Mount Grinch who approached him and replied with a faint smile, "It's just some random stuff I picked up. It's really nothing extraordinary."

James' words were like a slap in the face to the Blademaster of Mount Grinch.

The Blademaster of Mount Grinch inwardly rebuked James and his lineage. If James' swordsmanship was not extraordinary, then what did he amount to?

However, he did not pursue the question since James gave him a cagey answer.

The two left and returned to the flying battleship.

“What was that, James?” Walganus looked at James in amazement and asked,

“Could it be you’ve already obtained the Ancestral Sword Master’s swordsmanship inheritance?”

Walganus had a storied history and had seen a lot. Despite seeing countless Supernatural Powers and Secret Arts, he was blown away by the sword technique James had displayed.

The Ancestral Sword Master’s technique was so stunning and powerful that it transcended time. It was still a sight to behold today.

James smiled silently in response.

Yanina said in a voice of admiration, “You’re amazing. The dragon was at the Sage Rank’s Fourteenth Stage. Despite not being a Sage yet, you managed to kill the dragon with a single strike. That’s some prodigious strength you have there.”

James himself did not the sword technique to be so powerful.

However, it made sense after he thought about it.

The sword he wielded was a Yogacara that was extremely eminent. It was the indestructible Sword Energy left by the Ancestral Sword Master. That was why it was fully capable of breaking the black dragon’s defenses.

Moreover, James had polished his skills in the Tribulation World for 30,000 years and had comprehended the first two stages of the Great Sword Realms.

With the sword-fighting techniques of the Ancestral Sword Master in his arsenal,

James would be a huge disappointment if he was unable to take down the dragon.

The Blademaster of Mount Grinch said shamefully, “I couldn’t break through the dragon’s defenses on my own. I’m such a failure. Sigh... I’m already old. The younger generation have truly outshined us.”

The Blademaster of Mount Grinch thought he was invincible in this world, and he rarely had people stand against him.

At that moment, he realized he was nothing but a grain of sand on a vast beach. James smiled and said, "Alright. Let's not dwell on. We should quickly make our way to the Seafolk and find the Crepe Myrtle Divine Sword."

The Almighty Dragon General Chapter 2662—James had great admiration for the Ancestral Sword Master's swordsmanship. After he obtained such a splendid technique, he no longer had anyone to fear.

Having practiced such powerful swordsmanship, James had no fear, regardless of how challenging the Earth's Third Calamity would be. James was confident he could guide the humans on Earth through the calamity.

The flying battleship smoothly sailed over the ocean.

The rest of the journey went by without encountering any other fangers.

Another three months passed in the blink of an eye.

Suddenly, the battleship came to a stop.

James was cultivating in his room, trying to better comprehend the swordsmanship he had learned.

A knock came on his door.

He got up and opened it.

An old man stood outside his room. He wore a gray robe and had a white beard.

The old man looked at James respectfully and said, "Mr. Caden, we'll reach the Seafolk's domain soon."

"Mhm." James nodded and walked out of the room.

The two of them walked onto the battleship's deck together.

Four people met up on the deck.

The Blademaster of Mount Grinch pointed at the waters ahead and said, "Keep going straight from here, and you'll reach the Seafolk's territory in about three days. The Seafolk stay on an island shielded by a protective formation that prevents outsiders from entering."

“Back then, I passed through this place while I was being pursued by a monster. The Seafolk saved me and took me into their territory.

“I won’t accompany you for the rest of the journey. The three of you will have to go alone. I’ll wait for you guys here.”

The Blademaster of Mount Grinch had promised the Seafolk never to reveal their location.

Thus, he did not intend to go further and would await the party’s return on the battleship.

James nodded and said, “Alright. You can wait here for us while we visit the Seafolk.”

The Blademaster of Mount Grinch nodded and said, “Understood. I’ll wait on the ship for you guys.”

He reminded them, “Also, just a warning. The Seafolk are formidable and practice extraordinary swordsmanship. Learning their basic swordsmanship was enough to allow me to overpower everyone on Galileo. Keep that in mind and be sure not to act recklessly while in their territory.”

James replied, “Got it. Thanks for the reminder.”

He looked ahead of him, then turned to Yanina and Walganus, saying, “Let’s go.”

“Alright.” The two nodded.

The three of them left the battleship and flew into the distance.

According to the Blademaster of Mount Grinch, they would reach the Seafolks’ territory after traveling for three days.

The trio flew at full speed.

Three days soon passed and they eventually reached the island.

The island was enormous. At a glance, there was no end in sight. A mysterious golden halo with mysterious scripts surrounded the island’s periphery.

“There’s a powerful force enveloping the area.”

After getting close to the island, Walganus immediately sensed an unusual force. After mulling it over, he said, “If I’m not mistaken, a very extraordinary divine object is about to appear in the Seafolk’s territory.”

“What?”

James and Yanina turned to him abruptly.

Walganus shook his head and said, "I can't identify what it is, but I can feel a different energy after getting close to the island. Although I can't really be sure what it is exactly, I'm positive it must be quite remarkable."

James said, "It's best to put away such thoughts. We came to find the Crepe Myrtle Divine Sword, not to plunder the Seafolk's resources."

Walganus smiled faintly and said, "This world is one where the strong prey on the weak. If the Seafolk aren't strong, we'll grab the boon that appears. If the Seafolk display amazing strength, then we won't act against them."

The Almighty Dragon General Chapter 2663—James rolled his eyes at Walganus' words. He could not be bothered to respond to Walganus.

He turned to Yanina and asked, "Do you sense the Crepe Myrtle Divine Sword's energy?"

Yanina shook her head and said, "No."

James frowned and said, "No? Aren't you supposed to be able to sense if you get close to it since you mastered the Propitious Crepe Myrtle technique?"

Yanina said, "That's true, but I don't sense the Crepe Myrtle Divine Sword here. There's only one explanation for it, that is, the Crepe Myrtle Divine Sword isn't in Seafolk territory."

James shook his head and said, "Impossible. I've obtained reliable information that the sword is here."

Walganus asked, "Who provided you with the information, James? Since you're from Earth and not someone from Galileo, it's strange that you know about its whereabouts after only being on this planet for a short time."

"You don't have to worry about that. I'm confident the Crepe Myrtle Divine Sword is here," James said firmly.

Sophie obtained the clue for him. James had absolute trust in Sophie's divination.

James did not explain where he got the information from to the two.

Walganus stayed silent. He changed the subject and said, "Whether it's here or not, we'll have to get into the Seafolk's territory to find out."

"Mhm. Let's go." James nodded.

The three stepped forward in the air and moved toward the island.

Along the way, James said, "We'll tell them we stumbled upon the island while traversing the ocean. Also, don't act rashly before we're sure the Crepe Myrtle Divine Sword is in the Seafolk's territory."

Walgasnus nodded and said, "I know. I'm not that reckless."

James cast him a glance. Although they did not know each other for a long time,

James noticed Walganus had a nasty temper and almost lost his composure a few times.

However, Walganus always suppressed his anger for some reason.

"Good."

The three moved forward quickly and soon appeared near the island.

They wanted to enter the island but were blocked by a powerful formation.

"Who's there?"

At that moment, a group of people approached from a distance on the island.

The leader was a young man in a golden robe that looked about 25 or 26 years old.

Behind him were several men in white robes, all of which who were holding swords.

James stood outside the formation, clasped his hands, and said, "We were adventuring out at sea and noticed an island, so we came here to look around."

"This island belongs to the Seafolk. We don't entertain outsiders. Please leave immediately." The man dressed in a golden robe chased them away.

James promptly said, "We've been adventuring out at sea for several years and have exhausted our supplies. There are countless monsters out in the sea region. We've also run out of healing elixirs. Could you please let us replenish our resources on the island?"

"Do you need me to chase you away you a second time?"

The man in a golden robe was rather hostile with them.

“What’re you doing?”

At that moment, a voice resounded.

Then, a ray of light came from within the island and landed in front of the man in gold.

From the light, an old man appeared.

“Elder.”

The man in the golden robe immediately greeted him respectfully.

The old man said, “Although we Seafolk are isolated from the world, we should still treat outsiders that come to our island with hospitality.”

While speaking, the old man casually waved his hand, and a miraculous force flowed out of his palm, opening up a hole in the protective formation.

‘Thank you, Sir.”

James walked onto the island with a grateful expression.

The Almighty Dragon General Chapter 2664—The old man looked at James and the others but did not say much. He turned to the man in the golden robe and ordered, “The three of them are guests, so treat them courteously and don’t neglect them. If word gets out about your behavior, it’ll tarnish the Seafolk’s reputation.”

The man in the golden robe replied respectfully, “Understood, Elder.”

The old man looked back at James’ party and said, “Please leave immediately after you’ve restocked your supplies.”

‘Yes, of course.” James immediately agreed.

The old man did not say much and quickly departed.

The man in the golden robe looked at the three and said calmly, “Let’s go.’

Then, he turned and walked into the island.

James and the others followed behind him.

The golden-robed man led the three of them deep into the island. Soon, they arrived at a city.

He said coldly, 'You can buy everything you need in this city. After you've purchased your supplies, please leave immediately. Or else...' James nodded.

Then, he observed the city.

The large city was very prosperous and was not that different from the cities of the outside world.

The man in the golden robe left after reminding them.

Walganus asked, "What now?"

James paused for a moment before saying, "Didn't you say those who cultivated the Propitious Crepe Myrtle can sense the Crepe Myrtle Divine Sword's presence? Let's walk around the island and see if Yanina can sense the sword's energy."

All James knew was that the Seafolk knew something about the Crepe Myrtle Divine Sword's whereabouts. As for where exactly it was located, James did not know.

"Alright." Walganus nodded.

Afterward, the three quickly left the city to wander around the island.

The island was huge and much bigger than Sangria.

The three walked out of the city but immediately encountered the man wearing the golden robe.

He stood at the corner of the city gate and held a sword in both hands. He looked at

James' party and said coldly, 'Where are you three going? If you want to leave the city, you should leave from the East Gate. What are you doing at the South Gate?'

James and Walganus exchanged a few glances.

They could sense the man in front of them was a powerful Sage and was at least at the Eighth Stage.

James walked over with a smile and said, "I'm James Caden. How may I address you, Sir?"

'You don't have to know my name. You have only one day to get your stuff and leave our land,' said the man in the golden robe.

James said smilingly, "I heard of the Seafolk before I embarked on my adventure to explore the vast oceans. I heard that you guys isolate yourselves from the outside world and rarely leave your territory. We actually came here to learn from the Seafolk."

Walganus followed up, saying, "Indeed. I heard a cultivator had entered the Seafolk's territory some time ago and learned swordsmanship from your people. After he left, he went on to become a powerhouse that ruled the world."

'You're here to learn from us?"

The man in the golden robe looked at them and hissed, "We Seafolk don't accept disciples from the outside world."

James asked, "Then how was the Blademaster of Mount Grinch allowed to learn the Seafolk's swordsmanship?"

The man in the golden robe was unwilling to continue the conversation. He raised his sword and said defensively, "I don't know, but it doesn't change the fact that you only have one day here. If you aren't gone tomorrow, I'll personally throw you out of here."

After the man finished speaking, he turned and left.

Walganus asked, "What should we do now?"
