The Almighty Dragon General Chapter 3191-Tadhg Gallagher nodded gently and said, "With the Blood Essence of powerful figures we've collected all these years, combined with the Resurrection Formation, I'm sure we can resurrect the Lord."

The Formation that James destroyed prior to this had reappeared in this world. Numerous mysterious words floated in the air. They were as red as blood, a result of the absorption of numerous Blood Essences of powerful figures. Suddenly, the Blood Essence within the Resurrection Formation gathered, forming a pillar of blood. The pillar descended from the azure, embedding itself within a sierra.

The Leader of the Sanctuary of Darkness appeared at the core of the Formation in the sky. As his hands waved, mysterious carvings materialized. Subsequently, he took out a piece of treasure—a magical bottle.

When he turned the bottle cap, a spirit escaped from the bottle. The spirit was nebulous, its face unclear to the naked eye.

"Go," With a wave of Tadhg's hand, the spirit headed toward the pillar among the mountains, fading into the distance.

At this very moment, the Resurrection Formation went berserk and operated at a maniacal speed, letting out an extremely frightening aura.

Thump! In the blink of an eye, the entire Formation shattered, causing innumerable drops of blood to pour down onto the world.

Tadhg also injured himself badly. He fell from the sky, uncontrollably spurting a mouth of blood. Taking no heed of himself, he scrambled up hastily to look at the mountains. Appearing gradually from a distance was a silhouette. As the outlines of the shadow became clearer and clearer, he made out a human-like figure with a long tail.

Once he appeared, a humongous ancestral power emerged. The power was so strong that it influenced the entire space of the area.

"Finally, I have returned," The middle-aged man with a tail stretched his body. The edges of his lips were upturned, and he wore an uncanny smile.

"Congratulations, My Lord."

Tadhg knelt on the ground with a respectful expression and continued, "You're finally resurrected."

"What year is this?" The man asked while gazing downward, his face filled with arrogance.

Tadhg replied with reverence, "To answer your question, this is the Apocalypse Age. Based on my understanding, the Heavenly Path sealed off Earth and the habitat of the Human Race many years ago. The ancient prophecy stated that the Human Race will face the Four Calamities. Now that two of them have been overcome, the third requires your help."

Tadhg was the Leader of the Sanctuary, and the Sanctuary was created by Heaven's Adjudicators, who represented the Heavenly Path. Although the Sanctuary could not represent the Heavenly Path, Tadhg still knew many things as the Leader.

"In addition," he continued, "The Human Race on Earth has already sent a messenger to the Boundless Realm. They plan to look for the Ancestral God Rank Elixir left by the Ancestral Gods during the Primeval Age. I have looked into the matter. However, the messenger is so enigmatic that I can't figure out who he is. I found out about a person called Thea Callahan and wanted to put her into use, but to no avail due to some unforeseen circumstances."

"Very well." The man nodded gently. He raised his hand, and some mysterious carvings materialized. The carvings gathered, forming an Extrapolation Formation. He could see many things with the Formation, including James and Thea going through the seal of the Boundless Realm. He was able to gain knowledge of some of the experiences that James had gone through in this world, as well as the fact that James had already acquired two Ancestral God Rank Elixirs.

Worry clouded his face.

The Almighty Dragon General Chapter 3192-The Leader of the Sanctuary made his prediction, but while Thea Callahan existed in his foresight, James was absent. He also looked into Thea's background, but she had not interacted with anyone other than James since arriving in the Boundless Realm.

He also knew that there was a mysterious powerful figure who had disrupted the plans of the Sanctuary more than once. While he suspected that James was one of them, he was not sure. James was too powerful, so much so that even Tamuuz Darkness was not his opponent. That could only mean that James has attained a rank higher than the Grand Emperor Rank's Seventh Heaven. Although he was not sure if James was the messenger, he was sure that he would be one of his most challenging opponents.

The middle-aged man with a tail looked very concerned as he stood in midair. James had already found the second Ancestral God Rank Elixir.

"My Lord, what should we do now?" Tadhg asked, but the man was still concentrating on envisaging where the rest of the Elixirs were located.

He was one of Heaven's Adjudicators in the Primeval Age. His power was immense. At his peak, his power was comparable to that of an Ancestral God. Although he was not as strong since he had just been resurrected, finding out where the Elixirs were was not a problem to him.

In the Exploration Formation, an image appeared. There was a vast sea in front of his eyes, where a gigantic monster sat. It was a whale whose body was as large as an island. He continued his extrapolation. After a while, he said, "I presume that one of the elixirs is in the Boundless Sea. There's an enormous monster in the sea, and the Elixir lies within its body. Go to the Boundless Sea now and get it before the Human Messenger does," the man explained the whereabouts of the elixir.

"Yes, I will head there now." Tadhg nodded.

"I've just been resurrected, so my power hasn't returned to its peak. Let me go into closed-door meditation for some time. When I'm done, I'll perform the Curse Magic on the entire world."

At this moment, James already entered the Celestial Abode. He handed his drawing of the Time Capsule to Emperor Jabari. The Emperor looked at it for a while before making extrapolations.

James waited beside him.

After ten minutes, Emperor Jabari stopped.

James asked, "Emperor, what did you find?"

Emperor Jabari replied, "This area is the Boundless Sea. The monster within the Sea is a powerful figure who's attained the Grand Emperor Rank's Seventh Heaven. Perhaps the Ancestral God Rank Elixir fell into his body, allowing him to become such an immensely powerful figure.

"The Boundless Sea... Where is it?" James asked.

Emperor Jabari said, "The Boundless Sea isn't a planet, but a galaxy. The entire galaxy is made of the ocean, of salt water. A magical place, it is. As for exactly where this monster is located in the Sea, I'm unable to see that. Having attained the Grand Emperor Rank's Seventh Heaven, its rank is so powerful that it can avoid Heaven's secret. Head to the Sea now and look for the next Elixir."

"Yes." James nodded.

The Emperor's expression turned serious.

“One more thing...”

“What’s wrong?” James asked.

The Emperor said with a concerned look, “I can sense something uncanny going on. This journey to the Boundless Sea to retrieve the Elixir will be rather challenging. There may be an intense battle waiting for you.”

“With you on my side, I don’t have much to worry about,” said James.

“Go now.”

The Almighty Dragon General Chapter 3193-Emperor Jabari waved at James, then continued his closed-door meditation.

James left the Celestial Abode and appeared in the outer realm.

“Honey, how was it?” Thea inquired.

James replied, “We found out that the area is called the Boundless Sea.”

Nico Eastwood immediately said, “I’ve heard of the Boundless Sea. It’s a galaxy made not out of planets, but water. The area of this galaxy is colossal.”

He looked at James and continued to say, “Have you found out where exactly the monster is?”

James shook his head and said, “The Emperor couldn’t predict that, because the monster shown is a powerful figure who has attained the Grand Emperor Rank’s Seventh Heaven. If we want to find out, we’ve no other choice than to go to the Boundless Sea to see for ourselves. Plus...”

He paused for a moment and continued, “The Emperor said that he could feel an uncanny aura. This time, it won’t be easy to retrieve the Elixir from the Boundless Sea. There may be an intense battle waiting for us.”

Thea was stupefied and asked, “But why?”

James shook his head. He had no idea himself. However, apart from him, there could only be another force who wanted the Elixir—the Sanctuary of Darkness. Perhaps the Sanctuary was already on the move, knowing where the Elixir was located.

“The Sanctuary of Darkness, possibly,” James said. “If my guess is correct, the Sanctuary has already discovered the location of the Elixir and is on its way to the Boundless Sea.”

Thea looked concerned as she said, “If that’s true, we must hurry.”

“Let’s go.”

Nico did not hesitate. With a wave of his hand, a powerful force emanated from his palm, slashing the void apart. A crack appeared, into which the three of them disappeared.

...

The Boundless Sea was a mystical place. It was the habitat of the Seafolk, and very few humans had entered this place.

At that moment, a crack appeared outside the Boundless Sea, followed by the appearance of three shadows, who were James, Thea, and Nico. The three of them stared forward.

In front of them was a vast and infinite body of floating water. Waves as high as a thousand meters swept toward them but quickly disappeared once they touched the borders.

Nico stared at the waters and said, “There, the Boundless Sea. The territory of the Seafolk. Barely any humans come here, and the beings of the Seafolk rarely go to the Boundless Realm.”

James asked, “How big is the Boundless Sea?”

Nico gave this question a thought and answered, “Maybe as big as the eight huge galaxies of the Holy Realm altogether.”

Taking a deep breath, James sighed. “It’s gonna be tough finding the Elixir in a place as huge as this.”

Thea responded encouragingly, “Well, it’s worth a try.”

“Let’s move, then,” James urged as he led the team forward. With one step, his body disappeared from outer space into the Sea. Nico and Thea followed suit. Since they had no idea where the monster was, the only option they had was to step into the Sea and search for themselves.

James' plan was to first inquire about the monster from the Seafolk. They made their way forward, not aware that shortly after they entered the Sea, Tadhg, accompanied by Tamuz and his fellow powerful figures, had also reached their destination.

The Almighty Dragon General Chapter 3194-The outer area of the Boundless Sea was constituted entirely of waters.

James, Thea, and Nico advanced into the Sea for around three days before they finally saw an island. The island's area was so huge it was as big as a metropolis in the outer world.

They appeared above the island. Beneath them were crustaceans and fish that came from the waters. They evolved into the shape of humans, appearing on the coast and subsequently entering the city.

Three of them descended and landed in front of the city gates on the coast. They followed the shoals of Seafolk in entering the city.

Nico said, "If we want to look into the background of this humongous whale, we should approach the owner of the island."

"Right," James agreed.

The three of them arrived at the city center, where there was a bureau. Its gates were engraved with some vibrant ancient writings.

James raised his head and took a look at the words. He understood them immediately.

"Garland Residence."

He walked into the compound. Once he got near, some soldiers charged toward him immediately. These soldiers were in the form of humans but retained some definitive characteristics of the Seafolk. Their ranks were also rather low, averaging at the Sage Rank.

"Humans, this is the Garland Residence, the residence of Chancellor Garland. Authorized entry only," they roared.

James took a glance at these soldiers and coldly said, "Tell the so-called Chancellor Garland to come out. I have things to ask him."

“Who the...” Before one of the leaders could finish their sentence, a powerful aura materialized in Thea’s body. Under the suppression of the aura, all the soldiers felt queasy and involuntarily collapsed to the ground.

“Send the message immediately,” Thea said without emotion.

“Y-Yes...!”

Only then did Thea retract the aura, allowing each of the soldiers to crawl back up from the ground. Without further delay, one of their leaders ran into the residence.

James and his companions waited patiently outside the gates until they saw an elder scurrying toward the entrance. The elder was wearing a black robe and carried a turtle shell on his back. He looked very old and had two long beards. As he entered the sights of James, Thea, and Nico, he enquired immediately, “My dear superiors, what an honor to have you as my guests. Is something the matter?”

James took out the drawing and handed it to the elder. “Have you seen this?”

After taking the drawing from James’ hands, he looked carefully at the drawing. His distress upon realizing the subject of the drawing was unconcealable. His hands were shaking so much that the drawing nearly fell to the ground.

“Isn’t this Gr-Grand Emperor Moacir Bartholomew?” He quivered, obviously knowing who the monster was in the painting.

James immediately asked, “Who exactly is this Grand Emperor? Where does he reside?”

Chancellor Garland took a quick glance at James and said with reluctance, “My dear superiors, I am wary of exposing the whereabouts of the Grand Emperor.”

Without waiting for James to speak, Thea appeared in front of the Chancellor in the blink of an eye. Her hands were wrapped around his throat as she lifted him off the ground.

“I’ll give you one more chance. Are you telling us or not?” Thea asked without a single hint of emotion on her face.

The Chancellor whose throat was being strangled was trying his best to resist, but his low rank made him a complete fool in the hands of Thea, who had attained the Grand Emperor Rank’s Second Heaven.

“Thea, put him down. Don’t be rash,” James told her immediately.

Thea took heed of James' orders and playfully stuck out her tongue. She smiled mischievously and said, "I was just worried about the Ancestral God Rank Elixir. It's nothing much."

Turning toward the Chancellor, James instructed, "Tell us what you know."

The Chancellor looked at the entire group, fully knowing that they were people who had to be taken seriously. He took a few seconds to think and then ushered the entire group into his residence. "Let's speak inside."
