The Almighty Dragon General Chapter 4318-After leaving the Doom Race's territory, James activated the sigil that he had left with Thea.

A short while later, he could hear Thea's voice in his head.

"James? What's the matter? Did something happen?"

"Thea, the Dooms have informed all the other races about us. Almost everyone is aware of the fact that you're still alive. The Dooms are using the connections and resources from the other races to search for you and the Heaven- Eradicating Sect members."

James continued, "You must stay off their radar for the time being. You should look for universes that are mostly uninhibited and hide there. If it's possible, you should leave the Greater Realms and head to the Primordial Realm for now."

James was worried that Thea and the Heaven-Eradicating Sect members might be found by their enemies soon. In their current situation, there was almost nothing James could do if they were to fall into the hands of their enemies.

"I can't," Thea explained, "They've sealed the district where the Primordial Realm is located, and the seal can only be undone by members of the Ten Great Races. Currently, no living being can enter that universe because of the seal."

"Isn't there a secret passage you can use to get there? The one you used when you were reincarnated," James suggested.

"Yes, there is. However, it can only be used for souls to get to the Greater Realms through reincarnation. It can't be used for us to travel to the Primordial Realm."

"How did I do it with my physical body that time, then?" James asked curiously.

“I can’t tell you more. You’ll find out eventually.”

James did not try to press her for more clarification.

Instead, he reminded Thea again. “We’re at a crucial point now. You must stay extra cautious. Youri Dalibor has sent me to acquire the tokens from the other races. I have a new plan now. After collecting the tokens, I’ll head over to the Cloud Race’s territory and try to enter the formation. Then, I’ll try to release Soren. All of you must remain in hiding until you hear news of his release.”

“I got it. You should be careful too.”

Once James was done giving Thea the necessary updates, he contacted the Death Demon next.

James had decided to visit the Ursa Realm first, and he wanted the Death Demon to meet him outside the Ursa Universe.

‘I’ve decided to go with the other option. I’ll release Soren and have him deal with the Dooms. That is the only way I can buy time to focus on my cultivation.

‘After getting all the tokens, I might need Death Demon’s help when I try to enter the Cloud Race’s territory,’ James pondered.

Not long after he had arrived at the Chaotic Void outside the Ursa Universe, James spotted the Death Demon and called out to him.

The Death Demon stared at James for the longest time. He did not expect that a member of the Human Race was capable of impersonating Wyot Dalibor from the Doom Race and pulling it off so smoothly.

The Death Demon gave James a thumbs-up. “Incredible! You are insanely good! Who would have guessed that the Great Elder of the Doom Race is actually a human? You managed to fool all of us!”

James flashed him a playful smile. ‘You flatter me. Well, I know for sure that it’s better for you to work for me rather than for Youri Dalibor.’

The Death Demon smiled wryly.

James had placed a sigil over the deepest part of his soul. If the Death Demon were to have any intentions of betraying him, James would be able to sense it immediately.

‘Furthermore, he could even wipe my existence for good with just a simple thought. I’ll be gone eternally, and I won’t even get a chance to be reborn or reincarnated.’ The Death Demon thought.

“What’s your next move?” The Death Demon asked.

“I’m going to collect the tokens.” James did not explain more about his plans. Instead, he said, “Your powers aren’t fully restored. You should stay inside my storage and perform a closed-door meditation for the time being. I’ll let you out when I need your help.”

“Understood.”

After putting the Death Demon into the storage, James turned his eyes to the universe before him.

He muttered, “Let’s get the Ursas’ token first.”

The Almighty Dragon General Chapter 4319-James entered the Ursa Universe the next instant.

With every step, James glided swiftly and smoothly through several galaxies. Soon enough, he reached his destination, the Ursa Realm.

In a flash, James found the entrance to the Ursa Race’s Headquarters.

The Ursas had an astonishingly large headquarters as their people had chosen to build it in a mountainous area. James could see several spiritual mountains from where he was standing.

A gigantic stone tablet was erected right beside the entrance to the headquarters. The word “Ursa” was carved on the tablet in an archaic script.

James studied the word on the tablet for a bit. Then, he called out loud, ‘The Great Elder of the Doom Race, Wyot Dalibor, is here to meet the Ursas!’

James' low voice echoed through the Ursa Race's Headquarters almost instantaneously.

At the main hall inside the Ursa Race's Headquarters, multiple light beams were shot down from the sky simultaneously onto the floor. A person could be seen stepping out of each light beam the next instant.

In less than five minutes, the hall was already filled with hundreds of people.

At one end of the hall, Gaerel Wagstaff, the Patriarch of the Ursas, was seated in an intricately decorated armchair. The man was known by many as a strong and prominent figure in the Greater Realms.

"Sir Gaerel, Wyot Dalibor must be here for the token!"

"Sir, we mustn't hand over the token to him! Without the token, we'd lose our leverage against the Dooms! What do we do if they decide to start a war with us once they have the token?"

Several elders immediately voiced their opposition.

Gaerel lightly waved his hand to calm them down. "We are not sure yet if Wyot is here for the token. I'll invite the man to the main hall, so we can find out what he's here for."

Gaerel vanished from his seat right after saying that. The man had teleported to the entrance of their headquarters in an instant.

James was still standing in the same spot when he saw a middle-aged man appear next to the entrance. The elegant, friendly-looking man wore a blue long robe.

He greeted James smilingly, "What a pleasure to have the Great Elder of the Dooms visit us. Please, come with me."

Then, Gaerel led James to the main hall.

Upon entering the hall, James noticed that there were many strong, fit Ursa men waiting in the room as well. A small frown creased his forehead.

He turned his gaze toward Gaerel, who had returned to his seat. "Sir Gaerel, what is the meaning of this? You have so many of your men gathered in the main hall as well. Is this an act of challenge toward me?"

Gaerel let out a soft chuckle. “Of course not, Mr. Wyot. You are our guest of honor. My people and the Ursa elders are here to welcome you. All of you should offer your greetings now.”

“Welcome, Mr. Wyot.” The voices of those men rang across the room.

James curled his lips and began, “I’ll get straight to the point. I’ve come here today to acquire the Ursa’s token on Sir Youri’s orders.”

Upon hearing his words, most of the Ursa elders’ faces visibly darkened. One of those men stepped forward and pointed at James.

“Wyot Dalibor, who do you think you are?! Did you seriously think you can just come into our territory and say anything that you want?”

James looked at the man who was giving off an overpowering aura at that point.

‘I recognize him. He’s the Great Elder of the Ursa Race. He is also a very powerful and skilled fighter. Countless fighters on our side perished during the battle in the Primordial Realm because of this man.’ James thought.

James responded calmly, “I’m just here for the token. You can talk to Sir Youri if you have any complaints about this.”

The Almighty Dragon General Chapter 4320-James had no intention of getting into any fights with the Ursas. He quickly implied that he was only there to carry out Youri’s orders.

“Besides...”

James went on, “All of you must have received the news from the Dooms. Madam Thea of the Human Race is still alive. What’s more, that mysterious human has also been making frequent appearances during recent battles.

Humans have begun to take action. Our Patriarch, Sir Youri, has only very little time left.”

“It’s very important that Sir Youri obtain the Blithe Omniscience and achieve the Caelum Acme Rank as soon as possible. Once Sir Youri has reached that rank, he'll be able to keep those of the Human Race in check and buy more time for all the other races."

"However, if the humans managed to rise and gain power again, we would definitely have to suffer their wrath for what had happened in the past. I wonder if the Ursas will be able to stand a chance against the humans when that happens."

James calmly laid out the facts for them.

Gaerel had discussed the matter with the Patriarchs of the other races, and all of them had agreed to hand over their tokens to the Dooms.

'Still, I am feeling rather reluctant to hand over the token. My people feel the same as well.' Gaerel pondered.

"Wyot Dalibor, I can give you the token." Gaerel focused his gaze on the man from the search Doom Race. Then, he said slowly, "However, you have to fight and earn it."

"Huh?"

James looked at Gaerel. "So, you want to settle this through a fight? I know very well that I'm no match for Sir Gaerel. If defeating Sir Gaerel is the condition for you to give up the token, then I will head back and inform Sir Youri about this. I'm sure Sir Youri is willing to come and take you up on the challenge."

James brought up Youri's name again to intimidate the Ursas since the man had reached the Ninth Rank of the Omniscience Path.

"You're not going to fight with me, of course." Youri continued, "I've talked to the other patriarchs, and we all agree that only the Dooms and the humans stand a chance to rise to be the strongest group in the near future."

"We've noticed how the Human Race's providence has increased far more than the other races. At the same time, the Doom Race's providence has risen too."

"I'm not sure if it's you or Youri who has brought about the change. Nevertheless, it's rather risky for our people to give all our support to the Dooms now. If your people failed to defeat the humans later on, we would surely be targeted by the humans as well.”

James listened to Gaerel intently as the man went on explaining.

“You possess the Thousand Paths Holy Body, and you’ve mastered the Chaos Sacred Art. I have yet to grasp your full potential. Hence, I’m not sure if I should be placing my faith in you. If you want to have the Ursa’s token, you’ll need to pass the Nine Trials of the Ursa Race first.”

James furrowed his brows.

‘I need to pass nine trials to get a token? What about the other eight tokens? Do I have to go through another nine trials for each token?’ James complained inwardly.

Gaerel could tell what James was thinking just by looking at his face. ‘The other patriarchs and I have come to an agreement. If you agree to take on the trials, I’ll inform the other patriarchs and have them bring along their tokens. You’ll receive all nine tokens once you pass.’

‘That’s perfect.’

James smiled. “I can save a lot of time if we do that. I’m curious, though. What are the Nine Trials of the Ursa Race?”

Gaerel asked, “Have you heard of the Path of Heavenly Awakening?”

‘The Path of Heavenly Awakening?’ James’ eyes narrowed.

He could not recall anything like that in his own memory. However, he found some information when he tried to access Wyot’s memories instead.

James slowly nodded. “I’ve read about it before from the Doom Race’s ancient scrolls. It is a path that has existed since ancient times. According to legends, a person who manages to pass through the Path of Heavenly Awakening will have the potential to achieve the Caelum Acme Rank.”
