The Almighty Dragon General Chapter 4349-The Death-Celestial Sword was formed by Light of Acme after the death of ten or more Terra Acmeans. It commanded devastating power. However, James' Death- Celestial Sword was several levels below the Moonlit Sword.

"Is this the divine weapon of the Caelum Acme Rank?" James asked.

"Mm-hmm," Zella nodded and said, "Yes, it is indeed a Caelum Acmean divine weapon."

"Haah!" James took a deep breath.

Zella smiled and said, "Give it all you've got tomorrow. Treat the entire illusion as your search battlefield. My brother will wipe out all living beings in the illusion before the battle so that only you two remain and can fight without any restraints."

"That's for the best," James replied in relief. He could fight without limit and use his full strength during the battle with this arrangement.

"James, you're formidable and almost unimaginably strong. However, my brother is even stronger than you. You've recently just stepped into the Quasi Boundless Supreme Path Rank, while he has remained in this rank for a very long time. Your strength couldn't match his even within the Quasi Boundless Supreme Path Rank. It's only by the strength of your Ignis that you can barely compare to him."

Regarding this point, James was not surprised. Someone who could defeat peerless powerhouses in the same rank as him from the Sky Burial Age was definitely not one to be trifled with.

"My brother's signature Supernatural Power is formidable too, and even more terrifying than renowned martial art skills like the Blithe Omniscience and the Chaos Sacred Art. In this battle, you cannot afford to be careless. You'll lose if you become complacent," Zella warned.

She was very afraid that James' complacency or emotional entanglements with his rival could lead to his defeat in this battle.

“I won’t be careless,” James said solemnly.

As the battle loomed, he felt his blood boiling with excitement. Just the thought of the upcoming fight caused the calm blood in his veins to surge and an incredibly dreadful battle intent rose within him.

“It’s too bad that you don’t have the Blithe Omniscience with you. Despite discovering the Nine Voices of Chaos, you’ve only comprehended three voices so far. If you had mastered all nine voices at this time, your chances of defeating my brother would have been around seventy percent,” Zella said before leaving the place.

James remained standing in place, waiting for the next dawn to arrive.

In the evening, he sensed that all the living beings in this world disappeared in an instant. It was Wynton who had cleared away all the living beings in this world.

The next day, at the peak of Mount Yaneiri, Wynton stood there in a white robe with his hands behind his back and his gaze peering into the distance.

Atop another mountain range in the distance, stood a man in a black robe. It was James. James had reached the Omniscience Path’s Eighth Stage at that moment, and his aura was formidable.

Beside him stood Zella. Zella looked at James and said, “ James, I’ll be leaving soon. You’ll be on your own for the battle, but there are some things I wanted to tell you before I go-

James looked at Zella and said, “Go ahead.”

Zella responded, “The things I’m about to tell you are just a few words of advice since I managed to get a glimpse into the future.”

She came to James’ side as she spoke. Between her hands, mysterious inscriptions appeared in her palm. These inscriptions floated toward James and he took them from her.

“Now, don’t open and read the inscriptions I left for you.

Safely keep these inscriptions away for the future. You can open them when you find yourself in a desperate situation. They might be of some help to you,” Zella said before disappearing from the area.

These inscriptions were created by her before all this happened. It seemed that she had known she would be trapped in the illusion one day. Even before the illusion appeared, she had left these inscriptions behind.

The Almighty Dragon General Chapter 4350-Zella had left. She sacrificed herself to leave the illusion. At this moment, only James and Wynton remained in the illusory world.

Wynton donned a white robe that remained unblemished and immaculate. With his hands behind his back, he exuded an air of composure and self-assurance. His expression remained calm even though James was a talented opponent, a true powerhouse.

His composure and tranquility were part of his personality, but they were also developed through countless battles. He remained unruffled and grounded no matter who he faced.

James put away the inscriptions left by Zella. He emitted a white search halo, exuding a sense of divinity.

They both stood at the peaks of their respective mountains, gazing at each other, neither making the first move. Their auras were already entwined even though they had not moved from their spot.

Two powerful auras stirred the winds and clouds, causing the ever-changing sky to shift rapidly in response to their growing strength.

BOOM!

Finally, a violent explosion echoed through the void. The space around them could no longer bear the force of their explosive auras. After the explosion, the void ruptured, but the rifts in the space did not spread. This was because they were in an illusion, and their power was not enough to completely dispel it.

It was right then that James made his move.

With a step on the void, he appeared in front of Wynton in the next instant. His fist glowed with white light and struck fiercely at Wynton's head. However, his fist was abruptly stopped just a foot away from Wynton's head.

Wynton's aura was too powerful, leaking out and forming an invisible protective barrier. James could not breakthrough Wynton's aura barrier even though he had entered the Omniscience Path's Eighth Stage and activated his own Chaos Power.

Both of them were in the Quasi Boundless Supreme Path Rank, but James lacked experience. On the other hand, Wynton had once spent a long time in this rank.

The word boundless means infinite. In terms of power, there was still a considerable gap between them.

James exerted all his strength, but his fist could not land.

The space around his fist instantly ruptured, revealing thousands of cracks.

There were also numerous spatial fissures around Wynton's body.

These cracks kept appearing and repairing themselves.

Wynton stood still without moving an inch.

In this state, James' power was still not enough to compel him to fight.

"Where's your Ignis?" Wynton remained composed and said, "Our strength still remains different even though you've entered the Quasi Boundless Supreme Path Rank. You'll need to use the Ignis to barely bridge that gap."

"Your strength is insane," James muttered under his breath, quickly retreating.

In the instant of his retreat, he activated the Ignis within his body. The Ignis, which had been hidden deep in his elixir field, instantly spread throughout his limbs and bones.

James' body emitted a blaze of white light, which extended two or three meters high. With the white search halo and the white flames surrounding him, he was now empowered by the Ignis, making him even stronger and further enhancing his aura.

Standing in the distant void, James flexed his muscles, sensing the immense power surging within his body. A confident expression adorned his face.

This was his strongest state at this rank. He would admit defeat if his strength was not enough to overpower Wynton.

Sensing James' aura and his newfound strength, Wynton smiled and said, "It's getting interesting now."

He made his move immediately. In an instant, his body appeared right in front of James.
