The Almighty Dragon General Chapter 4554-Among the thousand or so powerhouses from the Daemonium Sect, only one was a Caelum Acmean. Moreover, he was only at the early stage of the Caelum Acme Rank.

Even with just his physical strength, James could easily kill him. However, he worried the group would send an emergency signal to the Daemonium Sect while they fought.

He would be at a huge disadvantage if more powerhouses from the Daemonium Sect were to show up.

Boom!!!

While James was thinking of a solution, the Daemonium Sect's Guardian suddenly attacked the formation.

A deafening sound permeated the air.

The void outside of the formation was instantly shattered, and countless cracks spread in the space.

Waleria had set up the formation while severely injured.

Despite that, the formation had terrifying defense power, and even the Daemonium Sect's attack could not break it instantly.

Although the formation was not destroyed, cracks had formed throughout it. With just a few more blows, it might come crashing down.

James knew he could not let the Daemonium Sect's

Guardian continue the attack and immediately chose to reveal himself.

Swoosh!!!

A light ray emerged before the formation, and James appeared.

"Who are you?" The Daemonium Sect's powerhouses stared at James in shock and backed away. They instantly summoned their weapons and looked at James warily.

James looked at them indifferently and said, "What do you mean by this? I've set up a formation here to cultivate in seclusion but am suddenly under attack."

The Guardian looked at James and asked, "You? Are you the one that set up the formation here?"

James replied, "Who else were you expecting?"

The Guardian examined James from head to toe and tried to sense his cultivation base.

However, James' bloodline power had already been sealed away. Moreover, he was unable to use his Path Powers. Therefore, the Guardian could not determine James' cultivation rank. Despite that, he could sense an explosive power within James' body.

The Guardian knew that James would be a challenging opponent. Instead of a confrontation, he clasped his fists and said, "I'm the Daemonium Sect's Guardian. I've been ordered to hunt down an enemy. I suspect my target is hiding within this formation. How about you open the formation and allow me to perform a quick search? I'll leave instantly if the person I'm looking for isn't here."

“Haha!” James burst out laughing.

“Ridiculous! I set up a formation here to cultivate, so how can I just let you enter as you please? Leave instantly, or I won’t hold back against you.”

James had no intention of fighting the group from the Daemonium Sect.

Even though the powerhouses before him were easy opponents, the Daemoinium Sect was powerful in the Theos District and had many powerful members. They were even bold enough to go after Waleria, who was from the Theos Sect.

James knew offending the Daemonium Sect would land himself in trouble.

“What if I insist on searching the area?” The Guardians’ expression darkened, and a powerful aura rose from his body.

“Go ahead and try.” James took a step forward.

“You must have a death wish!” The Guardian was furious.

He appeared before James in a flash and swung his fist at James. His attack contained terrifying power. Even the surrounding void could not withstand the force and began to shatter.

James fearlessly raised his fist to block the attack.

Boom!

The two fists clashed.

The impact caused a massive shock wave to spread like water ripples, destroying everything in its path.

James backed up and appeared at the formation's border.

Meanwhile, the Guardian was blasted away as he spurted out blood. As he retreated, the terrifying force shattered the void behind him.

Even with James' physical strength, he was more powerful than an ordinary Caelum Acmean.
