The Almighty Dragon General Chapter 4651-‘That’s the signature skill created by Yardos Xagorari from the Welkin District.’

Yair recognized the Blithe Omniscience. He heaved a deep sigh and muttered in a low voice, “Who would’ve guessed that Yardos’ successor had joined the Tempris House?”

Meanwhile, Eamon stood rooted where he stopped. He was overwhelmed by the intense pain in his back where he had just received that powerful blow. He began coughing and spluttering blood due to the severe internal injuries.

On the other hand, James appeared utterly unfazed.

The man had awakened the Thousand Paths Holy Body and entered the late stage within the Ninth Rank of Omniscience Path. Even when James did not use the Omniscience Path, his sheer strength alone was enough for him to overpower cultivators in the late stage of the Caelum Acme Rank.

“You’re too weak.”

James slowly shook his head. ‘You might have reached the late stage of Caelum Acme Rank, but you hadn’t once achieved Boundlessness during your cultivation and training. You’re no match for me.’

Eamon’s expression darkened as he listened to James’ words.

‘I never thought that guy would be this strong. I even checked his cultivation rank before the battle! He’s only at the Permanence Acme Rank. How on earth does a Permanence Acmean possess such great powers?!’ Eamon worried.

“Aargh!” Suddenly, Eamon lifted his head and shouted out loud.

The people around the arena could sense a sharp increase in Eamon’s aura. The man had used some sort of Supernatural Power to boost his aura and powers temporarily.

James moved at that very moment. He unleashed the Blithe Omniscience and appeared right before Eamon. Then, he threw a powerful swing at Eamon’s abdomen. Eamon was sent flying in the air the next instant. Before he could steady himself, Eamon spotted James appearing next to him again from the corner of his vision.

Within the next several seconds, James continued to strike Eamon with swift and heavy blows. Eamon tried his best to defend and counter James' attacks but was to no avail.

With every hit he had received, Eamon could feel his energy draining from his body.

Soon enough, the audience watched as Eamon fell onto the arena with a loud thud. His clothes were bloodied and torn. They could also see that the man's body was now completely covered in wounds and bruises.

As Eamon lay motionless on the floor, James walked out of the arena unhurriedly with his hands on his back. He eventually stopped before the Leinde brothers, who were staring at him with their jaws dropped. He lifted his brows. "Why are you guys looking at me like that? Let's go!"

Westley snapped to his senses and gave James a thumbs-up. "James, you were amazing! Even Eamon from the Zastr House stood no chance against you!"

Two ladies from the Tempris House came over and joined the three men after watching the battle.

Xenia nodded. "He's right. Your skills and powers were impeccable."

"We finally have a budding talent in our house now!" The other lady whose name was Sundeya Dalos exclaimed cheerfully.

She placed her hands around James' arm. "I'll cook up something nice for you once we get back to our house grounds."

Soon, James and the group of students from the Tempris House left the arena.

It took quite some time after James had exited the arena for Eamon to regain some strength and get back on his feet.

‘That was crazy!’

“James Caden is super strong!”

“I’m very much looking forward to the Headmaster’s return now. Once he’s back, we’ll get to see the battle between James and Wynona Yorrū. That’ll surely be a thrilling fight.”

“I wonder which of them is stronger?”

“It’s impossible to tell for now. James Caden hasn’t shown us much of his skills and abilities. On the other hand, Wynona Yorrū has been in closed-door meditation for several epochs. She even cultivates on the Boundless Rock. No one knows how much she has improved so far.”

The crowd couldn’t stop discussing James and his coming battle with Wynona.

After James had returned to his quarters and was finally alone, he set up a formation around his room. Then, he took out the ancient scroll he had won from the battle earlier and started looking through it.

The Almighty Dragon General Chapter 4652-James had noticed that the words and language used in the ancient scroll were rather unique and old when he had taken a previous look.

He might have mastered the Primal Mantra and obtained the ability to understand almost every language, but James was only able to decipher bits and pieces of the ancient scroll when he scanned through it earlier. Still, he was able to tell that the ancient scroll was a record of Emperor Raiah’s past.

If it was not for Zeno, James might not have shown this much interest in information about Emperor Raiah. That strange, old monk he had met in the Theos District had informed him about Emperor Raiah’s existence. James even found out that Wynne Dalganus was Emperor Raiah’s close friend and subordinate.

Now that he was left all by himself, James could finally concentrate on deciphering the ancient scroll. It took him quite some time to fully understand its contents. James was able to find some details about Emperor Raiah’s life and history from the scroll. Emperor Raiah's real name was Seraiah Grantis. There was no precise information on Seraiah's date of birth.

Seraiah was born an ordinary person. By chance, he began his life and journey as a cultivator. However, Seraiah's training and improvement were slow and uneventful as he did not possess any unusual talents for cultivation. Despite that, he managed to train and accomplish great things in his cultivation journey by putting in a lot of effort.

According to the contents of the scroll, the concept of the Ten Districts did not exist at the beginning of the Endlos. Instead, numerous ancient forces and sanctuaries could be found across innumerable universes. The Endlos was constantly in war and havoc.

After Emperor Raiah had gained superior powers and abilities, he traveled across the Endlos and exterminated countless evil forces. As he brought peace to the Endlos, Emperor Raiah also divided the realm into ten districts. The segregation of these districts was even maintained to this day.

After the creation of the ten districts, Emperor Raiah mysteriously vanished without a trace. As time went on, people gradually forgot about the existence of this powerful and prominent figure.

James could not help but wonder, 'I never expected to find that it was actually Emperor Raiah who had created and named the ten districts.

'However, why did a man like him suddenly disappear?

Where would he have gone?'

James recalled Zeno's final remarks. He muttered under his breath, "Could it be that something bizarre or shocking had happened in the Endlos back then?"

Just then, James heard the sound of someone knocking on his door. He stored the ancient scroll away securely and undid the formation. Then, he let the person into his room.

Wael was all smiles as he entered through the door. “You did amazingly, James! People have been telling me about how you easily defeated Eamon from the Zastr House upon my return. I am so proud to have you as my disciple!”

James gave him a sidelong glance. “I only agreed to join the Tempris House. I never said anything about becoming your disciple.”

James had no intention of becoming anyone’s disciple. He had also rejected Waleria’s proposal when she tried to ask James to join the Theos Sect.

“Hehe. That’s alright. Having you as a member of the Tempris House is more than enough.”

The Almighty Dragon General Chapter 4653-Wael sat down on a chair. He stroked his beard and said cheerily, “All these years, I’ve dreamed of making the Tempris House a reputable and highly sought-after institute once again. Sadly, no one was willing to join our house because of my past mistake. Since you’ve joined us, I am starting to see hope for us once more. I’ve decided to pass over the position of Head of Tempris House to you.”

James hurriedly shook his head. “Sir Wael, you shouldn’t do that! You can’t!”

James had joined the Tempris House since he needed a safe and peaceful place to concentrate on his cultivation and training. He did not want to be bothered with the duties and responsibilities of managing an institution.

Wael snapped at him, “You should leap at this opportunity, young man! Do you have any idea the pressure I’m under trying to make you the next head of the Tempris House? Can you imagine how much work I have to do? Elders from the other houses are all eyeing this position!”

James tried to steer the conversation away from this topic. He asked, “Sir Wael, have you ever heard of Emperor Raiah? His real name is Seraiah Grantis.”

“Emperor Raiah? Seraiah Grantis?” After a short pause, Wael shook his head, “Who’s that? Is he a famous powerhouse?”

James narrowed his eyes. “You know about Wynne

Dalganus, the Sword Demon. Yet, why haven't you heard of Emperor Raiah?"

Wael gave a slight shrug. "Wynne Dalganus was a cultivator who had left an impressive and long-lasting mark on the Endlos' history. Although he has long passed, his philosophy and skills continued to influence countless generations of sword cultivators after him. Many cultivators wish to visit the place where he stored his sword, the Dalganus Sword, to get a good look at it."

James tapped on his jaw.

'That can't be right. Zeno said Wynne Dalganus was Emperor Raiah's friend and subordinate. Yet, why do people only know about Wynne Dalganus but not of Seraiah Grantis?' James was confused as he thought about it.

Since Wael did not seem to know much about Emperor Raiah, James decided not to drag the conversation. He politely suggested, "If that is all, you should get going then, Sir Wael. I'm planning to train for a while."

"James, you should reconsider being the head of the Tempris House. If you are up for it, I'll do everything in my power to help you earn the position!" Wael persuaded.

"Nah! I'm not interested." James refused adamantly. He truly had no desire to take over Wael's position.

'There are a lot of perks to being the head of a house in the Verde Academy, though. Even if they were to abolish the Tempris House someday, the herb gardens found in our spiritual mountains would still be under your ownership. We also have numerous books and archives of various signature skills in the library. Once you agree to be the head, they are all yours!

"Also, you'll make a name for yourself in the Verde District if you become the head of the Tempris House. People will treat you with utmost respect no matter where you go!

"Most importantly, do you know what's the most powerful Supernatural Power the Verde Academy possesses?"

'The founding father of the Verde District had left a sacred scroll in our possession. All along, only the heads of the houses will receive the opportunity to read the sacred scroll. Regrettably, no one has been able to fully comprehend the contents of the scroll to this day. Aren't you curious about what's contained in the sacred scroll?"

James was intrigued by Wael's final remarks about the sacred scroll. He asked, "Do you know what's written inside the sacred scroll?"

Wael shook his head. 'The only thing I am certain of is that we've had the scroll since the moment the Verde Academy was established. Moreover, I've heard that the other eight districts also have one of these scrolls. They were likely left behind by a superior cultivator. Unfortunately, no one could confirm the origin of these scrolls since there were no records about them.'

James' eyes shone with excitement. "I get to see the sacred scroll if I become the head of the Tempris House?"

'That's right.' Wael beamed widely. "I'll do my best to assist you in becoming the next head. Also, you'll need to defeat Wynona Yurro in the coming battle."

"Alright. I'll do it."

James nodded firmly. He had agreed to Wael's offer purely for the sake of the sacred scroll.

Wael let out a sigh of relief. "After handing over the position to you, perhaps I'll leave the Tempris House and embark on a new journey. It might just be what I need to get out of my slump."

The Almighty Dragon General Chapter 4654-Wael was considered one of the top cultivators of the Verde Academy. The man was even deemed a genius cultivator who had shown the greatest potential in achieving the Chaos Rank in the Verde District.

Unfortunately, he committed a grave mistake in the past. Since then, Wael had been tormented by his internal conflicts and inner demons. Not only did he not make any progress in his cultivation, but Wael had also noticed signs of his powers regressing.

Therefore, Wael planned to make James the next head of the Tempris House. After the transition, he could then embark on a journey with the hopes of finding solace for his personal issues.

“We are not sure when the Headmaster will return. Once he is back, he’ll officiate the battle between you and Wynona. You should prepare yourself for the time being. Wynona Yurro is not an easy opponent.”

After sharing that advice, Wael got up and left the room to give James privacy. A short while later, James cast a formation around his room to keep his aura contained within the space. Then, he also set up a time formation.

James began absorbing the Acme-grade herbs to grow and improve his bloodline power. He had no idea how much time had passed since he was focused on his cultivation.

After some time, James detected slight movement outside his formation. He stopped training and removed the formations around his room. In an instant, he sensed that 300 years had gone by in the outside world since he started refining the herbs.

Someone opened the door and came in the next instant. It was Wael again.

The elderly man had a bright smile on his face. “How did your training go?”

“It went well,” James replied cheerfully.

After awakening the Thousand Paths Holy Body and reaching the late stage in the Ninth Rank of Omniscience Path, James’ spiritual powers had grown substantially as well. He could tell that even his spiritual powers had entered the late stage of Caelum Acme Rank, just like his bloodline power. On the surface, his cultivation rank still remained the same as before.

“That’s wonderful news.”

Wael continued, “Our Headmaster has returned to Verde Academy, and is waiting at the main hall now. I’m here to take you there right now.”

Wael grabbed James by the arm and dragged him along.

Soon enough, both of them arrived inside the hall. James could see over hundreds of cultivators had gathered in the main hall. Most of them were incredible and well-known powerhouses from the Five Houses of the Verde Academy.

A sagely-looking elderly gentleman stood at the center of the stage. He was the Verde Academy's Headmaster, Lothar Qoreto.

"That's James Caden!"

"Mhm. Even Eamon Jezekiel from the Zastr House was no match for him."

There were soft murmurs among the crowd as soon as James entered the main hall. A lady in a pink dress standing just a few steps away from Lothar silently directed her gaze at James as well.

"Sir Lothar, I've brought James Caden here." Wael bowed to Lothar slightly.

"Thanks." Lothar nodded. "Since everyone is already here, I'll briefly explain the rules of the battle."

James and the young lady in pink turned their attention toward Lothar.

"Contenders are allowed to use any signature skills, weapons, and tactics during the battle. Still, both parties must exercise respect and demonstrate good sportsmanship at all times.

"If any one of the contenders admits defeat during the match, the other person has to stop their attack immediately. Those who do not adhere to the rules will be severely punished.

"Alright. Let's head to the arena now."

When James and the group of cultivators had made it to the arena, they could see that many students had shown up at the venue as well.

"Good luck, James!"

"James, we're counting on you!"

The Almighty Dragon General Chapter 4655-James spotted the four students from the Tempris House. The group of them was cheering him on from the audience in high spirits.

“Watch out for the Caelandor. The sword once belonged to Sir Lothar,” Wael muttered to James in a low voice.

James gave a slight nod. Then, he teleported and reappeared on one side of the arena. The other woman teleported to the other side of the arena right opposite James.

Her long, black hair fell over her back. Even though her face was expressionless all this time, she still exuded an aura of grace and elegance.

‘Who do you think will win the battle?’

‘Wynona Yurro, of course! She’s a legend in the Verde Academy. The Headmaster highly values her abilities and even gifted her the Caelandor Sword.’

“We haven’t seen her join any battles for epochs. I wonder how much she has grown in terms of power and skills.”

“She must have improved way ahead of her peers by manyfold after having trained on the Boundless Rock for so long. I think only the senior students may stand a chance against her in battle.”

“Nevertheless, James doesn’t seem like an easy opponent.” On the other hand, several male students were on their feet and cheering for Wynona.

‘You can do it, Wynona!’

“Show him what you’ve got!”

Although the sounds of people cheering and chattering filled the arena, the tension between James and Wynona continued to build up as they stared at each other.

James appeared calm and composed as he stood with his hands on his back. Neither Wynona’s beauty nor her reputation in the Verde Academy had affected him in the slightest.

‘You can start first.’

James heard the lady speak for the very first time. He gestured with one hand and said politely, "I believe it's only right that I let the lady take the first move."

'I know both of us are currently at the same cultivation rank. I heard that she had achieved the Boundless state in the Quasi Acme Rank. Moreover, she perfected the Boundless state in the Permanence Acme Rank even more than I did.

'Still, I'm pretty confident about my powers. I can defeat almost any opponent within and below the Permanence Acme Rank.' James thought.

"Ha!" Wynona chuckled softly. The lady reacted as though she had heard a silly joke from James. Just then, the hem of Wynona's skirt swayed a little even though the wind was not blowing.

She had not moved an inch. However, an immense wave of aura radiated from Wynona and headed in James' direction. Her aura was so powerful and destructive that it crushed the space along its trajectory.

Normally, the ordinary Caelum Acme Rank cultivators would not be able to destroy space with their auras alone in the central areas of the Verde District. That was because these places were maintained by very strong and stable Heavenly Paths.

To everyone's amazement, Wynona had displayed auras that were strong enough to do that.

"What an incredible aura!"

"As expected of Wynona Yorrú! It seems all that time she's spent training on the Boundless Rock has paid off extremely well!"

Expressions of joy and approval could be seen on the elders' faces. They took pride in witnessing the birth of a genius cultivator like Wynona among the students of the Verde Academy.

On the other hand, James merely stared at Wynona as her aura washed over him. He did not try to shield himself or deflect Wynona's aura with another attack. Even though the space around him started crumbling due to the impact, James appeared fine and completely unscathed.

“Aren’t you going too easy on me, Ms. Wynona? I wouldn’t be standing here today if this level of attack was enough to harm me.”

James took a few steps forward. As he was moving, the space around him was miraculously restored to its original state through the powers of James’ Paths.

“Interesting.” A faint smile played across Wynona’s lips.
