The Almighty Dragon General Chapter 4717-The students' eyes were all glued to the inscription floating in mid-air.

They could observe a complete Path contained within the inscription.

It even demonstrated strength equivalent to the Caelum Acme Rank.

"Sir James, please do that one more time.

It was all over before I got a good look at it!" "I take back what I just said, Sir James.

You're definitely qualified enough to teach us." "Sir James, how did you manage to transform the Path and release Caelum Acme Rank power?" Various questions and requests were suddenly raised by the various students.

A faint smile played across James' lips.

'Heh! Demonstrating this simple technique is easier than breathing to me.

Most of the students here haven't even gotten close to reaching the Quasi Acme Rank.

The knowledge I have is enough to help these guys deepen their understanding of their own cultivation.' James thought.

James put on a serious expression.

"Everyone, look closely this time.

Also, the contents of my lecture are considered highly classified information belonging to the Tempris House.

None of you are allowed to disclose this information to anyone else.

Those who break the rules will be punished severely." After he had reminded the students, James focused on demonstrating his technique once more.

He extracted a piece of Path from his surroundings on a whim.

Then, James used his powers to reduce the path into an inscription of the simplest form.

As the inscription began transforming and started exuding Caelum Acme Rank power, James explained the changes happening to the Path and inscription simultaneously, and the logic behind it.

Some of the students there had been stuck in the same cultivation rank for an extended amount of time.

After listening to James' explanation, these students gained a better understanding and insight into the areas of cultivation that they were lacking.

Just then, there was a shift in the air as some students emanated an enhanced aura.

The group of them had made a breakthrough and advanced into the next cultivation rank as they listened to James' lecture.

Some of the Quasi Acme Rank cultivators even entered the Permanence Acme Rank right after.

After that, James also taught the students several basic cultivation methods from the Primal Mantra.

With those techniques, the students would be able to make simple yet essential modifications to inscriptions.

If they were to come across complicated, high- level inscriptions, they could use these methods to break down and decipher them.

In addition, James shared some knowledge from the Blood Mantra with the students.

Among the things he shared were ways to increase one's bloodline power and blood energy.

Even though James' lecture session lasted for less than a hundred years, each student who attended the event had gained a great amount of knowledge and new learnings.

By the end of James' lecture, almost everyone had entered a higher cultivation rank.

Some of them even managed to advance through the ranks more than once.

After the lecture was over, word got out about how the Tempris House students had achieved amazing improvements in their cultivation.

“You guys should have attended Sir James’ lecture session! Initially, I was only at the peak of the Nine- Power Macrocosm Ancestral God Rank.

After listening to Sir James’ lecture, I managed to enter the Quasi Acme Rank in less than a century.” “Sir James was truly incredible!” “T see now why he has been appointed as the Head of the Tempris House.

He has the skills and knowledge to hold the position well.” “Ts that so? What did Sir James teach you all during the lecture?” “Sir James has instructed us not to disclose the contents of the lecture session to anyone else.

I can’t stay here much longer.

I plan to conduct a closed-door meditation and enter the true Acme Rank within the next million years.” “We wish to request another lecture session from Sir James!” More and more students heard the positive feedback from the attendees of James’ lecture.

They eventually launched a petition in hopes of getting James to hold another lecture session.

Meanwhile, Xenia had dropped by to see James at the main spiritual mountain.

The lady beamed widely.

“Sir James, all of the Tempris House students wish to listen to another lecture of yours soon.” James sat sprawled on a chair.

“Don’t mind them.

I don’t plan on imparting more knowledge anytime soon.”

The Almighty Dragon General Chapter 4718-James had expected this type of reaction from the students, and he decided beforehand not to respond to their requests for the time being.

‘with the positive reviews about my lecture circulating among the students, most of them would choose to remain with us as they look forward to the next lecture session.

Moreover, we might be able to attract talented external powerhouses by using the possibility that I’ll be lecturing to them too.’ James concluded inwardly.

Xenia thought for a bit and gave a slight nod.

“Alright.

I’ll get going then.” The lady bowed and excused herself, leaving James all by himself.

Soon afterward , James headed out to a quiet, deserted area within the Tempris House grounds.

‘I don’t have anything to do at the moment.

Waleria, Saachi, and Wynton have all gone into seclusion.

I just finished my meditation after an epoch.

I don’t feel like cultivating again so soon.’ James mused to himself.

The man sat on a flat boulder and stared absently into space day after day.

Whoosh! A faint, greenish beam of light shot down from the sky and landed in front of James.

Gradually, something seemed to take shape before James’ eyes.

A few seconds later, an elderly man in a green robe stepped out of the beam of light.

James got to his feet.

“Sir Lothar, what brings you here today?” Lothar beamed warmly at James.

The elderly gentleman was very pleased that James had accepted the position as the Head of the Tempris House.

Even though James was only at the Permanence Acme Rank, the young man had nonetheless demonstrated great potential and leadership.

"I have a task for you, James." "Oh? May I know what it is about?" James asked curiously.

Lothar said, "You just took over as the Head of the Tempris House not too long ago.

You should do something to boost your credibility and image among the students.

All along, we have been facing the threats of numerous evil, unscrupulous clans or organizations in the Verde District.

It is one of the Verde Academy's missions that we try to stop and eradicate these criminal organizations." "A very long time ago, the members of the Verde Academy had carried out a major operation to eliminate as many of these criminal organizations as we could.

Regrettably, those who got away bonded together afterward and created a new organization called the Malvada Sect.

During recent years, the Malvada Sect has been causing disorder and turmoil in various universes around us." Lothar finally brought up the purpose of his visit.

"I want you to bring an end to this organization, the Malvada Sect, once and for all." James had been listening attentively.

"Is the Malvada Sect a powerful group?" "Yes, of course." Lothar explained, "However if you were to bring Waleria Zavee with you, the two of you should be able to find a way to eradicate this organization.

It's a tough mission, but it's not entirely impossible." James had a pensive look in his eyes as he fell silent for a moment.

Then, he asked, "Can I refuse to accept the task?" Lothar tried to persuade him.

“This is a good opportunity for you, James.

You’ll be able to boost the Tempris House’s fame and reputation if you manage to dismantle the Malvada Sect.

Numerous cultivators will flock to your doorstep once they learn of the news.”

“Can I take a look at the information we have about the Malvada Sect first? I need some time to consider before making my decision.” James had only joined the Tempris House to train in peace.

He did not want to get involved in matters that might turn out to be extremely dangerous or risky.

Lothar produced a scroll and held it out toward James.

“Here.

Take a look at it.

I won’t force you to take up the mission.

If you decide not to do it, P’ll send someone from another house instead.”

Lothar teleported and vanished from the spot the next instant.

James started reading the scroll, which detailed the origin and background of the Malvada Sect.

The information on the current leader of the Malvada Sect was also included.

Her name was Zula Waconte.

The Almighty Dragon General Chapter 4719-Zula was an impressive cultivator with terrifying powers.

She had already entered the Quasi Chaos Rank.

James could also find information on several core members of the Malvada Sect.

Their names and cultivation ranks were recorded in the scroll as well.

After he had finished looking at the scroll, James had a rough idea of the Malvada Sect's current status and influence.

He couldn't help but feel slightly disheartened as he tried to consider whether they had any chance of defeating the Malvada Sect.

'In terms of power and influence, the Malvada Sect is almost similar to the Yhala Sect or the Daemonium Sect from the Theos District.

The Malvada Sect is probably even more powerful than the Daemonium Sect since the latter doesn't have any cultivators of the Quasi Chaos Rank.

'Honestly, I don't think we have enough manpower to fight against the Malvada Sect.

The Tempris House is still rather weak in terms of our students' powers and capabilities.

It won't be enough even if we have Waleria's help.

'Let's put this matter on hold for now.

Once Waleria has finished her meditation, I'll see her and ask for her opinion.

If she's willing to join me in taking down the Malvada Sect, then perhaps we can try to figure out a plan to do it.' James thought.

After James had stored the scroll, he decided to conduct another closed-door meditation.

He put up a time formation around him.

Then, James focused his attention on his cultivation.

With the aid of the Tenfold Realms Transcendent Sutra, James was able to improve his strength and powers quickly.

Since James had trained for an extended amount of time in the Boundless state of the Permanence Acme Rank, the man had achieved an incredible level of enlightenment within that rank.

James pondered, 'Should I advance to the Terra Acme Rank now? My physical body and bloodline power have reached their most optimum condition at the Permanence Acme Rank.

If I level up now, I will be able to train and develop my physical condition again to become even stronger.' James had a deep and extensive understanding of the Path.

He could decide exactly when he wanted to advance to the next Acme Rank at that point.

He manipulated the Greater Paths and began working on his leveling up.

In a matter of minutes, James had entered the Terra Acme Rank.

He could instantly sense a boost in his strength.

James also detected some slight improvement in his body and his bloodline power.

At long last, he was able to train and increase the powers of his physical body again.

A short while later, James ended his meditation and removed the time formation.

He instantly detected that less than a hundred thousand years had passed in the outside world.

James also detected Waleria's aura as he released his senses to his surroundings.

He teleported and traveled toward the direction where her aura was coming from.

In a flash, James had arrived outside the manor where Waleria was staying.

Waleria had absorbed the powers of the Path Fruit and completed her meditation by then.

The lady was sitting on the ledge of the walls erected around the cozy manor, staring off into the distance.

She turned her gaze toward James and said flatly, “I thought you would remain in the Boundless state of the Permanence Acme Rank for much longer.

So, you’ve decided to advance to the next stage, huh?” James leaped onto the ledge and sat down next to Waleria.

“I’ve been using the time formation and a special cultivation method to train on my previous cultivation rank.

It’s about time for me to move on to the next stage.” “Oh, I see...” Waleria let out a sigh.

“I feel so bored.

There’s nothing much for me to do other than my training.” James’ brows lifted.

“How about you and I do something fun?” “Go away!” Waleria slapped James on the back so hard that he fell off the ledge and landed on his stomach.

“Don’t even think about it, James!” James grimaced in pain.

‘I was about to suggest we hunt down the members of the Malvada Sect.

What did she think I was going to say? Don’t tell me it’s about having babies again?!’ James wondered.

The Almighty Dragon General Chapter 4720-James could feel a headache coming as he scoffed inwardly at the thought. Despite that, he slowly got up from the ground and climbed up the ledge again.

Before Waleria could throw another punch at him, James quickly explained, “Wait! It isn’t what you think it is! It’s not about babies!”

Waleria’s hand stopped in mid-air. The lady lowered her arm and asked nonchalantly, “What is it, then?”

James sat down on the ledge again. “Have you heard of the Malvada Sect before?”

Waleria nodded. "Mhm. It is one of the major evil forces that plague the Verde District."

James suggested, "Why don't we try to take down the Malvada Sect?"

"Sure! Why not!" Waleria responded in an excited voice.

"I haven't gotten the chance to have a proper fight ever since I've regained my full powers. Back when I lost the fight to Yvan Xorath at the Theos District, the incident caused great, irreversible damage to my reputation and image. Now that I've entered the Quasi Chaos Rank, I'll prove myself to everyone again by winning a huge battle this time!"

Previously, Waleria and Yvan were both on the Caelum Boundless Rank. However, Yvan had trained and perfected his skills much better than Waleria in that cultivation stage.

Although there wasn't a clear winner produced from the battle between those two, Waleria believed she had lost since she had suffered a lot more injuries than Yvan by the end of the battle.

A huge sense of relief washed over James as Waleria accepted the proposal. "In that case, I'll meet with Sir Lothar and tell him that we'll carry out the mission."

"Yeap! Go and see him now!" Waleria waved her hand dismissively.

Two elderly gentlemen were seated facing each other in a secluded area of the Verdett House. Both were staring hard at the chessboard placed between them.

Parthias Qavek, the Great Elder of the Verdett House, held a chess piece in his hand as he pondered about his next move. The man was considered the second strongest cultivator in the Verde Academy.

Parthias began, "Yardos Xagorari seems to have ended his training and meditation recently. He had failed to overpower the leader of the Welkin District in the past. However, the recent battle between Yardos and the District Leader of the Welkin District ended with a tie."

The headmaster of the Verde Academy and the head of the Verdett House, Lothar, nodded slowly. "I never imagined that the person who had entered the Chaos Rank just recently would turn out to be Yardos Xagorari. Yardos and the leader of the Welkin District are quite evenly matched. However, the latter could never beat Yardos when it came to the skills of escapism."

"Mhm. The Blithe Omniscience is truly a strange and remarkable technique."

"By the way, is James Caden related to Yardos in any way? He could wield the Blithe Omniscience. Though some cultivators do practice the Omniscience Path, I've not heard anything about Yardos teaching someone else the knowledge of the Blithe Omniscience so far."

While Lothar and Parthias were discussing the recent happenings of the Welkin District, James materialized a few steps away from them.

"Hello, Sir Lothar and Sir Parthias." James greeted the elderly men respectfully.

Lothar pointed at a chair near their table. "Come. Have a seat."

James walked toward the pair and took a seat.

"James, I have something to ask you about." Lothar fixed his gaze on James.

"Oh? What is it about?" James met Lothar's eyes.

Lothar asked, "What is your relationship with Yardos Xagorari, who originates from Mount Blithe in the Welkin District? How come you have the knowledge of the Blithe Omniscience, which Yardos has never shared with anyone else?"

"Um... About that..."

James furrowed his brows.

'I never thought Lothar would ask about this straight to my face. How should I answer this? I can't possibly tell them that we are actually human cultivators from the Chaos District...' James pondered.

“What’s the matter? Is it something you can’t share with us?” Parthias was staring at James too.
