The Almighty Dragon General Chapter 4778-Soon enough, James' muscles and skin were fully regenerated as he conducted the closed-door meditation within the time formation.

However, the injuries caused by the Heavenly Path still remained in various parts of his body.

It would require a long time for James to heal all those injuries.

As James was treating his injuries, he was also thinking back to the entire process of the Heavenly Tribulation.

The incident had brought upon a great enlightenment in him.

James began to generate and develop a complex formation in his head.

Gradually, the same formation appeared right above James' head.

The inscriptions within the formation seemed to be constantly changing, producing a new combination or pattern of the formation by the second.

Just then, James detected an unusual change in one of the paths contained in his body.

It was the Dark Path.

Ever since the Dark Path had come to exist in him, James had found its Ousia to be rather peculiar.

In the beginning, it had manifested itself in the form of a young human child.

As James' powers of the paths increased, the Dark Path grew to become an adult male that looked just like James.

However, the man was simply just a shell or the manifestation of the Dark Path.

It did not possess any abilities to communicate or process thoughts.

Just a while ago, a shadow-like figure had emerged from the man which was the Dark Path.

The figure was completely black from head to toe.

However, James could tell from the facial features and the figure's overall form that the figure was a split image of him.

At the same time, a mysterious, complex formation appeared in the deepest part of James' mind.

The strange shadow-like figure materialized on top of that formation the next instant.

James was astonished by the current situation.

Then, he tried to move the figure with his will.

As the shadow-like figure appeared on top of the formation above his head, a tremendous amount of energy was generated.

The energy radiated outward and destroyed the space around James almost instantaneously.

“What an incredible amount of power!” James did not expect that the figure was able to generate an aura with the level of the Quasi Chaos Rank.

‘The figure could already unleash this amount of power now.

If I could master all of the variations for the formation and work continuously on perfecting it, wouldn't it increase the powers of this figure even more?!’ James thought.

The man drew a deep breath.

Then, he tried to study and understand the mysterious formation again.

Unfortunately, James was unable to generate new combinations within the formation at his current level of knowledge and cultivation.

Eventually, James decided to put the matter aside for now and lifted the time formation.

He vanished and reappeared on the airship right away.

Everyone on the airship was staring at James as if they had seen a ghost.

James scratched the tip of his nose.

“...Is there something on my face?” Wynton asked, “What did you learn from the Heavenly Tribulation?” “That’s a secret.” James flashed him an enigmatic smile.

Waleria pouted and complained, “Why would you keep it a secret from us?! You have one last chance.

Spill it!” “To tell you the truth, I’m not sure what the formation is yet.

I’ve only managed to understand bits and pieces of it.” James shrugged and slowly shook his head.

Wynona asked, “What about the shadow-like figure that appeared with the formation? Was that a clone of you?” “No...and yes, in some ways.” James had a pensive look in his eyes.

Zula snickered, “Whatever does that mean?”

The Almighty Dragon General Chapter 4779-“How should I put it?” After a short pause, James began, “Back when I had just started training, I managed to create a unique Ousia.

It looked just like a clone of me.

However, it did not possess the ability to carry or connect with my Zen.” “After that, the Ousia disappeared when I managed to get the paths integrated.

When I was trying to generate and decipher the formation just now, the Ousia of the Dark Path suddenly appeared once again.” The others felt even more confused after listening to James’ explanation.

Meanwhile, James checked the time and noticed that millions of years had passed since he had first encountered the Heavenly Tribulation.

“My injuries that were caused by the Heavenly Tribulation are quite severe.

I need to focus and treat them right away.

You guys should get us to the Aeternus District as soon as possible.” James went into his room after saying that, leaving the others with looks of bewilderment on their faces.

Inside his room, James put up a time formation before he began healing his injuries.

Whilst he worked on his treatment, James also tried to study the mysterious formation and the shadow-like figure hidden in the deepest recess of his mind.

“Oh, well.

Let’s continue with our journey then.” The airship started moving at Waleria’s command the next instant.

A few seconds later, the airship vanished and teleported to a new location millions of miles away.

Then, the ship sailed forward at a high speed.

A few million years passed as their airship headed for the Aeternus District.

Upon reaching their destination, Waleria carefully maneuvered the ship as they made their way to the central universe of the Aeternus District.

Soon afterward, they arrived outside the Aeternus District’s central universe.

Waleria went to James’ room and knocked on the door.

“James, you should come out now.

We’ve reached the Aeternus District.” After hearing the noise outside his door, James undid the time formation and came out of the room.

Waleria thought that James was looking much better than when she had last seen him.

“You have color in your cheeks now.

It seems you’re almost fully recovered.” James shook his head.

“I’m still far from achieving full recovery.

The injuries caused by the Heavenly Tribulation are no laughing matter.

Even now, I have yet to remove the marks left by the attacks from the Heavenly Path.” “I can’t sense any trace of the Heavenly Path from back then on you, though?” Waleria said.

“That’s because I’ve suppressed it.” After saying that, James stopped suppressing the residual powers of the Heavenly Path still lingering in his body.

Waleria felt the potency of that power almost instantly.

The lady even shrank back a little to avoid coming in contact with the malicious powers of the Heavenly Path.

James swiftly suppressed the powers of the Heavenly Path again.

Then, he walked toward the deck of the airship.

Everyone had gathered on the deck by the time James got there.

Saachi asked as soon as she spotted James.

“What should we do now, James?” James gazed at the universe before them.

“That’s the central universe of the Aeternus District?” Saachi nodded.

“Mhm.

That is the Aeternus Universe, the central universe of the Aeternus District.

It was once a place where I called my home.

However, it was stolen away from me.

Other cultivators occupy it now.

Those people also killed off all my family members.” A cold, sinister light glinted in Saachi’s eyes as she recalled those past memories.

The inscriptions embedded deep in her eyes seemed to glow faintly at the moment.

“Tell us roughly what happened in the Aeternus District back then,” James prompted.

Saachi replied, "The person who murdered my father turned out to be one of his subordinates.

His name is Devin Hael.

"Devin has achieved the Quasi Chaos Rank.

The man ambushed and killed my father.

Then, he gained control over the territories that once belonged to my family.

Besides that, Devin managed to convince some of my father's old subordinates to join his forces.

Since then, they have been trying to wipe out my father's loyal followers.

I've gone into hiding since then as well.

"That's all I know thus far.

It's been a long time since I've returned here, so I'm not sure about the latest happenings in the Aeternus District too."

The Almighty Dragon General Chapter 4780-'As far as I know, only one Quasi Chaos Rank cultivator resides in the central universe of the Aeternus District, on the spiritual mountain that once belonged to my father.

'The Aeternus District still ranked last in terms of power and influence among the nine districts.

We only have a handful of Quasi Chaos Rank cultivators.

There are hardly any Chaos Rank cultivators who are willing to stay here for long.

'As for the Caelum Acme Rank cultivators from the Aeternus District, those could hardly count as a threat for people like James and Waleria,' Saachi pondered.

She turned her gaze toward James.

Waleria suggested in an excited voice, "What's there to be afraid of then? The man is only a Quasi Chaos Rank cultivator.

I'll go in there and beat him up first.

Then, you guys can come in and handle the rest of the matter." James interrupted her, "We shouldn't act rashly.

Saachi's information may be outdated since she has been away from the Aeternus District for a very long time.

The Aeternus Sect might have gained new members or grown more powerful in some way.

We should investigate before deciding on our next move." Although James claimed to be helping Saachi with her plans of revenge, James' real intention was to gain control over the Aeternus Sect.

'The Aeternus Sect is the biggest organization with the highest level of power and authority in the Aeternus District.

I'll gain control over the Aeternus District by having the Aeternus Sect in my grasp.

'Next, I'll make sure everyone learns of the Aeternus Sect's name and achievements during the Hazeaf Gathering,' James pondered.

Even though James was not the strongest cultivator amongst them, his friends nonetheless regarded him as the leader of their group.

None of them voiced any opposition to his suggestion.

"Let's go.

n At James' command, all of them vanished from the deck of the airship and teleported toward the Aeternus Universe.

At the Aeternus Sect's headquarters, a man in a yellow robe sat in the most prominent seat around the meeting table.

It was Devin Hael, the current sect leader of the Aeternus Sect.

The man had a heavy build, and he radiated the aura of a stern, powerful leader.

Other than Devin, more than twenty other skilled and experienced cultivators were seated around the table in the main hall.

Just then, a low and husky voice rang across the room.

“Sir Hael, have you not received any news about the sacred scroll after all this time?” Devin, a Quasi Chaos Rank cultivator, seemed a little flustered.

He hurriedly answered, “Mr.

Dalibor, our men are doing their best to search for it right now.

However, it’s been a bit difficult since the Aeternus Mantra has been missing for almost a million epochs.

We lost the item when the daughter of the former sect leader had made an escape from the Aeternus District.” Mr.

Dalibor was a young, handsome man who seemed to be in his mid-twenties.

Upon hearing Devin’s words, the man in a gray robe shouted furiously, “You useless fool! Why couldn’t you get this simple task done?! My patience is running out.

If you still can’t locate the Aeternus Mantra before the Hazeaf Gathering happens, I don’t see any point in keeping the Aeternus Sect around.” If James were one of the meeting attendees, he would immediately recognize that the man who had just spoken was none other than Wyot Dalibor.

Wyot had reached the Terra Acme Rank back when he fought James during their last battle.

Before being sent to the Endlos’ Nine Districts, Wyot had managed to enter the Boundless for the Caelum Acme Rank.

The man had been training diligently and continuously up to this point.

Like Wynton, Wyot had been sent to the Endlos’ Nine Districts to search for the sacred scrolls as well.

Teresa had met Wyot and shared with him a lot of information that most people were unaware of.

She also stressed that Wyot must bring all nine sacred scrolls back to their realm.
