

Read The Almighty Dragon General

The Almighty Dragon General Chapter 5006-A new order had taken shape within the Endlos' Ten Districts. The humans and the Doods had ascended as the most influential races among the Ten Districts.

The Doods were under Zaden's leadership, while the humans were guided by Thea.

Furthermore, Taran's presence was far from inconspicuous, as he ruled over the Hazeaf District with the self-proclaimed title of Emperor Casey.

Simultaneously, a new powerhouse had risen on the outskirts of the Dark World, known as Emperor Hetsema. His appearance and origin remained a mystery, as anyone who approached Mount Hetsema was unable to take a single step closer.

In the boundless void of the Endlos, a beam of light remained fixed in place. Within this beam of light resided a soul, it was the soul of James.

In the previous battle, James had suffered severe injuries, with his physical body obliterated and his soul on the brink of dispersal. If not for the inscriptions left behind by Zella, which revealed a way for him to survive, he would have perished in that battle.

After an entrapoch had passed, James' soul finally began to recover and grow stronger under the nourishment of the Endlos Light. However, he had lost his physical body. Now, he needed a new body to resurrect himself. Although he possessed the ability to easily conjure a new one, that was not what he desired.

James had obtained a strand of the Endlos Light, which held the ultimate secret of the Endlos and had also revealed some past events.

A long time ago, during the inception of the Endlos, a rift had appeared. A legendary powerhouse used mysterious materials to seal it. After the sealing, a unique Koloretsua Stone was left behind, which now lay somewhere within the Endlos.

James yearned to find the Koloretsua Stone, the key to strengthening his resurrected body by merging his soul with it.

Despite searching for countless ages, the stone described in the Endlos Light records still eluded him.

The beam of light inched its way through the Endlos Void.

The Presta District was one of the Endlos' Ten Districts. It was a truly mystical district surrounded by the magical Endlos Water.

Within the Presta District was a small sect known as the Presta Sect, located on an island. There was a desolate spiritual mountain within the sect, which lacked any Empyrean Spiritual Energy. It stood out of place amidst the vibrant Spiritual Energy that permeated the Presta Sect.

While situated within the territory of the Presta Sect, this spiritual mountain remained devoid of any living beings. At its summit, an ordinary stone lay surrounded by various overgrown weeds.

Swish!

Suddenly, a beam of light descended from the sky at a rapid pace and seamlessly merged into the stone, causing it to crack and fragments to fall away. It revealed a man, none other than James.

After countless years of searching for the Koloretsua Stone within the Endlos, James had finally found it. His soul fused with the stone, but when he flexed his muscles and bones, he found his movements to be cumbersome due to the transformation of his physical body from the stone, making it difficult for his soul to fully merge.

The Almighty Dragon General Chapter 5007-"What's going on?" James furrowed his brow slightly.

In his past life, he had been a powerhouse in the Chaos Illimita Rank. After his death, his soul had followed the Endlos Light for countless ages, and its strength had reached at least the Chaos Completare Rank.

Logically, his cultivation rank should have been terrifying once he found a new physical body. However, he could not sense the presence of any power within this body. Even his soul felt extremely weak, just slightly stronger than an ordinary person with no cultivation.

James tried to activate the cultivation method and the Ten Path Techniques, but found no power within his body. Only when he activated his cultivation method did the energy of heaven and earth in this region flow rapidly into his body. He felt a sense of relaxation as power coursed through him.

James dispelled the cultivation method and sat down. As he settled, the earth beneath him cracked. He wore a look of anguish as he said, 'This is too weak. Even though this body formed from the Koloretsua Stone is an exceptional vessel for cultivation, it will take a long time if I want to reach the Chaos Illimita Rank again.'

Despite the uniqueness of this body, it was still too weak compared to the power he had before. James felt frustrated for a moment before slowly standing up and stretching his limbs.

His soul had fused with the Koloretsua Stone for some time, gradually adapting to this new body. Now he could perfectly control it. He had no idea why his soul was currently so weak, and he could not use his Zen to explore his surroundings.

"All I can do now is cultivate diligently. I can rise quickly based on my past experiences and the Supernatural Signature Skills I've mastered, but I don't know the current situation in the Ten Districts," James muttered to himself.

He took steps away from the spiritual mountain. While there was currently no power within his body, the Koloretsua Stone was a miraculous artifact left behind during the rift's sealing. It possessed innate mystical power and was truly extraordinary.

James manipulated his new body and ran wildly within the spiritual mountain. After a while, he reached the shore and stood stunned, gazing at the boundless sea. He pondered how he could leave such an enormous expanse of sea.

James had no power at the moment. He had lost his ability to fly and could not use the Blithe Omniscience. For him, crossing this sea seemed an insurmountable task, and he had no idea how many years it would take to accomplish.

Just at that moment, he noticed some living beings flying in the sky. He immediately seized this lifeline, calling out loudly, “Hey, over here!” as he waved his hands. His cries caught their attention.

Whoosh!

Several streaks of light landed on the ground, forming a few humanoid figures. They appeared in front of James with curious expressions, while James was slightly taken aback.

“A human with no cultivation?”

“This doesn’t make sense. How did he appear at our sect’s back mountain if he has no cultivation?”

“Our back mountain has been deserted for countless ages, and no disciple has entered. Moreover, it’s surrounded by the sea. How did he cross the sea without any cultivation?”

Several disciples of the Presta Sect exchanged words.

James stared at them, his eyes spinning as he tried to come up with an explanation. After thinking for a long time, he found himself at a loss for words. He could not reveal his true identity as James, the one reborn using the Koloretsua Stone here.

Moreover, he had no knowledge of the current state of the Endlos’ Ten Districts. He could not afford to expose himself recklessly because he had almost no power, and attracting enemies now would be disastrous.

The Almighty Dragon General Chapter 5008-James did not know how to explain, so he chose to play dumb, chuckling foolishly.

“Let’s bring him along,” a female disciple suggested after giving James a glance.

“Yeah, he is considered our sect’s disciple as long as he’s within our sect’s spiritual mountain range. Even if he has no cultivation base, we do have some ordinary humans under our sect,” one of the Presta Sect disciples added.

After a brief discussion, they settled on James’ temporary fate, and he was subsequently taken off the island.

The Presta Sect was a small sect, and even its Grand Patriarch had only reached the Macrocosm Ancestral God Rank. In the Endlos' Ten Districts, this cultivation rank was considered quite low, even within the Presta District.

Although the Presta Sect was not particularly strong, it was an ancient sect with a long-established history, predating even the era of Emperor Raiah.

Within the Presta Sect's territory, there existed smaller universes where ordinary humans resided. Some of them had begun their journey of cultivation, but their cultivation ranks were not notably high.

The disciples of the Presta Sect left James in Te'oma Village. It was a small village located within the sect's territory.

There was a willow tree at the entrance. James stood before the tree, looking at the run-down village ahead. He had not intended to stay here for long and wanted to leave at the first opportunity to find a place where he could cultivate in earnest.

With his remarkable body and the Supernatural Signature Skills he had mastered, James believed he could rise quickly once again and depart this place to gain a better understanding of the current state of the Endlos. However, just as he was about to leave, he noticed something extraordinary about the willow tree at the entrance.

The willow tree appeared lively on the surface, but it seemed to have been scorched by some unknown force, leaving no vitality within it. It was quite large, several hundred meters tall and over ten meters in girth. Its branches swayed gracefully with the gentle breeze.

After sensing its uniqueness, James walked over and stood beneath the tree, extending a palm toward it. Although he currently lacked power within him, his new body remained remarkably strong. When he struck with his palm, the tree cracked under the tremendous force.

Upon closer inspection, James confirmed that there was indeed no vitality inside the tree. Its interior appeared to have been struck by lightning, leaving it scorched.

James had seen and experienced many things, and while this tree was unique, it had not captured his full attention. He did not pay it much mind and turned to leave.

At that moment, an old farmer holding a hoe emerged from the village. He appeared to be in his forties, dressed in plain attire, and moved at a leisurely pace, just like an ordinary human.

However, James could immediately discern his extraordinariness. Although the old farmer seemed ordinary, he exuded a unique aura that even Chaos Rank powerhouses could not sense.

James had comprehended numerous inscriptions and created mysterious formations. Even though he had lost his cultivation base, some of his senses still remained.

‘This is quite remarkable,’ James furrowed his brow slightly, then approached the old farmer and asked, ‘Sir, could you please tell me where we are?’

The old farmer glanced at James, put down his hoe, and replied, ‘This is Te’oma Village, young man. There hasn’t been another village within thousands of miles. Why have you come here?’

James knew that this old farmer was definitely not a typical farmer. He was undoubtedly a legendary powerhouse with a cultivation base of at least Chaos Rank or higher.

James’ eyes turned as he smiled and said, ‘I’ve come here seeking a teacher to learn some skills.’

‘Heh heh.’

The Almighty Dragon General Chapter 5009-The old farmer chuckled and said, ‘You’ve come to the wrong place. If you’re seeking apprenticeship and the art of cultivation, you should go to the Presta Sect. Te’oma Village is merely a small village, and its residents are ordinary humans with no cultivation.’

After finished speaking, he picked up his hoe and walked away. James watched him depart, then glanced at Te’oma Village. The village was quite small, with only about a hundred households.

In the center of the village, there stood a community hall. At this moment, many villagers had gathered there, led by an elder wearing a simple, green robe. He gently stroked his gray beard as he spoke, ‘We’ve guarded the Koloretsua Stone for countless years. After absorbing the essence of heaven and earth, it is about to awaken its consciousness. But now it has been stolen by other living beings.”

“Mr. Cray, who has taken the Koloretsua Stone?”

“The Koloretsua Stone has been a closely guarded secret known to only a few living beings for ages. How could it now have been stolen?”

‘Yes, what can we do now?’

Te’oma Village was a hidden place, and its human inhabitants were all hidden powerhouses. Their primary purpose was to safeguard the Koloretsua Stone. However, James had acquired it, and they were unaware of his background.

Faced with the villagers’ questions, the village chief paused briefly and then said, “I can’t discern this person’s origin.

However, perhaps Lady Tehila tasked us with guarding this place not for the Koloretsua Stone to awaken as a living being, but to await the arrival of other humans to claim it. Now that the person who took the stone is at the village entrance. Let’s go and see.”

As James hesitated about whether to enter the village, a group of people emerged from it. Among them were individuals of various ages and genders, young and old, totaling about a hundred. They all concealed their auras, but James could still sense their extraordinariness. These seemingly ordinary humans were all legendary powerhouses, with the weakest among them likely at the Chaos Rank.

James looked at these farmers with great respect, clasped his hands, and said, “I pay my respects to all of you.”

“Young man, why have you come here?” the village chief asked.

James smiled and responded, “I’ve come here seeking apprenticeship.”

‘To seek apprenticeship, you should go to the Presta Sect. Why have you come to this village? Everyone here is just an ordinary human with no cultivation base,” the village chief replied.

James chuckled and said, ‘You’re humble.”

With that, he entered the village. It was indeed an extraordinary place. However, since the village chief and the others were not forthcoming with information, James decided not to press further.

As long as he remained in the village, he believed he would eventually uncover its secrets. Moreover, these villagers were humans, so they probably were not sinister characters. James just wondered why they had chosen to live in seclusion here.

After James entered the village, the villagers exchanged glances.

The village chief instructed, "Now that he's here, let's make arrangements for him to settle in. Yarona, please arrange for him to stay at your house and find out more about his background."

"Yes, Mr. Cray," a young girl stepped forward respectfully and replied.

The Almighty Dragon General Chapter 5010-The young girl appeared to be around eighteen or nineteen years old, dressed plainly with patches on her clothes. Despite her simplicity, she possessed natural beauty.

Yarona quickly caught up with James, who had entered the village. Wearing a bright smile, she said, "Come this way."

She had a lovely smile, with two faint dimples at the corners of her mouth.

Under Yarona's guidance, James reached a courtyard within the village. It was modest, consisting of a few simple thatched huts and some livestock.

James settled into a resting area in the courtyard, and as Yarona approached, he asked with a smile, "What's your name?"

Yarona smiled and replied, "I'm Yarona Fiadh. Are you hungry? What would you like to eat?"

James pointed toward a nearby chicken and said, "Chicken.

I haven't had chicken in a long time."

"Alright, I'll catch one for you," Yarona replied, and she went to catch a chicken.

In the courtyard, Yarona struggled to catch the chicken as it kept evading her. James casually waved his hand, and a stone flew toward the chicken, swiftly striking it. After a few cries, the chicken lay still on the ground.

Yarona glanced at James with an awkward smile, then carried the chicken to the kitchen, while James waited outside.

Soon, the chicken was cooked.

“Yarona...” A big man entered through the door while they were both eating. “Wow, it’s complicated these days. The Endlos is not simple,” he remarked as he entered.

Upon entering and seeing James, he was momentarily taken aback, then asked, “Who’s this?”

Yarona looked at James with confusion. At this point, she did not even know James’ name.

James smiled and said, “I’m Forty-nine. By the way, you mentioned earlier that the Endlos isn’t simple. What’s going on?”

However, the big man remained silent. He took Yarona outside and asked, ‘What’s going on? How did we end up with a stranger in the house?’

Yarona explained James’ background to the man.

“What?” Upon hearing this news, the big man was stunned.

James overheard their conversation. Despite his current lack of power, his body was extraordinary. Since they had not set up any formations during their conversation outside the door, he could hear them.

“So, the purpose of this village’s existence is to guard the Koloretsua Stone,” James murmured to himself.

At that moment, Yarona and the big man returned. Yarona introduced, ‘This is my elder brother, Jai Fiadh.’

“Hello, Jai,” James greeted with a warm smile, then asked, “What did you say earlier? What’s the current situation in the Endlos?”

“Endlos?” Jai feigned ignorance. Since he did not speak further, James did not press the matter.

James picked up a chicken thigh and started eating.

Night fell, and James lay on the bed with his hands behind his head, gazing at the stars outside the window. He did not know how many years had passed since his battle with Mekaisto, and he had no idea about the current state of the Endlos.

Lost in thought, he drifted off to sleep, and the night passed quietly.