

Read The Almighty Dragon General

The Almighty Dragon General Chapter 5066-Reflecting on his own life, James' mental fortitude improved once again.

He had already approached the threshold mentioned by King Marciais, but truly attaining King Marciais' level of mental fortitude would demand more time and effort.

Next, James began to seclude himself for cultivation.

He started absorbing the Emyrean herbs to enhance his strength, realm, and bloodline power.

Throughout this period, he remained vigilant in his thoughts.

In his thoughts, the scene of King Marciais' battle with Taran replayed constantly.

This battle had served as a profound source of inspiration for him.

Time flew by, and after absorbing a substantial quantity of Emyrean herbs, James' realm had advanced to the Chaos Essencia Rank, and his bloodline had undergone improvement.

Witnessing the battle between King Marciais and Taran had afforded him profound insights.

After his bloodline had improved, he easily comprehended the Omniscience Path, which was the fourteenth rank of the Marciais Path.

Now, he had attained the fourteenth rank of the Marciais Path, and his realm had reached the Chaos Essencia Rank.

His physical body had attained the strength of the Chaos Completare Rank, and his soul had reached the same rank.

This period of seclusion had significantly enhanced his strength with ease.

However, he did not emerge from his seclusion immediately.

Above his head, a mysterious formation materialized.

It had a peculiar design, featuring a phantom figure sitting in a lotus position atop it.

Beneath the formation, another phantom sat in a lotus position, and these phantoms moved up and down.

While the central formation collected numerous cryptic inscriptions, it seemed motionless but was, in fact, undergoing countless subtle changes every second.

This formation was a fusion of countless signature martial art skills that James had mastered over time, as well as an amalgamation of numerous enigmatic inscriptions.

At this moment, the formation began to rotate, and as it turned, the inscriptions on it continuously changed.

In a trance, the formation appeared to expand by a circle.

James was merging them.

Having observed King Marciais' battle with Taran and gained profound insights, he endeavored to merge all of his Supernatural Signature Skills.

As he experimented, the formation began to tremble and underwent significant alterations.

The aura of the phantom figures above and below the formation abruptly intensified.

They seemed to acquire a degree of substance, and one could faintly discern the inscriptions taking on a physical form.

"Is the phantom figure formed from inscriptions?" James felt a moment of astonishment as he sensed the changes in the figures.

Initially, they had appeared ethereal and unreal, but now, he could discern some of the inscription lines within them.

However, after pondering this question deeply for a while, he could not quite figure it out.

Eventually, he chose not to dwell on it further and dispersed the figures with a thought.

He stood up from the meadow, stretched his muscles, and wore a contented smile on his face.

This Endlos Journey had brought him many gains, and his strength had significantly improved during this period of seclusion.

He was now just one realm away from reaching the pinnacle of the Chaos Completare Rank.

He now possessed the most powerful signature martial art skill in the Endlos.

In terms of strength, he could easily rank in the top three within the Endlos' Ten Districts, with only King Marciais and Taran potentially surpassing him.

Other powerhouses at the Chaos Completare Rank were no match for him, even though he had not yet entered that realm.

James was in a good mood.

He dispelled the time formation in this place, opened the door, and walked out of the room.

"It seems you've made good progress," a voice rang out as soon as James stepped out, and immediately, a man appeared.

He was none other than King Marciais.

King Marciais was dressed in a white robe, his beard had been shaved, and his long hair had been meticulously groomed.

He looked youthful and dignified.

"King Marciais," James greeted him with a smile.

"It's not bad at all.

I've entered the Chaos Essencia Rank and reached the fourteenth rank of the Marciais Path.

Now, can you give me some guidance on the Divine Martial Art?" James had always been eager to learn the Divine Martial Art, but its cultivation requirements were extremely high, and only those who reached the fourteenth rank of the Marciais Path could truly comprehend it.

"Sure," King Marciais agreed to James' request.

"Follow me," he added before vanishing from his spot.

James followed suit, and in the next moment, they found themselves in the Endlos Void, devoid of any universes.

The Almighty Dragon General Chapter 5067-King Marciais stood in the Endlos Void with his hands folded behind his back, while James watched him intently.

"I want to test your strength," King Marciais said with a smile.

In an instant, he moved in front of James and threw a punch.

Although King Marciais did not use the Blithe Omniscience, his speed remained remarkable.

However, even at this incredible pace, James sensed his movements and swiftly raised his hand to block.

Boom! The collision of two forces generated an explosion in the void.

Nonetheless, the aftermath of their battle did not spread out because both King Marciais and James exerted precise control over their powers, preventing them from radiating outward and, instead, making each other bear the full brunt of their own strength.

King Marciais continued to throw rapid punches, and James responded in kind.

In the Endlos Void, their fists and feet clashed.

No matter how fast King Marciais attacked, James countered each strike calmly.

"Good," King Marciais exclaimed and instantly ascended to the fifteenth rank of the Marciais Path.

James did not hesitate.

He followed suit, reaching the fourteenth rank of the Marciais Path.

The one-rank difference in their comprehension of the Marciais Path resulted in significant disparities in speed, strength, and reflexes.

Before King Marciais entered the fifteenth rank of the Marciais Path, James could easily defend against his attacks.

Now, he struggled to keep up and quickly found himself at a disadvantage, taking hits to his body.

In a matter of moments, James was injured.

“King Marciais, you’re taking advantage of me.

I’m only at the fourteenth rank of the Marciais Path, and you’re sparring with me at the fifteenth rank,” James complained.

King Marciais paid no attention to his protest.

In the next instant, he appeared behind James, who could not react in time and was struck directly.

“The Martial Path demands a high level of mental fortitude, especially in battle.

The more focused you become, the greater your ability to unleash its true power.

The fusion of body and soul results in heightened reflexes, perception, and agility, where a single move can affect your entire body.

Take this punch, for example.” A devastating punch landed on James.

Crack! James’ back bones shattered instantly.

Despite his body being composed of Koloretsua Stone, renowned for its unparalleled physical resilience, it could not withstand King Marciais’ attack.

“What may appear as a simple punch actually calls upon the power of your entire body, concentrating it into a single point and releasing it in an instant.

At its core, the Martial Path is about discovering that focal point, mastering the art of harnessing your own strength, and compressing it to unleash it in a single moment,” King Marciais continued to explain as he delivered blows.

He was explaining the fundamental knowledge that even an ordinary person without True Energy cultivation could use to unlock incredible strength when performing the basic technique.

He covered everything, from the basics to controlling the bloodline, harnessing the body’s strength, and mastering Soul Power.

His explanations were detailed, and he concluded with the pinnacle of the Martial Path.

“The term ‘Divine’ in the Divine Martial Art represents the ultimate in the Martial Path.

I am the embodiment of heaven, and the power of the Divine surpasses all other forces.

It’s the culmination of body, bloodline, and Soul Power, a fusion of reaction speed, agility, and insight.

It’s the ultimate power that emerges from your innermost depths.

It’s self-confidence that soars higher than the heavens.

In that moment, your fighting spirit surges, and you will battle against the heavens, the earth, and everything in between.

This is the zenith of the Divine Martial Art.

Despite its apparent simplicity, it is exceptionally challenging.

It demands deep contemplation and thorough study.

It took me countless ages to reach this pinnacle.”

The Almighty Dragon General Chapter 5068-The Martial Path did not involve mysterious and arcane runes.

Instead, inscriptions and rules originated from the heavens and earth.

These inscription rules within them contained incredible power.

On the other hand, the power of the Martial Path came from within oneself.

After cultivating it, one could maximize their power when harnessing the inscription rules.

Many Paths within the heavens and the earth cannot be expressed in words.

They can only be understood through intuition.

Nevertheless, the Martial Path could be conveyed and was relatively straightforward.

However, comprehending this simplicity was as challenging as reaching the stars.

King Marciais explained in great detail, sharing all the knowledge he had accumulated throughout his lifetime.

In the Endlos Void, James stood opposite him.

He smiled and said, "That's all I can teach you.

Just remember, your own power should not be weaker than the power of the heavens and earth." James clasped his hands and expressed his gratitude, saying, " Thanks for your guidance." King Marciais walked over, draped his arm around James' shoulder, and said, "Let's go back for now." Both of them quickly left the Endlos Void and reappeared at the Orstellen Sect.

At this moment, there were still two epochs left until the Orstellen Convention.

James decided to stay temporarily at the sect.

With his cultivation base now at its peak, breaking through to the next realm would be extremely difficult, requiring years of accumulation.

His current focus was on elevating his mental fortitude.

Even when King Marciais reached the Fourteenth Rank of the Marciais Path, he could not perfectly control the highest power of the Divine Martial Art.

He had to reverse the flow of his meridians and bloodline, numb his brain to barely unleash its full potential, and utilize the strongest power within his body.

According to King Marciais, the mundane world was the best place to cultivate mental fortitude.

Therefore, he advised James to spend these two epochs exploring the mundane world and gaining experiences.

If James could fully grasp the Divine Martial Art at the fourteenth rank of the Marciais Path, he would surpass King Marciais.

In the back mountains, James sat in a lotus position on a rock.

A gentle breeze tousled his long hair, with some strands obscuring his vision, creating a slightly blurry sight.

“Exploring the mundane world to cultivate my mental fortitude?” James murmured softly.

Soon, various strands of energy auras began to differentiate within his body, and they merged into various places across the Endlos’ Ten Districts.

Each aura had reincarnated, resulting in the creation of new living beings, whether humans, plants, animals or even powerful beasts.

These living beings took on various forms.

James’ thoughts were diverse, and countless of his incarnations integrated into the various places within the Endlos’ Ten Districts.

They began to experience different lifetimes, undergo trials, and hone themselves in the mundane world.

Each incarnation had no will of its own until it died, at which point it would share its experiences and insights with James.

Two epochs passed in the blink of an eye, and James remained seated in a lotus position on the rock in the back mountains, motionless like a stone sculpture.

During these epochs, his incarnations continuously honed themselves in the mundane world, experiencing various hardships and gaining wisdom.

With time, he gradually found solace and acceptance in the face of life's many challenges.

The Almighty Dragon General Chapter 5069-James' mental fortitude was unknowingly improving.

Two epochs later, he had already reached Martial Stillness as mentioned by King Marciais.

His heart was calm, as serene as a clear sky and still as a tranquil sea.

In that moment, an immense power surged within him as he stood up.

This power emanated from his physical body, bloodline, soul, and every inch of his being, including a mysterious force within his heart.

James murmured, "The highest realm of the Divine Martial Art, the Heart Power." The powerhouses of the sect were gathering at the main hall of the Orstellen Sect.

They were discussing the upcoming Orstellen Convention.

At this moment, their collective gaze was fixed on a distant spiritual mountain.

Even King Marciais in the main hall could not contain his admiration as he said, "He has reached the highest realm of the Divine Martial Art in just two epochs." "What a formidable aura." "James has immense potential." Other powerhouses in the main hall chimed in, all astounded by the aura James displayed.

The Orstellen Sect's powerhouses were not only impressed by James' aura but also by his exceptional strength.

Meanwhile, James remained on the spiritual mountain's backside, a faint smile gracing his lips as he sensed the surging power deep within him.

He dissipated his aura and strength, rendering himself indistinguishable, appearing just like an ordinary person.

At this moment, a man appeared silently.

"Haha, well done," King Marciais praised with a laugh.

“You’re truly amazing.

In just two epochs, you’ve trodden the path I walked in my long years.

Perhaps you can even forge the Sixteenth Rank of the Marciais Path.” James smiled and replied, “It’s all thanks to your teachings.” “Enough of the self-deprecation,” King Marciais responded.

“ Even though you’ve only reached the fourteenth rank of the Marciais Path and the Chaos Essencia Rank, I might not be your match in a real life-and-death battle.” King Marciais possessed some insight into James’ true strength.

James had mastered numerous signature martial art skills, including the Tenfold Realms Transcendent Sutra by Emperor Raiah and the enigmatic formations, in addition to his current profound comprehension of the Martial Path.

In a true life-and- death battle, he might find himself outmatched by James.

“My growth is nearing its zenith.

My power is unlikely to increase further unless I reach the Sovereign Rank.

Meanwhile, you still have room for growth.

Your cultivation base has not yet reached its peak.

Achieving the fifteenth rank of the Marciais Path and the Chaos Compleare Rank will grant you another boost in power.

In the same realm, you might even surpass me.” King Marciais’ words were not merely an exaggeration.

James simply responded with a smile.

King Marciais settled on a nearby rock and asked, “What is your plan for the future?” “Plan?” James sat down and pondered for a moment before replying, “I don’t have any plans.

I’ll just remain in the Endlos to wait for the invasion of the Extraterrestrial Demon.

After dealing with it, I think I'll follow in the footsteps of Lady Tehila and Emperor Raiah and venture beyond the Endlos to see what lies there." "I'd like to join you when the time comes," King Marciais smiled and said, "I want to see it too.

In this Endlos, I must create the sixteenth rank of the Marciais Path and enter the Sovereign Rank.

It may be quite challenging, and perhaps the only opportunity lies beyond the Endlos." "Alright." James nodded.

With a simple sentence, they both reached a unanimous agreement.

Once they had dealt with the Extraterrestrial Demon, their next step would be to embark on a journey to seek even greater cultivation realms beyond the Endlos.

"You can meet Thea now," King Marciais said.

The Almighty Dragon General Chapter 5070-King Marciais had previously prevented James from meeting Thea primarily to cultivate his mental fortitude.

When a person desires something, their mind struggles to attain tranquility.

Desires come in various forms.

When encountering familiar friends, the desire to see them arises, especially with one's own family and close friends, which can lead to strong desires.

Now, James had attained Martial Stillness, reaching the pinnacle of the Martial Path and mastering Heart Power.

At this stage, he was finally allowed to meet Thea.

"Alright," James nodded.

At that moment, he wanted to meet Thea.

Although the Martial Path demanded a high state of mental fortitude, it did not necessitate the complete abandonment of all emotions and desires.

James vanished from the Orstellen Sect in an instant.

The next moment, he appeared in the spiritual mountain inhabited by humans.

Two epochs had passed since James began his seclusion, and the Orstellen Convention was about to commence.

Powerhouses from the Ten Districts had gathered in the universe where the Orstellen Sect was located, waiting for the convention to begin.

However, Thea and other humans had arrived two epochs earlier.

They had found a spiritual mountain relatively close to the Orstellen Sect and temporarily settled there.

James appeared outside the spiritual mountain, still assuming the identity of the Orstellen Sect's saint, with plans to surprise Thea.

"Who's there?" As soon as James appeared, disciples guarding the spiritual mountain approached and blocked his way.

"Saint...

Saint Zuriel!" After getting a clear look at James, they were stunned, quickly stepping back to clear a path for him.

James smiled gently, taking a step forward and heading towards the mountaintop.

There were several buildings on the mountain's peak, where Human Race powerhouses were residing, waiting for the Orstellen Convention to begin.

James' appearance immediately caught the attention of many Human Race powerhouses.

Among them, a man approached with a beaming smile and said, "Saint Zuriel, you're here.

Where's Sir Marciais? It's been two epochs.

Why hasn't he brought me to the Orstellen Sect?" James glanced at Hetsema.

Two epochs ago, he was only at the Quasi Boundless Rank, but now he had entered the Chaos Rank.

His strength was impressive, making him the most powerful among James' children.

Meanwhile, Jacopo, who was the Lord of the Human Race and enjoyed the providence of the Human Race, had also been at the Quasi Boundless Rank two epochs ago.

Crossing from the Quasi Boundless Rank to the Chaos Rank was an incredibly challenging feat.

James cast a brief glance at Hetsema and instantly saw a trace of malevolence deep within him.

He had hidden it quite well.

"So, that's it," James realized.

Having cultivated the highest realm of the Martial Path and mastered Heart Power, James could see through many things.

Perhaps when King Marciais first met James, he had already glimpsed some of James' desires deep within his heart, which was why he had not allowed James to reveal his identity.

It was all part of a plan to temper him.

As for the malevolence and resentment deep within Hetsema, James did not dwell on it too much.

After all, Hetsema had grown up among the Dooms and had been instilled with the concept of revenge by Wyot from a young age.

Over time, those malevolent feelings and resentments would gradually dissipate.

"King Marciais is busy with the preparations for the Orstellen Convention and doesn't have the time.

After the convention ends, you can visit the Orstellen Sect and officially become a disciple," James said calmly.

At this moment, several other human powerhouses had arrived.

