

The Almighty Dragon General

The Almighty Dragon General Chapter 5077-In a flash, thousands of cultivators had entered the Orstellen Realm.

“Are you coming, Zavis?” James looked at King Marciais and asked.

King Marciais heaved a small sigh.

“I wish I get to see what’s inside the Orstellen Realm with my own eyes too.

Unfortunately, Lady Tehila had specified that members of the Orstellen Sect were not allowed to go into the Orstellen Realm before she left.” “Doesn’t that mean that I can’t enter the realm too?!” James furrowed his brows.

“Haha!” King Marciais laughed.

“That rule only applies to old members.

Those who have joined the Orstellen Sect after Lady Tehila left are not bound by it.” James was extremely relieved to hear that.

King Marciais continued, “Good luck with exploring the Orstellen Realm.” James gave a slight nod.

Then, he sat on the ground and conjured a soul form from his body.

His soul form shot toward the image in the sky the next instant.

James entered the Orstellen Realm and arrived somewhere that seemed like a highland area.

Tall, gigantic trees stood in the surrounding mountains.

James released his Zen to check his surroundings.

To his surprise, the Orstellen Realm was so vast that James couldn’t seem to detect the boundaries of the realm with his powers.

He slowly looked around his surroundings.

James was amazed by how real everything seemed to appear in the Orstellen Realm.

Even he would not be able to tell that he was inside an artificial realm if he had no prior knowledge in the first place.

James could detect complete paths and the Greater Paths in the realm.

In addition, he even sensed the existence of the Heavenly Paths.

“Could it be that this isn’t an artificial realm? It might be a world created by Lady Tehila instead...” A small frown marred his handsome features.

Unfortunately, no one could provide James with the answers to the many questions he had.

The only way James could understand the Orstellen Realm better was for him to explore the realm himself.

James teleported and reappeared in a huge, ancient city.

He used his powers to scan through the city.

However, he could not detect any living beings in the area.

Several cultivators in their soul forms had arrived at the city as well.

They were gathered in a corner of the city and discussing what they had observed so far.

“There’s nothing here.” “Exactly! This place seems just like a deserted district.

I couldn’t find a single soul in this place.” James had wandered around the desolate city and came to the same conclusion as those cultivators.

The Orstellen Realm was as large as any of the ten districts.

James surmised that it could even be bigger than some of the districts.

Just then, a swarm of dark auras appeared at the periphery of the district.

As those dark auras appeared to move closer, an immense wave of demonic energy washed over the area.

“What on earth?!” “The Extraterrestrial Demons?” The other cultivators detected the presence of the Extraterrestrial Demons simultaneously.

The presence of the extraterrestrial demons appeared to trigger the onset of a powerful formation.

The entire district was encapsulated by the formation in a matter of seconds.

The Extraterrestrial Demons were instantly blocked outside the formation.

“Do we have to exterminate them to pass the Orstellen Realm’s test?” One of the cultivators asked aloud.

The Almighty Dragon General Chapter 5078-The cultivators began to travel to the edge of the formation in the direction where they had spotted the dark auras.

As they reached the formation’s barrier, they noticed that the barrier ended just beyond an impressively large city.

The city, which was akin to a district, had a size greater than any of the ten districts in the outside world.

Curiously, the city was completely surrounded by thick, high walls.

James materialized at a spot on those high walls and gazed into the distance.

He could see clouds of dark mists moving toward the city.

Countless monsters were hidden amid the black, unsettling mist.

A frown drew his brows together.

James could tell that those monsters were not the same as those he had encountered before.

These monsters were emanating menacing auras that were far more powerful and superior.

Those monsters started attacking the city walls in full force.

Fortunately, the formation cast around the walls seemed to be holding up fairly well at the moment.

However, more and more monsters were gathering outside the walls.

At some point, the formation might break as it could not withstand the attacks anymore.

Somewhere further down from where James was standing, another group of cultivators was also observing the situation outside the city walls.

Zaden and Xezal were among those people.

“Father.” Xezal stared at the monsters with a pensive look in her eyes.

“Only one person will receive the opportunity to learn the Orstellen Art and become the new leader of the Orstellen Sect.

However, tens of thousands of cultivators have entered the Orstellen Realm.

The competition for the spot will be extremely fierce.” Zaden asked, “What do you think we should do to win the opportunity and become the new leader of the Orstellen Sect, then?” Xezal paused briefly and said, “Lady Tehila must have created this mega city within the Orstellen Realm and showed us the Extraterrestrial Demons attacking it for a reason.

She probably chose this battlefield with the purpose of training and helping future generations band together to face our enemies.

I think the person who makes the biggest contribution during the battle will have a higher chance to be chosen to be the Orstellen Sect’s new leader.” Zaden agreed, “Mhm.

That sounds plausible.” He began to work on forming a team of cultivators to eradicate the Extraterrestrial Demons.

Since he was once the lord of the Endlos, Zaden was able to gather quite a large number of followers who were willing to work under his command.

However, there were also those who refused to join Zaden.

Most of them were from the hidden sects such as the grand patriarchs of Mount Genesis and Mount Taba, the cultivators from Silbergh Island, and Franco.

Those people also gathered their own men and set up bases at different spots along the city walls to fend off the Extraterrestrial Demons.

Almost all of the cultivators had reached similar conclusions just like Xezal.

Therefore, multiple groups started forming along the city walls, including the human cultivators.

James teleported and arrived at the base set up by the cultivators from the Human Universe.

Not too long ago, he started detecting new signs of life.

Within the mega-city, multiple living beings with great powers appeared in a beautiful, mysterious universe.

Shortly afterward, James also sensed the presence of new beings in several other universes located within the mega-city.

James could sense that those beings were not the soul forms of cultivators coming from the outside world just like him.

They were beings with actual bodies that possessed their own thoughts and feelings.

After giving it some thought, James postulated that the Orstellen Realm was probably a replica of the Extraterrestrial Demons' first invasion of the Endlos.

The living beings that had appeared were beings that existed back in those times.

Lady Tehila had probably managed to create clones of those beings in the Orstellen Realm by using some type of mysterious, powerful skill.

Thea was having a meeting with the other human cultivators to discuss their next step when James materialized before them.

"What are you doing here?" Thea narrowed her eyes and grunted, "Stop being a nuisance!"

The Almighty Dragon General Chapter 5079-James beamed broadly at her.

"Hi, Thea." Everyone was looking at James with cold, unfriendly gazes.

“Regardless of whether he is impersonating James or not, we can probably use his help.” Xrival suggested another approach to their current situation, “He’s the Orstellen Sect’s saint.

He should know a thing or two about the Orstellen Realm.

He’ll come in handy at some point.” James quickly said, “I don’t know much about the Orstellen Realm! They only appointed me as the saint because I was resurrected through the Koloretsua Stone.

I probably won’t be of any help, but I am the real James!” Thea merely rolled her eyes upon hearing his words.

James directed his gaze in Zella’s direction.

Then, he asked smilingly, “Zella, do you have any clues as to what we can do now?” Zella shook her head.

“I lost my ability as a prophet along time ago.

I can’t see what will happen in the future now.” “I might be able to help you recover your powers,” James replied.

“Can you do that?” Zella could not help getting hopeful after hearing that.

“Pl give it a try.” James was not entirely sure if he could fix or restore Zella’s powers.

“Back then, you sacrificed your powers as a prophet to unlock my potential.

You gave me the help that I needed.

Now that I’ve gained enough power, I should help restore yours,” James explained calmly.

The others standing around them did not think much of James’ words as they still saw him as Saint Zuriel.

As he walked toward Zella, James raised his hand and generated his powers in his palm.

Then, he gently placed his palm against Zella’s forehead and channeled his powers into her body.

At the same time, James' actual body in the outside world appeared to be shaking a little.

James seemed to have violated some restrictions as he tried to restore Zella's prophetic powers.

In an instant, he had incurred immense amounts of karma.

Both his actual body and his soul form came under huge pressure from the powers of karma.

The others could see how James' soul form was at the brink of being crushed due to the destructive force of karma's powers.

"Stop!" Wynton called out to him, "Your soul form might be destroyed if you insist on doing this.

You'll be disqualified and sent out of the Orstellen Realm if your soul form breaks." Still, James did not stop channeling his powers into Zella's body.

Instead, he activated some of his signature skills to hold up against the powers of karma.

Soon enough, his soul form appeared to have stabilized significantly.

At that very moment, Zella was basked in a beam of light that was formed by countless inscriptions.

"The Endlos Light..." Thea exclaimed in surprise.

Meanwhile, James continued to channel his powers for quite some time.

Ten minutes later, he finally lowered his hand.

James looked at Zella and asked, "How do you feel right now?" Zella slowly opened her eyes.

There was an ethereal aura about her.

She smiled sweetly and answered, "I regained my powers.

Thank you, James." Although none of their friends or family accepted James' explanation, Zella still felt that the man before her was the real James.

James felt a huge sense of relief upon hearing her words.

Then, he asked, "You should use your prophetic powers to check and find out what we should do to become the winner of the Orstellen Realm's test."

The Almighty Dragon General Chapter 5080-Zella was born with her prophetic powers.

She had lost the power when she tried to help James previously.

One would have to suffer the terrifying consequences of karma's powers if they wanted to recover lost powers like Zella's.

However, James had no such concerns at his level of skills and cultivation.

Upon hearing James' request, Zella shut her eyes and fell silent.

A short while later, she opened her eyes again.

"Did you see anything?" James asked right away.

Zella responded, "The situation is a little complicated right now.

We have a large number of cultivators from the outside world entering the realm.

Also, there are other beings that exist in the Orstellen Realm." "Just tell us what we should be aware of," James said.

Zella explained, "We are facing both internal and external problems.

Some beings have begun to appear in the Orstellen Realm.

These beings do not welcome invaders like us, and they may become an obstacle in our efforts to eradicate the Extraterrestrial Demons." "The only solution to our current situation is to handle our internal problem first.

Unification of the beings in the Orstellen Realm is necessary.

We also have to unite all the cultivators that have entered the Orstellen Realm to fight against the Extraterrestrial Demons.

"T see." James tapped on his jaw.

He fixed his gaze on the protective formation cast over the mega- city for a while.

“According to my estimate, this formation could last for about an epoch.

That means we have to subjugate the beings from the Orstellen Realm and the cultivators from the outside world within one epoch.” Thea knitted her brows upon hearing James’ conclusion.

“That would still be something virtually impossible.

It is fortunate for us that none of the members of the Orstellen Sect have entered the Orstellen Realm.

However, we would still be going up against superior, impressive cultivators from all ten districts, such as Zaden, Wyot, and Taran.

Not to mention the skilled cultivators from various hidden sects.

It would be extremely difficult to subjugate all these people.” “We still have to give it a shot.” James smiled confidently.

“I trust you, Your Holiness.” Hetsema flashed him a broad grin.

Hetsema did not really care whether Saint Zuriel was actually James or not as long as the latter had the status of the Orstellen Sect’s saint.

Thea asked in a flat voice, “What do you plan to do now?” James considered for a while and answered, “Taran has offered me protection in the past since he wishes to have a battle with me.

I plan to meet and fight with him this time.

Once I defeat Taran, it will be easier for us to proceed with other plans.” “You make it sound as though you are the real James.” Thea rolled her eyes again.

“You’ll know whether I’m telling the truth or not sooner or later,” James replied.

“Even King Marciais was no match for Taran.

Yet, you think you could defeat him?” Wynton looked at James doubtfully.

Everyone there was aware of how King Marciais had lost the battle to Taran recently.

They had not gotten the chance to see Saint Zuriel wield or unleash his powers.

However, they were mostly dubious about his abilities.

“We’ll find out about that when I try to battle him.” James grinned.

James felt rather confident in his powers and cultivation.

He had achieved the highest form of the Divine Martial Art and managed to generate the Heart Power.

James had also reached the Chaos Essencia Rank at the moment.

Although Taran’s cultivation rank was one rank higher above his, James was confident that he could make up for the difference in their powers by using the different signature skills he had.

“Suit yourself.

We won’t stop you,” Thea responded.

She seemed completely disinterested.

However, she was inwardly curious to find out how strong and powerful the Orstellen Sect’s saint was.

James used his Zen to locate Taran’s position.

“I’m going to meet Taran and issue a battle challenge now.

Do you guys want to come and watch?” James glanced at Thea and the others.

“Of course!” Zella replied, “I have faith in you, James.” Zella was the only person who believed that the man before them was the real James.

“Alright.

Let’s go.” James smiled and teleported away the next instant.

