The Almighty Dragon General Chapter 5131-The man could not determine James' cultivation rank. However, he recalled that James' powers and abilities were pretty average when they saw each other not too long ago. Even if James had trained with the help of various treasures, there was a limit to how much he could improve within that short time.

"Mhm. I'll be going alone." James nodded firmly.

The man remembered how James told him he had taken care of the battle in the Tribulation World. He felt slightly more reassured. "I believe you. However, our enemy waiting at the beginning of Endlos' time is no easy opponent. We should be careful. I'll come with you."

"That won't be necessary."

James raised his hand. "You can rest here, sir. Leave the fighting to me."

James did not wait for the man's response as he exited the Infinity City right away.

There was a very mysterious space located outside the Infinity City. It was a passage generated from the River of Time, and a person could travel back in time by using that passage.

James traveled along the passage at a high speed. Soon enough, he reached the end of the passage and arrived at the moment when the Endlos had first come to exist.

As he stood there, James could see the birth of the Endlos Plane. Following that, the three beams of Endlos Lights appeared within the Endlos and disappeared shortly afterward.

Not long after that, a group of beings arrived there and began attacking the Endlos. When James spotted the Extraterrestrial Demon who was trying to destroy the Endlos in its immature stage, he immediately activated the Tressencia Completare.

As James accessed the mysterious formation within his body, his past and future forms were also generated.

“Who’s there?”

The Extraterrestrial Demon bellowed as he detected an overwhelming, sudden wave of power. His voice resounded across the space in his time and through the special passage that originated from the River of Time. It even traveled across all 108 Infinity Cities and reached present- day Endlos.

Every being in present-day Endlos could hear the Extraterrestrial Demon’s voice, no matter where they were. Most of them were intimidated as they could sense the terrifying powers carried in his voice.

“You shouldn’t have come to the Endlos,” James said in a low voice.

As soon as he had said that, James’ past form materialized before the Extraterrestrial Demon and trapped its target with the mysterious formation. The Extraterrestrial Demon was caught completely off-guard. He tried to struggle and break free from the formation but was to no avail.

In a flash, James’ past form conjured a sword and slashed it forcefully across the Extraterrestrial Demon’s body. The demon was extinguished instantly.

James managed to exterminate the target in a matter of minutes. Then, he used the special passage again to return to the Infinity Cities.

The man dropped his jaw in astonishment as James appeared again before him.

“Huh?”

He was at a loss for words as he stared blankly at James.

"The fight is over, Sir. We can leave and return home now." James beamed broadly.

"It... It's over?" The man could not hide his shock.

He had guarded that place for many many years. During that time, he had fought several times with that Extraterrestrial Demon, which would occasionally travel from the past to his time in their attempt to invade. He knew very well how powerful that demon was.

However, James killed the demon and resolved their problem with ease.

"Mhm. It's over." James continued, "Also, I haven't even asked for your name."

The man in a black robe drew a long breath to calm himself down. Then, he said, "I'm Gaius Poban."

The Almighty Dragon General Chapter 5132-For all this time, Gaius, who was the first sect leader of the Orstellen Sect, had been guarding the Infinity Cities.

"Sir Gaius," James went on, "The battle at the Infinity Cities has ended.

However, it is still ongoing in the outside world. A Sovereign Third Rank cultivator that came from another plane of existence had appeared in the Endlos Plane."

"A Sovereign Third Rank cultivator?!" Gaius knitted his brows.

James replied, "Fortunately, he's still the least of our problems. I have absorbed and cultivated the three beams of Endlos Lights. In a way, I have become the lord of the Endlos Plane as I can wield or control almost any kind of energy existing in the Endlos. Even the Sovereign Third Rank cultivator would not be able to harm me within the Endlos Plane."

Gaius sighed in relief upon hearing James' words.

“Is there anything you need my help with then?” Gaius asked.

James briefly described to him what was happening outside.

“Several beings from another plane of existence are living amongst us, but I have not confirmed who they are yet. For now, we should work covertly and keep everyone under surveillance to catch all those people.”

“Alright. I’ll help with your plan,” Gaius agreed.

After that, James and Gaius left the Infinity Cities. As soon as they had exited the city perimeters, the Infinity Cities slowly disappeared as they had served their purpose.

The two of them soon arrived at a universe located not too far away from the Orstellen Sect’s base. They met up with Gurgun, who had chosen the universe as his hideout, in an inconspicuous residence.

“Gaius!”

Gurgun was over the moon to meet Gaius again. He gave a hearty laugh as he threw his arms around Gaius. “I am so glad to see you here. I thought I wouldn’t be able to see you again in this lifetime!”

James, who had put on a disguise, felt a warm feeling inside as he could sense the joy of those two men being reunited.

Then, Gurgun and Gaius turned to James.

Gurgun asked, “James, what are your plans now?”

James sat down next to the table and tapped his index finger on the tabletop.

After a brief moment, he began, ‘The two of you should head to the Orstellen Sect’s base and blend in with the people there.’”

James suspected that the reincarnations of the cultivators from the Central Plane's Emyr Island had infiltrated the Orstellen Sect.

James had to remain in the dark for the time being. On the contrary, Gurgun and Gaius were new faces to the people of the Orstellen Sect. Moreover, they had both achieved the Sovereign Rank. Both men would be perfect for the task.

"After entering the Orstellen Sect's territory, you should monitor everyone and keep an eye out for any suspicious activities."

Gaius asked, "We're monitoring everyone?"

"That's right. Everyone, including my wife," James replied.

In his opinion, everyone was under suspicion until they could discern who was planted in the Orstellen Sect.

James was not planning to exterminate all of the moles. At his level of skills and cultivation, they would not pose any threat to him. However, James was concerned the moles might plot something to harm their people.

"Alright. Leave that to us." Gurgun nodded. He and Gaius left the universe shortly afterward.

Meanwhile, James made the place his temporary base and continued to stay there. He was confident that Gaius and Gurgun would easily become the top cultivators of the Orstellen Sect once they succeeded in joining the group.

Now that they had resolved almost all external threats, the only thing left to do was to locate the Great Elder from Emyr Island. They would be able to secure temporary peace in the Endlos by getting rid of that man.

However, to eliminate all threats, James would have to travel to Emyr Island and exterminate all their members there.

Unfortunately, if James were to leave the Endlos and travel to Emyr Island, he would hardly be able to go up against the lord of Emyr Island at his current cultivation rank and skills.

At a beautiful, thriving universe located within the Endlos...

The Almighty Dragon General Chapter 5133-A tall mountain surrounded by abundant amounts of spiritual energy could be found on a huge planet. Several buildings of unique, intricate designs were erected on the mountain.

Inside a quiet manor, an elderly man in a gray robe was seated in a wooden chair. The man had gray hair and deep wrinkles scattered on his face.

It was Lor, the Great Elder and the Sovereign Third Rank cultivator from Emyr Island.

Lor had arrived in the Endlos for quite some time and roughly learned about the famous, superior cultivators active at the moment. Lor had also heard about the birth of a cultivator with true, exceptional powers in the Endlos. That man had even won all the battles happening at different places across the Endlos.

Still, Lor was not feeling anxious.

Meanwhile, a middle-aged man was kneeling on the ground next to Lor's feet.

The man was trembling all over as he kept his forehead stuck to the ground.

"That's enough. You can stand up now," Lor instructed in a monotonous voice.

The man stumbled to his feet. It was Sedris Caballero, the leader of the Theos Sect.

"Sir... Sir Lor," Sedris greeted Lor in a shaky voice.

"Were you able to gather information about the current whereabouts of the three beams of Endlos Lights after all this time?" Lor asked.

"I've roughly confirmed where they are now," Sedris continued, "One of the Endlos Lights is in the human cultivator, James Caden's possession. His wife, Thea Callahan, has one too. The third Endlos Light is with Wyot Dalibor, who comes from the Doom Race."

Upon hearing those three names, Lor furrowed his brows. Then, he said,

“Alright. You can leave now.”

“Yes, Sir Lor.”

Sedris was drenched in a cold sweat as he treaded away carefully.

A short while later, a beam of light shot down from the sky and landed somewhere near Lor. A man stepped out of the light and greeted respectfully,

“Greetings, Sir Lor.”

“Mhm.” Lor gave a slight nod. “I have a mission for you.

Head to the Orstellen Sect’s base and seize Thea Callahan.”

A small frown creased the man’s forehead.

“What’s the matter?” Lor gazed at the man and asked expressionlessly, “Are you unwilling to carry out my orders? Or do you not have what it takes to do it?”

“Of course not. I will carry out your orders immediately.” The man bowed slightly and excused himself.

A few minutes after the man was gone, another young man appeared at the manor.

‘You came.’ Lor’s face broke into a smile the instant he saw the young man. He got up and asked, “How has it been for you living at the Endlos?”

The man standing before Lor was none other than Wynton Yanes, who was one of James’ closest comrades. He sat down in an empty chair and picked up a spiritual berry from a plate placed on the table.

As Wynton munched on the berry, he said flatly, “It was alright. I even feel a little attached to this identity.”

‘Young Master,” Lor reminded him, ‘You’ve recovered your memories now. You shouldn’t forget about your mission here. You came to the Endlos to help our Lord claim the Endlos Lights. We won’t be able to conquer the Endlos even through an all-out attack. That was why the Lord had arranged for you to be reincarnated into the Endlos.”

‘The Lord’s condition has worsened recently. There are also other groups and forces trying to bring us down. We must help the Lord collect the Endlos Lights as soon as possible so that he can heal his injuries.”

Wynton replied nonchalantly, ‘You’ve already sent your man to capture Thea Callahan. It will be alright since we have you around. Anyway, our mission is to obtain the Endlos Lights. Let’s not harm innocent lives.”

‘You’ve changed, Young Master.” Lor sounded slightly disappointed.

Wynton stood up and stretched his back. He said matter-of- factly, “I have lived an entirely different lifetime, after all. It’s only natural that I’ve more or less changed.”

Then, Wynton left the manor.

The Almighty Dragon General Chapter 5134-Sedris regained memories of his past life following Lor’s appearance.

He was the reincarnation of one of the many Extraterrestrial Demon Commanders who had taken part in the first attempt to invade the Endlos.

Sedris was Larix Mavfta, the extraterrestrial demon that James had defeated in the Orstellen Realm.

The Larix that existed in the Orstellen Realm was not aware that their invasion attempt had failed and that he had been reincarnated.

Sedris had a gloomy expression on his face as he returned to the Theos Sect.

“What’s the matter, Sir Sedris? Why do you look so down?”

Sedris ran into Waleria, who was getting ready to leave the Theos Sect’s headquarters. She could not help but notice the troubled look on Sedris’ face.

“It... It’s nothing.” Sedris shook his head slightly.

“Oh, alright. I’m going to drop by the Orstellen Sect,” Waleria informed Sedris before she teleported away and vanished from the spot.

A few moments later, a ravishing lady materialized outside the entrance leading into the Theos Sect’s headquarters. It was Xezal.

The guards stationed at the entrance immediately drew their swords and blocked Xezal’s path.

“Have you all lost your minds? Don’t you know who I am? I’m Xezal Dalibor, the current Endlos Lord’s daughter! Inform Sedris Caballero that I want to see him now,” Xezal demanded haughtily.

“Of course. Please wait here for a moment.”

One of the guards quickly hurried away to report about Xezal’s arrival.

While Sedris was waiting for Xezal at the Orstellen Sect’s main hall, he was feeling a little confused as to why Xezal suddenly requested a meeting.

“We’ve met again, Larix.” Xezal flashed him an enigmatic smile.

Sedris’ eyes widened at the mention of that name. “You... You knew?!”

Xezal’s grin broadened. “I struck up a deal with the extraterrestrial demons back in the Orstellen Realm, and I saw you there. However, that was just a projected form of your past life. You had no idea that you were already reincarnated and that we had met before.”

Sedris stared at her with a cold gaze. “What is it that you want?”

Xezal replied in a calm voice, "Things have been rather peaceful at the Orstellen Sect. However, after Livie Caden had made it inside the Orstellen Sect's base, we felt the pulse and tremors of a huge battle coming from the direction of the Tribulation World not long after that."

"Soon afterward, we also sensed similar, peculiar tremors coming from the very edge of the Infinity Cities. If my guess is right, James Caden has started exterminating the extraterrestrial demons."

Sedris just remained silent as he listened to Xezal.

Xezal went on, "I know that you are merely a lowly commander who is working under your superior's orders. Take me to that person. I want to propose a deal to them."

"You want to propose a deal?" Sedris stared at Xezal briefly. Then, he let out a chuckle. "Xezal, I know that you are very ambitious. I am also aware of how you managed to have the entire Endlos in the palm of your hand before. However, being smart won't be enough for what is about to come.

This isn't just a battle between cultivators of the Endlos. It is a battle between the different planes of existence."

"I know. Anyhow, just take me to your superior and let me talk to them," Xezal answered.

After a moment's consideration, Sedris decided to agree with Xezal's request.

He figured that the lady had probably devised some sort of plan to be acting this confident.

"Alright. Come with me."

Sedris led Xezal to the spiritual mountain that Lor had chosen as his temporary lodging.

He materialized before Lor first and got down on his knees.

Sedris put his forehead against the ground and began in a cautious tone, "Sir Lor, this woman insists on meeting you in person."

When Lor's gaze fell on Xezal who appeared a few seconds later, the man leaped out of the chair and almost tripped. He stared at Xezal with an intense gaze.

"It's you..."

The Almighty Dragon General Chapter 5135-Lor's voice was quivering.

"Why? Do you know me?" Xezal arched a brow.

Lor's eyes bulged in shock as he stared at Xezal. "The others might not know it, but I do..."

-ohr Xezal was getting more and more intrigued. She had never once left the Endlos Plane, and she had never met the elderly man before her. She was curious about how he would know her.

After staring at Xezal's face for quite some time, Lor came to realize something.

It was very likely that the lady had yet to recover her memories after being reincarnated into the Endlos.

"Well, say something?" Xezal prompted him.

However, Lor remained silent. Various thoughts crossed his mind as he was in a state of shock.

Countless cultivators from the Central Plane had been searching for the reincarnation of Lady Wikolia all this time but were to no avail. Lor did not expect to meet Lady Wikolia's reincarnation at the Endlos Plane like this.

Lady Wikolia was one of the top cultivators of the Central Plane. A long long time ago, she had secretly plotted the plan to eliminate Lord Supremus.

No one, not even Lord Supremus, was aware that Lady Wikolia was the mastermind who had brought about his demise. Lor was an exception since one of his ancestors had worked as the lady's close aide in the past. Therefore, he had the opportunity to learn of such a huge secret.

'Rumor has it that Lord Supremus hasn't been annihilated. They say part of his soul has managed to escape, and he has been reincarnated. Could it be that Lady Wikolia had chosen to be reincarnated into the Endlos Plane because Lord Supremus was reincarnated into this place?!' Lor shuddered a little as he pondered about that.

If that were the case, the Endlos would become a very dangerous place.

'Perhaps... After the group of cultivators had eliminated Lord Supremus, they went ahead and took out Lady Wikolia too. Therefore, she was forced to get reincarnated as well?' he wondered.

In just a matter of seconds, Lor had considered multiple possibilities in his head.

However, he had no way of confirming his suspicions.

"Hello..."

Xezal's voice pulled Lor out of his reverie.

"Huh?" Lor snapped to his senses.

The lady before him was merely the reincarnation of Lady Wikolia. At her current cultivation rank, Xezal was not the person he needed to feel wary of.

A faint smile flickered across Lor's face. He asked, "Why have you requested for a meeting?"

Xezal replied, "I am here to offer you assistance."

"Assistance?" Lor's brows lifted.

"That's right." Xezal explained, "Your main goal is to try and obtain the Endlos Lights. We already know that James Caden, Thea Callahan, and Wyot Dalibor each have a beam of Endlos Light. As long as we capture those three, you'll be able to have the Endlos Lights."

Lor curled his lips. "Those people are all extremely capable cultivators. It is almost impossible for anyone to capture all three of them."

Xezal let out a soft chuckle. "You're being overly humble, Sir. The top cultivators of the Endlos Plane have at most achieved the Consummation Chaos Compleat Rank. On the other hand, you have already reached the Sovereign Rank. You can surely handle these three without any difficulties."

Lor gave a slight nod. "In that case, why would I need your assistance then?"

Xezal met his gaze. "That's because we can't possibly trouble you with such a mediocre task. If you could lend me your subordinates and the spies you planted in the Endlos, I would personally take care of the matter and help you obtain the three beams of Endlos Lights."

Lor fell into deep thought.

He would not have bothered listening to some stranger's proposal. However, he was currently facing the reincarnation of Lady Wikolia.

That made all the difference.

"Alright. I accept your offer," Lor responded.
